Avery had also said that Layla was her biological daughter. How could she have given birth to both of them in the span of four short years?

The only possibility was that the two children were born at the same time.

When Elliot was thinking about it last night, he had found himself seized with excitement that he had found it hard to sleep... He truly liked Layla.

From the moment he met Avery's children, he preferred Layla.

It did not matter who Avery had had Layla with, he had never once hated Layla because Layla looked a lot like Avery. Layla also possessed a very interesting character. Although she was a good child, she was not a child given to blinde8 obedience.

She was rather eccentric and quirky. Elliot lacked such characteristics which was part of the reason why he liked her so much.

"What's a twin?" Layla blinked her curious eyes innocently, fanning her eyelashes. "My Mommy has never told me about this before! What does that mean?"

The hope that Elliot had felt was rapidly fading. Could things be not the way he had thought them to be?

What were the circumstances that lay behind the two children? He wanted to get a DNA test done, however, without Avery's permission and the children's consent, he dared not do it. It would be harder to gain their forgiveness than it would be getting their consent for such a87 test.

"If you're not going to tell me, I'm going to go ask Mommy!" Layla pouted and was about to head upstairs.

Elliot was afraid that Layla would disturb Avery, so he picked her up in his arms and walked into the kitchen.

"Twins means that you and Hayden grew together while you were in your mommy's tummy, and it also means that you were born together," said Elliot as he studied her adorable face.

Her brows, nose, and her tiny mouth were exactly the same as Avery's. "Avery must have been this adorable when she was young!" he thought.

Time stopped and the air froze.

Elliot pursed his lips. Then, very quickly, he pecked her cheek. Elliot flushed after the act.

At the same time, he realized that he had crossed the line. Layla did not like him, how could he have kissed her?

He immediately placed the stunned Layla down on the floor.

"I'm sorry, Layla. I didn't mean to do it,"

"You look too much like your mother. I couldn't help it. I'm sorry." He failed to tell her all of that in time.

Layla's cries rang through the entire villa!

"Woo! Woo! Woo! Mommy!" Layla cried while screaming at the top of her lungs, "Mommy! Hayden! The bad man kissed me! Woo! Woo! I don't want him to kiss me!"

Instantly, everyone rushed over.

Avery and Hayden rushed downstairs. Mike, with his blonde spiky hair, was the first to rush over. He immediately picked Layla up and patted her back. "Babe, who bullied you? Hmm?"

Layla, her vision blurred by her tears, pointed her little finger at Elliot who was in the kitchen.

When Mike saw Elliot, he was stunned. "Why are you here? Is it dark already? Bloody hell! Did I sleep the entire day away?! Impossible!"

Avery took a piece of tissue to wipe Layla's tears. "Layla, what did you just say? Who kissed you?" Avery did hear her clearly.

Chapter 515

“Elliot the evil man! He kissed me here...” Layla pointed at her plump cheeks.

She began to calm down.

“My Dirtbag Dad kissed me, does that mean that he likes me?” she wondered.

However, she had not decided to forgive him yet!

Elliot walked over to Avery and apologized sincerely, “Avery, I’m sorry. I was just entranced by how adorable Layla is, which was why I could not help myself.”

This was the first time Avery had heard such a self-justified apology.

“I know my daughter is cute, but I just can’t have people kiss her because they find her cute. If everyone who finds her cute kisses her, then how can she be expected to lead a normal life?” Although Avery was reprimanding him, she could not help the conflicted feelings welling up inside her.

Elliot was a person who could control his desires. “Did he kiss Layla because of the parental bond that they shared?” she wondered.

“Layla, I’m sorry,” Elliot apologized to Layla once more. “I’ll let you hit me, okay?”

Elliot stretched out his hand to Layla. Layla immediately grabbed his hand, pulled it toward her, and it bit it!

Avery and Elliot were dumbfounded. She was like a feral cat! Although she was small in stature, she bit him hard. Elliot felt her teeth bite into his flesh.

“Layla, stop biting!” Avery patted Layla on the shoulder. “If you hurt him, who is going to cook dinner for us?”

Layla obeyed Avery and immediately released Elliot.

Elliot quickly retracted his hand and placed it behind his back. When Avery saw Elliot’s sheepish behavior, her heart softened a slightly.

She dragged him away from the living area.

“Hayden, did you see it?” said Mike to Hayden after analyzing the situation.

“Elliot has tricks up his sleeves! First, he kissed Layla, then he pretended to be hurt in front of your Mommy. Layla isn’t that strong. How could she have hurt him...”

As he said that, he snuck a glance at Layla. He noticed that there were a few drops of blood staining her lips.

“Cough! Cough! Cough! Layla! You didn’t have to use that much strength. If you hurt him, how is he going to cook dinner for us?” Mike said awkwardly. Layla blinked and licked her lips. “His hand smelled good. I couldn’t help myself. Woo, woo...”

“Are you hungry?” Mike carried Layla into the kitchen.

“Hmm. Will Mommy be mad at me?” Layla was suddenly a little worried.

“She won’t. It’s that dirtbag who kissed you first. You should do whatever you like when you face someone like him,” said Mike. “If your Mommy blames you, I’ll stand up for you!”

Avery took Elliot into a room. There was plenty of medication in the room.

“I’m sorry, Layla doesn’t know her strength.” Avery blamed herself for the bite marks on his palm. It was even starting to bleed. “You don’t have to make dinner today.”

Elliot said distractedly, “I’m fine. I’ll wear gloves while cooking. It doesn’t matter.”

“Why did you kiss Layla?” Avery lowered her gaze. She cleaned his wound with some disinfectant she had.

“Because she looks like you. When I look at her, it feels like I’m looking at you,” Elliot said hoarsely. “Avery, I had a dream last night.”

“Hmm?” Avery looked at him. “I thought you didn’t sleep last night! You don’t look too well.”

“I slept a little,” he answered, telling her a half-truth. “I dreamt that your children were twins.

Avery’s hands trembled, and she poured the entire bottle of disinfectant onto his hand.

Seeing how lost she looked, he said, “I was looking through some photos of when I was a child, and could not help but noticed that Hayden looks a lot like me. If I ever had a son, I’m sure that he would look like Hayden.”

Avery took some cotton balls and wiped away the excess disinfectant. Her voice shook, “Elliot if the child in me is a boy, you’ll know what he looks like when he is born.”

Chapter 516

Avery’s tone was ambiguous, but Elliot understood the deeper meaning behind her words.

She was telling him not to get any ideas about Hayden and Layla. It did not matter whether or not they were twins, neither did it matter if Hayden was his son or not. The only child that belonged to him was the one she was carrying. In the past, Elliot’s bad temper would erupt by now, but his emotions were more stable now than they were before, and it was better than nothing.

Avery finished applying the medication on his wound, then picked up the gauze and roll of bandages she planned on wrapping his hand up with.

“Just stick a simple bandage on it,” Elliot said. He thought that using the gauze would be taking things too far. People might end up thinking he was suffering from a much more severe injury.

Avery ignored his request and immediately began to wrap his hand up with three gauze.

“Keep the wound dry for the next couple of days,” she instructed.

“How would I take a shower, then?” Elliot asked.

“Is this the first time you’ve gotten hurt?”

Avery raised her brows. She wanted to mock him, but lost the confidence to do so as she remembered that her daughter was responsible for Elliot’s wound.

“If you can’t take a shower with one hand and don’t want any help from others, then just use a water-resistant glove,” she said.

Elliot stared at his solidly bandaged hand, then said casually, “When can we find out if the baby’s a boy or a girl?”

“We’ll know once it’s born, right?” Avery said.

She put the medication and bandages away, then walked to the door and said, “It’s not like we can change anything even if we find out sooner.”

“I hope it’s a girl,” Elliot said as if he was making a wish and sauntered over to her. “Just like Layla.”

“Life has a tendency of giving you the exact opposite of what you wish too hard for,” Avery irked him deliberately. “It could be a boy.”

The faint light in Elliot’s eyes vanished.

It was obvious that he truly wanted a daughter, and was not too fond of the idea of having a son. It was no wonder he was able to act so violently toward Hayden in the past.

If it were not Hayden, but Layla who had provoked him back then, perhaps the ending would have been different

Chad arrived forty minutes later.

Since Elliot’s hand was hurt, Mike could not count on him to cook and called Chad to come over to help.

Avery thought that Mike had only called Chad over. However, Tammy, Jun, Ben, Wesley and Shea all showed up not long after.

She did not tell anybody that Elliot was cooking at her home that day.

It was because she had no confidence in his culinary skills at all. What if he ended up blowing the kitchen up?

Thus, she decided it was not a matter she wanted to publicize.

However, Mike went ahead and invited all these people over to watch the show.

“Whoa! Why are you making dinner so early, Mr. President?” Tammy said as she approached Elliot with a cheeky grin. She saw his bandaged hand, then gleefully teased, “The stove isn’t even turned on yet, but you’re hurt already? Could this be some kind of mysterious ritual? Did you use your blood to appease the Kitchen Gods?”

Elliot was unfazed by her mockery.

“Don’t come in here and affect my performance.”

“How do you expect to perform with your hand like that? Even if you stay back and help clean up, you’d just get in the way! Ha!” Tammy’s hearty laughter echoed through the entire villa.

Avery could not listen to this for another second and dragged Tammy out of the kitchen.

Elliot insisted on cooking for her and the children. She could not convince him otherwise, and ended up leaving him be.

Chad was around to help anyway, so it should not be too much trouble.

“How could you not tell me about such big news, Avery? If you ever remarry him, am I only going to find out about it once the marriage license is already out?” Tammy said disappointedly.

“He just came over to cook. Don’t make it out to be anything more,” Avery said as she peeled a tangerine and passed it to Tammy.

“Hmph! Don’t think you can settle this with a measly tangerine. You should at least tell me what happened between the both of you in Zirconia. Even the couple in the TV drama I’m watching aren’t progressing as quickly as you two!”

Tammy sulked as she ate the tangerine.

Realizing she could not escape Tammy’s interrogation, Avery had no choice but to lightly and briefly describe the events that occurred at Zirconia.

Chapter 517

“Why did you sleep in the same room?” Tammy asked.

She was an expert at picking up on key points like that.

“We were in the middle of a storm,” Avery said. “It’s not like I could just kick him out.”

“I see. Did you sleep in bed together? How could you let him in your bed? He didn’t even make an effort, but all it took was a storm for you to let him get his way?!”

Avery froze for a moment, then said, “We didn’t do anything... Well, he didn’t exactly do nothing at all...”

“I knew he would have done something to you...”

Avery had a feeling the conversation was heading toward a strange direction, then quickly interjected and said, “It’s not what you think, Tammy! He just... He washed... My... Feet...”

She did not want to mention this, but Tammy’s seething glare was too intense!

Then, Tammy chuckled delightfully and said, "Way to go, Mr. Foster! Not only can those noble hands of his earn money, they can also wash a woman's feet! Is this ability to endure humiliation and roll with the punches the secret to his success?! It's no wonder everything works out for successful people! If a man traveled thousands of miles just to wash my feet, then I would throw down my guard and surrender to him!"

Bursts of laughter suddenly filled the entire house!

Avery's cheeks were burning as she held onto her glass of water with both hands and thought of Elliot.

She wondered if he would be upset that she let this incident slip.

After all, it was something that others could use to make a joke out of him in the future.

Out in the front yard, Wesley had stepped out for some air. Shea had unexpectedly followed him out of the house.

"Hi, Mr. Wesley," she said.

Wesley smiled and said, "Just call me Wesley."

"Wesley, are you a doctor, too?" Shea asked as she gazed at him with eyes filled with admiration.

"I am, but I'm not that skilled. I'm just a normal doctor," Wesley answered as his cheeks turned pink. Shea flashed a grin and said, "It would be great if you could cure me. I don't like Dr. Sanford or the doctor she recommended."

The smile on Wesley's face froze.

"I would definitely help you if I could," he said.

"I believe you, Wesley," Shea said. She was so moved that she held onto his hands and said, ". You're Avery's good friend. You must be a good person."

Wesley instinctively escaped her grasp as he felt the gesture was inappropriate between a single man and woman.

However, as her innocent gaze reminded him that she was not like normal people, he got annoyed at himself for having such improper thoughts.

“Avery really hopes you get better soon, Shea,” Wesley said.

“Mrs. Scarlet told me that Avery refused to treat me.” Shea’s tone was sorrowful, but the soft smile on her face remained. “She said that Avery won’t help me because she’s mad at my big brother, but it looks like they might make up soon!”

Wesley watched her innocent smile as he said bitterly, “Avery can’t cure you right now, Shea. If she could, she would not refuse to help just because of her relationship with your brother.”

“I see. Does that mean there’s no cure for me?” Shea asked, then mumbled to herself, “I think things are pretty good as they are now.”

Wesley plucked a flower from the flower bed and handed it to her.

“This is a sunflower. It represents hope. I’m giving it to you, so there will definitely be hope for you in the future.”

Back in the kitchen, Elliot was wearing a pair of gloves as he followed the instructions in a cookbook and marinated some ribs.

Avery liked ribs, so he decided to make some sweet barbecue ribs.

Suddenly, Layla walked in and stood next to him.

“You’re behaving well all of a sudden, Elliot Foster. Do you have an ulterior motive?” she huffed as she lifted her head to look at him with a frown. “Do you want to take the baby in Mommy’s belly away? The baby is ours. I won’t give it to you!”

Elliot lowered his eyes to gaze at Layla's adorable, puffed-up cheeks, then corrected her, "How could you call me by my full name like that? That's not very polite."

Layla let out a huff, then said, "It's because you're a bad man."

"Did your mother say that?" Elliot asked with a calm face.

He was not upset. Layla was just a child. What did she know?

She only knew things that adults told her about.

"No way! Mommy wouldn't say bad things behind someone's back!"

At this point, Layla was worried about snitching on her brother, so she cleverly changed the subject and asked, "What are you making?"

"Sweet barbecue ribs," Elliot replied as he showed the marinated ribs to her.

"It's your mother's favorite. What do you want to eat? I'll make it for you."

Layla answered without hesitation, "I want chocolate! I also want meat! Could you hide some chocolate in the meat for me? Whatever you do, don't let Mommy find out!"

Elliot thought about it, then said, "I can do that for you, but can you tell me what your brother's favorite dish is?"

Layla's sparkling eyes rolled in their sockets as she said, "Hayden likes vegetables, but he definitely won't eat it if you made it. You're the person he hates the most!"

Elliot had a feeling that he had to slowly make up for his past mistake.

Once Layla left the kitchen, Chad sighed and said, "There's no need for you to stoop this low, Sir."

With Elliot washing Avery's feet and cooking for her, Chad wondered if this was still the same boss he knew.

If washing her feet was considered an act of passion between lovers, then what about cooking a meal?

“Aren’t you doing the same by cooking for Mike?” Elliot teased in a deep voice.

“That’s different. I like cooking,” Chad said.

“I like cooking for Avery,” Elliot responded.

Chad was left speechless.

Elliot had won.

When lunch was served, Avery tried the sweet barbecue ribs that Elliot made for her. He had added too much sugar, so it was very sweet.

“It’s a little too sweet,” she said softly to Elliot, giving him her opinion. Elliot tested a piece himself, and found that it was, in fact, too sweet.

“I won’t add in as much sugar next time.”

Avery was stunned.

“Next time?” she thought. “There was going to be a ‘next time?’”

She did not dare overthink things.

She saw Layla eating a lobster tail at the smaller table in the dining room, then called out, “Why are you eating there by yourself, Layla?”

“I added some chocolate in her lobster,” Elliot explained. “She’s afraid of you finding out.”

Avery frowned and said, “Did she ask you to add chocolate?”

“She did. There were three lobster tails, but I only added a little piece of chocolate.” Elliot then leaned in and said into her ear, “Cut me some slack. It’s rare for your daughter to be willing to eat my cooking.”

With those words, how could Avery not spare him his dignity?

After lunch, Elliot went into Avery’s room to rest.

He was at his limit after staying up all night.

Once Elliot went upstairs, Tammy suggested a game of poker. Mike and Ben immediately agreed. Wesley did not like playing cards, but was forced to join in.

Avery sat behind Tammy and watched them play.

“Avery, I heard Elliot really went all out just to see you this time!” Tammy said.

“What do you mean?” Avery had not registered what Tammy was talking about yet.

“Ben said Elliot made a huge donation to the Border Security Force just so he could see you.” Tammy sighed, then said, “He’s so generous with his money! This one meeting with you cost him millions!”

It was true that Elliot was something of a spendthrift. Otherwise, he would not have paid out as much as three hundred million dollars to Zoe Sanford.

Avery felt frustrated every time she thought about this.

She despised Zoe, but she allowed her to make three hundred million dollars from doing absolutely nothing!

If Elliot Foster was a foolish man, then Avery Tate was a foolish woman!

As Ben watched Avery’s cold expression and guessed her thoughts, he decided to smooth things over and said, “That’s where you’re wrong, Tammy. Money is nothing to Elliot. However, of all the years that I’ve known him, I’ve never once seen him cook for someone, let alone...”

Avery was in a bad mood, so she cut Ben off and said, “Get on with your game. I’m going to take a nap.”

Chapter 519

Once Avery was out of the room, Tammy said embarrassedly, “Did I say something wrong?"

Ben answered earnestly, "It's not like you didn't know that Elliot gave Zoe Sanford three hundred million dollars. He could give that much money to Avery as well, but it would be of a different nature."

"I would've already forgotten about Zoe Sanford if you didn't mention her."

"She's the reason they fought this time," Ben said. "Don't underestimate the destructive power of an ex-girlfriend."

"That's true! Besides, Avery's pregnant now, so mood swings are common to begin with... However, I think allowing Elliot to come cook for her means she wants to accept him again!"

Tammy could not really understand what Avery was thinking.

"They're the only ones who would know if they will get back together," Ben said nonchalantly. "As their friends, all we have to do is sit back quietly and watch!"

Upstairs, Avery pushed open the door to the master bedroom.

Her eyes followed the ray of sunlight shining in from the window until they landed on the bed.

Elliot was already fast asleep.

He was completely unaffected by all the noise downstairs, so he was probably exhausted.

Avery entered the room, then softly shut the door behind her.

The reason why she allowed Elliot to come over and make up for the Children's Day dinner was not because he had spent a fortune to see her, nor was it because he washed her feet.

It was because he had entered a minefield without hesitation just to find her.

How could she ignore the deep feelings of a man who was willing to risk his life for her?

Her mood was chaotic and she felt conflicted.

There were too many complications in her relationship with Elliot.

Avery sat down on the side of the bed, but did not feel like sleeping.

She pulled out her phone and casually scrolled through it until she accidentally clicked on a photo!

There was a couple in the photo. The man was shirtless, while the woman was wearing a skimpy swimsuit. It was an intimate picture of them hugging each other!

The man was Cole Foster!

As for the woman, she was... Zoe Sanford!

“Why would the two of them take such an intimate photo?” Avery thought.

She thought she was mistaken, so she zoomed into the photo...

Just as she was zooming into the picture, it suddenly disappeared, and an error message popped up.

Avery tapped on the return button and realized she had unknowingly clicked into Cole's social media page earlier.

The intimate photo she saw just now was posted on his page.

However, he had deleted it!

Avery pinched herself on the arm. It hurt.

She was not dreaming, and this was not an illusion.

Cole and Zoe were together right now.

From the looks of the photo, there was definitely more to their relationship.

Judging by how close they were, they must have been seeing each other in secret for quite some time.

Was Elliot not the man that Zoe loved?

It was only a few days ago that she sobbed in agony for the child they lost.

How was she already with Cole in such a short amount of time?

Avery could not figure out what was true and what was not.

She glanced over at Elliot in a daze. He most likely did not know about this.

She pondered if she should tell him. How would she go about it?

“Your nephew and your ex-girlfriend are seeing each other!”

“It looks like it’s been going on for a while, too!”

“You got cheated on, Elliot!”

Countless voices began to ring in Avery’s head.

Her thoughts must have been too loud somehow, because she saw Elliot’s eyes suddenly open moments later.

Chapter 520

Avery wanted to say something, but she was shocked by the glistening tears and undisguised vulnerability in Elliot’s eyes.

“Elliot...”

When she could not help but speak up, his name was what escaped her lips.

She wanted to ask him what was wrong.

However, Elliot wrapped his large hand around her arm and pulled her into his arms before she could say another word.

Avery supported her weight with her arms as her long lashes fluttered.

Their faces were only inches away from each other.

She could see the brokenness in his eyes even more clearly now.

“What’s wrong, Elliot?” she asked in an unintentionally gentle voice as her heart clenched tightly in her chest.

"I dreamt that you left me." Elliot's Adam's apple bobbed in his throat and his voice was hoarse. "You ran off with another man."

Avery felt a lump in her throat. She could not speak.

She would not tell him about the recurring nightmares she had back when he was dating Zoe. She always had dreams about the two of them getting married.

One would worry about gain and loss when one cared.

"It was a dream. It wasn't real," Avery said as her fingers tenderly wiped the tears from the corner of Elliot's eyes.

"Don't be with another man," Elliot said. As if he did not hear her explanation, he clenched onto her hand tightly.

"I'm not with another man."

Avery's hand was being clenched so tightly that it began to hurt, but she did not retract it.

She knew that he would only squeeze harder if she did that.

"Swear it." Worried that she might escape, Elliot wrapped his other arm tightly around her waist. "Swear that you will never be with another man for the rest of your life."

After a moment of silence, Avery said, "You're asking this of me, but what if you go off with another woman?"

"I don't want anybody else but you." Elliot's deep-set eyes gazed intensely at her as he persisted, "You can't be with any other man but me."

"I've never thought of being with any man at all, Elliot," Avery responded clearly. "All I want is to raise my kids."

At the mention of children, the pain in Elliot's eyes deepened.

Layla was a normal child, but Hayden was not.

He was special and required more effort and attention from Avery.

He did not know what condition the children were in before, but at least they were now being cared for very well.

On top of the baby she was carrying... Avery definitely did not have any remaining energy left to date other men.

"Avery," Elliot croaked as he gazed at her with pleading eyes, "Kiss me."

Avery froze.

"Kiss me!"

This time, his voice was filled with the anxious anticipation and the pain from fear of rejection.

When Avery hated him, she wanted to go murder him with her bare hands.

When she loved him, however, she wanted to give everything to him.

She did not hesitate any longer, and kissed Elliot's cold, thin lips.

In the living room downstairs, Layla wanted to play with Hayden, but was rejected.

"Are you mad because I made the lobster Daddy made for me, Hayden?"

Layla knew exactly why Hayden was upset, but she was a glutton who could not resist good food.

"You used to call him 'Dirtbag Dad'! Now, you're calling him 'Daddy'?!"

It was rare for Hayden to say this many words at one go.

It was clear that he was furious!

It was just a couple of lobster tails with some chocolate in them.

"Does she think we can't afford lobster tails or chocolate without him?" Hayden thought.

Layla's cheeks flushed a scarlet red as her hands shot up to cover her mouth.

"I didn't mean to say that! I meant Dirtbag Dad!"

"Don't call him 'Daddy' with all the guests around right now! Don't even call him 'Dirtbag Dad !!" Hayden said sternly.

Chapter 521

"Okay... Yes, Sir! Let's go play with Shea!" Layla dragged Hayden and headed in Shea's direction. "She said she'll take us out to play! She's getting the bodyguard to drive us!"

At five in the afternoon, Elliot helped Avery down the stairs.

As everyone else watched the warm and harmonious sight between the couple, all kinds of thoughts began to fill their minds.

An hour was usually enough for an afternoon nap. Two hours was considered too long for a nap.

However, Elliot and Avery had spent the entire afternoon resting upstairs.

How was it possible for them to nap for that long?

They were all adults, so everyone had an idea of what happened without having to ask.

"Weren't you guys playing poker?" Avery blushed from everyone's gazes, and simply came up with a subject.

"We stopped playing at four in the afternoon and started helping Chad make dinner! Were you two really sleeping so soundly upstairs that you couldn't hear anything?" Tammy asked with an expression filled with suspicion.

Avery's cheeks turned even redder.

"We really were sleeping. What else do you think we were doing?"

Tammy burst into hearty laughter as she pulled Avery to her side, then turned to Elliot and said, "Hurry up and give Shea a call and tell them to come back for dinner, Mr. Foster! She took the kids out to play for the whole afternoon and hasn't returned yet."

Elliot immediately pulled out his phone and called Shea.

Tammy dragged Avery outside to have a private conversation.

"Tell me the truth, Avery Tate. Did you two make up?! Did you?"

Tammy's feelings were rather complicated.

Back when Elliot was dating Zoe Sanford, she wanted to stab the dirtbag to death.

Now, watching him turn over a new leaf made her feel like it might not be too bad to give him another chance.

However, she felt that giving him that chance this simply might be going too easy on him.

"It depends on how you define 'made up'. If you mean restarting a family, then it definitely isn't that," Avery said, then looked toward the gates to see if the children were back

"Fine! Even if you don't get remarried, would you say you're dating as boyfriend and girlfriend?"

"I wouldn't," Avery said. "I think we're in an amicable co-parenting relationship."

"I think he's changed a lot over the years," Tammy said. "He didn't used to like kids, but he seemed pretty good with Layla and Hayden today."

"You can't judge a person by their behavior at one moment."

"That's for sure. His real test begins when your baby's born." The mere thought of it pleased Tammy. "Consider this his karma! Ha ha ha!"

Elliot walked over after his phone call.

"What's got you two laughing so happily?"

His sudden appearance shocked Tammy so much that she thought her heart was going to jump out of her chest.

She escaped back into the house in a flash.

“Are they arriving soon?” Avery asked as she looked up at Elliot.

“Yes, they’re on their way back now.”

“I have a question, Elliot,” Avery said as she recalled his relationship with Zoe.

“Would you be upset if Zoe is dating someone new now?”

Elliot laughed out loud and said, “I’d wish her happiness.”

“I see. What if that someone was your nephew?”

The smile on Elliot’s face froze.

“Did they get together?”

Avery felt the tension emanating from his body. Worried he would lose his appetite for dinner, she shook her head and said, “It was hypothetical.”

“If they really are dating, not only would I give them my blessing, I’d also give them a big fat check,” Elliot said delightedly.

Avery had no response.

The children returned soon after, and she took them inside the house.

Elliot trailed along behind them.

He pulled out his phone and sent out a text.

[Look into the relationship between Zoe Sanford and Cole Foster!]

Chapter 522

After dinner, Layla held Avery’s hand and said with a tired face,

“Mommy, I want to go to bed ... Give me a bath...”

The nanny immediately rushed over to help.

Layla threw a tantrum because of her fatigue.

"I want Mommy to give me a bath..." she sobbed.

Tammy walked over with a smile and said, "Layla, your Mommy's belly is going to grow even bigger soon. She won't be able to give you a bath by then!"

Layla froze for a moment, then stroked Avery's flat belly.

"Your Mommy's belly is going to grow this big," Tammy said as she gestured at Avery's abdomen.

Layla's jaw dropped in shock as disbelief washed over her little face.

Tammy carried Layla upstairs and said to Avery, "Go take a break, Avery!"

Avery was a little worried and wanted to go up with them.

Elliot grabbed her arm and said, "Come outside with me."

"What is it?" Avery said as she walked ahead of him. "Shea should be tired, too. You should head home."

"The bodyguard will take her home." Elliot held her hand and led her outside.

"Let's go for a walk."

Summer was just around the corner. The days were becoming longer and the weather was getting warmer.

The gentle breeze outside was a welcomed comfort.

The two of them slept for a while that afternoon. Elliot guessed that Avery would not be tired, so he wanted to take her out to relax.

Avery thought he meant they were going to take a simple walk around the neighborhood, but he ended up opening the door to his car.

"Didn't you say we were going for a walk? Where do you want to go?" she asked as she stood in front of the car door, puzzled.

"Let's go shopping." His tone was casual and light.

Avery knew Elliot did not like to shop.

He decided to take her shopping to make her happy.

Even if that were the case, he should have at least discussed it with her first.

“You’re weird,” Avery said, but hopped into the car anyway.

After Elliot got into the driver’s seat, Avery asked, “Where are we going to shop? I’m pregnant, so I can’t walk for too long.”

“I know.” Elliot never once forgot that Avery was carrying their child. “We’ll come home when you feel tired.”

They made their way to the city’s most popular street for luxury goods.

Every shop on this street sold high-end, designer brands.

The average crowd stayed away from it because of its exorbitant prices, which was why the street seemed secluded compared to the other shopping areas.

Avery was pregnant, so Elliot would not take her anywhere too crowded.

“I have plenty of clothes, Elliot... I don’t lack anything... If you feel like shopping, then let’s go look at some menswear!” Avery said as her eyes landed on the men’s clothing store right in front of them.

“We’ll take a look at everything,” Elliot said plainly. Sometimes, the quieter things were, the bigger the matter.

Elliot looked completely fine, but Avery began to feel uneasy.

When Tammy got home at 9 p.m. that night, she sent Avery a text. Tammy:

(Where did Elliot take you? Are you home yet?) !

Avery did not reply to the text until half an hour later.

Avery: [[I just got home.]

Tammy: [Holy crap! You shopped for that long? Can your body handle it?]

Avery: [You might not believe me, but we didn’t really shop. We only shopped for under half an hour, then went and got something to eat.]

Tammy: [... Didn’t you two just have dinner earlier?]

Chapter 523

Avery: [Maybe he figured I need to eat more because I'm eating for two now.]

Tammy: [Hahaha! What did he buy for you? Send me photos!]

Avery took a photo of that night's haul and sent it to Tammy.

Tammy looked at the photo, then immediately called Avery.

"Why did he buy jewelry again? Haha! Do men like giving the women they love jewelry?" she laughed.

Avery held her head in her hand and said, "He had a motive."

Tammy froze, then asked, "What motive?"

"It's because of an event next Monday."

Avery truly experienced how petty a man could be that night.

She had declined the clothes and jewelry, but Elliot insisted on buying them for her.

When she asked for his reason, he gladly gave it.

Back when Avery attended the meet-and-greet at the hotel with Eric Santos, they had both worn cream sweaters and were mistaken as lovers. The necklace she wore that Eric gave her also caused quite a bit of controversy.

All of this was in the past, but Elliot never got over it.

During their shopping spree, he picked out a dress for Avery and got a matching outfit for himself.

He also bought her a beautiful gemstone necklace.

The color of the gemstone was exactly the same as the cufflinks he got for himself!

Not only did he want to wear a matching outfit with her, he also wanted their accessories to match.

All of this was because there was going to be a contract-signing event on Monday between Tate Industries, Sterling Group and the Border Security Force.

Tammy cackled upon hearing Avery's story.

"I never knew he was this passionate! Why didn't you refuse the matching outfits? If you did, I'm sure he would end up doing something even more shocking!"

"His donation to the Border Security Force this time is for the good of the country and its citizens. I don't want to let such a small matter affect that contract."

"Hahahaha! This is hilarious! I don't know how your dating life somehow involved the country's affairs... The government should give you two a 'best couple' award..."

Avery blushed slightly, then changed the subject and said, "I accidentally saw a photo of Cole Foster and Zoe Sanford together today. I'm guessing Cole mistakenly posted it online. He deleted it right away."

Tammy smelled something fishy going on and said, "Didn't Zoe move into the old Foster mansion after she got pregnant? I bet they already had something going on back then!"

"I think there's a possibility they got together much earlier on, too. They were really close in the photo I saw today." Avery frowned and wondered, "Isn't Zoe madly in love with Elliot? Why would she do this?"

Tammy took a sip of water, then mused, "Maybe it was because Elliot was too cold to her! I heard that they only slept together once the entire time they were together. It was on the night of your birthday party. The night Elliot got really drunk..."

Avery froze.

She remembered every detail of what happened that night.

Elliot had pinned her down on the bed and tormented her for a long time.

Zoe had watched everything from outside the room that night.

It was the first time in her life that Avery felt like a homewrecker being caught in the act!

She had never revealed the events of that night to anybody, because Zoe was Elliot's official girlfriend at the time, and she was nothing but the third party who ruined their relationship!

"Are you sure?" Avery asked as she heard the feigned vagueness in her voice, but felt extremely nervous.

"I heard about it when my husband was drinking with Ben and the other... Elliot has a personal bodyguard who knows exactly where he sleeps every night. Ben's in charge of that bodyguard's salary, so Ben knows everything about Elliot's private life."

Tears rolled down Avery's face when she heard Tammy's answer.

Elliot might have been too drunk to remember anything about that night, but she remembered it very clearly!

He could not possibly have had any energy left inside of him to touch Zoe that night! It was even more impossible that she got pregnant with his child!

Chapter 524

"Why aren't you saying anything, Avery?" Tammy asked. "Do you think there's a possibility that Cole was the father of the child Zoe was pregnant with before? After all, the chances of getting knocked up after sleeping together once are really low! Besides, if Zoe would date a major sc*mbag like Cole, it's enough to prove that they're the same type of people!"

Avery felt an ache in her heart, then croaked, "I'm not sure if they really are dating or not... I'm a little tired now, Tammy..."

"Okay. Hurry up and get some rest, then," Tammy said.

Avery hung up the phone, then looked out the window into the night in a daze.

Tears fell silently down her face.

She had thought that Elliot and Zoe were just like other couples when they were together.

He had thought that the child Zoe was carrying was the result of their many nights of loving passion.

What a joke!

In the past, most of the loathing she felt toward Elliot was because of his relationship with Zoe.

She despised and resented him to the point that she wanted to kill him herself.

No matter what Elliot said, she did not want to hear a word of it.

No matter what he did, she wanted nothing but to be free from him!

Her eyes were clouded by jealousy and hatred, and she ended up seeing him as an enemy.

All the times she had regretted meeting him, the countless sleepless nights she had stayed up cursing him...

Now, the truth was like a hard slap in her face!

Avery felt like her heart was about to break in half.

Elliot was not the dirtbag that people made him out to be, neither was he a twotiming b*st* rd.

All the cruel words she had said to him and her actions that hurt him made her feel an unbelievable shame!

After a good cry, Avery lay in bed and stared blankly at the ceiling.

Now that her emotions were intact, her thoughts were slowly getting clearer.

It was no wonder Zoe miscarried!

The child she was carrying was never Elliot's to begin with, so she would not have dared to give birth to it.

Her cruelty knew no bounds!

On the day she miscarried, she did not forget to plan an elaborate and entertaining act...

At the thought of this, a chill ran through Avery's entire body.

She and Elliot were hardly considered fools, but Zoe had duped them both!

This was all in the past, but the torment that she and Elliot suffered because of it was engraved into their hearts!

Avery refused to let Zoe get away with this!

On Monday, Avery showed up at Tate Industries in a white dress.

An amethyst necklace was hanging from her neck.

The purple gemstone complemented her ivory skin and made her look exquisite.

"Is Miss Tate in a relationship? She's dressed up so beautifully today!"

"Hahaha! Sterling Group's big boss, Elliot Foster got here at eight in the morning. Did you notice the amethyst necklace Miss Tate's wearing? When I sent coffee over to Mr. Foster earlier, I saw that his cufflinks today were made of amethyst, too!"

"Oh my god! Are they going public with their relationship?!"

"Haha! Let's hope they get together! That way, we won't have to worry about Wonder Technologies anymore!"

That morning, news of Wanda Tate donating drones to hundreds of schools in the country's rural areas made the headlines.

Before long, Tate Industries and Sterling Group also made headlines with their donation of military drones to the country's Border Security Force.

The internet blew up in fervent discussions at the two pieces of news.

(I think Wonder Technologies should've donated something more practical to the schools! Those poor kids barely have enough to eat. What would they do with a bunch of drones?)

[At least Wonder Technologies donated something! However, I think Tate Industries is even more amazing! Working with the military is basically an official confirmation on the high quality of their products!]

[Did any of you notice what the heads of Sterling Group and Tate Industries were wearing?]

[Whoa! Are those matching couple outfits?!]

[I didn't expect to see something this sweet while reading the news...]

That afternoon, lunch was on Avery and Mike.

Chapter 525

Elliot, Chad and Ben never left since they arrived that morning.

They had spent their time touring Tate Industries.

At least, that was their excuse. Their true motive was to stay for lunch.

"Wanda Tate is a master of marketing," Ben said with his phone in his hand.

"She hit a brick wall running into us though."

"Even so, their sales aren't bad," Chad said. "There is still huge potential in the lower-income market."

“They’re selling their products for cheap, after all! They’re losing money to earn a good reputation. The more they sell, the more money they lose... Their original plan was to quickly take over the market and run Tate Industries out of business, then monopolize the market and raise their prices,” Ben said. “Now, they’ve realized that Tate Industries isn’t as easy to bring down as they’d thought. Which is why they’re coming up with other ideas.”

“Are they cutting down costs? Or are they planning on conquering the lower and middle income markets while continuing to make big promises to their investors, then get publicly listed?” Chad chimed in.

“All of that. They still have plenty of investors who believe in them.” Ben laughed, then said, “Wanda Tate really does have a knack for business.”

Avery was ordering dishes with the menu in her hands, but her ears were closely listening to their conversation.

Elliot noticed her absentmindedness, then leaned in and whispered in her ear, “You don’t need to be afraid of Wanda. She can’t touch you.”

Avery’s cheeks flushed.

“I’m not afraid of her. I’m trying to decide between getting orange juice or watermelonja juice.”

“Get one of each, then.”

“Okay...”

Avery finished ordering, then handed the menu over to Elliot.

“You’re over three months pregnant now, Avery. How are you feeling?” Ben asked, shifting the subject to her.

“Apart from the occasional nausea, I don’t feel any differently.”

This pregnancy was more relaxed than her last.

“That’s good. Do you only have a day-time nanny at home right now?” Ben asked. "Shouldn't you hire a live-in nanny later on in your pregnancy? Mike is a man, after all. It wouldn't be too convenient for him to help out if anything happens to you..."

Elliot glanced at Avery from the corner of his eye. She responded calmly, "I'm still a long way from the late stages of my pregnancy. I'll think about it later on."

"Hahaha! I don't know why you're the one who's pregnant, but I'm getting nervous. It's as if the baby you're carrying is mine..." Ben teased with a chuckle.

"You'll scare the boss if you say that, Ben. He doesn't want to have a baby with you!" Chad said.

Everyone burst into laughter, which immediately livened up the atmosphere.

Avery took advantage of everyone's good mood to ask a question.

"What are men most afraid of? Is it losing money, or being cheated on?"

"Being cheated on!" Mike was the first to answer.

Chad nodded his head in agreement.

"I can accept getting dumped, but I can't accept getting cheated on," Ben answered.

Avery did not turn to Elliot, because his answer would most likely be the same.

She wanted to find the time to tell him about Zoe's infidelity, but she was hesitating now.

How could someone as proud as him handle that kind of bombshell?

On Wednesday, Avery contacted Zoe, who had just returned from her vacation.

The two met at a cafe.

Zoe glared at Avery resentfully.

"Are you here to show off..."

Zoe began to speak, but Avery's palm landed on her cheek in a hard slap!

"I know all about you and Cole. This slap is for the innocent child you murdered.”

Zoe held onto her cheek as her eyes widened dramatically!

How did Avery find out?

Who was the one who told her about it?!

“Elliot... He...” Zoe stammered, unable to let out a complete sentence.

“He doesn’t know. Let this disgusting matter rot in your hearts!” Avery picked up a napkin and wiped her hands. “If he finds out, he’d send the both of you straight to hell!”

Zoe’s face was a look of absolute terror as she slumped back into her seat.

Avery walked out of the cafe and drove the car toward the Starry River Villa.

There was an express delivery from abroad that required her signature.

She wondered why there was a package when she did not purchase anything.

She had no idea who could have sent it, let alone what was in the package.

Chapter 526

Avery parked the car at the villa’s entrance.

The delivery man was waiting for her at the front gate.

After she got out of the car and signed for the package, her phone rang in her bag. She held the package in one hand and used the other to pull her phone out. She answered the call after opening the front gate.

“Where are you?”

Elliot’s deep, low voice came through the phone.

“At home,” Avery answered.

“Are you not feeling well?” Elliot asked with a hint of worry in his voice.

“I’m fine. I came home to grab a package.”

Avery walked past the front yard to the front door and opened it up.

Once she was in the house, she placed the package on top of the shoe rack.

“What’s up?” she asked as she changed into her house slipper and walked over to the couch.

“Zoe Sanford is, in fact, dating Cole.”

Elliot’s bodyguard had brought Cole to him earlier. Cole confessed to everything, so Elliot made the call to Avery.

“How did you find out?” he asked.

“How did you confirm it?” Avery asked as her hand tightened around her phone.

“Cole told me. He said they started spending time together after I broke up with Zoe. They just recently confirmed their relationship.” Elliot’s tone was very calm.

“I don’t care that he’s dating Zoe.”

Avery responded simply after hearing what he said.

If Cole had told Elliot that he not only cheated with Zoe on him, but also used him as a scapegoat during Zoe’s pregnancy, then Elliot would not be as composed as he was at that moment.

“It’s all in the past,” Avery said. She wanted the entire matter to come to an end.

Elliot never loved Zoe, and nothing ever happened between them. That was enough for her.

She did not want Elliot to suffer from gossip.

Even if he did not care about being cheated on by Zoe, he would still be made a laughing stock.

Elliot was silent for a few seconds, then said hoarsely, “I know you’re mad...”

"I'm not! I don't care, and I'm not mad anymore. Let's just leave the past behind," Avery said lightly.

From the sound of her voice, it was as if everything really was fine.

However, Elliot felt that things were not as simple as they seemed.

He used to date Zoe, and she was even once pregnant with his child.

How could Avery possibly not care about that at all?

"I want to see you."

Elliot was filled with guilt, and decided to make it all up to Avery.

"Sure. Where are you?" Avery asked.

"I'll come over to your place."

"If you're at the office, then I'll come to you! I don't have much going on today."

Avery did not want to disturb Elliot's work.

Upon hearing her words, the knot in Elliot's heart loosened as a smile appeared on his face.

"Okay. I'll wait here for you."

He hung up the phone, then checked the time.

If traffic was smooth, it would take about half an hour to get here from the Starry River Villa.

He stood up and began to make his way out.

Coincidentally, Chad needed to see Elliot and bumped into him while he was walking out.

"Where are you going, Sir?"

"I'm going to buy some stuff," Elliot responded as he continued toward the elevators.

Chad froze for a moment, then followed after him. "What do you need? I'll get it for you." "I'll go myself." Elliot's expression was relaxed. His tone was not exactly gentle, but it was very polite. "Leave the documents on my desk. I'll take a look at them later."

"Yes, Sir..." Chad saw Elliot's good mood and decided to be nosy. "Did something good happen, Sir?"

Elliot tapped on the elevator button, then turned back with a smile and said, "Avery's coming over later."

Over at Starry River Villa, it had been ten minutes since the end of the phone call.

Avery was standing in her closet and still had not picked out an outfit to wear. She had not even seen Elliot yet, but her heart was already racing wildly in her chest.

The dress she was wearing was pretty, but she felt that it was too plain.

She took out a dress that Tammy had picked for her, hesitated for a while, then decided to go ahead and wear it.

Chapter 527

At the Sterling Group offices, Chad sat in Ben's office with a cup of tea.

"It's been a while since I've been Mr. Foster this happy!" Chad chuckled. "I stood guard at his office doors on purpose and saw him bring back a huge bag of fruit and snacks. Can Avery eat all of that? Hahaha!"

"Did Avery finally come around? Women are so difficult to figure out!" Ben said with furrowed brows.

"Could it be because Zoe Sanford and Cole Foster got together?" Chad guessed.

"Apart from that, I can't think of any other possibilities."

“Let’s hope that’s the case.” Ben raised his own cup of tea and clinked cups with Chad.

Avery pulled up in front of the Sterling Group building half an hour⁸ later.

After his little tea session with Ben, Chad had been waiting at the building’s entrance.

When he saw Avery’s Rower, he immediately ran up to it.

Avery rolled down her window when she saw Chad approaching, then said,

“Chad, the parking lot is full here. I’ll go find somewhere to park outside.”

Chad smiled and said, “You can just park anywhere in this huge spot right here!

It’s fine to just park your car at the entrance, too.”

Avery was bewildered.

Chad waved his hand and directed her, “Just park right^{7a} there!”

“That’s not a parking spot!”

“It’s fine! This entire piece of land belongs to Mr. Foster. You can park wherever you want.” Chad fawned. “Or you could come down and I can park your car for you?”

Avery shook her head in embarrassment and said, “It’s fine. I’ll park it myself.”

She parked the car, then opened the door and got out.

“You look beautiful today, Miss Tate!” Chad flattered her sincerely.

Avery was wearing a floral camisole with a matching fitted skirt.

The outfit showed off her ivory skin and slender figure, making her look sexy and bewitching

Chad was afraid that Elliot would not be able to hold himself back once he laid eyes on her.

Avery felt some regret.

She was only coming to see Elliot, so why did she go through the trouble of specially changing her outfit?

They had just met the day before, and it was not like they could not see each other every day.

What would people think of her showing up at his workplace dressed up like this?

"I..." Avery wanted to explain herself.

"It's hot out here, Miss Tate. Let's hurry inside! Mr. Foster has been waiting for you."

Chad led the way with a grin.

Avery followed his lead straight to the company president's office on the top floor of the building.

"Go on in! I'll leave you two to it." Chad led Avery right to Elliot's office doors, then cleverly dismissed himself.

Avery knocked on the door, then pushed it open.

When her eyes met with Elliot's, sparks flew as different types of shock appeared on each of their faces.

Avery saw Elliot sitting on the couch, and he was peeling grapes.

The plate on the table in front of him was piled up with peeled grapes.

He stared at her in surprise as his Adam's apple bobbed in his throat.

"Aren't you cold dressed like that?"

Avery forced herself to come up with an excuse and said, "Pregnant women get hot easily."

Elliot wiped his hands down with a wet napkin, then walked over to her and led her into the room.

"I remember you liked grapes, so I peeled some for you," he said as he sat her down on the couch.

The air was filled with an alluring mixture of his cologne and the fragrance of the grapes.

Avery uneasily picked up a grape and popped it into her mouth.

“How is it?” Elliot’s deep set eyes ogled at her demure face in anticipation.

His gaze made Avery blush, and a sudden surge of courage rose inside her.

She reached up to wrap her hand around the back of his neck, and planted her red lips on his cold, thin lips...

Chapter 528

Half an hour later, the vice president of Sterling Group burst into Ben’s office.

“I’ve looked everywhere for you, Chad. I knew you’d be here!”

The vice president slumped down next to Chad.

Noticing the vice president dripping in sweat, Chad asked, “What happened?

You’re making me think the company’s in some kind of trouble.”

The vice president poured himself a glass of water, then said, “Did the two of you know that Avery Tate was here? Why didn’t you tell me?” He drank the entire glass of water in one gulp.

” Let me tell me, when I went to Mr. Foster’s office just now... Ah! Just the thought of it makes me want to bury myself in a hole! What the hell was the have a feeling I’m about to get fired.”

Ben and Chad were shocked.

“Don’t tell me they were...” Ben began to say, but did not finish the rest of his sentence.

The vice president nodded furiously and said, “The worst thing about it was that I wasn’t the only one who saw it. I was with a whole team of people... All of them saw it, too... Honestly, I might as well just pack up my things and leave...”

He buried his face in his hands in agony.

Everyone knew that the president of Sterling Group, Elliot Foster kept his distance from women.

He had never brought a woman to the company before, let alone do anything with a woman in his own office.

However, everything changed today!

Never in his dreams did the vice president think that he would walk into something like this.

Elliot cared very much about his privacy, and was probably pondering on how to make him disappear into thin air.

Ben and Chad gazed at the vice president with sympathetic eyes. They wanted to share their opinions, but ended up unintentionally bursting into laughter instead.

“Stop laughing! I’m devastated right now! You shouldn’t kick a man while he’s down!” The vice president said dejectedly as he checked his phone to see if he had received any new calls or messages.

He had a feeling that Elliot was not going to go easy on him.

“Don’t be so pessimistic. I think you’ll be fine.” Ben took a sip of water to calm himself down.” If I were you, I’d go back to his office half an hour later and congratulate him.”

“Mr. Foster won’t be mad,” Chad said. “He’s in a good mood today. Even if you made a big mistake, he might be able to forgive you.”

“Are you sure?” mumbled the vice president. “When he noticed that I’d walked in earlier, his expression was really stern! He was furious!”

“Ahem... At the time... What were they doing?”

“Let me think... When I walked in, all I saw was something white... Oh, I think that was Miss Tate’s back...” The vice president tried his best to recall what he saw, then took a sharp breath and said, “Miss Tate was on top...”

Ben looked like he had choked on something.

“I can’t help you there.” He shook his head, then said, “I honestly didn’t expect that that was what you saw.”

Chad was also mortified. He could barely wrap his head around things.

“Since neither of you can help me, then I’ll just go and face my doom!”

The vice president stood up in misery and planned to go and beg Elliot for forgiveness.

“Hey! You should go later! What if they’re not done yet?” Ben said as he held him back

“Huh?” The vice president looked perplexed as he said, “How could they continue after I walked in on them? No way. Miss Tate actually screamed!”

Ben released his grip on him.

It was over!

“I suggest you beg for forgiveness from Avery Tate,” he said.

“That’s right,” Chad agreed. “As long as she forgives you, Mr. Foster would, too.” “Okay! I’ll go find Miss Tate right now!”

The vice president clenched his fists and walked out of the room.

The doors to the president’s office were wide open.

The vice president pretended to walk by and “accidentally” peeped into the room.

All he saw was Elliot working away behind his desk with a serious expression on his face.

There was no trace of Avery in the office.

Chapter 529

“No way,” the vice president thought to himself.

“Did Avery Tate leave?”

He took a deep breath, then knocked on the open door to Elliot’s office.

Elliot looked up, saw who it was, then immediately said, “Come in and shut the door.”

The vice president was terrified! Elliot’s tone was no different than usual, but there was something scary about the way he said the words “come in and shut the door”. The vice president timidly walked into the door and closed the door behind him.

“Where’s Miss Tate, Sir?”

Elliot pushed the file he was working on aside, then said coldly, “Do you need to talk to her about something?” He paused, then continued ominously, “You scared her off.”

The vice president’s back broke into a cold sweat.

“I’m so sorry, Sir! I’ll go and apologize to Miss Tate right away!”

Elliot’s brows furrowed tightly as he asked, “Don’t you think you’ve embarrassed her enough?”

The vice president humbly hung his head. His face said, “Do what you want with me.”

“I don’t want a word of this going out!” Elliot snapped.

The vice president nodded furiously and said, “Don’t worry! I won’t say a word!”

“I’ve still got some work to do. Bring the others to come see me in thirty minutes.” Elliot’s tone returned to its usual calm.

The vice president let out an internal sigh of relief.

“It looks like the boss really is in a great mood today!” he thought.

Avery drove her car aimlessly on the road.

She had yet to calm down from her earlier fright.

How humiliating! She never dreamed of anything like that happening in her life.

Sure enough, one should never act on impulse. She called Tammy and asked her to come out and meet her.

They met at a cafe half an hour later.

Avery ordered some dessert.

Tammy watched as she ate slowly, then asked in confusion, “You didn’t call me out here just so I could watch you eat, did you?”

Avery stopped eating, then said, “I went to see Elliot just now.”

Tammy could not hold back her laughter.

“I was wondering why you were wearing this outfit today... You kept saying how it didn’t suit you before, but you look gorgeous in it! Hahaha! I bet Elliot was shocked to see you wearing this, right?”

Avery’s cheeks flushed as she said, “He stared at me like an idiot... It was such a huge difference!”

“Hahaha! Did the tyrannical president turn into a drooling idiot?” Tammy said as she imagined the scene in her head.

“Pretty much...” Avery took a sip of water as she tried to calm herself. “Then, we got on the couch in his office and...”

“Holy sh*t! That’s hot! Why do you look so miserable, though? Is he... impotent?!” Tammy exclaimed in horror.

If she was right, then she would definitely tell Avery to find another man.

Avery took a deep breath, then held her head in her hands and said, “While we were... In his office... A group of employees saw us.”

Tammy had her breath taken away.

“You two are incredible!”

“I’m never going to his office ever again.” Avery gritted her teeth and kicked herself.

“Why didn’t I just agree when he said he would come see me at my place?

Why did I have to insist on going to his office? Oh, right. I was worried it’d affect his work... Then again, it’s not like he could do any work with me there!”

I bet this has already spread all over the company,” Tammy said, adding fuel to fire.

“This type of gossip spreads like wildfire!”

Avery was stuck in a daze.

When she finally snapped out of it, she said, “By the way, did you buy someone online for me? I received a package from Bridgedale this afternoon.”

Chapter 530

Tammy shook her head and said, “Nope! Wasn’t there a sender’s name on the package?”

“I just glanced at it. I think it was the name of some company.” Avery then revealed the suspicious part of the matter and said, “I asked the delivery man to leave it at the neighborhood’s delivery counter or hand it over to the nanny, but he insisted on me signing for it personally.”

“Maybe it’s something expensive. You usually have to sign for something like that.” Tammy flashed a mysterious grin and said, “Could it be something from Elliot? Aren’t the two of you in the middle of a passionate relationship?”

Avery responded without hesitation, “It probably isn’t him. He’s never used a courier service to send me gifts. Even if it's from abroad, he'd send it to his place and check it before giving it to me."

"Tsk! Hearing you say all this is making me fall in love with him all over again. After all, he once was my dream man!" Tammy picked up her teaspoon and stirred her coffee, then said, "Have you completely gotten over things, Avery?" Avery's behavior today was like a young girl deep in love.

Avery knew she could not hide it, so she nodded and said, "I'm letting bygones be bygones!"

"I respect your decision. Who could go through life without making some mistakes?" Tammy was happy for her friend. "I feel like you've turned into a different person after reconciling with him. Of course, he's changed as well. Since you're so happy together, then just stay together from now on! That way, your three children would finally have a complete home. How great is that?" Avery lowered her gaze and said, "I'm not certain about the future, but I'll definitely cherish our time together more than I did before. We're not children anymore. Our kids are all grown up, too."

She had given it a lot of thought.

At this point, marriage was not important to her and Elliot.

What they needed was the trust between family members, and not a marriage license.

At five in the evening, the nanny took Layla home from school.

While changing into her house slippers, Layla's eyes landed on the package on the shoe rack.

"Whose package is this? What's inside?" she asked.

"It's your mother's," answered the nanny:

“Oh... I want to open it...”

Layla thought that whatever belonged to her mother was hers, too.

The nanny felt uneasy, then said, “Your mother will be home soon. Let’s wait for her to come back and open it up, okay? Or we could wait for your brother to come home and see what he thinks.”

Layla thought of how Hayden would be home soon, then nodded her head.

About ten minutes later, the bodyguard returned home with Hayden.

“Hayden! The nanny made me some really yummy pancakes today!”

Layla was holding a fluffy pancake in her hand, and was so happy that she utterly forgot what happened ten minutes ago.

As Hayden changed into his house slipper, he glanced at the package on the shoe rack

Avery rarely shops online, so they don’t usually receive packages.

“Hayden! That’s Mommy’s package. I want to see what’s inside! Let’s open it together!”

With her brother’s company, Layla was not afraid even if they got in trouble.”

“It’s Mommy’s. We can’t open it,” Hayden said.

“Mommy’s stuff is our stuff... Our stuff is Mommy’s, too!” Layla pouted, then said, “I really want to see what’s inside!”

Hayden was worried that his sister would touch the package, so he dragged her into the living room.

“We can only open it with Mommy’s permission,” he said.

“... I can open up whatever I want in the house.” Layla shook off her brother’s grip unhappily, then said, “Mommy won’t be angry at me!”

Layla rarely went against Hayden like this.

“Go and open it, then,” Hayden said coldly. “I won’t be your brother after that.”

Layla was speechless.

When Avery got home, she felt a weird atmosphere in the house.

The children did not run up to greet her like they usually did.

“Layla!” she called out as she changed into her house slippers. “Hayden! Mommy’s home!”

Layla and Hayden walked over from two different directions.

“Mommy, I fought with Hayden.” Layla ran up to her mother with reddened eyes and said, “He said he won’t be my brother anymore.”

Hearing this, Avery turned to Hayden and asked, “What’s wrong Hayden? Did your sister upset you?”

Hayden pursed his thin lips and said nothing.

Layla impatiently dragged Avery to the shoe rack and said, “I wanted to open your package, Mommy, but Hayden wouldn’t let me... Mommy, you wouldn’t be mad at me if I’d opened it, right?”

Chapter 531

Avery did not expect the fight to be about such a trivial matter.

“Of course I wouldn’t be mad, but it’s true that it’s not a very polite thing to do,” she said patiently.

“You could wait for me to come home, then ask me if you could open it. If I gave you my permission, then you could open it.”

“Okay, Mommy. Can I open it now?”

“Sure!” As Avery picked up the package, the expression on her face suddenly turned heavy. “Layla, I don’t know who sent this package or what’s inside. I think it’s better if I open it.”

Avery was worried that whatever was inside was something inappropriate, and it would be bad if the children got shocked by it.

“Okay...” Layla was even more curious now.

Avery picked up a small pair of scissors, then cut through the tape on the package.

The nanny walked over and asked, “Is Mike coming home for dinner tonight, Avery?” “He’s got a business meeting tonight, so he won’t be joining us,” Avery answered.

“Alright. I’ll serve dinner now, then.”

“Okay.”

Avery placed the scissors down after opening the package.

A wave of cold air seeped out from the box. She pulled out an ice pack from the package. She began to feel cautious...

Packages that have ice packs in them typically carried fresh food, but the box was not that big.

Apart from the ice pack, there was also something small wrapped in black tape.

She pulled it out of the box, and opened it up...

“What is it, Mommy?” Layla lifted her head and grabbed onto her mother’s clothes.

A wave of nausea overcame Avery!

With the box in her arms, she hurriedly ran into the bathroom!

“Mommy! What’s wrong?!” Layla cried out in shock.

Hayden immediately hugged her and said, “Don’t be scared. Mommy’s carrying a baby right now, so she can’t help but throw up sometimes.”

Only then did Layla stop crying.

The nanny heard the commotion and rushed over to the bathroom.

“Are you alright, Avery?”

Avery had locked the door after entering the bathroom.

Under normal circumstances, she would answer the nanny.

However, she did not say a word after going into the bathroom.

She was horrified!

Wrapped inside the black tape was a severed finger.

It was probably cut off not too long ago... There were still traces of fresh blood on it.

Avery’s entire body trembled uncontrollably as she held onto the box.

Inside the box was something that looked like an MP3 player.

Logic told her that she needed to take it out and listen to it right away.

She had to find out who sent the package and who the finger belonged to, but she was terrified! She was pregnant right now. She could not act as recklessly as she used to.

The bathroom door did not open up until half an hour later.

The nanny and the children stood outside the door and watched as Avery walked out hazily with reddened eyes.

“I’m fine... Don’t worry...”

She forced herself to stay collected despite her pale complexion.

“Go and have dinner! I’m not hungry... You don’t have to worry about me,” she mumbled, then carried the box upstairs

Chapter 532

Judging by the way she looked, it was impossible that Avery was fine.

Even the children could feel that something was wrong, and it was not a small matter either.

“Take your sister and have dinner first, Hayden. I’ll take dinner upstairs to your mother,” said the nanny.

Hayden took Layla’s hand and led her to the dining room.

The nanny prepared a tray of food and took it upstairs,

In the master bedroom on the second floor, Avery’s hand was trembling as she pulled the tape recorder out of the box.

Without a hint of hesitation, she hit the play button.

“Rumor has it that Professor James Hough had a last pupil whose skills surpassed his! Tell me who it is!”

“I don’t know. The professor never told me.”

The familiar voice in the recording made the trembling in Avery’s body worsen!

It was Wesley’s voice!

“I see. Since you don’t know, then I’ll cut off your finger and send it to the most likely candidate... Let’s see if we can get her to come here.”

The ominous tone in the other voice was eerily sinister.

What followed was the sound of a knife slamming onto a surface, and a shocking scream!

Wesley’s cry of sheer agony made Avery break down instantly!

Tears blurred her vision as she clenched her fists. Her nails were digging into her palms, but she could not feel the pain!

The nanny stood in front of the door to the master bedroom with the tray of food in her hands.

As she was about to knock on the door, she vaguely heard the sound of a scream from inside the bedroom.

She ran downstairs with the tray in horror.

“She’s not eating?” asked the bodyguard when he saw the nanny come down the stairs with the tray still carrying the food she prepared earlier.

The nanny walked over to the bodyguard’s side, then whispered, “Hurry up and call Mike. Tell him to come home right away. Something’s wrong!”

“Is Miss Tate in trouble?!”

“No! It’s that package... It was something scary!” said the nanny softly as she glanced over to the dining room.

The children were in the middle of dinner, but their eyes were fixed on the nanny and the bodyguard.

“Go outside and call Mike. I’ll check on the kids,” the nanny said, then headed toward the dining room.

The children were still young. No matter what was happening, it would be best if they were not involved.

After Mike got the bodyguard’s call, he sobered up right away.

His dinner meeting tonight was with a few of Sterling Group’s managers.

They were the ones who invited him out for dinner.

It was because the news of Elliot and Avery’s intimate relationship had spread through the entire company.

“Chad, something’s up. I have to go,” Mike said to Chad as he got up from his seat.

“What’s wrong?” Chad saw the heavy expression on his face, then got up and left the room with him.

“The bodyguard called and said Avery received a mysterious package... She opened it up, then locked herself in her room,” Mike explained as he pulled out his car keys.

“You drank tonight! Get someone else to drive you,” Chad said. “Or you could take a cab...”

Mike only had a bottle of beer that night and was not drunk at all, but he obediently put his keys away anyway.

“I’ll go home and check things out. If it’s nothing, I’ll come back and drink with you guys.” Mike patted Chad on the shoulder and said, “Go on back inside!”

“I don’t think it’s nothing.” Chad felt uneasy. “Text me when you get home.”

Mike gestured an “OK” sign at him, then hailed a cab by the street.

Over at Starry River Villa, Avery walked down the stairs carrying a small suitcase.

When Avery saw her mother with a suitcase, she burst into tears. “Where are you going, Mommy? It’s so late! It’s dark out! I don’t want you to go!”

Chapter 533

The nanny and the bodyguard were also dumbfounded.

“Where are you going this late, Miss Tate?”

Avery’s entire body was rigid. She was unable to pretend that everything was fine, nor could she bring herself to flash a fake smile at the children.

Her reddened eyes landed on Hayden as she said, “Take care of your sister,³⁵ Hayden.”

Hayden had always been strong, but his mother’s face startled him.

No matter how mature he was, he was still just a five year old boy.

He reached out to grab onto Avery’s sleeve, then said in a terrified and longing voice, “Where are you going, Mommy?”

Under normal circumstances, Avery would patiently explain things to the children. Even if she had to tell a white lie, she would still make sure to comfort their emotions.

However, her whole body was cold to the touch and her mind was unable to think straight!

The only thing on her mind was that she had to go to Bridgedale and save Wesley, no matter the danger or the price she had to pay!

Wesley was abducted because of her. He would not be suffering such inhumane torture if he had not known her!

The bloody, severed finger was like a sharp knife that was stabbing at her heart!

Mike's cab pulled up in front of the villa.

He heard Layla's shrill cry of misery even before he got out of the car, and his brows furrowed tightly.

He saw the children holding onto Avery's arms, while she insisted on leaving with a suitcase in her hand.

Mike ran toward the heartbreaking scene and snatched the suitcase out of Avery's hand.

"Have you lost your mind, Avery? Can't you hear the kids crying?!" He threw her suitcase aside, then placed his hands on his hips and demanded, "What exactly happened? I heard you got a package... Where is it?!"

Avery lowered her gaze, then walked to the side.

Mike followed closely behind her."

"I signed for the package at one in the afternoon. If I'm not in Bridgedale in the next twenty four hours after the package is delivered, then they'll kill Wesley!" Avery's eyes were pits of endless darkness.

“I don’t have much time left... Don’t stop me!”

Mike did not expect things to be this serious.

“I’m coming with you. Don’t tell me to stay home and watch the kids! These guys don’t sound like your average punks, Avery. You’d be walking right into your own funeral if you go alone! It’s fine if you want to die by yourself, but do you want to drag the baby you’re carrying along with you?!”

Avery’s eyes welled up in tears. She did not want to die, nor did she want to take such a huge risk!

However, she could not let Wesley die for her sake!

That would be more painful than her own death! “Wait for me at the front gate. I’ll go talk to the kids,” Mike said into her ear, then made his way over to the children.

Ten minutes later, Mike walked to Avery’s side while carrying her suitcase.

‘Let’s go!’

As Avery took her first step away from the house, she heard the sound of Layla wailing behind her. She felt like her heart was broken into pieces! She wanted to turn back for one last look at the children, but she did not have the courage to do so.

Now that she was being forced into a corner, the only thing she could do was move forward.

At the VIP lounge at the airport an hour later, Mike stared at the series of messages from Chad and did not know how to reply to him.

“Do you want to give Elliot Foster a heads up about this, Avery?” Mike watched Avery’s cold face and said reluctantly, “You two made up today, after all. It’d hurt him if you left without saying goodbye.”

Avery clenched her phone so tightly that her fingers turned pale.

It was not that she did not want to let Elliot know, but he would certainly not let her go if he found out.

“Someone’s calling you, Avery,” Mike said when he saw Aveyr’s phone light up.

Avery looked down and saw Elliot’s name flashing on her phone screen.

She pursed her lips, took a deep breath, then answered the call.

Elliot was silent for a few seconds, then snapped loudly and nervously, “What are you going to Bridgedale for?! Don’t leave yet, Avery. I’m going to the airport right now! Let’s meet just once. Wait for me!”

Chapter 534

After the phone call ended, Avery checked the time.

She wondered where Elliot was.

The airport was in a secluded area. If he was in the city, it would take him at least an hour to rush over.

There was only forty minutes left until Avery had to board the plane.

There was no way she would wait for him.

If he missed her flight, she had to wait until the next morning for the next one.

Time was not on her side.

Mike noticed Avery’s dejected expression, so he reached out and held her cold hand.

“Don’t be scared, Avery. Whoever’s behind this probably needs your medical skills,” he consoled her. “Drag things on for as long as you can. I will definitely find a way to save you.”

“We have to save Wesley first,” Avery mumbled.

“Of course.”

“Of all the years I’ve known Wesley, he’s never refused me once out of the countless times I’ve asked for his help. He would always share good things with me. He’s never asked me to do anything for him. Not even once... Every time I said I’d treat him to a meal, he would always pay the check in the end. He’s like a brother to me.”

At this point, Avery’s tears rolled down her cheek. “He could have just told them my name. That way, he wouldn’t have gottenga hurt!

Mike’s eyes reddened as he held her and said, “Don’t cry. Wesley will be fine.”

After Avery and Mike’s departure from the Starry River Villa, the children had fallen into pits of misery.

Mike had told them that something happened in Bridgedale that needed their attention, and that they would come home immediately after things were settled.

However, he did not say how long it would take.

Moreover, tonight’s events were too strange, and Hayden could not figure out what happened at all.

He had a strong hunch. He was sure that something really awful had happened, and that’s why his mother was that upset and had to leave in such a hurry!

Avery had never done anything like tonight. She had never insisted on leaving Layla and him behind without a heads up.

Hayden never cried easily, but tears were controllably escaping his eyes.

“Why are you crying, Hayden? Do you miss Mommy?” Layla had just calmed down earlier, but burst into tears once again.

“Does Mommy not want us anymore? I’m scared, Hayden!”

Hayden wiped the tears off his face and wrapped his sister in his arms.

“Don’t be scared, Layla. They’ll be home soon. I’ll protect you while they’re gone.”

Layla sobbed in her brother’s embrace for a while until her voice turned hoarse.

“Hayden, I want Shea to come over... Can you call her?”

Hayden agreed.

The city sparkled brightly with neon lights in the night.

A black Rolls-Roice sped through the city in a flash, and arrived at the airport in the shortest amount of time possible.

The moment the car came to a halt, Elliot pushed the door open and got out.

With his phone in his hand, he rushed to the departure hall.

There was an announcement for the passengers of the flight to Bridgedale to proceed to Gate Four for boarding

Elliot’s hawk-like eyes quickly spotted the gate, then hurried over to it.

He needed to know what was going on with Avery.

She had to tell him why she was leaving in such a hurry!

If possible, he wanted to face whatever it was together!

When Elliot finally made it through the crowd and arrived at the gate, the attendants had just finished checking everyone’s tickets.

He looked toward the long hallway behind the counter, and spotted Avery’s familiar silhouette among the crowd.

His Adam’s apple bobbed in his throat.

“Avery!” he cried out hoarsely.

He wanted to ask why she did not wait for him, but there was no longer any point to the question.

Avery froze in her tracks.

Mike, who was next to her, turned back and saw Elliot.

"He's here, Avery. Don't you want to go and talk to him for a bit?" Tears rolled around in Avery's eyes.

Chapter 535

What would Avery say to Elliot if she walked over to him?

She had to go to Bridgedale right now.

Her decision would not change whether he agreed with it or not.

Besides, she did not want to drag him into this mess. She took a deep breath and continued walking... There was a turn a few feet away.

Once she made that turn, he would not be able to see her.

"Avery Tate!"

Elliot's blood boiled when he saw Avery continue walking away without turning back.

With reddened eyes, he charged toward the counter ... The security guards immediately held him back.

"Avery! Turn around!" Elliot completely abandoned his pride in the bustling airport as he yelled, "Turn back! Look at me!"

Avery's feet felt heavy.

The short distance toward the corner in the hallway took every ounce of energy she had.

Once she was out of Elliot's line of vision, she leaned back against the glass wall and sobbed.

“Make him leave, Mike!” Avery cried as she buried her face in her hands.

Mike frowned and said, “He won’t listen to me. You shouldn’t go to him the way you are right now, either. I’ll call Chad!”

After his call to Chad, Mike grabbed Avery’s hand and dragged her away.

When Chad arrived at the airport, he spotted Elliot amongst the crowd.

He was standing at the counter at Gate Four.

Avery’s flight had already taken off.

Elliot’s heart and soul had flown off along with her.

This was not the first time he was left behind.

Five years ago, Avery had left the same way. She did not waver no matter how much he begged her.

He did not expect the same thing to happen again five years later.

Although their separation this time did not mean the end of their relationship, he was hurt all the same.

He had run through several red lights to rush to the airport to see her, but she did not even turn back to look at him once.

How could she be this heartless?

Chad walked over to Elliot, then said softly, “It’s late, Sir. I’ll take you home/”

Upon hearing Chad’s voice, Elliot’s rigid body finally reacted.

His eyes were bottomless pits of darkness when he turned to Chad and asked, “Do you know why she left?”

Chad froze.

Mike had texted him earlier to tell him everything before he turned his phone off, but Chad did not have the courage to tell Elliot about it.

When Elliot saw the hesitation in Chad’s eyes, his heart immediately froze!

Even Chad knew the reason why Avery left, but she only refused to tell him.

The vein on Elliot's forehead pulsed as he grabbed onto Chad's collar and roared, "Don't make me hit you!"

Chad could barely catch his breath from being choked.

"Wesley... Wesley is... In trouble..."

Elliot raised his brows, and the sharpness in his eyes slowly subsided.

He released his grip.

Chad rubbed his throat and lightly coughed a few times.

"Let's get you home for now, Sir! There are no flights to Bridgedale left tonight. Besides... I'm sure Avery did not tell you about this because she did not want to get you involved.

Elliot took a deep breath, then said through gritted teeth, "Why wouldn't she want to involve me? Did something dangerous happen?"

"I'm not too sure on the details, but I'm sure it's something serious if they both rushed off to Bridgedale like this," Chad responded.

"She's pregnant with my child... Now, she's risking her life for another man..."

If she can throw her life away for that man, then what about my child's life?!

She refused to discuss this with me at all. She doesn't feel an ounce of sympathy for me! What am I to her?!"

Elliot's eyes filled with tears as he clenched his fists tightly.

Chapter 536

Chad deeply understood Elliot's feelings.

He was on Elliot's side in the same way that Mike was on Avery's side no matter what happened.

It was two in the morning when the black Rolls-Roice pulled up at the Foster mansion.

The living room lights were still on.

When Elliot got out of the car, Mrs. Cooper immediately emerged from the house.

“Did something happen over at Avery’s, Master Elliot? Hayden called Shea around 10 p.m. just now asking her to go over there.”

The moment Elliot heard Hayden’s name, his frigid heart began to ache once again.

Avery did not only abandon him, he also left behind her two⁷⁹ children.

“It’s late, Master Elliot. You should get some rest!” Mrs. Cooper saw the darkness on Elliot’s face, and did not say more.

Elliot dragged his heavy body and walked into his bedroom like a zombie.

When his reddened eyes landed on the bed, the memory of Avery cruelly walking away from him entered his mind.

He could not help but suspect that they had not made up at all, and that everything that happened that day was his ownza imagination!

It was only in his dreams that he had ever seen Avery make the first move like that.

That’s why, he was sure that none of it was real!

However, the pain in heart was more real than any of the times he had woken up from his nightmares.

Time went on through the night, and dawn quickly showed its face.

A car pulled up in front of the Foster mansion at seven in the morning, and Shea emerged from it.

When Mrs. Cooper saw Shea return, she rushed up to her and asked, “What happened, Shea? Isn't Avery home? Where did she go?"

"Avery went to Bridgedale," Shea said. "Is Elliot home?"

This was the first time Mrs. Cooper heard Shea address Elliot by his name, so she was stunned.

"Yes, he is. He got home late last night, so he might still be sleeping."

Shea made her way upstairs.

When she arrived on the second floor, the door to Elliot's room suddenly opened.

Elliot did not get a wink of sleep.

At this moment, his eyes were bloodshot and a strong wave of tobacco seeped out of his room.

Fear rose inside of Shea as she looked at the haggard yet eerie man standing before her.

"Shea, how are Layla and Hayden?" Elliot said, breaking the silence.

His voice was hoarse from staying up all night.

"Oh..." Shea mustered up her courage and said, "Big Brother, let's fly over to find Avery!"

"Did the kids tell you to say that?" Elliot's eyes were cold, and his voice was even frostier.

Of course he had thought of going after Avery.

However, the desire to do so vanished every time he thought of how heartless she had behaved toward him.

He had abandoned his pride, but she refused to even give him one last look!

Shea knew she could not hide it from Elliot, so she walked over to his side and held his arm.

"Big Brother, I feel bad for Hayden and Layla... Layla fell asleep last night but woke up crying again... She wants to go find her mother... She only calmed down after I promised to take her.”

Layla’s adorable little face instantly popped into Elliot’s mind.

His frigid heart wavered.

“Where are they right now?” he croaked.

Elliot’s heart tightened in his chest. He turned back into his room and washed up.

Hayden held Layla’s hand as the two of them stood unmoving in the front yard. Their stern expressions were in complete contrast with the bright sun shining down on them.

“Do you think Elliot Foster will take us to go find Mommy, Hayden?”

Layla’s eyes were still swollen from crying all night.

Hayden responded in a cold voice, “If he won’t take us, then he will be dead to us from now on.

Chapter 537

Elliot and Shea emerged from the mansion the moment Hayden finished his sentence.

Father and son met eyes, but Hayden averted his gaze in disgust.

He was still a minor and could not get on a plane without a guardian.

Otherwise, he definitely would not show up here!

He just wanted to go to Bridgedale as soon as possible, and be closer to his mother.

“Hayden! Layla! Big Brother agreed to take us to Bridgedale!” Shea ran over to the children and chirped, “We’ll see Avery soon!”

In Bridgedale, Avery was approached by two men the moment she stepped out of the airport.

They were dressed in black suits and drove a black Buik.

Mike took a photo of the car's license plate from afar. They could not act rashly and startle the enemy before they rescued⁸⁷ Wesley.

The black Buik disappeared very quickly into traffic.

Mike saw the countless messages from Chad on his phone.

Chad answered soon after Mike dialed his number.

"My boss took Shea and the kids on his private jet over to Bridgedale."

Mike raised his brows, then massaged his temples and said, "One would think he's coming over on vacation!"

"Save the mockery, will you? How could the two of you do that last night? You abandoned Mr. Foster by himself at the airport!" Chad was furious. "I can't figure out why a good man like him continues to cling to someone as troublesome as Avery Tate!"

"Say what you want, but why are you insulting Avery?!" Mike was also livid.

"She's already upset enough that Wesley was abducted because of her. This is Bridgedale, not Aryadelle. This isn't Elliot Foster's territory! Wouldn't taking him along be sending them both to their deaths?!"

Chad took in a cold breath.

"To their deaths?! Are things that bad?"

"Someone send her a bloody, severed finger! It was Wesley's finger!"

Mike did not tell Chad about this because he was afraid that Elliot would stop them from leaving once he found out.

"F*ck! What did Wesley get himself into?!"

"What kind of trouble could someone as strait-laced as Wesley get into? The one they want is Avery.” Mike hailed a cab by the street, then said, “That’s why you shouldn’t blame her. She’s suffering more than anybody else right now.”

“Why?!” Chad’s mind was in a mess. “Why did they have to use Wesley to get to Avery? Couldn’t they have just gone straight to her?”

Mike realized at that moment that he could no longer hide the truth.

“It’s because Avery is Professor James Hough’s last pupil. Apart from the professor, Wesley and me, practically nobody else knows about this.”

Chad was dumbfounded.

“How did you know about it?! It’s not like you’re in the same line as them!”

“Avery was the one who operated on me.”

Mike’s explanation made Chad instantly understand why he was so devoted to Avery.

“Back when Elliot Foster was trying to cure Shea, didn’t he also hire private investigators to find the professor’s last pupil? The people who abducted Wesley just used more despicable methods to do the same thing,” Mike said.

Chad was in disbelief.

He never expected Professor James Hough’s last pupil to be Avery Tate!

Elliot’s search for the last pupil cost him a fortune, but still came up empty!

Who would have thought that the person they were looking for was right under their noses?

The entire thing was a satirical joke!

The black Buik traveled for over an hour before coming to a halt.

Avery was blindfolded, so she did not know where she was.

She was dragged out of the car by a man dressed in a black suit. After walking for about three minutes, her blindfold was taken off.

Standing in front of her was a grand, white mansion.

The mansion was built on top of a mountain. There were not many trees on the mountain, and there was a cliff not too far away.

It was an extremely dangerous place.

It was almost certain that the owner of the mansion was also a dangerous figure.

“Please take off your clothes, Miss Tate!” said an unfamiliar voice. Avery turned to look at the source of the voice with a furious expression.

A white-haired man with a child-like face entered Avery’s line of vision.

“Are you the one who abducted Wesley?!” Avery demanded with clenched fists.

The man simply smiled softly, then said to the two women next to him, “Help Miss Tate change her clothes.”

“Don’t touch me!” Avery snapped, raising her guard up. “Why do I need to change?!”

“What if you’re hiding some kind of weapon or drugs in your clothes, Miss Tate?” said one of the women with a smile. “Don’t worry. We will wash your clothes and return them to you.”

Avery snatched the clothes out of the woman’s arms and said, “I’ll change myself!”

“Please change right here, Miss Tate,” said the woman while maintaining the friendly smile on her face.

“How am I supposed to change⁷⁹ here?!”

Avery stared in shock at the bodyguards and the white-haired man that surrounded her.

How was she supposed to change her clothes in front of all these men?

The news of a Baystream G650 private jet leaving the airport of the country's capital that morning made headlines in Aryadelle.

There were less than ten wealthy people in the entire country who owned Baystream G650 private jets.

This was the reason the news quickly went viral online and attracted the gossip of many users.

Wanda sipped her cup of tea, then chuckled and said, "It was probably Elliot Foster. Only three people in the city own a Baystream G650. From what I've heard, the other two jets are parked at another airport. Elliot Foster's jet is the only one parked at the capital's airport. Hahaha!"

Zoe was also in a good mood.

She had felt uneasy after Avery found out about her relationship with Cole.

However, Avery was now walking into the lion's den, and there was no guarantee that she would walk out with her life!

"Well done this time, Zoe," Wanda praised. "If we want to get rid of Avery

Tate, then we need to make her leave Aryadelle. Elliot Foster holds too much power here, after all. As long as he cares about Avery, there's nothing we can do to her!"

This was the important matter that Zoe had visited Bridgedale with Cole for back then.

After living in Bridgedale for many years, her connections in the country surpassed Avery's.

The white-haired, child-like man was a troublesome figure in Bridgedale.

He was infamous for being a vile man, but he was also ridiculously wealthy!

He was rich enough to be good buddies with the politicians in the country.

Nobody could touch him in Bridgedale.

When Zoe went to see him, she sold him information on Avery and received a large payment!

“There’s no way Avery’s getting out of this mess.” Zoe picked up her cup of tea, and happily took a sip.

“Are you certain?” Wanda wanted Avery dead, but she was afraid that she would get lucky.” Elliot Foster’s on his way to Bridgedale now, and Mike isn’t easy to deal with... If they worked together, would they be able to save her? Although, they would have to cough up a fortune...”

Zoe let out a cold chuckle and said, “David Grimes is a psychopath.”

Wanda was surprised, then said, “A psychopath? Didn’t you say he wanted to find Avery so that she could treat his daughter’s illness? Even if he is a psychopath, I doubt he’d give Avery trouble if she manages to save his daughter.”

Zoe’s smile grew even wider as she said, “Avery can’t save his daughter!”

“We’ve basically confirmed that Avery is James Hough’s last pupil, and that her medical skills are beyond his. How can you be so sure that she can’t cure David Grimes’s daughter?!”

Zoe’s eyes filled with tears from laughing so hard.

“I’m telling you she can’t save her! Hahahaha! Unless she’s a god!”.

She paused for a moment, then added, “If she really was a god, then she wouldn’t need Elliot to run over and save her! Hahaha!”

Avery finished changing, then entered the mansion.

“Take me to Wesley.” She walked over to David Grimes’s side and brought up her request. “I have to make sure he’s alive.”

“He isn’t worth anything to me. As long as you stay here quietly, I’ll toss him off the mountain,” David said in a kind voice.

“Send him off the mountain! Not toss him!” Avery forced herself to calm the raging fury growing inside of her. David frowned and said, “Got it.”

Chapter 539

“Where is he?!” Avery demanded coldly as she stood in the living room.

David signaled his underlings with his eyes, and they immediately went to fetch Wesley.

Moments later, Wesley was dragged out by two men in black.

Avery’s entire body stiffened as she could not believe her eyes.

Wesley was bloodied and covered in bruises. There was not one spot on his body that was untouched.

David shrugged, then explained, “You should thank me, Mis Tate. If I didn’t catch him in time, this idiot would have already jumped off the cliff and turned into a rotten corpse!

“Jump off the cliff?!” Avery thought.

There was, in fact, a cliff outside the mansion.

Wesley actually tried to jump off of it!

Did he rather throw himself off the cliff than reveal her identity or continue being tortured?!

Tears instantly rolled down Avery’s cheeks.

“Wesley!” She rushed over to Wesley and held him in her arms. “Wesley! I’m sorry! It’s all my fault!”

Wesley did not move a muscle and was unconscious.

Avery sobbed with him in her arms, then quickly pulled herself together and snapped, "Get me a first aid kit right away!"

David shot a look at his underlings, and they immediately fetched over a first aid kit.

Avery pushed through her heartache and tended to Wesley's wounds.

Once she was done bandaging him, she glared at David with reddened eyes and said through gritted teeth, "Get your men to take him to the hospital!

Right now! Immediately! If he dies, I won't help you with anything even if you kill me!"

David impatiently waved at his underlings.

Very quickly, Wesley was taken away.

"I told you the idiot was the one who tried to jump off a cliff. That's how he ended up like this.

"Shut up! Don't think this will scare me! You're the one who needs something from me right now!" Avery's head was throbbing in pain, so she said, "I need to rest! Send me Wesley's medical report tomorrow, then we can talk!"

On the Baystream G650 private jet, Elliot's eyes were shut as he rested in his seat.

After two sleepless nights, even the strongest bodies would not be able to handle this level of fatigue.

Layla and Hayden were filled with worry, so they stayed awake the entire time.

"Hayden, this is the first time I've been on such a luxurious plane!" Layla's face was filled with excitement and curiosity. "A plan like this should be really expensive, right?"

Hayden was disdainful, and said, "I'll buy you one when I grow up."

“Okay! Hayden, do you think Mommy would be happy or mad when she finds out we came to see her?” Layla’s two seconds of happiness disappeared as melancholy took over.

“We’ll call Uncle Mike first when we get there.”

“Okay!”

The jet landed in Bridgedale after a ten-hour flight.

At that moment, it was eight in the morning in Bridgedale.

Hayden and Layla were the first to notice Mike in the bustling arrival hall.

Elliot saw Mike’s haggard and gloomy face.

Were things really that serious?

The entourage got into two separate cars.

Elliot’s Adam’s apple bobbed in his throat, and he could not help but ask

Mike, “What’s the situation right now? Avery..”

“Wesley’s at the hospital. Let’s go see him first!” Mike said as he cut Elliot off mid-sentence, then added irritably, “Those f*cking b*st*rds! We need to get Avery out of there as soon as possible!”

Chapter 540

In the special care unit at the hospital, Wesley’s body was covered in bandages and his eyes were swollen and bloody.

There was a separate bandage on his hand that clearly showed that he was missing a finger.

Layla and Hayden were not allowed to enter the room, so the bodyguard was watching them outside.

On the other hand, Shea entered the room. She widened her bright eyes and stared at the man on the hospital bed, but could not recognize him even after watching him closely.

“Who... Who is this?” she asked softly as she was afraid to disturb the patient on the bed.

Mike turned around and saw her shock, so he walked her to the door and said, “That’s Wesley. Shea, go outside...”

Shea instantly broke down. She shoved Mike aside, then ran over to the bed as tears rolled down her face.

“Wesley! What happened to you? Who did this to you?” She wanted to hold his hand, but she was afraid of touching his wounds.

In the end, she grabbed onto the blanket and said, “The sunflower you gave me last time... You said it was a symbol of hope for me... I’ll give that hope back to you now, alright?”

Elliot’s emotions were a mess as he heard his sister’s sobs. He did not expect Wesley to be tortured to this degree.

Although he was not close to Wesley, it was still unbearable for Elliot to see him in this state. Not to mention, Wesley meant a lot to Avery.

He wondered how upset Avery would be if she saw Wesley like this.

Elliot suddenly recalled the scene at the airport. If he had stopped Avery from getting to Bridgedale in time and caused Wesley’s death, she would despise him!

Perhaps it was a good thing that she stuck to her decision and did not cause such a tragedy.

He would rather Avery owe him, than owe something to her himself.

However, now that she was trapped in the jaws of a monster, how could they guarantee her safety?

Could she end up with a worse fate than Wesley?

Their child... Would it be able to survive through such a dangerous situation?

The vein in Elliot's forehead pulsed, and his back broke into a cold sweat.

"Don't cry, Shea. He needs to rest in peace and quiet right now." Elliot wrapped his hand around Shea's wrist and led her out of the room.

He needed to arrange for the children and Shea to settle down somewhere, then find a way to rescue Avery.

"Hayden, take your sister and Shea home. Remember to stay there and don't run around," Mike ordered Hayden. "You have to take the bodyguard with you if you leave."

Hayden nodded his head.

"Are they going to your place or Avery's?" Elliot asked Mike after Shea and the children left.

"Avery's. Did you forget that she owns Alpha Technologies?" Mike lifted his heavy eyelids, then said wearily, "I already found out who took her."

"Who was it?" Elliot rarely saw such a frustrated look on Mike's face.

"His name is David Grimes. He comes from old money here in Bridgedale. I'm talking about a lot of money... They've splurged through generations, but are still sitting on a fortune," Mike said gloomily. "He's a huge pervert. Do you think he'll take a liking to Avery?"

Elliot remained silent.

"I stayed up all night and thought about it," Mike said with furrowed brows.

"That b*st*rd isn't lacking in wealth, so it would be impossible for us to pay a ransom. Besides, there's no reason for us to give him any money. How could we do that after what he did to Wesley and is now falsely imprisoning Avery?

I just want to shoot a bullet through his d*mned skull!"

Elliot raised his brows. He had a different opinion.

“If we use force, they might hurt Avery. If money will solve the problem, I can give that to him.”

“I know you’re rich, but he won’t want a penny from you! What he wants is Avery!” Mike sneered.

“Avery is mine.” Elliot got into the car, then revealed his plan to Mike.

“My first plan is to get Bridgedale’s politicians to force Grimes to release Avery. The second plan is to fight violence with violence.”

“Ha! You sure live up to your name.” Mike settled himself into the driver’s seat, then said, “I was about to go talk to some politicians myself today! I’ve got some first on them. If they don’t make Grimes give in, then I’ll make them international laughing stocks!”

Elliot scoffed at Mike’s usual tricks.

“You can go talk to them yourself.” Elliot got Mike to get out of the car, then said, “I’ll take the car and work on my second plan.”

Chapter 541

“Hey, who are you going to see?” Mike asked.

“This is Bridgedale. Are you familiar with the place?”

“Even the Devil would do anything for money. Everyone knows that. As long as I’m willing to cough up the money, plenty of people would be lining up to risk their lives for me!” Elliot responded.

Mike watched as Elliot bragged, but he ended up being frightened by his spirit and obediently got out of the driver’s seat.

However, Mike did not forget to take a jab at Elliot.

“Did you cry when Avery ignored you at the airport that day? I bet you did. I should've recorded the whole thing..."

"F*ck off!" Elliot fired a glare at him, then slammed the car door shut.

At the White Mansion, Avery got out of bed and received Wesley's medical report.

With all of his injuries, his report came up to several pages.

Avery looked through it for a while before she was done.

"He's not dead, Miss Tate. He'll be fine after some rest," said the woman who was responsible for monitoring Avery.

It was true that Wesley's life was no longer in danger, but he was crippled now.

Many of his injuries were irreversible.

His severed finger would never be able to be reattached.

His vision would also be affected.

Many of his wounds would also leave behind hideous scars.

Avery wanted to cry, but she was out of tears.

"Miss Tate, I suggest you get rid of that bitter and hateful expression. Men don't like that. If you want to keep a foothold here, then you need to get on Mr. Grimes's good side."

Avery felt like she just heard some kind of joke.

"A foothold? Who said I wanted to stay here?" She shot to her feet in anger and snapped, "Take me to him!"

She wanted to see exactly what kind of illness the person David wanted her to save was suffering from

If she could save them, then she would do it quickly and leave this hellish place!

The woman smiled, then led the way.

The mansion was built like a maze. After turning a few corners, Avery was beginning to feel dizzy.

“We’re here.” The woman stood in front of a door, then said, “Mr. Grimes is inside.”

Avery entered the golden-themed room that was decorated lavishly.

“How did you sleep last night, Miss Tate?” David walked up to her with a smile as he looked her up and down as if he was inspecting a product.

“Who do you need me to treat? Take me to the patient!” Avery glared at him with cold eyes, then said, “Let’s make things clear first. If I cure their illness, then you have to immediately let me go!”

“Of course,” David responded gleefully. “If you can cure her, not only will I let you go, I’ll also pay you handsomely!”

Then, he took Avery to see the patient.

The two of them walked up to a room. David opened the door, and a wave of cold air seeped out of the room.

Avery felt that something was off!

When she finally saw the so-called patient, she let out a shrill cry of terror!

In the middle of the spacious room was an ice casket with a beautiful woman laying inside of it. However, the woman... Was dead!

Chapter 542

Avery’s entire body turned cold.

She felt like a joke was being played on her!

Even if she was the most incredible doctor in the world, she would not be able to bring the dead back to life!

“Miss Tate, this is my dearest daughter. She’s the most beautiful woman in the world.” David said as he leaned closer to Avery. His voice had a hint of mockery and insanity in it.

“Can you cure her? If you can then I’m willing to give you anything you want!”

With reddened eyes, Avery shoved him aside and snapped, “You’re insane!

How am I supposed to cure her when she’s already dead?! I can only treat people who are alive. I’ve never said that my skills were so great to the point that I can bring back the dead!”

“People told me that you’re James Hough’s last pupil, and that your medical skills surpassed his! Why can’t you cure the dead?! How could you know if you don’t try it?!” David grabbed onto Avery’s arm and did not let her leave.

“Where do you think you’re going, Miss Tate? This is your home from now on!”

Avery felt like her heart had fallen into an icy abyss.

She suddenly realized that the one who needed medical help was not the dead woman in the ice casket, but the living man standing in front of her!

He was not a normal person at all!

Now that she had fallen into his grasp, she could either bring his daughter back to life, or die in his hands.

The former was impossible. She would not be able to revive his daughter even if she sacrificed her own life.

Did that mean that death was the only option for her?

She refused to give in...

“Let me go! If it’s money that you want, I’ll give you however much you ask for... I’m begging you! Let me go!” Avery’s eyes welled up with tears of fear.

She had thought that she had run out of tears that morning, but she was wrong. She just needed to suffer a stronger blow.

Now that it was confirmed that there was no way for her to escape this place, a wave of hopelessness overcame her!

All of her reason flew out of the window as she tried to escape David's grip with all her might.

However, as a man, David was stronger than her after all. She quickly ran out of energy, and was shoved to the ground.

"I'm disappointed that you can't bring my daughter back," David said regretfully as he crouched down next to Avery. Then, as if giving her a generous offer, he said, "I won't kill you as long as you stay by my side and do your best to serve me."

"In your dreams!" Avery fired a deadly glare at him, then said loud and clear, "I would never associate myself with a lunatic like you!"

"Ha! Are you not afraid of death, Miss Tate?" David reached out to grab her chin, then said with a sinister grin, "Are you really not afraid to die? Think about it carefully before you answer me."

With a face filled with disgust and hatred, Avery smacked his hand away and said, "I wouldn't be here if I feared death. Even if you abducted ten Wesleys, my life is still important to me."

"I see... I suppose that's right. I know many geniuses in various sectors, Miss Tate. Most of them are like that. They usually despise rich layman like me. You despise me, too, don't you?"

"I despise you because you think you can do whatever you want just because you're rich!" Avery held onto the cupboard next to her for support, then slowly rose to her feet. "You're keeping me captive right now. You've already broken the law!"

"Hahaha! This is Bridgedale. You think you can discuss the law with me?"

David laughed wickedly. "Miss Tate, I sincerely want you to stay by my side. Don't make me use force. After all, I might be violent, but I don't murder children."

As David spoke, his menacing gaze landed on Avery's slightly protruding belly.

Avery felt like she was thrown into a fire as her entire body instantly burned up! "I hope you won't force me to make an exception." The smile on David's face slowly vanished as he said, "As per usual, you have twenty four hours."

Avery did not know how she managed to walk back to her room.

How could she have forgotten about the baby? She was not afraid to die, but the baby was turning four months old soon! It was already a living being. How could she not care about its wellbeing?

David returned to the living room, and his assistant handed him a lit cigar.

"Sir, Senator Kane called earlier saying he had something to discuss with you. He insisted that you call him back." The assistant held his phone in his hand, then asked, "Would you like to return his call now?"

"Sure." David narrowed his eyes as he took a puff of his cigar, then exhaled a thick circle of smoke.

Once the call went through, David took the phone over.

"I heard you have a woman called Avery Tate. Is that true?"

"Why are you bothering yourself with such a small matter?" David narrowed his eyes and grinned half-heartedly. "She's just some doctor..."

"I looked into her! She's the head of Alpha Technologies and the president of Tate Industries in Aryadelle! Why did you have to take her of all people?

She's from Aryadelle..."

“Even if that’s the case, someone’s using news of our scandals to blackmail us into saving her! Release her this instance!”

“I won’t,” David said determinedly. “I want her to extend my life for me. She’s a medical genius. I’m sure she can come up with a way to prolong life!”

“Are you sure?”

“I am,” said David

“Then, don’t touch her for now... You have to keep her alive,” said Senator Kane. “I’ll deal with things here. You better make that woman stay with you willingly. That way, this won’t turn into a subject for ridicule!”

“Got it!” The smile on David’s face died down.

How could he make Avery stay by his side willingly?

That afternoon, Mike found Elliot at a mysterious, special security company.

He did not expect Elliot to not only have strong connections, but also outstanding execution skills.

David Grimes’s current residence was on top of a mountain.

At this point, they had already come up with a detailed terrain model and a rough battle plan in the command room!

“You really are something, Elliot Foster! From what I’ve heard, this security company isn’t open to normal folk.” Mike said after pulling Elliot aside to speak privately.

“Am I considered normal folk?” Elliot’s expression was solemn.

“I guess not... What I meant was that this security company doesn’t even work with typical rich people!” Mike said animatedly. “The hidden head behind this company is the former Chief of Staff... The people who work here are officially called bodyguards, but they're actually contract killers..."

"In your eyes, am I a typical rich person?" A clear look of doubt appeared in Elliot's eyes." Who isn't a typical rich person, then? Please enlighten me."

Mike was speechless.

"God d*mn it!" Mike cursed internally.

They were discussing important matters, but it ended up being an opportunity for Elliot to show off!

"I told you before that as long as I have enough money, there will naturally be people who would risk their lives for me." A dark menace appeared in Elliot's eyes as he said, "We'll get Avery back before sunrise tomorrow!"

"If you're using gunfire, you have to make sure she doesn't get hurt!" Mike said.

"I'm going there personally!" Elliot's tone was certain as his eyes were cold and deep.

Then, he turned and walked back to the command room.

Mike's impression of Elliot took a turn.

He was going to rescue Avery without thinking about the cost or worrying for his life.

If that was not love, then what was?

At 8 p.m. that night, Elliot was smoking on the balcony.

Since arriving in Bridgedale that morning, there was not one moment when he was relaxed. He kept thinking of Avery.

The thought of her possibly being threatened and picked on made him feel like his heart was being stabbed again and again!

His phone suddenly rang.

He pulled it out and saw that it was an incoming video call.

Elliot held his breath and accepted the call.

Avery's face appeared in front of him without warning, followed by her screams.

"Let me go! You animal!"

Elliot's breath quickened as the cigarette fell from his fingers. He saw a silverhaired man pinning Avery down and forcefully taking her clothes off!

Chapter 544

"Avery!" Elliot cried out in agony.

His cold face carried with it a terrifying and murderous aura. He wanted to go and save Avery!

She was so close, and yet so far.

He could hear heavy breath and the horror in her eyes, but there was nothing he could do!

His blood boiled inside of him. He wanted to rip that man into shreds and feed him to the dogs!

On the other side of the video call, Avery froze. She heard Elliot's voice!

A chill ran through her entire body.

She did not expect David to call Elliot in secret!

"Elliot! Don't look!" Tears of embarrassment welled up in her eyes. "Please!

Don't look!"

Elliot felt like his heart was breaking into pieces as he watched Avery's helpless and miserable face.

His fingers clenched tightly around his phone as a savage fury appeared in his eyes.

"I'm coming for you! I'm coming to save you right now, Avery!" he cried out as tears escaped his eyes and rolled down to the corner of his lips.

His tears tasted bitter! He had never felt this kind of pain in his life. He was watching as the woman he loved was being assaulted by another man!

This was more agonizing than his own death!

Elliot held his phone tightly and rushed into the house.

When Mike heard the commotion, he walked out and bumped right into Elliot.

“What happened?!”

Mike suppressed the pain from running into Elliot. When he saw his bloodshot eyes filled with tears, he immediately knew something was wrong.

At that moment, Avery’s screams continued to come through the phone.

“End the call! I’m begging you... Turn it off!”

Mike picked up the hand Elliot was holding his phone in, and saw the unbelievable sight of Avery being pinned down!

Through gritted teeth, Mike said with a tremor in his voice, “Avery...

Remember what I told you! We’re coming to save you! Just not right now!”

Then, he forced himself to end the call.

“We’re going to save her now! I said right now!” Elliot was frustrated by Mike’s words and his voice was trembling with rage, “I won’t wait another second! We’re leaving now!”

“Pull yourself together, d*mn it! What would you do if you went right now?!”

Are you going to blow all those b*st*rds up along with Avery?!” Mike roared through reddened eyes. “I don’t care who’s having their way with her right now. I just want her to stay alive!”

Elliot landed a hard punch on Mike’s face.

Mike licked the blood from the corner of his lips, then returned the blow!

Just like that, the two men fell into a fierce fistfight!

“F*ck! There are more than a dozen backup generators on that mountain! If we barge in right now without cutting their power off, do you think you'll kill the enemy, or end up watching as they kill Avery with your own eyes?!" Mike snapped furiously.

Elliot had him pinned down and he had no chance of fighting back.

The strength of a crazed man was wild and terrifying!

However, Mike did not stop talking.

"Pull yourself together! Is Avery's life or her virtue more important?!"

The force of Elliot's arm on Mike's throat relaxed slightly.

Mike had underestimated him!

It was not Avery's virtue that he cared about, but her shattered pride!

For someone as spirited as her, being forcefully assaulted would turn into a lifelong trauma!

The thought of something like this affecting Avery for the rest of her life made Elliot unable to control himself.

Chapter 545

"I talked about it to her on the plane," Mike explained. "The moment the power goes out where she is will be the signal that we've come to save her. She'll find a place to hide during the frenzy, and we'll rescue her once we're done dealing with the enemy!"

"If we don't cut their power and mess up their internal operations, then they will definitely use her as a hostage to threaten us!"

At the White Mansion, Avery's voice died down the moment the video call ended.

When she stopped crying and struggling, David's interest waned.

He was doing this to make Avery his.

Making her his woman was the only way to make her stay willingly!

He had made the video call because he found out that Elliot Foster was Avery's man.

After seeing her be dishonored, he would definitely not want her anymore.

"Why aren't you screaming anymore? You're not seriously thinking that man is coming to save you, right?" David chuckled and tapped on Avery's cold face. "Do you know how many hidden soldiers I have around my mansion on this mountain? Nobody's getting here without my permission!"

"How long has your daughter been dead?" Avery asked as she stared coldly at him.

Elliot's voice kept replaying in her head.

She did not see his face in the video call, but he heard the sound of him choking on his tears.

She had planned to face her death at dawn, but she changed her mind now.

David did not expect her question. He thought for a moment, then answered, "Thirteen years this year."

"I can bring her back." Avery gazed at him calmly as she uttered unbelievable words. "I have an exclusive remedy that we could try. I can't guarantee its success, but there's a huge chance."

David's instincts told him that she was lying, and his expression was one of shock and rage as he snapped, "That's not what you said this morning!"

"What are you afraid of? Even if Elliot comes, wouldn't he just be walking to his death?! Or were you just talking big just now?" Avery tried to provoke him.

"If I can't bring your daughter back to life, then I'll stay with you for the rest of my life!"

David did not expect her to shoot her mouth off like this.

He nonchalantly got off of her, but his eyes looked her up and down sleazily.

“You’re not my type at all! If you can’t bring my daughter back, then I’ll just give you to my men! They’ll definitely show you the consequences of lying to me!”

Avery closed her opened shirt, then held back her tears and said coldly, “We need to defrost your daughter right now!”

The power to the ice room was cut off, and the refrigeration system stopped working

“This would take too long! Should we use a dryer?!” David said impatiently as he stood next to the ice casket..

Avery was sitting next to the ice casket, and her eyes were icy as she said,

“No! We need to defrost her naturally. Otherwise, sudden heat would cause the corpse to immediately start to rot!”

David gritted his teeth and glared frustratedly at Avery.

“If you can’t bring my daughter back to life once the defrosting is over, then you can just look forward to being ruined by my men!”

Avery’s eyes were bloodshot, and she was shivering from the cold air emanating from the ice casket.

She wondered if she would die from the cold before the corpse was done defrosting.

It was close to sunrise, and Elliot had lost the opportunity to move before dawn.

According to their plan, moving in at night was better for both their success rate and Avery’s safety.

Mike had guaranteed the night before that he would be able to cut off all the power at the mansion by midnight, but he had broken his word!

Elliot pulled out a handgun and placed the barrel against Mike's temple.

"If anything happens to Avery, you're paying for it with your life!"

"Go on, then! You might as well just f*cking kill me now to pay for her life!"

Mike had spent the past two nights without sleep, and he was on the brink of a breakdown.

As Eliot saw the tears welling up in Mike's pale blue eyes, his grip on the handgun loosened.

"What are you crying for? Do you think Avery's already dead?" Elliot croaked, his voice was low and had a hint of his own uncertainty.

Chapter 546

Mike buried his face in his hands and burst into tears.

"I regret it! Why did I say those cruel words to her last night?!"

Elliot's eyes welled up in tears at the thought of what happened the night before.

"She was helpless and scared. Even if we couldn't go save her right away, I shouldn't have said that! She must have felt so hopeless after hearing what I said..." Mike was racked with guilt and could not control his emotions.

Elliot's Adam's apple bobbed in his throat and he said hoarsely, "Stop crying! Are you done cracking the system?"

Mike wiped his tears away, then glanced at the progress bar on his computer screen.

"Almost ... It'll be done before noon. My head hurts. What would I do if Avery's really dead?"

Elliot did not have the courage to think of that possibility.

“How about you go home and take a shower?” Mike saw the stubble growing on Elliot’s chin and figured that he was probably hurting more than himself.

It was because Avery was still carrying his child.

Elliot stood still in a daze as if he did not hear what Mike said.

“Go back and check on Shea and the kids,” Mike said in a louder voice.

Elliot finally reacted and said, “Fine.”

When he walked to the door, Mike sighed and said, “Are you thinking of bringing that gun back with you? Avery’s definitely alive! She’s strong, and she won’t die until she watches Grimes die a violent death!”

Elliot placed the gun down on the table, then walked out of the room.

Avery’s house in Bridgedale was located in the city center’s wealthy neighborhood.

When she first bought the house, it was not to show off her wealth, but because of the area’s tight security.

Elliot was stuck at the neighborhood entrance. He called Mike, and Mike called Hayden.

Fifteen minutes later, Hayden and Layla arrived at the entrance hand in hand to pick him up.

Elliot’s emotions turned complicated. If Avery was dead... Then, what would happen to the children?

Of course he was willing to raise them himself, but they might reject him without Avery around.

“He looks really sad, Hayden!” Layla said softly as she saw Elliot from afar.

Hayden’s heart began to thump wildly in his chest. Did Elliot look like this because something had happened to their mother?

Hayden and Layla had not seen Wesley's horrible condition at the hospital yesterday, but Shea described it to them when she came home after.

Hayden had a nightmare that Avery died last night.

Layla had the same dream, and the siblings ended up crying in each other's arms.

After Hayden let Elliot into the neighborhood, Layla looked up at him and sobbed, "Where's Mommy? Didn't you go and rescue her? Why isn't she back yet?"

Elliot did not know how to answer Layla's question.

Hayden could not handle the silence and said, "Did something happen to Mommy?"

"No. She's fine. I came back to check on you guys and take a shower. I'll bring her home tonight." Elliot leaned down and picked Layla up, then said, "Lead the way, Hayden."

Hayden pursed his lips, then walked in front.

He held back his hostility for now. He needed Elliot to bring his mother home.

When they arrived at the house, Hayden opened the front door.

Elliot put Layla down and changed into a pair of house slippers.

Mrs. Scarlet, who had come along, immediately came up and greeted him.

"Where's Shea?" Elliot asked after changing his shoes.

"She's gone to the hospital to see Wesley," answered Mrs. Scarlet. "I asked the bodyguard to take her, while I stayed home to watch the kids." Elliot nodded his head.

“You haven’t eaten, have you? I’ll go make lunch,” Mrs. Scarlet said, then walked toward the kitchen.

Elliot glanced around the house. It was an open layout and the decor was minimalistic.

Layla thought he was looking for his room, so she ran toward the guest bedroom and showed him the way.

“You can sleep in here!”

Elliot responded, but a framed photo on the shelf drew his attention.

It was a family photo of Laura and Avery with them each holding a baby in their arms.

He walked over to the shelf, picked up the photo and examined it carefully.

At the bottom right corner were the words “We’re a year old!”.

This meant that the children in the photo were a year old when it was taken.

One of the babies was dressed in a smart suit, while the other was wearing a white, puffy dress and a tiara on her head... It was obvious that the babies were a boy and a girl.

So, were they Hayden and Layla?

“Come on in!” Layla stood at the door of the guest bedroom and called out to Elliot, “Come see the bed I made forza you!”

Elliot immediately put the photo down and walked over to Layla.

The guest bedroom was on the first floor. It faced south and had a large floor to ceiling window where one could see the view outside in the day.

It was only then that he noticed that it had turned gloomy outside.

“Look at this pink bunny pillow. Do you like it? Mommy bought it for me. There were two of them, but Hayden didn’t like it, so I’m letting you use it!” Layla held a pillow shaped like a bunny and showed it off to Elliot.

Elliot felt her thoughtfulness, then smiled and said, "Thank you, Layla."

Layla's cheeks flushed. She wondered why she did not naturally resist when Elliot picked her up earlier. She actually enjoyed being carried at that height.

"I'm going to take a shower," Elliot said as his own face began to turn pink as Layla stared at him.

"Okay... Go on!" Layla threw herself on the bed, then gazed at him and asked, "Why did you cry? Do you miss my Mommy?"

"I do." Elliot opened up his suitcase and took out his toiletries and clean clothes.

"Didn't you say you were bringing Mommy home tonight?" Layla asked. "It's going to be night time soon! You have to be strong!"

"I will."

Elliot's back was facing her, so he did not have to disguise the pain on his face.

At the White Mansion, Avery asked for a blanket from one of the servants, then lay down on the mat next to the ice casket and fell asleep.

Perhaps it was because the temperature up on the mountain was lower, but the corpse in the ice casket had yet to completely defrost despite the power being cut off for an entire night.

When the sun came up, Avery went to work. She put together a list of herbs and passed it to David.

David came to see her with the list in his hand and said, "What do you need these herbs for?!"

"Have you heard of Aryadelle's resurrection treatment? We need to mix these herbs together, simmer it, then cool it down and soak your daughter in this."

Avery explained calmly.

“However, these are very expensive herbs from Aryadelle. You might not be able to get your hands on them right away even if you’re rich.”

“Of course I’ve never heard of it! If it works, I’ll get any expensive herbs you need!” David said, then ordered his men to purchase the herbs.

Avery turned and began to cough violently.

David glanced at her, then left the room.

She caught a cold the night before and had a low fever. For the sake of the baby, she pushed through and did not take any medication.

She glanced at the sky outside. She could only drag this on until tonight.

If they did not come to rescue her tonight, then she would not live to see tomorrow.

Once the corpse was finished defrosting, it would quickly begin to rot. The resurrection treatment was something she made up to buy time. She was betting her life that Elliot would come to rescue her.

Chapter 548

As time ticked by, the sky outside began to turn dark.

It suddenly began to rain. It was not a heavy storm, but it was enough to make one feel uneasy.

“The medicine has cooled down, Miss Tate.”

A voice snapped Avery back to reality. She walked over to the wooden tub and placed her hand in the liquid to test the temperature.

“Put the corpse in!” she said.

“Oh... Wouldn’t the body rot if we put it in?” David’s assistant asked in suspicion. “Can you really bring the dead back to life, Miss Tate?”

Avery shot him a cold look and said, "Are you doubting me?"

"I'm just curious."

"This is a special concoction," Avery said confidently. "The corpse won't rot."

Seeing her seriousness, the assistant no longer doubted her.

A few bodyguards picked up the woman's corpse and placed it into the wooden tub.

Avery saw the different levels of anxiety on the men's faces.

No matter how beautiful she was, nobody would be able to appreciate the beauty of a thirteen year-old corpse.

The dead were not frightening, what was scary was the fear of the unknown.

"What do we do next, Miss Tate?" asked the assistant.

"Now, we wait," Avery said calmly as she stood next to the tub.

The assistant was surprised and asked, "Wait for what?"

"Wait for her to come back to life." After Avery said those words, she began to feel terrified. She looked out the window, then said, "Don't you think it's dark in here? Turn on the lights!"

The assistant felt that she was babbling, but signaled to the bodyguard next to him anyway.

The bodyguard flipped the light switch, but the chandelier on the ceiling did not light up.

Sparks of hope began to rise inside of Avery when she witnessed this scene.

"What's wrong?" The assistant walked over to the light switch and flipped it again, but the chandelier remained off.

"Stand guard here! I'll go check the electrical room!" the assistant said, then walked away.

At that moment, the ceiling lights on top of David also went out.

He was entertaining guests in the VIP room when the lights suddenly went out!

Since the night had approached, the room was shrouded in darkness once the lights were out.

David thought that the lights had malfunctioned , but his assistant rushed over and told him that their power was out!

He thought that he had heard wrongly. He had never once experienced a power outage since his birth, because the mansion had plenty of backup generators.

“Sir, the technicians are working on it right now. The power should be back soon,” said the assistant

When the guests realized that the power was out, they all quickly left the mansion.

The sky turned pitch black in an instant. With the power out, the mansion was shrouded in a chilling atmosphere.

“Where’s Avery Tate?!” An ominous feeling rose inside of David. “She’s upstairs. The bodyguards are watching her!” said the assistant as he followed next to David. “Someone infiltrated and damaged the mansion’s electrical circuit. It was definitely Avery Tate’s people. I suspect they will strike tonight.”

David had already guessed it.

The key issue right now was that, without electricity, he felt like he had turned blind.

“How about the emergency lights?!” he snapped frustratedly.

The assistant turned on the torch on his phone and said, “The emergency system was also damaged. The technicians will fix it as soon as possible.”

“What a bunch of good-for-nothing idiots! We have all those backup generators. Were they all damaged?!" David's rage had reached a boiling point.

"Yes, Sir," answered the assistant nervously. "They might have damaged our electrical circuit, but we don't have to be afraid with Avery Tate in our hands!"

A group of people very quickly arrived on the second floor.

"Avery Tate! Is your man coming to save you tonight?" David teased as he pulled out a handgun. "Try to guess and see if you can leave this place alive!"

What responded to him was nothing but endless silence.

Chapter 549

"Where's Avery Tate?!" David roared. "You bunch of idiots! Find her and bring her to me!"

The bodyguards and assistant immediately began to search for Avery.

She was just standing by the tub and did not move. How did she suddenly disappear?

The assistant's torch shone over the corpse soaking in the tub, and he dropped his phone to the ground.

"It's a ghost! A ghost!"

Blood was oozing out of the corners of the corpse's eyes and lips.

It looked like the living dead and was terrifying!

The assistant fled in fear.

The bodyguards aimed their torches at the corpse's face.

Nobody screamed, but they immediately began to flee the room.

"Sir! There are a bunch of helicopters outside!"

When the assistant fled to the first floor and discovered what was outside, he was even more terrified!

David gritted his teeth, then raised his gun and began to shoot at the corpse's head.

The corpse's head began to tear apart as the bullets hit it.

This was no longer his beloved daughter. His daughter was the most beautiful woman in the world, and not a horrifying ghost!

As if that were not enough, David aimed his gun at the tub and shot away.

"Go to hell!"

"Let's go, Sir! Things are beginning to heat up outside!" cried the assistant as he pulled at David's arm. "It looks like they hired Yves Kant Security! It's too late to call for backup now! We're dead if we don't hide ourselves!"

When David heard Yves Kant Security's name, he calmly pulled out his phone and said, "Pay them double the amount! Elliot Foster can't have more money than I do!"

Then, he dialed Yves Kant Security's manager's number.

"It's useless even if you pay us ten times the amount, Mr. Grimes. It's not that I don't want your money, but you've really messed up this time! A hacking group dug up all your dirty laundry through the years! Too many people were dragged into this. The scandals will be exposed if you don't die. You can either die, or escape somewhere where nobody can find you. We'll announce the news of your accidental death, then."

After that, the call ended.

The color drained from David's face.

He did not want to die. He still had a fortune to spend!

"Tsk!" David gritted his teeth and escaped out the back door.

His private jet was parked at the back of the mansion. He needed to leave this place immediately.

Ten minutes later, the mansion's power returned to normal.

The darkness vanished and gave way to brightness.

“Avery!” Elliot cried out at the top of his lungs.

His heart raced as his reddened eyes glanced over the mess of dead servants scattered on the ground.

When he arrived on the second floor, his eyes immediately landed on the corpse in the tub.

The corpse’s bloody and torn up face made him take in a sharp, cold breath.

Then, he saw the bloody water in the tub...

Avery was soaking it in!

She was leaning against the corpse with a pale complexion, but her arms were bloody! She was shot!

“Avery!” Elliot’s eyes welled up as he rushed over and carried Avery out of the tub.

“Avery! Don’t sleep! I’ll take you to the hospital right away! You’ll be fine! You have to be fine!”

Avery’s body was as cold as a block of ice. He could not feel a trace of life in her.

Once they were on the helicopter, the doctor they brought along immediately began to tend to her bullet wound.

Then, he reached out his finger and placed it under her nose.

The doctor’s action provoked Elliot.

“She’s alive. She has to be alive! She can’t be dead! She can’t!” Elliot growled.

The doctor retracted his hand, then looked sympathetically at Elliot and said, “It doesn’t look like she’s breathing, Mr. Foster.”

Chapter 550

Elliot's eyes were instantly filled with a menacing aura!

The doctor quickly corrected himself and said, "I'm not saying she's dead.

She's possibly in shock after losing too much blood. Ahem, it could be hypovolemic shock!"

Elliot's lashes fluttered as he took a deep breath. He held Avery so tightly in his arms that it was like he wanted to absorb her into his own body.

Moments later, the helicopter landed at the hospital, and Avery was rushed into the emergency room.

As Elliot stood outside of the emergency room doors, it felt like someone had hit a pause button on him.

It was as if his entire heart and body had been sucked dry!

What would he do if anything happened to Avery?

His phone rang, interrupting his agonizing thoughts. He pulled out his phone and answered it.

"How's Avery?! I've dealt with Grimes!" Mike said gleefully.

"That old b*st*rd! I knew he would escape through the abc door... We caught him the moment he walked out!"

Elliot's Adam's apple rolled in his throat, and he croaked, "She was shot in the arm. She's in the emergency room right now."

"Which hospital are you at?! I'm coming over right away!" Mike paused, then asked, "Was she conscious when you found a her?"

Elliot suddenly did not know how to answer his question.

"Say something!" Mike snapped. "F*cking say something, Elliot Foster!"

"She's definitely still alive," Elliot mumbled.

Mike understood.

Avery was either already dead, or she was close to death.

“Go home, Mike.” Elliot clenched his fists as he tried to keep his reason intact, then said calmly, “The kids are waiting at home. Go home and explain things to them.”

“Explain? How am I supposed to explain anything?! Do I tell them their mother’s dead?!” Mike mocked coldly. “Why don’t you go and do it?!”

“She’s not dead!” The final ounce of reason Elliot had left instantly vanished.

“I said she’s not dead! She can’t be dead!”

It felt like an eternity before the doors to the emergency room opened.

A doctor rushed out and asked, “Are you the patient’s family, Sir?” Elliot approached and said, “Yes! I am!”

“Is the patient pregnant? Her abdomen is protruding slightly...” asked the doctor.

“She is! The baby will be four months old soon!”

“I see. The current situation is...”

Elliot could not help but cut off the doctor’s sentence.

“Is she still alive?! Tell me she’s still alive!”

“She’s alive, Sir,” answered the doctor. “Her breathing was shallow when she arrived. After emergency resuscitation, her breathing is slowly getting back to normal. However, she’s got a high fever and she’s lost a lot of blood. We need to treat her fever, then remove the bullet from inside of her.”

Elliot’s eyes filled with tears as he muttered, “I knew she was still alive...”

“May I know your relationship with the patient, Sir? Can you contact her husband?” asked the doctor.

“Since she’s pregnant, we can’t simply administer any drugs to her. Any type of medication could affect the baby.”

Elliot froze for a moment, then quickly said, "Treat her first. Use whatever medication you need. Her health is the most important."

"Oh, are you her husband?"

Elliot's eyes reddened as he said, "I'm the baby's father." The doctor was actually asking him to choose between saving Avery or the baby.

Chapter 551

Of course, Elliot would pick Avery. He did not want to give up on the child, but he had no other choice. Their child was almost four months old. If this accident did not happen, they could see what the child looks like in the next maternity check-up!

"Okay, Mr. Foster, please sign this risk disclosure form." The doctor took a form and passed it to him.

"Does the patient have to be anesthetized for bullet removal surgery?"

Anesthesia would affect the child. If you're thinking of keeping the child, we can forgo the anesthesia for the patient."

"Wouldn't that hurt a lot!" Elliot obviously wanted to keep the child, but at the thought of the surgery without anesthesia, Avery would definitely be in a lot of pain!

"Yes, it would hurt, but it would pass soon," The doctor said.

"She's already so weak right now, I don't want her to suffer any further pain."

Elliot felt his heart torn into pieces. He was so heartbroken that even breathing hurt.

"Please use anesthesia for her."

"Okay." The doctor accepted the signed risk disclosure form from him, turned, and headed into the emergency room.

Elliot quickly collected his thoughts. Although he might have to sacrifice the child, at least Avery would be fine.

If something were to happen to her, their child would not have survived as well, so the situation at that moment was already the best result possible for him.

In Aryadelle.

Wanda placed a copy of the newspaper in front of Zoe.

“David Grimes is dead.”

Zoe glanced at the newspaper. Her expressions turned cold. “I heard about it yesterday. What a pity! I thought he would be able to kill Avery!”

Wanda was a little disappointed. “Elliot sure is strong. Even David was defeated by him.”

“That’s not only thanks to Elliot alone,” Zoe said distractedly, “But Elliot spent a fortune in saving Avery this time.”

“Oh?” Wanda asked curiously, “Roughly how much did he spend?”

“At least one and a half billion.” Zoe did not know the exact number, but she could probably

I guess. “He is really devoted to Avery! I have initially given up on him, but seeing how he sacrificed himself for another woman, I’m falling in love with him again.”

“Wake up! No matter how great he is, he belongs to another person.”

Wanda’s attention was on Avery. “Don’t tell me that Avery escaped unscathed?”

“How could that be possible? According to my friend, Elliot has been at the hospital for a long time. If Avery only had a small injury, she did not need to stay in the hospital,” Zoe said flatly, “I think she won’t be able to keep the child.”

“Even without this one, she still has the other two. She still could use them to elevate her status!” Wanda said in jealousy “It would be great if we could get rid of her two children.”

Zoe never thought that Wanda would be so cruel.

“Have you ever thought that if you were exposed for doing this, you would be dead!” Zoe warned her, “Let’s just put our focus on money! Avery won’t be able to get up so quickly.”

Three days later, Avery came around. When she woke up, she looked at her strange surroundings, trying hard to think back about what had happened.

It was until her gaze fell onto the drip connected to her, that she instinctively reached out and tried to rip it off.

She remembered that she was still pregnant. She could not touch any medication at all.

“Avery, what are you doing?” Mrs. Scarlet saw that she was woken up. She immediately tried to stop Avery.

“You are currently sick. You need to be on the drip. Avery, don’t move. I’ll go get the doctor!”

Mrs. Scarlet immediately went to look for the doctor. Soon, the doctor arrived.

“Miss Tate. You have been shot in the arm. You’ve done the surgery. Today is the fourth day in the hospital,” The doctor patiently explained.

Avery looked a little lost. “I’ve been in the hospital for four days? I even underwent surgery? What medication did you put me on? I’m pregnant, I can’t simply take any medication...”

The doctor replied, “Your husband agreed to the medication. Of course, I’m afraid that your child might need to be aborted.”

Chapter 552

Avery was taken aback!

If it were not for the injury on her arm, she would have jumped up from the bed.

“What husband? I’m not married! Nobody has the right to decide my child’s life or death!”

Because Avery was overly agitated, the doctor immediately apologized, “Miss Tate, I’m sorry. Mr. Forster indeed did not say that he was your husband, he said that he was the child’s father.”

“Even if he is the child’s father, he doesn’t have the right to do so!” Avery lost it. Tears fell.

Elliot had been keeping watch over her for the entire night. That morning, Mrs. Scarlet took over so that he could go back to rest.

Mrs. Scarlet should not have called him to disturb him, but she had no choice but to do so, looking at Avery’s state at that moment. After Mrs. Scarlet made a call to Elliot, Mike pushed the door and entered.

“Avery, you’re finally up!” Mike walked over to her bed and sat down. He took a piece of tissue and wiped her tears. “Don’t cry. Elliot’s thoughts and mine are the same. Between you and the child, you are more important. If this child is gone, you can have another one, but if you’re dead, there is nothing else left anymore.”

Avery pushed Mike’s hands away and wiped her tears herself.

“I know that not only you’re feeling uncomfortable, but this must be a huge blow on you mentally too, but this time, Elliot is right. He rushed over to rescue you. In between, he barely slept. It was until he rescued you out and the doctors said that you were still alive only then he was relieved.”

Due to this incident, Mike’s impression of Elliot changed a lot, so he could not help but talk on Elliot’s behalf.

After Mike’s reminder, Avery recalled the incident that happened a few days ago.

“It’s me...” Avery murmured but her words were swallowed in tears. It was because of her that Wesley was hurt. Elliot and Mike had to run around because of her. She was also sorry for the child in her tummy.

Things would turn out this way all because of her.

“Avery, don’t blame yourself. This has nothing to do with you.” Mike grabbed her petite, cold, hands. “What you need to do now is to rest well. Once you’re discharged from the hospital, we’ll return to Aryadelle.”

Avery’s gaze was empty and out of focus. Mike did not know if she heard him or not.

“Avery, I’ll get the doctor to reattach the drips for you? You still have two bottles of medication to go,” Mike coaxed.

Avery shook her head. She refused.

“Okay, then When Elliot comes, you two talk it out.” Mike sat by the side of the bed and quietly stayed with her.

After a while, Elliot arrived.

“Avery, he’s here,” Mike said to her before getting up and heading out.

Once the door was closed, Elliot walked to the side of the bed. Avery looked at the wearied yet familiar face, tears fell.

“Avery, don’t cry.” He gently wiped away her tears from the corner of her eyes with his fingers. He said hoarsely, “If you still want a child, we can have another one. We’ll have as many as you want.”

“I want this one in me!” Avery cried out and grabbed his hand. She squeezed it tightly. She wanted him to feel how heartbroken she felt.

“The child is almost four months old! In another two months, even if I give birth to it prematurely, I could let it survive in an incubator! Elliot, how could you be so cruel? Even without medication, I won’t die. Why did you make this decision on the child’s and my behalf?”

Elliot’s eyes moved a little. He said, blaming himself, “I’m sorry. I didn’t think it through. I was afraid that you would be in pain, so…”

“I can bear through it if I was in pain, but the child is innocent!” Avery bore through her tears and sniffled. “Mike said that you rescued me, how could I blame you?”

“I’m sorry. Maybe I’m not a competent father,” Elliot said guiltily.

Perhaps because the child was not born yet, so he did not fully treat the child as a live human being.

Chapter 553

Avery choked up, “I want to leave this hospital.”

Elliot did not dare further agitate her. He turned and looked for the doctor.

“Miss Tate, if you insist, you can be discharged, but you need to go through a checkup. If all is fine, I’ll immediately let you discharge.”

Soon, after a series of checkups, the doctor gave her the approval for discharge. Once she returned home, Avery shut herself in her room. Before discharging, she did an ultrasound. The ultrasound showed that the child was two weeks smaller than it should be.

Ever since she arrived at Bridgedale, her child stopped developing. This was a terrible sign. The doctor suggested she abort the child, but Avery could not accept this result.

“Why dont we find her a therapist!” Mike was discussing with Elliot in the living area. “The doctor said that her being so down is not completely because of the child. I think the doctor is right. Everything that happened to her with David Grimes was enough to destroy here: mentally.”

Elliot looked in the direction of Avery’s room and said, “Let’s give her some time. I believe that she can come out of it.”

“Okay, then! The child in her...”

“Since she wants to give birth to it, let her do it.”

Mike furrowed his brows. “What if the child is unhealthy? What if it’s an idiot?”

Elliot looked at Mike with reddened eyes, “So, what if it’s an idiot?”

Mike pursed his lips and stopped talking.

Suddenly, Avery’s room door opened and she came out of her room. They looked at her.

“I want to go see Wesley.” Avery lowered her gaze. Her tone was cold. She was still weak. Although she could walk on her own, it seemed like she would fall over at any moment.

“I’ll take you,” Elliot quickly walked over to her and held onto her arms, helping her.

Avery pushed Elliot away. She looked at him. “Elliot, if our child really is an idiot, I will not let him bring you down. I will bring the child up on my own.”

Elliot was stunned. Did Avery overhear their conversation a moment ago? He did not call the child an idiot. He did not like words like that. Why did Avery have to use phrases such as bringing him down?

Mike saw how the atmosphere between the two of them tensed. He immediately walked over to Avery. "Avery, I'll bring you to go see Wesley!" Mike grabbed her hand and led her away.

On the journey to the hospital, Mike secretly snuck glances at her. He wanted to say something, but he hesitated.

"I heard what you two said in the living area." Avery broke the silence.

"Oh, he didn't say that he doesn't want the child..."

"I know." Avery's eyes turned sore. She looked out of the window. "The first time I met Shea, she had no identity or friends. Elliot built her a fairytale kingdom. She was the only person in it

Mike seemed to have understood what Avery was talking about.

"Elliot has never publicly acknowledged his relationship with Shea. He also did not want the others to know about Shea. He seems to love Shea a lot, but I don't see the basic human respect he has for Shea." Avery's tone was flat.

"If our child has issues and I let him bring the child up, the child would be the next Shea."

"Avery, don't be so pessimistic. Your child will be fine! It might even be healthy!" Mike comforted her, "Don't get upset for problems that have yet to come."

"If his thought was the same as yours, he would not have let me abort the child." Avery could never forget how cold he looked. Mike said in shock, "He got you to abort the child?"

“When the doctor asked me to abort the child, Elliot said nothing. If he said nothing, that meant he tacitly agreed that the child should be given up.”

Avery took a deep breath and continued bitterly, “He is the child’s father, how could he treat his own child so heartlessly?”

It took a great deal for Mike to finally utter, “Perhaps, he is used to listening to the doctors.”

“He never listens to the doctors. When he was sick, he would smoke and drink whenever he wanted. A person like him, unless it was his own volition, if not, no one could make him listen. “ Avery’s eyelashes fluttered. Her voice was hoarse.

“He clearly doesn’t want our unhealthy child!”

“Avery, don’t think of him that badly. I can’t say for other matters, but he truly has you in his heart.” Mike wanted to avoid the topic of children.

“I know.” Avery sniffled. Her voice was nasal. “If he did not love me, he would not have come to rescue me.”

Mike responded.

“Mike, I love him a lot too,” Avery choked up.

“I know. If you don’t love him, you wouldn’t have given birth to his child.” Mike furrowed his brows. “Avery, what do you plan to do? Don’t tell me you’re planning to break up with him?”

“I don’t want to break up with him, but I don’t want this unhealthy child to leave a stain on him either.” Avery’s eyes were hot. “I can’t abort this formed child. I can’t do it. I really can’t do it...”

“Don’t think about this now. No matter what you decide, I’ll always stand by your side.” Mike passed her the box of tissues.

A while later, the car was at the hospital.

Mike brought Avery outside Wesley's ward. Wesley's mother, Sandra, came out of Wesley's ward. She looked at Avery coldly. "Avery, I want to talk to you in private."

Avery followed Sandra to the corridors. They walked over to a place where there was no one and stopped there.

The sunlight outside the window was a little piercing, Sandra looked out for a while before retracting her gaze. "Avery. My son is like this now thanks to you."

"Aunt Sandra I'm sorry."

"What use is there being sorry? I only have one son. Do you know how upset I am now that he is in this state?" Sandra said. Tears fell. "How much I liked you in the past is how much I hate you right now. How dare you appear in front of us?"

"I just want to apologize to you and Mr. Brook, as well as Wesley."

"We don't accept your apology!" Sandra pointed at the lift. "Leave this place at once. Don't let me see you again in the future! I feel unlucky just looking at you!"

When Mike entered the ward, he looked at the pretty bouquet of sunflowers on the table. He asked, "Did Shea send this?"

Wesley woke up a few days ago. He was in quite good spirits. Only his leg was broken so he could not get out of bed.

"Hmm. She would send me a bouquet every day. I'm really grateful for her."

"Wesley, you have such a good outlook. You're still grateful to others even after such a serious injury," Mike lamented.

Wesley's eyes were still bloodshot, but the light in his eyes brightened up quite a bit. "David Grimes is dead. Avery and I are still alive. We won."

“It’s good that you think of it this way. Avery is doing much worse than you,” Mike said while looking at the door. “I’ll go have a look and see why she is not in yet.”

Mike walked out of Wesley’s ward, yet he only saw Sandra.

“Aunt Sandra, where is Avery?”

Sandra replied coldly, “I don’t know. My son needs to rest. Don’t bring her here again next time.” She went into Wesley’s ward and shut the door.

Mike suddenly realized that even if Wesley did not blame Avery, that did not mean that Wesley’s family would not blame her.

Avery had just come around. Her emotions were still unstable. Adding on the agitation from Sandra, she must be in a lot of pain!

Mike immediately rushed to the lift. Avery did not have her phone or money with her. She was still injured! Where could she have gone to?

Chapter 555

Coming out of the inpatient unit, Mike searched around but he did not see Avery anywhere.

He dialed Elliot in despair. “Elliot! Come to the hospital quickly! Avery got lost!”

Elliot immediately rushed out of the mansion. “What happened?”

“Wesley’s mother talked to her in private. I am sure that Sandra must have said some harsh words to Avery!” Mike stood in the huge yard of the hospital and looked around.

Elliot furrowed his brows tightly. “She shouldn’t have gone far. Keep watch at the entrance right now!"

Avery got out of the lift and aimlessly walked to the outpatient building. There were a lot of seats there. She was tired, so she found an empty seat and sat down.

All around her were patients or their families. A couple was there bringing their sick child to see the doctors.

"I already said I didn't want the child, yet you insisted! Look at it now. We have to come to the hospital every few days! Do you know I'm busy! This is the last time I'll come with you to the hospital!" The man sat in the chair and reproached his wife with the child in her hands.

"I don't want the child to be sick. What use is there blaming me? This is your child too. If you don't come with me the next time, I won't come either. Let her just die!"

"Okay, then let her just die! We don't have to see the doctors today either!"

The man said and stormed off!

The woman stood in the same spot and sobbed with the child in her hands. In the end, the woman gave up. She placed her child on the chair and left.

Avery looked at the abandoned female baby. Her nose was sore. She got up from her chair and wanted to pick up the wailing a child.

"Don't touch my baby!" The heartless mother returned.

Avery saw her take her child away and she was deeply moved.

"Avery!"

Nearby, someone called out her name out loud. She looked toward the source of the sound and saw Elliot running over to her anxiously.

When he was in front of her, he held her arms tightly. "Avery, Wesley's injuries are not cause by you. Don't listen to what others say."

“Hmm.” Avery looked at Elliot’s sleep-deprived face. She lowered her gaze.

“Let’s go.”

Elliot picked her up in his arms.

Avery looked at his familiar face up close in a daze. Up till that point, she was sure that she still loved this man deeply. She did not want to see him being tied down by life’s trivial matters. She hoped that he was always the beacon of light shining brightly!

Elliot carried her to the car and patiently buckled her seat belt.

“Elliot, when are you planning to return to Aryadelle?” Avery looked at Elliot’s handsome side profile and asked.

Elliot looked up and met her gaze. “Once you’ve recovered, we’ll return together.”

Avery shook her head.

“Why don’t you go back right now! Elliot, my heart has seemed to have become handicapped. Looking at how well you treat me, I should love you even more, but right now, I’m afraid. I really want to run away. I don’t know what to do. I don’t want to drag you down, so I beg of you, go back! Return to where you belong.”

Elliot looked at Avery’s pale face and said painfully, “You’re not afraid, nor are you running away. It’s just that in your heart, the child is far more important than me. You think that I will not treat our child well. You don’t have confidence in me. You think a jerk like me should just end up alone!”

Chapter 556

Avery saw Elliot’s shimmery wet eyes. She wanted to say no. It was not how he put it.

However, Elliot suddenly stood up and left in front of her. He slammed the door next to her shut with a loud bam!

Elliot did not go to the driver's seat. He stood outside the car, took his phone, and made a call.

Avery silently looked at him. They were divided by a car door, yet it seemed like they were divided by an unbridgeable gap in between them.

He said that in her heart, the child was more important than him. How could she compare them together? The child was a weak being, of course, she would protect the child even more.

He said that she did not have confidence in him. It was more like she did not have confidence in herself.

Not long after, Mike ran over. Avery saw the two of them talking outside the car. She did not know what they were talking about. Mike quickly accepted the car keys from Elliot and came to the driver's seat.

Elliot had his back facing here from beginning to end. Avery saw his back muscle tense up.

Once Mike got in the car, she retracted her gaze.

"He said that he's going back tomorrow. Did you ask him to go back?" Mike started the car and asked.

"Hmm." Avery could not help but look out the window once more.

"He said that he will be staying at the hotel tonight. Did you two argue?" Mike drove off.

Avery ignored Mike.

She leaned against the car window. She saw Elliot's figure getting further and further away from her. It was until when she could hardly see him then only, he turned around.

“Why do you two do this to yourselves?” Mike stopped in front of the red light and sighed. “Would you be even happier if you split up with him?”

“My head hurts.” Avery inhaled and closed her eyes. As long as she thought about Elliot, her brain would hurt as if it was going to explode.

“Go back and rest well. Your body has not recovered. I shouldn’t have brought you out,” Mike said, “Also, I talked to Wesley. He never blamed you at all. No matter what his mother said, don’t take it to heart.”

During dinner, Shea lost her appetite. The first was because she had to return to Aryadelle with Elliot the next day. The second was because she knew Elliot and Avery fought again.

Mike took some food for her. “Shea, you can always come here whenever you want.”

Shea asked, “Then, when are you guys going back?”

Mike thought for a while. “We’ll have to see when Avery recovers. Once she recovers, we’ll definitely return.”

Shea took a small bite and asked softly, “Why did they fight?”

Layla and Hayden wanted to know the answer too. They looked at Mike.

“Uh...I can’t explain it in a few simple sentences, but what I am sure of is that this time, Elliot did nothing wrong. Of course, Avery did nothing wrong as well.” Mike changed the subject. “Shea, let’s take you out later. You have been here for so many days, but you have not had the chance to look around!”

Once they left, the entire mansion was in silence.

Avery lay in bed. Her arm hurt badly, but her heart hurt even more.

This time, she was the one that pushed him away. She did not know whether this decision was right or not, but besides this decision, she had no other better choice.

Chapter 557

The next morning, Shea went to Avery's room and softly bade her goodbye, "Avery, I'm leaving. Get well soon. Once you're well, you must return to Aryadelle!"

She was afraid to disturb her, so she did not stay for long. She quickly left Avery's room.

Avery opened her eyes and looked at the empty room. She was disappointed.

At eight in the morning, a Gulfstream G650 private jet took off from Bridgedale Capital Airport. Its destination: Aryadelle Capital Airport.

After more than ten hours of journey, the jet slowly descended on Aryadelle Capital Airport.

The time in Aryadelle at that moment was six in the morning. Wesley came back together with them.

"Mr. Foster, thank you for taking us home," Sandra thanked Elliot.

Elliot replied, "You're welcome."

"We'll make a move!" Sandra said.

Elliot swallowed his saliva. After a short moment of hesitation, he said, "Mrs. Brook, don't blame Avery for Wesley's injuries. She didn't even tell me that she was Professor Hough's last pupil. Wesley got kidnapped because he was once Professor Hough's assistant, not because Avery got him in danger."

Sandra was stunned. Elliot said what he wanted to say and left.

“Mom, what did you say to Avery?” Wesley sat in the wheelchair. He had a serious expression.

“Avery is also a victim, how could you blame her?”

Sandra’s eyes instantly reddened.

“I’m sorry, son. I’m just very upset. You initially have a bright future, but it’s all gone now. If you didn’t get to know Avery, this would not have happened.”

Wesley sternly rebuked, “Mom! Has Elliot not made himself clear just now? This has nothing to do with Avery!”

Sandra said, “How does this not have anything to do with her? If Professor Hough did not take her as his last pupil, nothing would have happened.”

Wesley said, “Since when becoming excellent is a mistake? If you think that way, then I’ll just be a loser for the rest of my life!”

News of Elliot returning to the country soon spread.

“Elliot came back alone. Avery is still in Bridgedale.” Wanda shared the news she got firsthand with Zoe.

“Also, when Elliot returned, he immediately went to work. I suspect that something has happened to their relationship.”

“That shouldn’t be! Elliot has spent one and a half billion on Avery!” Zoe found it hard to believe.

“Could it be that Elliot has dumped Avery?”

“No matter who dumped who, Elliot’s one and a half billion has gone to waste!” Wanda said, delighted in Elliot’s misfortune. “Avery could never pay him back so much money.”

Zoe said sourly, “Elliot is an extreme male chauvinist. Even if they split up, he would not get Avery to pay him back.”

Wanda said, “One and half billion is not a small number even to Elliot. It’s not that Elliot might not want to get it back from her, perhaps he just finds it hard to tell her?”

Zoe raised her eyebrows. “What are you planning to do?”

Wanda smiled mysteriously and whispered her plans in Zoe’s ears.

In Sterling Group

Once Elliot arrived at the office, he completed all the piled-up work for the past few days. He did not even drink a sip of water before rushing off to meet a client.

Chad followed behind him and texted Ben, [It’s most likely that they broke up.]

Ben texted, [I went to see him this morning. I could see it from his expressions. Don’t let him drink later.]

Chad replied, [Got it. Ben, how much did Mr. Foster spend this time in Bridgedale?]

Ben replied, [...why do you want to know?]

Chad texted, (He has been working hard. I’m suspecting that his wealth has been emptied.)

Ben replied, (Not really. I think he’s just numbing himself with work.)

Chad kept his phone and quickly walked over to Elliot’s side.

“Mr. Foster, after the meeting, I’ll send you back to rest,” Chad said, “It’s closer to where you stay here.”

Elliot said, “I’m not tired.”

Chad explained awkwardly, “In the afternoon, the company organized a twoday team building session for the staff. You can rest well at home during this time. If you don’t want to rest, you can come with us for team building.”

Elliot’s gaze dimmed. “Is there another choice?”

Chapter 558

Elliot did not want to go home, nor did he want to go for team building.

Chad saw how in pain Elliot seemed, he suggested, "Why don't you go on a holiday? Where do you want to go? I'll book a hotel for you."

Elliot pondered for a moment before saying, "I want to drink."

Chad was speechless. Was this the reason why Elliot chose to attend this meeting?

An hour later, Elliot was drunk, as he wished.

After Chad sent him home, he let out a sigh of relief. Although drinking was bad for the body, if Elliot did not drink himself drunk, he would not be able to sleep.

Coming out from Elliot's mansion, Chad dialed Mike. "Doesn't Avery have a guilty conscience? Mr. Foster sacrificed his effort and money but what else does she know how to do other than hurt him?"

It was night in Bridgedale at that moment.

Mike rubbed the middle of his brows and yawned. "What nonsense are you talking about again? Hmm?"

"Didn't Avery break up with him? How cruel and heartless is she!" Chad spat.

"Chad, do you treat Elliot as your bloody father or do you treat him as your son?" Mike said angrily, "How is their affair any of your business? Stop caring!"

"Are you yelling at me?"

"I am yelling at you!" Mike got more spirited the more he yelled. He got down from the bed and took a cup of water to hydrate himself. "The child in Avery is most likely unhealthy. The doctor said that she must abort. She is currently extremely upset. Do you think your boss is the only sad one?!"

Chad touched his nose. "Oh...so that's why! Did they break up because of this?"

"You can say so! Elliot felt that Avery should listen to the doctor to abort the child, but Avery can't do it. Avery did not want to drag him down. She wants to bring the child up on her own, so she broke it off with him. Is Avery wrong?"

"Such a huge thing has happened. Why didn't you tell me?" Chad calmed down.

"I didn't even have the time to sleep for the past few days, how could I tell you?"

"Okay then, go to sleep!" Chad felt a little disappointed. "Right, when are you guys coming back?"

"I don't know. I haven't discussed this with her."

"Oh, since the doctor said that the child has problems, she should listen to the doctor and abort the child. If she gives birth to an unhealthy child. It will also be torture for the child," Chad expressed his opinions before hanging up. Mike lay in bed. "Have you forgotten that she is a doctor? What if she could cure the child? Furthermore, the child is almost four months old. She has a bond with it. It's only normal that she doesn't want to abort it."

"Hmm. This is such a terrible thing! It was supposed to be a happy thing, yet it turned into a tragedy." Chad thought about how they had already reconciled before heading to Bridgedale.

Life was truly unpredictable.

"Now that they are apart, it'll be good for them to calm down too. Perhaps a few days later, Avery has thought it through and decides to have an abortion," Mike said, "She utterly refuses to have the abortion right now perhaps because Elliot's attitude toward the child agitated her."

“Try to talk to her! Whether she wants the child or not, don’t be too upset. I’ll wait for you guys to come back, and we’ll meet soon.”

“Okay.”

On Sunday, a piece of news was making the rounds in Aryadelle.

The news was published on Fortune Tech, an online news platform.

The headline was shocking.

[President of Sterling Group, Elliot Foster Cheated of 1.5 Billion? The Truth Behind This Would Make One Cry!]

The subtitle read, [Don’t let so-called love, empty you of your pockets!]

The article talked about the shooting in Bridgedale.

Chapter 559

However, the writer of the article said that this was a scheme set up by Avery.

It was done to con Elliot’s money!

Because Avery started in Bridgedale, Bridgedale was like her second home.

She was kidnapped in her own home country. Did she not have connections and her own money to resolve the crisis? Why did Elliot have to fly a private jet to rescue her?

In the end, Elliot dumped one and a half billion dollars only to return to Aryadelle alone and sad.

Therefore, the writer concluded that Elliot has been conned by Avery. Not only did she con him relationship-wise, but more importantly she conned him of one and a half billion dollars!

The article ended sarcastically, saying that a smart person like Elliot would one day be also conned by a woman. If one wanted to keep their wealth, they had to stay far away from women! Especially strong and beautiful women like Avery because she relied on other men to gather her wealth.

This article had been published by other media too. It soon made the rounds on the internet.

Such a breaking piece of news. If it was real, it would be exciting!

[I think this article is real. A few days ago, Elliot did indeed fly his private jet to Bridgedale. My friend works at the Capital Airport. He told me about it.]

[It looks like Elliot is stupidly in love? 1.5 billion! My God! Avery has good tricks up her sleeves!]

[I don't think Avery would return to Aryadelle anymore, right? How long does she have to work to earn 1.587 billion!]

[In such situations, can Elliot report to the police? Will he get back this huge amount of money?]

After the news spread like wildfire, the comments and jabs on the internet got more and more intense.

Many commented under Tate Industries' Tweeter account. Some even went to Eric's Tweeter page and warned him.

[Eric, your goddess is a cheater! She has conned Elliot off 1.5 billion dollars! Watch out for your wallet! Don't be cheated by her!]

[Eric is too kind, which is why he didn't know about Avery's true colors! Thank god the person that got cheated was Elliot and not our Eric!]

[Big hugs to my sisters who bought Tate Industries' drones because of Eric. I feel disgusted looking at the drone at home!]

After getting drunk on Friday afternoon, Elliot had been sleeping in his room for two days. His phone was turned off, so he did not know what was happening on the internet.

Chad could not get to him, so he could only contact Ben. “Ben, this magazine has crossed the line! How could they say that Mr. Foster has been conned? They put it as if he is an idiot! It’s infuriating!”

Ben said, “I saw this too. Not only did they turn Elliot into an idiot, but they also made Avery a cheater.”

Chad replied, “I contacted the staff of the magazine just now. They were arrogant. Not only did they refuse to delete the article, but they also said that Mr. Foster is a public figure. They did not infringe on any of his rights.”

Ben said, “Fortune Tech’s investor is Elliot’s long-time rival. Of course, they would be arrogant.”

Chad replied, “No wonder. If Mr. Foster sees this article. He is going to be mad.”

Ben thought for a while before saying, “Let’s wait until he sees it! Actually, this could be a good reminder too. Elliot is indeed a little stupidly in love. He has spent more than one and a half billion for Avery. This is a warning for Avery too.”

“But, Avery is in Bridgedale. She won’t be able to see this.”

Ben chuckled a little.

This matter was spreading like wildfire. How could it not spread to her ears?

He wondered what her reaction would be like after seeing this article.

Chapter 560

Mike has seen the article. It was not that he deliberately searched for news in Aryadelle. It was sent to him by one of the higher-ups of Tate Industries.

That was because the media made phone calls to Tate Industries asking if this incident was true.

How could the higher-ups know anything about their boss's private life? They only knew that Avery went to Bridgedale. They did not know what she went there for. They also did not know that she was kidnapped.

When Mike saw the news, he was furious. After drinking a cup of coffee, he still has not decided if he wanted to tell Avery about this.

Avery has been resting at home for the past few days. Other than coming out during mealtimes, she spent the rest of her time resting in her room.

When she came out to have her meals, her emotional state was much better than before Elliot left.

Mike thought that she was doing well in such a state, so he did not want to affect her emotional health with the news.

If this thing was not resolved, her reputation in Aryadelle would be completely ruined.

During lunch, Mike said to her, "Avery, how are your injuries?"

Avery was drinking soup. She calmly replied, "Much better."

"Oh. It could heal even without medication. How amazing," Mike said with a sigh.

After waking up the last time, Avery has not used any medication anymore.

"The human body has its own abilities to heal. Medicine only helps lessen the pain and quicken the process." After drinking the soup, Avery placed her spoon down.

"Avery, this is your phone." Mike saw her finished eating, so he passed her phone to her.

The last time when she came to Bridgedale, before she was taken away by the men in black, she handed over all her personal belongings to Mike.

She picked up her phone and pressed the power button. There was no reaction. Her phone has been placed for so many days. It had long ran out of battery. "There's no battery. The charger is in your bag," Mike said, "Hayden's teacher has been texting me, asking when will Hayden return to school."

Avery looked at her son and told him her plan. "Mike, take Hayden and Layla back to Aryadelle first! I'll return soon."

"How can I relax with you being alone here?" Mike refused her suggestion.

"Either we go back together or we stay here together."

Hayden and Layla immediately nodded in agreement.

However, the three of them could not beat Avery's insistence.

"The nanny will take care of me. The bodyguard will protect me. What is there to worry about? My body right now can't take long-distance travel," Avery enunciated, "The children's education cannot be delayed. Also, the company back in Aryadelle, it's time you head back to manage it!"

Mike said, "They're still so young. There is nothing wrong with delaying..."

Avery said, "You'll be affecting my rest by staying here. I'll be able to recover quicker if I stay here in peace."

Mike was speechless.

Avery continued, "Pack up after your lunch! I'll return in half a month."

Mike wanted to bargain with her. "It's too rushed today. We'll leave tomorrow."

Avery said nothing. She returned to her room and charged her phone. After plugging in her charger and connecting it to a plug, she pressed the power button. A few seconds later, her phone turned on.

As expected, countless missed calls and messages popped up on her phone.

Avery tapped Tammy's message and replied, [I'm fine now. We'll talk more when we meet.]

It was midnight in Aryadelle at that moment, Tammy did not see Avery's message immediately.

After Avery replied to Tammy, she placed her phone down. She had to make a trip that day. For the past few days resting at home, a question kept popping into her mind. Who leaked her information to David Grimes?

The public did not know that she was James Hough's last pupil. Wesley did not tell David about her, but David still targeted her.

Avery roughly had an answer in her heart, but she had to confirm this suspicion of her at that moment.

Chapter 561

In Aryadelle.

The weekend just passed in a blink of an eye.

On Monday, Elliot arrived at the office. Chad followed behind him and entered his office.

"Yes?" Elliot switched his computer open. He looked up at Chad.

"Mr. Foster, is your phone not on?" Chad inquired cautiously. It was only after Chad asked him this that Elliot realized he did not bring his phone that day.

He has been sleeping at home during the weekend. He slept well but still felt a little dizzy.

One would feel dizzy if they did not get enough sleep. Sleeping too much will cause the same effective too.

"Mr. Foster, this is what happened," Chad reported the main points of the things that had happened the day before to Elliot.

When Elliot heard the news, he had an expression of disbelief on his face.

“Go get the bodyguard to bring me my phone,” Elliot instructed Chad. When Chad left, Elliot looked at his computer screen.

The headline for that day popped up, [President of Sterling Group, Elliot Foster, Cheated of 1.568 Billion!]

Although he has already heard Chad describe the content of the piece of news, he still clicked on the popped-up news notification.

After reading the news, he rubbed the middle of his brow. It was alright to call him brainless due to falling in love, but why did they have to call Avery a conwoman?! How absurd!

The piece of news had been circulating on the internet from the day before until that day. Even if he were to delete them, it was too late already.

Everyone knew that he had been comped one and half billion dollars by Avery.

Even if he were to deny this rumor, most of the public would not believe him.

Elliot picked up the office phone on his desk and dialed the legal department.

After handing this issue to the lawyers to deal with, his bodyguard arrived with his phone.

Elliot turned on his phone. Besides Chad and Ben, no one else looked for him. He wondered whether Avery had seen the news or not. He also wondered what her reaction was after seeing the news.

He looked for her contact. He wanted to call her, but he put his phone down.

He did not send out the press release. There was nothing to be sheepish about.

She made him return to his old life, was that not just asking him to become the person that does nothing but work?

In the past, other than at work, he never looked at this type of news. He would never be bothered by them too.

Elliot turned off the news webpage, opened his email inbox, and started to work.

In Bridgedale , when Avery woke up, she saw Tammy's message. Other than asking her when she was returning to the county, she also sent her the news of her and Elliot.

The first reaction she had when she saw the news was that Elliot actually spent one and a half billion dollars to rescue her? Her second reaction was how was she a con-woman? A con woman?

Avery was so stunned she did not come to her senses for quite a long while, sitting in bed.

When Mike came and knocked on her door only did she come to her senses?

"Avery, are you feeling fine today?" Mike stood by the door and said, "If you don't feel well, the children and I won't head back to the Aryadelle today."

When Avery heard that, she immediately got down from the bed.

"Mike, did you see the news back in Aryadelle!" She strode to Mike and asked, "Elliot spent one and a half billion dollars to rescue me this time?!"

Mike scratched his head. "I don't know how much he actually spent. He didn't tell me about it. But, he hired Yves Kant Security...this company is exorbitantly expensive. I'm sure it would cost around there!" Avery's eyes fluttered. She pursed her lips tightly.

Chapter 562

Mike looked at her serious expressions and guessed, "Are you going to pay the money back to him?! We don't have that amount of money!" Mike exclaimed with a gasp.

Avery had a serious expression. She asked him, "How much money do we have right now?" Mike was stumped.

"I have never paid attention to this problem. You're the boss! Don't you know how much money we have?"

Avery has never paid attention to this problem before either.

"Take the children back to Aryadelle first. I'll head back in a few days." Avery changed the topic. "Shouldn't you all head out by now? Don't miss the flight."

Mike understood her too well, so he could not help but persuade her, "Avery, Elliot did not send out the press release. Chad told me that it was sent by his rivals, but it was only killing two birds with one stone. The one and half billion dollars is an astronomical amount to us, but not to Elliot. You don't have to stress yourself over this money. What you need to do now is to pay attention to your health. You have a child in you!"

"I know." Avery calmed down a lot.

"You're having a child for him. Just take this money as child support!" Mike continued.

Avery looked at her two children nearby. "Let's stop talking about this. Stay safe. Text me when you reach Aryadelle."

"Hmm. If you're not back in a week, I'll come over to pick you up," Mike⁶⁸ said.

"We'll talk about it then!" Avery sent them out of the door.

Once they left, Avery returned to the mansion. She returned to her room and changed her clothes before getting the bodyguard to send her to Alpha Technologies.

She wanted to make clear how much money she could take out at that moment. One and half billion dollars was not a small amount. It was not something that she would be able to pay Elliot back under a whim of anger.

When Mike arrived in Aryadelle with the two children, Chad immediately came to the Starry River Villa.

He came over on the basis of making them a meal and pulled Mike over to the kitchen to talk in private.

“Has Avery seen the news?”

Mike said, “Hmm. Tammy must have told her.”

“Oh. Mr. Foster got our lawyers to sue the magazine company,” Chad continued asking, “What was Avery’s reaction after seeing the news?”

“What do you think her reaction would be?” Mike asked rhetorically.

“From what I know about her, I think she would want to pay Mr. Foster back the money,” Chad analyzed, “But I don’t think she would be able to take out that much money for the time being.”

“Hahaha! You got it right! But she doesn’t know how much money she has. She’s in business not to accumulate wealth but to find something for herself to do,” Mike could not help but take a jab when he thought back about how lost Avery looked when he asked her how much money they had.

“She probably founded a company to rebuild the Tate Industries,” Chad corrected him, “But according to the way her company is growing, paying back the one and a half billion dollars is not difficult.”

“Why must she pay back?” Mike and Avery were people in the same boat. Of course, he would side with Avery.

“Elliot forked out the money of his own volition. We didn’t force him to do it.”

Chad was dumbfounded.

“Mr. Foster didn’t ask Avery to pay the money back. Why are you so worked up?”

“Please don’t tell me you’re trying to get in the way here?” Mike glared at him.

“Don’t tell me that Elliot got you to come here?”

Chad raised his hand and swore, “Mr. Foster is not that low! Also, Avery is pregnant with his child. How could he get her to pay him back?”

At eight that evening. The black Rolls-Roice was driving on the busy road.

Elliot was sitting in the backseat, resting with his eyes closed. Suddenly, his phone rang.

He opened his eyes and looked at his screen. It was a message from Avery. He did not read what she sent immediately but looked at the time instead.

It was eight at night in Aryadelle, meaning it was eight in the morning in Bridgedale.

He tapped into her message.

[I’ll pay you back the money, but I don’t have that much with me right now. I’ll pay you back in installments.]

He knew that she would send him a message because of this incident. She had such a strong ego. How could she bear being called a con-woman by the public?

Chapter 563

Elliot’s grip on his phone subconsciously tightened. Their relationship has changed from a broken-up couple to debtor and debtee. Although the relationship was quite ironic, at least they still had a relationship.

Elliot did not reply to Avery. So, what if he did not agree with her? Avery would not listen to him.

After about 15 minutes or so, his phone beeped again. Elliot opened his messages and saw a bank notification.

155 million dollars was just wired to his personal account. The note said repayment.

Elliot looked at the soulless series of numbers. The light in his eyes dimmed gradually.

This was perhaps all the money she could find at that moment.

After Avery wired the money, she looked at her phone in a daze for a while.

Elliot did not reply to her message. Has he not seen it?

Forget about it. She had already sent the message. He would see it sooner or later.

Avery placed her phone in her bag and took it out with her. She contacted the police officer the day before, hoping that the police could investigate who David Grimes met up with before kidnapping Wesley.”

Although David was dead, his men were still alive. The police investigated it according to Avery's request. They questioned a few of David's men and they produced a detailed statement.

Avery was heading there to collect the documents at that moment.

In a blink of an eye, a week has passed. Avery previously said that she would return to Aryadelle in a week, but she did not do so.

After Mike talked to her on the phone, he was feeling extremely down. Chad guessed it correctly. Avery was indeed planning on returning the one and a half-billion dollars to Elliot. Due to not having enough money, she accepted other part-time jobs.

The fact that she was James Hough's last pupil has spread all over Bridgedale. The wealthy hired her for consultation at a high price. Avery needed to earn the money, so she agreed to it. Which was why she could not return to Aryadelle at that moment.

“To earn more money, she’s not caring about her arm injury or the child in her but running around treating others...” Mike was troubled over this, so he called Chad. “I should have guessed that she was this type of person! She never listens to me!”

Chad furrowed his brows. “Why are the two of them so stubborn?”

Mike walked over to the bar and poured himself a glass of wine. “I’m really afraid that she would tire herself out.”

“Why don’t I talk to Mr. Foster and ask him not to take Avery’s money! If not, Avery’s body won’t be able to take it,” Chad said.

Mike said, “I’m afraid that it would be pointless even if you talk to him.”.

“I still have to try! If we let the two of them continue this way, how long is this stand-off going to last?” Chad said before hanging up.

He mustered up the courage and knocked on the President’s office’s door.

Elliot was talking to Shaun. When he saw Chad suddenly entering, he furrowed his brows.

“Mr. Foster, I have an important matter to talk to you about.” Chad walked to Elliot.

Shaun saw what was going on and left knowingly.

There was a rage in Elliot’s eyes. “You’re getting more and more brazen!”

Chad lowered his head. “Mike was telling me just now that because Avery is trying to return the money to you as soon as possible, she has taken on a lot of private engagements. She has not fully recovered yet, on top of that she is still pregnant. There will definitely be problems if she continues exhausting herself. Why don’t you stop asking her to pay back?”

When Elliot heard what Chad said, his heart constricted tightly! His face turned blue!

Chapter 564

Since when did he force Avery to return the money? It was her! She was the one that forced herself to return the money to him!

“Do you think I asked her for the money?” When Elliot said that, his voice was trembling a little.

Chad shook his head furiously. “I know that you would never ask her for the money, but you can ask her to stop paying you back.”

“Do you think she will listen to me?” Elliot said sarcastically, “Do you think she will listen to me!”

Chad was stunned.

“Did Mike get you to come and say these to me?” Elliot swallowed. He furrowed his brow see tighter.

Chad shook his head. “He knows that it would be pointless telling you this. I only feel that... even if it's pointless telling you. At least you took a stand. If she still doesn't listen to you, whatever happens next, at least no one would blame you.”

“I understand. Please leave.”

Elliot was not worried if he was blamed. He was only worried that something might happen to her health.

After Chad left, Elliot picked up his phone and dialed Avery. The call was connected but no one picked up. After the system automatically hung up, Elliot placed his phone⁶⁸ down.

He felt as if he was a puppet attached to strings and Avery was controlling the strings in her hand.

He was going crazy because of her!

He picked up his coffee mug and realized that the mug was empty. He called his secretary on the office phone and a moment later the secretary knocked on the door and entered.

It was right at this moment when his phone on the desk rang.

He picked his phone up and when he saw Avery's name on the screen, his gaze darkened. He immediately picked up the call. "Avery, what the hell are you doing? What the hell do you want!"

His roars scared his secretary half to death. The secretary remained in the same spot in a daze!

On the other end of the line, Avery was stunned too.

She just came out from the washroom and was about to go to bed. She noticed a missed call from him, so she dialed him back. She never thought that he would bark at her angrily.

"What happened to me?" Avery sat down by the bed, baffled. She muttered, "Elliot, what the hell are you mad about?"

"I'm mad? Who is the mad one here?" Elliot stood by the window, looking at the bustling city. He asked, "Who told you to take on random jobs? Was it me? Did I force you to return the money to me?"

Avery listened to the bombardment of his questions and roughly understood why he was angry.

"I did not take on random jobs."

"You're lying!" Elliot barked, "Have your injuries healed? Other than recuperating, who told you to do other things? Your disregard for everything and desperation to earn money. Have you ever thought about how I felt!"

The secretary was bewildered! Never have the secretary seen Elliot so mad!

In everyone's eyes, Elliot was a logical person. He was so logical he felt inhumane at times.

However, at that moment, he has become such an emotional man!

Facing Elliot's reprimands, Avery breathed heavier before slowly calming down. "I did indeed accept a surgical operation because of money. The work is still acceptable with my body condition. This is not some random job. Also, it's late. I want to rest."

Avery finished talking but did not immediately hang up the call. She wanted to see what Elliot's reaction was. However, Elliot did not react at all. After a moment of silence, Avery hung up the phone.

It must have been Mike who told them in exaggeration that she was accepting private engagements. If not, Elliot would not have been so angry.

Avery turned off the lights and lay down. She closed her eyes.

She has a clear conscience about what she has done. She owed him so much money. She had to find a way to earn that money to pay him back. Elliot returned to his office chair and sat down.

Chapter 565

Elliot picked up the cup of hot coffee on his desk and took a sip. The coffee was bitter, just like his current mood.

Avery had always been that way, doing things selfishly. She never considered how he felt. Even if they split up, she still had a way to torture him.

At the Central University's elite class.

During lunch, a boy brought his lunch and walked over to Hayden.

"Hayden, the woman that conned Elliot Foster of one and a half billion years on the news is your mother, right!" The boy that said that to Hayden was called Daniel because he was fat, so everyone called him Fat Dan.

“My mother is not a con-woman!” Hayden said angrily.

“I know. If your mother was a con-woman, Elliot Foster would have made things difficult for your mother,” Fat Dan asked curiously, “Your mother should be fine right now, right? She’s at home, right?”

“My mother is abroad.”

Fat Dan adjusted his glasses and looked at Hayden intensely. “Oh... why is she not returning?”

Hayden furrowed his brows.

Fat Dan said, “Hayden, don’t be angry! I didn’t call your mother a conwoman. I’m only curious. Will Elliot ask your mother back for the money? Do you have enough money to pay him back? If your mother doesn’t pay him back, can you and your sister still go to school?”

Hayden picked his lunch box up and was about to leave.

“Hayden, don’t leave! I didn’t call your mother a con-woman...” Fat Dan immediately chased after him. “Hayden, even if your mother is a con-woman, I won’t hate you! We are still friends!”

Hayden left quickly. He did not want to deal with Fat Dan anymore.

In the evening, the bodyguard fetched Hayden home. Hayden was clearly unhappy that day.

When Mike returned, the bodyguard told Hayden about the incident. Mike immediately went to look for Hayden.

“Big H, was there a conflict with your classmates at school today?”

Mike bent down and patiently said, “I promised your Mommy to take good care of you and Layla. I won’t let you feel aggrieved. If you won’t tell me, I’ll call your Mommy and tell her.”

Hayden initially pursed his lips and did not want to tell Mike, but he also did not want Mike to call Avery.

“Fat Dan called Mommy a con-woman.”

“Damn it!” Mike said angrily, “Your Mommy is not a con-woman! Elliot forked out that money willingly. Also, after your Mommy found out about this, she is already trying to find ways to pay him back. I’ll send you to school tomorrow and have a chat with your teacher. I’ll get your teacher to talk to Fat Dan.”

Hayden looked up. “Mommy is going to return one and a half billion dollars to Elliot?”

Mike said, “Yes! I told her not to pay him back, but she refuses to listen to me. Elliot did not even ask her for the money. That amount of money might not be a small number, but it would not affect Elliot in any way either.”

Hayden lowered his gaze. His eyes sparkled.

“Hey brat, are you thinking like your Mommy, thinking that you should return the money?” Mike saw through Hayden.

“Your Mommy gave birth to you and Layla, now she’s pregnant with another child. Don’t you think she needs Elliot’s child support?”

Hayden said, “We don’t acknowledge him as our father, so we don’t need his child support!”

Mike got up and crossed his hands on his waist. “I just don’t want your Mommy to be so stressed out. Do you know how much one and a half billion dollars is?”

Hayden strode over to his room. Mike followed after him. “We’re about to have a meal, where are you going?”

Hayden replied, “I’m going to look at the price of Beta Currency.”

Mike was baffled. “You bought Beta Currency? Since when? Why are you on this? Your job right now is to learn and have an education. Investment and what not is inappropriate for you

Hayden said, "I blackmailed it from Zoe."

Mike's eyes brightened.

After entering his room, Hayden opened his computer and logged into his account, and looked at the latest price of the Beta Currency.

How exciting! How exciting!

In less than a yes, the price of Beta Currency has risen from 1,500 dollars to 7,500 dollars!

Back then, he asked Zoe for 2,000 Beta Currencies. That virtual currency was worth 15 million at that moment!

Chapter 566

Both of them were stunned.

"Big H...don't sell these coins just yet! I think their value will go even higher,"

Mike gasped and reminded Hayden.

"Okay."

"Don't tell your mom about this yet," Mike continued, "she might have a heart attack if she finds out about this."

"I will pass you the money and you can give it to her."

"Sure... Let's go eat first!" Mike lifted Hayden off his feet. In his mind, Hayden towered over him in terms of what he had accomplished.

Meanwhile, in Bridgedale.

Avery had just finished the surgery for her client's father and the client invited her for a meal in a hotel.

"Doctor Tate, do you know Zoe Sanford?"

Avery's heart sank, but did not let it show. "Not really. Why?"

"This person has been asking about you through a friend of mine. I wonder where she caught news of the deal between us. Why would she be gathering intel on you if you two don't even know each other?"

"What did your friend say?" Avery asked.

"I told my friend not to say anything. I haven't told many people about getting you to perform surgery on my father to begin with, I'm not sure how she managed to find out about this."

"Well, if she managed to find your friend, it means she already knows."

"Yeah! But this shouldn't affect your life in any way, right? I heard that you are running a business in Aryadelle."

"No effect at all."

"That's good to hear. I've already had my assistant transfer the remaining balance to you," the client said with a smile, "you charge high, but I think it's worth every penny. Why haven't you even done any marketing on yourself, Doctor Tate? I wouldn't have known that you studied under Professor Hough had it not been for the kidnapping incident."

"I have to return to Aryadelle in order to fulfill the dying wish of a senior."

"I see. Can I come to seek your help in the future when I need to?"

"It depends on whether I have the time for it, since I will be going back to Aryadelle in a few days' time."

"What a shame, I was going to introduce a few other clients to you! I guess I will have to wait until your next visit."

"Yeah."

Avery had earned 780000 dollars from the surgery, and the pay was decided by the client, not her.

She needed the money and also knew that it was an acceptable amount if the client himself proposed it, so she did not reject the offer.

It took a little over a week to prepare for the surgery and the wound on her arm was not longer as painful.

It had been two months since she was separated from her children and she missed them.

After exiting the hotel, she made a reservation for the pregnancy check-up for the next day.

She was four months into the pregnancy, so she would like to undergo a check-up before returning to Aryadelle.

Upon arriving home, Avery glanced at the calendar and researched on flights.

For some reason, she kept thinking of Elliot whenever she thought about going back

Elliot had stopped contacting her since his outburst the last time he called.

She couldn't help but feel upset whenever she thought back to the words he said.

He said that she didn't care how he felt, but how could he make such an accusation so easily? Was it only right if she accepted 1400 million?

She didn't have the courage to accept the money, considering the nature of their relationship.

After taking a shower, she got into bed feeling exhausted. She had an early appointment the next morning for the check-up, so she couldn't stay up late.

The next day, the bodyguard sent her off to the hospital.

She went to the doctor she made the reservation with and after describing her condition to the doctor, the doctor told her to lay down on the bed. "Is your baby sixteen weeks old?" The doctor ran the ultrasound sensor across her abdomen.

“Yes,” Avery said.

“Indeed, your baby is slightly under-developed,” the doctor said after a pause, “you mentioned that it was two-weeks behind when you did your check-up two weeks ago?”

“Yes. What now?” Avery’s heart sank as he awaited the doctor’s judgment. If the baby had stopped developing, there was nothing she could do even if she wanted to keep it and she was prepared for the worst.

“Can you show me the ultrasound report from the last check-up?” The doctor set the ultrasound sensor down and passed her a piece of tissue paper. She accepted and took out the ultrasound report from her purse and passed it to the doctor after wiping her belly clean.

After inspecting the report from the time before, the doctor said, “though your baby is not developing all that well, it is still growing in comparison to the last time. If you want to keep this baby, you need to take good rest and make sure to take enough nutrition. Let’s observe the situation for now.”

Avery’s heart calmed at the doctor’s advice.

The doctor printed the ultrasound report and handed it to her. “Have you done the screening test for Down syndrome?”

Avery shook her head.

“You can do it now,” the doctor deadpanned, “have you eaten breakfast today? If not, you can proceed with the test today!”

The screening test for Down syndrome was to check if the embryo had trisomy 21 or had an inherent defect in its nervous system. If it was diagnosed with Down syndrome, the child will be born with delayed growth and intellectual disability, along with difficulties in organ development or even deformity.

Avery knew that she could go through the test, but she didn't have the courage to.

'What should I do if the test suggests that something is wrong with the baby?'

She thought in fear.

Though she once said that she would give birth to it even if the baby was not healthy, facing up to the reality still required a tremendous amount of courage.

"Miss. Tate, your child is slightly under-developed, so it is crucial that you do the test," the doctor noticed her hesitation and encouraged, "if the baby is not healthy, we need to terminate the pregnancy. This is the best choice for you and the child."

"The best choice..." Avery mumbled.

"Yes. There is no cure for Down syndrome in the present. Miss. Tate, I know that you are a skilled neurosurgeon, but still, there is nothing you can do about this, right? If you can't guarantee your child a normal life, it is best to stop the pain during the pregnancy."

The doctor's words helped Avery regain her composure.

Back when she argued with Elliot over matters concerning the baby, she did so mainly under the influence of emotions. She blamed Elliot for neglecting the health of the baby and how cold his attitude was towards the child; that was the reason why she told Elliot that she would give birth to the baby even if something was wrong with it.

"Write me a referral letter, then!" She said.

The doctor complied and handed it to her. "I wish both you and your baby good luck."

"Thank you." She accepted the letter and started her way towards the clinical laboratory. There were a lot of patients in the clinical laboratory and she had to remain in line for a while before it was her turn.

After taking her blood, the doctor informed her that the results would be out in a week's time.

"Will there be an electronic copy of the results?"

"Yes. We will send it directly to your phone."

"Sure, thank you."

After exiting the hospital, Avery bought her ticket for the flight back to Aryadelle. She instinctively wanted to send her flight details to Mike, but hesitated right before sending the message.

Mike couldn't control his mouth and would tell Chad everything, while Chad was loyal to Elliot.

After some thoughts, she deleted the message and decided that she didn't need to tell Mike everything from now on.

The next day, Avery stepped out of the exit of the airport in the capital of Aryadelle with her luggage in hand.

She had become an infamous scammer who tricked Elliot into giving her 1400 million, so she wore a cap along with a face mask to cover her face entirely. She wore an oversized t-shirt to cover her belly, a checker long shirt and a pair of sneakers.

She caught a taxi after exiting the airport and told the driver the address of her mansion. As the car drove off, she took out her phone to scroll through the contact list, before making a call to a certain number...

Chapter 568

"I'm back. When are you free? Let's meet up," Avery said once the line was connected.

The other person in the line sounded surprised. "Why do we need to meet?"

"I thought you care about me. You even went to Bridgedale to ask around about me, after all," Avery said sarcastically, "since you care so much about me, I decided to contact you first once I'm back.

Zoe sneered. "Get over yourself. I went to Bridgedale to see my relatives. I only asked about you because I thought you have to be really ill to not come back, when both of your kids have returned to Aryadelle."

"And you say that you don't care," Avery said casually, "how would you know that my kids are back if you don't care about me? It's not like my kids showed up in front of you, right?"

Zoe was rendered speechless.

"Let's meet this afternoon, and I'll show you how well I've recovered," Avery proposed.

"I don't care about how well you've recovered... But if you want to meet with me so badly, then let's meet!" Zoeof drawled.

"Sure. You can decide where. That way, you won't get to say that I'm bullying you," Avery teased.

Zoe could sense something odd in Avery's tone and felt that had asked to meet with her with bad intentions; but since she had asked, Zoe thought that she couldn't hide like a68 coward.

After hanging up, she went home to change into a gorgeous outfit and put her makeup on carefully. She had lost to Avery in terms of love and she had to admit defeat no matter how reluctant she was; therefore, she couldn't lose to Avery on any other aspect again.

At three in the afternoon, Zoe arrived at the restaurant where they were supposed to meet.

The restaurant was located near Wonder Technologies, and Zoe intended to tell Wanda about this after meeting with Avery.

Avery arrived ten minutes late due to traffic.

“Avery, can you be on time next time you ask someone out?” Zoe scowled and complained.

Avery sat down across her, before casually picking up the menu and ordering a glass of fruit juice.

“Zoe, why did you go to David Grimes when Wesley was abducted?” Avery gazed up and stared coldly at Zoe.

Her words struck Zoe like a bomb to the heart.

“No – Nothing! He came to me asking if I can treat his daughter and I said no,” Zoe explained in panic, “nothing happened after that.”

“Are you sure that you haven’t told him anything with that big mouth of yours?” Avery took out a piece of paper from her purse and showed it to Zoe.

“What’s with this transaction record, then? If you didn’t treat his daughter, why would he pay you? For your ‘beauty’?”

Zoe’s heart sank. She had never imagined that Avery would be able to find this, and Avery’s confrontation had exposed her.

“I...I was slightly drunk and might have told him something... Oh, I remember now. I told him that Professor Hough had one last pupil and Wesley might know who that is... That’s all that I’ve told him and nothing else,” Zoe raised her voice as her face began to flush.

“I never mention your name, Avery, don’t act like I’ve betrayed you or something.”

After that, she picked up her glass and sipped on the water guiltily.

“So you are saying that Wesley betrayed me?” Avery gritted out, “David Grimes is dead now, so there is no point to discuss this. I came to meet with you today to demand that you return every last penny you received from Elliot.”

Chapter 569

“???” Zoe almost spit out the water she had just drank.

‘What does she mean by returning every last penny? Once Elliot gave me the money, it’s mine! Why should I return it?’ She thought.

“Avery, I know that you are in desperate need to pay Elliot back and you need the money for that,” Zoe muttered nervously, “but that’s no reason for you to come to me for money! I’ve put in so much effort and time to treat Shea...”

“But you didn’t perform those surgeries on Shea,” Avery interrupted calmly, “I am only asking you to spit the 300 million you received out and not the interest. Consider the interest the compensation for your hard-work!”

The corner of Zoe’s lips twitched as she was rendered speechless.

‘How ridiculous! Avery is being ridiculous!’ She thought.

“Zoe, has no one ever told you that there’s no such thing as a free lunch?”

Avery said sarcastically, “you sure are brave, though, to be daring enough to fill Elliot and accept his money as payment. Aren’t you afraid for your life?”

Zoe widened her eyes in rage. “Avery Tate, don’t think that you can just run your mouth in front of me just because you are Profession Hough’s last pupil!

This is the modern age when proof means everything! Do you think you can just erase all my effort with just a few words?”

“Oh, your effort... Your effort of role-playing, you mean?” Avery said.

Just then, the waiter came back with her juice and she took a sip to soothe her throat.

Zoe clenched her fists and glared viciously at her. "Give me proof, Avery! Without proof, what you say won't matter! Don't think that you can get away with being this unreasonable simply because Elliot is in love with you! I won't comply!"

Avery took a few sips of her juice, before slowly taking out her phone.

"What are you doing? Are you calling Elliot?!" Zoe's voice trembled slightly as she continued, "it won't help you to call him! I have plenty of witnesses at the time!"

"If that's the case, why are you so nervous?" Avery lifted an eyebrow and glanced at her in contempt. "Do you happen to know that I have proof?"

"You have proof?!" Zoe squeaked as she felt as though she was being strangled.

"I wouldn't have come to you asking for money if I didn't have the proof, would I? Should I assume that you would agree out of the kindness in your heart? Or should I have begged, instead?" Avery opened a video and handed her phone to Zoe.

"This is the video of Shea's first surgery. Though the head surgeon only showed her eyes, I'm pretty sure Elliot would be able to recognize her right away."

Zoe's blood ran cold. She felt short of breath as she watched the video from Avery's phone.

'That's Avery! Avery was the kind person who did Shea's surgeries!' She thought.

Though Zoe had guessed that Avery was behind it, she had never imagined that Avery would record herself.

She had originally thought that Avery was avoiding Elliot in order to keep her children to herself and that she had no intention of taking his money. Zoe realized that she was wrong and Avery was merely waiting for the right timing.

“Don’t you care if Elliot finds out that Layla and Hayden are his children anymore?” Zoe forced a hideous smile.

Avery shrugged. “I need money right now, and what you said is nothing compared to 300 million. Besides, he probably already knew.”

All strength was instantly drained from Zoe. She slumped on her chair as fear filled her eyes.

“Zoe, transfer 300 million into my account within three days, or I’ll send Elliot this video and have him ask for the money back himself,” Avery said, before giving Zoe a smile. “I’m sure you know what kind of man Elliot is and his way is definitely going to be less gentle than mine.

Chapter 570

Meanwhile, in Wonder Technologies.

Zoe told Wanda everything in tears and Wanda’s expression darkened.

“I don’t have that much money for you to take!” Wanda said in a cold expression, “the money has been spent and you can go ask the finance department if you don’t believe me! Go see for yourself if we still have 300 million lying around!”

Zoe gasped. “Of course you would say that you don’t have it when it’s not your life on the line here, Wanda! What would you have done if you were me?”

Wanda turned against her and said, “I’m not as foolish as you are! You can’t even keep the money you earn! If you are not capable of keeping it, you should have taken that 300 million and run somewhere far-off!”

“That’s not what you said when you begged me to invest in your company!”

Zoe was burning in rage.

Avery had only given her three days. She had to gather 300 million within three days because the last thing she wanted was for Elliot to find out about the truth. If he did, it would not be as simple as returning the money.

“What’s the point of saying this now?! I would have given you your money back by now if I have that much money in hand! Do you think that I’m trying to give you a hard time on purpose?” Wanda studied Zoe’s flushed face and she could sense that Zoe was spinning out of control; continuing to argue with her would only cause of trouble.

“Zoe, why don’t you ask your boyfriend to see how much he has? I will call finance again to see how much the company can spare... Okay?” Wanda’s tone softened.

Zoe’s eyes were filled with tears. “Cole is useless! I might as well go earn the money myself instead of counting on him! Call finance now!”

Wanda took a deep breath and picked up her phone to call the internal line of the finance department. The line was connected right away and she asked,

“how much can you spare on your end?”

“How much do you need, Madam Tate?”

Wanda glanced at Zoe and muttered, “300 million!”

“What...? Madam Tate, we don’t have that much! There are only a little over a hundred and fifty hundred thousand in the safe...”

“Alright, I get it.” With that, she hung up.

“Wanda Tate, do you take me for a fool?” Zoe had taken out a dagger from her purse while Wanda was on the phone and pressed the blade against her neck.

Wanda froze, not daring to move. "Zoe! Put the knife down! I'll give you money! I will give it to you! Lower the knife first!"

"No way! I will kill you right now if you don't transfer the money to my account right away! Wanda Tate, I'm serious! Elliot is going to come for my life if you don't give me back my money! I don't have a choice! I don't have a choice!"

Zoe blurted out frantically as tears scrolled down her face.

"I shouldn't have come back here! My life wouldn't have been ruined if I hadn't come back!"

Zoe's hand trembled and the tip of the dagger cut into Wanda's skin.

Crimson blood was spilled, startling Zoe and she started screaming, "Wanda Tate! The money! Give me my money now! Otherwise, you are going to die! You are bleeding from your neck! There's so much blood!"

Wanda felt it, too, and was scared out of her mind.

One hour later, Zoe escaped from Wonder Technologies hastily and went into her car, before driving away.

As she was driving, she slowly began to regain her composure.

She had gotten her money back and it was in her account now, which was to be transferred to Avery right away.

She had lost everyone and apart from Elliot and Avery, there was still another person responsible for her loss.

Chapter 571

Her eyes reddened as she went to call a certain number that she had not contacted in a while.

As soon as she made the call, she heard a sweet voice coming from the other end of the line.

“Have you dialed the wrong number, Doctor Sanford? It’s been so, so long since you last contacted me and here I thought that you have completely forgotten about me! Hahaha!”

Chelsea’s smug laughter came from the speaker of the phone.

At the very beginning, it was Chelsea who brought Zoe back from Bridgedale;

Chelsea was also the one who told her that she would gain so much more if she listened to Chelsea, but she didn’t listen.

Once she obtained the leverage against Elliot, she cast Chelsea aside immediately.

“What are you laughing at, Chelsea?!”

“I’m laughing at you, of course! You are out of the game now.” Chelsea’s tone was cheerful.

“I can destroy you as easily as squishing an ant right now, but that’s beneath me and I don’t want to get filth on my hands.”

“Really?” Zoe mumbled, “and what have you gotten so far? Elliot belongs to Avery, not you!”

“Hahaha! Elliot doesn’t belong to me, but the person next to him right now is not you nor Avery,” Chelsea drawled, “it’s me. It’s me, Chelsea! I have been patient for over a year; I watched you build yourself up and fall apart in the end... I knew that you would end up like this!”

“Oh? Why don’t you predict what’s going to happen to Avery in the future, then?” Zoe asked sincerely.

“Hahaha! She will end up just like you! Don’t you think that it’s going to make a difference just because she has a few kids!” Chelsea was certain of her victory.

“Elliot will never settle down for anyone and I am the only one who can give him the freedom heza wants.”

After the call, Zoe’s heart was filled with disgust. She and Avery had fought one another so hard that they forgot there was someone lurking behind them.

Chelsea was far too talented in scheming that it was almost chilling. Zoe knew that even if she was to team up with Avery, they would be no match to Chelsea.

Avery went home after meeting with Zoe and called Tammy.

“Avery, you are finally back! Are you home now? I’ll go find you! I heard that you took a bullet and wanted to go find you in Bridgedale but Jun said I would only hinder your recovery,” Tammy said in excitement.

“I’ve already recovered,” Avery relaxed on the couch and said, “I haven’t even told Mike that I’m back yet! You are the first one I thought of telling.”

“Wow, I’m so touched by that! I am heading over right now! There’s a piece of gossip I need to tell you in person! Wait for me!” Tammy said, before hanging up.

Half an hour later, Tammy arrived with a big pile of gifts in her hands.

“Why do you always have to bring so many things over, Tammy? Don’t you get tired?” Avery sighed.

“Have you forgotten that my family runs supermarkets?” Tammy set the gifts down and held Avery’s hands to scan her up and down.

“You lost weight! Is the baby okay? I was so worried about you and the baby.”

“Everything is fine with us.” Avery beamed at her and changed the subject by asking, “you told me that there’s a piece of gossip you want to share with me, what’s that about?”

A troubled expression appeared on Tammy’s face.

“I’m worried that you will get upset if I tell you this...but I can’t bear not being able to talk about it either.”

“Then spill! I won’t get upset,” Avery promised, “I have really high tolerance now after the close-death experience.”

“It’s about that jerk Elliot! He is messing around with Chelsea again.” Tammy snorted and continued, “old habits die hard, I guess!”

The smile on Avery’s face froze.

“Don’t get upset, Avery! It’s not worth it for that jerk!” Tammy comforted her.

Avery was about to say something to cover up her emotions, when the phone on the table rang. She immediately picked up the phone.

Chapter 572

It was a notification from the bank informing her that she had received a transaction of 300 million in her account.

“Avery, I heard that you were the one who broke up with him this time. I’m guessing that he is doing this now in spite of you,” Tammy guessed.

Avery was in a good mood for getting 300 million so easily.

“What he wants to do is up to him.” She took out a banana from the fruit basket, peeled it and handed it to Tammy.

Tammy was not happy about it. “That Chelsea really is everywhere! She’s stayed quiet for over a year and I almost forgot that she is still working in Sterling Group. She’s definitely patient.”

Avery had a deep impression on Chelsea even though they hadn’t met for a longer while.

“Chelsea’s love for Elliot surpasses my love for him,” Avery drawled, “Elliot doesn't like kids and so to reassure him, she went and got rid of her own uterus." Tammy gaped.

"Perhaps Elliot got back together with her because he finally realized that finding someone who loves him most is the correct choice." Avery felt relieved.

"That's good. Life is getting back on track again."

When she first got to know Elliot, Chelsea had already been by his side.

"What about your kids, then? I wouldn't have argued otherwise if it wasn't for the kids." Tammy couldn't remain as calm as Avery did.

"You know that Layla has always wanted a father."

"Then you should also know that Hayden doesn't want a one."

"What about the one you are carrying right now?" Tammy argued.

"This one might not even be healthy enough to be born into this world."

Avery picked up the glass from the table and took a sip of water. "Tammy, a relationship is between two people and it has nothing to do with anything else. If he's chosen to get back together with Chelsea, we should just respect that."

"He didn't say that he's getting back together with Chelsea. He just took her out for dinner again..." Tammy muttered.

"You don't have to keep an eye on him," Avery said calmly, "there are plenty of things to enjoy apart from men."

"Well, that's true. So are you really going to pay him 1400 million back?"

"That's so much money ... how are you going to pay?" Tammy said gloomily, "I tried asking my dad if he has that much money and he said that I'm daydreaming."

"Haha! I thought that I had a decent amount of money as well but it's not after I checked that I realized it's not that easy to earn money.”

Avery transferred the 300 million in her account to Elliot's as they spoke, and after chatting for a while, they went to Central University to pick Hayden up.

When Hayden saw his mother, he was so excited that his eyes reddened. He went to grab her hands and asked, “when did you come back, Mom?”

“I just arrived today. I didn't inform you guys ahead of time because I wanted to surprise you.”

A rare smile appeared on Hayden's face.

“I've finally seen you smiling, Hayden. You look so adorable when you smile.

You should do it more often, otherwise the girls will all be too scared to play with you!” Tammy teased.

The smile on Hayden's face instantly disappeared.

“Hahaha! You are no fun.” Tammy pulled the car door open.

“Get in!”

Half an hour later, the car drove into the yard of the mansion.

As soon as Avery got out, she saw Mike with Layla in his arms stepping out alongside Chad.

Dinner started once everyone was inside the house.

Avery's phone screen lit up out of a sudden and she unlocked it to find a notification from the bank

The money she had transferred to Elliot had been returned in exact amount due to an error.,

‘Why would there be an error?’ She thought, ‘I managed to transfer money to him a few days ago.’

“Chad, did Elliot deactivate his account?” Avery looked up at Chad.

Chad was taken by surprise and said, “he didn’t tell me to do anything like that so I’m not sure. Are you having issues transferring money to his account?”

Avery nodded.

“I’ll go ask about it when I go to work tomorrow,” Chad said awkwardly, “maybe he doesn’t want to take your money anymore!” “That’s funny. Does he intend on keeping Avery on his debt?”

Tammy directed her frustration towards Chad and questioned sharply, “what exactly is his relationship with Chelsea? Jun said that Elliot brought Chelsea along the last time they ate together.”

Chad was starting to sweat. “... They are colleagues, I guess! He’s known Chelsea for years so he would sometimes take her out for meals.”

“Who are you trying to fool? Jun said that Chelsea was putting food on Elliot’s plate and Elliot accepted it... Is that what colleagues do in your company?”

“Tammy Lynch, it’s really not necessary for you to say all these things in front of Avery and heróf children.”

“Are you embarrassed, too?” Tammy had always been hot-tempered and straight-forward.

“What does that have to do with me being embarrassed? Avery is the one who wanted to break up and now that they broke up, my boss has every right to be with anyone he68 wants...”

“You’ve finally admitted that he is with Chelsea.” Tammy sneered.

“Why exactly are you venting your anger on me? Wasn’t Avery the one who told him to go 9 back to his life?” Chad was agitated and retorted, “if Avery is jealous right now, then I can only say that it’s all her own fault!”

Tammy was so angry that her lips began to tremble.

“Chad Rayner! You are f*cking out of line! You better look around and see whose house you are in right now!” Mike roared.

Chad stood up abruptly from his chair and said, “Sorry! I will leave!”

The atmosphere in the dining room was chillingly awkward after Chad was gone.

“I’m sorry, Avery,” Tammy muttered guiltily, “it’s my fault...”

“I shouldn’t have brought him here for dinner,” Mike said.

Avery finished the food on her plate and set her cutleries down. “Chad isn’t wrong, and neither are you. It’s my own issue.”

With that, she stood up and walked out of the dining room.

She had been trying to strike a balance in everything, but there had never been such a way. Love to her was two people growing together, not one dragging the other down. Even if she hadn’t broken up with Elliot, she would still try to pay back the money she owed him; besides, she did not regret her decision.

The stress that loomed over her was too heavy when she needed to take care of her debt along with the baby in her belly.

Once she was back in her room, she closed the door. After taking some time to regain her composure, she called Elliot.

“Elliot, did you deactivate your bank account?”

“How much have you gathered to pay me back this time?” He asked in an emotionless voice.

She ignored his sarcasm and retorted, “would you rather I pay you back in cash?!”

“Contact Chelsea.” He seemed to have no intention of arguing with her and continued in a calm tone, “contact her directly to pay your debt from now on.”

Avery pursed her lips as her mind went blank.

“Are you happy now, Avery?” He asked coldly, “Chelsea is obedient, understanding, and never pisses me off. I only need to indulge in what she gives me when I’m with her; I don’t have to guess what she’s thinking all the time like a fool...”

Avery listened to his bragging and felt her stomach turning in response.

“Ugh!” Elliot’s voice stopped on the other end of the line, and his expression immediately darkened.

Chapter 574

After two seconds of silence, he could no longer control himself and called out to her, “Avery!”

His voice was filled with unconcealable concern for her.

She gagged a few times and finally the nausea had passed.

Elliot regained his composure and muttered in a hoarse voice, “Avery, go lay down on the bed if you don’t feel well.”

Enraged by what he had said, she retorted, “I don’t need your pity!”

He didn’t need to tell her how great Chelsea was.

“I pity our child!” He said sternly as he tightened his grip on the phone.

“Why so?” She questioned sarcastically, “because I haven’t got rid of it?!”

“Avery Tate, do you really have to be so aggressive?!”

Elliot couldn’t help but wonder if he really was the villain like she said he was.

He had been overjoyed about their child and looked forward to it coming into the world; and when the accident happened, he had been deeply hurt as well.

“Who started it first?” Avery sat by the bed, her eyes reddening as her fingers dug into the sheets. "Chelsea is obedient and understanding... Repeat everything you just said!"

Elliot moved his lips but couldn't utter a word.

"Don't disgust me ever again!" She said sternly, before hanging up.

Elliot closed his eyes in despair.

He had been too reckless. He was blinded by rage and had forgotten that she was still pregnant with his child.

'How could I say something like that to her?'

"Elliot, let's go eat!" Chelsea opened the door to his office and reminded him that it was time to get off work.

He looked over at Chelsea. For the past year, Chelsea had been invisible and had never even spoken to him unnecessarily; it wasn't until recently that she appeared before him out of the blue.

"You should go ahead!" He said, "I am heading home directly."

Chelsea nodded. "You don't look so well, so don't work overtime for too long."

With that, she turned and left. Elliot picked up his phone to locate Chad's number, before making a call. "Chad, are you at Avery's right now?"

Chad parked his car by the road and said, "no, I got into a fight with them.

Everything was fine at dinner and then Tammy mentioned things between you and Chelsea out of the blue. I couldn't help but argue. I guess I was out of line, but I've already left Starry River."

Elliot massaged the bridge of his nose and said, "watch your tongue in front of Avery from now on. She's pregnant."

"Yeah, I regretted it as soon as I left her mansion. I will apologize to her another day," Chad said guiltily.

The next morning, Wesley went to visit Avery.

The two couldn't help but give each other a hug.

"Avery, forget what my mom said to you before. She is old now and is quite stubborn." Wesley had been waiting the entire time for Avery to come back so he could explain everything to her.

"I am doing fine now, how about you? How's the injury?"

"I've recovered long ago." Avery led Wesley towards the couch to take a seat and poured him a glass of warm water.

"Wesley, you can't act so recklessly the next time something like that happens."

"It won't happen again. You, on the other hand, need to watch out now that your identity is out in the open," he reminded her.

"Yeah. Your hand..." She sat down next to him and lifted his hand.

"It's okay. There's no effect on my life." Wesley showed her his wound and said, "Avery, Elliot has asked me to be Shea's teacher." She looked at him in surprise at the words.

Chapter 575

"I accepted the offer because I feel relaxed whenever I'm with Shea and I love it," he continued, "Elliot then gave my parents a tremendous amount of money in secret."

Avery's lips curled into a smile. "You should take the money if he insists."

Wesley shook his head. "I told my parents to donate the money. I don't like the feeling of being a charity case. It makes me look pitiable, but I've never considered myself that way."

"Maybe he doesn't mean it like that Wesley."

Wesley looked over with gentle eyes and responded in a calm tone, "I know he meant well. Avery, if you can say all these things to me, why couldn't you "I accepted the offer because I feel relaxed whenever I'm with Shea and I Wesley looked over with gentle eyes and responded in a calm tone, "I know he meant well. Avery, if you can say all these things to me, why couldn't you." think the same way?"

She blushed slightly. "Can't I?"

"It's not wise for you to break up with Elliot. You are pregnant and you need someone to take care of you." Wesley studied her face and deadpanned, "after what happened, can you not tell how he feels about you?"

Avery lowered her gaze as her heart grew heavier.

"You are gentle and reasonable in front of everyone else; you only become rude and arrogant whenever you are with him. He's spoiled you."

"Wesley, how can you say that about me?" Avery felt a bit misunderstood.

Wesley's tone softened and said, "it just pains me to watch you raise three kids on your own."

"Hayden and Layla have grown up and they don't worry me," she said, "you probably think that Elliot acts as mature to me as he does in front of everyone else, don't you? He talked about Chelsea yesterday on purpose to piss me off. He is ridiculous and childish, and I might as well depend on myself instead of hoping that he can raise children."

Wesley had no experience in this regard and was rendered speechless.

That afternoon, Avery received a call from Chelsea.

Elliot had told her to contact Chelsea to pay him back the night before.

However, Avery didn't feel comfortable about it and did not reach out to Chelsea, but to her surprise, Chelsea took the initiative to call her.

"Avery, you can come to me directly from now on to pay your debt to Elliot," Chelsea said in a professional tone, "Elliot is planning on setting up a foundation and all the money you return will be donated to the cause. I am in charge of the foundation's operation."

Avery scowled at Chelsea's words and said, "send me the account details for that foundation of yours, then."

"The foundation is not set up yet. I will notify you when it is officially established," Chelsea said.

"Okay."

"If you don't mind me asking, Avery, is there something wrong with your baby?" Chelsea asked in an innocent tone.

Like a cat when its tail had been stepped on, Avery instantly became defensive. "Is that what he told you?"

"No. He set up this foundation to help children with intellectual disability. Truth is, he really hates kids, and yet he wants to set up a foundation specifically for children with intellectual disability, so I am guessing that it could be because your baby...suffers from the same issue."

Avery's blood ran cold. From Chelsea's tone, she knew that she was being mocked.

That night, Avery couldn't fall asleep. She laid on bed staring at the canopy as countless memories flashed by before her eyes.

Everything felt as though it had only happened yesterday, when in reality, everything had changed. For the sake of her children and the people that cared for her, Avery vowed to become even stronger and powerful than she was.

The next day, Avery was invited to a business summit and she was surrounded by reporters the moment she entered the venue

“Miss. Tate, we heard that you scammed 400 million out of Elliot Foster, may I know if that’s true?”

Avery remained calm and turned to face the camera. “It’s true.”

“...” Everyone was instantly rendered speechless.

“You have to be joking, Miss. Tate. If it’s indeed true, why hasn’t he sued you?” The reporter continued.

“Because Mr. Foster is far too rich and 1400 million means nothing to him.”

“If any one of you wants to become rich overnight, all you need to do is lie to him. He’s easily fooled.”

Chapter 576

The interview was posted online by the reporter. Soon, the video became an instant sensation on the internet

The rumors circulating that Avery had scammed 1400 million out of Elliot had already caught a lot of attention and this was the first time Avery had ever responded to it.

To everyone’s surprise, the rumors were true; what was more shocking to most was the fact that Elliot had not sued her or requested compensation. It was a wonder to everyone and they couldn’t help but wonder if Elliot was truly that easily fooled.

In Sterling Group, Elliot returned to his office after being in a meeting for an hour and found countless messages when he turned on his phone. Every message was followed by a short clip. He scowled and played the video.

'Miss. Tate, we heard that you scammed 1400 million out of Elliot Foster, may I know if that's true?'

'It's true.

"..." Everyone was instantly rendered speechless.

'You have to be joking, Miss. Tate. If it's indeed true, why hasn't he sued you?'

'Because Mr. Foster is far too rich and 1400 million means nothing to him. If anyone of you want to become rich overnight, all you need to do is lie to him. He's easily fooled.'

Elliot's expression immediately darkened. Had he not seen her face and heard her voice from the video, he would never believe it to be true.

The door was pushed open and Ben walked in laughing.

"Elliot, have you seen the video? Hahaha! Did you piss her off?"

Elliot set his phone down and took a sip of water out of the glass.

"She seems to be doing fine." Ben walked towards him and said, "you two haven't met since she came back, have you?"

Indeed, they hadn't met in person, but they had already gotten into an argument.

"Do you want to see her?" Ben asked, "I can figure something out if you do..."

"I don't want to." Elliot put the glass down.

"If we meet, it's either she pisses me off, or I piss her off. She is pregnant right now, and I don't want to get her angry."

Neither did he want to get angry, so it was best for them to not meet.

"Can't you two communicate properly?" Ben sighed.

“Do it for the baby, at least! You can’t let the kid come into this world without a father, can you?”

“She doesn’t want me to be the father of her children.”

“Then be more forceful! You can’t let her get whatever she wants.”

Elliot gave Ben a look. “She won’t accept me even when I’m not being forceful; she is going to resent me if I try to be more forceful.”

“...But you can’t just let her be. Her belly will begin to show in a month or two and people will start to guess who the father is.”

“Let’s wait until then. My head is hurting.”

“Hahaha! She is a piece of work, but because she is different from other women that you can’t give up on her.”

Outside the office, Chelsea’s expression darkened as she listened to their conversation.

Elliot had admitted that he couldn’t give up on Avery and that he was going to take the responsibility to care for Avery and the baby once her belly showed.

‘Haha!’ She thought, ‘what if Avery’s belly never gets to show?’

Chelsea didn’t dare to directly harm Avery in any way, but there were indirect ways to cause a miscarriage. After all, if the mother was extremely emotional, the embryo would suffer greatly as well.

After attending the summit, Avery stepped out of the hotel with her bodyguard. Suddenly, her phone started to ring and she took it out to answer the call.

The caller said something and she smiled, before hanging up.

Confused, the bodyguard asked, “Who called, Miss. Tate? Why didn’t you say anything?”

Avery put her phone back into her purse and said, “you will find out later.”

Once they were in the car, Avery gave the bodyguard a name of a restaurant.

The bodyguard drove and guessed, “did Elliot Foster ask you out, Miss. Tate?”

The smile on Avery’s face froze at the mention of Elliot’s name. “Why would you mention his name? Do you think I’d be this happy if he is the one asking out?” The bodyguard quieted down.

Chapter 577

A while later, the car stopped outside a restaurant.

Avery went inside and walked directly into the VIP room.

“Eric, is this your day off?”

Eric had booked a private room in a restaurant near Avery’s company and invited her to meal.

“Yeah, I am free this morning.” Eric pulled the chair for her. “Thank god you came back safely. I was so worried.”

Avery sat down and before she could respond, her attention was caught by the card resting on the table. “What’s this? Is this your bankee card?”

Eric sat down next to her. “Yeah. Take it and pay Elliot back.”

Without a moment of hesitation, Avery pushed the card back to him and said, “I don’t want it, Eric. I might owe him money, but he is not forcing me to pay him back. I pay him back when I want to and I can just stop whenever I feel like it.”

Eric pushed the card to her stubbornly and said, “now that you have broken up with him, it’s best to pay him back as soon as possible! Avery, you saved my life and I can give you every penny that I earn.”

His eyes glammed and every word he spoke was incredibly sincere. “I didn’t resurface as an idol because I love my job, but because I want to be someone useful so that I can help you in times of need.”

Tears welled in Avery's eyes at his words.

"Eric, I really can't accept your card. I am so happy that you are treating me a meal, but I can pay the money I owe Elliot back on my own. Have faith in me, okay?" Sensing that the atmosphere was slightly heavy, she forced a smile and said, "you look even more handsome after a while!"

"Don't change the subject." Eric shoved the card into her hands. "Just hold onto this for me and give it back when I get married."

Avery didn't know how to reject such a request.

"The password is your birthday," he added.

"Why are you telling me the password?"

"I have poor memory. Just memorize it for me."

Three days later, the foundation had been established, so Chelsea proceeded to send the bank account details of the foundation to Avery.

Avery immediately transferred 300 million upon receiving the details

Chelsea was stunned for minutes when she saw the massive transaction, thinking, 'why does Avery have so much money? She paid 155 million before and now 300 million... Does her business profit that much?'

Chelsea immediately told Elliot about it.

Elliot scowled.

'Where did she get this much money from?! Who did she borrow it from?

Who has the money to help her? Can it be Eric Santos?!' He thought.

Instantly, he was enraged.

Avery set her phone down after completing the transaction and starting working. After twenty minutes, she noticed that the screen on her phone lit up from the corner of her eyes. She picked it up and noticed a new message.

It was from the hospital she went to in Bridgedale and the result of the screening test had been released.

Her heart sank as she opened the message.

'Down Syndrome: Low Risk; 18-trisomy syndrome: Low Risk; Deformity in Nervous System: High Risk

'High Risk?!' She thought as she tightened her fingers around the phone, 'so there's really something wrong with my baby?!'

Elliot drove to Tate Industries with the full intention of confronting Avery as to where she obtained 300 million. If she had gotten the money from another man, there was no way that he could accept it.

He barged in without any appointment and strode towards the elevator to press on the button.

The elevator door slowly opened and the first thing he saw was Avery's flushed face covered in tears.

Chapter 578

She glanced at him dazedly, and turned away after just one look, before stepping out of the elevator and walking past him.

"Avery!" He grabbed onto her arm forcefully.

She paused, before punching him in the chest with her free hand. "Let me go!" She yelled in a hoarse voice, "let me go!"

Elliot released her after seeing her reaction. Noticing the tears in her eyes, he swallowed and asked, "what's wrong, Avery?"

She was clearly emotional and he couldn't imagine what could have happened to have triggered it.

Avery stared at his face and the pain in her heart grew. If only Elliot had not asked the doctor to give her the medicine, there might be a chance that their baby would not end up like this. She wanted to blame him, but her senses told her that there was no point in doing so when he didn't do it onee purpose.

"Don't follow me, Elliot Foster!" She said in tears, before turning to leave. Elliot watched as she walked away. He couldn't stay calm and ran after6f her. Just then, the door to the elevator opened and Mike stepped out. It was the receptionist who called Mike and asked him to68 come.

"Elliot Foster! What are you doing here?" Mike caught up to Elliot and grabbed him by the arm. "Are you here looking for Avery? What do you want from her?"

Avery turned around from a distance when she heard Mike's voice and when Mike saw her red, teary eyes, he instantly came to the conclusion that she had been bullied by Elliot.

"F*ck! How dare you bully Avery!" Mike swung his fist and hit Elliot on the face.

Elliot couldn't react and took the punch. His expression darkened and immediately retaliate with a punch as well.

"President! Director Mike is fighting Elliot Foster!" Startled, the receptionist stopped Avery on her track and said, "hurry and go stop them!"

Avery stopped

"President Tate! I think Director Mike is losing!" The receptionist panicked as she watched the fight unfold.

Avery took a deep breath and strode towards them.

"Stop it!" She stopped at a spot that was a step away from them and roared, and the two instantly ceased fighting.

The receptionist gaped. She could understand why Mike obeyed Avery, but Avery had just scammed 1400 million out of Elliot, so why did he obey her as well?

“Fight somewhere else if you want to and leave me alone!” Avery said while sobbing, before leaving

Elliot wanted to go after her, but was stopped by Mike.

“Elliot Foster! What the f*ck did you do to Avery?!” Mike asked angrily while wiping the blood off the corner of his mouth.

Elliot glared at him viciously. “I did want to do something but didn’t have the time to!”

“Then why is she crying?!”

“Let go of me! I’ll go ask her!” Elliot flung his hand away.

The receptionist brought two cups of warm water and handed it to the two.

“Director, Mr. Foster ran into President Tate in the elevator...and they haven’t even spoken much to one another...so I think he’s not the one who made her cry,” the receptionist explained.

Unable to bear the tension between the two men, she hurried back to her post. Mike released Elliot’s arm awkwardly.

Chapter 579

Elliot gazed outside the door and Avery had already driven off in her car.

“Um... Sorry! I thought you made her cry!” Mike dragged him towards the elevator by the arm.

“Let me get you a drink. She told us to leave her alone, so it’s better that you stay away from her for now.”

Elliot scowled. "You really don't know what's wrong with her?"

"Not a clue! She was fine when she showed up to work this morning. Why else would I think that you pissed her off just now?"

Elliot followed Mike into the elevator.

"Do you know how she managed to get 300 million, then?" Elliot asked.

"She paid me back with 300 million today and according to what I know, she doesn't have that much cash flow even with both her companies combined."

"You came looking for her to ask about this?"

"Yeah."

"I don't know!" Mike was not going to tell him the truth.

"She is keeping things from me now because I am close with Chad, so she feels like I've shifted to your side."

Elliot's eagle-like eyes locked onto Mike's face.

Feeling uncomfortable, Mike forcefully changed the subject.

"You are dating Chelsea to piss Avery off, right? Aren't you worried that she might get so angry that something happens to the baby?"

"So you are saying that despite the fact that she dumped me, I still need to 'preserve my purity' for her?" Elliot retorted.

"Even if you can't do that, you don't have to start dating Chelsea so f*cking soon, do you? Can't you wait until she gives birth to the baby?"

"What makes you think that she cares if I date another woman?"

"What makes you think she doesn't care?"

"She dumped me!" Elliot gritted out. "If she does care, why would she dump me?!"

The anger oozing from Elliot had Mike swallowed nervously.

The elevator arrived at the designated floor following a 'Ding!' and the door opened.

The two stepped out of the elevator and walked towards Mike's office.

"Elliot, have you ever tried understanding why she broke up with you?" Mike closed the office door and asked.

"She blames me for signing the surgery agreement without her consent, and that I didn't place our child as a top priority," Elliot analyzed the reason behind their breakup in an organized manner, "she doesn't think that I can be a good father, so she doesn't want to raise a child with me."

Mike scowled. "You are both right and wrong at the same time. Though she doesn't trust you, she still loves you! She broke up with you out of fear that something might go wrong with the baby and she is trying to take it all on by herself."

Elliot's lips curled into a sarcastic sneer. "Did she say that?"

"What the f*ck are you smiling at? What's so funny?!" Mike cursed, "if only Shea's condition hadn't improved to the current state, she would still be kept into the golden cage you set up for her! If something is wrong with your baby with Avery, are you going to lock it up and keep it from contacting the outside world as well?!"

Elliot's expression darkened at Mike's words. "I was keeping Shea in a golden cage? Is that what you all think of me?!"

"What do you mean if that's what we think of you? Isn't what I said the truth?! Who else knew that Shea existed before she was starting to recover?! You kept her existence from the outside world because you are ashamed of her!"

Mike's tone became extremely stern.

He knew that Avery didn't have the courage to say these words to Elliot, so he had to be the one to lay all cards on the table; otherwise, Elliot would only acknowledge the fact that Avery broke up with him mercilessly, instead of realizing how problematic he was as a person.

Elliot clenched his fists as his eyes glammed coldly. He moved his lips to explain, but the words wouldn't come out. Not all pain was meant to be shared with outsiders.

In the hospital, Avery laid on the bed and was getting ready to undergo amniocentesis.

The doctor had advised her to be checked since the results of the Down syndrome were not ideal. If further tests showed unfavorable results, the pregnancy would have to be terminated.

Chapter 580

"Miss. Tate, are you here on your own?" The doctor asked, "you will need to be under observation in the hospital in two hours later, so you should contact someone and get them to come here!"

If Laura was still alive, Avery would definitely ask her to be here.

She opened her contact list and called Tammy in the end.

When Tammy heard that Avery was in a hospital, she hurried over after asking which hospital and which department Avery was in.

Two hours later, Tammy sent her home. She did not bother Avery because Avery appeared to be depressed.

As she drove out of Starry River Villa, Tammy became increasingly frustrated. Though Avery did not tell her what happened, she had guessed that the baby was not doing well.

'It's not like the baby belongs to Avery alone, why does Avery have to suffer while Elliot carries on like nothing's wrong?' She thought.

She found Elliot's number and called him, but no one answered. The line was automatically dropped and so she called Chad instead.

Chad picked up in no time and Tammy immediately asked, "Chad, where's Elliot right now? I need to talk to him about something."

"What do you need? It's the opening ceremony for the foundation today so he's a bit busy."

"No wonder he is not answering my call." Tammy parked her car on the side of the road. "What's the address of the venue? I will go look for him."

"What exactly do you need from him, Tammy? You can contact him another day if it's not urgent," Chad reminded her.

"Of course it's urgent for me to be looking for him right now!" Tammy's tone was becoming more and more agitated. "Just give me the address already! I am calling Ben if you refuse to tell me!"

Chad gasped. "Did something happen to Avery?"

Tammy definitely wouldn't contact Elliot for no reason and considering how close she was to Avery, the only urgent matter she could have to talk to Elliot had to be related to Avery.

"Why is it so difficult to communicate with you, Chad? Just man up and tell me the address!"

Naturally, Tammy wouldn't mention anything about Avery's visit to the hospital to anyone. All she wanted to do at the moment was to find Elliot and make him take the responsibility as the baby's father.

Pressured, Chad gave her the address. "When can you fix that hot temper of yours, Tammy? Without the support of your dad and your husband, you are bound to run into trouble."

"You are just jealous that I have someone to back me up, right? I will never change! Not even Elliot can do anything about it, so the same goes to you!”

Tammy declared, before hanging up.

The opening ceremony for the foundation was held in a hotel with countless entrepreneurs invited. There were luxury cars as far as the eyes could see from the entrance of the hotel and there were security guards dressed in black everywhere.

Tammy drove to the hotel and was stopped at the entrance when she was about to enter the hall because she didn't have an invitation.

“Get out of the way! I am a friend of Elliot Foster. If you don't let me in, I'm going to get Elliot to fire you!” Tammy lifted her chin proudly.

The staff was at a crossroad. “Miss, I will get fired if I let you in as well. Can you call Mr. Foster and get him to talk to me?”

Chapter 581

“He is too busy today to pick up the phone.”

“Alright!” The staff member compromised and said, “wait here, Miss, I will get the person in charge here.”

Two minutes later, the staff came back with Chelsea.

Chelsea was surprised to see Tammy and asked, “why are you looking for Elliot? He's busy today.”

“It's just an ordinary event, are you telling me that it can't go on without him?”

Tammy asked sarcastically, “does he not have time to take a sip of water or use the bathroom?”

Chelsea did not waver despite Tammy's assertive mannerism. “What exactly is it that you need, Tammy? Considering the fact that your husband is friends with Elliot, I can help to relay your message.”

“I don’t need you to relay my message! Let me in. I will leave after I have a few words with him!” Tammy demanded in frustration.

“I would have let you in if this was any ordinary event, but there are a lot of important people here today and I can’t just let you in. If you don’t want to leave a message, fine. I am busy, too, and I don’t have time to waste here with you.”

Chelsea had guessed that Tammy was here looking for Elliot because of Avery, so naturally, she couldn’t possibly let Tammy into the event venue.

Tammy felt that she was being picked on by Chelsea, so she retorted bluntly, “Chelsea Tierney, who do you think you are to stop me from going in when you are aware that my husband is friends with Elliot? Do you think that you represent Elliot? Not even Chad dares to talk to me like this, who do you think you are? You are just a hound kept by Elliot!”

Chelsea’s eyes reddened at the insult. “Since you said that I’m his hound, Tammy, then I have more reasons to stop you from going in. Even hounds have a duty, and that is to guard their masters’ doors!”

Enraged, Tammy raised her hand and struck Chelsea across the face.

‘Snap!

The bodyguards and staff around them gaped. One of the staff walked up to Chelsea and whispered, “Miss Tierney, are you okay? Should we chase this woman out?”

“Can’t you tell that we are in no place to mess with her?” Chelsea responded sarcastically despite the burning sensation on her cheek. “Go inform Mister Foster and get him over here.”

The staff immediately went inside to look for Elliot, who appeared shortly after.

He glanced at Chelsea's face, before looking over at Tammy.

"Elliot, your PR manager got in my way and refuses to let me in. I wonder who gave her the power to act like that in front of me?!" Tammy accused.

Chelsea lowered her head at Tammy's words and said, "I'm sorry, Elliot. It's not that I'm trying to keep her out on purpose, but she won't tell me what she wants when I asked about it, so I didn't dare to just let her in."

The looks in Elliot's eyes became extremely cold. "Tammy Lynch, who gave you the right to beat people here?"

"It's her fault for getting in my way! I said that I would leave after having a few words with you, is that not enough of an explanation? What did she think, that I was going to cause trouble if I went inside? Does she know who I am?"

Tammy raised her voice and had completely forgotten why she had come in the first place.

"Apologize!" Elliot gritted out sternly, "apologize to Chelsea!"

"Dream on! How can you side with her, Elliot? I've been wrong about you thinking that you could bear the responsibility as a father.... I should have never believed in a dirtbag like you!" Blinded by rage, Tammy blurted out her thoughts at the moment, "no wonder Avery doesn't want to be with you, it's because she's figured out what kind of a person you really are!"

Elliot had never struck a woman before, but Tammy had pushed it past the point.

The fact that Tammy had struck Chelsea and refused to apologize was not the main reason why he was overwhelmed by anger; she said that he could not bear the responsibility of a father, that he was a dirtbag and Avery did not want to be with him because she had found out about his real character... He swung a blow and Tammy's head snapped to the side under the impact of the slap.

Chapter 582

Tammy covered her swollen cheek dazedly. To her surprise, she heard Elliot saying, "scram!"

Tammy had been treated like a princess for over twenty years. No one had ever come close to laying a hand on her face or telling her to scram.

Though hot-tempered, she was not a strong-willed person.

With a hand on her face, she ran off in tears.

Elliot clenched his fists as he watched her run away. He could already imagine how angry Avery would be when Tammy told her about this; but what had happened cannot be changed and he would have taught Tammy a lesson even if he had to do it all over again.

Tammy had no idea when to stop and not only was her words inappropriate, her behavior was presumptuous as well.

Though Chelsea was merely his PR manager, she was also a lady of the Tierney Family. Regardless of reasons, Tammy should not have crossed Chelsea in public.

Tammy ran out of the hotel in tears. Once she got into her car, she drove onto the highway and called Jun. "Wah...Hubby! Elliot hit me!"

Tears kept streaming down her face as Tammy had a meltdown. There was no way that she could drive and so she stopped the car by the road and bawled while leaning against the steering wheel.

Jun's face twitched and he asked in disbelief, "what did you just said?" Elliot hit you?!

"Stop calling him by his first name! He hit me! That bast*rd hit me over Chelsea Tierney." Tammy wailed and felt as though she could suffocate the next moment.

Jun's heart ached at the state she was in and asked, "Tammy, where are you right now? I'll go pick you up!"

"Wah! I am outside the hotel and I have the emergency signal lights on... I can't stop crying so I can't drive!"

"I'll go pick you up right now! Don't cry, it hurts for me to see you like that!"

Jun said before hurrying towards his car.

He desperately wanted to call Elliot to ask what had happened, but he didn't dare to hang up on Tammy. It was the first time he had ever seen her breaking down to such an extent throughout the time he had known her.

Half an hour later, he found Tammy outside the hotel.

"Jun!" Tammy threw herself into his arms and her voice had become hoarse from crying. "Cut all ties with him! I don't ever want to see him again!"

Jun wrapped one arm around her and took out tissue paper with another hand to wipe away her tears. "Whatever you say, Wifey. Don't cry, or your eyes will hurt."

Tammy snuffled and hummed in response.

"Aren't you supposed to be at home learning to bake today? Why are you here all of a sudden?" June asked gently.

"I went out early...cause' Avery contacted me..." Tammy had stopped crying at this point, but couldn't quite breath normally just yet so she had to pause in between words.

"Avery went to the hospital and there's something wrong with the baby... I was with her in the hospital...then I sent her home... I just thought that Avery shouldn't have to suffer alone so I came looking for Elliot to get that bast*rd to keep Avery company..."

Tammy couldn't help but start crying again at the memories of what happened in the hotel.

“Don’t cry, Tammy! I know you have suffered a lot. Let’s just go home, first!”

Jun’s heart was heavy, but he couldn’t let it show. “I will cook you something when we get home.”

“I don’t want to eat... I feel so depressed... He hit me...and told me to scram...” Tammy said while covering her face with both her hands, “I have never been so humiliated in my entire life!”

Jun felt horrible to hear what had happened.

Tammy was exhausted from crying and so she went back to her room to sleep upon arriving home.

Jun unlocked his phone and saw a message from Elliot.

‘Jun, call me when you are free.’

Jun immediately exited the room and called Elliot.

The call was answered right away.

“Elliot, did Tammy cross you?” Jun asked gloomily, “she has never gone through hardship before and she can be a bit overbearing. If she has offended you in any way, I will apologize to you on her behalf.”

“She hit Chelsea and said some nasty things to me. I couldn’t control myself and hit her.”

“I guessed it. She has to have done something absolutely out of line, otherwise you wouldn’t have hit her.”

Chapter 583

Elliot remained silent for a while before asking, “did she tell Avery about this?”

“No. She probably won’t tell Avery for now.”

“Why not?” Elliot was curious as to why Tammy had come looking for him.

Jun told him the truth hesitantly, “Tammy went looking for you to tell you that there’s probably something wrong with Avery’s baby. She was in the hospital with Avery earlier today.”

Elliot swallowed hard and the light in his eyes faded.

“Maybe that affected Tammy in some way, too, so that’s why she was so desperate to find you, ” Jun explained on behalf of Tammy, “Tammy isn’t a badee person.”

“I know,” Elliot responded with a hoarse voice, before hanging up.

“There’s something wrong with our baby, he said...’ Elliot thought to himself, ‘so there’s something wrong with the baby, after all, but Avery hasn’t informed me about it. Does she plan on not telling me a thing if Tammy hadn’t come to me?’

Feeling as though he was being stabbed in the heart, Elliot dragged his feet towards the exit of the event hall.

“Elliot, dinner is about to start. Where are you going?” Chelsea strode towards him and grabbed him by the 68 arm.

He flung her hand away and barked, “leave me alone!”

With that, he stormed off.

Chelsea watched his lonesome figure disappeared into the distance and her heart ached. She didn’t have to guess to know that he was going to find Avery. Tammy must have come looking for him for something concerning Avery.

Back in the Starry River Villa, Shea called Hayden in the evening. She told him that she was learning to drive and promised to take both Hayden and Layla out to play once she could drive.

“That’s so impressive, Shea! You can drive now!” Mike exclaimed.

“Wesley said that I can learn anything that I feel like doing.”

“Wesley is right! There are so many possibilities for you! Once you learn how to drive, tell your brother to buy you a luxury car!” Mike teased.

“We already have a lot of cars at home. I’ll just take one of them!”

“Drive your brother’s black Rolls-Roice!”

“I don’t like black. I like red cars.”

Just then, a black Rolls-Roice stopped outside Avery’s mansion. Elliot pushed the car door open and got out of the car, before walking up to the gate to ring the doorbell.

Coincidentally, Avery had just finished dinner.

She strolled out of the dining room and gazed out to the entrance to find Elliot standing quietly in the sunset, dressed in white shirt and black trousers.

His soul-piercing eyes locked onto her the moment she appeared, and her heart beat sped up.

‘Why is he here? Did...he find out?’ She thought.

Seeing that she remained frozen by the door, he rang the doorbell again.

Avery lost her composure at the urging sound of the doorbell and took a deep breath, before walking towards him. She opened the door and stepped outside out of concern that he would interrupt the children’s mealtime.

“Avery, why didn’t you tell me that something is wrong with the baby?” He grabbed onto her slim wrist, barely capable of containing himself.

“What’s the point?” Avery looked at him and asked, “so that you can accompany me to the abortion surgery?”

“I have the right to know!” His eyes turned red as he complained, “you can’t change the fact that I’m the father even if you don’t want to admit it!”

“You know now, don’t you?” She responded casually.

“I do know now, but I didn’t hear it from you! Show me the lab reports!” He demanded.

“There’s no lab report.” Her wrist was beginning to hurt from his grip and she reached down to pull his fingers away. “Let go of me!” “Why isn’t there a lab report?!” He loosened the grip but did not fully let go. He simply moved his hand up her wrist and continued to restrain her.

Unable to lie while being confronted by Elliot, she explained, “I did the test in Bridgedale so they only sent me a message.”

“Show me the message!” He commanded, fully intending to persist until he had seen the message for himself.

Just then, Mike and the children walked out of the dining room and spotted Elliot.

“What is he doing here?” Layla murmured.

“Your mom cried this morning, but I don’t know why...” Mike said.

Hayden scowled. “What’s wrong with Mom?”

Mike shrugged. “I don’t know! She won’t tell me even if I asked, but she seems normal just now when we were eating. Maybe it’s not a big deal!”

As they were talking, Avery opened the door and stepped into the yard with Elliot.

Mike took the children back to the dining room, while Elliot followed Avery into the mansion. She picked her phone from the coffee table and opened the message to show him.

After reading the message, he lowered his gaze at her abdomen and asked,

“why did you go to the hospital today?”

“I had an amniocentesis.”

“What for?”

Elliot looked up and spotted three pairs of eyes watching them from the dining room, so he grabbed Avery by the wrist and took her upstairs.

“What are you doing?!” Avery pulled her hand away, not wanting to be alone with him.

Elliot hated being pushed away by Avery, but she did so frequently. He grabbed onto her wrist once again and as a punishment, he tightened his grip forcefully.

“I need to talk to you. Do you want them to hear everything?” He took a glance at her flushed face and led her upstairs.

They went into Avery’s bedroom once they were on the second floor.

Avery was reluctant to let Elliot into her bedroom, but Elliot didn’t consider himself a guest after entering her house and acted as though he was the owner of the mansion.

“Avery, if the results come back two weeks from now and show that the baby is still unhealthy, what do you plan on doing?” He closed the bedroom door and asked.

“Terminate the pregnancy,” she responded without hesitation.

His blood ran cold at her answer.

“Didn’t you say that you are going to give birth to it even if something is wrong with it? Why are you changing your mind now?"

"Why should I give birth to it? So that it can suffer?" She was confused by his question. "Didn't you desperately want me to get rid of it? Should you be pleased now?"

"That's my child! I can't possibly be happy to learn that it's sick or killed!"

Tears welled up in his eyes. "Did you have to hurt me, Avery?"

Wanting to cease the meaningless argument, she turned around and said, "leave if there's nothing else you need! I need to rest now."

"What's with that 300 million?" He strode up to her to force her into facing him.

"Where did you get that much money? Who did you borrow it from?"

"I didn't borrow it from anyone." She felt pressured when his towering figure loomed over her and couldn't help but take a few steps back.

"I earned it myself."

Chapter 585

"You are telling me that you earned 300 million within weeks? Why don't you explain to me how you manage to earn that much?" He didn't believe her and stepped forward when she backed away until they were standing by the bed.

"Why do you care how I earned it? You have a say with the baby, but you have no right to control me!" She shoved him by the chest.

"Monitoring you is the same thing as monitoring the baby!" He stood still as the looks in his eyes darkened. "As long as the baby is still inside you, I have the right to control you!"

Avery felt that he was being ridiculous, but couldn't quite argue with his logic, so she responded with a half-truth, "it's the payment for a surgery I performed on someone!"

The 300 million was the payment Elliot gave Zoe; however, Zoe was not the one who treated Shea, so all Avery did was take back what was hers and she did not feel guilty about it.

"Who?" He couldn't quite believe her explanation. "Who gave you that much money as a payment?!"

"It's okay for you to pay Zoe that much, but not when others do the same? Or is this just you having a hard time accepting that there's someone else richer than you?" Avery mocked, "what an arrogant man you are!"

"Avery, does it hurt you to not piss me off for just one day?" He grabbed her by the nape and leaned forward until their faces were almost touching.

She could feel his unique scent and it ignited a fire within her.

"What are you doing?" Her lashes trembled and she started to breathe heavily. "If you try anything, I'm going to scream!"

As soon as she made the threat, his thin lips landed on hers. She tried to fight him off, but he had wrapped his long arms around her body and she could hardly move.

...

After some time, he was finally content and let go of her.

Avery's eyes reddened and could no longer conceal her anger and grievance.

She shoved him again and said, "do you know what you are doing?!"

To her surprise, he fell backward towards the cloth rack behind him after being shoved. He immediately grabbed onto the cabinet next to him to steady himself. Though he didn't fall to the ground, the rack did at the impact and Avery's purse fell along with it.

The contents of her purse were instantly scattered on the ground, so he immediately squatted down to pick up her purse and everything else.

There weren't many items in her purse; apart from tissue paper, headphones and makeup powder, there were only a few packets of medicines.

While he was putting everything back into the purse, he caught sight of a card in one of the compartments of her purse; more precisely, a black card, so he took it out.

"Don't touch my stuff!" Avery panicked when she saw the card in his hand and instantly started sweating

It was the card Eric had given her for safekeeping and she had forgotten to take it out after putting it into her purse. Elliot flipped the card and saw the signature on the back of the card: Eric Santos.

"Your stuff?" He held the card between his fingers and asked in a giddy manner, "why is Eric Santos in your purse? How does this become yours?" His tone became increasingly harsh and his expression grew darker.

"I meant don't touch my purse. I didn't say that this is my card!" She snatched her purse back and tried to reach for the card in his hand.

He stood up abruptly and raised his arm so that she couldn't take the card back.

"Did he give you 300 million? Did he?!" He swallowed hard and roared, "when have you two started dating?! If I haven't come across this card, how long do you two plan on lying to me about this?!"

Chapter 586

She stared at the pained and frustrated expression on his face and for a moment, she couldn't say a word.

Elliot had come to the conclusion that Avery and Eric were in a relationship; if Avery was him, she would misunderstand as well.

After all, under what circumstances would a woman accept a card from a man? It had to be when the two were extremely close and had nothing to keep from one another. Back when she dated Elliot and their relationship was still in the honeymoon phase, she had never accepted his card.

Her train of thoughts stopped when she saw the tears in his eyes.

Feeling as though she was being strangled, she frantically tried to explain despite the difficulty to breathe. "Elliot... He is just asking me to keep the card safe for him... I didn't spend his money..."

"Really?" Elliot tightened his fingers around the card.

"If that's the case, I will return this to him on your behalf."

With that, he picked the cloth rack off the ground and walked away to open the door.

The faces of Mike and the children appeared before him. With a cold expression, he walked past them without a word and went downstairs.

"Mom! Did he bully you?" Layla ran into the room and gazed up at her mother's face.

Avery forced out a smile and hung her purse back onto the rack. "He didn't. He doesn't dare to when you are all at home."

"Avery, I heard everything." Mike stepped inside with a heavy heart. "There's something wrong with the baby?"

Suddenly, it made sense that she was crying in the morning.

Avery pretended to be strong and said, "it's not confirmed yet! It's just that there's huge risk, but we still need to wait for the results."

"Oh, then don't get upset too soon," Mike comforted her, "I talked to a doctor and he said that babies aren't as fragile as we think they are. Usually things would settle down once you are past the first three months of pregnancy.”

“Yeah.”

“I got into an argument with him earlier today and I kind of blurted out saying everything.” Mike stood before Avery and scratched his head awkwardly Avery scowled. “What did you say?”

“Um... I accused him of appearing like he cares for Shea, when in truth, he looks down on her! “ Mike said and paused before continuing, “I also told him that you still love him... I told him not to be with Chelsea....or at least wait until after you have your baby.”

Confused, Avery said, “stay quiet if you don’t know what you should and should not say! Who told you to tell him all that? He definitely thinks that I told you to tell him that! It’s no wonder that...”

‘No wonder Elliot kissed me just now! He thought that I am still in love with him after hearing what Mike had to say!’ She thought.

She covered her mouth awkwardly and desperately wanted to hide inside a hold.

“Don’t think too much. Right now, your main mission is to take care of your body,” Mike comforted her, “don’t you think he knows that you still love him? He’s no fool and neither are we.”

“Fine, I’m the fool, then. Okay?” Avery pushed Mike out of the door. “Get out! I don’t want to see you right now.”

Mike immediately went out of the room with Hayden and Layla.

Avery felt as though she had been completely drained. She lied down on her bed and rested a hand onto her stomach as the memory of tears welling up in Elliot’s eyes appeared in her mind. Though she didn’t want to admit it, she would always get soft-hearted whenever he was sad. No matter the grudge between them, her defenses would always crumble whenever he showed his weakness.

A man as tough as him would never shed a tear unless he was really hurt. She held her breath.

All it took was for her to accept Eric's card for Elliot to have such an explosive reaction; what would happen if she was to marry another man. Elliot had been flirting with Chelsea, so why couldn't she be with another man?

Two hours later, a post appeared on social media with the title: 'President of Sterling Group, Elliot Foster, was seen slapping a young woman outside a hotel!'

Along with the post was a screenshot of surveillance footage, which showed that Elliot had indeed struck a woman.

No matter the status, whenever a man struck a woman and was exposed to the public, there was bound to be heated discussion over the matter.

Chapter 587

"That guy looks decent, who knows he would do such a thing! " He looks vicious and obviously capable of violence! I would love to see which woman would be fearless enough to marry him!

'So what if he is capable of violence? There are plenty of women out there who are willing to marry him even if he's a murderer! He's just that rich!'

'Ew! I would be so depressed if I was the woman who got slapped!'

'Who's that woman? Does anyone know her? She looks quite pretty from the side profile!

After a shower, Avery took a folic acid pill and lied down on the bed, but because she had taken a nap in the afternoon, she did not feel tired at all.

She unlocked her phone and saw a message from the University chat group. She went to the chatroom and found out that a heated discussion had started.

Someone sent a message that said, 'that woman looks so much like Tammy from the side!'

"That woman might look a lot like Tammy, but it's definitely not her! No one dares to bully Tammy!" Another replied.

'If I remember correctly, Tammy's husband is friends with Elliot Foster, so why would Elliot hit Tammy?'

"Tammy! Come look at this! Some woman who looks like you got hit by Elliot Foster! @ Tammy Lynch'

Avery read through the messages in confusion. She scrolled up until she saw the screenshot and she immediately recognized Elliot from it. She zoomed in on the photo to look at the woman who had been hit.

Had she not seen Tammy earlier that day, she would have thought that it was just a woman that resembled Tammy like all her former classmates did; but she had seen Tammy and the woman on the screenshot was dressed in the exact same clothes as Tammy and Avery came to the conclusion that Tammy was the one on the photo.

A lump formed in Avery's throat as her fingers tightened around her phone.

Tammy was a princess who was born into a wealthy family and had never gone through any hardship because she was the only daughter of her family. Though she was insolent at times, she would never pick on someone unless she was provoked first.

'Why did Elliot hit her?!' She thought as she hastily got out of bed to grab a jacket, before heading downstairs.

Half an hour later, she arrived at the new house where Tammy and Jun lived by car.

Jun was surprised to see her.

“Why didn’t you tell me that someone bullied Tammy?” Avery complained.

“She feels embarrassed by it and won’t let me tell anyone,” Jun responded with resignation, “how did you find out?”

Tammy was munching on snacks on the bed at the time, and when she saw Avery, she thought that she was hallucinating for a moment.

“Tammy, how can you not tell me when something like that happens?” Avery walked towards the bed and inspected Tammy’s wound carefully.

“It’s so swollen... That bast*rd!”

Tammy had regained her composure by then, and she also didn’t want Avery to worry because she was pregnant.

“It doesn’t hurt as much anymore after putting on some ointment. The doctor said that I would recover within a week.”

“Why did he hit you?” Avery grabbed onto her hand and asked, “Tammy, tell me!”

Tammy scowled. She was reluctant to think back to what happened, but knew that she couldn’t avoid the question at the same time.

“I saw how much you’ve suffered over what’s going on with the baby, so I wanted to tell him about it in secret so that he can keep you company. I went looking for him at the hotel, but then Chelsea got in my way and stopped me from going in. She did it on purpose! I still feel so angry when I think about that woman!”

Avery tapped her on the shoulder and guessed that Elliot had resorted to violence for Chelsea’s sake.

“I slapped Chelsea across the face,” Tammy continued, “I know that I was being impulsive, but I would hit her again even if I can go back in time! She is not the Mrs. President of Sterling Group just yet! How dare she pick on me?” Avery’s heart felt heavy at her words. Tammy was at fault for starting the fight, but that was between her and Chelsea. Was it necessary for Elliot to get involved?

“That bast*rd Elliot Foster. I will never forgive him! Of course, he probably doesn’t care about that!” Tammy said and glanced at Avery.

“Avery, this is between me and Elliot Foster, and you have nothing to do with this, so don’t get affected by this. I was hit because I ran my mouth, and he didn’t hit me solely for Chelsea’s sake.”

“It doesn’t matter what you said to him, Tammy. He never should have hit you.” Avery was reminded of a similar incident and said,

“he came close to strangling Hayden to death before and Hayden still hates him for that up until this day. I suspect that he already knows that Hayden is his son, but he doesn’t have the courage to admit it due to the mistakes he made. He knows that Hayden would refuse to acknowledge him as his father.”

Tammy was stunned. “I guess I should be glad that all he did was slap me across the face then?”

“He is just too hot-tempered.” Avery took out the ointment she brought and handed it to Tammy. “Don’t go looking for him again, Tammy.”

“Of course. I won’t forgive him unless he apologizes. I won’t forgive him even if he apologizes!” Tammy declared angrily, “but if you want to get back together with him for the baby’s sake, I won’t be mad.”

“Tammy, you are my best friend. Hitting you is the same thing as hitting me,” Averyóf said.

“Wah! I knew you would side with me! But you are pregnant now, Avery, I don’t want you to worry over these kinds of things.” Tammy took her hands and said, “the doctor told you to rest and you still came all the way here to see me. I am so moved, but don’t pick a fight with Elliot over this. I’m worried that you might not feel well if you get too emotional.”

“I know what to do.”

The next morning, Avery appeared before the Sterling Group building dressed in a light blue maternity dress. Because she didn’t make any appointment, she remained on the first floor to wait for the receptionist to call up.

About five minutes later, the door of the elevator nearby opened and Chad stepped out of it.

He walked towards Avery with a gentle smile and asked, “what brought you here, Avery?”

“Just felt like coming over,” she said.

Chad knew exactly why Avery had come to visit, but pretended to not know a thing. “Mr. Foster is slightly busy and he is not in his office at the moment.

You can wait for him in his office for the time being, is that okay?”

“Yeah.”

The two stepped into the elevator.

The elevator door closed and Chad took a glance at Avery’s stomach. “Your belly has grown bigger. Do you get tired more easily compared to before?”

“Not really.”

“Oh. Is everything okay with the monthly check-up?”

“No.”

Chad didn't mean to upset her. He wouldn't have asked such a stupid question if only he knew that the results were concerning. He changed the subject awkwardly and asked, "...what's that you are holding?"

There was a folder in Avery's hand, which contained a contract.

"I will talk to your boss when I see him," she responded coldly while oozing an extremely intimidating aura.

Chad shivered. Last night, news of Elliot slapping Tammy across the face had somehow found its way to the internet. Though they managed to remove it afterward, Avery must have already found out. Avery rarely came to Sterling Group and the incident had to be the reason for her sudden visit.

Alarmed, Chad thought to himself, 'Mr. Foster is in trouble! Avery is pregnant with his baby now so he wouldn't dare to enrage her in any way, which means that he is going to lose this battle no matter what!'

Chapter 589

Chad sent Avery to Elliot's office and poured her a glass of warm water, before asking enthusiastically,

"do you want something to eat?"

"No, thank you. Go back to what you were doing and just ignore that I'm here."

The smile on Chad remained. "I don't have anything to do, so I can wait here with you!"

Avery reached for the glass and took a sip of water.

"Avery, I heard what happened yesterday as soon as Mr. Foster hit Tammy, so allow me to explain something to you first! Mr. Foster didn't raise his hand on Tammy for Chelsea's sake, it was because Tammy had made a few inappropriate comments. She called him a dirtbag and said that he deserves getting dumped by you..."

Avery stared at Chad coldly.

Chad panicked and blurted out, "um... Mr. Foster had already explained this to Jun."

“The more you try to explain, the more I resent him.” Avery set her glassó down.

Chad quieted down and said, “I’ll wait outside.”

He sighed a long breath after exiting the office. Shortly after, Elliot stepped out of the elevator and walked towards his68 office.

Chad went up to him and whispered, “she is really angry, Mr. Foster, so be careful. Also, her belly has grown a bit bigger, so you must refrain even if she pisses you off...” Elliot swallowed hard and strode into the office.

When Avery saw him walking in, she immediately took the contract out of the folder.

“This is the tripartite agreement we signed before,” she drawled in a calm voice, “the cooperation between my company and the Border Security Force doesn’t need your involvement disguised as charity work”

“Disguised as charity work?” Elliot scowled.

“You only decided to donate the money because you were pursuing me, not because you believe in the cause,” Avery lifted an eyebrow and continued, “I’m terminating this tripartite agreement. This is not to be negotiated, I’m only here to inform you about it.”

Elliot looked at her coldly. “You are here for Tammy Lynch.”

“So what if I am?”

“I hit her, and you hate me for it.”

“So what if I hate you for it?”

“Is terminating one contract enough to settle the grudge?” He walked towards her and took her hand, before placing it onto his face.

“Here. Slap me across the face and avenge your best friend!”

Avery pursed her lips and tried to pull her hand back, but he wouldn't budge.

"Come on!" His eyes reddened as he gritted out fiercely, "other than your best friend, there's also your son! Have you forgotten that I came close to strangling your son to death?! I'm the devil! I will harm anyone who crosses me! It doesn't matter if it's your best friend, or your son, I won't show them any mercy!"

She could feel his burning breath on her face and she somehow seemed to have caught his evilness from it.

Avery raised her hand and struck at Elliot's handsome-looking face. The deafening sound was like a whip to her heart. Her palm went numb from the pain, along with her heart.

'I hit him,' she thought, 'he provoked me into hitting him!'

Just then, the office door was pushed open and Chelsea hurried inside in heels.

"Avery Tate! Who gave you permission to raise your hand at him? Do you have a death wish?!" Chelsea saw the palm print on Elliot's cheek and threw herself at Avery hysterically.

Elliot grabbed her by the arm and gritted out, "I was the one who told her to do it! Don't ever try to lay your hands on her, Chelsea Tierney!"

Chapter 590

Chelsea didn't expect for Elliot to still protect Avery under such circumstances. Feeling wronged and bitter, her tears started scrolling down her face uncontrollably.

Chad hurried inside and dragged Avery out from where she was seated.

"I don't know why Chelsea showed up out of the blue," he explained seriously, "let me send you down first!"

"It's fine." She pushed Chad's hand away and strode towards the elevator.

She was overwhelmed by emotions at the moment. Indeed, she had come to confront Elliot for what happened with Tammy, but she had not expected for herself to actually struck him. Though he was the one who forced her to do so, it did not change the fact that she had hit him.

Elliot was hot-tempered and would often get into arguments with her, but he had never raised his hand at her.

After exiting the elevator, she walked towards the parking lot and got into her car, before driving back to her company.

Along the way, she received a call from Tammy.

"Avery, I heard that you hit Elliot for my sake... Didn't I told you not to go looking for him?" Tammy was so stunned by the news that even her cheek had stopped hurting. "How can you be so brave? Aren't you scared that he might hit you back?"

To Tammy, any man who would raise their hands at women or children knew no limits.

"I went to him for work," Avery lied and said.

"What kind of work? Now that you've hit him, how are you two going to face one another from now on?" Tammy felt that she could just suffocate by imagining the situation.

"I don't have to see him," Avery said calmly, "take care of yourself and remember not to eat anything spicy..."

"Pfft! Avery, I feel much better now that you've taken revenge for me. I feel great," Tammy said while chuckling, "I'll treat you a big meal once my face recovers."

"Sure."

After ending the call, Avery drove towards the office.

There was an old saying that said “Good news goes unnoticed, while bad news travels fast”.

Within half an hour, the entire office had learned that Avery slapped Elliot across the face. As soon as she entered the office, she could sense that the receptionist was giving her an odd look and when she arrived into her office, Mike immediately appeared before her.

“Does your hand hurt, Avery?” Mike propped his arms against Avery’s office table and stared at her face with his blue eyes.

“Chad said that you gave his boss a palm print on the face! Elliot couldn’t stay in the office anymore and went home right away.”

Avery scowled. “Do you have to be so happy about it?”

“Haha! I just think you did the right thing! Some men deserve a good spanking! Tammy might be a bit dramatic, but she is on our side and we can’t just let others bully our people, right?” He said.

Wanting to be alone for a while, Avery said, “get out.”

“Chad assumes that his boss would probably leave you alone from now on, because Elliot has never been so humiliated! So I guess you are on your own with raising the new baby.”

Avery’s eyelids felt heavy. “I said get out!”

“Oh... I’ll leave now... But why did you have to terminate the contract...? We don’t have to give up on the money, either. That’s a million-worth order!”

Avery felt as though her head was about to explode. “Scram!”

Mike immediately left out of concern that her frustration might affect her baby.

Once the office returned to silence, Avery reached her right hand out. Her hand was still numb and slightly red, which was proof of how hard she struck.

Chapter 591

Avery thought from a different angle. If Elliot was the one that slapped her that day, she would resent him for life. She would even go to the hospital to have an abortion in a fit of rage.

At that thought, she secretly felt that he was most probably never going to look for her anymore.

A week later, in one of the most high-end restaurants in the city.

The bruises on Tammy's face have almost recovered fully. She asked Avery out to dinner, wanting to buy her a meal.

Initially, Tammy got Avery to bring the two children along as well, but Wesley brought them and Shea out to play.

"Avery, Elliot did not look for you for the past few days, right?" Tammy said worriedly.

"Hmm." Avery ordered a few dishes and passed the menu to her.

"I heard that he has been at home for the past few days. He never left home."

When Tammy said that she could not help but laugh.

"I don't really hate him anymore. For real. At the thought of him feeling worse than me, I want to laugh. After all, his family is much wealthier than mine. His status is much higher than mine. Hahaha!"

Avery found it hard to laugh. However, seeing how happy Tammy was, it spread to her too.

"Avery, how are you feeling recently?" Tammy changed the topic.

"In a week, you'll get your checkup results. I dreamed about this last night. I woke up in sweat..."

Avery replied, "I can eat well and sleep well. I don't feel uncomfortable."

Perhaps, she had already expected the worst of it, so she did not think too much about this.

“That’s good then!” Tammy ordered and passed the menu to the waiter.

After the waiter left with the menu, Tammy said, “Jun is planning to take me on a holiday, to relax. It’s almost the summer holidays, why don’t you take the kids along together and we’ll go have fun!”

Avery rejected Tammy without thinking, “You’re going on a holiday with your husband. How can I be the third wheel? Also, Hayden is going to summer camp. I’m planning to sign one up for Layla too. My tummy is getting bigger now. It’s getting harder.”

“I don’t think your tummy is really that big. Other pregnant women’s tummy is much bigger! Even if they are only five months pregnant, it looks extremely big!” Tammy wondered out loud, “When you had the twins the last time, was it even more tiring?”

“That was six years ago. Back then, I was still young, my body was still in a good condition. Before birth, I was still in school!” Avery sighed.

“I didn’t feel that tired previously.”

Tammy was just about to say something when she saw someone at the entrance of the restaurant from the corner of her eye.

Chelsea was in a long red dress. She was with a lady in a white dress entering the restaurant.

“What an unlucky day!” Tammy said coldly, “Chelsea is here.”

Avery followed her gaze and looked toward the entrance of the restaurant.

Perhaps their gaze was way too direct, so Chelsea noticed them too.

The white-dressed lady next to Chelsea looked over at them too.

At that moment, Tammy realized something fishy!

“Avery, that lady in white looks a lot like you! At first glance, I thought it was you!” Tammy said in shock, “If you weren’t sitting next to me, I would have thought that it was you.”

Avery noticed it too. Where did Chelsea find a lady that looked so much like her?

“Avery, wait here for a while,” Tammy said before striding over to Chelsea.

Tammy wanted to have a closer look at the white-dressed lady!

Two minutes later, Tammy had a good look and returned to her seat.

“Avery, I think that woman had something done to her face to look like you! I immediately noticed that her face was made up. However, men might not be able to notice them,” Tammy speculated, “Chelsea must be trying to get Elliot to like her by any means necessary. I’m guessing that she wants to present this lady to Elliot!”

Avery’s expressions darkened. She lost her appetite.

At that moment, a commotion came from the entrance of the restaurant.

Avery looked over and saw Elliot in a dark-colored shirt and pants striding in under the protection of his bodyguard.

Chapter 592

“Heh! As expected!” Tammy sneered. “Chelsea brought that lady over to present her to Elliot.”

Avery retracted her gaze. Although she found it absurd, she could not control what other people do.

“How unlucky! We were initially in a good mood, yet we bumped into them.”

Tammy took a sip of water and looked at Avery. “Avery, why don’t we change to a different restaurant?”

Avery shook her head. “We came here first.”

“I’m afraid you’ll be upset.”

“Even if I’m upset, we can’t leave,” Avery said calmly, “We have already ordered the food. We can’t let it go to waste.”

“Why don’t we take it away and have it back home!”

Avery said, “Tammy, I don’t remember you being such a coward? If that lady has really done something to her face to look like me, then she should be afraid of seeing me, not me avoiding her.”

“Of course, I’m not a coward! Even if Elliot walks to me right now, I won’t be afraid!” Tammy might say that she was not afraid, but she subconsciously reached out her hand to touch the cheek that was slapped previously.

The waiter served them and placed the dishes on the table. Avery picked up her utensils and placed some food in her dish.

“When my mom was still alive, she often told me to let bygones be bygones. Whether it was a person or something. Don’t think about the past. Life will be less troublesome that way.”

Tammy said, “She put it well, but it’s hard to achieve this.”

“Hmm. My mom loves my father a lot. After their divorce, she could not get over it. It was until when my father passed away that the lawyers read his will. When she realized that he left the company and the core technology that he has been researching for me, she sobbed terribly, then only did she get over it. She felt that all the grievances that she went through were all worth it.”

“Sometimes I really hate it. Why a good person like Aunt Laura was killed but Wanda has not even received her retribution!” Tammy said through gritted teeth.

Avery lowered her gaze and said depressingly, “Let’s eat!”

On the other side, after Elliot saw the lady in the white dress, a hint of surprise flashed across his eyes.

“Elliot, this is my cousin, Nora,” Chelsea introduced her to Elliot, “She just graduated college. She’s been looking for a job recently. I’m thinking if she could work with me in the same company, I could look after her.”

“Hello, Elliot. I’m Nora,” Nora said gently.

Elliot looked at her face closely. It was too similar to Avery!

Would two unrelated people look alike in this world?

“Elliot, do you think that Nora looks a little like Avery?” When Chelsea saw how Elliot kept looking at Nora, she immediately explained, “She has been studying abroad all this while. I only saw her the day before yesterday.”

Nora said, “Chelsea said that I look like Avery, I didn’t believe her initially. It was until she showed me her photo that I realized I do look quite like her!”

Chelsea smiled and said, “Only about fifty percent or so. Nora is mixed. Her facial features are more protruding.”

Nora blushed. “Elliot, I wonder if you would let me work in your company?”

“What is your major?”

“Secretarial work,” Nora obediently replied, “Elliot, if I could work next to you, I will work hard. I won’t let you down.”

Elliot said coldly, “I’m not lacking secretaries. If you can’t find a job, I’ll introduce you to my friend’s company on behalf of Chelsea.”

Chelsea was stunned. Nora was baffled too.

“Elliot, I really want her to work for us. That way, I can take care of her easier,” Chelsea bore through the embarrassment and said shamelessly.

Elliot said, “Then, place her in your department.”

Nora’s eyes instantly reddened. Chelsea grabbed her hand under the table and said to Elliot, “Then, I’ll arrange for her to work in my department.”

Elliot said, “You don’t have to report such small matters to me.”

Chelsea did not expect that he would be so cold toward Nora. Nora looked a lot like Avery, but her facial features were much more exquisite than Avery's. Any man who looked at Nora would fall for her. Not only did Elliot not fall for her, but he detested her too.

Chapter 593

After Avery finished her meal, she put down her utensils.

Tammy followed suit. "Avery, let's go! Do you want to shop? If you want to shop, I'll accompany you."

Avery shook her head. "I had too much food. I'm a little sleepy."

"Then, I'll send you back," Tammy grabbed her bag and walked over to Avery, helping her up.

Avery suppressed her laughter, "You don't have to be so cautious. I can walk on my own."

"I just want to hold onto you!" Tammy touched Avery's tummy. "It sure does look quite big. You're wearing baggy clothes, so it doesn't look like it, but when I touch it, it's obvious. It's like a huge watermelon."

"It's clearly a small watermelon," replied Avery.

"Have you ever seen such a huge small watermelon? Sigh. We should be able to see the child's face already, right?" Tammy asked.

"Hmm. The doctors have shown me before the last time I was in Bridgedale."

"Who does the baby look like?"

Avery was silent for a few seconds before saying, "It looks like itself."

"Is the child a boy or a girl," Tammy pried nosily, "You should be able to know the sex of the baby at four months old right?"

Avery said, "I didn't ask."

"Okay then! Go back and rest well. I'll go with you to the hospital to get the results next week."

In the evening, Avery received a call from Tammy.

“Avery! I’m dying from laughter!” Tammy chuckled infectiously and said, “The lady we met in the afternoon is Chelsea’s younger cousin! Chelsea indeed wanted to present her cousin to Elliot, but she was cruelly rejected by Elliot! Hahaha!”

Avery listened to Tammy quietly.

“Because her cousin looks too much like you, Elliot was annoyed looking at her! Hahahaha!” Tammy’s laughter could not stop.

“Your slap has caused him trauma!”

Avery’s heart constricted tightly. She secretly sighed. She has completely broken up with Elliot.

That was good too. She would not have to argue with him because of the child in the future.

A week later, in the morning.

Avery left the house and drove to the hospital. After parking her car, she went to a nearby café to have some breakfast. She could not sleep the night before, so she was looking rather unwell.

Especially her body. She was feeling extremely exhausted, but she was eager to know the results, so she could not sleep.

Once it was eight in the morning, she immediately headed to the hospital to collect her results.

An hour later.

Tammy parked her car in front of Avery’s mansion. She came over to pick Avery up to head to the hospital to collect the results as they previously agreed upon.

Tammy entered the mansion and was about to head upstairs when the nanny said, "Avery is sleeping, don't wake her up."

"Okay! I'll wait for her here until she wakes up." Tammy sat on the sofa.

Half an hour later.

A black Rolls-Roice parked behind Tammy's car.

Elliot got out of the car and walked over to the gate and rang the doorbell.

Tammy saw his huge figure from afar and she was instantly baffled!

She ran upstairs to the master bedroom to wake Avery up!

"Avery! Elliot, that jerk is here! He must be here because of the child's report!"

Avery was sleeping soundly when she was woken up by the noise. It was uncomfortable.

With a groggy expression, Avery pointed at her bag on the table and said hoarsely, "The results are in the bag. Go give...it to him."

Chapter 594

Avery took the report downstairs. Elliot heard footsteps and looked up at the staircase.

Their eyes met. The awkward atmosphere was looming around the entire living area.

"Mr. Foster, what brings you here?" Although Tammy was a little afraid of him, she was in Avery's house. She had strong backup support.

Elliot ignored Tammy's strange attitude. His gaze fell on the report in her hands. "Is Avery still asleep?"

"Oh, you're here to take Avery to get the report?" Tammy said while flinging the report in her hand. "She has already taken it back."

"Give them to me." Elliot took two steps forward and reached his hand out.

Tammy hid the report behind her back and took a jab at him, "Has your face healed? I thought you wouldn't look for Avery anymore. I never thought that your child would be more important than your so-called ego!"

Elliot's expressions darkened immediately when he heard Tammy's mocks.

"You care about the child so much, is there a throne that the child needs to inherit?" Tammy would not let Elliot go that easily.

"Oh, your family has a huge business. There is indeed a throne that someone needs to succeed! It's a pity that God's will did not protect your child with Avery!"

Elliot's body stiffened. His sharp gaze looked at Tammy's face, not letting go of any changes in her expression. He tried to tell if she was telling the truth or not.

"Don't tell me you think I'm lying?" Tammy looked stunned.

Elliot could not see signs of lying on Tammy's face, but he did not believe her words just yet. It was unless Avery told him personally that they lost the child!

"Hand me the report!" Elliot barked, "Tammy, don't force me to beat you again!"

"Are you threatening me?" Tammy took a few steps back.

"If you hit me again, Avery won't let you go!"

"Hand me the report!" Elliot took two steps forward toward Tammy and grabbed her arm tightly with one hand while trying to get the report with the other hand!

"You bastard! It hurts!" Tammy felt as if her arm was about to break! She has regretted it! She should not have provoked him. This man was not afraid of anything when he got mad!

Elliot managed to snatch the report over from Tammy.

At that moment, Avery came downstairs. She furrowed her brows and looked at them. She said in confusion, "What the hell are you two doing?"

They were so loud that she could not sleep at all.

Tammy immediately ran over to her and said in a low voice, "I lied to him and said that you lost the child. I was trying to intimidate him, but he became angry..."

Avery said, "Aren't you just asking for trouble?"

Tammy said, "I don't like him! I don't want him to be so happy!"

Elliot lay his gaze on Avery for a short while before he lowered his head and looked at the report.

Although he could not understand the technical terms, he roughly understood the report.

Their child was most probably fine.

"Avery, is our child fine?" Due to his excitement, Elliot's voice was a little trembling.

"Will you be able to give birth to it?"

Avery said, "It's fine for the time being."

Elliot sighed heavily. Avery looked at his face. She had mixed emotions. She initially thought that he would not come to look for her that day. She never expected him to show up.

"Avery, since you have already gotten the report, I'll make a move." Tammy felt as if she was the third wheel. Although Avery and Elliot were no longer a couple, she felt that they might need to discuss the child.

After Tammy left, Elliot sat down on the sofa. Avery saw how Elliot was not planning on leaving, so she braced herself.

"You haven't done this month's maternity checkup, right?" Elliot said, breaking the silence.

Avery awkwardly responded. She was too tired that morning, so she returned after getting the report.

Elliot looked at her and saw her reddened eyes. Thus, he said, "Go and rest! I'll accompany you to the hospital for your checkup tomorrow."

Chapter 595

Avery initially wanted to sleep, but after being woken up by their noise, she no longer had the urge to sleep.

"Let's do it now then!" Avery headed upstairs to grab her bag.

A moment later, she returned with her bag in hand.

Elliot's gaze fell on her tummy. "Avery, do you not have a lift at home?"

"No." She knew what Elliot was thinking about. He was worried that she would be too exhausted climbing stairs, affecting the child in her tummy, but she was not exhausted at all.

Even if her tummy grew bigger at a later stage, she still could bring herself upstairs.

"Either you move downstairs, or you install a lift. Your choice," Elliot said to her in an unquestionable tone. "How am I going to install a lift? Are you asking me to tear down my house?" Avery glared at him.

"If I can't climb the stairs anymore, I'll naturally move downstairs."

Avery strode out of the house with Elliot following behind her.

When the bodyguard saw the two of them coming, he immediately opened the car door for them. They got in the car and headed to the hospital.

In the car, the atmosphere was rather cold.

Elliot suddenly reached his hand out and pressed a button. A screen in front of them suddenly rose, dividing the front and the back of the car into two.

Avery was baffled.

“Avery, since the child in you is fine, then give birth to him.” Elliot was afraid that Avery had forgotten their previous deal, so he reminded her and said, “The child is mine. When he is born, he will have the same surname as me. At the same time, I will raise him.”

Avery furrowed her brows. “You’re going to raise him? Do you even know how to raise children?”

Elliot replied, “I have money. I can hire a professional babysitter.

Avery said, “You weren’t this insistent previously. Is this because I hit you and you resented it, so you decided to steal the child from me?”

“What do you mean to steal? The child is mine!”

Avery saw how Elliot was not giving in. Her lips moved but no words came out. If he insisted that way, Avery had no choice at all.

“Also, I won’t resent you for hitting me,” Elliot’s thin lips moved. He enunciated, “But that makes me realize that you’re not worthy of my love.” His words were like needles pricking into her heart. It was not extremely painful but still uncomfortable.

Avery lowered her gaze. She hit him, so she has lost her right to speak.

“Avery, you’re the first woman ever to hit me.” Elliot took off his mask of pretense. He sounded aggrieved.

“If you loved me, you would never have hit me.”

Just like how he has flared up in front of her countless times, but he never once thought to hit her. He would rather harm himself than hurt her.

Avery was ashamed.

“I want the child.” Elliot quickly collected his emotions, and his voice resumed its coldness.

After a while, the car arrived at the hospital. Elliot brought Avery directly to the ultrasound department

The head of the department personally serviced Avery. Once Avery lay down, the head of the department placed the scanner on her tummy.

Instantly, on the screen, the child's face could be seen clearly!

Elliot stopped breathing! His deep-set eyes looked at the child's animated face on the screen.

Avery saw the child's face too. The child looked exactly like Hayden.

The head of the department glanced at Elliot and said with a wide smile, "The child looks like the father!"

Then, the head of the department moved the scanner further down. The child's body could be clearly seen on the screen. The child's sex was for all to see.

Chapter 596

"Mr. Foster, congratulations. It's a boy." The head of the department pointed at the child's body characteristics on the screen to Elliot.

Elliot swallowed his saliva and said hoarsely, "Let me have a look at his face."

The head of the department immediately moved the scanner up. It was a pity the child had already turned around. At that moment, they could only see his side profile.

"I have saved the photo of his front face just now." The head of the department tapped open the child's photo to show Elliot.

"Mr. Foster, your son looks just like you! It's already so obvious at first glance."

Elliot looked at the child's photo. His heart softened. This was the first time that he truly felt that the child was a complete living being. He suddenly understood why Avery was so angry previously when he got the doctors to give her medication. That was because she understood much earlier than him that the child was a living being.

“I’ll print the photo out for you later,” The head of the department said, “Let me have a look at how this child is developing.”

Elliot nodded his head.

A moment later, the head of the department said, “The child is on the smaller side. The mother needs to increase her nutrition intake. She has to rest more and not overexert herself.”

Elliot looked at Avery. Avery blushed a little. She got down from the bed and left. A moment later, Elliot walked out with the ultrasound scan.

They entered the lift without saying anything. Due to a lot of people in the hospital, the lift was rather crowded.

Elliot was afraid that Avery was squished, so he stood facing her, protecting her within him.

Avery could feel his gaze burning into her. She quickly lowered her gaze.

Soon, the lift was on the ground floor. He naturally held her hand and led her away.

“Avery, the doctor said that the child is not growing too well.” Coming out of the lift, Elliot said, “It’s going to come out in three to four months. Why don’t you stop working for the time being! If you need money, I can give it to you.” Avery retreated her hands from his grip. She looked at him. “The doctor did not ask me to stop working.”

The doctor asked you to rest more. You are a doctor too...” Elliot grabbed her hand once more, not letting her go.

“I don’t think I need to stop working just because I’m pregnant,” Avery interrupted him and said, “I don’t think I’m feeling uncomfortable. If I’m not feeling uncomfortable, I can work as usual.”

The child was in her tummy. If she wanted to work, Elliot could do nothing about that.

“Next time when you leave the house, you have to tell me.” Elliot requested. Avery found it hard to believe. “I’m a pregnant woman, not a prisoner under house arrest! I don’t need to report what I’m doing to you! Don’t try to threaten me with the child!”

Elliot furrowed his brows. “What do I need to do for you to understand that I’m caring for you, not harassing you!”

“Maybe other women would like your ways of so-called caring, but it’s not me.” Avery took her phone out and hailed a taxi.

“I’ll go back on my own. We’ll see each other at the next monthly checkup. Other than that, there is no need to contact each other.”

He said that she was not worthy of his love. He also said that he wanted the child in her tummy. At that thought, Avery could not accept his pretentious kindness!

If she did not have his child in her womb, he would not have cared for her.

Elliot looked at Avery vanishing within his sight. He clenched his fists tightly.

She always had a way to make him suffer.

However, at that moment, other than suffering, he had an extra son. It was not as if he had nothing

When he returned to the office, he switched on his computer. Chelsea knocked on the door and entered.

“Elliot, I heard that you went for a checkup with Avery. How’s everything?”

When Chelsea finished talking, she saw the ultrasound scan on the desk.

Chelsea picked the ultrasound scan up. She saw the child looking like Elliot and a wave of detest rose from the bottom of her heart.

“This little buddy looks like you! It’s a boy, right?” Chelsea asked with a smile.

Elliot responded and kept the ultrasound scan. “Why are you here?”

Chelsea smiled gently.

“Elliot. Congratulations! You’re going to be a father! This kid looks so much like you. I’m sure he’ll be as amazing as you are.”

Elliot’s expressions subconsciously relaxed. At that moment, that child was his only hope.

Chelsea came out of his office and remained smiling all the way back to heree office.

The moment she entered her office, her expression immediately changed!

She was furious!

Their child was fine! How could God be so cruel to her!

Nora entered her office and saw the documents scattered on the floor. She immediately asked, “Chelsea, what happened?”

“Hehe, what happened? I regretted it!” Chelsea gritted her teeth. “Because he doesn’t like children, so I removed my womb so that he wouldn’t be so on guard with me! Look what has happened now! He has a son with Avery!”

Nora picked up the documents on the floor and placed them on the table.

“Chelsea, you sacrificed too much for him, which is why he took you for granted.”

“I know! But if I don’t sacrifice, I don’t even have the chance to be near him!

Look at you! You’ve done yourself up to look like Avery, but has he ever glanced at you? He has always been so cruel and elusive!”

“Chelsea, don’t get so worked up. We’re sisters. United, how are we not a match for Avery?” Nora had a condescending look.

“As long as she has not given birth to the child, nothing counts!”

Chelsea took a deep breath. “I won’t let Avery give birth to that bastard of a child! I would have been able to bear children! Elliot cannot do this to me!”

In the afternoon, Elliot got his assistant to contact Eric.

Eric and his manager arrived at Sterling Group under the protection of a bodyguard.

“Avery asked me to return this to you.” Elliot returned Eric his black card.

Eric raised his eyebrows a little and accepted the card. “It’s you that wanted to return me the card, right? Avery accepted it previously.”

“Is that so? Why did you give her a credit card? Is this one of your tricks in wooing women?” Elliot’s gaze was sharp. His tone was even more so.

Eric said, “This is something between her and I. Mr. Foster, as her exhusband, aren’t you a little too nosy?”

“Ex-husband? The child she is pregnant with right now is mine!”

“That doesn’t change the fact that you are just her ex-husband. Whether I gave her a credit card or if other men did that to her, she has the freedom to accept them. Even if she is pregnant with your child, she still could get married to other men. You have no right to interfere,” Eric said calmly.

Elliot’s eyes reddened, aggravated by Eric’s words!

“Are all young men like you so shameless nowadays? You want to be my child’s step-father? You must be sick of living!”

Eric said, “Mr. Foster. Age has not made you into a more cultured person. You are extremely rude.”

Elliot said, “F*ck off!”

After Eric left, Elliot took his phone and made a call. He wanted Eric to know what would happen if he coveted his women!

The next day, all of Eric's works were taken off the internet. All brands started terminating their contracts with him.

Eric was the only celebrity who was boycotted without any scandal. No matter how famous he was, he could not beat the power of capitalism.

Avery did not notice the news on the internet. She only knew about this when his manager called her.

"I've already found out who is behind this! It is Elliot boycotting Eric! Miss Tate, I'm begging you! Please go and talk to Elliot!"

Chapter 598

Avery was shocked! She could not believe it! How could Elliot do that! Why did he boycott Eric? Why! Eric's manager recounted the incident painfully, "Elliot's assistant contacted me yesterday, saying he wanted to meet Eric. So, I brought Eric over to Sterling Group. As for what they talked about when they met, I don't know, but when Eric came out of Elliot's office, he looked glum. They must have fought. I never thought that Eric would be boycotted..."

Avery said, "How is Eric right now?"

His manager replied, "He is still alright. After all, if he quit the entertainment industry, he could still return home and take over his family's business, but I don't want him to quit! He was born a celebrity! Miss Tate, you have to help Eric!"

Avery said, "Don't worry, I'll go look for Elliot right now."

His manager sighed in relief. "Thank you!"

After the call, Avery went through her contacts and found Elliot's. Elliot and Eric did not have any personal contact with each other. If they met, it must be because Elliot was returning the card back to Eric.

Throughout this process, there must be some conflict between them. In the end, this matter happened because of her.

Just when she was about to call Elliot, her office door had been pushed open. Mike strode in. "Avery, Eric has been boycotted! I called Chad. He said that he had left with Elliot this morning on a business trip. They are not in Avonsville!"

Avery was stunned. Elliot did it on purpose. He must have! He was afraid that she would look for him, so he went on a business trip!

Avery pressed the dial with trembling hands.

"I'm sorry, the number you have dialed is not in service, please try again later."

Not only was he on a business trip, but he also even shut his phone!

His intentions were clear. He wanted to boycott Eric! He was not willing to let her look for her to talk about this!

Avery was so furious her temples hurt.

"Avery, don't get angry! It will affect the baby! He can't be on a business trip forever," Mike comforted her.

"Let Eric treat these few days as a holiday."

Avery found it unacceptable. "Where is he off to?"

Mike immediately tried to persuade her.

"Are you going to look for him? Didn't you say that the child isn't growing well, and you have to rest properly? Calm down! Don't be so impulsive! Mike said and poured her a cup of water.

Avery accepted the cup of water and drank it all. The rage in her heart was still burning violently.

Elliot bullying Eric meant that he was also bullying her! Did Elliot think that she would just obediently let him bully her?

“Mike, go and book a hotel. At the same time, invite all media. This evening at seven. I am going to announce an important matter.” Avery said to Mike with sparkling eyes.

Mike furrowed his brows. “Avery, what are you trying to do? Don’t tell me you’re going to announce to the media that you and Eric are together?”

Avery did not reply to his question. “Just do it.”

At six in the evening, the Tate Industries announced on their Tweeter. It said, [7 p.m., see you there!]

After the text, were the tagged accounts of the brands that dropped Eric from their endorsement.

At the same time, a live stream link was posted too.

The live stream had not started at that moment, so no one could see what was streaming at that moment, but from the tagged accounts on the Tweet, the live stream would most likely have something to do with Eric.

An hour later, the live stream began. The host that night was Avery’s secretary.

Chapter 599

Chapter 599 Avery’s secretary faced the camera and smiled. She said with an insuppressible excitement, “Good evening, everyone! Welcome to Tate Industries’ live stream! I’ll cut to the chase! Please give a hand and welcome our President, Miss Avery Tate!”

A deafening round of applause rang out.

Avery was in a V-neck evening gown. The gown exposed her perfect figure.

Her baby bump was for all to see!

The other person that appeared on stage together with her was Eric! He was helping with her gown's train.

The views watching the live stream shot up immediately, growing constantly.

Comments kept coming in too!

[Back when the Tate Industries was in trouble, Eric appeared and helped them! This time, Eric is in trouble and the Tate Industries lends him a helping hand! I'm so touched by this friendship!]

[I will always remember the brands that canceled their contract with Eric! I will never buy their products anymore! I will remember Tate Industries! I will be the first one to buy their new products in the future!]

[Eric is too hot! Ahhhhhh! Babe! No one can boycott you ever! No! One!]

[Has anyone noticed Avery's baby bump? She's pregnant! Whose child is it? Could it be Eric!]

[Avery's child can't be Eric's! Eric has said if he ever was in a relationship, he would tell the fans!]

...

Avery that night was not only wearing a sexy evening gown, but she also made up intricately. She was so attractive that she did not lose out standing next to Eric. They were like a pair match made in heaven.

Avery accepted the microphone from her secretary. She faced the camera, smiled, and said, "Hello everyone online and our media friends here, good evening! I believe that everyone has seen today's news. This incident happened too suddenly. It's absolutely absurd! I'm now announcing that I have decided to invite Eric Santos to be the spokesperson for all our products."

"Back then, when Tate Industries was in danger, Eric stood up for us bravely. He helped us through a tough time. I will forever be indebted to Eric. Today onward, Tate Industries and Eric Santos will go forth hand in hand. I believe that nothing can't be overcome."

Upon Avery's words, the audience burst out in rapturous applause.

At the same time, the fans of Eric on the live stream started swiping streamer gifts!

When Avery's secretary saw the fireworks going on the screen, she could not help but exclaim, "Miss Tate! Eric's fans are giving us a lot of gifts!"

Avery firmly said, "Turn off the gifting function."

The secretary immediately shut down that function. The comments online went crazy!

[No wonder Avery is Eric's goddess! From today onward, she is also my goddess!]

[If we can't swipe gifts, then I can only buy their drones!]

[To all of Eric's fans! Now, only Tate Industries are supporting Eric. Let's go boost Tate Industries' sales! Supporting Tate Industries means we are supporting Eric!]

The brands that had canceled their contract with Eric that day were bewildered upon seeing that. Elliot forced them to drop Eric as their spokesperson. They canceled Eric's contract on behalf of Elliot.

However, at that moment, Avery live-streamed on the internet, openly collaborating with Eric. What the hell was that?

One of the brand managers comforted them, "Don't worry! Mr. Foster will surely teach Avery a lesson! By tomorrow, she will surely cancel her contract with Eric!"

"But I heard they were once in a relationship."

"That was in the past! Mr. Foster is now single."

“Oh, whose child is Avery carrying? Do any of you know?”

“No matter who it is, it will definitely not be Mr. Foster’s!”

Elliot was looking at the live stream. His brows furrowed tighter and tighter.

The gown that Avery was wearing that night exposed half of her breasts. She exposed her tummy unabashedly too. On top of that, she was properly made up. It was as if she changed into a different person. His gaze was frigid as if he could murder someone!

Chapter 600

In the black Rolls-Roice, after Chad accepted a phone call, he looked at Elliot.

“Mr. Forster, Mike just called me. He invited me to head to the hotel to have a meal,” Chad hesitated, “Do you want to come along?”

Elliot’s expressions darkened. “They didn’t invite me. Why should I go?”

Chad said awkwardly, “I heard that Avery called you this morning, but she could not get through to you. Why don’t...you two meet and talk? Don’t look at her smiling so much in the live stream tonight. Mike said that she was extremely angry. I’m guessing that she wore this tonight to deliberately make you angry.” .

Elliot’s gaze darkened. “How do you know she did not wear it for Eric?”

Chad could feel Elliot’s rage, he dared not say much more.

At the hotel, Eric was teaching everyone how to control the latest drone model of Tate Industries. Later, under the enthusiastic request of everyone, he sang for them too.

The live stream suddenly became an online concert!

Avery came down from the stage. Mike took a light jacket and wanted to put it on her but Avery refused.

"I'm not cold." Avery placed her palms on the back of his hands to let him feel her body temperature.

"Pregnant ladies are afraid of the heat."

"Okay then! Just now, a few reporters came to ask me. They are very interested in the father of your child," Mike said, "It looks like the viewers for tonight's live stream have already exceeded my expectations. By tomorrow, almost everyone on the internet will know that you're pregnant."

Avery has thought about this outcome before, but she was not afraid.

"Pregnancy is not an embarrassing thing. If they know about it, let them be."

"But you're not married!" Mike pointed out the main issue.

"So the public would especially want to know who the father is." Avery said, "If they want to know it, that's their issue. It doesn't have to affect my life."

"Oh... Aren't you afraid that they would find out that the child's father is Elliot?" Mike twisted open the cap of a water bottle and passed it to her.

"I can't possibly just stay home and not see others because I'm afraid that they might know about this, right?" Avery accepted the water bottle and took a sip.

"Furthermore, I'm doing this tonight because he forced my hand."

Mike shifted his gaze downward. He glanced below her neck.

"This is the first time I have seen you wear such sexy clothes. Why did I never know that you have such a good body? I'm sure someone will go mad tonight! Hahaha!"

Avery knew who the someone he was referring to, but she did not care about that someone's feelings.

"Are you tired? If you're tired, I'll send you back first," Mike said, "I called Chad. He said he and his boss had already returned, so I called him over to have a meal. He...might bring Elliot along too." Avery raised her eyebrows.

“Who allowed you to invite Chad over?” Mike scratched his head. “Your fight with Elliot should not affect my relationship with Chad!”

“Okay, fine! I’m not tired. I’ll leave with Eric later.” Avery stuffed the bottle of water in Mike’s hand.

“I’ll go listen to Eric singing.”

A moment later, after Eric finished his song, he invited Avery up on stage to sing a duet with him.

Everyone’s gaze fell on Avery. She blushed a little. She smiled, lifted the train of her gown, and was about to walk upstage.

At that moment, at the entrance of the venue, a huge figure in black appeared.

Mike noticed Elliot who was beside Chad. He was a little stunned but not too surprised.

Chapter 601

Avery pushed Mike’s hand away and collected her thoughts before walking up on stage. She accepted the microphone from her secretary and faced Eric,

Even in the crowd could only see her side profile, they could still clearly see the tip of her beautiful, raised eyebrows. The intro of the song played and they both looked at each other on stage, as if everything around had nothing to do with them.

Elliot walked to the front of the stage. The bodyguard pushed the people away from him. The atmosphere there was extremely strange! No one expected that Elliot would come!

The insiders all vaguely heard that it was he who boycotted Eric. Therefore, they were even more stumped as to why he appeared there. Was he there to find fault with Eric or Avery? Whatever happened next would be something to watch.

Mike noticed that Elliot’s gaze did not seem right. He immediately sent Chad a message. When they have finished singing, I'll take Avery away. Keep your boss in place! Don't let him get up on the stage to cause a scene! We're still live streaming!

Chad replied, [I'll try to keep him in check!]

Mike texted, [Count for yourself and see. How many times has this happened? He clearly knows that he is no match for Avery, yet he still wants to make her angry every time! I'm so done with him!]

Chad replied, [Shut up! It's their affair, let them deal with it! No matter what we say, they'll still do it their way.]

Mike replied, [Okay. Avery looks gorgeous tonight, right?]

Chad swept a glance at Avery on stage.

[From the side, her tummy looks huge!]

Mike texted, [Out of all things you only bloody saw her belly?]

Chad replied, [If not? Should I look at her boobs? She is Mr. Foster's woman! I won't dare to look!]

Mike replied, [...]

Once the four-minute love ballad duet ended, Mike strode up on stage and grabbed Avery's arm, leading her off stage.

Elliot's expressions were extremely darkened by then.

Once Avery left the stage, Eric immediately placed the microphone down and followed her.

Chad carefully said to Elliot, "Mr. Foster, why don't you go and talk to Avery!"

Elliot's cold gaze retracted from Avery.

"She wants to talk? Sure! Get her to come to my house to look for me! I don't want to see that baby face!" Elliot spat before storming off.

Everyone was baffled at him leaving angrily. He only came to listen to one song before leaving. They thought that something dramatic would happen! Chad walked over to Avery and passed on the message.

“Avery, don’t go and look for him!” Eric grabbed Avery’s arm and pleaded.

“Even if I quit the entertainment industry, I don’t want you to look for him!”

Avery looked at Eric gently and said calmly, “Hmm, I won’t look for him. I’m a little tired. I’ll head back to rest. There will be a dinner banquet later, have some food before you leave.”

Eric let go of Avery’s arm.

Half an hour later, the bodyguard sent her home. Avery directly went upstairs, removed her makeup, showered, and changed into a comfortable pair of pajamas.

After doing all that, she picked up her phone on the bed and looked at the time. It was almost ten at night. Would it be inappropriate if she went to his house to look for him then?

Chapter 602

If Avery did not look for Elliot that night, she would surely lose sleep. She hoped that Eric’s career would resume as soon as possible, if not she would continue to worry.

After a short moment of hesitation, she came out of her room. The children were already asleep. The entire house was in pin-dropped silence. She could even hear her heart beating.

What was she afraid of? She was pregnant with his child at that moment. No matter what, he would not dare to harm her.

The nanny and the bodyguard have left work. Avery drove to Elliot’s mansion on her own.

40 minutes later, her car parked by his gate. She came out of the car. The guards saw her face clearly with the help of the streetlights and immediately opened the gates.

Avery was pregnant with Elliot's child at that moment, who would dare to stop her?

Avery walked to the door of the mansion. Mrs. Cooper immediately came over and bent down, changing shoes for Avery.

"I can change them on my own," Avery immediately stopped her.

Mrs. Cooper said, "Avery, you're pregnant with a child right now. Don't bend down if you can. Mr. Foster said that you're coming, so I made you some. Soup."

Even though Avery had some food in the evening, she was still quiteec hungry.

"He told you that I'm coming?" Avery's heart skipped a beat.

"Yes! He got me to prepare some food." Mrs. Cooper changed Avery's shoes and helped her toward the dining hall.

"I made your favorite dishes, but I don't know if you still have the appetite for them. Many pregnant women's tastes changed drastically before and after pregnancy!" Avery was a little in a daze. She was there to look for Elliot, not to have supper. However, Mrs. Cooper was a little too enthusiastic, it was hard for Avery to refuse her.

After sitting down by the dining table, Mrs. Cooper served her three dishes and a bowl of soup, as well as some potatoes, placing them in front of her.

After taking a sip of the soup, Avery asked, "Is Elliot asleep? I'm looking for him."

It was almost eleven at night. Avery regretted a little for being too impulsive.

Mrs. Cooper said firmly, "No. He knows that you're coming. How could he have gone to bed?Once you're done eating, I'll go get him." Avery let out a sigh of relief.

"Hmm. The soup tastes good."

"Drink less, if not you might have to get up to pee in the middle of the night.

This would affect your sleep quality." Mrs. Cooper smiled, but her eyes seemed rather sad.

"Avery, your tummy is quite big already, you shouldn't get angry so often. If there are any problems, communicate them well..."

Avery said, "Hmm, I will talk to him properly."

After supper, Avery came out from the dining hall. Elliot was in casual loungewear, sitting at home. She did not know when he came downstairs.

Avery walked over to him. She was about to say something when he said,

"Why didn't you wear that slutty dress over? Am I not worthy enough for it?"

His cold voice caused ripples in her calm heart. She wanted to talk to him properly, but clearly, Elliot did not want to.

"Elliot, don't be unreasonable! I'll wear what I want!" Avery blushed. She sat opposite him on the sofa. "It's late. I'll cut to the chase. Undo your boycott on Eric. This is our affair. I do not want to affect the innocent."

"Innocent? He wants to become my child's stepfather. Do you think he is innocent?" Elliot smirked and sneered.

"If I don't teach him a lesson, that baby face will disrespect me!"

"Can you stop saying such harsh words? He gave me his card for me to keep. When he gets married, I'll return it to him. That's all!"

Avery could not help but raise her tone.

Chapter 603

"Why do you need to help him keep his card? Are you his mother? Will you automatically have a motherly love every time you look at good-looking guys?" Elliot enunciated every word aggressively.

Avery furrowed her brows. Her mind blanked instantly. She long knew that it would be impossible to reason with this man. To avoid her losing her temper and waking the others in the mansion, Avery got up from the sofa and walked over to him.

"Let's talk in the room."

Elliot quickly got up from the sofa upon hearing what Avery said. He clutched her arm and brought her to his bedroom.

The moment the room door closed, Avery cut to the chase and said, "Elliot, I don't want to waste my time with you. By tomorrow, I must see Eric's work back on the internet! You can bully me, but you can't bully my friends! If you think I'm threatening you, then so be it!"

"Are you threatening me with the child in you?" Elliot's gaze fell on her belly.

She smiled as if he was mocking her.

Avery would never do a thing to hurt the child, so it was pointless to use the child to threaten him.

Avery looked at him smiling. She was secretly annoyed.

"Elliot, you're childish! Didn't you go on a business trip and not answer my calls? Now you're forcing me to come to look for you. The most pathetic person is you!" The smile on Elliot's face vanished.

"Is this your attitude begging me?"

"I'm here to talk to you, not to beg you. Don't think that just because you're rich you could simply decide how other people live! If you don't undo the boycott on Eric by tomorrow, I'll continue with the live stream!" Avery said, "I don't think you would dare to boycott me?"

Of course, Elliot would not dare to do so. If he dared to do anything to her, he would have done something already on the live stream that night!

Elliot looked at Avery's slightly raised chin. He swallowed his saliva.

"Continue live3c streaming?"

"Yes! I have already thought about the content tomorrow!" Avery looked at the fire of anger raging in his eyes. She added fuel to the fire, aggravating him even more.

"I'll announce to everyone who the father of my child is! Many asked me this question today. I believe that they must be interested in this!"

Elliot pursed his lips hard. His breathing turned heavy. If she were to announce to the entire internet who the father of her child was, he did not mind. He only worried about her and the child's safety.

Avery saw how her words did not manage to threaten him, she thought hard to come up with something else.

"If you insist on boycotting Eric, I don't need to save you anymore." Avery took a deep breath and decided to go all out.

"The live stream the day after before, I will announce that even though the father of my child isn't Eric, I want to be with him!"

Eric's eyes suddenly turned vicious. Avery was so frightened she took a few steps back. Just when she was planning to secretly retreat to the exit and then run out of the door, she was lifted by him.

If she was not pregnant at that moment, Elliot would definitely have directly thrown her on the bed. However, he did not completely lose it! when he placed Avery down on the bed, he clearly controlled his strength.

"Elliot, you..."

"Shut up! I don't want to hear a single word coming from you any more tonight! If you dare defy me, I'll make sure that you won't be able to get out of bed tomorrow!" Elliot threatened her rudely and savagely in a hoarse voice.

He looked at her with reddened eyes.

Avery was so frightened she shut up. That night was long and torturous. He released all of the anger and resentment in him.

After doing the deed, he touched her belly with his huge palms. It was as if then only he remembered about the child in her tummy. When he slept soundly, she carefully picked up his phone.

Chapter 604

Dawn soon came.

A breaking piece of news quickly filled up the headlines of all internet media!

[Elliot Foster: I Did Not Boycott Eric Santos.]

The headline was straightforward and eye-catching!

Tapping into the headline, one could see the entire press release. Although the article was not long, its intention was clear. Elliot pointed out that he was not familiar with Eric. He did not boycott Eric. He would not do it then, he would not do it in the future.

The brands who canceled their contract with Eric were bewildered!

What did Elliot mean! What did he mean! Was Elliot two-faced?

Elliot's phone was blasted by calls and messages, but that did not affect his sleep, because his phone was off.

Everyone could not get to Elliot, so they could only call Chad instead. Chad had been drinking the night before. When he was woken up by the ringing of his phone, his head hurt terribly because he was hungover.

Who would have thought that his head hurt even worse when he picked up the call!

"News? What news? Mr. Foster would never say such a thing!" Chad got up and looked for his glasses.

“Don’t panic. Let me ask what it is all about before giving you all a reply.”

After hanging up, Chad put on his glasses and simply opened one of the newsec app.

When he saw the news article, he furrowed his brows in a daze for a very long time.

“What happened?” Mike noticed that Chad sat there without moving, so he sat up as well.

Chad showed Mike the news.

“Avery must have gone to look for Mr. Foster last night. Mr. Foster will never approve an article like this. He would never say something like ‘I didn’t do it’. This is not his style.”

Mike glanced at the news and said distractedly, “Are you saying that Avery sent this article out?”

“Yes.” Chad rubbed his temples.

“It’s too awkward. The brands that dropped Eric were all baffled. They must have thought that Mr. Foster has a split personality.”

Mike could not help but laugh out loud, “What does your boss being humiliated have to do with you? Furthermore, he was the one that got himself into this. I can only say that he deserved it!”

“Bloody hell! I must quickly think of a way,” Chad said and tried to call Elliot.

Elliot’s phone was switched off. He must have still been asleep.

Chad also tried calling Avery. Her phone was off too!

“Why is Avery’s phone off too? I suspect she must have spent the night at Mr. Foster’s.” Chad wanted to confirm his suspicions, so he dialed the landline of Elliot’s mansion.

Mrs. Cooper picked up the phone.

“Mrs. Cooper, did Avery look for Mr. Foster last night?” Chad asked.

“Hmm! They are still resting!” Mrs. Cooper said with a smile.

Chad’s face turned hot.

“Okay, I understand.”

In the master bedroom in Elliot’s mansion. The sun shone through the window. Elliot slowly opened his eyes. He smelled a unique body aroma only belonging to her.

Looking at Avery sleeping soundly, his attitude turned extremely gently. He liked it when she was silent and obedient. How good it would be if she could always stay submissively by his side.

He could not help but touch her cheeks. The instant his fingers came in contact with her skin, she furrowed her brows a little. Avery let out a very soft hmm as if she was trying to complain.

Elliot could not bear to wake her up, so he stopped touching her. When he covered her with the sheets, he saw her baby bump and his heart melted.

Inside her was their son. He looked forward to the arrival of the little kid. He would work hard to be a good father.

Elliot actually did not hate children. He was only afraid that his children would inherit his sickness. Thus, he would rather not have kids than painfully pass on his sickness to them.

This was a pain he could tell anyone.

After tucking her in, he got out of the bed. He washed up and headed down for breakfast. Mrs. Cooper saw how spirited he looked, she smiled and said, “Chad called just now.”

Chapter 605

“What did he say?” Elliot sat in his chair, picked up the glass of milk, and took a sid.

“He asked about Avery and hung up.”

After breakfast, Elliot went upstairs to get his phone. Chad called him so early in the morning. Something must have happened.

Elliot picked his phone up and pressed the power button once. The screen did not light up as he expected. He pressed the power button longer. His phone turned on. He furrowed his brows. He did not remember switching off his phone the night before, why was his phone switched off?

Once his phone was on a bunch of missed calls and messages. His chest tightened and tapped into these messages.

[Mr. Foster, have you seen the news today? I've seen it and lost all appetite for breakfast.]

[Mr. Foster, what is your stance on Eric Santos? I don't understand. I'm in shock.]

[Mr. Foster, are you not boycotting Eric anymore? Can we partner up with him again?]

After looking at the messages, Elliot looked at the woman sleeping soundly on the bed with a cold gaze. Before breakfast he was still gently caressing her face, thinking of doting on her his entire life.

At that moment, he only thought of torturing her badly until she begs for forgiveness!

However, the moment the idea appeared, he got rid of it immediately. She was still pregnant with his child at that moment. He could not be reckless!

If he wanted to be a competent father, he would have to learn how to control his emotions! He grabbed his phone and left the room.

When Elliot arrived at the Sterling Group, Chad immediately entered his office.

“Mr. Foster, I was talking to Public Relations just now. Right now, we have two options,” Chad suggested solutions, “The first is to deny today’s news and say that you have never said anything about Eric.”

After Chad suggested the first solution, Elliot threw his phone on the desk.

Chad picked up Elliot’s phone and noticed his email account. There was an email that was sent by ‘him’ to some reporter at three in the morning.

When Chad read the message, a chill ran down his back, spreading throughout his entire body.

“Uhm Avery sent this from your phone after you fell asleep?”.

Elliot’s gaze was so cold he could murder someone.

“What do you think?” Would he have done such a humiliating thing to himself?

Chad did not know whether to laugh or to cry.

“Then, we can only use the second solution, which is to generously compensate the brands.”

Money was nothing to Elliot. The thing that made him furious was how Avery humiliated him! She crossed a line!

Could he not have discussed it with her before deciding? Did she have to secretly send the reporters an email behind his back?

“Mr. Foster, don’t you have a lock setting on your phone?” Chad kindly suggested, “Why don’t you set one now in case something like this happens again?”

“Can I lock her up?” Elliot said coldly, “She could still use my thumb to unlock the phone when I’m asleep!”

Chad forgot about this point. They slept with each other again the night before.

This once again proved that Elliot could not resist Avery!

At Elliot’s mansion, because no one disturbed Avery, so she slept all the way until noon.

When she woke up, the memories of the night before flooded her mind. Her face turned hot!

Avery did not dare to stay too long in Elliot's house. After dressing up, she secretly went downstairs and decided to sneak off.

"Avery, are you not going to explain yourself?" Elliot had a cup of coffee in his hands. He gritted his teeth and said, "If you dare take a step out of the door, I will break your legs!"

Chapter 606

When Avery heard Elliot's voice, a chill ran down her back.

Did Elliot not go to work, or did he wait for her to wake up at home?

Avery awkwardly turned around and looked at him. Elliot was in a suit, with a serious expression on his face.

The sun shone in through the window and fell on him, yet it made him look even more aloof.

"I did take your phone to send out an email," Avery came clean, "I'll admit that it's wrong of me to take your phone without your permission, but you did not talk to me before you boycotted Eric."

Avery admitted her mistakes, but she did not regret making them.

"Avery..."

"Why are you calling me? Are you trying to settle a score with me? I didn't say I wanted to stay with you last night, you thug!" Avery raised her chin and retorted, "If I were you, I would shut up and just let this thing go."

Elliot was at a loss of words upon hearing what Avery said.

Mrs. Cooper saw how they were arguing, she immediately came over to pacify the situation.

"Avery, lunch is ready. You should be hungry, right? Come and have lunch!"

Avery's stomach grumbled before Avery could refuse. She did not have breakfast that morning, so she was famished at that moment.

Ever since she got pregnant, her appetite increased tremendously. Even at times, she might feel slightly nauseated, but that did not affect her appetite either.

Elliot at that moment felt as if a bucket of cold water had just been doused over him. All his emotions calmed down.

"Master Elliot, go have some food too! Don't get angry with Avery. She's pregnant with a child now and it's tough for her too."

After Avery left for the dining hall, Mrs. Cooper went to Elliot and took over the cup of coffee from him. Mrs. Cooper's advice worked.

So, what if Avery took his phone and emailed reporters? It was not as if she sent out his nudes. It was just a slight humiliation. Compared to his embarrassment, the child in Avery was obviously more important in the dining hall. They sat opposite each other.

Avery was starving, so she buried her head and ate with vigor.

"Slow down, don't choke on your food," Elliot reminded with furrowed brows.

Avery paused for a while before calmly scooping a spoonful of soup and drinking it down.

Perhaps she had enough food already, she suddenly felt like talking to him.

"Elliot, I heard that you have a new staff member that looks like me."

"Are you talking about Chelsea's cousin?"

"Do you think she looks like me?" Avery placed the bowl of soup down and calmly looked at him.

Elliot said, "Only on the outside."

“Oh, do you think she looks better than me?”

Elliot looked up at her. “Have you had enough food already? You’re asking such lame questions.”

“Why are you not answering me? If you say that she looks prettier, I won’t do anything to you. I’m not like you, who gets angry so easily,” Avery provoked, forcing Elliot to answer her question.

Elliot put down the utensils in his hand. He wiped his mouth with a napkin and said seriously, “If I think that she’s prettier than you to the point that it’s dazzling, the woman laying next to me in my bed last night would be her and not you.”

Avery was speechless. He could have just answered the question. Why must he bring up the incident the night before?

Looking at her scrunched-up brows, Elliot teased, “Now who’s the one who said that they don’t get angry easily?”

“I’m not angry. I just think that this is a little disgusting,” Avery said what was making her unhappy, “Could it be that they think I attracted you because of my looks? How absurd. I am so much better on the inside.”

Looking at how self-absorbed she was, the coldness in his eyes vanished. He teased in a hoarse voice, “Yes, I was dazzled by your inner beauty last night.”

Avery had goosebumps upon hearing what Elliot said.

“I’m full. I’ll make a move first.” “I’ll send you off.” Elliot got up and chased after her.

Chapter 607

“No need.” Avery regretted it terribly. She should not have chatted with him.

At that moment, not only could she not continue the conversation, but she was also feeling awkward too.

“Avery, I still have something to talk to you about. I’ll send you home. We can talk on the way, “Elliot’s tone was unquestionable.

Avery grabbed her bag and followed behind him. Coming out of the mansion, he reached his hand out to her.

“Pass me the keys.”

“How are you going to come back later?”

After asking this question, Avery saw from the corner of her eyes that his bodyguard had driven another car over.

Avery sighed secretly. No matter where Elliot went, his bodyguard would follow along. Why did she need to worry about him?

After getting in the car, Elliot drove the car calmly. After the meal, Avery’s blood sugar spiked, so she was a little dizzy.

“Avery, what are your plans for the children during their summer break?” Elliot asked the question he wanted to discuss with Avery about.

Avery furrowed her brows and suddenly she was no longer groggy. Elliot was so concerned for Hayden and Layla. Did he already know that they were his children?

Looking at how sensitive her reaction was, Elliot could not help but explain,

“You’re pregnant now. It’ll be harder to care for the kids. Why don’t you sign them up for summer camp?”

“Oh, Hayden’s school has arranged his summer holidays. As for Layla, I haven’t decided whether I want to sign her up for any summer activities,” Avery said conflictingly.

“You can discuss it with her, see what she wants to do.”

“I know. You don’t have to worry about this.” Avery looked at Elliot’s side profile. She hesitated for two seconds before saying, “Elliot, if you really want me to properly stay healthy for the child, you will stop bullying my friends.”

Elliot furrowed his brows. “Avery, the people you should warn are your friends. They were the ones that made me angry in the first place.”

“Of course, I’ll tell them to stay as far away from you as possible, but can you control your temper?” Avery said seriously.

“In your heart, your friends are always more important than me.”

Avery’s temples hurt. What was the point in comparing?

To prove that he indeed wanted Avery to stay healthy for the child and not make her angry, Elliot turned on the music and ended the argument.

Elliot drove to the Starry River Villa, but he did not enter together with Avery.

When Avery entered and changed shoes, she saw Elliot getting into the bodyguard’s car from the corner of her eye.

This man was indeed stubborn and proud. If he insisted that he was not in the wrong, even if you grabbed his head, he would never admit that he was in the wrong.

“Avery, have you eaten?” The nanny asked her immediately when she saw Avery returning.

“Yes.” Avery sat on the sofa and saw a few letters on the coffee table.

“Hayden took this home last night,” The nanny explained, “Also, Layla’s summer break is starting tomorrow. Mike went to attend her school activity today.”

Avery opened the letter. It was detailed information about the summer camp.

She looked at where the summer camp was happening, it was in Bridgedale.

Avery could accompany Hayden to Bridgedale. Then, she would see if Hayden could adapt to the summer camp activities. If he could fit in, she would return alone. If not, she would bring Hayden back together with her.

In the afternoon, Avery drove to her office. The moment she entered the office, the vice president pushed and entered her office too.

“Miss Tate, the live stream last night was amazing! Our sales increased tremendously today!” The vice president smiled widely.

“There are rumors on the internet saying that this is a tactic that you did with Elliot. Now the entire internet knows about our company!”

Avery laughed self-deprecatingly.

“Then should we have given Elliot some commission?”

The smile on the vice president stiffened.

“Did you really join forces with Elliot?!”

Avery said, “Can you use your brain for a second? Do you think that’s possible?”

The vice president said, “It’s possible! Isn’t the father of the child in you Elliot?”

The entire company knows about it!”

Chapter 608

Avery was stunned.

“Initially everyone was just privately discussing who the father of your child is.

Last night, Elliot suddenly arrived. Although he said nothing, he kept looking at you. It’s too obvious!” The vice president chuckled.

Avery said, “Eric was also looking at me last night.”.

“That’s different. If the child is Eric’s why would Elliot continue harping over you? Elliot is not the type who would let himself lose.” The vice president said vividly.

Avery opened her laptop.

The vice president continued, “Elliot boycotted Eric. So many big brands chose to cancel their contract with Eric because they did not dare to defy Only our company would dare to do so, why? Because you’re pregnant with his child.

“Last night during the live stream, many called me to ask me to advise you to not be so rash. They said that Elliot would surely come looking for us for trouble. Look at today’s headlines! I was laughing my head off!”

“Miss Tate, the scandal this time made our company the biggest winner.”

Avery opened her email to look at the job reports for the day. The sales last night were higher than the sales of the previous month. No wonder the vice president was so happy.

“If this trend continues, as long as our core technology won’t be surpassed by others, Wanda won’t be able to defeat us,” The vice president said confidently, “Eric is now our spokesperson. He has a huge fan base! Although he has been boycotted, that does not affect his fans buying our products to avenge him.”

Avery nodded. “I’m going abroad the day after tomorrow.”

“Okay. Miss Tate, your tummy is getting bigger by the day. You don’t need to come to the office. Don’t tire yourself from traveling. I will let you know at first notice if anything happens,” The vice president said.

Avery said, “Thank you.”

“The company is progressing so well, it’s all thanks to you,” The vice president lamented, “If your father in heaven could see how well you managed Tate Industries, he would be relieved.”

Avery lowered her gaze. She hoped her father could rest in peace.

During the evening, a black Rolls-Roice drove into the old Foster mansion.

Ever since his mother passed away, Elliot has never come over anymore.

That night, his brother called him and insisted that he came over.

Elliot got out of the car and strode into the living area. Other than Henry and his family, Zoe was there too.

When Zoe met Elliot's eyes, she immediately looked down.

"Elliot! You haven't come for quite a long time! Let's go have a meal and we can talk over it," Henry said affectionately.

They entered the dining hall and sat down.

Henry cleared his throat and said, "Elliot, I called you over today because there is something important that I need to tell you. Zoe is pregnant with Cole's child for about more than a month. Initially, I'm against them being together, but now that Zoe is pregnant..."

Elliot had no reaction on his face. "That's good. I remembered that Zoe said she could not get pregnant easily. Since she got pregnant, she should give birth to the child."

Henry let out a sigh of relief upon Elliot's reply. "I plan to wait until at least three months then I'll let them get engaged. As for the wedding, we could do it after the child is born. What do you think about that?"

Elliot said, "Just let me know once you set the date."

Henry said, "Okay! We brothers have not drank together for a long time! We have to drink tonight!"

Elliot raised his glass and took a sip.

An hour later, the drunk Henry was brought back to his room by his wife.

Elliot has drunk quite a bit too. His handsome face had a shade of red.

"Elliot." Zoe chased after him to the front yard. "I have really loved you previously. Even if you're the unattainable President of the Sterling Group, I still love you! My love for you is definitely not less than Chelsea's or Avery's love for you, yet why are you so cruel to me?"

“That’s because you’re stupid.” Elliot was drunk, so he did not mince his words.

“I gave you three hundred million dollars. You could have done something with it, yet you chose to mix with Cole. That proves that you two are birds of the same feather.”

His words brutally hurt Zoe!

The 300 million dollars was long taken away by Avery!

If Zoe still had the 300 million dollars, why did she have to compromise to get Cole to be with her by using the child in her?

Cole was the man with the best conditions that she could find at that moment.

The bodyguard helped Elliot into the car. Soon, the Rolls-Roice disappeared into the dark night.

Zoe raised her hand to wipe her tears away.

Not far away behind her, Cole had both hands in his pocket. He said coldly, “Zoe, look at yourself! You embarrass me! My uncle has long abandoned you, why do you make yourself look like a sad dog! The man that you need to please now iscd me!”

Upon hearing his mocks, Zoe turned around. “Cole, when I had money, you wouldn’t dare talk to me like that!”

“You don’t have any money anymore! You won’t be able to earn that much money in the future too! You should accept the reality and just bear me children. All you need to do is take good care of my parents. I won’t treat you badly.” Cole looked at her like he was doing charity.

“You’re not getting any younger soon, stop having unrealistic dreams. I’m willing to marry you and that should be your honor!”

Zoe broke down and cried. After her falling out with Wanda, Wanda completely abandoned her and her father.

Zoe's father was heartbroken and returned to Bridgedale. Zoe was not willing to return to Bridgedale just like that. Coincidentally, she felt uncomfortable and found out that she was pregnant, so she used that to tie Cole down.

Perhaps Cole was right. Her life would just be like that for the rest of her life!

At the Starry River Villa, after Avery showered, she started packing for Hayden's summer camp.

Layla was following beside her, busy as a bee.

"Layla, do you want to join a summer camp like Hayden?" Avery smiled and asked.

Layla shook her head without thinking. "Mommy, didn't Uncle Eric tell you that he is taking me out during the summer holidays?"

Avery was stunned. "Did he say that to you?"

"Yes! He asked if I wanted to be on an entertainment program with him. He said we could have fun while earning money..."

"Layla, this is huge! Why did you only tell me now?" Avery was stunned, "Are you sure you want to be on a program? Will you be afraid?"

"If I'm with Uncle Eric, I won't be afraid. Mommy! Let me go play, please!"

Layla blinked her huge innocent eyes. "I told Hayden about this. He said I should go if I wanted to, if not I would surely disturb you at home, Mommy."

"So, I'm the last to know about this?" Avery had a look of disbelief. She paused for a while and said sternly, "I don't agree..." Layla immediately pecked a kiss on Avery's cheek. "Mommy, just let me go! I want to experience earning money!"

Avery was speechless.

A day later, Avery brought Hayden along on a flight to Bridgedale. Layla, on the other hand, followed Eric to a city to film their entertainment program. When Elliot knew about these two matters, his expression turned extremely cold!

It was one thing for Avery not to report to him for leaving the country. Who allowed her to let Layla enter the entertainment industry?

Did Avery really think that he did not know that Layla was his daughter? She was forcing him to expose this thin facade!

Chapter 610

Chad could guess why Elliot was angry. He immediately explained, "Avery did not want Lavla to go into entertainment. It was Layla who pleaded and insisted on trying it out. You know it too. Layla is so adorable. Few could truly refuse her."

"Layla might be immature, but is Avery? Avery is her mother. She should guide her child, not spoil her!" Elliot said sternly.

Chad said, "If Layla were to come and plead with you, can you do it without being unbiased?"

Elliot's expressions darkened. "Let's not talk about whether I can do it or not. I realized that your loyalties are starting to lie somewhere else!"

Chad immediately stated his stance. "Definitely not. I'm only putting myself in Avery's shoes. If Layla were to come and plead with me, I would definitely Chad could guess why Elliot was angry. He immediately explained, "Avery did not want Lavla to go into entertainment. It was Layla who pleaded and insisted on trying it out. You know it too. Layla is so adorable. Elliot lifted his gaze. "Did she take her bodyguard along?"

"Yes, she did," Chad said, "Avery is familiar with Bridgedale. She has a lot of friends there too. I don't think there should be much of a problem."

Elliot said, "Have you forgotten about the kidnap previously?"

Chad asked embarrassedly, "Then, do you want to head over there?"

"Didn't you say that she would be back in two days?" Elliot lowered his gaze.

It was not that he was not worried for her. It was just that they just fought. If he were to chase after her to Bridgedale, it felt embarrassing to him.

"Hmm. If you don't go to Bridgedale, you could go to Konad City to...have a look. Layla's entertainment program is filming at Konad City." Chad paid utmost attention to Elliot's ego.

Elliot considered for a while but he did not immediately decide. At Bridgedale, after Avery and Hayden landed, Hayden was picked up by the summer camp's bus.

The summer camp's activities were done in seclusion. Avery could not follow along. She could only wait for the teacher's comments that night or the day after.

"Miss Tate, let me send you home to rest," The bodyguard said to Avery.

Avery had slept for a few hours on the plane, she was not sleepy at the moment.

"I'm not going back home for now. I'll go see a friend first." Avery looked at her phone and found her friend's contact. She dialed. After making the call, they agreed to meet up at a restaurant.

Chapter 611

On the way to the restaurant, Avery said to the bodyguard, "Do not tell anyone my schedule in Bridgedale. Not even Mike. He is considered half of Elliot's men right now. I don't like being monitored. If anyone asks you about me, just say that I'm resting at home."

The bodyguard nodded. "Miss Tate, I will not be bought." Avery raised her eyebrows and said in surprise, "Has anyone tried to buy you off?"

The bodyguard was stunned for a while before nodding once more. "Elliot's assistant has tried to buy me off once, but I strictly refused."

Avery gasped.

Mike has already been subdued by Elliot's assistant, Chad. How dare he still try to buy off her bodyguard! Elliot was trying to infiltrate her life from all angles!

She was just pregnant with his child! Did he have to worry so badly! The more Elliot tried to do that, the more she did not want him to know where she was.

The car arrived at the restaurant and Avery successfully met with the patron from before. The patron said excitedly after seeing her, "Doctor Tate, my father's illness is much better! Thank you so much! I said I wanted to introduce more patients to you. I brought his medical records here today. My friend asked me to do it, so I couldn't refuse. If you're not free or you're not feeling well, you don't have to docd it."

Avery said, "Since you already brought the medical records over, let me have a look!"

“Doctor Tate, I know that you are kind and noble. You won’t directly refuse. You’re pregnant now, it should be quite tiring, right? If you’re willing to take on this case, you could wait until your child is born before doing it,” The patron said concernedly.

Avery nodded. “Okay, since it’s not urgent, I’ll take the medical record back home to read up on it.”

“Sure. Doctor Tate, I prepared a small gift for you. You have to accept it.” The patron passed Avery a bag.

“It’s jewelry for children that I designed. I know that you have a daughter. Give this to her!”

Avery did not want to accept the gift, but she could not refuse the patron’s kindness. On top of that, Layla was a kid who liked to be pretty. She would be delighted to receive this gift.

After considering it for a while, she accepted the gift. At nine at night, Avery received a call from one of the teachers in summer camp.

The participants of the summer camp were not only Hayden’s class but also other kid geniuses from all over the world.

Avery thought that Hayden might not fit in. She did not expect the teacher to tell her that not only did Hayden fit in, but he soon got well-acquainted with kids from other countries.

Avery was relieved after the phone call. Before sending Hayden to the elite class, she always thought that Hayden might have a condition, whether it was mental or physical, which was why he was different from kids his age. She never expected that her son was just much smarter than other kids, which was why he was not willing to go according to the lifestyle of kids his age.

Avery had to thank Shea. If it were not for Shea, Hayden would still be in an ordinary kindergarten

The next day at eight in the morning. Avery was woken up by her phone. She groggily picked up her phone and answered the call.

“Avery, isn’t it time for you to return? The summer camp teacher told me that Hayden is quite happy there.” Mike’s voice came from the other end of the call.

“If you’re not going to return any sooner, someone is getting antsy.”

Avery reached out to rub her eyes. She said hoarsely, “What are you talking about?”

“I’m saying, if you still don’t return, Elliot is going to Bridgedale to look for you!” There was a little mockery in Mike’s voice.

“Do you know what he was doing yesterday? Hehe. That man! He went to Konad City to secretly spy on Layla!” Avery was speechless.

Chapter 612

Avery sat up in surprise.

“He only secretly went to look at the program department. He didn’t disturb Layla,” Mike added, “Chad told me that he most likely knew that Hayden and Layla are his children, but he did not dare to acknowledge them because the children don’t like him. Furthermore, you are not willing to let him reconcile with the children, so he has been bearing the pain of being away from them.”

“Also, he does not want Layla to go into the entertainment industry,” Mike continued , “So please come back quickly to divert his attention. If he were to make a scene at the program department one day, I won’t be able to control the situation.”

Avery’s head hurt, because of the time difference , she could not sleep well the night before. She truly did not want to take another flight at that moment.

“I can’t head back today.” Avery took a deep breath.

“My head hurts. I’m planning to stay home and rest today.”

“Oh, is that so! If you’re uncomfortable, you should rest well,” Mike said, “Why didn’t you text me when you landed yesterday? I realize that you rarely like to contact me anymore. Is something going on?”

Avery did not want to break Mike’s heart, so she said, “The phone’s radiation is not good, so I rarely use the phone anymore. If you have anything you could contact the bodyguard.”

Mike said, “Oh...I’m not an idiot. You just think because I’m close to Chad that’s why I have gone to Elliot’s side? You can’t think that way! Anything that happens to Elliot, I tell you immediately. If it were not for my sacrifice, do you think that Chad would tell me that Elliot went to secretly spy on Layla yesterday?”

Avery thought that Mike made sense.

“Next time, you don’t tell him news about me, but only gather news on him.

How does that sound?”

Mike was speechless.

Avery said, “I’m really sleepy, I’m going to sleep for a little while longer. If there is nothing important, just send a text. I only slept for a while due to the jet lag!”

“How long is your jet lag? When I called your bodyguard yesterday, he said that you were sleeping at home. Have you been sleeping for a day and a night?”

Avery was stunned for a while. “Can’t I?”

“If you’re truly resting at home, that’s fine with me. I’m only afraid that you would do something dangerous behind my back or get conned for example. Being conned off money is a small matter. I'm only afraid that you would get kidnapped again," Mike told Avery his worries.

Avery said, "Am I that stupid? You can't just assume that I would be in danger every time I'm in Bridgedale due to the previous incident!"

Mike said, "Didn't they say that pregnant would make a woman dumb?"

"There is no scientific evidence for this. Women would turn dumb not because of pregnancy but because they get married to a man and have to be tortured by getting pregnant and taking care of the family," Avery retorted and enunciated every word.

Mike said, "I'm sorry. Avery, rest well. When you have had enough sleep, please come back."

Avery hung up. She was initially very sleepy, but after reasoning with Mike, she was instantly awake.

No matter when Avery would not let herself stop working or learning. She got down from the bed and exited her bedroom.

The bodyguard put the breakfast that he bought that morning into the microwave. Two minutes later, a hot breakfast was served.

"Miss Tate, when are we heading back?"

Avery said, "Let's talk about it tomorrow. I'm not leaving the house today. You can rest."

The bodyguard was rather surprised. "Then I'll call you for lunch."

"Hmm. If I'm sleeping, you don't have to wake me up."

"Okay!"

Avery took her breakfast back to her room. She placed her breakfast on the table before taking the medical records she got from the night before out of her bag. It was a thick stack of medical records. She wondered what illness this patient had.

Chapter 613

In Aryadelle, Elliot could not sleep. It was not because of Avery, but because of Layla.

The program that Eric took Layla along with was an outdoor entertainment program. The entertainment program's main theme was to get celebrities to live together with ordinary kids, letting the celebrities experience being a father.

They found a few non-celebrity kids, a mixture of boys and girls, but all very good-looking. Of course, in Elliot's eyes, none of the kids were as goodlooking as Layla.

The reason Elliot could not sleep was that he was afraid that by spending time with Eric, Layla would slowly treat Eric as her father!

Back then, Elliot asked the director a lot of detailed questions on set. The director told him that the children would eat, stay, and play together with the celebrities, just like real parents bringing their children up.

When he heard that, he was utterly disappointed.

He wanted to kill the program. No, he wanted to kill Eric! If Layla insisted on partaking in this program, changing a different partner for Layla would not make him feel too terrible.

However, Elliot knew that Layla joined the program because of Eric. If Elliot were to boycott Eric once more, Avery would argue with him terribly. Avery's tummy was getting bigger by the moment. Elliot did not dare to make her angry in case it affected the child, so he let her be.

That night, Elliot did not shut his eyes at all.

When the day came, he got up and made himself some coffee. After drinking coffee, he decided to use work to distract himself from thinking.

Before Avery returned to the country, he could not change anything.

An hour later, Chelsea called her cousin, Nora.

“Nora, quickly go dress up. Elliot is going to visit the Dream City site today.

Follow along. If he asks why are you going, just say that you liked this project a lot.”

Nora answered the call and immediately got out of bed.

“Okay, I’ll get up now. Ouch. My head hurts. Bloody hell, I met a dirtbag in the club last night. He insisted I was Avery. He kept harassing me. I was furious.”

Chelsea furrowed her brows.

“Who told you to go to a nightclub! This is Avonsville. Many people know Avery and Elliot. Do you still remember what that guy looks like?”

Nora said, “No, I can barely remember, but I asked his name. He is Elliot’s nephew, Cole Foster. Chelsea, this man has no use to me, right? He was mesmerized by me, If we could get him to do something for us, that would be good.”

Chelsea was silent for a while. She said, “I’ll think about it. Go to Dream City today first. We’ll take it one step at a time.”

In Bridgedale, after Avery roughly went through the medical records that she brought back, she was feeling rather excited.

The patient’s condition, from what she could see from the medical records , was exactly the same as Shea’s!

Shea’s illness was a rare type of illness, so to be able to encounter the same condition, Avery found it unbelievable.

She looked at the patient’s basic contact once more and realized that the patient was the same age as Shea, only of a different gender.

Avery found it interesting, so she texted Wesley, [Wesley, I met a patient in Bridgedale that has the exact same condition as Shea. I'm hesitating whether to take on this surgery, because I can't guarantee that the surgery will be a success.]

Wesley soon replied to her message, [Talk to the patient's family. If the family can accept the risk of the surgery failing, you can take it. After all, you have the experience of Shea's surgery. I believe that other than you, no one else can do it better.]

Wesley's reply boosted Avery's confidence a lot.

She replied, [Then I'll meet with the patient's family tomorrow.]

The next day, under the accompaniment of the bodyguard, Avery met with the patient and the patient's family. When she saw the patient, it was as if she was electrocuted! She was in a daze for a long time!

Chapter 614

The meeting went much smoother than expected. The patient's family understood clearly the risks that Avery stated. They only wished that Avery could help treat the patient. Even if the surgery failed, they would still accept it.

After the meeting, Avery came out from the patient's home. She turned around and looked at the mansion behind her before entering the car with a heavy heart.

The bodyguard reminded her to buckle her seatbelt before driving on the wide road.

Avery could not help but say, "Have you ever seen two people who were born in different countries yet looked 46 alike?"

The bodyguard said, "Miss Tate, I rarely travel. I barely know any foreigners."

“Then, have you ever seen two unrelated people in the same country who look alike?” Avery changed her question.

The bodyguard thought for a while before saying, “I don’t know many people, but I think situations like this do exist, only quite rare. I think I saw it on the news before. Miss Tate, why are you suddenly asking me this?”

Avery was a little stunned. Then, she immediately shook her head. “Nothing much. Let’s head to the mall to buy some stuff.”

The bodyguard offered, “What do you need to buy? Why don’t I send you home and I’ll go get it? Mike has instructed me to not let you go to crowded places. It would be bad if they bump into you.”

Avery said, “What else has he instructed?”

The bodyguard thought for a while. “Mike also said to not let you out at night and to be careful when you head out during the daytime. Also, do not meet strangers.”

Avery said, “There are so many pregnant women on the street. All of them are fine. What could happen to me?”

The bodyguard looked around. “Where? Where are the pregnant women? I only see you!”

Avery was speechless. She was just stating an example!

It looked like her bodyguard was not only lacking attention to ordinary life, but he was also quite dense. However, all Avery wanted was his loyalty.

“It’s not a weekend today, there shouldn’t be a crowd at the mall,” Avery said, “The gift that the patron gave me was not cheap. I have to return a gift.”

“Oh, okay, then! Miss Tate, although you’re not as feminine as the other women, I admire women like you even more. You are capable and you could even still bear children! You’re amazing!” The bodyguard praised.

Avery said, “You don’t know how to kiss ass. Just don’t do it. I won’t reward you any less.”

The bodyguard said seriously, “Miss Tate, I’m not kissing ass! I’m being serious!”

He was serious when he said that she was not feminine.

Although Avery did not think that praising a woman for being feminine is good praise, with the bodyguard’s education and character, he must have thought that being feminine was very high praise toward a woman.

“Miss Tate, did I misspeak?” The bodyguard did not see a smile on Avery from the corner of his eyes, so he asked worriedly.

Avery said, “No. I’m happy that you praise me, but you don’t have to do it in the future.”

The bodyguard was stunned, “Oh, okay!”

In Aryadelle, at the construction site of Dream City.

This was a project that the Sterling Group invested in. Once built, it would be the first large scale amusement park from a modified intellectual property in the country.

When Elliot got out of the car, he saw Nora standing by the safety rails afar waving at him.

“Elliot, Chelsea said that you are visiting the site today, so I came here on my own.” Nora smiled brightly at him.

“I’m a huge fan of Dream City! I’ve seen all of its movies! I’m even at the highest level in their video games! I’ve been waiting for this amusement park to be read!”

Elliot looked at Nora, who looked like Avery, in a daze.

Chapter 615

“But I can’t wait to go in and have a look!” Nora pleaded, “Elliot, can you bring me in? I promise I won't cause you any trouble. Also, as a fan of Dream City, I can give my opinions and suggestions once I have a look inside!"

Elliot pondered for a few seconds before agreeing.

Once they had their safety helmets on, they followed the project manager to the site.

The project manager updated the progress of every single site, as well as the remaining workload and timeline of the46 project.

Nora listened attentively. She could occasionally chime in. It was obvious that she was a true fan of Dream City.

"Nora, after Dream City is completed, I can transfer you over here to work."

Elliot thought that this decision would make her very happy, but there was no smile on Nora's face.

"Won't that mean I will be far apart from Chelsea?" She muttered, "Elliot, I can come here every week to play! Don't transfer me here, please?"

Elliot looked at how coquettish she was being, pleading in a soft, gentle way.

Avery's face appeared on his mind once again!

Avery was rarely that coquettish with him. Even when they first started dating, she was rarely like that.

Elliot was clear that Nora was not Avery but looking at Nora always made him think of Averyge involuntarily.

He quickly stopped looking at Nora.

"Elliot, there is one thing I have to explain to you." Nora noticed that Elliot's expressions were rather unnatural. She guessed what he was thinking.

"I did not make my face look like Avery. I only had my nose done because it was injured, and it could not heal on its own. The doctors advised me to undergo cosmetic surgery. I can let you see my previous photos."

When Elliot heard what she said, he was even soberer.

“No need. You are you and Avery is Avery. Even if you made your face look like Avery, in my eyes, you are not the same person.”

Nora nodded obediently. The next second, she looked behind Elliot and her expression suddenly changed. She protected Elliot.

“Elliot, look out!”

Elliot could not react in time. Nora had already hugged him from behind tightly! He quickly turned around to see a metal rod stabbed into Nora!

If Nora did not stand in front of him suddenly, protecting him, he would be the one that was punctured by the metal rod.

Nora was in a floral dress. Her dress was punctured too. Blood could be seen flowing!

Elliot tensed and yelled, “Call an ambulance!”

When Avery returned from Bridgedale, she heard a rumor that Nora was hurt and admitted to the hospital because she saved Elliot.

“Chad didn’t tag along with Elliot, so I don’t know the details,” Mike teased, “I don’t understand. Why would a metal rod suddenly appear? It was aiming at Elliot too! Was it God who wanted him dead or did he owe his workers their pay and they wanted to kill him?”

Avery ignored his mocks at Elliot. She asked, “Are Nora’s injuries serious?”

“Only a scratch.” Elliot sent her to the hospital personally and even reserved a special care unit for her. Mike’s tone was rather sardonic.

“Initially, Elliot didn’t want to see this counterfeit woman, now he owes her one.”

Avery said, “Since she’s already injured, you don’t have to bad mouth her behind her back.”

“Who knew if this injury was deliberate or not? If she could make herself look like you, you don’t know where her limits are,” Mike said and warned, “Elliot will come over to look for you later. I’m guessing to settle the score with you!” Avery yawned. “I’ll go to my room and rest first. Wake me up when he is here.”

She returned to her room and slept till evening because Elliot did not come to look for her.

Chapter 616

At eight in the evening, the black Rolls-Roice slowly drove to Starry River Villa.

Mike heard movements and came out from the villa.

“Elliot, it’s late. What are you doing here?” Mike coldly jabbed, “Didn’t you say you’ll come by in the afternoon? It’s already dark. Is your afternoon different from others?”

Elliot looked up and said, “Is there any difference between me coming now and this afternoon?”

“Of course, there is. If you came in the afternoon, Avery would still be at home. Avery is not at home now.” Mike stood in the yard. He did not bother to open the gate.

“I won’t welcome you in then.”

Elliot’s chest constricted tightly.

“Where did she go?”

“You tell me first. What were you doing this afternoon? Why did you say you would come this afternoon, but didn’t appear?” Mike asked haughtily.

Elliot swallowed his saliva and said in a low voice, “Nora insisted on being discharged in the afternoon. I sent her back. Her family insisted that I stay for dinner, I can't refuse them."

Mike sneered. "If her family asks you to stay for the night, you won't be able to refuse them as well?"

Mike said, "So, what if I stayed the night! You have no right judging me on high! Where isge Avery?"

"I don't know," Mike said quickly, "It's pointless if you glare at me. She said she went out for a meal. She didn't say who she was eating with."

Mike was afraid that Elliot would flare-up. He immediately turned around and returned to the villa.

Elliot's gaze darkened. He fished his phone out, found Avery's contact, and dialed her.

Avery saw his incoming call. She did not pick up, and neither did she dare to hang his call up. She was afraid that he might keep calling if she hung up.

Avery turned off the ringing tone and put her phone in her bag. She wanted to pretend to be not angry, but her body expressed otherwise.

Elliot said that he would come to look for her in the afternoon, yet up till evening, he did not even come. Avery did not think much about it, but Tammy sent her a photo.

It was a photo of Elliot sitting together with Nora. There were other people next to them too. They were having a meal together.

It was a feast. Besides Elliot, the other people were all smiles. The harmonious scene was like a family reunion.

Tammy told Avery that Chelsea posted this photo on social media, so Chelsea was the one that took the photo. Elliot delayed looking for her because of Nora.

Elliot could not get to Avery, so he could only call Tammy. Avery only had a few friends. She was either with Tammy or Wesley.

“Avery is not with me!” Tammy picked up the call and teased, “Aren’t you together with the copy of Avery? Is your party done? You’re finally thinking of the real Avery?”

Elliot heard Tammy’s mocks. He did not want to argue with her, so he hung up.

He found Wesley’s contact and dialed. It was only picked up after a few seconds.

“Wesley, is Avery with you?” Elliot stood by the side of his car, looking at the endless dark skies. His expressions were glum.

He went to Nora’s house today. Her family took her past photos to show him.

He looked at Nora’s past photos and realized that Nora did indeed look like Avery, so it was most probably a coincidence that Nora looks like Avery. It was not that she has done her face up to look like Avery.

However, Avery’s friends had already determined that Nora was a fake.

“No, why?” Wesley hesitated for a few seconds before replying.

Elliot furrowed his brows even tighter.

“She went out for a meal. I thought she would be with her friends. Since she’s not with you, I’ll hang up.”

“Okay,” Wesley said and hung up. Then, he looked at Avery. “How long can you avoid him for?”

Avery lowered her gaze and ate in small mouthfuls.

“I don’t want to talk to him right now. When in a bad mood, it’s best I don’t let it explode. Once I’ve calmed down, maybe I won’t be that angry anymore.”

Wesley said, “Although I have never seen that woman that looks like you, I think even if she has done her face up to look like you, she will never be you.

Your knowledge and capabilities. No one can mimic you. I believe that Elliot knows about this.”

Avery replied, “Wesley, as long as I don’t see him, I won’t get angry at all.”

Chapter 617

“Let’s not talk about him then,” Wesley said with a smile, “It’s late. I have to send Shea home. Let’s meet up again soon!”

Avery looked at the time and nodded.

“Go! I’ll sit here for a little while longer.”

Avery had a long nap in the afternoon, she was still feeling quite awake. Her children were not home. It would be boring for her to be at home, so she would rather stay out a little longer.

She was the one that set up the meeting that night. She brought gifts from Bridgedale for them.

After the two of them left, Avery took her phone out of her bag. She saw Mike’s message, [He left! You can come back already!]

Avery replied, [I’m not out because I’m avoiding him. Can you don’t think of me as such a coward?]

[That’s not what I meant! I just want you to come back quickly! It’s dark out! It’s not safe!]

[This country is very safe. Why are you so free? Why aren’t you on a date?]

[I haven’t seen you for a few days! I want to be with you!]

[I’ll be back immediately,] texted Avery. She took her bag and left the restaurant.

In Elliot’s mansion. When Wesley sent Shea back, Elliot was coincidentally at home too.

Elliot nodded at Wesley before taking Shea into the living area. Shea was wearing a beautiful bracelet. It shimmered under the lights.

Elliot has never seen that on her before, so he asked, "Shea, did you buy this bracelet today? Or did Wesley give you that?"

Shea said, "Avery gave them to me tonight! I liked it a lot!"

Elliot's expressions instantly darkened. "You all were with her tonight?"

Shea realized that she had let slip. She immediately pursed her lips. Her eyes were filled with fear.

"Shea, don't worry, I'm not angry." Elliot quickly collected his thoughts. He held her hand and had a good look at the bracelet.

"The bracelet is very pretty. Go rest!"

Shea held Elliot's huge hands tightly. She said in confusion, "Big Brother, did you make Avery angry again? Don't always make her angry! Avery is a great person. I like her a lot."

She paused a while before saying, "Wesley would never make Avery angry, which is why Avery would want to play with him."

The veins on Elliot's forehead popped.

He called Wesley that night to ask him if Avery was with him or not. He said that she was not. Elliot's previous pity for Wesley totally vanished that night.

The next morning. Elliot drove to Avery's. He saw the gate shut and the courtyard empty. It seemed like no one was home.

At that moment, indeed no one was home.

Half an hour ago, Mike and Avery drove to Zirconia. That day was Layla's last day of shooting. After the shooting in the afternoon, she could pack up.

They decided to pick Layla up.

At five in the afternoon, they returned to the Starry River Villa. When their car slowly drove toward the villa, Elliot's tall figure appeared in front of them.

Avery did not think that he would wait for her in front of her house. When did he arrive? How... how long has he been waiting?

Chapter 618

Mike looked at Avery and asked, "Do you want to go talk to him?"

Avery seemed to have not heard him.

Her gaze was looking out of the window. It was as if her soul had been sucked away by that man.

Mike stopped the car and said louder, "Avery, go and talk to him."

Avery came to her senses. She pushed the car door open and got out of the car. When she was in the car, it was air-conditioned, so she did not feel the heat outside. The moment she got out of the car a wave of heat washed over her. Her forehead soon started to sweat.

She looked at Elliot's face, which had been burned red by the sun. His forehead was sweaty. His shirt was soaked through by sweat, sticking to his skin. She could not imagine how long he had been under this hot sun.

"Miss Tate, you're finally back. If you still don't return, Mr. Foster's life will probably end here today," Elliot's bodyguard said unhappily, "We have been here since eight this morning! We've waited until now!"

Avery was upset. Her body was trembling a little.

At the thought of him foolishly waiting under the sun for her the entire day, she could not control her anger. She said, "Elliot, I'm not home. Can't you see?"

"You're not picking up my phone. Did you miss it? What if you're at home and you just don't want to see me?" His voice turned hoarse because of the lack of water.

Avery's eyes instantly reddened.

She only did not pick up his phone call the night before. If he were to call her that day, perhaps she might have picked up?

"Why are you here?" Avery forced back the tears in her eyes. She choked and said, "Is it because of Layla being in an entertainment program? She's back. Whatever you want to say, you can say to her!"

It was easy of Avery to say that, but how could her children possibly listen to him?

"Layla's still young. Why does she want to earn money? It's because she knows that you owe me money, right?" Elliot's cold voice rang out.

"You put this pressure, which should not be borne by children, on your child. Might I ask if you're a competent mother?"

Avery choked on her words by Elliot's questions.

Layla indeed participated in an entertainment program to earn some money.

Her goal was just what Elliot said, to help Avery pay back her debt.

Elliot, the person who has no right to talk about me in this entire world is you!"

Avery wiped away the tears from the corner of her eyes.

"You don't need to care about Layla's affairs!"

'Avery, I will not give in to you all the time!' He looked at Avery with a sharp gaze. His tone was rather harsh.

"Take this card! This is for giving birth to our child! Take it to pay your debts! I don't want to see Layla going to the entertainment world! Also, don't let me see you taking on private engagements behind my back! Before you give birth to the child, don't think you can escape my control!"

Elliot stuffed a bank card into Avery's hands and left as quickly as he came, disappearing before her eyes.

Avery held onto his card tightly. She secretly mocked. Did he just give her money to repay her debt to him?

Only Elliot would be able to think of things like this! Not only think, but he would also do such things.

Avery felt as if all of her energy had been depleted. She went back to the living area listlessly.

Mike passed her a cup of water.

“Avery, did he give you this card?” When Mike passed her the cup of water, he took over the card in her hands.

Avery picked up the card and drank some water.

“I think there’s an ATM in our neighborhood.” Mike had an excited expression.

“Why don’t I go and check how much money is there on this card?”

Avery could roughly guess the amount, but she said nothing.

“Uncle Mike, take me along! I want to have a look too!” Layla tugged on Mike’s clothes.

Mike lifted Layla. When he was by the door only, he remembered to ask Avery, “Why is he giving you money?”

Avery placed her cup down and got up from the sofa. “You ask him.”

Chapter 619

Avery finished and headed upstairs. She had been out the entire day, she was exhausted.

Mike saw her go upstairs. He carried Layla and left. They arrived at an ATM.

Mike carefully inserted the card.

The pin was written behind the card. It was Avery’s birthday which was easy to remember.

After inserting the pin, Mike pressed the check balance button. Instantly, countless numbers of zeros appeared on the screen.

Mike was dazzled and speechless!

Layla exclaimed, "Uncle Mike! How much is that! There are so many zeros! I can't count Woo!"

This was way beyond Layla's knowledge.

Mike coughed a little before raising his finger and counting the zeros on the screen.

Layla suddenly pointed at the first number on the screen. She said out loud, "This is one."

Mike said, "...Babe, you interrupted me! Where was I counting until? Sigh!"

"Stupid Uncle Mike! Just take a picture and go ask my Mommy! My Mommy would surely know how much it is with just one look! She doesn't need to count so long as you!" Layla pursed her lips in detest. "Or go and ask your boyfriend! He must be smarter than you!"

Mike blushed due to the provocation. "Layla, I know how much this is. I don't need to count. It's one billion and fifty million."

That was the amount Avery still owed Elliot.

Layla was a little lost. She blinked her huge sparkling eyes. "Uncle Mike, how much is that? How many toys and pretty clothes can I buy?"

Mike did not know how to answer to let her understand how huge this amount was.

"Let's say that in these four day that you worked you earned one hundred and five thousand dollars." Mike fished his phone out and opened the calculator.

He started calculating for her.

"On an average, you earn about twenty-six thousand two hundred and fifty dollars. Let's say you could earn this amount every day. In one year, you could earn nine million five hundred and eighty-one thousand dollars. If you earn this much every year, from today onward, you have to continuously work for one hundred and ten years.

"You're five years old this year which means you have to live until one hundred and fifteen years old to earn that amount of money."

Layla's eyes almost popped out. She was in a daze.

"Layla, do you understand?" Mike smiled pleasantly, but his heart was bitter.

Bloody hell! How was Elliot so rich!

He could just come out with so much money at any moment. If Mike was Avery, he might just be attracted to Elliot's money!

"Woo, woo, woo!" Layla suddenly cried.

"I've lived for so long but I'm only five years old? How long would it take to live until one hundred years old?"

Mike reached his hand out to wipe away the tears on her face.

"Don't cry! I'm just telling you that this amount of money is a lot. I didn't say that you have to earn this much money. Let's go get ice cream! Then we'll head home."

Layla suddenly stopped crying. "I want chocolate ice cream."

Mike said, "Of course, as long as you don't let your mother know."

In the villa, Avery lay in bed. She wanted to sleep but her head hurt so badly that she could not go to sleep. Thus, she opened her eyes and looked at a corner of her room without any focus. She thought back about how she and Elliot ended up fighting that way.

She loved him. She could also feel that he cared for her, so why did they have to hurt each other?

Did they have to hurt each other to prove that their love did not vanish?
Just when her mind was in a mess, the phone by the side of her bed rang.
She picked up her phone and saw a strange series of symbols and numbers!

Chapter 620

Avery got up from bed, she looked at the series of numbers for a few seconds before answering the call

She never thought that once the call got through, a video appeared.

“Mommy!” Hayden’s crisp voice came through.

Avery looked at Hayden’s face and said excitedly, “Hayden! How did you call me on video?”

“I hacked into the camp’s internet and called using a virtual account.” Hayden had a rare smile.

“Mommy, is Layla back already?”

“She is, but she just went out with Uncle Mike. They are not back yet.” Avery’s face was filled with tenderness, “Hayden, are you adapting well there? Your teacher just called me a few days ago and said that you made a few international friends.”

“Mommy, I’m grown up. You don’t have to worry about me.” Hayden’s voice sounded like a little man

“How could I not worry about you? Even if you’ve grown up in the future, I’ll still miss you and worry about you.” Avery looked at her son’s face. No matter how much she looked it was not enough for her.

“There are ten more days before I can go and see you!”

“Mommy, I’ll give you a video call every night, how about that?”

“Is that against the rules?” Avery asked worriedly. “What if your teacher finds out. Will it be bad?”

“It’s fine. The teacher knows I’m calling you. I called you on video with my own abilities. He said nothing,” Hayden said proudly.

Avery was extremely proud. At the same time, she thought of something.

“Hayden, later can you give Uncle Mike a call. Please persuade Layla to stop thinking of earning money in the entertainment industry anymore. I’m not short of money. I can pay back the money I owe Elliot on my own. I don’t need you to worry. Right now, the most important thing you two need to do is learn and happily grow up.”

Hayden said, “I’ll talk to her later.”

Avery replied, “Hmm. I’ll talk to her too, but I think she’ll listen to you more.”

“Okay. I’ll call Uncle Mike now.” Even if Avery did not tell him, Hayden would still call Mike because he saw how puffy and reddened Avery’s eyes have been from crying. If he were to ask her why she was crying in the video call, Avery would not tell him the truth.

Hayden called Mike and Mike soon picked up the call.

“Why did Mommy cry?” Hayden furrowed his brows with a serious expression.

“I just video –called her.”

“Uh…” Mike tried hard to come up with something. He hesitated whether to tell him the truth or not.

“Hayden! Hayden!” Layla saw Hayden and exclaimed excitedly.

“When are you coming back to play with me! I miss you so much! Woo, woo! I miss you to death!”

“Layla, please don’t interrupt.” Hayden doused Layla’s enthusiasm. Layla obediently quieted down.

Mike said, “There is a woman who made up her face to look like your Mommy and tried to seduce Elliot. Yesterday, she managed to get him to stay for dinner. Elliot already said that he would look for your Mommy in the afternoon , but he didn't appear. They fought because of that."

"That dirtbag finally shows his true colors," Hayden said sinisterly.

"Actually, Elliot is still fine! It's that woman who is the worst. She actually made her face up to look like Avery..."

"What is that woman's name? I'll teach her a lesson!" Hayden said.

Mike thought for a while.

"I think she's called N... Nora! I don't know her full name, but you can search around. She is Chelsea Tierney's cousin."

"Got it." Hayden consciously took note of Nora's name before changing the subject.

"Layla, don't go shooting entertainment programs in the future. Mommy is worried."

Layla furrowed her brows and huffed, "I've already agreed to Uncle Eric that we'll go shoot more two days later! Hayden, I'll talk with Mommy!"

Hayden also furrowed his brows. "Why are you getting more and more disobedient?"

Layla used to listen to him no matter what.

"I'm so adorable, of course, I should be a star!" Layla said narcissistically,

"Uncle Eric said that he would take me along in the future. He said he would make me an even bigger star than him! Hayden, next time the money I earn, I'll split half with you, okay?"

Chapter 621

Hayden hung up. Mike wanted to laugh but he saw Layla's lost yet adorable look. He suppressed his urge to laugh.

When they returned home, Avery held onto Layla's hand. Before she could say what she wanted to say, Layla took action first.

“Mommy, do you think I’m cute?”

“You are cute! You’re the cutest kid in the entire world.”

“Then, when I become a big star, I’ll give you all the money I earn, okay? I told Hayden I’ll give him half just now, but he doesn’t want it.” Layla’s eyes sparkled spiritedly.

Avery’s mind blanked instantly.

It looked like she could not get through to Layla, she could only look for Eric and talk with him. Avery sent a message expressing her disagreement with Layla to join the entertainment industry.

Half an hour later, Eric replied, (Layla might be young, but we should respect her choice. The entertainment industry is not as scary as you think. I will protect her. I’ll make sure she won’t get hurt. Please trust me.)

Avery failed to talk to him either. She was deep in thoughts. If she were to respect Layla’s decision and continue to let Layla work in the entertainment industry, Elliot would surely be mad. Avery did not want to fight with him, but neither did she not want to force her daughter to obey her just because of him. After thinking it through, Avery fell deeply asleep.

A week later, because the Tate Industries’ drones were at an irreplaceable position in Aryadelle, a few leaders came to inspect that day.

Avery received the notice three days ago. Initially, it was agreed that the vice president would accompany them touring around the company because her tummy was huge, and it was hard for her to move around. However, the vice president had a high fever that day because he was too nervous.

Avery had to do it herself in the end. She made up lightly and tied her hair up. She wore a light blue long-sleeved dress. It was elegant and proper.

The leaders were arriving at ten in the morning. She waited for them on the ground floor at half-past nine.

Ten minutes later, a red Bmw stopped at the entrance of the office. Avery saw Zoe coming out of the car. She was a little surprised.

Ever since the last time she got Zoe to spit out the 300 million dollars, they have never contacted each other ever since. There was no need to contact each other, so she could not understand Zoe's reason for coming over.

Zoe did not expect that Avery was right in the lobby, so before she was in front of Avery, she said loudly, "Avery Tate! Come out!"

Avery subconsciously headed outside. The secretary reminded, "Miss Tate. They'll be here in twenty minutes."

Avery said, "I'll be back soon."

She walked over to Zoe.

"Avery, you have already taken Elliot away! Why do you have to take Cole away too! I'm pregnant with his child! I have already planned to spend the rest of my life with him! Why won't you let me go! Do you want me to die then only you'll be happy?!"

Zoe said with reddened eyes. Before Avery could react, she reached out and grabbed Avery's hair.

Avery reflexively reached out to defend. "Zoe, what nonsense are you talking about! Cole and I have long cut ties! Why would I want him!"

Chapter 622

If Zoe did not mention Cole's name, Avery would have almost forgotten that this man exists!

After the split-up six years ago, Avery was completely disheartened by this man. Ever since she fell in love with Elliot, she had no eyes for any other man, so how could she possibly snatch Cole away as Zoe said?

It was comical and absurd!

The bodyguard nearby saw Zoe attacking Avery. He quickly ran over and kicked Zoe in the waist!

Zoe was in pain, and she let go of Avery's hands. She fell to the side on the ground.

"I'm pregnant! How dare you kick me! If my child dies, I'll kill you to accompany it!" Zoe lay on the ground crying.

The surrounding guards and secretary immediately ran over. Avery's secretary looked at Avery's messy hair. She immediately helped Avery. "Miss Tate, are you alright? Let me get you in. I'll help you tidy up your hair."

Avery looked at Zoe on the ground with reddened eyes.

"Miss Tate, how should I deal with this crazy woman?" The guards asked.

Avery said sternly, "Move her and her car away! Do not let her leave! I'll settle this with herge later!"

A guard picked Zoe up while another found the keys to the car in her bag.

Soon, the red BNW and Zoe vanished before her sight.

Avery's scalp hurt. When the secretary was combing her hair, she did it as light as she could, but Avery was still in pain and her eyes were wet.

How angry must Zoe have been to use such strength? This would not have happened without reason. Zoe must have seen her and Cole being together, which was why she came to make a scene. However, Avery did not even meet Cole before. There must be a misunderstanding somewhere.

"Miss Tate, your scalp is hurt. Let's not comb it anymore, we'll just put your hair down!" Her secretary saw how much in pain Avery was. She could not bear to comb her hair anymore.

"I'll comb it myself." Avery took over the comb from the secretary and simply combed it into a ponytail. "Don't spread the word about what happened just now."

The secretary nodded. "Okay, I'll go tell the guards."

At noon, the vice president's fever dropped so he rushed over to the office.

"Miss Tate, is everything alright?" The vice president looked guilty.

Avery responded. "Is your fever gone? Why don't you rest more at home?"

"I'm much better. Perhaps I was feeling too stressed in the morning. I'm afraid that I might say something wrong and embarrass the company," The vice president said remorsefully.

Avery comforted, "It's over. We still have a celebration tonight. I'll still need you to host."

"Hmm! Miss Tate, go back and rest! We'll see each other tonight!" The vice president said.

Avery nodded and came out of her office.

Zoe and her red BNW were moved to the parking lot behind the office. The guard has been staying in the car, not letting Zoe get out.

Avery walked to the side of the BNW and the guard immediately got out.

"Miss Tate, this woman kept saying that you seduced her man," The guard said, "I think she's delirious. Maybe a mental condition or something."

Avery said, "I'll talk to her."

The guard said, "Why don't you stand outside and talk to her. I'm afraid that she might act up again. It'll be bad if she hurts you again."

Avery nodded. Zoe wound the window down and looked at her angrily, "Avery, you shameless woman!"

“Zoe, you said that I snatched Cole away from you. Did you see me with him?”

Avery stood by the side of the car and questioned Zoe, “Call Cole out now!

We’ll ask him!”

“No! If he knows that I came to look for you, he’ll break up with me!” Zoe said painfully, “I saw the photo of you two at the nightclub! He already admits it, yet you still dare to deny it!”

“Night club? I have never been to a place like that! Either he is lying, or he mistook me for someone else!” Avery enunciated, “There’s a woman who looks like me called Nora. You better check properly and see whether that woman in the photo is called Nora!”

“But Cole said that it’s you!” Zoe did not believe Avery’s words, after all, they had a grudge against each other long ago.

“Then, you can just continue hating me!” Avery calmly replied, “Don’t come looking for me again for your stupid affairs between you and Cole. If not, the next time, I’ll get the guards to kick you out.”

Zoe clutched her waist which still hurt a little. She sobbed hoarsely, “If the child in me dies, I won’t let you give birth to yours 34 either!”

Avery said, “Then, we’ll have to see whether you have this ability to do so or not.”

Avery strode away.

At the Sterling Group’s President’s office.

On his computer screen, a news notification suddenly popped up. The headlines stated that a certain leader visited the Tate Industries that day.

Beneath the headline was a small photo. A blue figure attracted Elliot’s notice.

He clicked into the news and saw the photo enlarged.

Avery was wearing a light-blue loose dress that day. She smiled gently and elegantly. Although she has a baby bump, she still looked sprightly.

Ben pushed open Elliot's door to call him for lunch.

"Do you have anything going on tonight?" Ben knocked on Elliot's desk. "What are you looking at so engrossed in?"

Elliot shut off the webpage and got up from the chair. "Are you organizing?"

"I usually organize but I don't see you joining much either," Ben teased, "I'm planning to head over to Avery's for a free meal. Chad and I have agreed to it.

Are you going? They are having an event tonight."

"Not going." Elliot refused without thinking.

"You're always like this. You say you won't go but you'll be there quicker than anyone else." Ben sighed. "You should just say it directly! Even if you don't miss Avery, won't you miss the child in her tummy? I saw the photo in the news today. Her tummy grew bigger again."

Elliot pursed his lips. He did not say anything.

"Elliot, has she returned the bank card that you gave her a few days ago?" Ben went in closer to Elliot's ears and asked pryingly.

Elliot said, "She didn't contact me."

"Oh, that means she hasn't returned it yet. You gave her so much money. It's not too much for us to go get a free meal." Ben hesitated for a while before continuing, "Don't get too close to Nora in the future. If Avery is angry, that means that she's jealous. If she's jealous, that means she still cares for you."

"When she is with other men, I don't see her caring about my feelings," Elliot said with a sneer.

"She's a pregnant woman now. Don't be so petty with her."

At night, at the event.

There was a crowd at the banquet hall. It was mostly the staff of the company.

Avery and Tammy were sitting by the corner eating and chatting, so no one noticed that Elliot and his group entered.

After they entered, Chad was pulled away by Mike to go drinking. Ben started chatting with a few higher-ups of Tate Industries.

No one dared to talk to Elliot, so he could only find a spot to sit down and drink in silence.

A few of the women at the table in front of him were chatting secretly among themselves.

“The woman seems to be pregnant too! I saw her pulling Miss Tate’s hair! She was vicious! I initially wanted to rush over to help Miss Tate, but her bodyguard was one step ahead, he kicked the woman to the ground!”

“What? This happened? Who is that woman? How bold of her!”

“I don’t know! I didn’t see her face! Miss Tate does not want this to spread out. Don’t tell others.”

When Elliot heard this, anger instantly rose in his eyes!

Chapter 624

Avery was still happily chatting with Tammy. She did not notice him walking over to her.

“Avery, are you nervous? You’ll be giving birth soon.” Tammy stirred the cup of juice in her hand with the straw.

“I’m not nervous, but I really want it out. My tummy is getting big, it’s tiring.”

Avery ate some dessert. She asked, “What about you?”

“The answer I gave my in-laws was next year. I’ll drag it until next year. I haven’t had enough fun yet!”

“Having kids won’t stop you from having fun.”

“I’m sure it will affect it somehow. I still like kids. Once I have one of my own, I won't be able to be stern enough to discipline them."

"You can take your kids around and play with them! Having kids will make things even more interesting. You don't have to worry too much."

"Hmm! You gave me a lot of courage. Whether it's caring for your kids or working. You're not afraid at all," Tammy said enviously, "If I was a man, I would fall in love withcd you."

Avery chuckled lightly. "If you were a man, i'd marry you! Haha!"

Tammy laughed together with Avery when suddenly Elliot appeared within her sight. Tammy's laugh instantly vanished. She cleared her throat twice. "Why is hege here?"

Avery looked in the direction in which Tammy was looking. When she saw Elliot, the smile on her face vanished too.

"You didn't invite him, right?" Tammy asked softly.

"No," Avery replied in a low voice.

"Oh...do I need to avoid him?" Tammy asked in whispers.

Avery replied, "No need."

At that moment, Elliot was already by their side, so he heard their conversation clearly.

He did not say anything. He merely looked at Avery's head with his cold gaze.

Avery felt her scalp exploding with pain. She immediately got up from her chair and pulled him away.

"Who bullied you this morning?" Coming out of the hall, Elliot said, "If I did not accidentally know about this, you would never think of telling me."

"It's a small matter. It's not worth mentioning." Avery brushed it off and looked at him.

A week before, he stood in front of her house under the sun for an entire day, causing his skin some damage. His skin was darker by a shade. It also looked dry and flaky.

“Why are you looking at me?” Elliot’s eyes moved. He looked a little uncomfortable.

“Do you have facial masks at home? Your face needs moisturizing,” Avery reminded him, “Next time, don’t spend too long under the sun, if not, you’ll get a sunburn. Don’t underestimate the UV rays of the summer sun. If the sunburn is serious, you might need to go to the hospital.”

Elliot ignored her words. His long slender finger pried her hair apart. He saw her reddened scalp.

Avery gasped in pain and pushed his hand away.

“Who pulled your hair! Tell me!” Elliot asked sternly.

“It’s in the past. There’s no need to mention it.” Avery changed the subject to divert his attention. “Layla’s dream right now is to be a celebrity. She likes to perform in front of the camera, so I can’t force her to leave the entertainment industry.”

This topic easily diverted Elliot’s attention.

“Have you ignored me again!” Elliot was extremely dissatisfied with her parenting skills.

“Elliot, I know what you’re worried about, but children need to be respected too.

If you have a better way of getting Layla to change her mind, I won’t stop you.”

Avery did not want to fight with him, so her tone was gentle. “I’ll keep the card that you gave me. When you fall in love with another person, I’ll return it to you.”

Elliot smiled bitterly and self-deprecatingly. “I don’t think you’ll see that day.”

“Don’t be so sure.” Avery walked toward the lift. Elliot followed behind her.

He thought that she wanted to go home. Turns out, coming out of the hotel, she headed to the pharmacy next door.

He thought that she was going to buy anti-inflammatory medication to put on her damaged scalp, but she bought two medically used facial masks instead. She paid and passed the masks to him.

“Take this home and use it.”

“Do you think my face is the one that’s hurt?” Elliot did not accept the bag. He left out the following sentence, but Avery understood what he meant.

Chapter 625

Avery forcefully stuffed her bag in Elliot’s hands. “Elliot, the child just moved in my tummy. Every word you say to him right now he can hear it.

Elliot looked at her in a daze as if he had just been electrocuted.

“Can I touch your tummy?” He asked hoarsely.

“It’s not moving right now. He is still quite small right now, and doesn’t move quite a lot.”

This was her second pregnancy. It was different from her first time. The first time, because she was afraid to let him know, so every reaction during her pregnancy term, she secretly bore it on her own. Fear was much more overpowering than the joy of being a mother.

However, during the pregnancy this time, she could thoroughly enjoy the entire process.

Elliot put his large palms on her tummy. The warmth in her hand spread over to Avery. Her body suddenly tensed up.

Perhaps the child in her sensed her nervous feelings, so he kicked hercd tummy!

“He moved again!” Avery could not help but exclaim.

"I felt it!" Elliot's emotions were affected by her too. Instantly, all the darkness in him vanished, replaced by light. "Does itge hurt?"

"No. He isn't that strong right now."

"Hmm. Are you hungry? I'll get you something." At that moment, the excitement burning in his heart has put the grudge he had against her aside. He only wanted to treat her²³ well.

"I'm not hungry. If you're hungry, let's return to the hotel!" Avery said.

"Okay." Elliot helped her along and returned to the hotel. Avery did not expect that they would stop fighting because of the baby kicking inside her. It was as strange as when they both started fighting for whatever reason.

At the old Foster mansion, Zoe called Cole into the room and closed the door.

"Cole, you said that you have reconciled with Avery. Do you treat me as a fool? You're so afraid of your uncle, will you dare do anything with her? Don't you know how big her tummy is right now?" Zoe mocked, "Your affair with her right now, what are you doing that for? For excitement?"

Cole condescendingly reproached Zoe. "Zoe, look at you right now. How undignified."

"Heh. Do you know Nora?" Zoe looked at him and questioned, "The woman that you were hugging in the nightclub was Nora, right?"

"What nonsense are you talking about? Zoe, don't think that just because you're pregnant with my child, I won't dare to do anything to you!" Cole was losing patience. "If you can't accept my relationship with her, just f*ck off!".

"Haha! I'm going to tell Elliot! I'm going to look for him right now!" Zoe decided to fight till the end.

Cole immediately tugged her back and slapped her!

"Have you forgotten how Grandma died? Do you want me to call my uncle right now?" Cole threatened coldly, "We are on the same boat. If this boat capsizes, we'll die together!"

Zoe clutched her burning cheek. She was utterly disappointed! Was this her retribution for doing bad things?

The next day, Zoe had a nightmare. In her nightmare, she had been tied up on all four limbs. She can't move. Just when she opened her eyes, she saw a man in black with a sharp dagger.

The man was pressing onto her head with one hand while stabbing into her eye with the dagger and gouged her eyeballs out!

"Ah-!" Zoe screamed miserably!

This was not a dream! This was real! Both her eyeballs have been gouged out!

"Zoe, this is what you get! Hehe!" A familiar voice rang out.

Zoe exhaled in despair. Her body turned cold! It was Avery! It was Avery's voice!

Chapter 626

That vicious woman! How dare she gouge her eyeballs!

Zoe's world was suddenly dark. She has become blind! She could no longer go out and work. Her life was completely ruined!

She was disappointed and only wanted to die. However, at that moment, she could not even see anything! Even death has become a luxury!

This matter was spread to Elliot that night.

Henry called him and explained the incident roughly. He had to tell Elliot because this has to do with Avery.

"Zoe's situation is very unstable. When she's asleep, she's still fine but once she wakes up, she starts screaming. She keeps saying that Avery gouged her eyeballs..."

Elliot said firmly, "I pity her situation, but Avery would not do such a thing."

"Yes, I don't think Avery would be that cruel too, but I'm worried for Zoe. She is still pregnant with Cole's child. Although the child is not affected right now, if her mental state continues like that, I'm afraid that it would affect the child." Henry kept sighing.

"I'll come over right now." Elliot furrowed his brows tightly.

On the way to the hospital, he looked at his phone and searched for Avery's contact. He wanted to call and ask her, but after a moment of hesitation, he did not press the call button.

There was no way she could have done that, so he did not want to disturb her with this matter.

However, who else would have done it?

Zoe was now pregnant with Cole's child. Her life was revolving around Cole. Logically speaking, she should not have offended anyone. Could it be Cole's enemies?

The car arrived at the hospital, and he came to the inpatient unit. Before reaching Zoe's ward, she heard her agonizing shrill screams.

"I want to kill Avery! I'm going to kill her! She turned me blind! I will never let her go even if I become a ghost!

"Woo, woo, woo... I'm blind. I can't seek revenge anymore. Let me die! Just let me die! I beg you all!

"Where's my dad? Where is my dad? Have you called him already? Why is he not here yet? Does he not want me anymore? Even he despises me!"

Elliot stood outside the door listening to Zoe's miserable wails. He had mixed feelings.

He pushed the door open and saw that Zoe's eyes were wrapped in white bandages. She was sitting on the bed, trying to get down, but Cole stopped her.

“Elliot, you’re here,” Henry said.

Zoe heard what Henry said. Her body instantly stiffened. Then, she lost it.

“Elliot! Elliot! Avery ...Avery gouged my eyes! She made me so miserable!”

“Uncle, I didn’t want to disturb you, but Zoe’s condition right now, I really don’t know what I should do,” Cole said troublingly, “It’s all my fault. I shouldn’t have let Zoe see the photo of me and Avery in the past. Today only I found out that she went to look for Avery yesterday...”

Elliot suddenly remembered the incident the day before. The person that pulled Avery’s hair was Zoe!

Even if they fought yesterday, Avery would not have done such a cruel thing to Zoe! He still remembered what Avery said when he brought this matter up. She said it was a small matter and it was not worth mentioning.

If Avery was loathing Zoe at that time, her tone and expressions would not be so relaxed and natural.

“Please leave the room. I want to talk to Zoe privately,” Elliot said in a low voice.

Henry and Cole immediately left the room. Even the nurse looking after Zoe left. Only Elliot and Zoe were left in the room.

Zoe reached out both her hands, groping in mid-air. “Elliot...”

Elliot grabbed her hands. “I’m here. Zoe, why did you say it was Avery that did this to you? Did you see her do it?”

Chapter 627

Zoe shook her head. “I didn’t see it, because when I came to my senses, my eyes had already been gouged! It’s so painful I want to die! I heard Avery say that this is what I deserve. I heard it clearly! Elliot, I won't lie to you! I already have nothing right now! I can't lie to you!"

"Her voice?" Elliot was stunned. "Are you sure you didn't mishear?"

"Impossible! I'm not mistaken, because I hate her too much!" Zoe gripped Elliot's hands tightly as if she was holding onto a lifeboat. "Elliot, I won't dare to lie to you! If I were to lie to you, you would be able to find out immediately! I beg you. I beg of you. We once had a relationship together, please have pity on me..."

Elliot looked at Zoe's quivering lips and pale face. His heart was extremely heavy.

His instincts told him that Zoe was not lying, yet another voice in his mind kept reminding him that Avery would not do such a thing!

"Zoe, I'll look into it," Elliot promised, "But before we get to the bottom of it, rest more and get well soon."

Zoe shook her head. "No...I won't live anymore. I'll wait for my father to come, and I'll return with him to Bridgedale. I will get my friend to help euthanize me. I can't accept that I have turned into a blind person. Hehehe..." Zoe laughed amidst crying.

"No matter what you find out, it means nothing to me, because I truly heard Avery's voice! She's the murderer! There could not be any other outcomes!"

Zoe choked up and said, "I'll wait for her in hell!"

Coming out of the hospital, it was already dark. It was drizzling too.

The bodyguard stood next to Elliot with an umbrella.

After getting in the car, the bodyguard asked, "Mr. Foster, where to?"

Elliot's jaw tightened. His voice was cold. "Starry River Villa."

Zoe only hoped for death at that moment. She did not even want the child in her anymore. He had to look for Avery to ask if she was the one that did it. It was best if it was not her. If it was her, why did she have to be so cruel? At the Starry River Villa, Avery was lying in bed, flipping through a medical book.

The children were not home. Mike would only be back later that night. The entire house was strangely quiet.

The wind outside was howling, Avery closed the book distractedly and looked out of the window.

Looking at the rain pitter-pattering on her window, she immediately got out of bed and checked if the other windows in the villa had been properly shut.

When she was downstairs, a set of headlights shone through the window, which pierced her eyes.

Was Mike back already?

Avery walked to the door and opened it. A black Rolls-Roice entered her sight.

Why was Elliot there?

Avery opened the door, at the same time pressing the button that opens the gate in front of the courtyard.

Elliot got out of the car. He did not let his bodyguard shelter him with the umbrella. He strode over to her under the rain.

Looking at his darkened expressions under the streetlights, a bad feeling rose in her heart.

She did not know what had happened, she could not guess it either. Just when her mind was in a mess, Elliot was already in front of her.

“Why did you not use an umbrella?” Avery looked at his wet face and clothes.

She asked worryingly, “What happened?”

“Zoe was the one that looked for you yesterday morning, right?” Elliot stood by the door. He did not change his shoes nor enter the house. His sharp gaze focused on Avery’s face.

Avery hated this look of his. “I’ve already said it’s a small matter...”

“Her eyes have been gouged. She said that you did it.” Elliot interrupted her.

He said anxiously, “Avery, tell me. Did you do it?”

Chapter 628

Avery involuntarily took two steps backward.

Her eyes were instantly in a daze. She could not believe that such a thing could happen! She, even more, could not believe that this could be blamed on her! Just because she had a conflict with Zoe the day before, so she was the one that did it? How absurd!

“Avery!” Elliot looked at her retreating. His heart constricted tightly. “Answer my question!”

“Elliot, I hate you! I hate you again!” Avery yelled out louder than him, “Every time when I start feeling better about you, you will show me how despicable you are!”

Elliot looked at Avery flaring up. He stood in the same spot, dazed.

The raindrops kept hitting on his back. The coldness pierced into him.

However, his gaze at her was hot and burning. The mixture of ice and fire caused him to lose it. He strode toward her.

“You didn’t do it, right?” Elliot walked toward her and grabbed her thin shoulders tightly. Her voice was hoarse, “You are not this type of person. Avery, I know that you’re not this type of person! I’m asking you because I want to hear from you that it wasn’t you who did it!”

“I didn’t do it!” Avery’s eyes were reddened. She said aggrievedly, “You shouldn't have asked me this type of question!"

Things like gouging other people's eyes, even just by saying it gives her the chills! She would never do such a thing!

"But she said that she heard your voice," Elliot tried to explain, "She said that when they were gouging her eyes out, you were talking to her by the side."

Avery sneered in her heart at such absurd lies, yet she heard his suspicion toward her in his tone.

Avery pushed his hands away. "Just because she is the victim, so you'll believe whatever she says! I have never done such things! Even if she said I did, I didn't do it!"

"Avery, I didn't say that you did it..." Elliot swallowed his saliva. He tried to calm her down.

"Although you didn't say it, your eyes and your tone are suspecting me of it!"

Avery's heart hurt. "You're standing on her side, investigating me. I'll only accept the police's investigation!"

"You would rather let the police investigate you instead of facing me?" Elliot looked at her reddened eyes and her aggrieved expression. He was instantly heartbroken, like someone slicing him piece by piece.

"Get out!" Avery strode over to him and pushed him toward the door. "If I am wrong, the law will punish me! I don't need you to insult me!"

The rain was pouring outside like rocks smashing to the ground.

When Elliot was pushed by her into the rain, he was afraid that Avery would be drenched by the rain too, so he pushed her slightly back inside.

They were both separated by the door frame.

He stood under the rain looking at her. The pouring rain soon drenched him completely. The only thing unchanged was his black eyes, stubbornly looking at her.

She was still angry. Even if he stood there under the rain for the entire night, it would not relieve her of her anger!

Avery shut the door with all her might and leaned against the door listlessly. All she could hear was the pitter-patter of the rain and the sound of her heart smashing to pieces.

A long time later, tears flowed from the corner of her eyes to the corner of her mouth. A booming thunder could be heard from outside!

She did not know if he was still outside the door at that moment. She quickly turned around and opened the door.

The instant she opened the door, he looked up.

She saw him wiping away the rain on his face with his huge palms. Then, his jet-black eyes were looking at her once again.

At that moment, even if thunder came down on her, even if the skies fell on her, it would not stop her from losing control of her steps! She strode into the rain and walked toward him!

Chapter 629

Elliot was in a daze looking at Avery coming out. Before he could think of anything, his body already took a step toward her.

He picked her up in his arms and strode back indoors.

Although Avery had only been in the rain for a few seconds, her face was wet from the rain...or perhaps it was tears!

“Avery, I’m not suspecting you. You said you didn’t do it, that means you didn’t do it.” Elliot placed Avery down on the sofa. He bent down and explained patiently, “Zoe is so sure that you harmed her. If she reported it to the police, the police would surely come looking for you. I don’t want you to be questioned like a criminal. If we can find an alibi for you beforehand, the police won't need to come to look for you anymore."

Avery looked at Elliot's wet and wretched look. She could not get angry.

"I went to look for Wesley today," Avery's voice had no emotions in them. "I was at his house the entire day."

"You were in his house the entire day?" The tenderness in Elliot's eyes instantly vanished. His tone was obviously more nervous.

"Yes. Are you going to ask what I was doing in his house?" Avery's clear eyes saw the changes on his face. Her heart hurt. "This is my private matter. I can't tell you."

Elliot felt as if he was ambushed in the dark. He secretly let out a pained muffled grunt

Wesley and she were doing things in private that even he could not be toldge about.

Elliot's body was so cold he shivered. When he got up, his gaze at her was a little disappointed and disheartened. He clenched his fists tightly and soon vanished from her sight.

This time, he left. He left without looking back

At one in the morning, Mike's car drove into the courtyard. After Mike paid the driver, the fumbled to get out of the car.

When he was by the entrance, he noticed that the huge door was opened. A lamp was turned on in the living area. Avery was lying on the sofa like a lifeless corpse!

"Avery!" Mike was instantly sobered.

He quickly ran to the sofa and pressed his hands on her cheeks. He was burned by the temperature of her body.

“Bloody hell! How did she have a fever?” Mike was instantly frantic. He did not know what to do.

She was a pregnant woman at that moment, he did not dare to let her take any medication.

He found a cooling pad from the room where they stored medicine and placed it on her forehead. Then, he called Elliot.

“Avery is having a fever! I don’t know what I should do! Should I call the ambulance, or should I send her to the hospital?” Mike did not dare to simply move her about. He was afraid that something might happen to the child in her tummy.

Elliot gripped his phone tighter. He wanted to go care for her immediately, but when he thought about the things that she told him that night, his heart hurt so badly that he turned sinister. “Go get Wesley!”

“Oh? Oh!” Mike was in a daze for a while before hanging up and calling Wesley.

In less than half an hour, Wesley rushed over with his medical suitcase. Mike returned to his room because Wesley was there to care for Avery.

Soon, dawn came.

Avery opened her eyes and the things that happened the night before flooded her mind.

Zoe’s eyes had been gouged. She said that she was the one who did it. Zoe even said that she heard her voice when it happened.

To prove a person is guilty, one must produce evidence of a crime! Zoe would never be able to produce any evidence that says that she was guilty!

Elliot made her produce evidence that she was not guilty. Legally speaking, she did not need to do that, so she could not just accept this.

In the afternoon, Elliot received a call from the captain of the police station.

“Mr. Foster, Avery was accompanied by a male friend just now. She came in to hand in evidence of her whereabouts yesterday. I had a look. She was at her male friend's house the entire day. Zoe's incident most likely has nothing to do with her. But...” The captain hesitated for a bit before continuing, “Mr. Foster, Miss Tate's relationship with this male friend doesn't seem that simple.”

Chapter 630

A man and woman staying at home the entire day. The woman said that it was her private matter, so she could not tell anyone about it. How simple could their relationship be?

Elliot thought that their relationship was not simple, it was borderline fantasy!

“I know.” Elliot heard his own voice. There were no emotions in them. Did he not care? No. He was just helpless.

Avery wanted to stay in another man's house for an entire day and not tell him the reason, but what could he do? Pry her mouth open? Even if he pried her mouth open, she would not tell him.

At the hospital.

The police told Zoe about Avery's alibi. Zoe did not believe them after hearing it.

“I'm blind right now. I can't see anything. It can't be whatever you said it is! I don't believe you!” Zoe said agitatedly.

“Miss Sanford, you can get your family to look at the evidence,” The police said and looked at Cole. “You're her family, right?”

Cole immediately said, “Officer, I believe in the work of the police.”

Zoe yelled out loud, “He is not my family! Officer! He is not!”

Zoe knew clearly that the person who blinded her other than Avery was Cole!

If without Cole's help, how could Avery so easily get to her? It was only she who did not dare to expose Cole for it. She was going to end her life, but her father was still around. What if Cole, that dirtbag, went to look for trouble with her father?

"Officer, I am Zoe's father. Please show me the evidence." Richard walked over to the police with a wearied expression.

"Okay," The police said, "The complete evidence is at the station. Please follow me back!"

"Okay." Richard, of course, believed his daughter, but if the police said that Avery did not do it, he had to see the evidence for himself.

At Starry River Villa, after running about the entire morning, Avery finally returned home.

She had a fever the night before. Although the fever had subsided, she was still feeling weak. She was listless.

In the afternoon, after returning home, she immediately went back to her room and lay down in bed.

Mike pushed her door open. He saw that her eyes were open. He said, "I've made some porridge. Do you want to have some? Wesley said that you have not had anything since morning. Don't starve yourself."

Avery responded and asked hoarsely, "Has Wesley left?"

"He left after sending you home. He asked him to take care of you today." Mike brought the bowl of porridge over to the side of the bed and sat down. "Avery, when I returned home last night, I saw our door wide open. You were just lying on the sofa like that..."

Avery covered her mouth and coughed.

"This morning you went to provide evidence to prove your innocence. Did someone come last night to talk to you about Zoe's incident?" Mike placed the bowl down. He patted her back

Avery pushed his hands away. "I'm not choking. It's the sickness that makes my throat uncomfortable."

"Oh, then have some food." He passed the bowl to her. "Wesley said that if you're feeling unwell, you can have some medication. It wouldn't affect the child much."

"Hmm." Avery had some porridge. She replied to Mike's previous question, "Before I fell asleep on the sofa last night, I wanted to go close the door, but I was too tired. I couldn't get up."

Chapter 631

"Last night's rain was pouring, why did you open the door?" Mike has actually already guessed it, he just did not want to put it explicitly.

If Avery still did not want to talk about it, he would not ask her anymore.

"Zoe said that when her eyes were gouged, she heard my voice." Avery's expressions were cold, her tone even colder. "What a poor lie, yet someone believed her."

Mike said, "Thank goodness Wesley could be your witness. But what did you do at Wesley's yesterday?"

"I was doing some work," Avery brushed it off and said, "But if I said that to others, they would never believe me."

"What is there to not believe about you? That you are in a relationship with Wesley? If that was the case, you two would have long been together," Mike teased, "But seriously, I really like men like Wesley. It's only those men like him usually would only be liked by terrible women."

Avery retorted, "Wesley will not be together with bad women."

"I'm not saying that he would be together with them. I'm saying that those women would likecd him.”

“Don’t say that! Good women would like Wesley too!”

“Okay, okay! I’m wrong! Wesley would surely be able to find a very good woman,” Mike said. Avery let himge go.

After finishing the porridge, Mike accepted the empty bowl from Avery.

“If Elliot knew that you were at Wesley’s house for the entire day, he would surely not believe you as I do,” Mike said, “Now that you’ve handed in the evidence, I’m afraid he might know about this!”

“He knew about this since yesterday.” Avery lowered her gaze. “Not only did he suspect me of harming Zoe, but he also doubts my relationship with Wesley.”

“Can’t you just explain it to him? I don’t understand. You’re not in the wrong. What is there to argue about?” Mike sighed.

“I’ve already handed in the evidence. Unless I tell him specifically what I was doing in ey’s house yesterday, only he will believe me, but I can’t tell him. It has to do with the patient’s confidentiality. Even if I told him, he would get angry at me.

He has warned me not to take on any private engagements.”

Mike was stunned. “Since when did you take on private engagements again?

Avery, you’re so pregnant. Why would you dare to do it?”

“See, even you have this reaction, let alone him.”

Mike said, “No, even if I have a huge reaction, I can’t do anything about it!”

“He can’t do anything about it either, but he will get angry with me,” Avery’s head started to hurt. “Please leave, I’ll nap for a while.”

“Oh. Let me measure your body temperature.” Mike placed his hand on her forehead to test.

Thankfully, her body temperature was normal.

Avery, Hayden will have a break the day after tomorrow. If you're not feeling well, rest at home. I'll go to Bridgedale tomorrow to take care of him," Mike stood by the side of the bed, telling Avery.

"I'll go there myself." Avery did not forget about this matter. "My body is fine."

"Then, I'll go with you." Mike's tone was firm. Even if she refused, it was pointless.

After coming out of the Starry River Villa, Wesley was rather distracted, so he stopped the car by the side of the road.

He took his phone, found Shea's contact, and dialed her.

A moment later, the call was connected, but it was not Shea's voice.

"Shea doesn't need you to teach her in the future." Elliot's cold voice came over. "Don't look for her again."

"Why?" Wesley furrowed his brows. "Pass the phone to Shea. Unless Shea tells me this herself, if not, I won't accept it."

"You won't accept it?" Elliot thought he had heard a joke. He swallowed his saliva and said sternly, "I also won't accept that you and Avery are keeping things from me!"

"So, it's because of this." Wesley's tone softened. He pondered for a few seconds before saying, "Elliot, if I tell you this, can you stop torturing Avery? She had a fever last night and she kept muttering your name..."

Chapter 632

"I'm torturing her?" Elliot murmured. He suddenly raised his voice. He said coldly, "Wesley, don't you think you're shameless?"

"I'm shameless. All of it is my fault, but please don't use your narrow thinking to view Avery." Wesley's tone was calm, but he was honest. "Avery came to look for me yesterday. One is to look for the notes Professor Hough left behind when he was still alive. Two, to show me her treatment proposal so I can give her my suggestions. Although my medical skills are not as great as hers, theory-wise, I can still make do.”

Elliot’s breathing turned heavy.

“Avery took on a surgery,” Wesley continued, “If you think that she’s doing this just for the money, you’re too shallow. If you love her, can you learn how to respect her!”

Wesley rarely raised his voice at others. He was well-mannered and knew how to control himself. However, at Elliot, he could no longer remain calm.

After a short moment of silence, Elliot retorted, “Your so-called respect is just giving in without any limits! If I didn’t love a woman, I could do that to her too! I could just not care about her!”

Wesley said, “You grab a handful of sand. The tighter you grab it, the faster it flows out of your hand. You can never tie Avery. She does not belong to you alone.”

Elliot suddenly yelled in rage, “She iscd mine!”

“I do not want to fight with you on this!” Wesley could not defeat him, so he changed the subject. “You have no right to stop Shea from interacting with whoever. She is no longer the idiot that you could control. Please respect her and pass her phone back to her!”

Elliot hungge up

Wesley placed his phone down and held the driving wheel tightly. He tried to collect his thoughts

Elliot had a stubborn personality. He had a strong desire for control, whether it was Avery or Shea, it was the same case

However, whether it was Shea or Avery, they still deeply loved this man. Of course, Shea's love and Avery's love were different. Shea's love was the purest form.

Soon after, Wesley's phone rang again. Wesley picked it up and saw that it was from Shea. He immediately answered the call.

"Wesley, Big Brother was angry with me. You called me but he didn't let me answer," Shea's tone sounded extremely aggrieved, "But thankfully he just returned the phone to me."

"Shea, he is not angry with you. He is angry with me." Wesley was afraid that Shea would think otherwise, so he explained to her, "Did he forbid you from going out?"

"I don't think so." She suddenly laughed. "Wesley, can I go look for you now?"

"Okay."

At the hospital, Richard returned from the police station after seeing the evidence. He told Zoe about the outcome.

Zoe screamed with all her might, "Dad! How could you be bought by them! How much did they pay you! Huh!"

Richard said, "Zoe, be strong. This really has nothing to do with Avery. The police will continue investigating. Once they catch the culprit, they will give us an answer."

"Hahahah! I'm about to die soon, you want me to be strong? The culprit is Avery. I heard her voice. Why do none of you believe me? It's fine if the outsiders don't believe me, but dad, how could you not believe me! Because I've become a disabled person, so you don't love me anymore?"

"Zoe! It's not that I don't believe you, but the voice that you heard might be a hallucination. It could also be someone else mimicking her voice or editing her voice into a clip... If not, why did her voice appear after you turned blind? The police said that to me. I think it's logical too.”

Richard did not like Avery, but he could not ignore the facts.

Zoe sat on the bed in a daze, as if her soul had been sucked away.

Cole walked over to Richard and said in a low voice, “Uncle Richard, I want to talk to you in private about Zoe and the child.” Richard followed Cole out of the ward.

Chapter 633

“Uncle Richard, Zoe in this state. I'm very upset. I haven't had any sleep for the past two days. She kept wanting to die, but I don't want her to die.”

Richard cut to the chase and said, “You're just worried about the child, right? You have no feelings for Zoe at all.”

“I don't want to contradict you, but you should be clear that Zoe has no feelings for me too.” Cole had a glum expression. “Our child is innocent. I will take good care of Zoe until she gives birth to our child. Once our child is born, I will give you some money and you take Zoe back to Bridgedale to start a new life. Just name the price. I will try my best to match it. I assure you that you and Zoe won't have to worry for the rest of your lives.”

Richard did not immediately answer, he seemed to be thinking about it.

Zoe was standing by the door in her ward. She heard their conversation clearly.

At that moment, she was not a normal human being. She was just a product.

If it were not for the child in her, being worth still a little, Cole would not stay here in the ward with her. He would not have even asked her father to name a price.

Zoe had no words for Cole, but she was completely disappointed in her father!

Zoe fumbled around and headed to thecd washroom.

Outside the ward, after Richard pondered for a while, he replied to Cole, "Cole, I do indeed love money, but you're not Elliot. You won't be able to satisfy my price. Once Zoe is discharged, I will take her back to Bridgedale and I will send her to see a therapist. Once her mental condition gets better, we'll see if she wants to have the child or not."

"You're equally snobbish like Zoe! Back when my uncle was pursuing her, she had never once looked at me." Cole sneered. "Don't blame me for being mean to her. She's notge worthy."

Richard's expressions darkened. "My daughter has become this way! Don't think I don't know what you did! She has been staying and living in your house. How could her eyes have suddenly been gouged out? Cole, you're evil. You will have retribution!"

"Hehe, you two are not a match for me right now. Even if there are retributions, you two will have it first!" Cole said with gritted teeth. He turned around, pushed the door, and entered.

In the ward, Zoe was nowhere to be seen.

"Zoe!" Cole looked at the empty bed and yelled out loud!

Richard yelled along with him too. "Zoe! Where are you hiding? Come out quickly! Once you're discharged, I'll take you home! We will never return to Aryadelle again!"

The ward was not huge. The two of them looked all around but did not see Zoe anywhere.

The balcony was sealed to avoid patients from jumping out of the window. Zoe could not have vanished just like that. She had to be still in the ward.

"She must be in the washroom!" Cole saw that the washroom door was shut. He immediately ran over.

Cole tried to open the door, but it was locked on the other side! He immediately ran to look for medical staff.

Soon, the nurse took the key to the washroom and rushed over. She opened the door.

They saw Zoe on the floor. Her face and hair were completely wet.

The sink was filled with water.

The nurse pronounced Zoe dead from drowning. Cole immediately retreated a few steps backward before fleeing the scene!

Zoe is dead! The child in her would not survive either! This was not the outcome that he wanted. He wanted the child. He never thought that Zoe was not afraid of death!

Since she died, everything was over! In the evening, Avery heard about Zoe committing suicide. Her chest constricted tightly.

Chapter 634

This was something Avery did not expect would happen. How much in despair she would have been to take her own life!

Zoe not only killed herself. She did not even let the child in her survive.

Avery started to doubt the accusations Zoe made about her when she was alive. Zoe said that when her eyes were gouged, she heard her voice, could there really be such a thing?

Who was the one who would attack Zoe? Why did this person want to put the blame on her?

Was it Cole?

Zoe was pregnant with his child. He did not need to do such a thing to Zoe.

Could it be that the real reason behind harming Zoe was that the culprit wanted to go up against her? If not, what was the explanation behind her voice appearing when Zoe's eyes were gouged?

Avery instantly sweated profusely.

Mike was carrying a bowl of hot porridge into her room. He saw her sitting up straight on the bed, her eyes out of focus. She did not even notice him entering.

"Avery, what are you thinking about?" Mike placed the bowl on the nightstand by the bed. He waved his hand in front of her eyes. "Are you thinking about Zoe?"

Avery came to her senses. She looked at Mike and said, "Is she really dead?"

"Yes. The police have investigated it. She drowned herself in the washroom of her ward," Mike said with a sigh, "It's scary just thinking about it. I won't dare to do it. I'm afraid of death."

If not, he would not have constantly stuck to Avery. He was afraid that one day if his old condition were to flare up again, being with her, he would be rescued at the first moment.

"Avery, don't think about this anymore. I'll take you out of the country tomorrow. We'll go relax." Mike placed the bowl of porridge in front of her. "Have some food."

Avery raised her hand and rubbed her temples. She said in a low voice, "I don't have any appetite. I have a very strong feeling that the person who hurt Zoe was coming for me."

"Avery, don't think about it that way. You know well what sort of person Zoe was. It's not strange if someone wants to harm her. As for her saying that she heard your voice, it might not be real," Mike comforted Avery.

"It might not be fake either."

"Even if it's like what you said, that means that the person does not dare to take any action against you. If not, they would not have hurt Zoe, right?" Mike continued comforting her,"

Let's go out of the country to relax a little. Once we're back, we'll hire a few more bodyguards."

Avery accepted the bowl from Mike and started eating.

At another place, Chelsea saw the news of Zoe taking her life. Her expressions darkened.

She never thought that Zoe would die so quickly. How weak! It was just a pair of eyes! She never even thought of seeking revenge on Avery! What a useless being!

"Chelsea, Zoe is dead. I don't think it affected Avery much," Nora said timidly.

"There is still some effect. According to what I hear, Avery and Elliot fought again," Chelsea sneered. "How many lovers died during quarrels. Elliot is now giving in to her because of the child in her tummy. Once she has given birth to the child and her body is out of shape, on top of that, she doesn't change her temper, I'll see how long she will be pampered by him."

"Chelsea, although you make sense, I don't want her to live," Nora said with a sinister expression, "When she dies, maybe Elliot would treat me as her substitute because he missed her."

Chelsea was silent for a few seconds. She said, "Perhaps we could join forces with Wanda. If something were to happen, at least there was someone to take the blame."

A day later, at the subway stop in Bridgedale. Hayden realized that someone was following him. He lowered his cap and quickly turned and entered a restaurant. Then, he immediately pressed the red button on his watch! Two seconds later, Mike's watch let out a shrill alarm ringtone.

Chapter 635

“Damn it! Hayden is in danger!” Mike exclaimed, “Avery, wait for me in the car! I’ll go look for him!”

Mike quickly parked the car by the side of the road and pressed the emergency button before running toward the metro stop.

Hayden had a holiday that day. The summer camp bus stopped them all at a huge mall near the subway station.

Hayden bought a gift for his mother. While paying, he realized that someone was secretly observing him. He came out of the mall and walked over to the subway station. Who knew that the person followed him too? Thus, he was sure that he was being followed.

Avery could not even sit still in the car and wait. After Mike got out of the car, she got out of the car too and strode toward the subway station.

The bodyguard was holding onto her while persuading her, “Miss Tate, be careful of the child in your tummy! If you go into labor, are you planning to have the child on the streets?”

Initially, Avery did not feel anything in her tummy. When she heard what the bodyguard said, her tummy hurt a little.

She stopped in her tracks and clutched her tummy. “Go and quickly find Hayden! What would Mike do alone! What if he was in danger!”

The bodyguard could not just abandon her like that. “The subway station has a lot of guards. They will be fine.”

“No! I must go in and see!” Avery held onto the bodyguard’s arm and continued walking toward the subway station.

At that moment, Mike carried Hayden and walked out.

The moment Avery saw them both, her suspended heart finally dropped.

“Avery, didn’t I ask you to wait in the car? Why did you run out?” Mike walked over to her, panting, “Let’s get in the car first!”

After getting in the car, Avery immediately hugged Hayden sideways. “Hayden, are you alright? I’m sorry I didn’t come to pick you up earlier...”

“Mommy, I’m fine. I accidentally pressed the button on my watch,” Hayden said and took out the gift he bought for her from his bag. “When I bought this gift for you, I accidentally pressed it.”

Avery accepted the gift, still worried. “Don’t lie to me. This has never happened before.”

“I never bought a gift on my own before either.” Hayden smiled a rare smile.

a

“As long as you’re fine. Let’s go. I’ll bring you to have a good meal.

“Hmm. Mommy, open the gift.”

Avery immediately opened the gift. It was a butterfly hair clip that could move. It was extremely adorable.

“I love it.” She said and pinned it on her hair. “Did you get one for Layla too?”

“Hmm, it’s in my bag.”

“I feel so blessed to have you.”

At night, after Avery returned to her room to rest, Mike entered Hayden’s room.

He locked the door from inside and cut to the chase. “It’s one thing to lie to your mother. Are you trying to lie to me? Tell me quickly, what’s going on?”.

Hayden said, “If I tell you, you can’t tell Mommy.”

“Of course! Don’t you trust me?” Mike stood in front of Hayden and asked, “Did you get yourself into trouble?”

“When I was investigating Nora, I realized that she had visited a strange webpage. I entered and realized it was the dark web.” Hayden said in a low voice.

“What kind of dark web?”

“I don’t understand some of it. Some of it is human trafficking.” Hayden paused for a while. “I blew up this dark web, but some of my information got leaked.”

Mike said sternly, “You’re too impulsive! You should have told me first.”

“I was scared to death by the content of the page.” Hayden still found it scary at the thought of it. “I will find a way to solve this. Don’t let Mommy know.”

Chapter 636

“How are you going to deal with it?” Mike crossed his arms on his waist. “You shouldn’t have blown up that web page. Since Nora knows about that dark webpage, that means she must have known someone or some organization in it. Perhaps we could have found something on it.”

Hayden lowered his head remorsefully when he heard what Mike said. He was frightened at that time, which was why he was impulsive.

Thinking about it at that moment, he should not have done so.

“Let me handle this.” Mike patted Hayden on the head. “You finally have two days off. Rest well tonight. Go be with your mother tomorrow. Hand the computer over to me. I’ll try my best to restore the webpage.”

Hayden said, “Nora must be a bad person. Tell Mommy to stay further away from her.”

“That woman’s target is your father, she doesn’t have much contact with your mother.”

Hayden did not care about whether Elliot lived or died, so he did not say anything else.

The next day, after Avery got up, she made breakfast for Hayden.

Hayden came out of his room. He walked over to the kitchen. “Mommy, Uncle Mike can't go out with us today."

Avery turned the fire off. She said confusedly, "Is he sick?"

Mike shook his head. "He was up all night. He can't get up today."

"Oh...do you know why he was up all night? Were you up with him?"

"No. I went to wake him up just now, he told me."

"In that case, let him rest at home!" Avery smiled once more. "I seared some steak for you. I don't know how it tastes."

Ever since Avery got pregnant, she no longer stepped into the kitchen.

"Everything you make tastes good, Mommy." Hayden smiled. His eyes sparkled.

Avery was touched. All the unhappiness that happened back in Aryadelle instantly vanished.

After breakfast, mother and son headed to the science museum. Avery could not bring Hayden to amusement theme parks or malls, because Hayden was not interested in those.

The only places that he would like were places that had to do with science and technology.

On the way to the science museum, Hayden kept looking at Avery's tummy. He has not seen Avery for half a month. He felt that her tummy has grown much bigger.

"Hayden, do you want to touch my tummy?" Avery asked with a smile. "Your little brother likes to move a lot right now. If you touch my tummy, he might move!"

Hayden found it magical, so he carefully placed his hand on Avery's tummy.

"Mommy, when will he come out?" Hayden was curious about his younger brother.

“In about three months more,” Avery said, “He looks just like you!”

“Oh. Mommy, what are you planning to name him?” Hayden retracted his hand and looked at Avery. “Can you not give him to Elliot, please?”

In Hayden’s heart, Elliot was definitely a bad person.

Avery furrowed her brows a little. “Hayden, I can’t guarantee that your little brother will stay with us. It’s not that I don’t want to care for him, but Elliot’s decision is firm.”

Hayden’s expressions instantly turned glum. He looked out of the window gloomily. “He wants to use the baby to threaten you to be with him!”

“Hayden, don’t be angry.” Avery felt bitter. She hugged Hayden in her arms.

“Once the baby is out, I will talk to him properly. I’ll try to let your little brother stay with us.”

At the science museum.

Due to it being the weekend, there was a crowd there. The bodyguard kept staying close to Avery, afraid that she would be bumped into.

“This robot can quickly mimic a person’s real voice. As long as you say something to it, it can use your voice to answer your questions...”

A staff member was introducing the robot at the exhibition area by the side.

Avery suddenly stopped in her tracks.

She headed over to the exhibition without any control of her feet. The bodyguard and Hayden immediately followed her.

Chapter 637

“Does anyone want to try?” A staff member asked the interested patrons.

Many raised their hands. They wanted to give it a go.

Avery wanted to raise her hand too, but her body stiffened terribly like she was placed under a hex. She could not move at all. She has initially almost forgotten about everything that happened back in Aryadelle. However, at that moment, all those memories flooded her again!

She never expected that technology was already so advanced. A robot could actually mimic a person's voice.

Thus, when Zoe's eyes were gouged and she heard her voice, could it have been done by a robot?

A woman was invited up to the stage. She greeted the robot. "Hello, my name is Lily. I want to test if you could really mimic my voice."

The robot was silent for a few seconds before saying, "Hello Lily, I'm trying hard to mimic your voice! Do you think I sound like you?"

A burst of laughter came from below the stage! The robot's voice was indeed quite like hers, but after all, it was still a robot, so the speed it spoke was a little slower. It felt quite emotionless, so it sounded weird.

Avery's tightened chest relaxed a little. The effect was quite different from what she expected.

"Miss Tate, are you interested in this?" The bodyguard said, "The robot's mimic is not as good as some comedians!"

"Is that so? Can someone fully mimic another person's voice?" Avery has never paid any attention to this before.

"Of course! Go search for it on the web. There are a bunch of them! This is nothing strange." The bodyguard said and pointed in front. "Miss Tate, there is a lucky draw in front, let's go!"

Avery distractedly followed the bodyguard over.

"Hayden, go and draw a prize!" The bodyguard picked Hayden up and get him to draw.

Hayden was not interested in the lucky draw, but he was interested in the prize.

The first prize was a very cool model of a robot.

If he had to buy it, the price would be expensive.

Hayden drew a ticket out. Before he could scratch the ticket to reveal the price, the staff member immediately took it away from him and helped him to scratch.

“Wow! Buddy, you won first prize!” The staff member exclaimed.

The surrounding crowd cheered in response.

Hayden smiled brightly. This was the type of happiness that could not be bought with money.

Avery looked at the staff member handing over the unique model of a robot to Hayden. She felt that it was very unreal.

Hayden was way too lucky. Was this a dream? Avery reached out and pinched herself on the arm. It hurts! It was not a dream! She could not help but smile, almost laughing out loud.

Just when she was about to laugh out loud, she saw a familiar figure among the crowd.

Her smile was plastered on her face.

That man was Elliot! Why was he here? When did he come? What was he doing here?

Avery quickly walked over to him! The bodyguard and Hayden were still basking in the happiness of winning a prize, so they did not notice Avery leaving.

Elliot saw that Avery noticed his presence. He quickly turned around and left.

Mike told him that Zoe’s suicide caused her mental condition to be quite unstable. Mike also told him that if he were a man, he should apologize to Avery for suspecting her previously! Which was why Elliot came.

“Elliot!” Avery saw that he was about to leave. She immediately called out his name. "Stop right there!"

Chapter 638

Elliot remained in the same spot. Avery soon quickly walked over to him.

"When did you come?" Avery looked at him. There was not any expression on his face. He looked away and said in a very low voice, "Yesterday."

"What are you doing here?" Avery raised her voice. "Did you come alone?"

She did not know why she wanted to stop him nor why she asked him these questions.

Previously, they both had an argument. No one wanted to admit defeat. At that moment, meeting each other, they could have gone their separate ways.

However, Avery could not control her thoughts. What if he was there to look for her?

"There's a speech at a school." Elliot swallowed his saliva. He could not help but look at her.

"I studied here for a year in high school. I'm going to give a speech in the afternoon. Do you want to go?"

Avery was a little disappointed. She did not hide it very well.

"I'm with Hayden today. I'm not free," Avery said and looked toward Hayden.

Hayden's smile has long vanished. At that moment, he was looking coldly in their direction.

The bodyguard was holding onto the robot that they won, standing next to Hayden. He was looking at them too.

Avery inhaled awkwardly. "I only felt that it was a little too much of a coincidence that I would bump into you here," she paused for a while before saying, "I'll make a move."

She only took her first step away when Elliot grabbed her arm. "Let's have dinner tonight." Afraid that she would reject him, he added, "I'm returning to Aryadelle tomorrow."

"Hayden wouldn't want to have dinner with you, so..."

"I know you'll find a way. He listens the most to you." Elliot walked over to Avery and looked at her with his dark eyes. He said seriously, "Avery, I'm sorry. I shouldn't have suspected you. Although my initial intention wasn't that way, I still hurt you."

Avery's face blushed red. Her body temperature shot up within a few short seconds too. She was so hot she panicked. She never thought that Elliot would say such a thing.

Was he there to give a speech or apologize to her?

Elliot did not like going to places where there was a crowd. If he did not come here to look for her, why was he there to torture himself?

"So, the lucky draw, the robot...was your doing." Avery knew that they would not be so lucky.

"Don't tell Hayden." Elliot sounded helpless. "I just wanted you all to be happy."

"I know." Avery lowered her gaze. She did not dare to meet his eyes.

Elliot came over to apologize to her, expressing his sincerity. Even if she felt aggrieved, she did not have the mood to lose her temper at him.

"I've booked a room at the restaurant near your place. Let's have a meal together tonight, please?" Elliot asked this once again.

Avery had already caved in, but she did not want to agree to him that easily. "I'll consider it."

She walked over to Hayden.

Elliot saw her safely back with the bodyguard and Hayden before turning around and leaving.

Avery looked at her son's tightly furrowed brows. She wanted to cheer him up.

"Hayden, the robot is so cool!"

"Mommy, what is he doing here?" Hayden asked.

"He came to apologize." Avery did not want to keep things from Hayden. "He invited us to dinner tonight."

"I knew that he wouldn't have good intentions."

"If you don't want to, then we won't have dinner with him tonight." Avery smiled.

She did not want to spoil her son's mood.

Hayden looked at her. Her wishes were all in her eyes.

That night, Avery brought Hayden to the restaurant that Elliot reserved. It was Hayden's decision to come because he saw how much Avery wanted to come.

Chapter 639

The huge room only had three of them. The atmosphere was rather strangely quiet.

The waiter left after serving the food.

Elliot pondered for a while. He was just about to say something when Avery jumped the gun and said something first because she was afraid that Elliot would make Hayden angry.

"Hayden, didn't you say you were hungry? This restaurant is quite good. Have more food."

Avery placed a huge pile of food in Hayden's dish.

Hayden lowered his head and ate. He did not even look at Elliot.

Elliot picked up a ladle and scooped some soup for Avery. "When are you planning to return to Aryadelle?"

Avery did not want to talk to Elliot in front of Hayden because Hayden was extremely sensitive to Elliot. She was afraid that if any sentence of his would make Hayden unhappy, it would only deepen the rift between father and son.

“Let’s eat first!” Avery lowered her gaze and took small mouthfuls.

A moment later, Hayden was full. He placed his utensils down. “Mommy, I’m tired. I’ll go home first.”

Avery immediately placed her utensils down. She wanted to go with her.

“Mommy, you’re not finished yet! I’ll get Uncle Bodyguard to send me back.”

Hayden grabbed his bag and headed out.

After the little third wheel left, Elliot could finally speak.

“Hayden is going back to summer camp tomorrow. When are you planning to return to Aryadelle? We could head back together,” Elliot said.

“I don’t want to return tomorrow.” Avery politely refused to return to Aryadelle with him tomorrow.

“Then, I won’t go back tomorrow,” Elliot said, changing his mind.

Avery was speechless.

“Don’t worry, I won’t bother you.” Looking at how stunned she was, he changed the subject. “Soon, our child will be six-months-old. Time passes by quickly.”

“Is that so?” Avery did not think so because too many things had happened.

Sometimes when she thought back about it, it was like she was having a strange nightmare.

“Life passes by quickly too.” Elliot’s gaze was suddenly in the distance.

“Recently, I’ve been thinking about the things that happened when I was young. The past few decades have passed in a blink of an eye. It feels like in another blink of an eye, I’ll be old and white-haired.”

“Did you have an unhappy childhood?”

“What makes you say that?” Elliot smiled but he had no expression on his face.

"I guessed." Avery took a sip of the soup and said peacefully, "You find it hard to trust others, including me."

"What about you, then?" Elliot's tone was peaceful too. He did not want to provoke or start any fight. "Nora and I are innocent. Why are you angry then? Avery, you can't not trust me but expect me to trust you fully."

In this round, he won.

Avery did indeed get angry at him because of Nora.

"All the problems between us, can we lay it out on the table once and for all tonight?" He wanted to resolve the conflicts between them.

Soon after, their child was going to be born. They needed to bring the child up together.

"There are no problems." Avery put down her spoon. She did not want to discuss such a heavy topic. "I'm a little tired. I didn't nap in the afternoon."

"I'll send you back." Elliot got up from his chair and walked over to her. He helped her up.

"Where are you staying?" Avery picked her bag up and asked.

Elliot hesitated for a while.

Avery looked at his slightly blushing handsome face. Her heart skipped a beat.

"Elliot, don't tell me you only came here today, and you haven't found a place to stay?"

"Hmm, I'll just find a hotel near your place later." Elliot seemed like he wanted to assure her, but it also seemed like he did not. "Anyway, this time I didn't bring a bodyguard with me. I can just stay anywhere. It's easy." He did not bring a bodyguard with him! Avery furrowed her brows tightly.

Chapter 640

"Why didn't you bring a bodyguard? Don't you know that you are a public figure?" Avery furrowed her brows. She was suddenly angry. "Did you think that there wouldn't be danger in Bridgedale? Bridgedale's safety is much worse than Aryadelle's!"

Elliot looked at her agitated face. Words got stuck in his throat.

"Avery, don't be angry. I came here on a last-minute decision," Elliot explained.

"At that time, there wasn't an extra ticket on the flight, so I didn't bring the bodyguard along with me.

"Can't you just take the next flight with your bodyguard?" Although Avery was complaining, she had calmed down. "You're staying at my place tonight."

"Okay."

"Did you do it deliberately?" The more she thought, the more suspicious she got. "Did you really not bring your bodyguard?"

"What about the trust we just talked about?" Elliot said directly, "If I wanted to stay at your place, I have a thousand ways to do it. The only thing I won't do is lie to you and gain your pity to achieve my goal."

Avery blushed because of hercd suspicion.

Once Hayden returned home, he saw Mike sitting in the living area eating takeaway and drinking beer.

"Big H, didn't I spend this morning repairing the webpage? Turns out, someone shut it down," Mike said remorsefully, "I'm guessing the webpage must have a hugege secret."

"Oh," Hayden said distractedly, "Elliot came to look for Mommy."

Mike knew about this, so he was not surprised.

"Big H, don't be sad. You're a man. You should recognize the reality and accept it," Mike comforted him, "Your mother loves Elliot. Even if they fight all the time, it can't change this fact."

Hayden pouted. He was indignant.

“This is love,” Mike comforted Hayden. “You’re still young, so you won’t understand. You’ll get it once you’re older.”

Hayden was gloomy from Mike’s comforts. He turned around and returned to his room.

Soon after, Avery brought Elliot home.

Mike saw the two of them and raised his beer on the table. He raised his eyebrow and said to

OW Elliot, “Come have a drink!”

Avery looked at Mike and said nothing. She was prepared to return to her room to take a shower.

Elliot grabbed her arm and asked her, “Can I drink with him?”

Avery said, “Drink if you want to.”

“Can you two not be so corny? Do you need to ask permission just to drink?”

Mike teased, “If those that don’t understand this situation, they would think that I was about to pick a fight!”

“I’m just afraid that I’ll get you drunk, and she’ll get angry.” Elliot walked over to Mike and sat down. He picked up a can of beer.

Avery was a little worried. She warned, “Don’t get too drunk. There’s no nanny to take care of you at night.”

“Avery, don’t worry! I won’t get drunk! As for him...as long as he begs for mercy, I won’t make him drink anymore!” Mike said while picking up a can of beer and drinking with Elliot.

Avery has predicted that the situation would turn out to be tragic that night.

Before returning to her room, she went to look for Hayden.

Hayden had just finished his shower. His hair was wet, yet he looked sleepy as if he could fall asleep the next second.

She immediately entered the room, took the hairdryer, and started blow-drying his hair.

Once his hair is dry, she ruffled his head. "Hayden, Elliot didn't bring a bodyguard over this time, so I let him stay the night."

Hayden nodded. "Mommy, I'm sleepy. Go to bed too."

Avery nodded and returned to her room.

At two in the morning, her phone screen lit up before it started ringing.

Avery woke up in alarm from her sleep. She picked up her phone and answered the call.

Ten minutes later, she left her room with her bag in hand.

The living area lights were still on. Mike and Elliot were each on a sofa, they were drunk as a skunk.

No one won.

Avery long expected this outcome. She glanced at them before leaving in a rush. Something has happened to the company.

Chapter 641

Shaun was sobbing through the phone and Avery knew that she had to hurry back. Her mind went blank from the sudden turn of events. The core technology of Tate Industries had been stolen and the most pathetic of it all was that they had no idea who was behind it.

The culprit had taken the opportunity of the absence of her and Mike since they had traveled overseas for leisure.

The core technology of the company was stored in a microchip with layers of security barriers set within it; even when stolen, the culprit might not be able to decode the content right away, but it would happen eventually.

The world was never short of accidents, just like how she didn't imagine that Zoe would commit⁴⁶ suicide.

At seven in the morning, Hayden stepped out of his room and found the entire mansion in silence, as though there was not another soul. He went over to Avery's room and noticed that the bedsheet was in a mess, but there was no one around.

"Mom!" Hayden shouted loudly.

Meanwhile, in the living room, Elliot was woken up by the shout. He got up from the couch through the excruciating headache from the hangover and walked towards Hayden.

"Hayden, what'scd wrong?"

Hayden's eyes reddened; without a care of their previous grudges, he asked anxiously, "my mom is gone! Do you know where she is?"

Elliot immediately sobered. He took out his phone from the pocket of his trousers with a trembling hand and saw the message he received from^{9e} Avery.

'I have an emergency and need to head back first. Help me keep this from Hayden. Don't make him worry

Elliot desperately wanted to call Avery right away, but keeping Hayden from learning Avery's departure was the priority.

"You mom... She...has an early body check this morning... Some of the tests require her to undergo them with an empty stomach...so she headed out to the hospital early," Elliot maintained his composure and came up with an excuse.

"You have summer camp today so let's not be late. I will go find her later in the hospital, so don't worry."

Hayden wasn't sure about pregnancy tests and took Elliot for his words.

As soon as the bodyguards sent Hayden off, Elliot instantly went to call Avery.

Her phone was turned off, so it was likely that she was still on the plane.

Meanwhile, in Aryadelle, Wanda stared at the stolen microchip in her hand with a smug, smile on her face

There was an extremely small logo on the chip that read: Super Brain.

It was the system that Jack had spent fortunes in developing; it was something that belonged to her and now, she had finally taken it back after Avery had taken it from her for so many years. From this point onwards, she vowed to stomp Tate Industries to the ground and defeat Avery

“You sure are resourceful, Chelsea.” Wanda held onto the microchip tightly inside the palm of her hand, “Considering how sincere you are in working with me, I won’t hold back against Avery! I assure you that you will be the only woman remaining by Elliot Foster’s side.”

Chelsea grinned. “I believe you can do it. Once it’s done, I will sweeten the pot for you even more.”

Wanda laughed. “Avery must have already found out about this, and I can even picture her looking furious as ever. She is just a pretty face with no skills at all.

She only managed to get this far by depending on men; now that we have taken the spine of her company, she has nothing left but a pile of rotten meat!”

In Tate Industries, Avery hurried back as soon as she landed. She had not slept for over twelve hours and was looking tormented with her eyes red.

In the meeting room, all managers sat quietly and held their breath as Avery strode into the room with a cold expression and an intimidating aura surrounding her.

She sat down in the president’s seat and was about to speak, when a sharp pain shot up her stomach. She curled up with her hands on her abdomen in sweat and muttered, “it hurts... My belly... It hurts so much...”

Her secretary immediately helped her up while Shaun called an ambulance.

Once Avery was taken to the hospital, the news of it somehow spread like wildfire right away.

“It looks like Tate Industries is really in a crisis this time! Avery Tate was all high and mighty before and now she has to be carried away by an ambulance. How pathetic!”

“Isn’t the baby she’s carrying suffering the most? I heard that it’s Elliot Foster’s, is it true?”

“Who knows? Apart from the one she is carrying, she has two other kids...

Those two are definitely not Elliot Foster’s, or he would have fought for their custody.”

“Avery sure has a chaotic personal life! All things aside, Tate Industries is doomed this time! With their core technology stolen, how could they continue to sell their products at such a high price from now on? She will soon lose the throne in the high-end market!”

“But it’s fatal damage to Avery! It’s no wonder that she passeded out!”

When Wanda caught the news, she opened a bottle of wine cheerfully and took out the photo of her daughter Cassandra from the drawer.

“Cassandra, I won’t let you die in vain,” she said to the photo, “putting Avery through bankruptcy is merely the first step. I will make her wish that she could just die! I will make it so that she eagerly takes her own life from the pain, just like Zoe did!”

With that, she raised her glass and took a sip.

“Of course, I haven’t forgotten about that bast*rd Elliot! Let them all go to hell!”

She said as her eyes glammed with cold viciousness,

Just then, someone knocked on the door and the door was pushed open.

“Madam Tate, there has been a breakthrough in the technical department! They should be able to crack the code in the microchip in no time!” Her assistant strode in with good news.

Wanda sighed a breath of relief. “There’s a grand reward waiting for all of you once it has been successfully decoded!”

“Congratulation, Madam Tate! Soon, Wonder Technologies will surpass Tate Industries and before the number one company in the field for drones all across Aryadelle!” The assistant said, before turning to look at the photo on the office desk. “Who is that woman in the photo, Madam Tate? She looks so beautiful.”

The smile on Wanda’s face faded as she picked up the photo. “This is my daughter. If only she was still alive, she would be so happy to see how I’ve surpassed her father. It’s a shame that... Avery got her killed,”

Shocked, the assistant said, “who knew Avery Tate is such a vicious person! It’s no wonder that you hate her so much!”

Wanda put the photo back into the drawer and gritted out, “I will make her pay.”
Meanwhile, in the hospital.

After being rushed to the hospital, the doctor did a full-body check on Avery.

“Doctor, is my baby okay?” Avery’s forehead was covered with sweat, but the pain had subdued mostly. She regretted her actions, as no matter how important her company was, her child was the most important.

“Your baby is fine, Miss. Tate, but you are not,” the doctor said, “are you feeling overwhelmed by stress lately? You need to keep check of your emotions, or it will reflect on your physical condition and affect the baby’s growth.”

"I know. I will pay attention from now on."

"We will keep you on the oxygen inhaler for now," the doctor continued, "you will be kept under observation in the hospital for two days and will only be discharged when your condition stabilizes."

Avery nodded

"Give your family a call to get them here and take care of you! I will go fill in the hospitalization documents for you," the doctor said, before stepping out.

Avery felt troubled, as she wasn't sure who to call. Just as she was about to find a care worker, her phone rang

"Avery, I heard that something went wrong with your company. Are you okay right now?" Chad contacted Avery under Elliot's command and informed her,

"Mister Foster and Mike have already bought tickets back to Aryadelle."

"Well... Something did happen with the company," she said, but no longer felt as emotional as she did before.

"Don't panic. Mister Foster and Mike will help handle it once they are back,"

Chad comforted her and said, "just rest well at home."

Chapter 643

-Just then, the doctor came back with the documents and walked over to the bed. "Miss. Tate, your documents for hospitalization have been submitted."

Chad overheard him and tensed. "What happened, Avery? Why are you hospitalized? Which hospital are you in right now? I'll go over there right away!"

Unable to lie, Avery told him the truth.

Once she hung up, her secretary said, "I will go make the payment, Miss Tate."

"Thank you. You can go back to the office as soon as you are done with that!"

"I can stay here to take care of you, Miss Tate."

"It's fine. Go back and tell the others I'm okay. I will call Shaun once I figure out what to do with the current situation.”

“Okay, Miss.cd Tate.”

“Alright... I saw your message saying that she was hospitalized as soon as we landed and I switched on my phone. I was so scared. It means nothing to me even if the company collapses, I just want her to be okay.”

“Don’t get so disheartened yet! My boss won’t let Tate Industries go down.”

Mike leaned back against the seat and stared out the window with his blue eyes. “Don’t talk as though your boss is the savior of all; our company will survive even without him.”

“If that’s the case, go home and get some sleep. No matter what happens, we will deal with it tomorrow morning.”

“Yeah.”

A black Rolls-Roice raced through the city at night and finally stopped before the office building of Tate Industries.

Moments later, the lights in the entire building lit up.

All employees of the technical and development department have received urgent notice from Shaun that Mike had returned to Aryadelle, and had come up with a solution; therefore, everyone was required to hurry back to the office for a meeting.

An hour later, the employees began to arrive. As soon as they entered the meeting room, their phones were confiscated by bodyguards that were dressed in black.

Just as they were about to protest, they realized in shock that the man sitting in the president’s seat was not Mike, but Elliot.

"Okay, Miss Tate."

Twenty minutes later, Chad hurried his way to the hospital. After checking on Avery's condition, he said, "I've called Mrs. Cooper over to take care of you. Rest well and don't think about anything else."

"I feel better now," she said calmly.

"Okay. I've told the bodyguards to get food. Rest after you eat," he said.

"Okay."

Ten hours later, Mike and Elliot returned to Aryadelle.

The moon hung high and the sky was glittered with stars when Chad went to pick them up from the airport.

Elliot told Chad to send Mike back, and Chad immediately grabbed Mike by the arm, before shoving him into the car.

Confused, Mike asked, "why is Elliot so nice to me all of a sudden? I can't get used to it."

"What are you thinking? It's late, and he has his bodyguards to send him back."

With that, Chad got onto the driver's seat and drove towards Starry River Villa.

"Isn't Avery in the hospital? I want to go see her first," Mike said.

"She is sleeping now, what's the point of you going? She seemed fine when I went to check on her earlier in the evening. Besides, Mrs. Cooper is there looking after her, so don't worry!"

"Alright... I saw your message saying that she was hospitalized as soon as we landed and I switched on my phone. I was so scared. It means nothing to me even if the company collapses, I just want her to be okay."

An hour later, the employees began to arrive. As soon as they entered the meeting room, their phones were confiscated by bodyguards that were dressed in black.

Just as they were about to protest, they realized in shock that the man sitting in the president's seat was not Mike, but Elliot.

Chapter 644

"Isn't that Elliot Foster, the boss of Sterling Group? Why is he here? Mr. Locklyn, you said that Mr. Mike is back, but where is he? Why did you lie to us?" Someone protested.

Shaun explained with resignation, "you must have all heard about the relationship before our boss and Mr. Foster here. With President Tate's current condition, she has been hospitalized and Mr. Foster has decided to help."

"Oh... It's good that he is helping, but why take our phone? It feels weird."

"My phone has been taken as well, but Mr. Foster must have his reasons for doing so," Shaun said.

Everyone turned their attention to the man sitting on the president's seat.

Elliot oozed an intimidating aura with a dark expression on his face. Before him, they all felt an illusion as though they had made a mistake even if they hadn't.

"Some of you must know how the microchip was stolen." Elliot scanned the crowd with sharp eyes. "I will give you one minute. If no one comes forth within one minute, I will deal with you my way."

He started the timer as soon as he finished the sentence; at the same time, a few well-built men in black stepped in through the door and eyed the employeescd intently.

Everyone was intimidated and people started protesting softly.

"Who on earth did it?! Stand up already! What kind of man you are if you won't admit to what youge did?"

"President Tate treated us well, so why would someone betray her?! If you are encountering some difficulties, she would have helped you if you talked to her about it! Why would you do such a horrible thing? It's illegal!"

"That's right! We can't commit crimes! Besides, President Tate is the most generous and kind boss I've ever seen and I've decided long ago that I would follow her for the rest of my life!"

Soon, one minute had passed.

Elliot gave the bodyguards a look and two of the men immediately dragged one of the employees out.

"What are you doing? Let me go! Where are you taking me? I can walk on my own! Let me go!" The employee who was taken shouted in fear.

As his egoless shout echoes through the meeting room, the mental defenses of the others crumbled.

Shaun couldn't help but said, "Mr. Foster, I know that you are trying to catch the traitor, but what if you somehow hurt someone that's innocent?"

"None of you is innocent," Elliot deadpanned sternly, "including you. Something this important had been stolen and none of you realized it. Do you take Avery or me for a fool?"

Shaun bowed his head guilty. "I'm sorry. I will support whatever you do from now on, as long as we can catch the traitor!"

As soon as Shaun uttered the last word, a piercing wail was heard from the outside. Though none of them could see what had happened, but they could imagine that the person who had been taken outside was facing heinous torture.

The crowd paled and trembled.

"Until we find the traitor, each one of you will have a taste of that. If the traitor won't talk, then you will all die here tonight!" Elliot added.

The others broke down at his words.

“Damn it! It’s not me! It really isn’t me! I have been with President Tate since the beginning and I am attached to this company! I would never do anything to betray this company! It has to be someone from the technical department!”

One of the pioneers of the development department said.

Someone else from the technical department argued, “don’t make false accusations! What proof do you have that says the technical department did it?”

“That microchip was stolen from your department!”

“Stop joking around! You guys from the development department can get into our office anytime you want! Who knows if you are the ones who stole it?!”

“You are the one who should stop joking around! We have been so busy lately that we couldn’t possibly have time to steal something from you people! The traitor must be from the technical department! You guys should be interrogated first! I’m sure we will find the traitor faster that way!”

“Since you are saying that the traitor is not from the development department, they you guys should be interrogated first! You can prove your innocence by that!” The two departments erupted into an intense argument.

Chapter 645

Elliot stared them down coldly as he pursed his lips.

‘I’m finding that traitor even if that’s the last thing I do!’ He thought.

The next morning, Avery opened her eyes and the first thing she saw was Mike’s face.

“You’re awake, Avery!” Mike adjusted her bed and passed her a bowl of soup.

“Have some46 soup.”

She had not fully woken up yet and accepted the bowl dazedly.

“How do you feel today?” Mike sat down by the bed and stared at her face.

“Why didn’t you tell me that something like that has happened to the company, and came back on your own instead? I would die of guilt if something happened to you.”

Avery sobered. “You are drunk, how was I supposed to let you know?”

“Alright! I shouldn’t have drunk with Elliot!” Mike sighed and said, “but we should really thank him this time. He helped us find thecd traitor.”

Avery’s lashes shivered at the words as she asked with a hoarse voice, “who was it? Who betrayed us?”

“The technical department.” Mike lowered his head because he was the one responsible for the technicalge department.

Avery frowned. “I asked who, not which department.”

“All employees from the technical department,” Mike took a deep breath and gritted out, “those fools went causing troubles when they were out for a gathering and someone took photos of them. They were then threatened to exchange the photos with the microchip and so they plotted together and stole the microchip.”

“Who did they give it to?!” Avery was taken by surprise, but knew that she had to face reality.

“They said that they didn’t know, because the person wore a mask and used a voice changer, so they couldn’t tell who it was.”

Avery had lost all appetite and handed the bowl of soup back to Mike.

“Have some, Avery! Don’t torture yourself,” Mike said guiltily, “it’s my fault. I shouldn’t have trusted them.”

“I feel dizzy right now. I will have the soup later.” Avery laid back down and started thinking of counter moves.

The person who took the microchip had to be either Wanda, or another competitor from the same industry. Soon enough, there would be a company that would launch their products with brand new updates and it would crush Tate Industries.

An hour later, Elliot arrived at the hospital to visit Avery.

He had dropped by at three in the morning, but left after a glance as Avery was still sleeping at the time. It was half past eight in the morning and he had only slept for less than four hours; his eyes were red.

When Mrs. Cooper saw him approaching, she immediately said, "Avery just had her breakfast and said she felt dizzy, so she went back to sleep."

He stepped towards the bed and stared at Avery's paled face. Her brows furrowed and appeared uneasy even in her sleep.

Suddenly, his phone started ringing. He immediately answered the call and walked towards the balcony.

"Mr. Foster, I got it. The stolen microchip that belonged to Tate Industries is now in the hands of Wanda Tate!" His subordinate said, "they have successfully cracked the code open so there's no point of recovering it!"

Meanwhile, Avery slowly opened her eyes from the bed.

She stared at Elliot's slim, yet strong figure from behind and struggled to get up from the bed.

Chapter 646

She thought she was dreaming, because she could see the light surrounding his body. She stepped towards him and he turned around abruptly; she saw his brooding eyes and sensed the warmth radiating off his body and it was then that she finally sobered and realized that it was not a dream.

"Why did you get out of bed?" He held her by the arm and asked, "did I wake you?"

She shook her head. "I slept too long last night and feel dizzy whenever I am asleep for too long."

"Why don't we go down for a walk, 46 then?"

Elliot had asked the doctor and the doctor told him that there was nothing wrong with the baby. The main issue was that Avery was emotionally unstable, which led to hyperventilation and increased heart rate. Once she calmed herself and rested, Avery would recover; but if she failed to do so, it would affect the child.

Avery glanced outside the window and saw how sunny it was outside, so she nodded and stepped out of the room with³⁴ Elliot.

"Avery, the trouble your company is facing is no big deal." As they walked out of the hospital, Elliot hesitated and said, "you can't get everything you want in life, whether it's in daily life or work One can only grow when there's adversity."

She gazed up at him. "Are you trying to comforted me?"

"You need to strengthen your mental tolerance." Seeing that Avery was energetic enough, he cut to the chase and said, "so what if someone took your core technology and earned the money that belongs to you? It's just a financial loss. Health should always be your top priority for as long as you are alive."

Avery nodded. "So, you drink and smoke when you are ill because you know that health is the top priority in life. If only you had no clue of how important health is, you would have probably just drowned yourself in a whiskeyge barrel!"

"..." Elliot realized that he had worried too much and Avery didn't need comforting after all.

"Haha!" Seeing that he was rendered speechless, she couldn't help but laugh.

“Look at how red your eyes are. Did you even sleep? If you need to get an electrocardiogram, maybe I can give my room to²³ you.”

“I was worried that you might be upset, so I couldn’t sleep,” he explained, “but judging from the way you are right now, I guess you are stronger than I thought you were.”

“I wasn’t admitted to hospital last night because I was in despair. Shaun was sobbing so much when he called me that I felt like the company was going to crumble into nothing. Losing the company isn’t that big a deal to me, personally; but when I thought of the possibility of those employees that I hired going unemployed... What if they can’t find a new job afterward?”

She was losing sleep over this.

Elliot studied the concern in her eyes. “It won’t get that bad. Technology industries depend mostly on core technologies, but even if yours is stolen, you can upgrade on the foundation of what you had.”

She nodded and asked, “how did you catch the traitors?”

“Torture.”

“Oh.” She guessed so.

“Do you think that I’m cruel?”

Elliot wanted to explain to her that one simply had to be crueler than the people that harmed them, or the others would only bully them.

If there was no severe punishment in accordance with what had happened to Tate Industries, there would always be employees who would dare to betray the company for profits or out of fear; what happened the night before was a warning to all employees that worked there.

“You are cruel,” she said and his heart sank at the words.

“Not only are you cruel to others, but yourself as well. Your body can’t take it any longer if you won’t sleep.”

Elliot froze.

“Go back and sleep.” She held his hand and looked at him. “I’m okay now and I should be discharged tomorrow.”

He held back her hand. “Then let me walk you back to your room.”

“I want some fresh air down here. The bodyguards are with me, so I’ll be just fine.” She glanced at the bodyguards that were following them closely from a distance. Once Elliot left, she turned on her phone.

Chapter 647

The headline of the news popped into her sight.

‘Core Technology of Tate Industries was stolen; Where Would This Enterprise Go Next?’

There were plenty of comments below.

‘Tate Industries only started two years ago, right? Are they closing down already? I highly suspect that the building their office is in is46 haunted!’

‘Does no one else realize how expensive Tate Industries’ products are? The quality isn’t bad, but the high-end drone market is completely ruled over by them, and I hate it!’

‘Hehe! So is the price for drones going to drop from now on?34 Clap-clap!’

‘My dad works for Tate Industries and I don’t want to see it go down! It treats its employees with great benefits and most importantly, the president is kind to everyone! My dream is to work there once I graduate...’

Avery closed the news and opened her messenger to find Mike’scd message.

‘Wanda has the microchip!’

Avery was not surprised by this outcome; she simply didn’t think that Wanda would act so fast.

That afternoon, Wonder Technologies had opened a press conference in a hotel. Wanda announced with joy that there had been a break-through in the technical department of her company and they would be releasing a brand-new line of high-end products by the end of the year with a lower than average selling price.

Wanda might as well announce that she had stolen the core technology from Tate Industries at this point.

During the Q&A session, one of the reporters asked Wanda, "Madam Tate, the core technology of Tate Industries has been stolen. What do you think of that?"

Wanda burst out laughing, "I don't think much of it, because I've always focused on surpassing my own limits. Naturally, I wasn't the one who stole their core technology, as I don't have the guts for illegal acts."

"We heard that you were once Avery Tate's stepmother. Now that she has been admitted to the hospital, have you gone to visit her yet?"

Wanda's lips curled into a sarcastic sneer. "I will go see her right away as soon as she calls me 'Mom'."

Avery stared at the smug expression on Wanda's face from the news and felt somewhat calm.

Everything that had happened was set and done. What she needed to do was to adjust herself as soon as possible to handle the ever-changing situation.

In the evening, she requested to be discharged.

The doctor ran some tests on her and gave her the permission.

One week later, Tate Industries had formed the 'Win-Win Alliance with three other brands of drone producers.

Tate Industries was to share their Super Brain system with these three other firms, while they returned twenty percent of their annual sales income to Tate Industries as a fee for patent royalty; at the same time, Tate Industries announced that the stolen core technology was the undefined version, whereas the technologies that applied to their products was ones that had been upgraded for eight times since the initial version.

The report asked Avery, "Miss. Tate, were you admitted to the hospital because of this incident?"

"You probably won't believe me if I say that it's not because of that," Avery drawled, "but it is true that I was not affected much by the fact that our core technology was stolen. My team and I have always been dedicated to innovation and that's the only way a company could march forward."

"Does your team include the man behind you?" The reporter asked with a smile.

Avery was stunned.

'The man behind me? Is he referring to... Elliot?'

"There are quite a lot of men behind me. I'm not sure who you are referring to."

She smiled awkwardly and tried to brush the question off. "My son, too, is a man behind me."

"I am talking about the man who accompanied you to your pregnancy checkup." The only thing missing from the reporter's question was Elliot's name.

Chapter 648 Her face flushed instantly.

Shaun reminded the reporter, "please don't pry on President Tate's personal life."

"I just want to know if Elliot Foster has anything to do with the 'Win-Win Alliance'. It's a brilliant plan."

"So, are you hinting that President Tate could not have come up with such an idea herself?" Shaun questioned 46 sharply.

“Of course not. One of my colleagues captured the moment where Elliot Foster was seen entering Tate Industries at night a week ago. Was he there to help manage the operation?”

The reporter had now officially mentioned Elliot's name and the blush on Avery's face³⁴ darkened.

The crowd focused on her and waited for her to reply.

After a few moments of silence, she answered sincerely, “the Win-Win Alliance is a solution that I have decided on after discussing with my Director of Operations. As for the rest, I have no further comment.”

The reporter changed the subject and asked, “Miss. Tate, Madam Tate of Wonder Technologies claimed that they had a technical break-through and predicted that there will be a new launch for high-end products by the end of this year. May I have your opinion on this?”

“About this, the only thing I would like to say is that an exclusive patent has been registered for the core technology store within the microchip stolen from my company; I shall seek legal action towards anyone who utilizes the patent without my consent!”

Avery's statement at the press conference was soon heard by Wanda.

Wanda snorted. “We just need to upgrade and change the content inside the microchip a bit.

It's no big deal.²³ Haha!”

“Right. But that Win-Win Alliance she enforced is a bad influence on us! It means that she is pulling the other companies over to her side,” Wanda's assistant said with concern.

“Why are you afraid? I will eradicate them all at once!” Wanda said arrogantly, “one cannot succeed without eradicating all enemies!”

“With Chelsea helping you in secret, you are definitely going to succeed, Madam Tate!”

Wanda glared at her. “Don’t talk about that anywhere! Chelsea is extremely cautious and if she learns that I let it slip about our cooperation, she will definitely cut all ties with me.”

After the press conference, Avery exited the hotel and got into the car. As the driver drove, she turned on her phone and saw the message from Mike.

Mike had been working overtime lately with the development department on upgrading their products, but someone seemed to have taken a video of the conference from earlier and sent it to him.

‘The Win-Win Alliance was an idea that Chad mentioned to me. I asked Chad about it just now and he said that it’s actually Elliot’s idea.’

Avery typed. ‘...’

‘Let’s treat him to dinner! What do you say?’

Avery felt overwhelmed. Elliot had taken all the burden on his shoulders during this crisis and had resolved the most troubling issue she had in hand. Though she could have solved it herself without his help, she still appreciated what he had done.

Just as she was about to reply ‘yes’, she received yet another message from Mike.

Chad told me that they have been really busy with the new project lately and Elliot has had a lot of work piling up for the past few days. Let’s buy him dinner after a while!’

“Sure.’ Avery replied.

Elliot’s work piled up because of her. In order to apologize to her, he had hurried over to Bridgedale and had stayed awake through the night to resolve her company's crisis. She could be stone-hearted and would still be moved by what he had done for her.

At night, she lied on the bed as she made a video call to Tammy.

"Avery, he did well this time, but don't you think that it's disgusting for him to keep Nora around in his company?" Tammy voiced out her opinion. "Unless he fires her, I won't allow you to get back together with him. This woman is like a prick that could stab you on the skin anytime!"

Chapter 649

Avery could feel her face burning. "When have I ever mentioned anything about getting back together with him?"

"Just now! You mentioned how much he had done for you and said that you want to buy him a gift and dinner... It's so obvious that you've fallen for him," Tammy said, "don't forget what I said. I am really accurate when it comes to reading people. That Nora girl might look tamed, but she has to be even better at scheming than Zoe!"

Avery remained thoughtful for a few seconds and said, "but she doesn't have any leverage."

"She could create some. So long as she doesn't give up, you will always be her biggest enemy. She and Chelsea will definitely team up against you." Tammy removed the facial mask on her face and continued, "Elliot Foster is one big chunk of meat and everyone wants a bite. Avery, be46 cautious!"

Avery felt more calmed after talking to Tammy.

"Not only does he have to fire Nora, he also needs to fire Chelsea!" Tammy proposed, "if you are too embarrassed to talk to him about this, I will go tell him for34 you!"

"Tammy! Things between me and him are not like that..." Avery immediately interrupted her.

“Alright, but think about the things I told you just now. Also, I heard that Ben used to pursue Chelsea so he is probably on her side.”

Reminded of all the misunderstanding between her and Elliot, Avery instantly lost all romantic interest. “I was being reckless just now, Tammy. Let’s see how things go after the baby is born!”

“That’s fine, too. The most important thing right now is for you to give birth to your baby safely. Are you busy tomorrow? If you’re not, I’ll go find you,” Tammy said with a smile.

Feeling relaxed, Avery said, “I’m not busy. Mike won’t let me handle much related to the company lately. He’s been working overtime so much that I’m worried he might collapse.”

“He has Chad, so don’t worry about him.” Tammy glanced at the time and said, “it’s getting late, Avery. You shouldn’t stay up, go to rest!”

“Sure.”

Three days later, Avery received a message from Tammy in the afternoon.

‘Avery, I’m in Room V609 in Caesar Hotel. There’s a surprise for you. Come now!’

Avery chuckled at the message and called Tammy.

The message was odd. If there was a surprise, why mention it in the message?

Tammy was no fool, so was she trying to prank Avery?

Avery’s call was hung up right after being picked up. She stared at her phone dazedly, when another message from Tammy came in.

‘I’m only waiting until five, Avery! If you don’t show up before five, then there’s no surprise for you!’

Avery looked at the message and smiled with resignation, before taking her purse and hurrying towards Caesar Hotel.

At six in the evening, Ben and Chelsea appeared in Caesar Hotel.

Chelsea had a social gathering to attend that night, but had called Ben to help as she wasn't felt so well. Almost halfway through the gathering, Chelsea's face was flushed from drinking too much and struggled towards the washroom.

Ben followed her and said, "I will ask the driver to send you back, Chelsea.

Leave the rest to me.

Chelsea nodded with a pale face.

As they walked by a private room, they overheard laughter and chatter of a couple from the inside.

"Be gentler! Don't make me lose my baby! I am still counting on this baby to get my Elliot Foster's fortune! Once he dies, all his money is going to belong to us! Mm... He might be tall, but he is useless in bed! He is nothing compared to you and he couldn't even satisfy me!" The woman's voice sounded exactly like Avery.

Chapter 650 Ben froze. His expression darkened as he clenched his fists.

Just as he was about to push through the door to the private room, Chelsea grabbed onto his arm. "Ben! No!"

"Why not?!" Ben gritted out, "not only am I going in, I'm calling Elliot too so that he can see who this woman truly is!"

"See who she truly is, and then what? What about the baby she is carrying?"

According to my knowledge, Elliot wants to keep the baby. Tell Elliot about this after Avery gives 46 birth."

Chelsea's words had convinced Ben to suppress his anger.

'That's right! That baby!' He thought, 'without the baby, I wouldn't show Avery mercy! What she said just now was pure venom! Not only can I not stand to hear it, Elliot might just kill her if he heard it³⁴ himself!

However, in order to ensure that the baby was delivered safely, Ben had to pretend that he didn't know a thing and keep it a secret from Elliot. If he told Elliot about this, there was a great chance that the baby would not be born into the world.

Chelsea dragged Ben away and left.

After exiting the hotel, Ben could barely contain his anger and took out his phone to call Avery.

...Sorry. The number you have dialed is out of service at the moment. Please try again later.'

"F*ck!" Ben tightened his grip around the phone and glared viciously at the hotel. "I f*cking thought that I heard wrongly! How could Avery be this kind of woman? How could she?"

He even suspected he might be hallucinating after drinking too much, otherwise, how could something so ridiculous²³ happen?

"You heard them right, Ben." Chelsea grabbed onto his arm tightly out of fear that he might run back into the hotel. "I heard it loud and clear, That was Avery's voice. Avery said that Elliot couldn't satisfy her in bed, so she-"

"Shut up! Chelsea, it's bad enough that someone has said something like that, how could you repeat it!" He roared and swung her hand away. "Go back on your own! I need some time!"

Before leaving, Chelsea reminded him, "don't do anything reckless, Ben. If Elliot's baby doesn't survive, he might very well not have another child for the rest of his life."

Ben scowled. "Chelsea Tierney, I don't need you to keep reminding me that! I know what I'm doing!"

This was the first time Ben had shouted at Chelsea. After Chelsea left, Ben strode back into the hotel and towards the reception.

“Help me check if there’s a woman under the name Avery Tate checking into this hotel today.”

The receptionist responded hesitantly, “sir, we can’t disclose private information about our customers.”

“This is my business card,” Ben said, “I know your boss!”

He handed his business card to the receptionist and she took one glance, before helping him check right away.

“Mr. Schaffer, Miss. Tate did check into our hotel earlier today.”

Ben’s heart sank at her words, thinking, ‘Avery, you have guts!’

Avery woke up in an unfamiliar room, with no one else around but her.

Suddenly, she noticed Tammy’s phone on the coffee table. She immediately picked up the phone and checked, before confirming that it belonged to Tammy. ‘Why is Tammy’s phone here?’ She thought.

Chapter 646

She thought she was dreaming, because she could see the light surrounding his body. She stepped towards him and he turned around abruptly; she saw his brooding eyes and sensed the warmth radiating off his body and it was then that she finally sobered and realized that it was not a dream.

It’s just a financial loss. Health should always be your top priority for as long as you are alive.”

Avery nodded. “So, you drink and smoke when you are ill because you know that health is the top priority in life. If only you had no clue of how important health is, you would have probably just drowned yourself in a whiskey barrel!”

“...” Elliot realized that he had worried too much and Avery didn’t need comforting after all.

“Haha!” Seeing that he was rendered speechless, she couldn’t help but laugh.

“Look at how red your eyes are. Did you even sleep? If you need to get an electrocardiogram, maybe I can give my room to you.”

“I was worried that you might be upset, so I couldn’t sleep,” he explained, “but judging from the way you are right now, I guess you are stronger than I thought you were.”

“I wasn’t admitted to hospital last night because I was in despair. Shaun was sobbing so much when he called me that I felt like the company was going to crumble into nothing. Losing the company isn’t that big a deal to me, personally; but when I thought of the possibility of those employees that I hired going unemployed... What if they can’t find a new job afterward?”

She was losing sleep over this. Elliot studied the concern in her eyes.

“It won’t get that bad. Technology industries depend mostly on core technologies, but even if yours is stolen, you can upgrade on the foundation of what you had.”

She nodded and asked, “how did you catch the traitors?”

“Torture.”

“Oh.” She guessed so.

“Do you think that I’m cruel?”

Elliot wanted to explain to her that one simply had to be crueler than the people that harmed them, or the others would only bully them.

If there was no severe punishment in accordance with what had happened to Tate Industries, there would always be employees who would dare to betray the company for profits or out of fear; what happened the night before was a warning to all employees that worked there.

“You are cruel,” she said and his heart sank at the words.

“Not only are you cruel to others, but yourself as well. Your body can’t take it any longer if you won’t sleep.” Elliot froze.

“Go back and sleep.” She held his hand and looked at him. “I’m okay now and I should be discharged tomorrow.” He held back her hand. “Then let me walk you back to your room.”

“I want some fresh air down here. The bodyguards are with me, so I’ll be just fine.” She glanced at the bodyguards that were following them closely from a distance. Once Elliot left, she turned on her phone.

Chapter 647

The headline of the news popped into her sight.

“Core Technology of Tate Industries was stolen? Where Would This Enterprise Go Next?”

There were plenty of comments below.

“Tate Industries only started two years ago, right? Are they closing down already? I highly suspect that the building their office is in is haunted!

“Does no one else realize how expensive Tate Industries’ products are? The quality isn’t bad, but the high-end drone market is completely ruled over by them, and I hate it!”

“Hehe! So is the price for drones going to drop from now on? Clap-clap!”

“My dad works for Tate Industries and I don’t want to see it go down! It treats its employees with great benefits and most importantly, the president is kind to everyone! My dream is to work there once I graduate...”

Avery closed the news and opened her messenger to find Mike’s message.

‘Wanda has the microchip!’

Avery was not surprised by this outcome; she simply didn’t think that Wanda would act so fast.

That afternoon, Wonder Technologies had opened a press conference in a hotel. Wanda announced with joy that there had been a break-through in the technical department of her company and they would be releasing a brandnew line of high-end products by the end of the year with a lower than average selling price.

Wanda might as well announce that she had stolen the core technology from Tate Industries at this point.

During the Q&A session, one of the reporters asked Wanda, “Madam Tate, the core technology of Tate Industries has been stolen. What do you think of that?”

Wanda burst out laughing, “I don’t think much of it, because I’ve always focused on surpassing my own limits. Naturally, I wasn’t the one who stole their core technology, as I don’t have the guts for illegal acts.”

“We heard that you were once Avery Tate’s stepmother. Now that she has been admitted to the hospital, have you gone to visit her yet?”

Wanda’s lips curled into a sarcastic sneer.

“I will go see her right away as soon as she calls me ‘Mom’.”

Avery stared at the smug expression on Wanda’s face from the news and felt somewhat calm.

Everything that had happened was set and done. What she needed to do was to adjust herself as soon as possible to handle the ever-changing situation.

In the evening, she requested to be discharged.

The doctor ran some tests on her and gave her the permission.

One week later, Tate Industries had formed the ‘Win-Win Alliance with three other brands of drone producers.

Tate Industries was to share their Super Brain system with these three other firms, while they returned twenty percent of their annual sales income to Tate Industries as a fee for patent royalty; at the same time, Tate Industries announced that the stolen core technology was the undefined version, whereas the technologies that applied to their products was ones that had been upgraded for eight times since the initial version.

The report asked Avery, “Miss. Tate, were you admitted to the hospital because of this incident?”

“You probably won’t believe me if I say that it’s not because of that,” Avery drawled, “but it is true that I was not affected much by the fact that our core technology was stolen. My team and I have always been dedicated to innovation and that’s the only way a company could march forward.”

“Does your team include the man behind you?” The reporter asked with a smile.

Avery was stunned.

‘The man behind me? Is he referring to... Elliot?’

“There are quite a lot of men behind me. I’m not sure who you are referring to.” She smiled awkwardly and tried to brush the question off.

“My son, too, is a man behind me.”

“I am talking about the man who accompanied you to your pregnancy checkup.” The only thing missing from the reporter’s question was Elliot’s name.

Chapter 648

Her face flushed instantly.

Shaun reminded the reporter, “please don’t pry on President Tate’s personal life.”

“I just want to know if Elliot Foster has anything to do with the ‘Win-Win Alliance’. It’s a brilliant plan.”

“So, are you hinting that President Tate could not have come up with such an idea herself?” Shaun questioned sharply.

“Of course not. One of my colleagues captured the moment where Elliot Foster was seen entering Tate Industries at night a week ago. Was he there to help manage the operation?”

The reporter had now officially mentioned Elliot’s name and the blush on Avery’s face darkened.

The crowd focused on her and waited for her to reply.

After a few moments of silence, she answered sincerely, “the Win-Win Alliance is a solution that I have decided on after discussing with my Director of Operations. As for the rest, I have no further comment.”

The reporter changed the subject and asked, “Miss. Tate, Madam Tate of Wonder Technologies claimed that they had a technical break-through and predicted that there will be a new launch for high-end products by the end of this year. May I have your opinion on this?”

“About this, the only thing I would like to say is that an exclusive patent has been registered for the core technology store within the microchip stolen from my company; I shall seek legal action towards anyone who utilizes the patent without my consent!”

Avery’s statement at the press conference was soon heard by Wanda.

Wanda snorted. “We just need to upgrade and change the content inside the microchip a bit. It’s no big deal. Haha!”

“Right. But that Win-Win Alliance she enforced is a bad influence on us! It means that she is pulling the other companies over to her side,” Wanda’s assistant said with concern.

“Why are you afraid? I will eradicate them all at once!” Wanda said arrogantly, “one cannot succeed without eradicating all enemies!”

“With Chelsea helping you in secret, you are definitely going to succeed, Madam Tate!”

Wanda glared at her. “Don’t talk about that anywhere! Chelsea is extremely cautious and if she learns that I let it slip about our cooperation, she will definitely cut all ties with me.”

After the press conference, Avery exited the hotel and got into the car. As the driver drove, she turned on her phone and saw the message from Mike.

Mike had been working overtime lately with the development department on upgrading their products, but someone seemed to have taken a video of the conference from earlier and sent it to him.

“The Win-Win Alliance was an idea that Chad mentioned to me. I asked Chad about it just now and he said that it’s actually Elliot’s idea.”

Avery typed.”...”

“Let’s treat him to dinner! What do you say?”

Avery felt overwhelmed. Elliot had taken all the burden on his shoulders during this crisis and had resolved the most troubling issue she had in hand. Though she could have solved it herself without his help, she still appreciated what he had done.

Just as she was about to reply ‘yes’, she received yet another message from Mike.

Chad told me that they have been really busy with the new project lately and Elliot has had a lot of work piling up for the past few days. Let’s buy him dinner after a while!’

“Sure.’ Avery replied.

Elliot’s work piled up because of her. In order to apologize to her, he had hurried over to Bridgedale and had stayed awake through the night to resolve her company’s crisis. She could be stone-hearted and would still be moved by what he had done for her.

At night, she lied on the bed as she made a video call to Tammy.

“Avery, he did well this time, but don’t you think that it’s disgusting for him to keep Nora around in his company?” Tammy voiced out her opinion.

“Unless he fires her, I won’t allow you to get back together with him. This woman is like a prick that could stab you on the skin anytime!”

Chapter 649

Avery could feel her face burning.

“When have I ever mentioned anything about getting back together with him?”

“Just now! You mentioned how much he had done for you and said that you want to buy him a gift and dinner... It’s so obvious that you’ve fallen for him,” Tammy said, “don’t forget what I said. I am really accurate when it comes to reading people. That Nora girl might look tamed, but she has to be even better at scheming than Zoe!”

Avery remained thoughtful for a few seconds and said, “but she doesn’t have any leverage.”

“She could create some. So long as she doesn’t give up, you will always be her biggest enemy. She and Chelsea will definitely team up against you.”

Tammy removed the facial mask on her face and continued, “Elliot Foster is one big chunk of meat and everyone wants a bite. Avery, be cautious!”

Avery felt more calm after talking to Tammy.

“Not only does he have to fire Nora, he also needs to fire Chelsea!” Tammy proposed, “if you are too embarrassed to talk to him about this, I will go tell him for you!”

“Tammy! Things between me and him are not like that...” Avery immediately interrupted her.

“Alright, but think about the things I told you just now. Also, I heard that Ben used to pursue Chelsea so he is probably on her side.”

Reminded of all the misunderstanding between her and Elliot, Avery instantly lost all romantic interest.

“I was being reckless just now, Tammy. Let’s see how things go after the baby is born!"

"That's fine, too. The most important thing right now is for you to give birth to your baby safely. Are you busy tomorrow? If you're not, I'll go find you,"

Tammy said with a smile.

Feeling relaxed, Avery said, "I'm not busy. Mike won't let me handle much related to the company lately. He's been working overtime so much that I'm worried he might collapse."

"He has Chad, so don't worry about him." Tammy glanced at the time and said, "it's getting late, Avery. You shouldn't stay up, go rest!"

"Sure."

Three days later, Avery received a message from Tammy in the afternoon.

'Avery, I'm in Room V609 in Caesar Hotel. There's a surprise for you. Come now!'

Avery chuckled at the message and called Tammy.

The message was odd. If there was a surprise, why mention it in the message? Tammy was no fool, so was she trying to prank Avery?

Avery's call was hung up right after being picked up. She stared at her phone dazedly, when another message from Tammy came in.

"I'm only waiting until five, Avery! If you don't show up before five, then there's no surprise for you!"

Avery looked at the message and smiled with resignation, before taking her purse and hurrying towards Caesar Hotel.

At six in the evening, Ben and Chelsea appeared in Caesar Hotel.

Chelsea had a social gathering to attend that night, but had called Ben to help as she wasn't feeling so well. Almost halfway through the gathering,

Chelsea's face was flushed from drinking too much and struggled towards the washroom.

Ben followed her and said, "I will ask the driver to send you back, Chelsea.

Leave the rest to me."

Chelsea nodded with a pale face.

As they walked by a private room, they overheard laughter and chatter of a couple from the inside.

"Be gentler! Don't make me lose my baby! I am still counting on this baby to get my Elliot Foster's fortune! Once he dies, all his money is going to belong to us! Mm... He might be tall, but he is useless in bed! He is nothing compared to you and he couldn't even satisfy me!" The woman's voice sounded exactly like Avery.

Chapter 650

Ben froze. His expression darkened as he clenched his fists.

Just as he was about to push through the door to the private room, Chelsea grabbed onto his arm.

"Ben! No!"

"Why not?!" Ben gritted out, "not only am I going in, I'm calling Elliot too so that he can see who this woman truly is!"

"See who she truly is, and then what? What about the baby she is carrying? According to my knowledge, Elliot wants to keep the baby. Tell Elliot about this after Avery gives birth."

Chelsea's words had convinced Ben to suppress his anger.

"That's right! That baby!" He thought, "without the baby, I wouldn't show Avery mercy! What she said just now was pure venom! Not only can I not stand to hear it, Elliot might just kill her if he heard it himself!"

However, in order to ensure that the baby was delivered safely, Ben had to pretend that he didn't know a thing and keep it a secret from Elliot. If he told

Elliot about this, there was a great chance that the baby would not be born into the world.

Chelsea dragged Ben away and left.

After exiting the hotel, Ben could barely contain his anger and took out his phone to call Avery....Sorry. The number you have dialed is out of service at the moment. Please try again later.'

"F*ck!" Ben tightened his grip around the phone and glared viciously at the hotel.

"I f*cking thought that I heard wrongly! How could Avery be this kind of woman? How could she?"

He even suspected he might be hallucinating after drinking too much, otherwise, how could something so ridiculous happen?

"You heard them right, Ben." Chelsea grabbed onto his arm tightly out of fear that he might run back into the hotel.

"I heard it loud and clear, That was Avery's voice. Avery said that Elliot couldn't satisfy her in bed, so she-"

"Shut up! Chelsea, it's bad enough that someone has said something like that, how could you repeat it!" He roared and swung her hand away.

"Go back on your own! I need some time!"

Before leaving, Chelsea reminded him, "don't do anything reckless, Ben. If Elliot's baby doesn't survive, he might very well not have another child for the rest of his life."

Ben scowled. "Chelsea Tierney, I don't need you to keep reminding me that! I know what I'm doing!"

This was the first time Ben had shouted at Chelsea. After Chelsea left, Ben strode back into the hotel and towards the reception.

“Help me check if there’s a woman under the name Avery Tate checking into this hotel today.”

The receptionist responded hesitantly, “sir, we can’t disclose private information about our customers.”

“This is my business card,” Ben said, “I know your boss!”

He handed his business card to the receptionist and she took one glance, before helping him check right away.

“Mr. Schaffer, Miss. Tate did check into our hotel earlier today.”

Ben’s heart sank at her words, thinking, ‘Avery, you have guts!’

Avery woke up in an unfamiliar room, with no one else around but her.

Suddenly, she noticed Tammy’s phone on the coffee table. She immediately picked up the phone and checked, before confirming that it belonged to Tammy.

“Why is Tammy’s phone here?” She thought

Chapter 651

She could only remember fragments; she recalled receiving messages from Tammy, saying that she had a surprise for her and asking her to hurry over. However, she couldn’t find Tammy when she arrived.

After that, she started feeling extremely light-headed and fell asleep.

The room she woke up in was not the room she walked into earlier that evening.

‘Who moved me to another room?’ She thought. Unsettled, she took her purse and hurried outside the room. As soon as she was out of the hotel, she called Jun.

“Avery, Tammy lost her phone. If someone calls or messages you asking for money, don’t do it!” Jun said.

“Oh... When did she lose her phone?” Avery’s blood ran cold.

“Around three in the afternoon. Did you receive weird messages?”

Avery took a deep breath. “Is Tammy with you right now? I need to talk to her.”

“Oh, okay. She’s upstairs. I’ll go find her.”

Shortly after, Jun passed the phone to Tammy.

“Avery! My phone was stolen! Damn that thief! I reported it to the police but they said that it’s going to be very hard to find it. I’ve been so caught up with this the entire morning. I have too much personal information on my phone..”

Tammy whined.

“Your phone is with me,” Avery said in a cold voice, “someone texted me with your phone yesterday in the afternoon and fooled me into going to Caesar hospital.

“Huh?! Why would the thief lure you to the hotel? Avery, are you okay? You are scaring me!”

“I’m fine.” Avery still felt a little dizzy.

“I didn’t see anyone when I arrived at the hotel. I was probably drugged and fell asleep. Other than feeling a bit dizzy, I feel alright.”

“Hurry and go get checked in the hospital! That thief is so weird.”

“Yeah, don’t worry. I will head to the hospital right now. Also, don’t tell anyone about this just yet, I don’t want Elliot to worry,” Avery said.

“Okay, I won’t.” Still concerned, Tammy asked, “which hospital are you going to? I will go look for you now.”

“There is a hospital for traditional medicines near the hotel.”

“I will go to you right away.”

The next day, in Sterling Group.

Ben had not been able to sleep the entire night and stormed directly into Elliot's office as soon as he arrived into the office in the morning.

"Elliot, I am not giving money to Avery on your behalf anymore." Ben stepped towards the office desk and said, "she can earn money on her own and she doesn't need your money."

Elliot gazed up in confusion. "What's wrong with you?"

Chapter 652

When Chelsea heard that Ben and Elliot were fighting, she hurried over and by the time she arrived, the fight had stopped because Chad got between them to break them apart.

Chad had been accidentally struck for trying to stop the fighting; his spectacles were shattered and there was blood on his face.

"Outside, now, Ben!" Chelsea commanded coldly before dragging him outside.

Once Ben was out of the room, Chad glanced over at Elliot.

It had been Elliot who was hitting Ben and Ben did not fight back at all, which brought Chad to the conclusion that Ben had somehow provoked Elliot, or Elliot would not have attacked him. However, the two had been best friends for years and had never even argued much, let alone physically harming one another.

"Mr. Foster, what happened?" Chad asked as he white-knuckled through the pain on his face.

"Did Ben do something? Did he betray you?"

Elliot clenched his fists and went back to sit down on the chair.

"Get out!"

His head was throbbing as he struggled to understand what had happened between Ben and Avery. He would not have been so furious if only Ben could tell him what was wrong with Avery.

Chad strode out of the office and walked straight towards Ben and Chelsea.

“Everything I said to you last night just went down the gutter!” Chelsea scolded Ben.

“Are you trying to make everyone aware of what happened? What good does this do for Elliot? I’m so disappointed in you!”

Ben took out his phone to check the wounds on his face with the camera, and did not seem affected by Chelsea’s words.

“I can’t get over it unless I spill it all out,” he said pathetically, “don’t worry. I didn’t mention last night.”

Chelsea sighed a breath of relief. “Your face is swollen. You should go get your wounds looked at.”

“Oh. You are not coming with me?” Ben asked gloomily.

“You got what you deserve, so no,” she said, before turning to walk towards Elliot’s office.

Ben sighed and stepped towards the elevator, while Chad caught up to him.

Chad was also wounded on the face, so the two went to have their injuries treated together. The atmosphere was slightly awkward inside the elevator.

“Ben, what’s going on with the two of you? I asked Mr. Foster about it just now, but he won’t say a thing,” Chad asked gingerly, “what’s so severe that can’t be resolved by just talking with one another? Fighting would affect your friendship.”

Ben did not want to tell Chad about it, as he felt that Chad was on Avery’s side in some way.

The elevator arrived at the first floor and the door slowly opened.

Ben’s phone rang and he took it out to realize that it was a call from Avery. He had called her the night before but her phone had been switched off, and she had now called him back. He accepted the call and heard Avery's casual voice saying, "I didn't get your call last night, Ben. Is there something you need?"

"I saw a woman last night in Caesar Hotel and she looked a lot like you, so I called you to make sure," Ben said emotionlessly.

Chad was surprised by how cold Ben's attitude was towards Avery.

"I was in that hotel last night," she said.

Just as she thought Ben was going to ask why she was in the hotel, he said, "then there's nothing."

With that, he hung up.

Chad was confused.

"Ben, I know that you are in a fight with Mr. Foster, but you don't have to vent your anger on Avery, do you?"

"You have it the other way around, but don't ask me why I am in a fight with Elliot because of her. Don't ask," Ben said in a cold tone.

"Oh. I won't ask." Chad didn't know what happened, but judging from Ben's reaction, the situation was bad.

Chapter 653

Avery held onto her phone thoughtfully.

She could sense Ben's change in attitude towards her. He had always been polite with her, but he sounded as though he was reluctant to talk to her and appeared to despise her in the phone call just now.

Was it because she was in Caesar Hotel the night before? But she hadn't done anything in the hotel, so why would Ben be angry with her? Perhaps he thought that it was inappropriate for her to be in a hotel on her own?

Up until this point, Avery still couldn't make sense of why the thief would call her to the hotel. The thief had not done anything to her and simply put her to sleep with 46 sedatives. She went to the hospital for a check-up the day before and luckily, the dose was minimal and had no effect on her body.

Meanwhile, in Sterling Group.

Chelsea brought a cup of coffee and set it down before Elliot.

“Elliot, I talked to Ben just now,” she said, “he thinks that you are giving too much and getting too little in return; aside from that, your work is being delayed because of her all the time...”

“It can’t be because of that,” Elliot scowled and argued, “there has to be another reason that causes his sudden hatred towards Avery.”

Chelsea suddenly felt a little scared as she studied the distrustful expression on Elliot’s handsome face.

No matter the time and occasion, this was a man who remained highly alert and defensive; it was extremely difficult to lie to him.

“I heard that you were in a gathering with him last night?” Elliot looked up and stared sharply at Chelsea.

“Yes. I wasn’t feeling so well last night, so I asked for his help to keep my client’s company. Both of us had a bit too much to drink.”

“Nothing else happened?” Elliot stared at her face, trying to determine if she was lying.

“Nothing... Elliot, why don’t you get back to work first? Once the two of you calm down, you should talk.” Worried that Elliot would notice something was wrong, Chelsea changed the topic and said, “by the way, Nora’s injury has mostly recovered, so I will tell her to come to work tomorrow.”

Elliot turned his attention back to the computer screen. “Go back to work.”

Chelsea stepped out of his office and the mask she had been wearing on her face cracked. Despite the fact that Nora had saved Elliot and that she looked far more beautiful than Avery, Elliot did not waver.

“Does he not even care about women’s faces? But what if Avery’s face is ruined? Will he still love her then?” She thought.

A week later, the entertainment show that Layla and Eric had gone on was aired. Because of how popular Eric was, the show was instantly the talk of the town and Layla became famous because of it as well.

Layla was adorable-looking and though she was not particularly lively, she was sharp tongued. As soon as the show was aired, she instantly became the sweetheart of the country.

“I want a daughter like that! Her parents must be really good-looking! Layla is so pretty!”

“Not only is she pretty, she is so cool as well! She’s so smart! I love her! Ohhh! This makes me want to have my own daughter!”

“Wake up! You can’t give birth to a baby as cute as Layla!”

“How can you even compare Layla to those plastics? Set Layla apart from them! Hmph!”

As Layla became famous on the internet, some of the netizens began researching her parents. However, the production team was extremely discreet about this, so no one could find any information despite their effort.

Coincidentally, a sex tape of a couple appeared on the internet. The resolution of the video was poor but it was clear enough for one to notice that the woman on the video was naked and had dollar bills all over her body.

The side of her face was directed at the camera and everyone could tell that it was Avery; aside from that, her swollen belly and her moaning voice were further proof that it was her.

Chapter 654

Avery was already seven months along her pregnancy. The further along she was, the more easily she felt exhausted.

She remained at home to be with her children ever since Layla came home from taking part in the entertainment show.

Summer holidays would be over soon and under Layla's relentless begging, Avery decided to take her to Bridgedale for a few days and pick Hayden up along the way.

As the two travelled to Bridgedale, the sex tape had gone viral throughout the country; wherever the video couldn't be posted, censored screenshot was posted.

"I didn't think that a woman as rich as Avery Tate would sell her body for money! She is heavily pregnant right now, isn't she scared of having a miscarriage?"

"How do you know if she did it for the money? She is definitely not short of money! Haven't you heard that most of the wealthy people are perverts? She has to be doing that for thrills!"

"Ugh, my eyes! This woman looks tamed, who knows that she is this slutty in private! I wonder if the man in the video is the father of the baby. It would be interesting if he is not!"

"He's definitely not the father! Wealthy women like her couldn't possibly stay put! She didn't get married when she got pregnant simply because that's more convenient for her to fooled around!" Her skin is so fair! Even with her swollen belly, I can tell that she has a really good figure. She's my type!

"I heard that she had a thing with Elliot Foster, the president of Sterling Group, as well! Can that man in the video be Elliot Foster?"

“No way! The belly of that man in the video is so big that he has to be a gross obese man! Elliot Foster has a good figure!”

“I just can’t understand why she won’t go for a better-looking man when she’s this rich... Doesn’t Eric Santos like her? She has really weird standards!”

“F*ck! Can you leave Eric out of this sort of scandal? Our Eric is super innocent. He blushes even when he’s just talking to women, so Avery can just scam!”

Ben was the first to see the scandal and the video. He had learnt Avery’s true face a week ago, so he did not doubt whether the video was real when someone started speculating about Avery’s video in the chat group.

Someone in the group inspected the video closely and compared the content to Avery in reality, before posting a summary.

“1. The voice of the woman in the video sounded exactly like Avery; I’m sure anyone who has ever heard Avery’s voice would be able to tell”

2. Comparing both women’s side profiles, they look practically identical;

3. The pregnant belly. I’m pretty sure that everyone who has seen Avery lately knows that she is pregnant. There might be a woman in this world that resembles her, but she couldn’t be coincidentally pregnant at the same time, right?

4. Their purses. Not sure if you guys realize it, but there is a purse on the nightstand. Avery had carried the same exact bag before.’

Ben sighed heavily after reading the message.

He had intended on exposing Avery in front of Elliot once she delivered the baby; he had not imagined that Avery would record herself with another man.

Recording the video was bad enough, but why would she show it to everyone?

Outside the door of the President's office, Chad roughly went through the video and felt as though the sky was crushing down on them. He didn't dare to study the face of the woman in the video, but could tell from the woman's voice that it was Avery.

He couldn't imagine what drastic drama would unfold when Elliot saw the video. Another two months and the baby inside Avery would be due.

Chapter 655

Which meant that she could go into delivery at any moment; however, what had happened was a rope around the baby's neck that could potentially kill it. If Avery was living such a messy private life, it can't be certain if Elliot would still want the child.

Chad stood before the office door, unable to summon the courage to step in, as he couldn't bear to witness Elliot's reaction.

On his way to find Ben, he spotted Ben stepping out of the elevator.

"Ben, have you seen the news?" Chad asked awkwardly, "the news about Avery."

"What do you think?" Ben scowled furiously.

"I found out a week ago! Why else would I be that angry?"

Chad was taken by surprise.

"How did you find out, Ben?"

"Why don't you go ask Mike? Considering how close he is to Avery, he must have known everything!"

Chad felt slightly dazed. Every time Mike mentioned Avery to him, he would make it sound as though Avery was a little girl that needed to be taken care of. Mike couldn't lie, which meant that not even Mike knew that Avery had been fooling around in private.

Chad returned to his own office and called Mike.

Mike picked up the phone immediately and blurted out, "I know what you are about to say. I saw the video. F*ck it, that's definitely not Avery! That woman's moan was too lecherous! Avery couldn't possibly do that!"

"Have you heard her moaning before, and if so, how? Have you slept with her before?!" Chad deadpanned.

"F*ck! What the f*ck do you think you are talking about? Do you have a death wish?" Enraged, Mike desperately wished that he could throw a punch at Chad through the phone.

"Well, then what proof do you have that says that woman isn't Avery? I watched the video and that looked and sounded exactly like Avery," Chad said in a tortured tone, "where is Avery? I want to hear it from her."

"She took Layla to Bridgedale this morning! They haven't even landed yet!" Mike was breathing heavily.

"That's not Avery. I'm sure of it. Avery isn't that kind of woman. I trust her and so should you!"

Chad massaged the bridge of his nose in despair.

"This isn't something that can be resolved even if the two of us believe in her. The main issue is my boss... He is going to find out about this soon. If he doesn't believe Avery, then she's done for!"

"What do you mean, done for? So what if that woman in the video was indeed, Avery? Avery isn't married to him, and he has no rights to get involved!" Mike said casually.

"But Avery is still pregnant with his child! Mr. Foster is definitely not going to let her go. Just tell her to hide for a while in Bridgedale and don't come back until after she gave birth!" Chad suggested

“What are you talking about? The woman in that video is not Avery!” Mike repeated the same sentence over and over again.

Just then, Chad heard noises from the president’s office and hung up, before striding up to the office and leaning against the door to listen.

Inside the office, Ben found the video and shoved his phone towards Elliot’s face to force him to watch it.

“This is the woman that you have been treating like your treasure,” Ben sneered sarcastically and gritted out, “I came across the scene where she was fooling around with this man a week ago in the hotel. I heard with my own ears when she said that she went out looking for other men because you can’t satisfy her in bed.”

Elliot froze as though someone had pressed on the ‘stop’ button; though his expression was calm, darkness had filled his eyes.

After a long while, he swallowed hard and argued in a hoarse voice, “Avery wouldn’t betray me! That’s not her!”

“Wake up already! That is her!” Ben shattered all hope for Elliot and said, “you can keep the baby she is carrying, but do not ever touch that skank ever again!”

Chapter 656

Anger was boiling within Elliot’s eyes. The word ‘skank’ was like a sharp blade that was sent piercing through his heart. To him, Avery had always been the purest, most innocent person in the world, so she couldn’t possibly be the woman in the video.

However, no matter how reluctant he was to admit it, the woman’s face and voice, along with her pregnant belly were all proving Elliot wrong.

“I’ve known you for almost twenty years now, Elliot, do you think I would hurt you?” Ben saw the pain in Elliot’s eyes and felt sorry for him.

“If you don’t believe me, you can go ask Chelsea. We ran into the scene together that night. Do you know why we held back from telling you about it? It’s because we wanted Avery to give birth to your child and we didn’t want to cause any trouble at this time... But it turns out that Avery is shameless enough to record a tape like this!”

“Don’t you think that the video is blurred out?” Elliot’s senses and urges were playing a tug of war within him and tore him apart as they did.

“That video has to be fake!”

Ben had never seen Elliot like this.

Elliot was never afraid of adversity or failure. They had encountered dangerous situations countless times before, with the company almost going bankrupt in the most difficult moment. Elliot came close to bearing a tremendous debt, but didn’t even flinch at the time.

Who would have thought that a man like that would struggle to accept the fact that Avery had cheated on him?

“Let’s say the video is fake. So is the voice I heard in Caesar Hotel fake as well?” Ben pressed on sarcastically.

“I went to the reception to check right away that night and Avery was indeed in the hotel. I called her that night but her phone was turned off. She didn’t call me back until the day after and she admitted herself that she was in Caesar Hotel!”

Ben spoke quickly and his words were piercing. “That bed in the video is one of the beds in Caesar Hotel!”

Elliot’s eyes reddened. He supported his head with pale fingers and sank into silence as he suffered through excruciating pain.

A voice inside his head told him to believe in Avery unconditionally; but there was also another voice that told him to give up and accept the reality. He could feel himself being torn apart little by little.

Ben didn't want to say anything when he saw how hurt Elliot was, but he knew that if he didn't take this opportunity to make Elliot give up on Avery, he would soon find a way to help Avery dodge the bullet.

"Elliot, Avery has never cared about your feelings. Think about all the things she has done so far, she has been placing herself first. She knows how to manipulate you and she has succeeded."

As no one could get in touch with Avery, everyone who knew her was having a panic attack.

Tammy held onto her phone and frantically tried to explain to Jun, "that woman in the video is definitely not Avery! Avery was in Caesar Hotel that day because the thief used my phone and messaged her! The thief tricked her into going to the hotel!"

"Yeah? Did the thief trick her into sleeping with him as well? According to the video, she seems to enjoy it though!"

"Jun Hertz! What are you saying?!" Tammy's face was flushing in rage.

"That's not Avery!"

"Who is it, then? Nora? Nora isn't pregnant, though. The woman in the video was heavily pregnant," Jun tried to reason with her, "I don't want to believe that it is Avery, but that's her voice!"

Tammy's eyes reddened. "The thief tricked Avery into going to the hotel that day! They even gave her sedative to put her to sleep. I was the one who accompanied Avery to a bodycheck in the hospital. She didn't want Elliot to worry and asked me to keep it a secret!"

"I see. Then the sedative they used on her might be aphrodisiac as well."

“...I told you that isn't Avery!” Tammy burst into tears.

“Tammy Lynch, can you just grow up already? If you really don't think that's Avery, why are you even crying?” Jun said calmly, “I can believe her for your sake, but Elliot won't, because it's Avery we are talking about!”

An hour later, all videos related to Avery had been completely removed from the internet; screenshots and wordings related to the video were also banned. However, this could not stop the netizen's curiosity. ‘How much did Avery spend to stop the speculation? It sure is nice to be rich!’

Chapter 657

“So everyone knows that Avery went fooling around with another man despite being pregnant, right?”

A friend of mine who works at the airport told me that Avery flew overseas earlier this morning. I assume that she did so to hide until the storm passes!’

“I'm so scared! My friend posted a screenshot of Avery's video and his account was blocked. Will mentioning Avery Tate's name itself become a taboo soon?”

The netizens had been correct. Half an hour later, the words ‘Avery Tate’ had been completely banned from the internet, which only provoked the netizens further and soon, Tate Industries became the top most searched topic.

Mike stared at the comments on the internet coldly with his blue eyes.

He should have accompanied Avery to Bridgedale, but with what was happening in Arendelle, he had more reasons to stay and make sure that the company operated as per usual.

“Mike, um...” Shaun opened the door to Mike's office awkwardly and asked, “is... President Tate okay?”

“She went tocd Bridgedale.”

“Oh... Is she okay?”

Mike lifted an eyebrow.

“It’s bad enough that the others won’t believe her, but you are her Vice - President, do you not know what kind of a person shege is?”

“Of course I believe in President Tate!” Shaun declared, “I’m just worried about her seeing all those comments online... The way those people talk is just too nasty!”

“I’m deleting them.” Mike took a sip of his coffee and said, “if there’s nothing else, please get out for now!”

“Oh... I will arrange a meeting with the other managers to remind them that we should all believe in President Tate...”

“There’s no need. Even if Avery wants to date a different man every single day, that’s her private life. So long as she pays her employees on time, she is a good boss.”

“You are right, Mike!” Shaun suddenly felt a rush of confidence.

“It’s not like President Tate is some actress, why should we be so judgemental on her private life? Those people online must have too much time on their hands!”

Once Shaun went out, Mike picked up the phone and called Avery.

Apart from him, no one else would believe that Avery was not the woman in the video. The reason why he chose to believe in her was because not only was she a good friend to him, but also a source of mental support.

Before knowing Avery, Mike’s world had been empty and colorless; she was a ray of light that shone into the darkness of his world and gave him the motivation to live a better life.

The call was almost answered instantly right after he dialed the number.

“Mike, I just got home.”

Avery’s tone was calm, so it was likely that she had yet to find out about what happened.

“Oh.” After a moment of hesitation, Mike faked a casual tone and said, “are you getting messages from a lot of people?”.

“I haven’t checked my messages yet! Layla said she’s hungry, so we are about to head out for some food.” Avery was sensitive enough to notice something was wrong.

“What happened?”

“Take Layla to eat first! We can talk after you are done.” Mike didn’t want to ruin her appetite.

Curious, Avery asked, “tell me right now. Did something happen to the company or...?”

“It’s you,” Mike interrupted her and said, “something happened to you.”

Chapter 658

Avery thought that she was dreaming, as she struggled to understand what Mike has just said,

She was sitting at home so what could possibly happen to her?

Mike did not get any response from her and asked, “Avery, when you went to Caesar Hotel back then, did you meet with a man for ‘that’ kind of thing?”

“What kind of thing?”

“It’s that... kind of thing...” Mike couldn’t bring himself to be too direct, but she soon realized what he was referring to from the way he was stuttering.

“What makes you say that?” She walked towards her room with the phone in her hand.

“Mike, what exactly happened?”

“I’ll send you a video. Check and see if that’s you in it.” Worried that she might get upset after watching it, he hastily added, “I know that you are not the woman in the video, but the resemblance is just too uncanny...”

At this point, Avery could roughly guess what had happened. She hung up and opened the video Mike sent her after taking a deep breath.

The voice of the woman in the video was the first thing she heard and the familiar sound made her hair stand, “How can this be? What does this woman sound exactly like me?” She thought.

Suddenly, she was reminded of what Zoe said before she committed suicide.

She said that after her eyes were gouged out, she heard Avery’s voice.

Perhaps it was not a hallucination, but the truth.

Everyone had thought that Zoe went mad, but she didn’t; the one that was insane was the person who had been plotting in the dark to defeat Avery.

She studied the woman in the video and soon realized that not only did they have similar voices, but faces as well.

She instantly thought of Nora and the possibility of it being her, but when Avery looked down and saw the pregnant belly of the woman in the video, she saw stars.

“How can this be? Can it be that it’s really me in that video?” She thought.

However, she had not noticed any sign of being raped that night in Caesar Hotel; apart from feeling dizzy, she did not suffer from any other discomfort.

The woman in the video had her eyes open and was moaning loudly, which proved that the woman was awake at the time. It couldn’t be Avery, as she was put to sleep and was incapable of doing anything at all.

But if that’s the case, what other explanation could there be for the video of a woman that looked and sounded like her, while being pregnant at the same time as her?

Her phone rang and pulled her back from her thoughts.

She answered the call and heard Mike's voice, "Avery, have you watched the video? Doesn't she look like you?"

"That's not me," her voice was cold and trembling, "someone is imitating me!"

"I thought so!" Mike said furiously, "that guy in the video is almost as fat as a pig. You couldn't possibly take an interest in a guy like that!"

"Mike, can you find the person who posted the video?"

"I tried and found that the video first appeared on an overseas pornography website, but the user who uploaded it had already cancelled their account."

"Is it speculating in Aryadelle already?" Avery lowered her gaze and took a deep breath in despair.

Even Avery herself had thought that she was the woman in the video, so it's only natural that the others believe the same thing. She didn't care if she was misunderstood by the others, but what about Elliot?

Chapter 659

She couldn't bring herself to imagine Elliot's reaction after watching the video. Avery hoped that he would trust her unconditionally, but she also knew that Elliot was a man of reason. Until she could provide actual proof that said she was not the woman in the video, she didn't dare to anticipate his trust.

"Yeah," Mike sighed and said, "this sort of scandal travels fast. I've already gotten rid of the video and all related discussions, but everyone knows."

All strength was drained from Avery's legs and she almost fell to the ground.

"Avery, if that's not you, then we need to find that woman in the video, otherwise she will keep imposing as you do something else!" Mike gritted out,

“don’t read the local news. Those people are too nasty and I don’t want you to get angry.”

“How do we find her?” Avery clenched onto her phone tightly as her head started to pound.

” Who is that woman?!”

“I would say that I suspect Nora most,” Mike analyzed, “she went through plastic surgery to look like you to the extent that you two look identical. It’s not difficult to figure out what she is trying to do, so I won’t be surprised if she ends up doing something extreme.”

Avery, too, felt the same, but they had no proof unless Nora tried to imitate her in public.

“Avery, just stay in Bridgedale first. I will check Nora’s schedule for the past week,” Mike said, “before I find something, don’t come back.”

“Why can’t I come back? I’m not the woman in the video. I’m not ashamed and I don’t need to hide!” Avery had finally lost control of her emotions.

Once a woman was pregnant, the hormones within her body would become unstable, making it more difficult for her to control her temper compared to before.

Avery wouldn’t have reacted so dramatically had she not been pregnant.

“That’s not what I mean, Avery. I am just worried that you will be affected by all the talk in Aryadelle if you come back now,” Mike explained, “you need a good rest right now. The baby will be coming in two months’ time. We need to prioritize the baby over everything.”

“I won’t be affected by what they say. I know that it’s a trap, so why should I have to get mad over it?” Avery slowly began to calm down.

“Riling myself up will only make the culprit happy.”

“I’m glad that you understand.” Mike relaxed and asked, “by the way, has Elliot contacted you?”

“I don’t think so.” Avery didn’t recall seeing any message from Elliot when she checked for Mike’s message.

“Oh... I wonder what he thinks about all these. Take Layla out for food! I will call Chad and ask about it.”

After hanging up, Avery stepped out of her room with a face as pale as a ghost. When she saw Layla, she readjusted herself and her lips curled into a smile. “Darling, let Mommy take you to eat.”

In Aryadelle, Elliot’s bodyguards returned swiftly from Caesar Hotel with the guest lists of all hotel guests from a week ago, where Avery’s information had been found and highlighted in red on the document.

“Mr. Foster, the hotel’s data shows that Miss. Tate reserved a VIP room in the hotel restaurant that night, before reserving room 609 to rest,” the bodyguard said as he glanced over at Elliot nervously.

Elliot sat behind his desk with light casting on him from behind; his expression was cold and dark. The bodyguard felt as though Elliot would throw the coffee mug across the table at any moment.

“Also... Miss. Tate left the hotel at eight that night. She was in such a hurry that she didn’t even go to the reception to collect her deposit,” the bodyguard continued, “when the cleaners went up to the room, they found a... used... condom on the bed...”

The bodyguard started to stutter near the end and his voice weakened.

The coffee mug on the desk flew across the room without warning. Following a ‘baam!’, it landed on the ground and shattered into countless pieces.

Everyone in the room held their breath, not daring to make a sound. Just then, the ringing of a phone pierced through the air...

Chapter 660

It was Chad's phone.

Everyone turned their attention onto Chad and he immediately started sweating nervously.

He took out his phone and saw that it was a call from Mike. He wanted to answer but didn't dare to. If he rejected the call, he would miss out on a chance to gain more important information about Avery.

After a few moments of hesitation, he answered the call under everyone's watchful eyes.

"Chad, how did your boss react after watching the video?" Mike asked.

Chad glanced over at Elliot at Mike's word and noticed the dark expression on Elliot's face; his eagle-like eyes were so sharp that they could kill.

Chad held onto his phone and escaped the office hastily.

"F*ck! What kind of stupid question is that? How else do you expect him to react?" Chad sighed a long breath after exiting the office. "Have you managed to get in touch with Avery?"

"I did." Mike desperately wanted to tell Chad the exact words Avery had said, but he knew that Chad wouldn't buy it without proof, so his tone became slightly gloomy.

"I told you that it's not Avery."

"She said it's not her?" Chad swallowed hard.

"Yeah! She said that someone imitated her. Chad, you guys might not know what kind of a person Avery is, but I do. She is not the kind of woman that fools around. Apart from work, she spends most of her time taking care of the kids and reading medical books. She has no other hobby," Mike said, before remembering why he had called Chad in the first place.

“So how did your boss react?”

“He is furious,” Chad lowered his voice and said, “Mr. Foster didn’t believe that the woman in the video is Avery as well, because he trusted Avery, just like you do. Unfortunately, Ben was in Caesar hotel a week ago and happened upon the scene where Avery was being intimate with another man. He said that he was just outside the door that night and heard everything.”

“Well, did he go in?”

“No. If he did, words would have gotten to Mr. Foster and Ben meant to keep it a secret until Avery gives birth.”

“If he didn’t see it with his own eyes, then there is a possibility that it’s not Avery!” Mike argued, “if Nora can make herself look so much like Avery, is it so weird that she could imitate Avery’s voice as well?”

Chad was shocked. “Have you read too many novels? Do you think it’s that easy to imitate someone’s voice in real life?”.

“I’ve never seen it, but I know it’s possible,” Mike said calmly.

“What about the pregnant belly of the woman in the video?” Chad took a deep breath and asked.

“Have you not seen any movies before? CG effects and make-up can easily make that happen,” Mike deadpanned, “you should tell Elliot what I just told you.”

“I don’t dare to! Ben is certain that Avery is the woman in that video and he wants Mr. Foster to cut all ties with Avery. What’s worse is that my boss sent his men to Caesar Hotel to get the guest list for the past week... Avery’s booking record has been shoved to his face and they even found a used condom in the room she stayed in...”

Just then, the elevator door opened and Tammy and Jun stepped out of it.

Tammy was rushing forward and Jun tried to slow her down. "Slow down, Tammy! Let me just check to see if Elliot is around..."

"I saw Chad! Elliot is definitely around!" Tammy said, before struggling out of Jun's restraint.

Chad walked up to them and asked, "why are the two of you here?"

"I'm here to see Elliot," Tammy cut to the chase and said, "I know what's going on with Avery."

Chad was stunned.

Chapter 661

Tammy walked past him and strode towards Elliot's office.

"Your wife looks like she is here to pick a fight or something," Chad teased.

Jun sighed with resignation.

"I told her not to come and she keeps insisting. She insists that the woman in the video is not Avery, but I watched it carefully and I still think that it's Avery!"

"Tammy is good friends with Avery, so naturally she would side with her. Mike is the same. He told me that the woman in that video is Nora. He said that Nora is imitating Avery's voice and the pregnant belly is just CG effects... He seems so serious that I almost believed him."

Jun exclaimed, "does he think that this is a movie?"

Chad adjusted his spectacles and said, "what he said is possible but the chances of that are slim. Those two are having a much harder time to accept that Avery would be that sort of a woman."

"You are right. Tammy's gone crazy ever since she saw that video and I can't even calm her down."

“Same with my boss. He hasn’t done anything horrible just yet, but I feel like he could explode any minute now. I don’t dare to go in, so you go on ahead!”

Chad tapped Jun on the shoulder.

Worried that Tammy might cause trouble, Jun had no choice but to step inside the office.

“Avery was tricked into going to that hotel!” Tammy stood before Elliot’s desk.

“Once we catch the person who stole my phone, we will be able to find out who didge this.”

“Show me the messages on your phone,” Elliot said.

“The thief deleted them! Whoever stole it is smart. He can’t possibly be working alone; he has to have other accomplices!” Tammy analyzed.

Elliot desperately wanted to believe her, but how could he do so based on nothing but her words?

“Tammy, I know that you are best friends with Avery and you are willing to lie for her...” Ben said.

“What gives you the right to say that I’m lying? Just because you are older than me?” Tammy lost her temper and retorted, “my husband can prove that I lost my phone a week ago and got it back from Avery. Are you going to say that Avery stole my phone now?”

“It could be that you misplaced your phone with her and in the effort of proving her innocence, you just made up this ‘thief’ to take all the blame. Do you consider us fools?” Ben drawled, “if you want us to believe you, give us proof!”

Tammy’s eyes reddened as she was overwhelmed by helplessness.

“Ben Schaffer, has Chelsea bought you over? This is clearly her doing!

Nothing has been right ever since she brought that plastic cousin of hers back to Aryadelle, can't any of you sense that?!" Tammy shouted.

Chelsea was in the room as well, and when she heard her name being mentioned by Tammy, she spoke out calmly, "Tammy, you can slander me, but please do not insult my cousin! She was injured earlier on and has been staying at home to recover. What could she possibly do? Besides, this is Avery's business; she should be here to explain herself, who are you to represent her here?"

Embarrassed, Jun apologized to Chelsea, before dragging Tammy outside. Tears scrolled down Chelsea's face.

"I'm sorry, Elliot, I shouldn't have brought Nora into this company. I will tell her to leave," she paused for a moment before continuing, "but that person in the video is definitely not Nora..."

"Get out!" Elliot swallowed hard and barked, "all of you. Get out!"

Soon, he was the only one left in the office. His dark, brooding eyes were filled with unspeakable pain as he grabbed his phone and dialed Avery's number...

Chapter 662

To his surprise, his call was immediately answered.

"I'm coming back tomorrow," her voice was calm and unwavering, "let's talk then."

All the rage and fear storming within him was instantly overpowered.

Elliot thought back to what Ben said. Ben said that Avery knew how to manipulate him and was very successful at it.

It was not until that moment that Elliot understood what Ben was trying to say.

Indeed, Avery had him wrapped around her fingers. All it took was a few words from her and he would choose to believe her without a doubt even when all proof suggested that she had betrayed him.

“Avery,” he called out her name in a hoarse voice before hanging up.

Avery could tell how hard he was struggling from his voice. He must have watched the video and suspected her role in it, or he would be in so much pain.

“Elliot, I know it’s difficult for you to trust me,” she struggled to explain under the tension between them, “when I saw the video, even I thought it was me.”

He listened to her quietly and his raging emotions began to settle down.

“I watched it over and over again,” she said with a lump in her throat, “Elliot, that’s not me.”

As soon as Avery said that, Layla came to tug at her clothes and asked,

“Mom, Hayden is here!”

Elliot readjusted himself swiftly when he heard Layla’s voice. “Go look after the kids first. We will talk when you are back.”

With that, they ended the conversation.

Layla scowled and looked up at Avery. “Mom, are you talking to Dirtbag Dad?”

He is the only one who would make you cry.”

Avery wasn’t crying, but her eyes were turning red. Layla didn’t know what had happened, so she couldn’t understand why Avery was upset and had no clue that it had nothing to do with Elliot.

Worried that Layla would come across the news, Avery said, “Layla, don’t play with phones for now.”

“I don’t have a phone!” Layla looked at her with an innocent expression.

“I know that you always play with Uncle Mike’s phone.”

Exposed by her mother, Layla chuckled and stuck her tongue out.

“I play with Uncle Eric’s phone all the time as well, Mom. You are the only one who doesn't let me do so."

"I won't let you do it because it's bad for your eyes."

"But Hayden plays with his laptop all the time, why haven't you said anything to him, then?" Layla pouted at the injustice.

"You know why. I took Hayden to see the psychologist and the doctor approved," Avery explained patiently.

Layla smiled at her in a flattering manner and said, "I won't play with computers even if you buy me one, Mom. I'm just envious of how great Hayden is!"

"Sure, your brother is great."

As the two were chatting, the bodyguard brought Hayden to them.

When they were inside the call, both Avery and Hayden spoke out at the same time.

"You first, Hayden."

"You go first, Mom."

"Alright, my original plan was to take you and your sister to travel around Bridgedale before we head back; but something happened back in Aryadelle and I need to take you two back immediately," Avery said guiltily, "if you are tired, we can rest for one day before traveling back"

Hayden shook his head. "I'm not tired, Mom. We can head back now, but I want to start school a little later."

"What's wrong, Hayden?" Avery looked at her son in confusion.

Hayden had yet to find the Darknet organization that Nora had used before; he couldn't focus on school until he found them.

Chapter 663

He couldn't tell his mother directly, or she might not agree. He tried his best to look sincere and lied in a serious tone, "I'm exhausted from the summer camp."

Avery's heart softened and agreed.

"Darling, you need to tell me when you are stressed from school next time.

Studying is important, but your health is the top priority."

Hayden nodded.

Meanwhile, in Elliot's mansion in Aryadelle at eight in the evening.

Ben poured Elliot a glass of wine and Elliot turned it down.

"I can't drink anymore." Elliot had already drunk two glasses and was already blushing. His eyes were dazed, but he still remembered that he would be meeting Avery the next day; if he drank too much, it would affect his physical condition tomorrow.

"Fine, I'll drink it myself." Ben grabbed Elliot's glass and drank from it.

"Don't drink too much." Elliot glanced at him.

"I know that you are doing this for me,cd but..."

"But, what? But you won't put Avery on the spot, right? You don't have the heart to because of your baby." Ben set the glass down and said, "I just want to remind you that the stake you have been placing on her is only getting higher. If you don't take this opportunity to get out, there won't be another chance in the future."

The daze in Elliot's eyes disappeared in ange instant.

It was hard for him to fall in love; and so, when he finally did, he couldn't let go. It was his merit, and at the same time, his shortcoming.

"Elliot, as your friend, I've always wanted you to live a happy life. It doesn't matter how much you spend on women; I can look the other way as long as you are happy." Ben scowled and continued, "but Avery has hurt you over and over again. She's even done something so out of line this time. This is the consequence of your boundless tolerance.”

Elliot lowered his gaze and lit a cigarette.

“If you can provide proof that she is not the woman in the video, I will apologize to her in however way she wants me to; but she fails to do so, I will take all her words as nothing but excuses,” Ben said as he stared through the smoke at Elliot’s face.

Elliot remained silent for a while, before moving his fingers towards the ashtray to shake off the ash.

“Ben, I used to view the world as black and white with nothing worthy of interest, until I met Avery. She helped me see the colorful side of this world,” Elliot said steadily, “she’s a drug and I’m hooked.”

“I know it’s hard for you to break up with her, Elliot, but if you refuse to take that step, you will keep getting hurt by her,” Ben said.

“We’ll see tomorrow! I’m tired.” Elliot put out the cigarette with a dark expression, before heading upstairs.

The next day, at eight in the morning, Avery arrived in Elliot’s mansion alongside her bodyguard.

According to what Avery knew about Elliot, he would usually wake up at eight in the morning during weekdays.

When Mrs. Cooper saw her, she immediately invited Avery inside.

“Avery, have you been eating at all? There’s no meat on your bones.” Mrs. Cooper brought breakfast to her and said, “eat right here. Mr. Foster should be down at any minute.”

“Mrs. Cooper, I’ve eaten this morning,” Avery said awkwardly, “you don’t have to bring me this much food.”

As the two spoke, Elliot came downstairs with another person following closely behind.

Ben had drunk too much the night before and stayed the night in Elliot's mansion.

Avery couldn't help but tense when she saw the two men.

If she was only facing Elliot, she would not feel nervous; but Mike had told her that Ben resented her for this incident, and had been trying to convince Elliot to break up with her.

Elliot walked towards her and spotted the glass of milk in her hand.

"Have your breakfast first!" He said calmly.

Avery set the glass down.

"I'm full."

Ben immediately cut to the chase and asked, "Avery, you said that you are not the woman in that video. Do you have proof?"

"No." She heard Ben, but couldn't stop herself from looking over at Elliot.

"What are you doing here, then? To make up a story, or beg for Elliot's forgiveness?" Ben said sarcastically, "stop looking at Elliot with those dooeyes! It means nothing even if you get on your knees and beg today!"

Chapter 664

Provoked by Ben's words, she reminded him, "Ben, this is between me and him."

"When Tammy came to us for your sake and started shouting like a crazy woman, was I supposed to tell her the same thing as well?" Ben retorted.

Avery's blood ran cold at his words as she froze in place.

She had come here to explain to Elliot about what had happened that day in the hotel. She wanted to tell him whether or not he chose to believe her, because at least she would have no regret.

However, everything just seemed so ridiculous now.

How could she forget about Tammy?

Tammy had always been so protective of her and she must have gone to Elliot and the others to explain what happened; judging from their reaction at the moment, it was clear that none of them believed Tammy.

If that was the case, there was no need for her to waste her time explaining.

“If you think that I’m the woman in the video, then so be it!” She said coldly, “forget I even came here.”

With that, she turned around to leave.

Elliot grabbed onto her arm. “Avery! I didn’t say you can leave!” He was breathing heavily and continued in a stern voice, “I want to hear you explain!”

“Elliot, she already said that she has no proof...” Ben said with resignation.

“This is between me and her!” Elliot glared at him viciously.

“I don’t need anyone to remind me what to do! Even if my decision is wrong, I will accept the consequences on my own!”

Ben saw the determination in his eyes and left without another word.

After he left, Avery broke her arm free of Elliot’s restraint and in a low voice, she said, “Tammy already said what I meant to say. Your friendship with Ben runs deeper than my friendship with Tammy, right? You are making me look bad.”

Ben must hate her now.

Though she didn’t care about Ben’s thoughts on her, she didn’t feel right that Ben and Elliot’s friendship suffered because of her.

Elliot mumbled as though he had not heard what she said, “someone tricked you into going to the hotel and found a woman that looks exactly like you to record her and framed you.”

“Doesn’t it sound fake? Not even movies dare to use plots like this,” she said sarcastically, "its normal that Ben won't believe me; as for you, I've never dreamed of having your trust."

His heart froze at her tone.

If he didn't believe her, why would he stop her from leaving to listen to her?

As Avery had said, Elliot and Ben were as close as brothers; still, he fought with Ben. What about her? Apart from pride, all she had was never-ending prejudice against him.

"Avery, what gives you the right to do this to me?" He swallowed hard as his eyes reddened. "It doesn't matter if you are the woman in that video, you have always been on a high horse whenever you are with me!"

"Should I have kneeled and begged for your forgiveness, then?!" Provoked by Elliot's accusation, she retorted, "you get to get on a high horse and ask for my explanation, but I'm not allowed to doubt your trust towards me?"

"Elliot, I've already explained everything about that video. I'm busy, so I'll go now," she spoke quickly before hurrying away.

Elliot watched as she left and clenched his fists.

"This time, I won't let go of my pride and forgive her," he thought.

The irritation Avery felt did not ease even the slightest after leaving Elliot's mansion. She couldn't even remember how many times she had to work hard to prove her innocence.

Chapter 665

She wasn't the one who did it, and she was supposed to be the victim , but she was forced to take on the burden because of public opinions.

Avery called Tammy

"Avery, why did you come back so early?" Tammy was slightly confused.

"If I were you, I would have remained a bit longer in Bridgedale. It's not because I'd be scared of anything, it's just that some of the people here in Aryadale are just too disgusting."

"Running won't solve the problem. I've already met with them," Avery said calmly, "Tammy, I heard that you went to them for my sake. Thank you for trusting me."

"Why are you thanking me? Coming to think of it, it's my fault. If only I kept my phone safe, it wouldn't have been stolen and without my phone, the thieves would have no means to trick you into going to the hotel," Tammy said in frustration.

"Even if they couldn't steal your phone, they would have come up with other ways to get me there." Avery looked outside the window and said, "it's getting cold. Let's go shopping!"

Avery thought that it was time for her to buy Autumn-wear for her children. Her children were growing fast and she had to buy them new clothes every year.

Avery and Tammy decided to meet in one of the malls situated in the city center.

When Tammy saw her, she immediately asked, "how did Elliot react? Did he believe you?"

Avery smiled bitterly. "Even I thought it was me for a moment when I first saw the video, so I don't expect anyone else to believe it."

"He's not just anyone. He is the father of your children!" Tammy argued in frustration, "whatever. It's up to him to not believe you! You are not married to him, anyway. Your life doesn't revolve around him."

The two entered the mall and swiftly picked out the clothes they wanted, before heading to a restaurant for high-tea.

Not long after they took their seats, Tammy noticed someone sneakily taking photos of them with their phones. She immediately walked up to the woman who was taking photos and said, "are you taking photos without our consent?! Delete them!"

Avery followed Tammy over.

Intimidated by Tammy, the woman reluctantly deleted the photos, before complaining, "why are you shouting? It's not like I was taking photos of you!"

"Taking photos of my best friend is the same thing as taking photos of me!

Apologize to my best friend right now, or you are not going anywhere!"

"Tammy, it's fine," Avery said.

People began to turn their attention to them. Avery was not embarrassed at first, but soon felt like she was a monkey in a zoo, being watched for every single move. She dragged Tammy back to their seats and told the waiter to pack their food, before paying.

"Avery, we didn't do anything wrong. Why do we have to leave?" Tammy simply couldn't accept it.

"I don't want to be stared at by so many people. It doesn't feel so good."

Avery took a sip of water from her glass and continued, "I didn't want to bother looking for evidence to prove myself, but then I remember that both my kids are going to school and if I don't prove my innocence, they might be affected by the scandal."

Avery's concern was reasonable, unless Hayden and Layla stopped going to schools in Aryadelle altogether.

"But how do we find proof?" Tammy said in a troubled tone.

The waiter had finished packing their food and brought it over to them.

The two stepped out of the restaurant and Avery said, "that day I went to the hotel, a decent looking male staff showed me the way to the private room; the way he was looking at me was as though he had seen me before. Maybe we can start investigating with that hotel staff.”

Tammy beamed. “Then let’s go find him!”

Concerned, Avery said, “if I go, it might alert him.”

“I’ll go alone, then! I don’t know what he looks like, though,” Tammy said.

“Video call me once you are inside the hotel,” Avery suggested.

Chapter 666

At Caesar Hotel, Tammy was in a blonde wig with thick makeup on her face.

She was dressed to the nines. She entered the lobby.

The concierge staff saw her and were instantly attracted to her.

“I’m looking for your manager,” Tammy walked to the concierge and smiled elegantly.

The concierge staff forgot to ask Tammy about her identity. She immediately dialed her manager.

Soon, the manager came over. When the manager saw Tammy, he was stunned.

“Miss, is there anything I can help you with?”

“Let’s talk in another place,” Tammy hooked her arm over the manager’s shoulder.

“Let’s head to your office. There is something good I want to share with you.”

When the manager heard what Tammy said, he immediately brought her to his office.

The moment she entered his office, Tammy sat down on the sofa and said to the manager, “ Show me all of your male staff members. I want them with photos.”

The manager was confused. "Miss, what do you want them for?"

"This question doesn't feel like it should come out of a person of your level. I want a male staff member to serve me, of course!" Tammy said and produced a black card.

"I have the money. Go and get the list here. If I pick someone I like, I'll reward you too."

The manager immediately took a tablet over and found the photos of all the male staff.

Tammy accepted the tablet. Then she took her phone out and took photos of the photos on the tablet.

The manager panicked a little. "Miss, what are you doing?"

Tammy raised her eyebrows. "I'm selecting one for my best friends! Don't you know how rich women have fun? If I find someone good, I'll introduce them to my friends."

The manager suddenly understood.

Tammy sent all the male staff's photos to Avery and waited for her reply.

A moment later, Avery sent back a photo of a male staff member.

[It's him.]

Tammy immediately showed the photo to the manager.

"I want him, right now."

The manager felt as if Tammy was about to devour that staff member, so he said carefully, "Miss, all the staff members are proper staff members. They might not be willing to sell themselves..."

Tammy pulled her sleeves and exposed her shoulders.

"Are you doubting my attractiveness?"

The manager was speechless. He went to get the male staff member over.

Once Tammy saw the person, she immediately took a pile of cash out of her bag and passed it to the manager.

“If your staff member serves me well, you’ll be rewarded after as well!”

The manager was delighted. He said to the staff member, “Ryan, looked at this wonderful patron. She is beautiful and generous. You got lucky!”

Ryan sized Tammy up. He lowered his head shyly because she was too beautiful.

Tammy brought Ryan out of the hotel into her luxury car.

“Miss, why did you pick me? I’m not the most handsome man in our hotel.

The most handsome man is...” Ryan said.

Tammy interrupted him. “The person that wanted you is my best friend. You must be wondering why she picked you because she has met you in the hotel before. She thinks you and her are destined to be!”

Ryan was a little surprised. He was extremely excited.

Once Tammy drove to another hotel and brought Ryan to Avery, Ryan was bewildered. Avery Tate?!

Chapter 667

What was Avery Tate looking for him for?

Looking at her cold expressions, it did not seem like she was looking for him for pleasure!

“Ryan.” Avery placed a stack of cash and a bottle of medication in front of him.

“If you properly answer my questions and tell me what you know, this money is yours. If you don’t cooperate and say nothing. This bottle of medicine will shut you up forever.”

Ryan was scared half to death. He pointed at the black bottle of medicine and stuttered, “W What medicine is this?”

“A poison. Once you consume it, you’ll die immediately. The most important thing is that the coroner will not detect this poison. By then, they will say that you asphyxiated due to over excitement. No one will suspect.” Avery’s tone was calm and light.

Ryan was so frightened his face turned pale. He immediately knelt on the ground.

“Miss Tate. What do you want to know, ask all you want, but I’m only a lowly staff member, I don’t know much!”

Avery saw how Ryan was not on guard, she immediately asked, “When I was cheated to go to the hotel that day, who got you to welcome me? Who moved me to room Six Zero Nine? Have you seen the woman in the video before?”

Ryan was bewildered by the series of questions Avery posed.

“Miss Tate, I’m just a lowly server. My duty that day was just to serve you a cup of water. I don’t know about the other things,cd but...”

“But, what!” Tammy was an impatient woman. Looking at how he stuttered, she was a little annoyed.

“But I did indeed see a woman who looks a lot like you, Miss Tate...” Ryan said. He swept a glance at the cash on the table.

“Miss Tate, this is all I know. Can Ige leave?”

“Do you think the woman in the video is me?” Avery put the cash in his arms.

“Ryan, don’t be afraid. I only want to know what is going on. I won’t expose you.”

“Of course, the woman in the video is not you. You passed out at that time. How could you have done something like that with a man?” Ryan took the cash. Suddenly, his speech was much more fluent.

“Miss Tate, don’t expose me! I’m afraid of death!”

Avery found a photo on her phone and showed it to Ryan.

“The woman that looks like me, the one that you saw. Is it this person?”

Avery showed Ryan Nora’s photo.

Ryan saw the photo and nodded.

“Watch what you’re saying!” Tammy kicked Ryan in the butt.

Ryan understood he spoke out of line, so he bore the pain.

“Ryan, when you saw this woman, was she pregnant?” Avery was in utter suspense.

Ryan nodded. “When I saw her, I thought she was you, so I thought nothing much about it. Later, when I met you again in the hotel, I realized that you were two different people.”

The doubts in Avery’s heart were solved. It was Nora! It was truly Nora secretly pretending to be her!

The next day, Avery brought her bodyguard to Sterling Group.

When the receptionist saw her, she did not dare to ask if Avery had a booking or not. That was because the entire company knew that Avery was pregnant with the President’s child.

“Miss Tate, are you looking for Mr. Foster? He is not here yet,” The receptionist said politely.

“I’m not looking for him.” Avery headed to the lift. “I’m looking for a staff of yours in the PR department.”

The receptionist looked at her and pressed the elevator button for her. “Okay.

The PR department is on the seventh floor. Do you need me to take you there?”

“No need,” Avery replied coldly.

Once Avery and the bodyguard entered the lift, the receptionist returned to her desk and dialed Chad. “Chad, Miss Tate has gone up to the PR department. I don’t dare to stop her! She’s about to reach the PR department! Go there quickly to have a look! I got a feeling Miss Tate is here to fight!” Fight? Avery was seven months pregnant. Who could she be a match for?

Chapter 668

At the PR department.

Avery’s arrival stunned everyone.

Everyone looked at her, not daring to breathe. Although they did not know why she was there, from the expressions on her face, they could guess that she did not come with friendly intentions.

Avery looked at everyone and asked, “Is Nora not here yet?”

lly arrives on the dot.” A staff member looked at the time. “She should be here soon.”

Speak of the devil.

Nora entered the PR department with sky-high heels and an LV bag. Seeing a crowd surrounding the entrance, she walked over.

The moment she saw Avery, her nosy expressions immediately stopped.

Perhaps because Chelsea was not there yet, a sense of crisis rose in her.

What if Avery was there looking for trouble? She was all alone. She was not a match for Avery!

“Miss Tate, Nora is here!” Someone said.

Avery turned around to look.

When she saw Nora, her eyes were filled with iciness and disgust.

“Avery, were you looking for me?” Nora forced a smile and asked, “You’re here early. Is there something important?"

"It's nothing important," Avery said flatly, "I'm just used to being up early, so for you, my arrival might be a little early."

Seeing how there was no threat in her tone, Nora instantly lowered her guard, "Oh, if it's nothing important, then we can talk here."

Avery looked at the face that looked like her. She was getting angrier.

This woman used her face to do disgusting and evil things!

Avery did not bother to say another word. She raised her hand and slapped Nora brutally on the face!

Everyone was stunned!

Logically speaking, when things like this happen, someone would have stood up to pacify the situation, but no one did.

Everyone only stood there silently, watching things unfold.

Nora has done her face up to look like Avery, this was a cold, hard fact.

Everyone could see for themselves. Although they said nothing in public, in private, word has been spread.

No matter who it was in Avery's shoes, they would be uncomfortable about it.

Avery had the child in her as her support. Her coming to look for Nora for trouble was only a matter of time.

Nora clutched her face. She was in so much pain tears fell.

"You hit me! How dare you hit me! What right do you have to hit me!"

Avery looked at her teary and pitiful face. Thinking about the things that she had done she was even angrier!

"Hold her down!" Avery instructed the bodyguard. The bodyguard immediately went forward and held both of Nora's hands.

Nora tried to struggle, but she could not break free! She was so scared she yelled for help!

Before someone could come to her rescue, Avery slapped her once more on the face.

This time, she was slapped so badly she was in a daze!

“When you gouged Zoe’s eyes out, Zoe must have been yelling even worse than you right now, ” Avery said with a sneer, “I have only slapped you twice, yet you can’t take it already?”

Nora was stunned.

“What are you talking about? What nonsense are you talking about?”

Slap!

Avery slapped her once more!

“Do you think that I’m easily bullied, so you can be so brazen?” Avery looked at her swollen face, she was merciless.

“Doing up your face to look like me, mimicking my voice, creating scandals for me. Are you trying to get Elliot to dump me or are you trying to make me have miscarriage from anger?” Half of Nora’s face was in so much pain it was numb. Her ears were buzzing too.

Chapter 669

Nora did not dare to talk back. Avery has got nuts! She was scared to death!

“You underestimate me.” Avery pinched Nora’s painful yet undignified face.

She enunciated, “ I have never relied on a man to live! Even if the skies fell on me, I will give birth to my child successfully. Your schemes might work once or twice. Do you think it will work the third time?”

When Chad rushed over, Nora’s face had already been⁴⁶ swollen.

When Nora saw Chad, she instantly wailed, “Chad! Help! Avery has gone mad! She hit me! She’s going to beat me to death! Woo, woo, woo!”

Chad immediately walked over to her and pushed Avery’s bodyguard away.

“Avery, what are you doing? We’re at the office. You shouldn’t come here making a scene,” Chad helped Nora up and said sternly.

Avery had a cold and calm look. “I’ll teach her a lesson wherever I want to. If you’re not happy about it, get your boss to talk to me.”

Chad was speechless. What would happen if he got Elliot to talk to her? In the end, they would still let her be.

“Chad, quickly call Chelsea. If Chelsea knows that I’ve been bullied, she will help me.” Nora held on tightly to Chad’s arms. She did not dare let go.

Chad looked at her. He pitied her, but his senses told him to get a grip.

Avery was not an impulsive person. There must be a reason she was so angry that day.

“Nora, I’ll get the guard to send you to the hospital,” Chad said, “I think your nose is crooked. Nora yelled and covered her face.

Once Chad handed Nora over to the guards, he led Avery out of the PR department. This incident caused too much of a ruckus. He could not control what the staff would talk about in private.

If Avery was not Avery, if she was someone else, no one would be able to simply enter Sterling Group’s offices, let alone beat up a staff member.

Every floor of the office has guards.

When Avery was teaching Nora a lesson, none of the guards dared to stop her.

Beating Nora up was a small matter. If anything were to happen to the child in Avery, who was going to bear the responsibility?

Avery saw that Chad pressed the button on the top floor. She said, “Are you going to bring me to your boss’s office?”

Chad’s attitude softened much more than before. “I’m taking you to have some water.”

“I’m not thirsty.” Avery pressed the button for the ground floor.

“If your boss asked, just say that I lost my temper, so I wanted to teach her a lesson. After all, I don’t have concrete evidence that she is mimicking me, so I could only do as I please.”

Chad was unable to restrain a smile.

“Don’t be mad. Whether she impersonated you to do those things or not, don’t let others take advantage of you in the future.”

“It’s easy for you to say. If it were you, will you be mad?” Avery retorted, “I don’t need any reputation, but my children do. Now that school has started. If the other kids in school were to say things about me to my children, can I hold back?”

The smile on Chad’s face disappeared. “I’ll tell Mr. Foster about your difficulties.”

“What is there to tell him about? I fought with him yesterday, don’t you know?”

Chad was speechless. He indeed did not know about it.

“I’m not going to the top floor.” Avery saw that the lift has stopped at the top floor.

“Okay, then I’ll send you down.” Chad closed the doors and accompanied her down.

When the lift was on the ground floor, the doors opened slowly with a ding.

Outside the lift stood Elliot in black and Chelsea in a red dress.

When Chelsea saw Avery, she instantly flared up.

“Avery, what right do you have to hit my cousin!”

Avery said lazily, ‘The next person I’ll hit is you.’

Chelsea was furious, “You...” Elliot heard their conversation. His expressions instantly darkened.

Chapter 670

Avery walked out of the lift. She did not plan to deal with them. Her intention there that day was to teach Nora a lesson. Now that she has relieved herself of anger, she was feeling much better.

Just when she walked past Elliot, he suddenly grabbed her arm without any warning.

“What are you doing?” Avery looked at him.

Elliot pulled her along and headed out of the office.

Chelsea wanted to follow but Chad stopped her. “Chelsea, go and see Nora. She has been crying nonstop.”

Chelsea gritted her teeth. “Where is she?”

“I saw that her nose was a little crooked, so I got the guards to send her to the hospital,” Chad said, “Go to the hospital and look for her! She’s extremely upset. I’m afraid she might not think things through.”

Chad had already put it that way, Chelsea could only head to the hospital to visit Nora.

Elliot pulled Avery to the entrance of the parking lot of the office. At that moment, there was no one else in the parking lot other than them.

When Chelsea drove off, her gaze at Avery was filled with malicious intent.

Why would she suddenly come to hit Nora? Did Avery find out about something?

After Chelsea drove off, Avery lowered her gaze and saw her reddened right hand.

When she was slapping Nora, she did not hold back, so her hand was numb at that moment.

“Avery, don’t you think you’re acting recklessly?” Elliot’s back was facing the sun. His face was glum, and his tone was cold.

“Look at your tummy. How could you dare to fight with others?”

Avery was not afraid of him.

“If I don’t do it, I will be very angry. Anger is bad for the child.”

Avery has thought about it beforehand. In the end, she still decided to come to teach Nora a lesson. Other than taking her anger out on Nora, it was also a warning to Nora. If Nora still dared to do evil things, the next time would be not only a few slaps!

“Are you sure it’s her?” From how well Elliot understood Avery, if Avery were not sure about the outcome of things, she would never have lost her temper so badly. His words made Avery’s suppressed anger rise again.

“If it’s not her? Could it be me?”

Elliot took a deep breath and suppressed his anger. Avery was late in her pregnancy term. She was a special case. He could not make her angry.

“Avery, what I meant just now was that if you have the evidence that it was Nora who did it, please give me them. I will deal with this strictly.”

“If I have the evidence, why would I hand it over to you? Do you think if I have the evidence, I wouldn’t be able to deal with it myself?” Avery saw that Elliot did not get angry, so she calmed down a lot too.

For the sake of her child, she had to control herself.

Avery’s answer was like a punch to Elliot. It made Elliot in a daze.

Did that mean she went to his office that day just to beat someone up?

“Why are you looking at me that way? Are you thinking about what to do with me?” Avery grabbed his arm and intentionally provoked him.

“What do you plan to do?”

“What can I do?” Elliot retracted his arm. He looked at her coldly. His tone was filled with helplessness.

“Avery, even if today the person that you beat up was not Nora, but me. What do you think I could do to you?”

“When you got mad in the past, you never cared about me. In the end, you only care about your child.” Avery sneered and mocked him.

“I thought you didn’t like children! Who would have thought it was all a show! What happened to that gusto you had before? Elliot, I look down on you!”

Elliot’s body tightened. He clenched his fists tightly. A wave of coldness was emitted from him.

He was indeed reckless in the past. When he got mad, he was not good at managing his emotions.

However, at that moment, Avery’s tummy was so huge. It was so huge he could not ignore it. Even if the child in her tummy was not his, he would not do anything to her either!

Chapter 671

Her misunderstandings against him might not be cleared off in this life.

“Avery, it’s quite windy today. Go back and rest!” Elliot said and strode away.

Avery was stunned, remaining in the same spot. She never expected that Elliot would do anything. He did not even retort. She underestimated his⁴⁶ restraint.

The bodyguard walked over to her and said, “Miss Tate, let’s get you home. It is quite windy today. Don’t catch a cold.”

Avery did not feel that it was windy. At that moment, there was a raging fire burning in her, burning brightly.

Elliot entered the office and Chad immediately followed suit. He reported the incident that happened that morning at the PR department to Elliot in detail.

“I asked the staff of the PR department. They said that Avery not only thinks that the woman in the video was Nora pretending to be her, but Nora was also the person that gouged Zoe’s eyes out.”

When Chad said that he was frightened because Nora seemed gentle and obedient. Her voice was coquettish. He could not see how she could be so cruel.

Elliot silently turned on his computer.

“However, Avery doesn’t have the evidence. If she had, she would not have been so impulsive “ Chad continued, “Mr. Foster, why don’t you ignore this matter. Just wait for the child to be born in case you have any conflicts with her again.”

Elliot opened his email and said, “Get Nora to resign!”

Chad replied, “What? Why? Before having any evidence that she was the one who did those dirty things, she is currently a victim. Not only did we not care for her, but we also forced her to resign, that’s not very nice, right?”

Elliot said, “Just tell Chelsea that.”

“Oh, okay. When Chelsea returns from the hospital, I’ll let her know.” Chad pondered for a while before asking, “If Chelsea were to ask why, what should I tell her?”

Elliot said, “I can’t accept a woman who looks too much like Avery being by my side. No matter whether Nora naturally looked like her or did it later. I would rather not have Avery than a substitute.”

“Okay, I’ll go and do it right now.”

When Avery returned home, Hayden immediately went up to her.

“Mommy, Uncle Eric came and took Layla away.”

Avery was stunned. “Layla needs to go to school today. Did Eric say why he was taking Layla away?”

“Live streaming.”

Avery opened her phone and saw Eric's message.

[There's a live stream this afternoon. After the session, I will immediately send Layla back.]

Avery immediately replied, [Didn't you promise not to interfere with her education?]

Eric wrote, [I have already asked for a leave from her teacher. School just started. The classes are not that important. I can teach her on the road. It will not affect her studies.]

Avery was stunned. What the hell was this? Doing it first then asking for forgiveness?

Avery could not do anything to them, so she could only accept it.

At that moment, Mike yawned and came out of his room.

“Avery, I heard that you went to beat Nora up. Why are you so amazing?”

Mike had a sleepy look on his face. He was not fully up yet.

“Whoever you want to beat up, just get the bodyguard to do it, why do it yourself? What happens if it affects the child?”

Avery said, “How would it affect the child? Usually being beaten up would affect the child more.”

“Hahaha! You're right. But beating her up won't relieve much of the anger.”

Mike sighed.

“This is only the first step,” Avery said calmly, “They are not the only scheming ones.”

Chapter 672

At the hospital. Once Nora saw Chelsea, she could not stop crying.

“Chelsea, Avery has crossed the line. She dares to beat me without any evidence! She totally has no respect for us!” Nora’s face had medication on it. She looked extremely wretched at that moment.

Chelsea said calmly, “She’s pregnant with Elliot’s child now, which is why she dares to be so brazen.”

“She is so much fiercer than what you said! My nose was crooked from her beating,” Nora said bitterly, “What is Elliot doing? Even if he doesn’t help me, he should reprimand Avery on your behalf, right?”

“What are you thinking?” Chelsea felt bitter too.

“He might say that he hates children, but Avery is pregnant with his child, he cherishes it a whole lot. No matter what Avery does now, he would be able to put up with her. There is no bottom line.”

“Does that mean I took the slaps for nothing?” Nora’s tears fell. She asked in disbelief.

“Of course, I will not let you suffer for nothing! She might be beating you, but she is warning me!” Chelsea recalled what Avery said to her. She was so furious she shuddered.

At that moment, Chelsea’s phone rang. She walked over to the balcony to answer the call. A moment later, she returned to the room with a darkened expression.

“Chelsea, what is it?” Nora felt that something bad had happened.

“Hehe! Guess!” Chelsea held her phone tightly. She was so furious she turned mad.

“Not only is Elliot not helping you, but that’s fine! He wants you to resign too!”

“How did it turn out this way? Did Avery tell him something?” Nora grabbed her sheets tightly. She speculated frantically, “Does Avery have proof!”

“She has nothing! If she had proof, the person that she looked for today would not be you but the police!” Chelsea’s face flushed red. She gritted her teeth.

“Elliot fired you because you look too much like Avery! He said that he did not need a substitute!”

Nora’s heart sank. She suddenly felt that her existence meant nothing anymore.

She has done up to look like Avery. She learned how to mimic Avery’s voice just so that she could replace Avery one day, yet Elliot refused her so determinedly.

“Nora, don’t be sad. You’re so pretty. Even if you don’t marry Elliot in the future, you’ll be able to marry a wealthy man,” Chelsea comforted her, “Get well soon. Let me head back and do some proper planning.”

“Are you unhappy with me?” Nora lowered her head.

“No. You listen to me, and you do things well too. No matter how arrogant Avery is, her reputation has been ruined. No one would believe her even if she explained herself. This is enough.”

Nora nodded. “That’s good. Anyway, I’ll obey what you say.”

“Hmm. I will make her pay for what she did today.” Chelsea patted Nora on the shoulders.

“Rest well, I’ll get the nanny to come to look after you.”

At the Starry River Villa, after Avery said that she was only at her first step, Mike immediately asked what her next step was, but Avery refused to tell him.

“Okay, fine! But you must be careful of your safety!” Mike glanced at her tummy.

“If I were you, I won’t even be able to move. How do you have so much energy? You could still seek revenge after you have the child!”

“You don’t let me go to the office. Now you’re still trying to limit my other activities?” Avery raised her eyebrows and glared at him.

“If you’re not tired, then go to the office!”

“I’m tired! I worked late last night! I slept at four! If it wasn’t for Chad who called me just now, I would surely not wake up,” Mike said and returned to his room. Avery looked at the time before taking her bag and heading out.

Chapter 673

Avery had asked someone out at noon.

She could not sleep the night before, thinking throughout the entire night.

Chelsea and Nora had been secretly going up against her. If she did not fight back, they would think that she could be easily bullied. They would do even worse things later. Avery did not want to stay passive any further.

Avery might not be able to find evidence to prove her innocence on the video incident for the time being, but she could attack from a different angle!

Avery went to a restaurant nearby Cole’s office. The person she asked out was Cole.

As for this man, she has once truly admired him before. She thought that he was perfect and satisfied her fantasies of Prince Charming.

However, when that filter of perception was destroyed, she suddenly realized that he could not be any more ordinary.

Beneath his pretty face laid cowardice, timidity, selfishness, and greed, consuming his soul.

Avery was drinking some water when Cole pushed the door and entered. He strode in.

“Avery, why did you think of looking for me?” Cole sat opposite her. He deliberately looked at her tummy.

“You’re going to give birth soon, right?”

“I’m sure you don’t like children, right?” Avery said calmly.

“How is it possible! I’m not my uncle!” Cole immediately retorted.

“Then, how could you bear to kill Zoe?” Avery distractedly glanced at him.

“Cole, I know all about it. What did Nora give you that you would dare help her kill your own child?”

Without Cole’s help previously, how could Zoe’s eyes be so easily gouged by others?

Too bad the Sanfords had no power in Aryadelle, if not, if they were to look into it, Cole would not be able to escape responsibility!

“You...” Cole was tongue-tied. He wanted to ask how she knew but immediately realized that he would be exposing himself if he said that.

“Don’t worry. I came here looking for you just to understand how much they gave you for you to do such cruel things.” Avery’s tone was calm, but every word she said hit the nail on the head.

Cole was provoked that his eyes reddened. “I only wanted to put Zoe in her place, I didn’t mean to kill my child. Avery, why do you have to think of me so cruelly? Zoe killed herself, I didn’t...”

“Put her in her place? You say so easily. Let me gouge your eyes out and see how you feel,” Avery said. She saw his brows furrowed tightly. His expressions darkened.

Thus, Avery poured him a cup of water. “Just tell me how much Nora gave you!”

“Nothing.” Cole picked the cup up and downed the water in one go.

Avery was stunned. "Then, why did you help them? Cole, are you nuts?"

"Maybe! I hate Zoe, which is why I helped them."

"If you hate her, why did you still want to be with her?" Avery found it absurd.

"You would surely laugh at me if I told you the reason." Cole looked at Avery helplessly.

"Back then, I only pleased her because she had money. Who would have thought that she lost all of her money later and even got pregnant with my child? What could I do? I could only let her give birth to it!"

"Avery, the only person I ever gave my heart to is you." Cole was suddenly confessing his love, "When I got together with Cassandra , it was just for excitement and pleasure. None of those women could compare to you."

Avery exposed his lies. "That's because they are both dead. You can't get anything from them anymore, so you find me especially useful."

Cole was so furious his facial expression was distorted.

"Avery, I don't think you look for me just to tell me this, right? Tell me! What are you here for?"

Chapter 674

"I'm here to give you money," Avery said, "I need you to help me do something. If you do what I say, I'll pay you. You can name your price."

Cole never thought that he would be useful to her.

"Money is a small matter. Actually, Nora and I are not even acquaintances. I only flirted with her back then because I thought she was you..."

Although he did not explicitly say if he would help her or not, his intentions were clear.

"How much money did your company make last year?" Avery asked nonchalantly. Cole scratched his head awkwardly.

“A few hundred thousand! I know I’m not capable. What I earn in a year is less than what my uncle earns in a day.”

“Cole, I’ll give you one and a half million.” Avery interrupted him, “If you can accept this price, we’ll continue our discussion.”

“Avery, with how well we know each other, even if you don’t pay me, I’ll still help you!” Cole adjusted his glasses, hiding the delight in his eyes.

One and a half million, of course, he would take it

“I still haven’t forgotten the time when you helped Zoe to hurt me,” Avery warned him, “If you dare to betray me this time…”

“Avery, it was hard for me too! Back then, Zoe was pregnant with my uncle’s child. How could I dare to disobey her?”

The moment Cole mentioned this, memories came flooding Avery’s mind again.

“Cole, do you think that since Zoe is dead, no one will know about the secrets between you two?” Avery changed her mind.

“Don’t think about the one and a half million dollars anymore. If you help me to do it, I’ll help you keep your secret. If not, I’ll tell your uncle about how you had an affair with Zoe. Do you believe me that he’ll send you to hell to be with Zoe?” Cole’s face turned pale.

“Don’t be too pessimistic about it. If you do things well, I’ll consider rewarding you too. If you ruin it, you won’t get anything.” Avery’s tone calmed down a little.

“Avery, you have changed.” Cole’s expressions darkened. He said heavily,

“You are no longer the innocent woman I once knew. You have become like Chelsea. In front of you, I feel like a small ant.”

Avery said, “Have you ever thought that everything is changing, only you are remaining in the same spot?” Cole sweated profusely upon hearing what Avery said.

In the afternoon, Eric brought Layla to attend their entertainment program’s live stream.

The episode that night was the final episode, so the live stream was considered a bonus.

Once the live stream started, it soon climbed up the charts to be the number one live streamed program.

The live stream was based on their entertainment program. Halfway through, the host produced a card.

“Layla, we gathered the three most-asked questions on the internet. I’ll ask you right now. Are you ready?”

Layla smiled and nodded.

“I’m ready.”

The host asked, “Have your mother and father ever considered letting you continue in the entertainment industry? Everyone likes you very much. They hope that you can be a big star.”

Layla blinked her big eyes and said, “I don’t have a father!”

The host was stunned for a while.

The screen was instantly filled with comments.

[Poor Layla! Her father died at such a young age!]

[I want to be her father! It’s too bad I’m a woman!]

[Thank goodness her father has died, if not some idiot would start saying that Eric is her father!]

Layla could not see the screen, so she continued saying, “My mother loves me a lot. As long as I want to stay in the entertainment industry, she would agree to it.”

The host smiled and said, “Your mother must be very pretty, right?”

“I’ll let Uncle Eric answer this question,” Layla said cheekily, “It doesn’t count if I answer it.”

The staff there burst out in laughter.

Eric’s handsome face had a shade of blush. “Layla’s mother is indeed very pretty. I have once said that she is my goddess.”

Chapter 675

The screen exploded with comments once again.

[Goddess? Avery Tate? Layla’s mother is Avery Tate?]

[F*ck me! What right does Avery Tate have! She does not deserve to be Layla’s mother!]

[When I see Avery Tate’s name, I think of that video! It’s nauseating!]

[Am I the only one who wonders whether Eric still thinks of her as his goddess?]

The host did not expect that Eric would suddenly bring Avery up. The host panicked and was in a daze.

“Eric, are you announcing a new goddess?”

Eric shook his head a little. His tone was firm. “I only have one goddess. She is Layla’s mother.”

He only did not explicitly say that Layla’s mother was Avery!

Once Avery was brought up, Eric did not think of burying it down. On the other hand, he took the initiative to talk to them about her.

“All this while, my fans have been concerned about my love life. I can share with you all,” Eric smiled at the camera. His smile was gentle and dazzling.

“I have confessed to Layla’s mother before, but I was rejected. If you all have seen the video not long ago, I'm sure you can see what type of body the man has. Layla's mother would never have such a weird kind of liking ugly bodies."

Eric brought Layla to the live stream mainly to help Avery clear her name. Ever since this thing happened, he had tried to think of a way to help share Avery's burden. However, after thinking for a long time, without any concrete evidence, it was hard to help her.

In the end, he could only use his fame once again. At least his fans would believe her.

[My dream hunk has been rejected! Woo! Big hugs! You still have us!]

[Does Avery not have an ugly fetish? If not, I don't understand why she would reject Eric.]

[Eric is trying to help Avery! Although Avery rejected him, they are still good friends! Those who diss Avery again, leave this chat room!]

[Actually, I think that Avery has been tricked because the video is so blurry! It looked like it was taken with an old phone! If the woman in the video is really Avery, why would the culprit not put an HD version?]

In the chat, everyone was in heated discussions.

In front of the camera, Layla tugged on Eric's hand and asked softly, "Uncle Eric, what video? Let me have a look!"

Eric's eyes sparkled troublingly. "It's not suitable for small children."

"I'm not a small child, I'm a big one! Just let me secretly have a look!"

"I don't have it on my phone."

"Then, look on the internet and show me! If you don't show me, I'll go home right now and ask Hayden to look for me," Layla pouted and threatened him.

Eric could not win over Layla, so he could only take his phone from his assistant and show Layla the video. He knew it was not good to do so, but he did not dare to make Layla angry.

Layla looked a lot like Avery. Sometimes, when he saw Layla, he saw Avery in her too.

Layla took his phone over and watched the video from beginning to end over and over again.

In the end, she furrowed her brows and returned it to Eric.

“This woman is not my mother! My mother’s belly button does not look like that!”

Layla’s words were like a revelation because no one has ever seen Avery’s belly button before, so they had no way to prove it.

At Sterling Group. Chad hurriedly knocked on Elliot’s office door and entered. He told Elliot what Layla said in the live stream.

Chapter 676

“Sir, I watched the video again. I zoomed into the woman’s belly button and printed it out!” Chad pulled out a photo and handed it to Elliot.

“You must know what Avery’s belly button looks like, right? Take a look and compare them.”

When they first watched the video, they only focused on the woman’s looks, voice and pregnant belly. None of them noticed the shape of her belly button. They overlooked this point. Everyone’s belly button was shaped differently. Whoever was impersonating Avery may be able to copy her looks, voice and appearance, but since Avery had never exposed her body in public, that person had no way of copying her belly button.

Chad especially admired Layla.

A child was able to observe certain things that adults would easily³⁴ overlook.

Elliot glanced at the photo Chad handed to him, then put it down.

“What do you think, Sir?” Chad thought that Elliot had figured it out.

However, Elliot’s brows furrowed as he asked, “Why do you think I would remember what her belly button looks like?”

He might have slept with Avery, but who would go out of their way to notice someone’s belly button?

“Are you telling me you remember what Mike’s belly button looks like?” he asked as he stared at Chad.

Chad let out an embarrassed cough, then said, “I remember, because his belly button is pretty sexy...”

Elliot was speechless.

The atmosphere in the room instantly turned a little delicate.

“She has a C-section scar on her abdomen,” Elliot said after a moment of silence.

“My attention is always drawn to that scar, so I never noticed her belly button.”

Chad nodded in understanding, then said, “It’s too bad that the woman in the video had the area below her belly button covered in cash... Sir, if you go see Avery right now and take a look for yourself, then wouldn’t you have your answer?”

Elliot clenched his fists as a chill washed over his eyes.

“Do you think she’d let me see it? Do you have too much faith in me, or do you not know her that well?”

Chad’s lips pursed into a thin line.

He knew that Elliot and Avery had a fight over the video, but now that they have a clue, Avery could use this to prove her innocence. Why wouldn’t they want to quickly solve this mystery?

“I don’t need to verify it,” Elliot said in a low, hoarse voice moments later.

“I believe Layla.”

If Layla said that the woman in the video was not her mother, then it was not her mother.

Layla would not lie.

Over at the Starry River Villa, Avery was watching the live stream the entire time.

When Eric mentioned her, she felt slightly dizzy.

If the matter with the video had not happened, she would not mind people finding out that she was Layla’s mother.

She was not mentally prepared to let the children know about this right now.

However, Eric had brought up the matter during the live stream without discussing it with her. Not only that, he even showed Layla that kind of video!

Avery was so furious that her blood pressure was rising. She turned off the live stream on her phone, then dialed Eric’s number.

The moment Eric saw that Avery was calling, he immediately moved out of the camera shot.

Avery took a deep breath, then could not hold back and snapped loudly, “Eric Santos! What are you doing?!”

Eric glanced over at Layla, then whispered softly, “I’m sorry I didn’t talk about this with you first...”

“That’s not it. Why did you show Layla that kind of video? She’s still a child! You’ve been getting more and more insolent these days! You’ve been using the fact that Layla likes you to do things before any type of discussion!” Avery complained.

She was right.

Eric was relying on Layla's fondness of him, so he stopped discussing everything with Avery beforehand.

This was because the result of any discussion with her would likely end up limiting his opinions. He wanted to help her. If he discussed it with her, she would definitely refuse his help.

Chapter 677

Since that was the case, Eric could only take action first, then let Avery find out about it.

"Don't take Layla for an ignorant child," Eric argued.

"Even if she didn't know about this now, she will find out about it later. Didn't you notice that her mental capacity is way beyond your expectations?"

"She will forever be a child that needs to be protected in my eyes." Avery refused to accept his reasoning

"I'm sorry," Eric apologized once again.

"Avery, I just wanted to do my best. With Layla's current popularity, someone would definitely dig up her family background. Instead of letting her find out about this from an outsider in the future, isn't it better to make things clear⁴⁶ now?"

Avery felt like there was a lump in her throat and could not say a word.

"The live stream is almost over. Let's talk when I send Layla home later," Eric said, then hung up the phone.

Avery held onto her phone and sat on the couch.

Layla's words during the live stream echoed in her mind.

Ever since Avery's belly grew, Layla liked lying on it to listen to what was going on inside. She also liked talking to her little brother who was inside of Avery. So, Layla would know very well what Avery's belly button looked like. She never noticed it before herself.

Naturally, she did not pay attention to the belly button of the woman in the video 23 either.

Avery rushed up the stairs with her phone and returned to her room.

Two hours later, Eric arrived at the villa with Layla.

Mike and Tammy were also there.

“Why didn’t you go to work, Uncle Mike?” asked Layla. Then she flashed a sweet smile at Tammy and said, “Aunt Tammy, are you here to see Mommy?”

“I am!” Tammy said.

“I watched your live stream earlier, so I came to see your Mommy’s belly button! She’s still sleeping, though.”

“Oh, I’m tired, too! I feel like sleeping,” Layla said as she yawned.

Eric immediately carried her upstairs.

At that moment, Avery appeared at the bottom of the stairs.

Mike and Tammy approached her together and helped her over to the couch.

“Is what Layla said true, Avery? Surely you’ve made a comparison with the woman in the video?” Tammy peeled a banana and handed it over to Avery.

Avery took a bite of the banana, then turned to Mike and said, “Don’t tell me you came back because of this, too?”

Mike’s pale blue eyes blinked.

“That’s right! This is way too interesting! It’s more important than work, so I came home to take a look.”

“Leave,” Avery said mercilessly. “I definitely won’t show it to you.”

Tammy pushed Mike toward the front door and said, “This should tell you who Avery’s true best friend is, right?”

Mike was disgruntled as he said, “You’re breaking my heart, Avery!”

“I’m not an exhibitionist,” Avery said.

Once Mike left, Tammy returned to the living room.

“I compared it, and it was indeed different. My daughter’s observational skills sure are meticulous,” Avery said, answering Tammy’s earlier question.

This was solid evidence.

Tammy hugged Avery in excitement and said, “Avery! You can finally prove your innocence now!”

“Do you expect me to hold a press conference and reveal my belly to the world?” Avery’s voice was cool and calm.

“I won’t do that.”

Tammy released her and said, “They won’t believe you if you don’t do that.”

“I would feel violated if I did that,” Avery said.

When Layla said that the woman in the video wasn’t me, I saw how calm and collected she was. I believe that she won’t be affected by gossip.

Chapter 678

This was the decision that Avery made after careful consideration.

Tammy very quickly accepted her decision.

“I support you, Avery. If it were me, I don’t think I’d be able to open up my clothes in front of a bunch of strangers either. You didn’t do anything wrong, so why do you need to prove anything?” she said.

“You can make a police report, though. Let the police prove your innocence for you.” Avery accepted Tammy’s suggestion.

That evening, the police issued a statement online. The post stated that police investigations revealed that the woman in the explicit video that went viral recently was not Avery Tate, and that the case was under further investigation at the moment.

Once the statement was released, Eric immediately reposted it on his own social media page with the caption: [The internet is not beyond the law. The truth needs to be known!]

His fans quickly reposted his post and spread the news.

The mountain of public opinion that was pressing down on Avery instantly collapsed.

As Chelsea scrolled through social media and saw many of the users that cursed at Avery before issuing apologies to her, she was filled with a mess of feelings.

D*mn it!

All it took was one word from that little brat, Layla, for her carefully orchestrated plan to be shattered!

This feeling was worse than being punched in the face!

When her phone suddenly rang, she thought it was Nora and did not want to answer, but the relentless ringtone was so noisy that it gave her a headache.

Chelsea picked up her phone, saw Wanda's name and immediately answered the call.

"You were too soft on her, Chelsea." Wanda imparted her own experience as she said, "After I got her mother killed, she still can't touch me. You have to be ruthless when it's called for! Of course, you can't do it yourself."

Chelsea took a cold breath and said, "Of course I won't do it myself. I'm not an idiot."

"I know you're not. You managed to stay by Elliot Foster's side all these years, so I'm sure you're smarter than me," Wanda snickered.

"Spend a bit more money and hire people who don't care about their lives to work for you."

"Recommend some to me!" Chelsea said.

“I don’t have many people I can rely on by my side.”

“Sure,” Wanda responded.

“I’ll look into it for you.”

At seven in the evening, the lights in the president’s office at Sterling Group were bright as day.

Elliot stood by the window and watched as the sky gradually turned dark while the lights in the city began to sparkle.

His eyes were covered by a layer of frost and emanating coldness.

“Ben went to see Avery, Sir,” Chad said when he walked in and stood behind Elliot.

“He went to apologize to her.”

Elliot’s Adam’s apple bobbed in his throat. He turned around, and obsidian black eyes were cold as ice.

“This is why Avery hates me,” he said.

Chad lowered his head and said, “Sir, Avery might have been wronged this time, but I don’t think you’re guilty of anything.”

“Eric Santos spoke up for Avery during a live stream this afternoon. Even he could do something like that for her, but I didn’t do anything.” Elliot said as he reflected.

“You believed Avery at the beginning, Sir. Ben was the one who got too worked up and kept forcing you...” Chad comforted him.

“Otherwise, he wouldn’t be blaming himself so much right now.”

“That’s all just excuses. If I truly trusted Avery, I wouldn’t waver no matter who forced me.”

“You didn’t completely listen to Ben, though. He even complained to me because of this. He said you gave your soul to Avery and that you were a lost cause... When Ben gets back, you should go and see Avery to talk things out!" Chad suggested.

"If I went to see her, it'd be like putting my face on a silver platter for her to slap."

"Once she slaps you and gets it out of her system, it'll be fine. You'd be suffering more if you didn't go and see her."

Chad's words made Elliot feel even more depressed. Meanwhile, at the Starry River Villa.

Chapter 679

Ben's arrival made the warm and happy atmosphere in the house come to a pause.

Tammy was upset with him before, so the way she was looking at him now was especially furious.

"What are you doing here? Did you come to celebrate with us?" Tammy asked in an enigmatic tone.

Seeing this, Jun immediately pulled her away and said, "I'm sure Ben's here to see Avery, Tammy. Don't get in the way."

Then, he hurriedly dragged her away.

Ben coughed awkwardly, then walked over to 34 Avery.

"I'm sorry, Avery." His expression was uneasy, but his tone was filled with sincerity.

"I was ignorant. I've never seen anyone imitate someone's voice that perfectly, so I insisted that the woman in the video was you. I should've just kept my bias to myself, but I even threatened Elliot to break up with you... You can be upset with me, but please don't blame him."

"Did you ask you to come here?" Avery raised her brows slightly.

“He doesn’t know I came.” Ben’s cheeks flushed a crimson red.

“This entire thing is pretty embarrassing. I don’t know how to face him yet, so I came to apologize to you first.”

“I don’t need your apology,” Avery said as she looked him in the face.

“You were always kind to me. It was a kindness that could take someone up to cloud nine. What you did this time didn’t do any substantial damage to me, so you don’t need to apologize.”

“That’s good. Then, about Elliot...”

“That’s between him and me,” Avery said, enunciating each word clearly.

“I don’t need anyone else to get involved.”

A wave of embarrassment washed over Ben’s eyes. He took a breath and said, “Got it. Are you in the middle of dinner? I won’t bother you, then,”

Once Ben left, Tammy walked over to Avery and gave her a thumbs up.

“You’re amazing, Avery! These b*st*rds were acting all high and mighty before! Now’s the time for them to taste defeat! Otherwise, they will always be this self-righteous! They should learn a thing or two from Eric!”

Eric had joined them for the celebrations that night.

After meeting him that afternoon, Avery instantly understood all of his kindness and held back every criticism she had wanted to vent out.

One could more clearly see a person’s true colors when faced with troubles.

Not only did Eric not suspect her, he even spoke up for her.

As for the behavior of some other men, she did not want to recall it.

As Ben drove out of the Starry River Villa, his mind was a complicated mess of thoughts and he felt awful. So, he dialed Elliot’s number.

“Elliot, I went to apologize to Avery. She said she’s not angry at me, but I could tell that she’s upset with you,” he said frustratedly.

“This was all my fault. If it weren’t for me, you would’ve believed her without hesitation. That way, she wouldn’t be mad at you.”

On the other end of the line, Elliot’s breathing was a little heavy.

“If you’re thinking of seeing her, don’t go now. Tammy Lynch and Eric Santos are there tonight. They’re celebrating and having fun,” Ben warned.

As Elliot held his phone, his deep eyes flickered slightly. He was on the way home at that moment. He had no plans to go see Avery tonight.

However, Ben’s words made him change his mind.

The more afraid one was of something, the more reason one had to face it head on.

If he did not go see Avery tonight, he would go tomorrow or the day after that.

In that case, he might as well just go now.

At the Starry River Villa, Avery was feeling a little sleepy after chatting with everyone in the living room.

“Go to bed, Avery! Chad said Elliot Foster’s gone home. He won’t come to apologize to you tonight,” Mike teased.

Avery’s cheeks flushed slightly. She got up from the couch and said, “I’m not waiting for him.”

A beam of light shone in from outside the front gates. A black Rolls-Royce slowly came to a halt.

Chapter 680

“Isn’t that Elliot’s car?” Tammy said when she saw the luxury car outside the front gates. “Looks like your intel was wrong, Mike!”

Mike sighed and said, “This man sure is elusive! He’s so unpredictable!”

“Don’t see him, Avery. You should leave him hanging. Let him be restless and stay up all night. Let him have a taste of pain!” Tammy said excitedly.

Mike completely agreed with her, so he walked to the front door and was about to shut it.

Avery grabbed his arm and said, "Let him in."

The baby was going to be born soon.

There were still things that she needed to discuss with Elliot. She wanted to take this opportunity to settle things once and for all.

"Have you forgotten how you were wronged, Avery?" Mike was furious.

"If you forgive him this easily, then he won't learn his lesson. He'll just be even more ruthless in the future!"

"I know what I'm doing, Mike." Avery gazed at Mike with clear eyes.

"Don't worry. I won't lose."

Jun quickly tried to smooth things over and said, "Since Avery's decided, let's not worry about it! When it comes to relationships, it's better for outsiders not to step in."

Tammy glared at him and snapped, "Whose side are you on? Look at Mike. He might be dating Chad, but he's always on Avery's side."

"You've got it wrong!" Jun said.

"I'm just respecting Avery's decision. I'll agree if she wants to see Elliot, and I'll agree if she doesn't, too!"

"Then, you're just spineless and don't have an opinion of your own," said Tammy.

Jun smiled warmly and said, "You're the only one who needs to be opinionated in our home... Ah, Eric made some tea. Let's go have some!"

They sat on the couch and began to have tea.

When Hayden saw Elliot enter the front yard, he immediately dragged Layla upstairs to their room.

Moments later, Elliot arrived at the villa's front door. His deep set eyes glanced over at the living room.

Avery handed him a pair of clean house slippers.

"Thank you," he said, then took the slippers and changed into them,

The group sipping tea in the living room had their eyes fixed on the two of them.

Avery led Elliot past the living room and up the stairs.

"Holy crap! Avery's taking him to her room! What's she trying to do?" Mike did not understand and was greatly shocked.

Mike had thought that, with Avery's temper, she would definitely humiliate Elliot both mentally and physically.

Did he guess wrongly?

"If I remember correctly, I don't think Elliot did anything wrong, right? It's not like he chastised Avery over the video," Jun said thinking he was being fair and just.

"He didn't do that, but he didn't help her either," Tammy mocked. "Why would any woman want to have a child with a man like that?"

Jun instantly shut his mouth.

Upstairs, Elliot followed Avery into the bedroom. He did not expect her to be this calm.

It felt like the calm before the storm.

The moment the door to the room was closed, He could no longer hold back.

He grabbed onto her arm and croaked, "Do you have something to say to me, Avery?"

Avery indeed had something to say, but she did not plan to be the one to speak first.

“You came to me. Shouldn’t you talk first?” She raised her brows and looked at him.

Elliot’s Adam’s apple bobbed in his throat as his breathing turned hot.

“I’m sorry about the video.”

“What’s the use of being sorry?” She rejected his apology.

“We’re not children. If you truly want to apologize to me, then give me something practical.”

Her words piqued Elliot’s curiosity.

“What do you want?”

“I want custody of the baby I’m carrying.”

The moment she said those words, Elliot suddenly released his grip on her arm.

Chapter 681

Elliot knew that the unexpected calmness was because there was an even larger storm that was waiting for him!

Avery already had two children, but she still wanted to take custody of the third child away from him!

She did not want to give even one child to him! She was cruel!

“You’re not willing?” Avery did not want to give Elliot too much time to think.

“If you’re not willing, then you can leave right now, Elliot. Don’t show up in front of me before the baby’s born.”

The resolution in her voice stabbed at Elliot’s heart.

When he had asked her what she wanted before, there was another thing he almost said at the end.

He almost told her, “I’ll give you anything as long as I have it.”

“Do you think the baby would suffer with me?” he asked with reddened eyes.

“I just want my child to be by my side.” In comparison with Elliot, Avery’s tone was a lot calmer.

“We all suffer in life. That’s not what’s scary. What’s scary is for there to be no love.”

“How could you be so sure I can’t give the child love?” Elliot retorted.

“I don’t want to argue about this with you,” Avery said, then pestered once again, “Give me your answer. If you can’t answer me, then I’ll take it that you disagree.”

“Of course I disagree,” Elliot said as his hot breath gushed onto Avery’s cheeks.

“Even so, what can I do? There are plenty of things I can’t change.”

“You don’t need to suffer. If the baby is willing to acknowledge you as his father, then I won’t get in the way,” Avery said.

Elliot let out a cold chuckle and said, “You know that’s impossible.”

Hayden hated him to the core. If Hayden refused to acknowledge him, then he would convince the other two children to do the same.

“Do you need the baby to call you ‘Dad’ for you to carry out your fatherly duties?” Avery mocked.

“A lot of times, there’s no such thing as a so-called dead end. If the road is cut off, can’t you just build a new bridge?”

Her words stunned Elliot.

In the living room, Mike glanced at the time once they finished their tea.

“It’s been an hour. What are they talking about? Are they still not done yet?”

Jun yawned, then said, “It’s quiet. I wonder if they’re asleep.”

Tammy and Mike simultaneously shot a cold glare at him.

“Aren’t you guys tired? I’m beat...” Jun got up from the couch and stood Tammy up.

“Let’s go home, dear. You can just ask Avery in private if you want to get the scoop. There’s no need to wait around here.”

Once they left, Eric also got up.

“I’ll take you!” Mike said as he stood up.

“Okay. Thanks a lot for everything, Eric,” Mike said gratefully.

“It was all Layla’s doing.”

“Don’t argue with me. Everyone is well aware of the situation.” Mike patted Eric on the shoulder and said, “Come over more often if you have time.”

“Sure.”

Once Eric left, Mike went upstairs.

He first walked over to the master bedroom and tried to eavesdrop through the door.

In the end, he didn’t hear a thing! It was as if Elliot and Avery really were asleep.

In the master bedroom, Avery was scrolling through her phone after a shower. The sounds of water splashing coming from the bathroom was Elliot taking a shower inside.

He gave up custody of the baby, and was given permission to stay the night. Avery replied to Mike and Tammy’s text messages. She was about to check the news when the bathroom door burst open, and Elliot stormed over to her with a towel wrapped around his waist.

A dangerous aura and hot steam filled the air.

Avery put down her phone, then nervously warned him, “I’m in my third trimester. I can’t sleep with you.”

Chapter 682

Elliot strode over to the side of the bed, then loomed over Avery and said, "I can settle my own needs."

Avery was instantly relieved and the tightness in her chest loosened.

"Why won't you go home, then?"

Two people squeezed together in bed would be less comfortable than sleeping alone.

"I don't feel like it." Elliot sat down on the edge of the bed as his eyes landed on Avery's body.

"This lesson was very memorable."

This kind of thing would not have happened if he knew what every part of her body looked like.

Avery did not guess his thoughts, so she said calmly, "It's in the past."

"I want to truly learn my lesson, though." Elliot's eyes darkened as he said,

"Ben told me that the woman in the video said I couldn't satisfy you. I should've realized it then. When have I never satisfied you? When have I never given into your needs? I was careless."

"You're not careless. It's just your vulnerable masculine pride at work," Avery mocked.

"So what if I said you can't satisfy me?"

Elliot gazed at her provocative little face, and he was calm as he said, "You're right. It was my pride at work. In order to prevent anything similar from happening again, I need to familiarize myself with your body."

Avery was taken aback. She felt like she was on fire and she fidgeted nervously.

Elliot held her leg down and said, "Don't move. Our son will roll around every time you move.”

Avery was silent.

“Is my request going too far?” he said as his hand pulled up her nightgown.

“Even so, you’ll just have to bear with it. I also put up with your unreasonable request.”

Avery could tell that he was doing this on purpose.

He was upset that she wanted to take away the custody of their child, so he was doing this to humiliate her.

“Ha! Does he think he can humiliate me into breaking down?” she thought.

Avery lay down peacefully, then picked up her phone and saw the text messages from Tammy.

Tammy: [He can’t do anything to do since you’re in your third trimester!

Hahaha!]

Avery sneakily took a photo of Elliot at that moment and sent it to Tammy.

Avery: [He’s observing me.]

Tammy: [Pfft! Hahahaha! This is killing me! How is he such an idiot in private?

He’s completely different from what I imagined!]

Avery: [Did you think he was a god? He’s just like all the other normal men in the world. He’s got his own daily routine, too...]

Tammy: [I know! I just view him through gold-colored glasses ! Nobody asked him to be so rich!]

Avery: [How are you so two-faced? You’re not usually like this when you see him.]

Tammy: [That’s because money can’t solve everything!]

Avery: [Did you guys make it home?]

Tammy: [Yeah. Jun’s in the shower and I’m picking out his pajamas for him.]

Avery: [Okay. Get some rest.]

Tammy: [You two should get some rest, too! Hahaha!]

Avery exited the messaging app and glanced at Elliot. Their eyes met at that moment.

She had no idea when he started looking at her.

“Are you texting Tammy?” Elliot sat down next to her, then pulled the covers up over her.

“It’s none of your business.” Avery put her phone down, then snuggled into the covers and snapped, “Are you done looking?”

Elliot did not really look at the other parts of her body because his eyes were drawn to her belly.

In his memory, her belly was flat.

However, now that it was protruding so much with the baby, he wondered if she was in pain.

“It’s pretty tough being pregnant, isn’t it?” he asked.

“You want to give it a try?” Avery teased as she watched his handsome face.

“How about you make an investment for me to do some research and see if men can end up being pregnant in the future.”

“Do you have to take a jab at me?” Elliot frowned.

“Not really. I wouldn’t do that if you don’t talk.”

Elliot reached out and turned off the lights.

The room instantly fell into darkness.

Avery’s body stiffened, and the earlier wilful arrogance vanished from her voice as she said, “Can’t you give me a heads up before turning the lights off?”

“Didn’t you say I shouldn’t talk?” Elliot retorted.

“Was that what I meant?” Avery asked.

“It was,” Elliot said without question.

“I think you came over just to pick a fight with me.” Avery lifted her leg and kicked him on the side.

“Don’t stick so close to me.”

“I’m about to fall off the bed,” Elliot protested in a muffled voice.

Avery sat up and reached out to feel around the space next to him.

Elliot pulled her into his arms and said, “I’ll give you everything you want, Avery. What else do you want? Tell me...”

“I don’t want anything else.” Avery felt the heat from his body. She struggled to escape his clutches, but Elliot hugged her tightly and refused to let go.

“I want to hug you to sleep.” He gently lay her down on the bed, then croaked, “Avery, as long as you and the baby are healthy, I won’t ask for anything else.”

“Is that so?” Avery’s body heated up as her heart began to race. “Did you become more thick skinned after you turned the lights off?”

Elliot turned the lights back on.

Avery gazed in stunned silence at his handsome face. There was no hint of jest in his deep, black eyes.

“You and the baby need to be healthy,” Elliot said, repeating his earlier words.

Avery’s cheeks flushed. She lowered her gaze and said, “Got it. Turn the lights off and go to sleep.”

Elliot shut the lights, and his long arms pulled her back into his embrace.

When Avery woke up the next morning, Elliot sat up along with her.

“It’s only seven thirty in the morning,” she said.

“Get some more sleep.”

“I’m not tired.” Elliot reached out to pick up his phone from the nightstand, then called his bodyguard.

He had no clothes to wear, so he had to get the bodyguard to bring them to him.

Someone knocked on the bedroom door soon after the call ended.

Avery walked over to open the door, and saw the bodyguard standing right on the other side holding clothes and toiletries.

“Did you already bring these last night?” she asked.

“Yes, ma’am. I went back to the mansion to get them when I saw that Mr. Foster was staying the night.”

Avery was moved to speechlessness by his professionalism.

After breakfast, Elliot followed Avery out.

She wanted to buy a maternity kit and baby products in preparation for the baby’s arrival.

Elliot insisted on going with her after hearing about it.

Avery had made a list on her phone of the things she needed to buy.

At this moment, her phone was in Elliot’s hands, and he was looking at it with an unusually serious expression on his face.

“Did you make this list overnight after getting custody of the baby?” He saw that the list was made at two in the morning.

Embarrassed, Avery took her phone back and said, “I couldn’t really sleep last night. I remembered that I hadn’t prepared these things yet, so I just simply made a list.”

“Is it because you’re too excited?” As Elliot exposed her, an idea popped into his head.

“When the baby’s born, I’m moving into your house and living with you.”

Avery’s brows shot up in surprise as if she did not understand a word he was saying.

“The baby isn’t yours alone. I have the right to take care of him, too.” Elliot’s Adam’s apple bobbed in his throat. He looked resigned as he said, “Since you won’t let me take him away, I’ll just have to move in and raise him with you.”

Avery was distressed.

She did not want this, but she did not want to let him raise the baby by himself even more.

“If you insist, then let’s give it a try!”

“Okay.”

Once they reached an agreement, they began shopping.

Photos of Avery and Elliot shopping were quickly sent to Chelsea’s phone. As she stared at their loving photos, her face gradually turned ominous.

Chapter 684

Chelsea felt like something rammed into her heart and was about to break it into pieces!

Although Avery was proven innocent, how could they reconcile just in one night?

Was Elliot the one who went to see Avery himself?

Was it because he cared about the baby, or was it because he cared about her?

Chelsea was too afraid to guess.

She felt ridiculed and hurt. She felt like she spent all these years living like an idiot.

She no longer held any hope of being with Elliot, but she did not want to see any other woman have him either. She found Wanda's number and dialed it.

"Did you find the people you were supposed to help me find?"

"Do you want to act now?" Wanda asked. "Do you have a plan?"

"Just find the people I need. You don't have to care about anything else," Chelsea responded.

"I can't take this for another second!"

"Okay, let me make some calls. I'll get back to you later," Wanda said, then warned, "I'm only responsible for getting the right people for you. I won't get involved in anything else. I won't confess if anything goes wrong on your side."

"Understood."

After she hung up the phone, Chelsea got up from her seat and prepared to leave the office.

At that moment, Ben opened the door and walked in.

Chelsea felt slightly guilty when she saw him, but it did not show on her face.

"Let's talk, Chelsea." Ben closed the door behind him, then went straight to the point and said, "The woman that impersonated Avery Tate was your cousin, Nora, right?"

"How's that possible?" Chelsea denied.

"Nora's not that kind of girl."

"Are you still going to treat us all like a bunch of fools at this point, Chelsea?"

Ben clenched his fists.

"When you made me go to that meeting with you that day, I just happened to hear the impersonated voice... It was too much of a coincidence! Do you think Elliot won't suspect you?"

“So what if he does? Does he have evidence that Nora was behind it? Even if he does, it would prove that Nora did it. What does that have to do with me?”

Chelsea shoved Ben aside, then said, “Investigate Nora if you suspect her! She’s just my cousin. You can’t drag me into it if she messes up, right?”

Then, she strode toward the door.

Ben grabbed onto her arm, then roared, “Chelsea! Stop repeating the same mistakes! If Elliot gets something on you again, you won’t be able to come back to Sterling Group. If you don’t think that’s a big deal, then you might as well just leave now! At least you would still have some dignity left!”

“Ben, you know what kind of person I am. Why would you say something so hurtful?” Chelsea shook her head.

“We don’t know who’s going to get the last laugh just yet!”

Then, she stormed out of the room in her stilettos.

Ben watched her slender back and let out an exhausted sigh.

She was a ruthless snake, but it was the same ruthlessness that Ben admired so much about her.

When Chelsea walked out of the office, her phone rang.

She thought it was Wanda calling, so she stopped in her tracks. She pulled out her phone and realized it was a phone call from someone unexpected. She hesitated for a few seconds, then answered the call.

At the mall, Elliot and Avery had shopped the entire morning. At this moment, the two were about to have lunch at a nearby restaurant.

The maternity kit and things for the newborn were already bought.

After they settled those things, Elliot bought a bunch of other stuff for Avery.

There were clothes, shoes, bags, jewelry...

Avery naturally refused. She was not used to having such an intimate relationship with him.

It was as if they were dating.

However, Elliot still bought everything despite Avery's rejection.

Once he was done shopping, the driver stuffed all the bags into the car and was going to send them all back to her house anyway.

Avery's refusal was completely ineffective.

After they took their seats in the restaurant, she ordered her food, then handed the menu to Elliot and asked, "Have you decided what to name the baby, Elliot?"

Chapter 685

"I haven't. Did you have anything in mind?" Elliot asked.

Avery's heart tightened in her chest, and she hesitantly said, "Rowan Tate."

Elliot put down the menu. His hawk-like eyes bore into her as he said, "Are you serious?"

"Both Hayden and Layla have my last name. The child would be confused if he had a different last name." Avery's cheeks flushed as she shared her thoughts.

"Of course, I would respect your opinion."

"If you're worried that the baby would be confused, then you could just change Hayden and Layla's last name. I don't mind them taking my last name."

Elliot's response was so casual that it almost felt like he was joking. He ordered his food, then handed the menu to the waiter.

The waiter confirmed their order, then walked away.

"Since you don't agree, then let's just name him Rowan Foster!" Avery compromised.

She was already happy enough that she got custody of the baby.

"I didn't say I disagree." Elliot raised his brows and looked at her with fascination.

"Let the baby take your last name if you want to!"

"Are you serious, or are you teasing me?" Avery could not tell what he was really thinking.

She would be fine if he was being sullen and savage. She was used to seeing him angry.

Instead, Elliot was half smiling and his eyes were cold. His expression was enigmatic and hard to put one's finger on.

It was slightly terrifying.

"I don't like my last name." Elliot pondered for a moment, then said, "I don't have a choice, though."

Avery did not expect him to say that.

She had known him long enough to assume that she knew him well, but he felt like a stranger at that moment.

"You've never mentioned your father before. Did you have a bad relationship with him?" she guessed.

"Yes." Elliot's eyes darkened as he held back his temper. He looked at Avery and said, "Let the baby take your last name! We don't need to discuss this further."

His tone sounded calm, but Avery could feel his patience running out. He was trying his best to endure. One wrong move and he would turn into a monster. Her mood suddenly turned sour.

She was filled with an indescribable sense of helplessness.

He fought for nothing and could give her everything. He looked carefree, but his heart was heavily shackled.

That weekend, Cole asked Nora out to meet.

Nora was abandoned and thrown aside after Avery was cleared of the video scandal.

Cole called her to say that he had a gift for her. She did not overthink it and came out to meet him.

“Open it up, Nora.” Cole handed a large paper bag to her.

Nora opened the bag with an expression filled with anticipation and saw an Armes bag.

“There’s a skirt dress in here, too?” She put the bag away and held the dress.

“Oh? I think I’ve seen Avery Tate wear this before.”

“That’s right. She’s got the exact same one. It’s not cheap! I was sure you’d look more beautiful than her in it, so I bought it,” Cole cooed. “Why don’t you try it on now?”

Nora’s vanity was greatly satisfied by his praises. She felt like she was walking on air. She went to the bathroom to change into the dress, then reappeared in front of Cole.

“You’re beautiful, Nora! You’re even more beautiful than that big-bellied Avery Tate! She looks like a servant compared to you! Come on, I’ll take you out for a feast!” Cole put his arm around her and walked toward a restaurant.

When the person in black who was lurking outside the restaurant saw them, their menacing eyes instantly lit up!

Chapter 686

In the master bedroom of the Starry River Villa, Avery was tidying up the baby’s clothes.

Tammy was sitting leisurely next to her and watching her busy away.

“Do you seriously plan to raise the baby yourself, Avery? That would be exhausting!”

Avery folded each piece of clothing one by one, and said gently, "That's true. My mother was the one who helped me with the kids before. I've never really had to go through that kind of exhaustion."

"That's right. Your mother's gone, and I bet you wouldn't feel secure leaving the baby with the nanny," Tammy said.

"You said Elliot would move in then. Is that for real?"

"That's what he said." Avery placed the clothes in the closet, then said, "I'll let him be then."

"If that's the case, then how would that be different from a normal married couple?!" Tammy exclaimed, then mocked, "Oh, I guess there is a difference. The difference is that he's moving into your house and not the other way around."

The mention of Elliot made Avery suddenly realize that he had not contacted her in a few days.

"I think you're incredible, Avery. You actually got all three of your kids to take your last name." Tammy sighed.

"If I have kids, they'll have to take Jun's last name. I might be an only daughter, but Jun's situation is even more extreme. He's the only son in three generations of the Hertz family... What can I say to that? My parents have nothing to say either!"

Avery's heart sank, and she said softly, "Men should care quite a lot about their children taking their last name, right?"

"You bet! There's only one reason why Elliot would agree to let the baby take your last name, and that's because he loves you. I can't think of any other reason."

"He said he doesn't like his last name."

“Why won’t he change it, then? His parents are gone. He could totally just change his last name if he hated it! Not doing that is proof that he doesn’t hate it that much,” Tammy hypothesized.

“He hasn’t come looking for me for the past few days. Could it be because of this?” Avery could not help but overthink “It’s possible. He might say that he’s willing to let the baby take your last name, but he probably cares about it a lot. He just feels bad about fighting over it with you,” Tammy continued to theorize.

“How about you just go ahead and let the baby take his last name?”

Avery nodded and said, “We’ll talk about it when the baby’s born. It’s still early now.”

“Haha! Give him a surprise, then,” Tammy said, then she stroked Avery’s long hair and asked, “Are you really willing to cut such beautiful hair?”

“It’d be more convenient.” Avery planned to cut her hair short.

“Otherwise, postnatal recovery would be a hassle.”

“You should get a few more nannies to serve you!” Tammy said.

“If I were you, I’d hire ten nannies and have them follow me around all day.” ..

Avery could not hold back her laughter.

“You could hire ten nannies right now, too.”

“I’m not pregnant yet, am I? I’ll really hire ten nannies when I get pregnant,”

Tammy said seriously.

“No wonder Elliot wants to move in. Things would be too hard for you if he didn’t get involved.”

“It’s not as bad as you make it sound.” Avery finished tidying up, then dragged Tammy downstairs.

“Are you hungry? Let’s go out and eat!”

“Sure! I know a new place for barbecue. They’ve got really good ice cream there.” Tammy was greatly delighted with the subject of food.

“That’s true. I’m a little scared of taking anything too cold, but I can eat meat.”

The two chatted away as they left the house.

On the other side, Cole had ordered a table of delicious food and a bottle of vintage red wine. He continued singing Nora’s praises to her as he inspected their surroundings from the corner of his eye.

When he saw the black figure charging toward them, he picked up his napkin and dabbed at the corner of his lips.

The black figure charged over to Nora’s side, then splashed a bottle of liquid at Nora’s face!

“Ah!” Nora cried out in agony as she covered her face with her hands.

The figure in black escaped the scene during the chaos.

“Nora! Are you okay?!” Cole put down his napkin and hurried over to Nora’s side.

Chapter 687

Cole could clearly see that the areas on Nora’s face that the liquid had touched were turning red and festering

He took a few steps back in fear, then stammered, “Don’t be scared, Nora! I’ll... I’ll call an ambulance right away!”

The other customers in the restaurant scurried away in horror, and the restaurant’s staff hurried over to check on the situation.

Their faces turned pale with terror when they saw Nora’s face.

Nora’s face was covered in tears from the pain. Through her vision blurred by tears, she saw the fear in the eyes that were focused on her. She removed her trembling hands from her face and looked at them...

There was blood... There was also what looked like pieces of flesh...

As if she had gone insane, she let out a blood-curdling scream.

Avery was eating ice cream when she got Cole's phone call.

The restaurant's food was great, and their ice cream was even better.

Avery always watched what she ate, but the ice cream was so good that she could not help but take a few more bites.

"It's horrifying, Avery! My entire body is shaking! I'm sure I'll have nightmares tonight!" Cole's voice was frightened on the other end of the line.

"If the person sitting in front of me just now was you... I wonder what you would do."

Avery's hands tightened around her phone.

"What happened? Don't tell me... Someone's dead?"

Tammy's eyes shot up to her in alertness when she heard Avery's words.

Over the phone, Cole took a sharp breath, then said, "It's not that, but I think this is even scarier. Nora was disfigured! All it took was a few minutes for her face to be completely disfigured!"

Avery felt a strange stinging sensation on her face.

It was not that she felt bad for Nora, but she was astonished at Chelsea's overly cruel tactics!

"Chelsea is terrifying! You should watch your back from now on, Avery! Don't say I didn't warn you!" Cole was gasping for breath, then added, "Nora's already been sent to the hospital. I need to go give a statement at the police station now. I'm guessing Chelsea will come looking for me once I'm done."

"You're Elliot Foster's nephew. She won't do anything to you," Avery said calmly.

"I'm not afraid of her. I just feel disgusted. Please don't get me to do anything like this ever again, Avery.” Cole was traumatized.

“There won’t be a next time,” Avery said.

She ended the call, then put her phone down and quickly composed herself.

“What’s going on, Avery?” Tammy asked.

“Who called you? What was that about someone being dead? What happened?”

“Nora was disfigured.” Avery picked up her glass of water and took a sip.

“I set it up. Chelsea fell into her own trap this time.”

Chelsea was the one who brought Nora back. Now, she was destroying her with her own hands.

How entertaining!

When Chelsea finds out that the one that got disfigured was not Avery, but Nora, she would probably lose her mind with rage.

When Tammy heard about the setup, she was shocked beyond words.

“Chelsea Tierney sure is scary! You should bring a few more bodyguards with you when you leave the house from now on, Avery. Don’t simply let strangers get close to you!”

“I will,” Avery responded.

“Did she think that Elliot would want her if became disfigured? What a joke!”

Tammy mocked.

“Elliot would definitely get rid of her once he finds out about this.”

“She won’t admit she was the one who orchestrated it. Cole could prove it was her, but Elliot’s trust in Cole is in the negative.”

Tammy let out a heavy sigh, then said, “No matter what, nobody can impersonate you and ruin your reputation now! This was an amazing move, Avery!”

Avery pursed her lips. She had lost her appetite. At that moment, the phone on the table suddenly rang.

Chapter 688

When Avery glanced at her phone, her heart skipped a beat. Then, she answered the call.

“Avery!” Elliot’s roaring voice penetrated through the phone.

Avery was taken aback, then asked, “What’s wrong?”

“You’re alright?” It was as if he was surprised to hear her voice. “You’re alright, Avery!”

“I’m fine. Were you hoping something happened to me?” Avery teased.

“Who told you I wasn’t alright?”

“Someone saw you at a restaurant and said you were in trouble.” Elliot’s voice returned to its usual calm.

“It’s a good thing it wasn’t you.”

“Oh. If that’s the case, the woman must look a lot like me... Could she have been Nora?” Avery deliberately said this.

Elliot was not interested in this at all. “I don’t care who it was, as long as it wasn’t you.”

Avery responded.

“Where are you right now?” Elliot asked after two seconds of the silence.

“I’m eating out with Tammy.”

“Did you bring the bodyguard?” he pestered.

“I did,” Avery said as she glanced at the bodyguard standing nearby.

“Go home once you’re done eating.”

“I’m going for a haircut later. I already made an appointment.” She was not going to change her schedule because of this.

"I'll be fine."

"Send me the salon's address," Elliot said after a moment's consideration.

Avery hung up the phone and sent him the address to the hair salon.

At the police station, Cole strode out of the building after giving his statement.

A tall woman was standing by his car. It was Chelsea Tierney.

Cole's expression instantly turned anxious. He glanced around him, then hurried over.

"What are you doing here, Chelsea?" he asked as he arrived in front of her.

"This is the police station. Don't do anything rash."

Chelsea glared coldly at him and said, "Since you're afraid of me, then why did you set me up?"

"I didn't! How could I possibly do that? I didn't tell my uncle about us working together!"

Cole said with an innocent expression on his face.

"Do you take me for a fool?! I was wondering why you suddenly looked for her the other day... Did Avery Tate make you come to hook me in?" Chelsea gritted her teeth, "This was all Avery Tate's plan, wasn't it?!"

"Why are you getting so worked up, Chelsea?" Cole teased as he calmed down.

"Did you get too used to being treated like a princess? You can mess with others, but they can't do the same to you? You and Nora made plan after plan to set up Avery. It's a blessing that she hasn't hired someone to assassinate you both! Besides, none of this would've happened if you didn't hold ill will against her!"

When Cole called Chelsea the other day, he had told her that he was short on money and wanted to work with her.

The plan was for Cole to coax Avery into coming out, and Chelsea would pay him.

Chelsea had agreed to this without much consideration. She did not expect for the woman that Cole met up with to be Nora instead of Avery.

The man in black that she hired could not differentiate the slight differences between Avery and Nora, so he attacked right away!

Now that tragedy had struck, it was too late for remorse.

Avery's move was despicable!

"This is between you and Avery, Chelsea. If you're really that mad, go and look for her. I won't get involved in any of your affairs from now on, so please don't trouble me!" Cole wiped himself clean of the drama, then got into his car. Chelsea clenched her fists as she held back tears. She was not going to give up this easily!

Half an hour later, Elliot received a call from Chelsea.

"Elliot! My cousin was disfigured! She said Avery Tate did it," Chelsea sobbed.

"I knew she suspected Nora of impersonating her, but how could she do this when she could not find any proof? She's completely ruined Nora's life!"

At that moment, Elliot was with Avery at the hair salon.

Chapter 689

After hearing Chelsea's accusation, Elliot glanced at Avery.

She was in the middle of telling the hair stylist the length she wanted to be cut off.

"I suggest you file a police report immediately and let them handle it." He walked out of the salon with his phone and said in a low and ominous voice, "So what if Avery actually did it? If I were her, I'd be a lot more cruel."

Chelsea felt lightheaded.

He did not expect this kind of answer from Elliot.

“For now, I don’t have evidence to prove that the person who impersonated Avery was your cousin, but that doesn’t mean I don’t know who was behind it,” Elliot roared as he changed the subject.

“I won’t show you any mercy once I have proof, Chelsea.”

Forget about disfigurement, he would not feel bad even if Nora was dead!

The way he saw it, even if Nora died a hundred deaths, it would still not becd enough!

Chelsea hung up the phone out of fear. She might have really messed up this time! She recalled Ben’s warning. She actually was gullible enough to think that she understood Elliot more than Ben did.

Elliot looked like the ruthless man he used to be, but he was a completely different man when it came to Avery Tate.

Once Avery got her haircut, Elliot took her home. Her hair was now shoulder length. It was not long, but it was not considered too short either.

Elliot could not help but glance at her a few more times.

“What have you been busy with the past week?” Avery asked, breaking the silence.

“With work.” His deep set eyes landed on her face.

“I’ll be busy moving forward, too.”

Avery’s face dropped as a hint of disappointment flashed across her eyes.

“I want to finish up my work so I can stay with you while we wait for the baby’s due date.” Elliot revealed his plans.

“I should be able to take a break after a month.”

Avery’s cheeks flushed a scarlet red.

The reason why he did not look for her in the past few days was not because he was upset about the baby's last name, but because he wanted to quickly finish up his work so he could take a vacation.

She was the one who was being narrow minded.

"I was the one who set up Nora's disfigurement," she said honestly.

"She had it coming." Elliot held Avery's hand in his.

"Stay at home and rest from now on Don't go to crowded places. If anything happens, not only would that put the baby in danger, you will get hurt, too."

"Can't you wish for the best for me?" Avery frowned.

"I hope for the best for you and the baby more than anybody, but I've been having nightmares lately."

"Dreams are the complete opposite of reality." Avery tried to help him relax.

"I'll get really bored if I stay at home every day."

"I'll take you on a trip once I'm done with work."

"I'm afraid you might not have the energy to run around once you're done with work." Avery pondered for a moment, then decided to compromise and let him work in peace.

"I'll stay home as much as I can. It won't be long until the baby's due date anyway."

"Okay. You could invite your friends over if you get bored."

"Got it."

Once she was home, Avery had barely settled in her seat when the nanny brought over a bowl of chicken soup for her.

"Would you like a bowl, Mr. Foster?" asked the nanny with a smile.

Elliot nodded his head.

At that moment, Hayden suddenly barged into his line of vision.

By the time he properly looked over, Hayden had already returned to his room.

“Didn’t Hayden go to school today?” he asked.

“He said he was tired and wanted to rest at home for a while.” Avery stared at him, then said solemnly, “Please keep your opinions to yourself.”

Chapter 690

Elliot felt that Avery was overreacting, so he sat down next to her.

When the nanny came over with the bowl of soup, she saw that their eyes were glued on each other. She quickly placed the soup on the table and dismissed herself.

“If he really is tired, then he can rest at home for as long as he wants. I have no opinion.” Elliot was worried that Hayden might hear him, so he lowered his voice and said, “It’s been a month since school started. Hasn’t he had enough rest after staying home for a month?”

“I’ll go talk to him later.” Avery picked up her bowl of soup and ate a spoonful of it.

“He might not be tired, but hiding something from you instead.” Elliot took the spoon out of her hand, then continued, “Your son is more complicated than you think.

Avery wanted to snatch the spoon back, but Elliot had already picked up a spoonful of soup and sent it to her lips.

“I don’t want you to feed me.” She got the spoon back with reddened cheeks.

“I called his teacher and asked about it. She told me that he gets along very well with his schoolmates. Everything was normal during summer camp, too.”

“He could be exposed to other things besides his schoolmates.” Elliot was sure about his guess.

“Besides, he wouldn’t stay at home for a whole month if nothing was wrong ated school.”

Avery did not suspect anything at first, but Elliot’s words instantly filled her with anxiety.

“Finish your soup first.” Elliot picked up his own bowl of soup and casually took a sip.

“You might not get anything out of him if you asked him directly. You’ll have to ask Mike.”

“I got it. I’ll ask Mike when he gets back,” Avery said softly as she finished her soup.

“We’re speaking very softly. Someone might think we’re plotting something.”

“Hayden came out for a second but went back to his room when he saw me,”

Elliot continued to say softly

“Oh... How about...”

“How about I go and talk to him?” He cut Avery off mid sentence.

“If I don’t settle the grudge between us, we’ll have more problems when I move in.”

Avery raised her brows and looked directly into Elliot’s burning eyes.

“Do you think you can settle the conflict between you two? Being confident is a good thing, but you’re obviously blindly confident in yourself.”

“What do you think I should do?” Elliot’s mood turned cold after being insulted.

“He won’t accept any of my good will and avoids me every time he sees me. I’m out of ideas.”

This matter was tricky. He did not blame Hayden. This was all because of his own doing.

“All you have to do moving forward is not make any mistakes.” Avery could not think of any good ideas, either.

“Hayden takes a while to warm up to people. You need to be more patient.”

“Okay.” Elliot took a mental note of her words.

“You haven’t taken an afternoon nap today. Do you want to go lie down now?”

“It’s a little late now. I’ll definitely not be able to sleep tonight if I take a nap now,” Avery said, then yawned.

“Whatever. I think I’ll go lie down for a bit anyway. Didn’t you say you were busy? Go ahead and work.”

“I’ll leave once you’re asleep.”

Elliot helped Avery up the stairs. He left about half an hour later.

Once Elliot was gone, Hayden walked out of his room. He already found the darknet website that Nora visited before. He used a fake identity to register as a member, then got to know one of the other members.

Through chatting with this member, he basically came to the conclusion that Nora was not a person, but a product.

This was because the function of this website was to provide its users with the type of person they wanted

Users could customize the person’s figure, looks and voice.

It sounded unbelievable.

Hayden would not believe it if he had not seen it with his own eyes,

That night, Avery went to have a heart-to-heart with Hayden.

Hayden spoke up first and said, “I’m going back to school next week, Mommy.”

Avery had prepared a long script in her mind, but her son brought the subject to a close before she could say any of it.

“Did you get enough rest?” Avery blinked.

“Yes, I did.”

Hayden handed over the information he found to Mike and left the rest of the investigation to him.

They wanted to catch Chelsea Tierney through the darknet website.

Nora was merely a pawn.

The one who was controlling her was definitely Chelsea.

Chapter 691

They needed evidence to bring down Chelsea.

“Sweetie, when Elliot Foster came over today, he said you hid in your room when you saw him,” Avery said worriedly. “This is your home. You don’t need to hide from him.”

“I wasn’t hiding,” Hayden said as his brows furrowed.

“I just don’t want to see him.”

“He’s planning on moving in to help with your little brother once he’s born.”

Avery was in a dilemma and let out a sigh.

“Would that make things hard on you?”

Hayden’s brows furrowed even more tightly as he said, “I’ll just ignore him, then!”

“Thanks, sweetie.” Avery patted her son’s shoulder with a pained expression on her face.

“I don’t want him to move in either, but he thinks your little brother will need his care. The baby doesn’t belong to just me, so I couldn’t refuse him.”

Hayden took a deep breath, then promised, “Don’t worry, Mommy. I won’t acknowledge him! Layla also won’t! I won’t let our little brother acknowledge him either!”

Avery wascd stunned.

What was the initial reason for having a heart-to-heart with Hayden again?

It was to mitigate the relationship between father and son, and not to deepen the conflict between them! It seemed like Hayden misunderstood her meaning. It was fine. They can settle in once Elliot moves in!

Two weeks later, Nora's bandages were removed from her face. She was being discharged from the hospital today.

Chelsea helped her over to the bathroom.

Nora felt like her legs turned heavy. She did not dare look in the mirror, However, Chelsea forced her to face her ruined face.

The moment Nora stood in front of the mirror and saw the hideous scars and twisted nose bridge on her face, she could not hold back her shrill cry of shock.

"Monster! Monster!"

She buried her face in her hands, but Chelsea did not let her cover her face.

"Avery Tate was the one who made your face this terrifying." Chelsea gritted her teeth and shoved Nora's face closer to the mirror.

"Look at how hideous you look right now. Nobody will ever love you again!

There's no longer any meaning to your life other than getting revenge on Avery Tate!"

Through reddened eyes, Nora mumbled softly, "Revenge..."

"That's right. Revenge." Chelsea said in her ear, "I'll give you one last chance.

If you succeed, I'll pay for you to get a new face. If you fail..."

"I'll definitely succeed! I won't keep this ugly face for the rest of my life!" Nora clenched her fists and cried, "I want a new face!"

Over at the Starry River Villa, Avery was looking through the calendar and discovered that she was exactly thirty weeks pregnant.

The baby would come to full term in another month.

Full term meant that the baby had reached a point in its development where it could be born at any time.

Mike had asked Avery the night before if she wanted to throw a baby shower. She was feeling a little excited, so she sent a text message to Elliot to ask for his opinion.

In the end, she mistakenly sent the text to Tammy.

Tammy immediately called her after receiving the text.

“Avery! Great minds really do think alike! I was just about to text you! I just got a positive pregnancy test! I might be pregnant!”

“Congratulations, Tammy!” Avery exclaimed happily.

“I’m so nervous right now! I haven’t thought about how to tell Jun about this!”

Tammy cried out in excitement.

“You’re thinking about throwing a party, right? Maybe I’ll wait until the party to tell him! I’m coming over to see you right now!”

Avery waited the entire afternoon for Tammy to arrive, but she never did.

When she dialed Tammy’s number, she received nothing but the cold sound of a prompt telling her that the phone was turned off.

Chapter 692

“Why’s her phone off?” Avery mumbled softly to herself, then walked out of the house.

“Are you going out, Avery?” When the nanny saw her on the move, she quickly followed behind her.

“Tammy said she was coming over but she’s still not here yet. Even if there’s traffic, she should be here by now.” Avery walked past the front gates and looked around.

The nanny comforted her and said, "Maybe she's gone to buy presents! She always brings all kinds of presents when she comes over."

The nanny's consoling words made Avery relax slightly.

"It's windy out here, Avery. Let's get back inside!" The nanny was worried that Avery would catch a cold.

"Mr. Foster especially asked me to take good care of you and not let you get sick."

"I stay at home every day now. I'm like a flower in a greenhouse. I'd get sick easier that way."

"You still shouldn't be out here in this wind!" The nanny helped Avery back into the house. "It's easy to get sick when the seasons change."

"Is lunch ready?" Avery asked.

"It is. How about you eat first? We don't know when Tammy's arriving yet!"

"I'll wait for a bit more." Avery wondered out loud, "She doesn't usually turn her phone off."

"Maybe it ran out of battery when she left the house."

"It's easy to charge your phone nowadays, though. You could find charging stations everywhere," Avery said.

"I'll wait for another thirty minutes. If she isn't here by then, I'll go look for her."

"How are you going to find her if she's out? You should just rest easy and wait at home. You can call her husband if she doesn't show up and ask him to look for her," said the nanny.

"Otherwise, you could also ask the driver to look around."

Avery knew that the nanny did not want to let her leave the house because of the pressure from Elliot.

The more cautiously they treat her, the more uneasy she felt.

“I’ll bring you a bowl of soup. I made corn chowder today.”

The nanny went into the kitchen to get her some soup.

Avery sat down on the couch and continued calling Tammy, but she still could not get through.

She ended up texting Jun to ask what he was doing.

Jun: [I’m at work! I’m extra busy at the end of the year! I heard Elliot’s going on vacation soon. Tammy will nag me again, then. Sigh.]

Avery: [I’ll leave you to it, then!]

Jun: [Is something up? You’re not just asking for fun, are you?]

Avery: [It’s nothing for now.]

She would contact him again if she still could not reach Tammy.

About half an hour later, a black sedan pulled up outside the front gates.

Avery heard the car and immediately walked out to take a look.

When the car doors opened, Wesley and Shea emerged.

Avery was extremely surprised to see them.

“Wesley, Shea, why didn’t you let me know you were coming over?” She strode over to welcome them.

“Avery! I made a cake and brought it over for you!” Shea held up a small cake and showed her.

“Wesley taught me how to make it.”

“You’re amazing, Shea. It looks even better than the ones they sell in bakeries !” Avery took over the cake as she genuinely praised Shea.

“Let me know how it tastes.” Shea held Avery’s hand with a face filled with excitement.

” Wesley said you can’t eat too much cake, so I made it smaller.”

“Okay. I’m sure it tastes great.”

Once they entered the living room, Avery opened up the cake box, cut a small slice of cake and tasted it.

“How is it?” Shea asked with a face filled with anticipation.

Chapter 693

“It’s really good. It’s not too sweet, so I can have more,” Avery praised as she took another bite.

“You’re getting more amazing every day, Shea. What else do you want to learn?”

“I want to learn to drive, but Big Brother won’t let me.” Shea’ brows furrowed as she pleaded, “Could you help me beg Big Brother, Avery?”

Avery lifted her gaze and turned to Wesley.

“Is this why you two came over today?”

Wesley shook his head and said, “Shea came to give you the cake. I don’t agree with her learning to drive either.”

Avery turned to Shea and asked, “Why do you want to learn to drive, Shea? Aren’t you scared it might be dangerous?”

“All of you know how to drive, so I want to learn, too. It won’t be dangerous as long as I don’t drive anywhere with too many people around.” Shea gazed at Avery with a pitiful expression and pleaded with her eyes.

At that moment, Avery’s phone rang.

She picked it up and saw that it was Elliot calling.

She showed her phone screen to Shea, then said, “I’ll talk to him about it, but there’s nothing I can do if he disagrees.”

Shea nodded with a big smile on her face.

Avery answered the phone and put it on speaker.

Elliot's voice instantly filled the room, "Have you had lunch, Avery?"

"Not yet... Tammy said she was coming to see me. I'm waiting for her." She cleared her throat, then said, "Shea wants to learn to drive. Why not let her try it out? You just have to tell her not to drive by herself."

"Is she at your place?" Elliot's voice turned stern.

"She is. She made me a cake." Avery ate another bite of the cake, then said, "It tastes amazing. You should try it when you get back."

"I'll be coming back tomorrow. Let's talk about it when I'm back." It was clear from his tone that he did not want to let Shea learn to drive.

"Sure," Avery said, then was about to hang up the phone.

"It should be half past one there right now. Go and have lunch first," Elliot said.

"Got it." She ended the call and put her phone down.

"It's no use even if I beg him, Shea."

She felt a little disappointed, but she was not angry.

"Wesley wouldn't let me learn to drive, either. You're the nicest to me, Avery."

"They won't let you learn because they're concerned for your safety. I haven't had lunch yet. Let's eat together!" Once Avery said that, the nanny immediately placed lunch on the table.

Time flew by, and it was two in the afternoon.

Wesley and Shea said their goodbyes.

"Shea has class in the afternoon. We'll come see you again another time. You need to get more rest now. Go to the hospital right away if you don't feel well."

"I will. Drive safe."

Once they left, Avery felt a sudden wave of fatigue as her eyelids grew heavy.

As she walked back toward the front door, she suddenly remembered that Tammy still had not arrived since telling her she was coming over! Her back broke into a cold sweat. She hurried into the living room, picked up her phone and called Tammy “Sorry. The number you have dialed is switched off. Please try again later.”

Why did Tammy have her phone turned off for so long? Could something have happened?

Avery called Jun without further hesitation.

“I can’t contact Tammy, Jun. She said she was coming over at eleven in the morning, but she still isn’t here yet. Her phone’s turned off,” Avery said, explaining the situation to Jun.

“She never turns her phone off!” Jun exclaimed in shock.

“Could she have lost her phone or something?”

“I think something’s weird, too. Even if she did lose her phone, she should be here by now,” Avery said.

“Did you agree to meet at eleven this morning?”

“That’s right. I texted you earlier because I couldn’t reach her on the phone. Wesley and Shea dropped by to see me just now and I forgot about it for a moment. When I tried calling her again, I still couldn’t get through.”

Jun’s brows furrowed tightly as an ominous feeling rose inside of him.

“I’ll call the house and ask.”

Chapter 694

Tammy was missing!

She disappeared after leaving the house at eleven that morning.

Jun was checking the surveillance cameras over at the traffic control department.

The cameras showed Tammy entering a mall in the city center. After she parked her car, she never exited the mall.

This meant that something happened when she was inside the mall.

The mall had countless surveillance cameras, and there were also a lot of blind spots.

Jun left the traffic control department and rushed to the mall's control room.

When he got Avery's phone call, he took a deep breath, then answered it.

"Tammy's car is still in the mall's parking lot. She went missing while she was in the mall."

"How could she just vanish like that?!" Avery took in a sharp breath.

She wanted to ask if Tammy could have been kidnapped, but she was too afraid to say it. Jun felt a lump in his throat.

"She must have been kidnapped! Back when I was hiring bodyguards, I wanted to hire a personal bodyguard for her. She said she doesn't work and sometimes spends all day at home, so she didn't need a bodyguard. I shouldn't have listened to her!"

Tammy was the heiress to Lynch Department Store. She did not take over her father's business, but his estate would definitely be left to her.

With her net worth, it was not a problem at all to get a bodyguard.

People always thought they were the exception when they were not in danger.

"Don't be upset, Jun. Since something happened to Tammy while she was in the mall, let's take a look at the mall's surveillance cameras!" Avery said and prepared to leave the house.

"I'll come over and check with you."

Jun was hurting, but he still had his reason.

“You don’t have to come, Avery. I can check the cameras myself. I’ll let you know right away if I find anything.”

At that moment, Mike walked over and took the bag out of Avery’s hand.

“Stay at home and wait! Wouldn’t it be even worse if something happened to you, too?”

Avery was frozen in place.

“It’s my fault... If I didn’t text Tammy, then she wouldn’t have decided to come see me at the last minute...” she mumbled softly. Then, her voice suddenly rose as she said, “Tammy’s pregnant. She’s pregnant!”

On the other end of the line, Jun exploded in shock as if he had taken a huge blow.

Tammy was pregnant?

“Jun! Hurry up and find Tammy! You have to find her!” Avery was yelling uncontrollably.

” She told me she’s pregnant! Find her right now!”

“I got it! I got it!” Jun let out a raging roar, then hung up the phone.

Avery stood at the doorway as her chest rose and fell rapidly.

Mike saw her flushed face and distressed breathing, and immediately went up to hold her.

“Keep it together, Avery! We’ll find Tammy. Sit on the couch and catch your breath first!”

“It must’ve been Chelsea Tierney... I must’ve been her!” Avery clenched her fists tightly. She could not calm down at all.

“I want to go find Chelsea Tierney!”

Chelsea lost her bargaining chip against Avery when Nora was disfigured.

With Chelsea’s tough character, she definitely would not let this go easily.

Avery had stayed home recently and never left the house, so Chelsea had no way of getting to her.

She must have switched her target to Tammy! That must be it!

When Mike saw that Avery was about to rush out, he quickly picked her up and carried her over to the couch.

“Avery Tate! Calm yourself down! It’s night out. Are you thinking of going over to Chelsea Tierney’s house now? Do you think she would confess? It’d be a waste of time!” Mike sat Avery down on the couch, then loomed over her and said, “If you can’t calm down, then call Elliot Foster! Let him step up!”

“What can he do?! He’s abroad right now!” Avery’s emotions were in a frenzy and she shoved Mike aside.

“If we don’t rescue Tammy tonight, I don’t want to imagine the consequences!” Zoe and Nora’s fates were the best examples!

Chapter 695

Chelsea was vicious and savage. Anyone who fell into her hands would not end up well, “... I’ll get Chad to get Ben to go find Chelsea Tierney!” There was no way Mike was letting Avery go see Chelsea.

“She wants nothing but for something bad to happen to you. Wouldn’t going to her now be looking for trouble for yourself?”

Mike’s voice echoed through the entire villa.

The expressions on Hayden and Layla’s faces turned sullen.

“Don’t go out, Mommy,” Hayden said in a deep voice

“Listen to Uncle Mike and Hayden, Mommy. Stay at home like a good girl!”

Layla begged softly as she held her mother’s hand.

The appearance of her children made reason return into Avery’s mind.

"I won't go out." She gave in and stood from the couch. "I'm going to take a shower."

She was so anxious that she felt like her heart was on fire. She wanted to do something, but her entire body felt heavy.

When she was anxious to leave the house earlier, the baby kept kicking her as if he knew something was happening.

Avery returned to her bedroom and shut the door. She leaned back powerlessly against the door and breathed deeply. Was there really nothing she could do?

If she were in trouble, Tammy would definitely come up with an idea to save her. She could not just sit at home like this...

Suddenly, Avery's phone rang and snapped her back to reality.

After she answered the call, Elliot's powerful voice came through the phone.

"Don't freak out, Avery. I've already sent people out to search for Tammy!

We'll find her even if we have to turn the entire city upside down!"

His words left her slightly breathless.

"I wanted to text you earlier, but ended up sending the message to Tammy instead. She only decided to come see me after she saw my text..."

"She was abducted, Avery. Even if they did not act today, they would do it tomorrow or the next day. This has nothing to do with you!" Elliot corrected Avery's erroneous thoughts.

"Why don't you think it's got anything to do with me?" Avery retorted hoarsely.

"Apart from Chelsea, I can't think of anyone else who would do this! Tammy would never have been abducted if she were not my best friend!"

"Ben's gone to look for Chelsea..."

"Do you think that would do anything?" Avery's eyes were cold, but her tone was colder.

“Do you think I don’t know the relationship between Ben and Chelsea? if I weren’t carrying your child right now, you wouldn’t even care about Tammy’s life or death at all!”

Elliot stayed silent for a few seconds and did not argue with her.

“I’m coming back right away. Wait for me.”

Avery took a deep breath, then hung up the phone. She dragged her heavy legs into the bathroom. She turned on the tap and washed her face.

The thought that Tammy might be getting tortured right now made Avery’s heart ache.

Her phone screen suddenly lit up. She glanced warily over at the phone and saw Tammy’s name flashing on the screen!

Avery thought she was dreaming! She quickly picked up the phone and answered the call.

Once the video call was connected, an unfamiliar environment popped up on the phone screen.

It was a dark storage room with a bunch of unbelievably dirty men in it. These men were watching with greedy eyes at a woman who was lying on the ground...

Tammy! The woman on the ground was Tammy!

“Tammy! Wake up, Tammy!” Avery shrieked at the top of her lungs. When she saw that Tammy did not move a muscle, her nails dug into the palm of her hands.

“Let go of Tammy! Let her go! I’ll give you anything you want!”

Chapter 696

What replied to her was endless silence.

The person who kidnapped Tammy seemed to want nothing from Avery. If not, they would not be silent.

Avery looked at the excited and restless men in the video. They were like a pack of wolves rushing toward Tammy. Avery's scalp felt numb. Her blood was boiling. Her body trembled uncontrollably!

A sense of desperation on the verge of death overwhelmed her. It was as if someone held a blunt knife and stabbed her over and over again!

Mike heard her hysterical shrieks and quickly ran over to her room! He rushed into her room and saw Avery bent forward while holding onto the door of the bathroom.

"Avery! Are you alright?" Mike ran over to help her.

Seeing how blue her face was, a bad feeling instantly arose in his heart.

"Are you going into labor? I'll send you to the hospital."

Mike wanted to lift her up, but Avery's body tensed. She spat a few words out with difficulty, "Call an ambulance..."

"Avery, don't frighten me! Stand there, don't move. I'll go get an ambulance!"

Mike said and quickly ran to look for his phone.

Soon after, the ambulance arrived.

Avery was sent into the ambulance. Mike followed them with another car. The two children stay at home. Mike had already called Chad to get him to come to take care of the children.

In fact, the children did not need to be taken care of. They were good children. They went to bed at night every night on their own. However, something had happened to Avery at that moment. They must be frightened. Mike could not take them along to the hospital, it would make things even messier that way.

"Hayden, is our little brother coming out soon?" Layla muttered.

Hayden looked at the dark skies outside with a cold expression. He said in a low voice, "Something has happened to Aunt Tammy."

Avery's hysterical shrieks were still ringing in his ears. Layla thought that Avery was about to go into labor, but Hayden knew that Avery was in so much pain because of Tammy.

"What happened to Aunt Tammy? Hayden, I don't want anything to happen to Aunt Tammy." Layla pouted rather disappointedly.

"Aunt Tammy has been taken away by bad people, but the police will rescue her." Hayden held Layla's hand and took her upstairs, returning to their room.

"In the future, don't just run around on your own. You have to take the bodyguard with you."

"Hayden, why are there so many bad people?" Layla sniffled sadly.

"There are not many bad people," Hayden explained, "It was always only that one person."

"Oh...will they be punished?"

"Yes."

Layla let out a sigh of relief and climbed into bed.

"Hayden, is our little brother coming out soon? When Mike called the doctor, I heard him saying."

Hayden stood by the side of the bed. His dark eyes had mixed emotions.

"Maybe, I don't know either."

"Hayden, hugs!" Layla was suddenly coquettish, "If our little brother comes out, you have to love me the most! You cannot love him more than me."

Hayden hugged Layla. "I will definitely love you the most."

When Chad rushed over, the kids had already turned off the light and gone to bed.

He went to the living area and called Mike. Mike answered the call. He asked, "How are the children?"

Chapter 697

"They went to bed, but Hayden is not asleep yet," Chad said, "I was afraid that I would disturb him, so I didn't talk to him."

"Oh, Hayden is quite mature, he understands a lot. He surely won't be able to sleep." Mike was standing outside the emergency room at that moment. His mind was a mess.

"Avery's mood affected the child. She might go into labor tonight."

"Wouldn't that be a premature delivery?" Chad furrowed his brows.

"Will the child be alright?"

"I'm not worried about that. I'm only worried about Avery. You didn't see how terrible she looked, yet she was still worried about Tammy..." Mike was pacing back and forth in the corridor.

"Give Ben a call, see how he is getting on with Chelsea."

If Tammy could not be rescued, even if Avery gave birth to the child, it would still weigh heavily on her mind.

"I'm guessing nothing has happened." Chad knew Chelsea too well.

"If Chelsea was the one that did it unless we placed the evidence in front of her, she would never admit it. Talking sense into her or playing the friendship card, would never work."

"Avery is adamant that Chelsea was the one who did it. What do you think?"

Mike asked.

"I can understand how Avery feels, but I don't dare to come to any rash conclusions," Chad said cautiously, "You said that child could be delivered tonight. Did you take the maternity kit over?"

"No,"

“Why don’t I send them over right now?” Chad said, “Get the bodyguard to keep watch at home. It should be fine.”

“Okay! The maternity kit is in Avery’s room. Go look for it.”

“Okay.”

In a high-end luxury condominium, Ben was looking at Chelsea seriously.

“Jun is my junior. He respects me a lot and I treat him like a younger brother.

Tammy is his wife, so I have always treated Tammy like my sister-in-law.”

“What is the point of you telling me all this? I am not interested in your relationship with them.” Chelsea brought two wine glasses over. She passed one to Ben.

“Don’t tell me you think that Tammy’s incident has something to do with me?”

“Chelsea, this thing better has nothing to do with you.” Ben’s gaze was sharp. He did not accept her wine.

“If it has anything to do with you, without mentioning Elliot not forgiving you, I won’t forgive you as well. If one does not have a bottom line, what difference is there from a wild animal?”

The word animal made the elegance of Chelsea’s face vanish.

“Why are you suspecting me? Just because I did one bad thing, so the other ninety-nine things were done by me?” Chelsea looked at Ben angrily. “Ben, since when have we become like that?”

“Ever since you brought Nora back. You have always been a smart person, but this move is extremely stupid,” Ben mocked, “If I were you, I would never have let my cousin do her face up to become like Avery. Don’t you feel uncomfortable just by looking at it?”

“She wants to make her face up to become like Avery, what does that have to do with me? That’s her life! It’s her choice! Do you think I could really instruct her as I wish! If I were that great, why can't I get the man that I want!"

Chelsea downed her red wine in one go. Her eyes were wet.

"He doesn't love you. No matter what you do, he will never love you! This is such a simple thing, why don't you understand?" Ben snatched the wine glass over from her and put them on the table.

"Chelsea, I'm warning you for the last time. If Tammy is in your hands, you better let her go soon! Don't risk your life just for a moment of showing off!"

Ben strode away Chelsea looked at the shut door. She smiled bitterly. Once she has started, there is no turning back anymore. Even if she knew how terrible the consequences were, she could not stop.

She was in pain every day, so how could she let Avery live happily?

At that hospital, after Chad sent the maternity kit over, Mike pulled him out of the ward.

"She is showing signs of premature labor. " The doctor got her to stay in the hospital to observe.

"Oh! My goodness! I thought she was really going to deliver!" Chad breathed heavily.

"She is in a terrible mood. The doctor gave her a sedative for her to sleep."

Mike furrowed his brows.

"Have we found Tammy yet?" Chad shook his head.

"Chelsea said that this has nothing to do with her."

Chapter 698

"You guessed it right. As long as there is no evidence, she will never admit to it," Mike said sarcastically.

"After all, nothing good can come out of admitting to it." Chad looked at the time.

“Why don’t you go and rest a bit?”

“Do you think I can fall asleep?” Mike glanced at the ward.

“Once she’s up, if Tammy is still not found, she will definitely lose it. The doctor has said that she can’t be too agitated right now, if not she will go into premature labor. She has already bled.”

“Bled?” Chad was stunned.

“Yes, bled. The doctor said that this is a sign of premature labor.” Mike crossed his hands on his waist.

“When is Elliot coming back?”

“He’ll reach by tomorrow morning at seven,” Chad said, “I hope that Avery can sleep until the next morning.”

“So, what, if she sleeps until the next morning? The main point is Tammy is missing. What if the people who kidnapped her had done something to her? The consequences are unimaginable. Think of Zoe. Then think of Nora. They were Chelsea’s doing.” Mike gritted his teeth.

“How could Tammy go through such torture?”

Chad’s eyes turned cold.

“I’ll go look for Jun.”

At the mall’s surveillance room. Jun has gone through an entire night of surveillance. He has looked at every exit multiple times, yet he has not seen Tammy leaving.

The mall has been swept from every corner, yet Tammy was nowhere to be found.

When Chad saw Jun, he saw Jun’s reddened eyes and utter sadness.

“Tammy is pregnant. She barely even had the time to tell me...” Jun said with tears flowing.

” Don’t look at her always talking so loudly, she’s especially timid. She must be extremely afraid right now! I really want to bear the pain for her! That bunch of bastards! Don’t let me catch them, if not I will chop them into pieces!”

“Tammy should still be in Avonsville. I asked the train stations and airports. No one has any news on Tammy.”

“Where she is right now is not the main point. The main point is whether those bunch of bastards bully her or not!” Jun turned around and wiped his tears.

“I didn’t protect her well enough. I’m always so busy working that I don’t spend much time with her. I should’ve hired a bodyguard for her.”

“Jun, don’t be too sad. Ben has already gone to warn Chelsea. Chelsea will not dare to hurt Tammy,” Chad said, meaning he was already sure that Chelsea was the one who planned the kidnap

“It was Chelsea?” Jun clenched his fists tightly, rage burning in him.

Chad said, “Avery suspects that it is her.”

“I think that it’s her too! The things that she has done to Avery previously, it’s not something a normal person would do! She must have gone mad from jealousy, which was why she kept doing all these!” Jun said angrily, “She couldn’t find any other way to deal with Avery, so she went for the people around her! On top of that, Tammy has slapped her before, she must be loathing her!”

Chad said, “Mr. Foster will be back soon. Once he is back, he will surely help you look for Tammy.”

Jun took a deep breath and suppressed his heartbroken emotions. “Is Avery still alright?”

“She’s not too well. She’s beating herself up even more than you because he thinks that Chelsea was the one who did it. Tammy and Chelsea had no grudges, it was because of her they fought. She’s at the hospital right now, showing signs of premature labor.”

“She’s not in the wrong! The person who is in the wrong is that crazy woman!” Jun clenched his fist and punched the wall.

“If anything were to happen to Tammy, I’ll kill Chelsea!”

At four in the morning, Avery woke up in alarm.

When she got up, she looked around at the foreign environment. Her memories came back slowly to her. Tammy was missing. She did not know if there was any news about her at that moment.

Tammy furrowed her brows. She flipped the covers aside and got down from the bed. She anxiously walked over to the entrance and opened the door.

Mike appeared before her eyes.

“Why are you out of bed?” Mike said, surprised. He held her arms.

“Go back to bed and lie down. The doctor says you need bed rest.”

Avery shrugged his hand away, unwilling to cooperate.

“Is Tammy found already? How is she?” Avery’s eyes reddened. Her chest heaving quickly.

Chapter 699

Mike has long guessed that Avery would ask this one she was up.

Unless she passed out, if not she would not rest properly in bed.

“I haven’t heard any news yet, but don’t worry, the police are searching for her. She will definitely be found by daylight.” Mike assured her.

When Avery heard that there was no news yet, she fumbled and swayed listlessly, as if her soul has been sucked away.

“Avery, go to bed and lie down. What happens if you go into premature labor?” Mike carried her and placed her in bed.

“Your child is only eight months old. If you were to give birth to it now, although it will survive, it still has to be in an incubator. You’re a doctor, you should know that premature children get sick easily. Do you want to see your child suffer?”

Mike’s words caused her body to stiffen. She wanted to go look for Tammy, but she had to care for the child in her tummy too. She tried to control her own emotions, but she could not do it no matter how she tried.

Tears streamed down her face. Her fingers clenched the covers tightly.

Mike stood next to her by the bed, looking at how much pain she was in. He was heartbroken.

He wanted to comfort her, but Tammy was not found yet, no matter what he said was pointless. He could only sit next to her and wait with her silently.

That night was a very long one.

When it was almost dawn, Avery finally fell asleep. The door was suddenly pushed open. Chad brought breakfast and entered.

“You haven’t slept the entire night, right?” Chad measured him up.

“Have some breakfast then go back and rest! I’ll keep watch here. In an hour or so, Mr. Foster will be here.”

Mike held the cup of coffee. He furrowed his brow and asked, “Is Tammy still not found yet?”

“No. She is almost missing twenty-four hours already. I’m afraid things are not looking good, “ Chad said in a low voice.

“F*ck! If Avery knows about this, she is going to lose it.” Mike instantly lost his appetite.

“I’ll wait for Elliot to come before leaving. I’m afraid that if she suddenly wakes up and gets upset, you won't be able to help her."

Chad nodded.

"You're right."

An hour later, Elliot rushed to the hospital, looking worn down from traveling.

Once he entered the ward, Avery seemed to have sensed his presence. She immediately opened her eyes.

When Elliot saw her reddened and puffy eyes, it was as if he was being choked. He was so overwhelmed he felt suffocated.

"Avery, don't be sad." Elliot held her cold hands and said hoarsely, "I promise you that we will find Tammy before dark."

When Avery heard the word Tammy, she lost it. "Elliot, Tammy has been bullied with such cruel tactics! It's Chelsea. It must be her! Go and look for her right now!"

"Okay, I'll go look for her." Elliot saw her tears and he completely lost his senses.

"Wait for me here."

Outside the door, Chad received a call.

After the call, he saw Elliot coming out of the ward. He immediately went forward and reported to Elliot in a low voice, "Mr. Foster, we found Tammy. She has been raped. Her body suffered huge damage, also...she had a miscarriage."

Chad's voice was extremely soft, but Avery still heard him. She stood by the door, breathing heavily with a pained expression.

Then, her breathing got quicker!

"Avery! Are you alright!" Elliot was terrified. He picked her up. His palm on her lower half felt something hot, wet, and sticky...

“Go get the doctor!” Elliot barked and carried Avery into her ward. He carefully placed her on the bed. Avery’s pants were wet. Elliot looked at his palms. Thankfully it was not blood!

“Has my water broken...” Avery sobbed terribly. “Elliot, I’m sorry. I’m very sad. I can’t control myself...”

If her water has broken, the child has to be given birth immediately. Avery’s child was only eight months old. If the child was born at that moment, it was considered premature labor. Premature labor came with a series of complications.

She knew that she was late into her pregnancy, she should not be so upset, she should have controlled her emotions to ensure the child’s health, but she could not control herself.:

“Avery, don’t cry. Your water breaking is not a huge thing. We’ll just give birth to the child, that’s all.” Elliot took some tissues and wiped away her tears.

“Tammy has been located. She is not in any danger. Once you’ve given birth to your child, I’ll take you to see her.”

Avery choked up and responded.

Soon, the doctor arrived. Once the doctor checked up on her, they immediately pushed her into the operation theater.

Elliot looked at the shut operation theater doors. His heart constricted tightly.

“Mr. Foster, don’t worry. Avery and the child will be fine,” Chad comforted him.

Elliot swallowed his saliva. He said sternly, “It’s best if that was the case. If anything happens to her and the child, I’ll make sure that the culprit behind this incident will die together!”

Chad said, “Ben has gone to look for Chelsea. She denied that this was her doing.”

“Without any evidence, of course, she won’t admit it!” Elliot said coldly.

“Tammy’s body has evidence of the crime. If we investigate this, we will find evidence!”

They were discussing while Mike was yawning by the side. He had not slept for the entire night.

At that moment he could barely keep his eyes open.

Tammy has been found. Avery was going into labor. The worst stage has passed. He believed that modern medicine would ensure Avery’s and the child’s safety.

“I’ll go back to catch up on sleep.” Mike greeted them.

“When I get up, I’ll bring the children over.”

“Let me send you back! You’re not in a good shape right now. I’m afraid that you’ll get in an accident.” Chad was worried for Mike, so he left together with him.

Soon after they left, Wesley rushed over after hearing the news. Soon after he arrived, the child was born.

Because it was cesarean section labor, after the birth of the child, the surgery did not end there immediately.

The child was a premature baby. After birth, Elliot only managed to take one glance at the child before it was sent to the neonatal unit by the nurse.

The child was small. It was so small Elliot was heartbroken. He even doubted whether the child could survive.

Wesley saw Elliot’s wet eyes. He immediately comforted Elliot, “Eight months old premature babies usually won’t have any huge complications. Let it be in the incubator for a month or two and it will grow like a normal baby. Don’t worry.”

"What can I do?" Elliot muttered softly.

"Take good care of Avery," Wesley said, "Although Tammy has been found, the damage is done. You have to properly talk to Avery, be careful of postpartum depression."

Elliot nodded.

"A cesarean section is more damaging to the mother compared to natural birth. Don't let her leave the ward for at least two days after the surgery. No matter what, you have to let her body heal first," Wesley said, "She can only be discharged once the doctor says so."

After a while, the operation theater doors were open. Avery was pushed out and sent to the intensive care unit.

Chapter 701

Avery's emotions seemed much more stable than before.

Although she was still missing Tammy, because she had just given birth to a small human being, her outlook has changed a little. Her child in her was initially still doing well, but because of this accident, she has to give birth to it earlier.

When the nurse showed her the baby, she wanted to cry, but she could not cry out, as if her tears were frozen.

Looking at the small baby, Avery blamed herself.

When Hayden and Layla were born, they were premature too. That was because twins were usually given birth prematurely, so their pregnancy term was shorter than usual. Robert was even smaller than Layla and Hayden.

Although she knew that he would survive, she was still upset.

"Avery, does it hurt?" Elliot saw her in a daze, so he broke the silence.

Avery shook her head gently. She was injected with anesthesia before the surgery.

The effects have not worn off yet, so she did not feel pain.

"Have you seen the baby?" Avery's eyes fluttered. Her voice was very soft.

"I saw it. He looks like me."

Elliot gently held her hand and said hoarsely, "Avery, thank you."

"The child is still so small..." Avery choked up.

"It's all my fault. I'm a bad mother."

"It has nothing to do with you. Also, premature labor does not mean that our child will not be healthy. Don't overthink this. You need to rest now,"

Elliot coaxed, "I will properly look into Tammy's incident. I will make sure that she gets justice."

Avery has just finished surgery. She was weak at that moment.

Even if she was angry and upset, she could not flare up.

On the other side, the news of Avery's premature labor was spread to Chelsea. Chelsea was elated.

Although premature labor did not mean that the child would die, the risk was there.

Chelsea could not sleep for the entire night. She was thinking of her next step. She handed a card to Nora.

"Leave right now. The money in this card is enough for you to go for cosmetic surgery,"

Chelsea said, "If you were caught by Elliot, I won't protect you."

Nora accepted the card. Nora said gratefully, "I'll leave now, master. I promise I won't get you in trouble."

"Don't call me master. From today onward, I don't need you anymore."

Chelsea took one last glance at her. Her eyes were filled with disgust.

After Nora left, Chelsea took her phone out and dialed Ben.

At that moment, Ben was visiting Avery in the hospital.

When he received Nora's call, he walked out of the ward.

"Ben, I found out who was the one that kidnapped Tammy already" Ben's eyebrows throbbed.

"Are you going to say that it was Nora?"

Other than Chelsea and Nora, he could not guess who else would hurt Tammy.

Other than playing and having fun, Tammy rarely mixed with complicated people.

Avery got into premature labor because of Tammy's incident. He was even more convinced that the culprit kidnapped Tammy to agitate Avery.

"What do you mean by that?"

Chelsea said angrily, "Are you trying to say that I have to bear the responsibility of what my cousin did? Her mental being has been distorted due to her ruined looks, so she did something terrible. How is this anything to do with me?"

"Oh, you're calling me to tell me this, so I'll tell this to Elliot?" Ben derided.

"No need! I'll call him and tell him this myself! I'm calling you because you came to look for me last night! I initially thought that you care about the truth. I didn't expect that you would doubt me!"

"Chelsea, you better don't call him. I don't think he will want to listen to your excuses,"

Ben mocked, "Avery was upset and got into premature labor because of this. He won't let this go just like that. You better pray for luck!"

Chapter 702

Chelsea's body turned cold.

Pray for luck? They could never find the evidence that she was the one who did it! With Nora as her scapegoat, it will never be her.

Even if they all thought that she was the one who did it, as long as they did not have any proof, they could not do anything to her.

Elliot never loved her before. How bad could their relationship turn?

At the hospital, Chelsea brought a bouquet of lilies to visit Tammy.

Visiting Tammy was only one of the reasons.

It was mainly to see how Tammy was doing, at the same time, telling them that it was Nora who did it and she had nothing to do with it. She initially wanted to tell Elliot about this on her own, but she lacked the courage. She indeed called Ben so that Ben would pass the word to Elliot.

However, Ben has completely lost trust in her, so she could only come to visit Tammy.

Jun stopped Chelsea outside the ward.

"How dare you come here!" Jun threw the bouquet of lilies in her hand into the bin.

He clenched his fists, his eyes burning with rage.

Chelsea said calmly, "Jun, I'm sorry. Nora should be the one who did it. Her face was ruined previously, she was agitated, so she recklessly planned this..."

"Shouldn't she seek revenge on you because her face was ruined? Could she not have known that you were the one who did it?" Jun did not spare her any mercy. He revealed her ugliness in this matter.

"You and your dirty tactics. You tried to hurt Avery but ended up ruining your cousin's face. Do you think we won't know about this?"

Chelsea said, "It wasn't me!"

Jun looked at her retorting, he felt disgusted, "Elliot said he would look into this. If you want to explain yourself, do it in front of him. I'm angry just by looking at you right now. If you don't leave any time soon, I'm afraid I won't control myself and beat you up! If I beat you up or make you cripple, I won't be sentenced to death. At most, I'll have to compensate you with money..."

Jun's words scared Chelsea half to death, and she immediately fled.

After she left, Jun returned to the ward.

He saw how Tammy's eyes were open, but they were empty. She was out of focus.

Although she was awake, her mental being was terrible. She said nothing, but tears kept falling.

Jun looked at her and he was heartbroken over and over again.

From the bruises on her body, he knew what torture she went through.

The doctor said that she might not be able to reproduce anymore.

This was a huge blow to him. He could choose not to have children, but his family would not accept that he did not have any offspring. He was the only child of three generations.

Ever since he turned adult, his parents had constantly told him that he could choose not to get married, but he must have children.

Jun was feeling terrible.

He could not abandon Tammy because of this, but when his parents heard how Tammy could not have any children in the future, they left the hospital in sadness.

They would not force him to divorce Tammy, but once Tammy was discharged from the hospital, they would surely force him to do so.

"Tammy, Avery gave birth this morning." Jun sat down next to her bed and looked at her eyes.

He gently chatted with her, "Her baby was born prematurely, but don't worry, mother and son are safe. Only that her son needs to stay in the incubator for two months."

Tammy seemed to have heard what he said, she looked at him in a daze.

"Tammy, I know it will be hard for you to feel better soon, but you have to know that I, my parents, and Avery, will always love you."

Jun raised his hand and wiped away her tears.

"No one will bully you ever again. I will protect you well."

Tammy looked at his face and heard his voice. Her tears fell even harder.

"Jun, let's get a divorce!" Tammy said hoarsely.

At the same time, she pushed his hand away from her face.

Chapter 703

At that moment, as long as Tammy was awake, she would think back about the incident the day before.

Her last shred of sanity told her that it was not her fault. She could not take her own life, if not, what would happen to her parents? She was a princess born with a silver spoon in her mouth. She has never been bullied. Not because she was fortunate, but because her parents built a castle for her. Her parents would grow old one day. She had to survive to take care of them. This was her only motivation for surviving at that moment.

"Tammy, what are you saying? Divorce? I won't do it! I won't divorce you!"

Jun was hugely agitated. His tone turned harsh.

"I know you're very upset right now, but I will be with you..."

"I don't want you to be with me! I feel like puking at the sight of men right now! Leave! I want my mother to be with me! Leave!" Tammy shrieked.

Her screams attracted the Lynchs' bodyguard.

Soon, Mary, Tammy's mother, rushed over and got Jun to leave.

An hour later, Mary coaxed Tammy to bed before coming out of the ward. Jun has been waiting outside all the while. When he saw his mother-in-law, he immediately went up to her and said, "Mom, is Tammy asleep?"

"Hmm. Jun, let's talk!" Mary's eyes were reddened. She immediately cut to the chase, "Tammy has always strived for perfection. Now that she has been hurt, she can't accept it, so she doesn't want to see you. I think you should get a divorce!"

"No, I can't accept this!"

"You have to accept this. My daughter can no longer have children. Even if you don't mind, your parents would mind. My daughter is my precious child. I would rather her be single her entire life than to be despised by others!"

Mary's tone was firm.

"Go back home. Once Tammy gets discharged, we will contact you."

In the evening, Mike brought the children to visit Tammy. The effects of anesthesia on her have already worn off. At that moment, her wound hurt badly, but she bore through it. She did not want her children to worry.

"Mommy, why can't we see our little brother?" Layla looked around and asked confusedly.

"Your brother is in an incubator right now. I told you when we were coming over!" Mike answered first.

"Where is the incubator? I don't see any!" Layla was searching around the room. She found nothing

"Layla, your little brother is not here. They put him in the place where they especially keep the incubators," Avery explained, "We can't see him yet."

“Oh! He must be lonely!” Layla said before changing the subject, “Mommy, I heard that giving birth to children is painful. Are you in pain right now?”

“I’m not in pain. I can return home in two days.”

“That’s good to hear, Mommy. Let me tell you a secret. Actually, I don’t like that your tummy got bigger because you won’t be able to play with me.” Layla sounded a little aggrieved. “I want you to bring Hayden and me out to play more.”

Avery said, “Hmm, I won’t have any more children. Three of you is more than enough for me.”

“Oh, what is our little brother’s name?” Layla blinked her huge eyes curiously.

“Avery pondered for a few seconds before replying, “His name is Robert. Robert Foster.

The children looked at Elliot in unison. Elliot was taken by surprise.

“Avery, didn’t you say that the child would take your surname?”

“I hope that you can be a good father.” Avery looked at him and explained.

His gaze burned into her. His heart was feeling even warmer. He could not promise that he would be a good father, but he would try his best.

A moment later, it started raining lightly outside. Mike was about to send the children home. At the same time, Elliot’s phone rang.

Chapter 704

Everyone’s gaze landed on Elliot. He took his phone out and saw who was calling.

“It’s Chelsea.” Elliot looked at Avery and said before picking up the call.

On the other end of the line, Chelsea hesitated for two seconds before saying, “Elliot, I heard that Avery has given birth. I thought about it and felt that I should visit her. I'm at the entrance of the inpatient unit. I wonder which ward she is in."

Elliot strode away. Mike teased, "How dare Chelsea call him. Don't tell me she wants to visit you?"

Avery's expressions turned extremely cold. She did not want to see Chelsea , she only wanted her to die.

"Layla, Hayden, stay in the room. I'll go have a look." Mike's nosy attitude was piqued. Other than prying, Mike wanted to put pressure on Elliot.

Chelsea and Elliot have known each other for more than ten years. They were exceptionally close. If not, Chelsea would not have been able to do so many bad things so brazenly.

Avery was only caused to have premature labor. Thankfully it was only premature labor. If it was a miscarriage, Chelsea would have died a thousand times over!

Chelsea stood in the lobby of the inpatient unit. She looked at the lift. A moment later, the doors to the lift slowly opened and Elliot walked out of the lift with gusto.

Chelsea quickly collected her emotions. When Elliot was in front of her, her eyes reddened, and she looked remorseful.

"Elliot, I'm sorry, I've looked into it. Nora was the one who did it."

Chelsea barely finished her sentence when Elliot slapped her. The slap came unannounced! It was a hard slap too. Chelsea could not bear it. She felt as if her soul left her body from the slap! The love-hate relationship was so comical!

"I didn't do it! Why did you slap me?" Chelsea clutched her face and yelled uncontrollably, "Elliot, when nothing happens, you never see me! When things happen, you blame it all on me! Do you have any conscience!"

“Without your support, how would Nora dare to take action? I never exposed you, but you don’t have to treat me like an idiot!” Elliot’s darkened gaze was glimmering with a thirst for blood.

He went in closer to her. He dug his hands deep into her head and pulled her hair.

“Why are you here? To see my prematurely born son?”

His voice was low and sinister. It sounded like the devil.

Elliot pulled her by the hair and headed out. It was like pulling the lowliest of animals!

Chelsea was in so much pain tears swelled in her eyes. From the corner of her eyes, she could see a crowd watching.

Elliot’s footsteps were quick. Chelsea was wearing heels. She could barely keep up with him. She fumbled and fell to the ground. However, Elliot did not plan on helping her up. Her fall made him even more disgusted with her.

He pulled her even harder, planning to drag her out of the hospital. It was as if her presence there would affect Avery’s recovery!

Chelsea was afraid that her scalp would be damaged by his pulling. She could only wail aggrievedly and quickly crawl with both hands.

When Mike came out of the lift, he saw this scene.

He was so shocked he remained in the same spot. He forgot his intention there.

When Mike checked up on Elliot, the information he got showed that Elliot was cruel and heartless. However, Chad has always reminded him and subconsciously beautified this man, which made Mike think that Elliot was a normal person.

It was until that moment, when he saw Elliot throwing Chelsea into the rain as if he was taking the trash out!

Chapter 705

Although Chelsea deserved to die, Elliot's cruel actions were still shocking to see. If the hospital guards did not stop him, Mike thought that Elliot would probably beat Chelsea to death.

This was the man that Avery loved deeply. This was why she could not fall in love with other men. If other men were as ferocious as Elliot, she would stay far away from them.

Chelsea was taken away by the guards, vanishing into the rainy night. Mike walked over to Elliot's back and tapped him on the shoulders.

"Today is the birth of your son. You don't need to get so angry."

If Chelsea did not come to look for him, he would not have lost his temper. If Chelsea were honest about what she has done, he would not have been so angry either. He was furious because Chelsea lied through her teeth and tried to convince him to believe in her lies.

Elliot hated being lied to the most. How dare Chelsea lie to do him!

"Don't tell Avery about the incident just now." Elliot looked less hostile. His emotions resumed normally.

"I won't tell her. Although Chelsea deserves to die, why did you have to do it yourself?" Mike reminded him, "Avery wants you to be a good father. Have you forgotten? If your child were to see what you did just now, it would affect him terribly."

Mike's words made him come to his senses.

"I'll watch my behavior in public in the future."

"I don't blame you. I hate Chelsea to death too. Even if this woman was beaten to death by you, I won't take pity on her." Mike walked to the lift.

"Chad has gone to see Tammy. He said that Tammy has a mental condition, and she insists on divorcing Jun right now.”

Elliot's expressions darkened.

“Don't tell Avery about this yet.”

“I know. Before she gets discharged, I won't tell her anything. If not, she would be anxiously crying again.” Mike looked at Elliot and said with fear, “You were terrifying just now. If you were to fight with Avery again one day, would you treat her like that?”

“If I treat her that way, do you think she would have given birth to my child?”

Elliot raised his eyebrow and retorted.

“I'm talking about the future,” Mike corrected himself, “The tendency to violence is ingrained in DNA. Did your father have a tendency to violence too?”

Elliot's body suddenly stiffened. His eyes turned cold. It was as if time had stopped. Broken fragments of memories appeared in front of him.

Mike was right. His father not only has a tendency to violence, but also a very serious one.

Could his tendency to violence be passed down from his father?

Mike looked at him. He was terrified. It was as if Elliot had changed into a different person.

“Cough, cough! I'm joking!” Mike realized he had crossed the line. He immediately smiled and explained, “People can change from education. If not, there are so many murderers. Their children can't all be murderers as well, right!”

“Do you think this topic is funny?”

The lift has reached its intended floor. Elliot got out first.

“It's not funny! I'll apologize to you!” Mike chased after him.

“No need. Take Layla and Hayden back. I will send the nanny over to look after them.” Elliot changed the topic.

“If all things go well, Avery would need a week before being discharged. I might need you to take care of them for the next few days.”

“They are independent. Sometimes, they even buy food for me.” Mike was proud.

“Just take care of Avery. Don’t worry about the rest.”

Returning to the ward, Mike lifted Layla with one hand while holding onto Hayden’s hand with the other. He took them home.

After they left, Avery furrowed her brows, panting a little. “Get me some painkillers.”

Elliot passed her the medicine. After taking the medicine, Avery’s pain instantly vanished. She immediately fell into a deep slumber.

Elliot stayed next to her by the bed for a while. When he noticed her even breathing and how deep in sleep she was, he got up and headed to the neonatal unit.

Chapter 706

The baby was in an incubator in the intensive care unit with a dedicated nurse looking after him.

The intensive care unit was a sterile environment.

Under normal circumstances, premature babies were not allowed visitors.

However, Elliot's status was special.

Once he entered the neonatal unit, the nurse disinfected him, helped him into a sterile suit, then led him into the intensive care unit.

“Your son's overall condition is looking pretty good, Mr.Foster.He's just got some respiratory distress...This is normal for premature babies, so you don't need to worry about it too much,” explained the nurse.

Elliot already found out about the baby's condition from the doctor earlier that afternoon, so he was not too worried. He gazed at his son through the incubator.

The baby was wrapped up in a swaddle while an oxygen tube was connected to his nose.

With his eyes closed and without moving a muscle, he looked like he was asleep.

Elliot's eyes instantly filled with tears.

The baby would not have to suffer like this if he was born at full term. He did not blame Avery.

She had suffered through eight months of pain since she got pregnant.

The torture that she had to endure during that time was severe than Tammy's abduction.

It was already an impressive feat for her to carry the baby for eight months.

The person he hated was the one behind the pain and suffering.

This was also the reason why he attacked Chelsea earlier that night.

Elliot did not lose control of his emotions at the time. He knew what he's doing. He despised Chelsea, and he has never bothered being reasonable toward those he despised.

"The baby looks smaller right now, but he should grow a lot in the next month."

The nurse comforted him when she saw the dejected look on his face.

"If he continues to develop well, he'll be able to go home in a month or so."

"Thank you for your hard work," Elliot croaked.

"It's not hard. We don't usually allow parents to visit here, but the director instructed us to bring you in whenever you came by. The disinfection is a little troublesome. You may not be used to the smell of the disinfectant," said the nurse.

"We'll send photos of the baby to you every day." Elliot nodded his head.

At another hospital in the middle of the night, Chelsea was sobbing silently as she sat in the lobby. She was holding a bag of medication. She had already seen a doctor gotten her pills, but she did not want to go home. She could see the logo screen on the Sterling Group building from her apartment.

Her dream was to become Elliot Foster's woman and be the boss lady of Sterling Group.

However, that dream shattered to pieces tonight.

Elliot would never marry her.

Not only that, he would not even keep her by his side.

Now that he had a son, Sterling Group would belong to his son in the future.

She had turned into a completely useless pile of trash! Chelsea sat in the hospital until two in the morning.

When she finally ran out of tears, she pulled out her phone and dialed a number.

The call was answered very quickly.

Chelsea sniffled and said, "I'm at the hospital Charlie. Come get me."

"What are you playing at?! I'm abroad! How am I supposed to pick you up?"

Charlie's cold voice came through the phone.

Chelsea took a deep breath and tears rolled down her face once again.

Charlie quickly noticed that something was wrong.

"Why are you at the hospital? What happened to you?!"

Chapter 707

"I got hit," Chelsea said as she began to sob out loud.

"I see. Was it Elliot?"

"Who else would dare lay a finger on me besides him?" Chelsea lifted her head up slightly and refused to let her tears fall. Do you feel like calling me stupid? If I hadn't returned to his side, I wouldn't be suffering this kind of humiliation today.

"What's the point of regretting it? People would just look down on you like that." Charlie checked the time, then said, "Go home for now. If you don't feel like going home, then stay at a hotel nearby. I'll book a flight home right away."

"I want to give up, Charlie." Chelsea was exhausted.

"He almost killed me tonight. I don't want to give him anything anymore, even if it's a single teardrop... He's not worthy!" Charlie teased, "How many times have you said those words before? You won't give up until your life is in his hands." "It's for real this time... He's got a son now. He doesn't need me at all anymore."

"Get some rest for now, Chelsea."

On the phone, Charlie's tone was calm.

"I came across an important piece of information recently. I'll tell you about it when I get back."

The next morning, Avery was feeling much better after a good night's sleep.

The pain had reduced significantly.

After she took her morning medication, Elliot helped her off the bed.

"You don't need to rush getting out of bed if you're hurting." His heart ached when he saw her wince in pain.

"The earlier I get out of bed, the earlier I'll recover. I think I left my phone at home. Could you get someone to bring it over for me?" Avery wanted to leave the hospital as soon as possible and go see Tammy.

"Has Tammy woken up? How is she? I want to talk to her." Elliot held onto her, pondered for a moment, then said, Her mental state isn't great right now. She's never had to suffer before, after all.

Give her some time, Avery. The doctor said that she shouldn't be triggered right now and needs to rest in peace and quiet."

"I just want to talk to her. I won't reigger her."

Avery stopped in her tracks, then lifted her gaze at Elliot said, "Is she severely injured? Look at me, Elliot! Don't lie to me!"

After her surgery the day before, she was so weak and in pain from the wound that she did not follow up on this matter.

"Her body will recover after a period of rest. Her main issue is her mental state. I'm not lying. If you don't believe me, I can call Tammy's mother and you can ask her," Elliot said softly.

"Okay. Please call her right now," Avery requested.

Elliot dialed Mary Lynch's number on his phone in front of Avery, When the call was answered, he said, "Avery would like to speak to you, Aunt Mary."

Then, he handed the phone over to Avery.

Avery took the phone from him, then greeted Mary and asked, "How's Tammy doing, Aunt Mary? I'm really worried about her."

"She's doing alright. She even asked about you after breakfast this morning! Her mood is very low and she's unwilling to talk to anyone. I'll get her to call you once she's better," answered Mary.

"Okay. Please let me know once she gets better, Aunt Mary."

"I will. You just had a baby, so you should rest well. I'll take care of Tammy. Nobody will pick on her again.

".., Aunt Mary, I'm sorry. I dragged Tammy into this," Avery said as her eyes began to burn and tears rolled down her cheeks.

Elliot pulled her into his arms and used his long fingers to gently wipe her tears away.

"How could you say that, Avery? This had nothing to do with you. You're Tammy's best friend, and I hope you will be best friends for life. Don't tell these messy things affect you."

"Don't worry, Aunt Mary. As long as Tammy doesn't give up, I will definitely be her best friend for life." The phone call affected Avery's mood.

She returned to the room and lay in bed.

Her eyes were blank while her thoughts were a chaotic mess.

When Elliot's phone buzzed, he picked it up and saw a photo of the baby that the doctor had sent.

"Take a look at our son, Avery." He roughly glanced at the photo, then handed his phone to Avery.

She took the phone and inspected the photo closely.

He finally had some color in him.

Elliot sat by the bed and watched along with her.

"Why does he have a rash on his face?" Elliot frowned as he zoomed in on the photo.

"It wasn't there when I went to see him last night."

Chapter 708

Avery also noticed the rash on the baby's face, but she was not particularly shocked.

"Babies have delicate skin, so they get rashes easily." She imparted her experience to Elliot.

"Hayden and Layla used to get rashes all the time before they turned one. Some ointment usually does the trick." Elliot was relieved.

"Premature babies would get little setbacks like this easier." There was selfblame in Avery's voice.

"It's fine as long as it's nothing serious," Elliot comforted her.

"He was sound asleep when I went to see him last night. He might think he's still inside you! "

"He's sleeping well because of lack of oxygen from the premature birth."

Avery lifted her moistened eyes and said, "I won't let Chelsea Tierney get away with this, Elliot."

Elliot responded and said, "She pushed the blame onto her cousin. Nora's already fled the country."

"How would Nora have the guts to do anything without Chelsea's help?!"

"I know, Avery." He held her hand and said, "I've already sent people to search for Nora. Once we find her, I'll make her spit out the truth."

Avery stared at Elliot blankly and said, "You're not still letting Chelsea stay at your company, are you?"

"I cut things off with her last night," Elliot said.

"She won't ever come looking for me again, unless she's not afraid to die."

"She might just not be afraid of death," Avery muttered softly.

"How could someone who's afraid to die make the same mistake over and over again?"

"I'll make her wish come true, if that's the case." Elliot's tone was cold and indifferent, but his eyes were filled with tenderness as he gazed at her.

Avery knew that people had many faces, but it was rare for someone to have two extremely different faces like Elliot.

No matter which face he had on, she was deeply drawn to him.

A knock came from the door, and Elliot went to open it.

Wesley and Shea were standing on the other side.

Avery was in pain after her surgery the day before, so Wesley told Shea to wait until today to come see her.

"I made some soup brought it over for Avery, Big Brother." Shea showed off the food container she was holding to Elliot.

Elliot was surprised.

"You made it?"

"That's right. Avery must have had a hard time giving birth to the baby, so I wanted to do something for her." Shea's face lit up in a wide smile.

When Elliot noticed that her left index finger was bandaged up, he immediately held her hand and said softly, Don't do it again.

She'll be happy that you came to see her." "It didn't hurt, Big Brother."

Shea retracted her hand as she continued to smile, then walked over to Avery with the food container.

"Hey, Avery. Wesley said you were in pain yesterday and told me not to bother you, so I only just came to see you today."

"It doesn't hurt anymore, Shea. Don't worry about me." Avery watched as Shea opened up the food container and a mouth-watering scent wafted from it.

"That smells amazing. Did you make it?"

"I did. It's fish chowder. Try it out." Shea scooped out a small bowl of soup and handed it to Avery.

"Wesley said it's better for you to have fish right now." Avery took the bowl of soup and noticed Shea's index finger.

"Did you hurt your hand, Shea?"

"It's nothing. It's just a little wound. Wesley just insisted on bandaging it up like this," Shea said shyly.

"Try the soup and let me know how it tastes.If it's good, I'll make it for you again tomorrow."

"I bet it's good if you made it, but I don't want to see you get hurt."

"I'll be more careful next time." Shea sat down on a chair by the bed, then said, "I really want to see your baby, Avery, but Wesley said that he needs to stay in an incubator right now and I can't see him."

"Your brother has photos on his phone.

"Oh! Show me the photos, Big Brother!" Shea walked over to Elliot and asked for his phone.

Elliot pulled out his phone, picked out a few photos and handed it to her.

Shea took the phone and brought it over to Wesley so they could look together.

Chapter 709

Avery took a sip of soup.It was delicious.

Shea was the one who made it, so the meaning behind it was more important than the taste.

When she was operating on Shea, she never expected for her to recover to this extent.

"The fish chowder is pretty good, Elliot.You should give it a try," Avery said.

Elliot walked over to the table and poured himself a bowl of soup.He took a sip.The chowder tasted light and was not greasy at all.

It indeed tasted good.

His eyes landed on Shea.

She had improved significantly since spending time with Wesley.

Perhaps he should let her try out the things she wanted to do, including learning to drive.

Meanwhile, at the Starry River Villa, Mike had taken a few days off work.

He could not take away Avery's pain from childbirth, but he could take care of her house for her.

In the day, while the kids were at school, he was working at home.

Chad came over for lunch at noon.

"Let's go to see Avery at the hospital after we eat!" he suggested.

"Sure. Elliot asked me to bring Avery her phone." At this point, Mike changed the subject and said, " There's a darknet organization in Bridgedale." Chad was stunned.

"Darknet organization? Every country has those, right?"

"I don't think this is a normal darknet." Mike lowered his voice and said, "It's possible that Nora was a 'slave ' that Chelsea bought from this darknet website." Chad was speechless.

When Hayden was investigating Nora, he discovered that she visited a top secret website.

He hacked into the site and found that it was an underground organization dealing in human trafficking." Mike was telling Chad all of this because he had a new breakthrough.

Chad picked up his glass of water and took a sip.

" That's horrifying! I know about the darknet and underground organizations, but I've never come across any of them in real life." "Hahaha! Would you like to see it?" Mike raised his brows.

"I contacted one of the 'owners' there last night. I sent him a photo of Avery and said I wanted a woman like that. Guess what he said." Chad focused all of his concentration on him guessed, "Don't tell me he was the one who handled Nora?" Mike shook his head.

"Nora wasn't under him, but he knew that a woman who looked like Avery was sold. None of them have names in there. They use numbers.

"Chad's hand tightened around his glass of water, and his expression turned heavy as he said, "If your guess is right, then Chelsea really is unforgivable!"

"I'm looking for proof. Once I have it, she can't argue anymore! She's blaming the entire thing on Nora right now because nobody knows about the true nature of their relationship."

"That's right. The only worry is not being able to find evidence. Chelsea is a particularly meticulous person. My boss actually pays special attention to her. She was too greedy. She made it look like her goal was Mr. Foster, but what she really wanted was the entire Sterling Group."

"Give me a little more time. I'll make sure to reveal her true colors." Mike was filled with confidence.

At the airport, once Chelsea found Charlie, the two of them hopped into a luxury car.

Charlie took off the cap on Chelsea's head, and she instantly frowned.

A piece of her scalp was yanked off last night, so her head was bandaged.

Charlie's expression was ominous as he asked, "He hit you this hard?"

Chelsea swallowed her tears and said, "He probably would've beaten me to death last night if somebody hadn't stopped him."

"I warned you and told you he wasn't normal, but you didn't believe me!"

Charlie lifted his chin slightly, then said, "I got to know the doctor that diagnosed him back then. He told me that Elliot Foster was indeed mentally ill!"

Chelsea suffered a huge blow. She could not accept this.

Did she actually lose her reason for a wackjob? She would be a laughing stock if this got out! It would make her look even crazier than someone with a mental illness!

"Even so, he's not the kind of nut case you find in mental hospitals!" Chelsea forcibly defended Elliot.

" His illness didn't stop him from becoming the richest entrepreneur! It also didn't stop him from having a child! So what if he's sick in the head?!" Charlie chuckled coldly at his sister's faraway look, then said, "Call me the next time he picks on you, Chelsea. It's not a crime when someone with a mental disability commits murder. Even if you end up dying by his hands, you had it coming!"

"You say such horrible things!"

"The truth is hard to listen to!"

Charlie adjusted his collar, then said lightly, 'Don't you think he'd care if this goes out? If he didn't care, then why can't you find anything about this online? Why has he never mentioned this in public? That's because he's scared! He left school for a while after his father died. Rumor had it that he was the one who killed his father...I think this is most likely true!"

"Don't spread things without proof, Charlie. Do you think his lawyers are a bunch of softies?" Chelsea calmed herself down, then warned, "Whether or not he's sick and whether or not he's ever murdered someone has nothing to do with us. I'm too scared to go looking for him again. I need to come up with a new plan for my life."

"Come back to my side, Chelsea!" Charlie said as he wrapped his arm around her shoulder.

"Why should someone as capable as you work for outsiders? If you come and help me, I'll give you everything you want." Chelsea frowned and said, "I don't want to stick around here, but I also can't leave just yet. I refused to admit defeat! I'm still so young! I can still start over!"

"Of course you can start over! The doors of Trust Capital will always be open for you." That morning, a company-wide announcement sparked heated discussions among the employees at Sterling Group.

It was announced that the manager of the PR department, Chelsea Tierney, was terminated and would never again be hired by the company.

Chelsea entered Sterling Group ever since she graduated from college.

Everyone could see how capable she was at her job.

Besides that, her relationship with Elliot also became a hot topic of conversation between employees.

Many guessed that she was Elliot's woman.

It was not official, but it was only a matter of time until she would become the boss lady of Sterling Group.

Nobody expected the sudden appearance of a certain Avery Tate to toss Chelsea aside.

Now that Avery had given birth to Elliot's son, Chelsea was immediately terminated...

It was clear who was the future boss lady of Sterling Group.

"I think I'm going to miss Miss Tierney. She always buys us snacks."

"I'm going to miss her, too. She's strict, but she's really kind to us female employees."

"Do any of you know what happened behind the scenes? Was Avery Tate the one who knocked her out of the picture? Avery Tate isn't our boss lady yet!"

How could she get involved in our company's affairs?! Does she think she's the queen just because she gave birth to a son?"

"She gave birth to the boss's son. Of course she's the queen now! You can fire whoever you want as well if you give the boss a son!"

"D*man it! I have no idea why the boss would choose Avery Tate over Miss Tierney!"

"I know why. It's because Miss Tierney can't have children, but Avery Tate can." Everyone was engaging in heated discussion in the pantry.

Ben pushed the door open and walked in with a stern expression on his face.

"Chelsea Tierney was terminated because of a grave mistake. It had nothing to do with Avery Tate. Don't you think it's inappropriate to be gossiping like this about a woman who's just given birth?"

"Sorry, Mr. Schaffer! We just feel bad for Miss Tierney!"

"Even so, you shouldn't be speculating maliciously about Avery Tate." Ben continued assuredly, "Avery Tate has never involved herself in our company's affairs. Don't speak ill of her at the office again. You're all finished if Mr. Foster hears about it!"

Everyone lowered their heads.

"You'll get a new manager in a few days. I'll be in charge of everything in the PR department before that," said Ben.

"Also, I came here to distribute some candy. I'm sure you've all heard that Avery Tate's given birth to Mr. Foster's son. This is an incredibly happy occasion, so we should all celebrate together!"

Everyone's faces instantly broke into smiles.

"Will Mr. Foster and Avery Tate get married, Mr. Schaffer?"

"That's between them, so I'm not too sure," Ben said.

"If they do get married, I bet they'll host a grand wedding. You'll all find out about it then."

"Avery Tate really hit the jackpot in life! She gave our boss a child, and it's a son, too!" someone said enviously.

"Exactly! I bet the boss will help her out if Tate Industries ever gets in trouble in the future." Ben teased, "Your boss might be rich and handsome, but Avery isn't a powerless woman who would use her children to earn respect. Do you really think your boss would fall in love with an average woman? Stop watching too many soap operas."

"Huh? Isn't the boss only with Avery Tate because she got pregnant?" "What are you thinking?! How could a mere child tie him down? There are plenty of women in the world. If he only wanted a child, he could've picked any woman to have a child with." Ben's words enlightened everyone.

Simply put, a woman who was able to stay by Elliot Foster's side was definitely not a gullible idiot.

Even if Chelsea was not fired, she was still no match against Avery Tate.

Three days later, Avery was able to walk around on her feet. She requested to be discharged.

The doctor naturally disagreed.

If she had given birth naturally, then she could have been discharged after three days at the hospital.

However, a C-section was completely different.

"I'll rest properly when I get home. I'll give myself anti-inflammatory shots," Avery said.

"I shouldn't stick around and take up the hospital's resources." The doctor was rendered speechless.

Moments later, the doctor issued a discharge slip for her.

Once they walked out of the hospital, Elliot helped Avery into the car.

"I want to see Tammy," she said.

Elliot knew that the reason why she wanted to be discharged was definitely not to save the hospital's resources.

"What if she doesn't want to see you, Avery?"

"If she doesn't want to see me when I get there, then I'll go home." Of course she would not force Tammy.

Elliot signaled the driver with his eyes.

The driver understood, then drove the car toward the hospital where Tammy was staying.

Once they arrived at the hospital, Elliot walked Avery to the door of Tammy's room.

They first saw Jun.

Jun did not expect them to show up, so his reaction was slightly uneasy.

"Why are you around outside, Jun?"

When Avery saw the haggard look on his face and the stubble on his chin, she instantly became nervous.

Jun's lips parted, then he said bitterly, "I haven't seen her in two days. She wants a divorce. There's no room for discussion at all."

Upon hearing those words, Avery's heart ached so hard that it was difficult to breathe. She knew that Tammy loved Jun very much.

If this had not happened, then she would never bring up divorce.

She not only harmed Tammy, she also harmed Jun.

"Go on in and see her! I'll come again tomorrow," Jun said, then strode away.

When Elliot saw Avery's pale expression, he knew that he could no longer hide the truth from her.

He held her hand, then said, "Avery, I'm afraid Tammy can't have children ever again. That's why she's insisting on the divorce."

The moment Elliot finished his sentence, Avery burst into tears!

Chapter 712

Avery suddenly did not have the courage to enter the room. She did not know how to face Tammy.

Tammy might have been afraid of giving birth, but it took a long period of internal struggle for her to decide that she wanted children.

In the end, she became infertile.

It must have been such a giant blow to her! It must also have been a massive blow to Jun!

"This has nothing to do with you, Avery. Aunt Mary doesn't blame, and neither will Tammy." Elliot said softly as he reached out to wipe Avery's tears off her face.

"Go on in and talk to her."

"I don't know what to say... Elliot, I don't know how to talk to her..." Avery sobbed.

"I can't face her like this."

At that moment, the patient's room door suddenly burst open.

When Mary saw the two of them standing at the door, she said in surprise, "When did you two get here? Did you already get discharged from the hospital so soon, Avery?" Avery quickly composed herself, then said, "Yes, I've been discharged. That's why I came to see Tammy. I won't bother her if she's asleep."

"She's not sleeping right now. She made me come out here to see if Jun was still around," said Mary as she glanced around.

"He just left," Avery said.

"Alright. Wait right now. I'll go in and let Tammy know you're here!" Mary turned and walked back into the room.

When Mary reappeared moments later, she gazed awkwardly at Elliot and said, "Tammy only wants to see Avery."

Elliot nodded in understanding.

The moment Avery entered the room, her eyes instantly reddened when they met Tammy's.

"Don't cry." Tammy had a forced smile on her face.

"I'm still alive!"

"I'm sorry, Tammy..."

"Don't say that." Tammy choked, then said calmly, "I don't want to be treated like a victim. It's an awful feeling."

"Alright." Avery walked to the side of the bed.

She saw the IV chart hanging on top of the bed, so she reached out for it.

On the other hand, Tammy reached out and stroked Avery's belly.

"You had to give birth prematurely because of me... Is the baby alright?"

Tammy felt resentment after the tragedy.

She hated everyone wanted to destroy everything... She wanted to destroy herself and everyone around her.

It was only after she cleared her head that she realized that destroying herself would only make her loved ones miserable, and would achieve nothing else. She later heard the news about Avery's premature birth.

That was when the resentment in her heart died down.

The one who harmed her was not Avery.

How could she hate her? A premature birth could be a minor or a major thing. If luck was not on her side, both mother and child might not be able to make it through.

"The baby's fine. He's just a little small, but he'll be fine after a little while."

Avery finished looking through Tammy's chart, then sat down by the bed.

"I saw Jun outside just now, Tammy."

"Oh...I plan on divorcing him. I can't have children, after all. I shouldn't drag him down with me," Tammy said nonchalantly.

"His parents would curse me to death if I don't divorce him." Avery lowered her gaze as her heart began to ache.

"It's not a bad thing. I've always been afraid of giving birth. Now, I don't have to worry about that." Tammy held Avery's hand, then said, "I'll further my studies abroad once I'm discharged. I've decided to take over my father's company and work hard in the future."

Avery wanted to smile at her, but her tears rolled down her cheeks instead.

Tammy was the Lynch family's only daughter. She had never had to suffer even once in her entire life. She never liked studying, nor did she like working.

This was why she never worked even after she graduated from college.

It might seem like a good thing that she decided to work hard now, but it was a sign that the abduction had completely wrecked the old Tammy.

Chapter 713

"Avery, we might not be able to meet all the time again, but I'll still come see you when I have the time," Tammy said.

"Okay. I'll wait for you."

"Go home and get some rest! You look worse than I do," Tammy said, then wanted to get out of bed to send her off.

"Lie down and rest. I'll leave now," Avery said as she held her down.

"Let me know when you leave the hospital."

"I will."

As Avery walked out of the hospital, her thoughts were a chaotic mess. Her head was spinning and she could not calm down.

Things seemed to be getting better, but her heart felt heavy.

Perhaps it was because she could no longer return to the past, and the future was filled with uncertainty.

"Get some rest when you get home, Avery. You don't look too good." Elliot gazed at Avery's cool face and worried that she might get postpartum depression.

"While you were talking to Tammy in the room, Aunt Mary told me that this might have been a tragic experience for Tammy, but it made her mature very quickly."

"That's because she never wants to rely on any man ever again. The only thing she can do is force herself to grow up."

"Don't you think that's a good thing? I'm not saying Jun is unreliable, but you must know that you can be more confident if you depend on yourself."

"You're right, but she's my best friend. Even if I hope for her to become a strong woman, I don't want to see her change because of this type of misfortune." Avery forced herself to hold back her tears.

"Society is reckless. Not many people can stay innocent forever. I want her to be happy, even if it means having to rely on a man to live."

"What's done is done, Avery. She will move on one day."

"Don't try to persuade me! Before Chelsea is brought to justice, don't try to persuade me!" Avery roared loudly.

That night, the temperature dropped along with the arrival of a heavy rainstorm.

The sound of the rain pitter-pattering against the windows felt like a lullaby.

Avery lay in bed and fell fast asleep.

In the living room, Mrs.Cooper served Elliot a glass of wine.

"Go to bed after having a drink, Master Elliot." Mrs.Cooper noticed that Elliot had lost weight.

She was worried that he had not had a good night's sleep since looking after Avery.

"Okay." Elliot drank the wine, then asked, "How have Hayden ACq(JmIJ Layla been the past couple of days?"

"They're very well behaved.They don't need me to control them at all.

" Mrs.Cooper sighed and said, " Avery raised them very well."

Elliot felt relieved, but also very ashamed.

Avery was able to raise the two children so well without his participation...

Did this mean that he was unnecessary? He finished his wine, then went up to the master bedroom.

A warm night lamp was turned on in the room.

Avery's eyes were shut and her breathing was even.

Elliot walked over to the side of the bed and turned off the light.

The room instantly fell into darkness.He sat down by the bed.He had planned to just sit with Avery for a while, then move to the guest bedroom.

Fatigue overcame him in the end, and he fell asleep very quickly next to her.

At 9.30 p.m.that night, Hayden and Layla tiptoed over to the master bedroom.

They opened the room door and took a look inside.

"What are you two looking at? Why aren't you in bed? " Mike was standing behind them.

He popped his head into the room and snuck a peek, too.

Layla huffed, "I heard the sound of a car driving off, so I thought Daddy already left. Hayden said he was still here, so we argued over it."

Mike caressed the top of Layla's head, then said, " There's no way he's leaving! Your Mommy needs to be taken care of right now!"

"Oh..." Layla responded, then softly apologized to Hayden and dragged him back to their room.

Mike closed the door to the master bedroom, then walked over to the living room.

Suddenly, Chad strode out of Mike's bedroom, grabbed his arm and dragged him back into the room.

"Tused your computer to get into that darknet website you mentioned and found something really scary! F*ck! I'm so scared that I'm breaking into a cold sweat!"

Chapter 714

"Why do you think it's called the darknet? That's because it's filled with all kinds of criminal activity...I don't think you have the mental capacity for it!" Mike teased.

Chad's mental capacity was not as bad as Mike said.

After all, he was Elliot Foster's right hand man. He's been through thick and thin with Elliot, so how could he possibly get frightened easily?

"You'll know what I mean when you see it." The two of them entered the room, and Chad sat Mike down in front of the computer.

Mike glanced at the information on the monitor...

To be exact, his back broke into a cold sweat after he saw the photo on the screen! It was a photo of Laura Jensen.

Laura was Avery's biological mother. She passed away two years ago, so what was her photo doing on the darknet website? Could it be...

Mike's hand tightened around his mouse as his pale blue eyes turned cold. He finished reading the information on the screen and gritted his teeth.

"It's scary, right? This user named Lilo wants to buy a middle-aged woman who looks like Laura Jensen. What does she want to do with her? I bet she'll use it against Avery!" Chad drew a cold breath.

"Hurry up and look into this Lilo person, Mike. Find out who she is!" Mike lifted his head to look at Chad.

"How did you find this information?"

"I suddenly had an idea in my head! Chelsea had found a woman who looked very similar to Avery and tried to use her to replace Avery. Her plan failed, but she caused countless arguments between Avery and Mr. Foster. I thought about it. If a woman who looked like Avery's mother appeared, wouldn't they have complete control over Avery?" Chad was rambling rather speedily.

He did not expect a simple thought to be true!

"That's why I searched for keywords related to middle-aged women and came across Laura Jensen's photo!" Mike opened up the user named Lilo's account, but there was not much information there.

"I need to check her IP address..." Mike mumbled as his fingers began to tap away at the keyboard.

"Get some rest. I'll let you know when I find something."

"Okay. I'm going to go see my boss. I need to tell him about this," Chad said prepared to walk out of the room.

"He's asleep," Mike called out.

He's pretty knocked out. He didn't even wake up when the kids opened the door."

"Alright, then! I won't bother him," Chad said, then awkwardly adjusted his glasses.

It was as if he was contemplating if he should stay or leave.

"I'm afraid I'm going to have to work through the night. You should sleep here!" Mike leaned back against the chair, then said lazily, "Your boss didn't leave either, right?"

"Ah...It's because he's still here that I feel bad about leaving."

After further consideration, Chad decided to leave.

"Why are you afraid of him? He already knows about our relationship." Mike got up from the chair and pinned Chad down on the bed.

"He has no time to care about us at all. Don't think too highly of yourself."

Chad's face reddened slightly and he shoved Mike aside.

"Hurry up and find out about Lilo! I'll stay and wait for your results tonight."

"That's more like it." Mike was satisfied and returned to the computer.

"What would your boss do if Lilo turns out to be Chelsea Tierney?" Chad was sitting on the edge of the bed with a stern expression on his face.

"He'd either throw her in prison or straight up kill her. The point is that he won't show any mercy. She really crossed the line this time." Mike was suddenly filled with energy, but he was still slightly concerned.

"I'm just worried that she left the country like Nora did."

"It'd be worse than death for her to spend the rest of her life like a coward," Chad said.

"Keep working! I'm taking a shower."

In the master bedroom, Avery woke up in the middle of the night and noticed the man sleeping next to her through the dim light shining in from outside the window. She recognized him through his blurry features and the smell of his cologne.

Elliot's breathing was deep. He had spent the past few days taking care of her and hardly got a wink of sleep. He was by her side every time she woke up in pain in the middle of the night.

Although the nanny took care of her during the day, he still insisted on doing everything by himself.

Avery had not been in the best mood the past few days, so she did not notice how well Elliot was treating her.

Not only did he have no complaints, he was also obedient and accommodating in every aspect.

It was hard for Avery to imagine how she would overcome this hurdle without Elliot's care.

Chapter 715

Avery could not help but reach out and touch Elliot's face. She was shocked by the coldness of his skin.

The thermostat in the house kept the indoors at a constant temperature.

However, since it got colder outside, it was still necessary to use a blanket at night.

Avery covered Elliot with the blanket that was on her and inched closer to him. He had some wine before bed, so his scent had turned intoxicating.

While Avery was half asleep, she suddenly heard Elliot's hoarse voice.

"Avery...I'll be a good dad...I will..." His voice was low, as if he was talking in his sleep.

Avery opened her eyes and looked directly at his face.

She could not clearly see his features in the dark, but she could see that his eyes were shut.

He was dreaming and talking in his sleep. He was promising her in his dream that he would be a good father.

Elliot was sleep-talking, but Avery was still moved to tears.

One's thoughts during the day would turn into dreams at night. He was only having a dream like this because he remembered her words.

She believed that he would be a good father.

Every time the doctor sent him a new photo of the baby, he would show it to her right away. He would tell her about the tiniest changes in the baby.

It was unlikely for there to be too many changes in the short span of two to three days. He thought that the baby was changing because he was overly serious. He would not repeatedly flip through the baby's photos if he did not love him.

The next morning, Chad woke up to find Mike fast asleep next to him. He had a strong feeling that Mike had found Lilo's background. He got out of bed, walked over to the computer and switched it on.

Lilo's detailed information instantly appeared on the monitor! Chad quickly sifted through the information, and his heart began to race wildly in his chest! It was Chelsea Tierney! It really was her! Avery's hunch was right! It was all a part of Chelsea's scheme! Chad picked up the laptop and rushed out of the room.

He had to let Elliot know about this! He barely took two steps out of the room when he ran into Avery.

Avery saw Chad looking unkempt in his pajamas with a laptop in his arms. He was a nervous wreck. His behavior and actions were very strange.

"What's up with you, Chad? Did something happen?" Chad scratched his head, then said in embarrassment, "Where's Mr.Foster? Is he still asleep?"

Elliot walked over the moment he finished his sentence.

He frowned when he saw Chad's disheveled appearance.

Chad had no time to explain.

He rushed over to Elliot and handed him the laptop.

"It's Chelsea Tierney, Sir!" Chad was speaking incoherently out of his shock.

"She was the one who did all of it! She's bad to the core! I'm so disappointed in her!" Avery heard his words, then walked over to them and stared at the laptop's screen.

"Simply put, Nora was a slave that she bought on the dark web! Nora listened to everything she said. Not only that, she's also thinking of buying a middleaged woman who looks like Laura Jensen!" Avery's ankles went weak when she heard those words.

Chapter 716

Elliot held Avery in his arms and carried her to the couch.

"Stay home, Avery. I'll go see Chelsea now." He gazed into her eyes and promised, "I will make her pay the most severe consequences." Avery nodded her head.

Elliot and Chad left moments later.

In the car, Elliot dialed Chelsea's number on his phone. It took a few tries for his call to get answered.

In the past, she had always picked up his calls within seconds.

Chelsea did not speak after she answered the call. She knew that something bad must have happened for him to call her.

"Where are you right now?" Elliot asked in a deep voice.

Chelsea felt chills run through her entire body.

"Is there something I can help you with?"

"Yes,"

"What is it? Let's just talk about it on the phone! I'm afraid to meet you."

There was a hint of caution in Chelsea's tone.

Elliot could read her thoughts, and said, "I feel very bad about hitting you before. I'd like to meet and apologize." Chelsea laughed out loud, then said,

"Even if you think you went too far, you would never go out of your way to apologize to me. I know you too well, Elliot."

"You must have misunderstood me. I always apologize when I make a mistake in front of Avery."

"There are no misunderstandings. I said you wouldn't apologize to me, not that you wouldn't apologize to Avery Tate."

Chelsea felt her heart turn cold, then continued, "I've thought about it in the past couple of days, Elliot. We were a mistake from the very beginning. No matter how you treated me, it was all because of my own doing. My brother said I asked for it, and I agree with him."

Elliot's patience was reaching its limit. He did not want to listen to her reminisce the past and sum up her experience at all.

"Are you in the country or abroad, Chelsea?" he asked.

"Do you want to see me that badly?" The gears turned in Chelsea's head.

Then, she said sharply, "Let me guess. You're definitely not in a hurry to see me just so you can apologize. Could it be..."

"I don't recall you being someone who dillydallies."

"Don't tell me that you found evidence to prove that I was the one behind all those crimes?" Chelsea guessed bravely.

"Did Cole Foster tell you about it? He can't be trusted at all! Avery Tate bribed him. Did you forget that they used to date?" There was no way she would admit that she did all those things.

"Chelsea, I want to meet you, so you can see the proof you want with your own eyes." Elliot's every word was cold Jeerie.

"It doesn't matter if you're here or abroad. I will find you." On the other end of the line, the color drained from Chelsea's face out of fear.

"What proof? What proof did you find?!"

"Your transaction records on the Bridgedale Darknet Organization website." Elliot's Adam's apple bobbed in his throat.

Then, he roared furiously, "You sadistic madwoman! I'll kill you with my own two hands! That's the only way to get over the resentment I feel for you!"

Chelsea's grip loosened, and her phone fell with a bang to the ground.

How did he find her transaction records on the Darknet website?! How did he find them?! She had thought that this was a secret that would never be found out! The friends who introduced her to the website guaranteed that everything that happened on it would never be exposed to the public.

She took a deep breath, then bent over and picked up her phone. She stared coldly at the phone screen as her slender finger pressed down on the power button.

Very quickly, her phone turned off.

Elliot wanted to kill her, but she did not want to die! She had to hide! She could not let him find her!

Chapter 717

After Elliot failed to contact Chelsea, he called Charlie instead.

When Charlie answered the phone and heard about what Chelsea did, he stayed silent for a few seconds.

“Listen, Elliot. You’re half the reason my sister became this way. If I were you, I wouldn’t have let her remain at Sterling Group back then. If you don’t love her, then you shouldn’t have given her any hope at all!”

“I kept her at the company because of her work ethic and capability!”

“I know that, but don’t you think she would start imagining things if she saw you every day? There’s no point in talking about any of this at this point.”

Charlie let out a sigh, then said, “Chelsea is traveling abroad right now. Tell me what you want her to do?”

“I want her dead.”

“Elliot Foster! After all the years she’s been by your side, do you have to be this heartless with her?” Charlie took in a sharp breath, unable to accept this result.

“Can’t you let her live for my sake? We were classmates, after all.”

“Should I let her live so that she can continue to torment Avery?!”

“I guarantee that she won’t ever bother you again! I’ll watch her!” Charlie exclaimed

“You have the love of your life with you and she’s even given you a son. Your life is complete! Forgive and forget! Back when you went insane, life gave you another chance. Why can’t you do the same for Chelsea? I can get proof from the hospital that she’s suffering from mental illness!”

Charlie’s words were a huge blow to Elliot. Proof of mental illness?!

How did Charlie know about that?

Elliot’s silence made Charlie feel relieved, so he added confidently, “Everyone has lost control of themselves at some point, Elliot. I won’t open up your old wounds, but don’t you force my sister to her death! Otherwise, I’m taking you down along with her! I bet Avery Tate doesn't know about your past scandals, right? You don't want your son to get picked on growing up, do you? If that's the case, then let this entire thing come to an end here!"

Elliot's expression was eerily chilling.

Chad did not know what Charlie had said on the phone for Elliot to look as if he was being strangled.

"Should we still look for Chelsea, Sir?" Chad asked when he realized that things might not be as simple as they had thought.

"I want to calm down a little." Elliot's voice was low ANIMCP:b hoarse, and completely void of its earlier strength.

"You promised Avery that you would severely punish Chelsea," Chad reminded him, "She would be extremely upset if you go back on your word. She just gave birth, so she could easily fall into postpartum depression. It's better not to trigger her."

Of course, Elliot was aware of what Chad was saying. However, Charlie now had something on him.

If he touched Chelsea, Charlie would take him down with her. He was pondering if he was able to handle the consequences of his past scandal going public.

If he were by himself, then he would not care about how the world judged him.

However, he now had Avery and three beautiful children. Besides, Hayden and Layla were still in school. They might not call him "Dad", but he had a feeling that they already knew that he was their biological father...

That evening, the black Rolls-Roice slowly pulled into the front yard of the Starry River Villa.

When Avery saw Elliot return, she immediately became anxious.

He had left that morning saying he was going to find Chelsea and make her pay a painful price, but she did not know if things were already settled or not.

The car came to a halt, and Elliot's tall silhouette appeared in her line of vision.

Under the streetlights, the expression of his face was unclear, and she could not read his emotions.

When he finally arrived in front of her, he held her hand and whispered in her ear, "Let's talk in private, Avery."

Avery looked sharply at Elliot, then asked, "You couldn't bring yourself to deal with Chelsea, right? If you can't do it, then I'll go get my revenge myself!"

Chapter 718

As loathing seeped out of Avery's eyes, she could not hold her voice back.

Mike and the two children simultaneously turned to look in their direction.

Elliot immediately pulled Avery toward her bedroom.

"What happened? Why are they fighting again?" Mike mumbled under his breath as he pulled out his phone and texted Chad.

Chad: [Watch the kids. Don't care about anything else.]

Mike: [No wonder you didn't want to come over tonight. Did your boss decide to let Chelsea Tierney go?"]

Chad: [Watch your mouth. He has his reasons no matter what he decides to do.]

Mike: [D*mn it! I shouldn't have showed you the evidence!]

Chad: [Chelsea isn't in the country right now. How do you expect us to find her? Find her yourself since you're so amazing.]

Mike: [I see. If that's the case, then Avery won't be mad.]

In the bedroom on the first floor, Elliot shut the door, then gazed deeply at Avery and said, "Have you met someone with a mental illness, Avery?"

His words made Avery's brows furrow tightly. "Are you trying to say that Chelsea has a mental illness?"

"No, I'm just asking if you've met someone like that." Elliot saw that she had calmed down, so he led her to sit on the bed.

Avery pondered for a few seconds, then nodded and said, "I have, but why are you asking me about that?"

"If someone had a mental illness, committed murder, and escaped legal persecution, would you hate them?"

"Elliot stood next to Avery. His deep set eyes were fixed on her, so he did not miss even the tiniest of emotion.

"It depends on who they murdered. I won't hate them if it was a bad person. If they killed..."

"What if they killed their own family?" Elliot asked, cutting her off.

Avery felt breathless. She raised her brows and said, "That's a weird question, Elliot. If this person already has a mental illness, then every one of their actions is out of their control. What do you expect me to say, asking me to judge a sick person from the point of view of a normal person? I don't know how to answer that, because I've never come across something like that."

"I see." Her answer was unexpected. His eyes darkened as he said, "Sick or not, killing one's family is unforgivable."

"What are you trying to say?" Avery glared at him. "I just want to know what happened when you went to look for Chelsea today."

"Her brother said she's suffering from a mental illness." Elliot's fists clenched slightly. He did not have the courage to take the risk. Avery's reaction gave him no choice but to endure Charlie's threat. If she knew that he was once sick murderer his own father, would she be afraid? Would she take the kids and leave him behind?"

"Just because her brother said she's got a mental illness, does that mean it's true?! Do you really trust them that much? You're just accepting it because you don't want to go against Chelsea, right?!" Avery was emotional and tears welled up in her eyes. "Every time I start to believe you, you always let me down! I've already lost count of the number of times this has happened!"

She had had enough of this emotional torture. If she stopped trusting him, then she would no longer depend on him or have any expectations. That way, she would no longer be disappointed! Elliot's Adam's apple bobbed in his throat as seething grief and sorrow flashed across his eyes.

"Other than this, I will give you anything you want, Avery."

"I don't care about anything else but this!" Avery tared at him with resolute eyes and said adamantly, " What do you think you can give me, Elliot Foster? If you can't even do this one thing right, then what else can you do for me?!" Her words stabbed at Elliot's heart like a sharp knife. What else could he do for her?

He could not come up with an answer.

Chapter 719

Without Elliot, Avery could still raise the children well.

Without him, her life and career would go on without a hitch.

"If it weren't for you, Chelsea wouldn't have incessantly come after me, and Tammy wouldn't have gotten hurt because of it! I wouldn't have given birth prematurely either! What else have you given me but pain, Elliot Foster?!"

The negative emotions buried in the deepest parts of her heart completely exploded.

Avery's criticism left Elliot with nowhere to hide from his shame.

"Avery..."

"Don't say my name!" she cut him off.

"Get out of my house right now! Don't meddle in my business ever again! As for the baby... We'll talk about it when he's out of the hospital!"

Elliot tightly clenched his fists as he watched her emotions utterly shatter.

Reason warned him that he had to leave immediately! If he continued to stay, it would only add to her aggravation. He had already made his decision, and he would not change his mind.

At least Avery merely despised him now, instead of being afraid of him!

Once Elliot left, Mike and the children immediately ran up to Avery's room.

She had already wiped her tears away and quickly composed herself. She was now the mother of three children, so she had to be stronger than she ever was before.

"Did you two fight, Avery? Was it because of Chelsea Tierney? I asked Chad about it..."

Mike wanted to comfort her and tell her not to rush things.

Now that Chelsea had fled the country, it was only normal not to be able to find her. It was not as if she would never return to Aryadelle, right? As long as she returned, with Elliot's connections and tactics, there was no way they would not be able to catch her.

"I'm hungry. Let's go make something to eat!" Avery said, cutting Mike off.

Mike received his intel from Chad, who did not necessarily know about Elliot's decision.

Things between Elliot and her were disastrous. She did not want to tell the people around her about it, nor did she want them to worry.

“Sure. You’re still recovering from giving birth, so don’t pull a long face... I might not think that recovering at home is important, but everyone says it is, which means it probably is pretty important.” Mike tried to ease said, “I know that everything that happened recently was messed up, but at least Baby

Robert was delivered without much trouble. How about we throw him a huge party once he’s discharged from the hospital?”

Avery did not want to rain on his parade, so she agreed.

“Were you the one who kicked Daddy out, Mommy? He didn’t say anything to us when he left. How rude,” Layla said unhappily as she puffed her cheeks.

“Don’t worry about him. Let’s go eat,” Avery said

“Okay... Is he never coming to our house again, Mommy?” Layla’s big, round eyes glistened as she asked curiously, “Didn’t he say he was going to move in and help take care of Robert?”

Mike and Hayden both turned to look at Layla as they tried to make her bring the subject to a close.

Layla, however, obviously did not catch their signal at all.

“Will he come back when Robert’s here?”

Layla’s question almost made Avery lose control of her emotions.

“Robert can’t leave the hospital just yet, Layla. I’ll take this time to properly think about your question.”

“Okay. You look really said, Mommy,” Layla said as she reached out to hold onto Avery’s arm.”

Did Daddy make you mad? Don’t talk to him anymore, and just play with Hayden and me. We definitely won’t make you mad!” Her words filled Avery with immense delight.

“Once I’ve recovered, I’ll take you all on vacation.”

“Sure! We’ll bring Robert and Uncle Mike with us... We’ll all go and have lots of fun!” Layla said excitedly.

The next morning, Avery received a call from the hospital.

“Can you come to the hospital now, Miss Tate? Your baby isn’t doing too well!” The doctor’s voice on the phone was pressing.

“Not only has the rash he developed not gone on, but it’s also now begun to spread... He’s now showing signs of respiratory failure.”

Chapter 720

After calling Avery, the doctor also gave Elliot a call. The two of them arrived at the hospital at the same time.

At the neonatal unit, the doctor explained the baby’s situation to them.

“The traditional treatment we gave him didn’t work. He started sleeping for longer periods of time and his breathing also became weaker... That’s when I realized that his symptoms might not be typical trauma from the premature birth.”

As the doctor spoke, he passed the baby’s chart to them. Avery took over the chart and carefully read through it.

“There’s something wrong with the baby’s immune system.” The doctor’s expression turned heavy as he said, “He’s also severely anemic. I think the most important thing he needs right now is a blood transfusion. I’ve asked the blood bank here, and they don’t have the right blood type available. Your child’s blood type is a little special.”

Elliot’s heart fell to the pit of his stomach as he listened to the doctor’s words.

“His blood type is special?”

“That’s right. We need to find a suitable blood type as soon as possible and start the blood transfusion. Otherwise, his body might not be able to make it past a few days.”

Without hesitation, Elliot immediately said, "Test my blood and see if it's suitable."

The doctor quickly instructed the nurse to take Elliot to get his blood drawn. Avery swallowed back her tears and said, "Neither Elliot's nor my blood are suitable."

"Mr. Foster can check out other hospitals and see if they have this blood type with them," said the doctor.

Avery first thought of Wesley.

She pulled out her phone and called him to tell him about the baby's condition.

"Stay calm for now, Avery. I'll head to our hospital's blood bank right away and take a look," Wesley said as he consoled her.

"Is the anemia genetic or pathological?". Avery took a deep breath, then said hoarsely, "I don't know the reason behind it yet. He'll need additional tests. His body's very weak right now and he needs a blood transfusion right away."

After the phone call, Wesley immediately prepared to make his way to the hospital's blood bank.

Shea went after him and asked confusedly, "What happened, Wesley?"

"Robert needs a blood transfusion," Wesley answered truthfully. "Avery said that he's in critical condition and needs a blood transfusion as soon as possible, but the hospital he's staying in doesn't have the right blood type."

Anxiety and worry instantly appeared on Shea's face.

"What do we do? I haven't met my nephew yet! I don't want him to be sick."

"I'm going to check out the blood bank at my dad's hospital now."

"I'm going with you."

Wesley nodded, then the two got in the car and made their way to Elizabeth Hospital.

On the drive there, he received Avery's message with the baby's blood type.

When it came to blood types, there was one that was relatively rare and special – RH negative blood types.

Unfortunately, that was exactly what Robert's blood type was.

Wesley massaged the space between his brows after receiving the message.

There was practically no point in him going to the hospital now. He was sure that their blood bank did not carry this blood type.

RH negative blood types were extremely rare in Aryadelle, so it was impossible for them to be found in their blood bank.

Blood stored in blood banks had a shelf life of 35 days. There was no way such a rare blood type would be in stock.

"What is it, Wesley?" Shea saw the obvious gloominess on Wesley's face, then looked down at his phone.

"Who texted you? What did they say?"

Chapter 721

Inspiration struck Wesley's mind when he heard Shea's voice.

If memory served him right, Shea's blood type was RH negative...

When Avery operated on her two years ago, Wesley was the one who was in charge of her pre op checkup-up.

As he gazed at Shea's face, his chest began to rise and fall rapidly.

"Why are you looking at me, Wesley?" Shea asked confusedly as she blinked her eyes.

"Say something! What exactly is going on?"

Wesley wanted to speak, but his words were stuck in his throat and did not escape his lips.

If Shea was a regular person, he would definitely tell her about the situation without reservations.

That was because he knew that she would certainly be willing to help Robert with the blood transfusion.

However, Shea was not a normal person.

Her body had gone through many major surgeries, and she was only able to maintain her current lifestyle with the help of meticulous care and nursing.

Wesley would not be able to handle the responsibility of Shea's body having any adverse reactions to the blood transfusion if she were to go through with it.

Robert was important to Elliot, but so was Shea.

"It's nothing. I'm just very worried about Robert." Wesley averted his gaze from Shea's face, then said, "Let's check the blood bank first to see if there are any suitable blood types there."

Shea nodded and said, "Do you think my blood would be suitable for Robert, Wesley? I want to help him... I'm his aunt. I'd be very sad if there was nothing I could do."

Her words moved Wesley to tears.

After Avery gave birth, Shea learned to cook just so she could be helpful. She did not even complain when she cut her finger.

Now that Robert was in critical condition, she instinctively wondered if her blood could be used to help him.

"Don't be sad, Shea. Let's check out the blood bank first. You never know, we might just find a suitable blood type!" Wesley could not help but reach out and hold Shea's hand. "Have I ever told you that I like you a lot, Shea?"

Shea shook her head and said, "You've never said it, but I know. You didn't take my brother's money, but you're still kind to me. I like you, too, Wesley. Apart from my brother, Avery, Layla, Hayden, Robert, you're my favorite person."

"Then, let's be best friends for the rest of our lives, okay?" Shea thought about it, then felt slightly troubled.

"That'd be great, but Mrs. Scarlet told me that you'll be just like Avery and my brother one day. You'll find a girl to marry and have children with. I won't be able to see you every day when that happens, because your wife would be upset."

"I won't get married," Wesley said.

Shea's eyes widened as she asked in confusion, "Why not?"

"My goal in life isn't to get married or have kids. I'm happy for every single day that I get to spend with you, Shea." Wesley's eyes were deep with his sincere feelings.

Shea looked at him and said blankly, "Why do you just want to be best friends with me, then? How about you marry me?"

Wesley was speechless. He had never hoped for that much.

Apart from Avery, Shea was the most important person to Elliot. Wesley was certain that Elliot would never let his sister marry any man.

After all, Shea was different from regular people. Elliot would not easily hand her over to anybody else.

Wesley completely understood how Elliot felt. If he were him, he would feel the same way.

"I can't figure out what you're thinking if you don't speak, Wesley." Shea sighed softly.

"You know I'm not very smart."

“Your brother won’t let you marry anyone, Shea. Being by his side is the safest option for you. “ Wesley did not want to lie to her. She would be devastated if he lied and said that he did not want to marry her.

“I’ll talk to my brother about it. If he doesn’t agree, then I’ll go to Avery. She’ll definitely help us,” Shea said, then smiled and continued, “I’ll talk to my brother about it once Robert’s all better.”

The most crucial matter right now was Robert’s health.

Chapter 722

At the hospital, the result had come out that Elliot’s blood was not a match for Robert.

Thanks to his connections, the search for RH negative blood types expanded to all the major hospitals, who then released requests to the public for RH negative blood donors.

When Mike rushed to the hospital and saw Elliot, he asked, “What happened? What’s wrong with Robert? Why does he suddenly need a blood transfusion?”

The doctor, who was standing on the side, replied to his question, “It’s typical for premature babies to have a series of complications from the premature birth...”

“So, this is all because of the premature birth!” Mike gritted his teeth.

“Avery wouldn’t have had to give birth prematurely if it weren’t for Chelsea Tierney! D*mn her!”

The doctor did not understand what he was cursing about, but continued to explain things from a professional point of view, “Robert’s symptoms aren’t quite the same as other premature babies. There’s a possibility that he might still have this disease even if he was born at full term.”

“Bullsh*t! Avery goes to her prenatal check-ups on time every month, and there was never anything wrong with her test results. Robert wouldn’t be sick if it weren’t for the premature birth!” Mike roared furiously.

The doctor stepped back closer toward Elliot and said, “Sir, please. Prenatal check-ups won’t necessarily detect rare diseases.”

“Oh... Robert has a rare disease?”

“That’s right. We’re not sure what caused it, but Miss Tate is investigating it right now,” answered the doctor.

“Those with rare blood types typically develop rare diseases more easily. There are very few people in the medical field that understand these rare blood types.”

“What a f*cking mess! Layla and Hayden are completely fine. How could Robert be sick?”

“Are you saying that Miss Tate has other children?”

Mike placed his hands on his waist and said, “Avery has two more kids who are very healthy. Would they be able to help Robert with the blood transfusion?”

“How old are the children?” asked the doctor.

“I’m afraid that won’t work. Even if the children’s blood types were a match for Robert, they still would not be able to help him. They’re far too young, so their bodies would not be able to getting that large amount of blood drawn,” said the doctor.

“Only those aged 18 and above are allowed to get their blood drawn for this.”

“Then, what do we do?” Mike asked dejectedly.

“How’s Robert doing now?”

“He’s unconscious right now,” answered the doctor.

“If we don’t start the blood transfusion as soon as possible, his body will get weaker and weaker, and there’s a possibility that he might never wake up again.”

Mike gritted his teeth as all the rage he felt got stuck in his throat, rendering him speechless.

He wanted to save Robert, but there was nothing that he could do.

“Elliot Foster! Come up with something, d*mn it!” he hollered angrily at Elliot.

“You’re the one who wanted this baby! You also indirectly caused the premature birth! If you’re not going to think of a solution, then are you just going to stand around like an idiot and wait for your son’s death?!”

Mike’s words were so awful that it made the doctor walk away in fear.

Elliot’s bodyguard was about to charge at Mike and knock him out after hearing what he said, but Elliot stopped him.

“If my blood was a match for Robert, then I’d let them suck my blood dry!”

Elliot said as he endured Mike’s attack. “I’ve already sent people out to find the blood. If I don’t wait here at the hospital, then where do you think I should go?”

Mike did not expect him to hold back his anger, let alone answer his question in such an orderly manner.

“I’ll kill Chelsea Tierney if anything happens to Robert,” he said as he glared coldly at Elliot. “Your fight with Avery last night must be because you didn’t plan to deal with Chelsea. Chad didn’t give me the whole story, and Avery won’t tell me anything, but I could guess that much.

“Chelsea’s brother said she has a mental illness.”

“That’s even more reason for her to die! Are we supposed to leave her be and let her torment even more people?!” Mike mocked.

“Just because her brother said she’s mentally ill, does that mean it’s true?”

You just believed him blindly? I'm starting to suspect that you're the one who taught them this trick! Ha!"

Elliot tightly clenched his fists.

Mike just said that those with mental illnesses deserved to die!

This was his behavior towards mentally ill patients. When Chad arrived at the hospital, he heard from the doctor about Mike and Elliot's fight.

Chapter 723

Elliot was originally waiting at the neonatal unit, but nobody knew where he ran off to after being chastised by Mike.

Chad dragged Mike by the collar and led him toward the exit.

"Are you f*cking insane?! Mr. Foster is worried enough about Robert as it is. Why did you have to bring up that crap with Chelsea?!" Chad had spent all morning contacting blood banks all over the country, and only now managed to find time to drop by.

"Avery wouldn't have given birth prematurely if it weren't for Chelsea Tierney! If he weren't born prematurely, then Robert would probably be completely fine!" Mike was still furious, to the point that his pale skin turned red with rage.

"Mr. Foster didn't plan on letting Chelsea go. It was that phone call with her brother that made him change his mind," Chad said through gritted teeth. "I suspect Charlie has something on Mr. Foster. Otherwise, he wouldn't have changed his mind!"

"Charlie Tierney said his sister has a mental illness. That's why your boss went soft!"

"That's impossible! Mr. Foster wouldn't go soft on her even if she had an incurable disease, let alone mental illness," Chad retorted.

"It's fine if you won't believe him, but are you not going to trust me either?"

Mike clenched his teeth and turned silent.

Moments later, he asked, "Why do you think that someone else might have something on him? Did he do something bad?"

"Can you say you're a saint? You told me that you did a bunch of bad stuff when you were young and only started to turn into a better person after meeting Avery."

"Well..." Mike touched his nose, still disgruntled.

"Avery must really be blind to have chosen that boss of yours!"

"What's the point of saying any of that? The most crucial thing right now is finding the right blood type as soon as possible... If you've got nothing to do, then go and contact the major blood banks in Bridgedale and see if any of them carry it..."

"Got it! I'll start right away."

Elliot met up with Aryadelle's top pediatric and hematology experts.

After analyzing the blood some investigative research, they believed Robert had a rare blood disorder.

With Robert's current condition, there might be a way to quickly relieve his symptoms. It was to completely change his blood type.

The procedure required a large amount of blood.

They could not even get their hands on a small amount of blood, so where were they supposed to find a large amount of it?

Over at Elizabeth Hospital, Wesley and Sheas were sitting on a bench outside the blood bank.

As Wesley had expected, the blood bank did not carry any blood that matched Robert's.

Shea already found out what Robert's blood type was. She heard about it while Wesley was speaking to the blood bank's staff.

“What’s my blood type, Wesley?” Shea asked, suddenly breaking the silence. Wesley was taken aback. He turned to her, and his lips moved, but he did not say a word.

“Don’t you know what it is? Should I go check right now?” Shea asked.

“What if I could save Robert?”

Shea had RH negative Type O blood. It was different from Robert’s, but Shea’s blood type was a universal donor for all RH negative blood types.

“Don’t be hasty, Shea. Let’s first see if your brother manages to find it.”

Wesley’s voice was strained.

“We’ll talk about it if we have no other choice.”

Wesley’s phone buzzed half an hour later. He pulled it out and read Avery’s text message.

[Wesley. Robert’s anemia is pathological. He needs a blood change.]

Wesley dejectedly took in a deep breath and tightly clenched his fists.

Moments later, he heard the unfamiliarity of his own voice as he said, “Are you willing to donate your blood to Robert, Shea?”

Chapter 724

At the same time, Elliot was out in the cool breeze on the hospital’s veranda. It took Chad forever to finally locate him.

He felt awful as he watched Elliot’s lonely silhouette in the night.

“What are you doing here by yourself, Sir?” Chad said after composing himself.

“I can’t eat,” Elliot responded. His voice was cold and hoarse.

Robert needed a blood change, but due to his peculiar blood type, they had yet to find a suitable source of blood. This was only the first of his woes.

The second was that he knew there was a possibility that Shea's blood type could be a match for Robert.

However, he could not reveal this matter. He could not allow Shea to donate blood to Robert.

It took him 20 years to turn Shea's life from that of someone with a mental disability to one where she could gradually begin to care for herself like a regular person.

All he hopes for was for Shea to maintain her current condition and continue to live her life normally.

How could he possibly ask her to donate blood to Robert? What if something happened to her because of that?

However, how could he have the heart to watch as Robert dies from anemia? He had to deal with all of his agonies by himself, and could not speak a word of it to others.

"Even if you can't eat, you shouldn't be out here. It's freezing out here. You have to be careful not to catch a cold," Chad said. "Avery is still recovering from the birth. She and the kids need you to take care of them."

His words woke Elliot up, and he made his way to the neonatal unit.

When the doctor noticed Avery's sickly complexion, he advised her to go home and get some rest.

"You're still a patient, Miss Tate. You would probably still be hospitalized if you hadn't insisted on being discharged," the doctor said sternly.

"You'll get sick if you don't get enough rest now. The experts that Mr. Foster hired will watch over Robert. Once we find the blood, we will immediately start the blood transfusion..."

Elliot was standing nearby when he witnessed this scene. He quickened his footsteps arrived in front of Avery. He did not speak to her, because she would not listen to anything he had to say anyway. He just picked her up in his arms and carried her toward the elevators.

"I'm not going home!" Avery's eyes reddened as she pounded his chest with her clenched fists.

"I want to stay here with Robert!"

"Who's going to be with Layla and Hayden if you broke down from fatigue?"

Elliot did not stop walking.

"Don't punish yourself because of my mistakes, Avery!"

Avery almost thought that she had heard wrongly. Did Elliot just say that it was his fault?

He finally admitted that he was in the wrong!

Once they entered the elevator, she pushed herself out of his arms.

"What's the point of you admitting your mistakes now? The baby's already born. He's already a living being. If he dies, then you and I won't meet again for the rest of our lives!" Avery said these brutal words as her eyes glistened with tears.

If it were not for the premature birth, there was a possibility that Robert would have been born as healthy as Hayden and Layla.

Even so, Elliot was still unwilling to punish the person behind Robert's premature birth!

His tolerance is exactly why Chelsea Tierney had the courage to act so insolently!

Avery had seen right through it! Even if she had given Elliot three children, she was still no match for Chelsea who had been by his side for over a decade!

Everything around her was a constant reminder that she was forced into getting pregnant with Robert by the heartless man standing in front of her. It was also that madwoman, Chelsea, and her incessant harassment that led to Robert's premature birth!

Elliot stared at Avery in stunned silence. His thin lips parted for a moment, but no words escaped them.

Avery met his gaze with fury. When she saw the glisten of tears at the corner of his eyes, the elevator chimed, and its doors opened immediately after.

"I'll get home myself. You don't have to send me."

Avery left the hospital in her car.

Her tears began to blur her line of vision without warning. She finally could no longer hold back and burst into gut-wrenching sobs.

Before she allowed herself to cry, she brought the car to a halt by the street.

If she had known that a premature birth would lead to such severe consequences for Robert, she would have controlled her emotions and avoided all of this pain.

Seeing how Robert had to endure such torture at a young age was agonizing for Avery. She was willing to give up everything to take the suffering in her child's place!

In a certain mansion, Wanda was holding a glass of wine in her hand. The red liquid swished in the glass along with the movement of her wrist.

She was holding her phone in her other hand and talking on the phone.

"You won, Chelsea." Her tone was especially pleasant.

"Avery Tate's son is about to die. He probably could have been born healthy if it weren't for the premature birth."

Chelsea had already found out about this from Charlie earlier that afternoon.

However, Charlie had only said that the child was seriously ill, and did not mention anything about him being close to death.

“Is he really dying?” Chelsea was a little excited.

“That’s right. The child’s blood type is extremely rare. It’d take a miracle for them to find a suitable donor!” Wanda said carefreely.

“The heavens must dislike her as well, and decided to let her suffer this retribution! Hahahaha!”

“That’s perfect! Knowing she’s suffering makes the pain I’m enduring feel like nothing!” Chelsea said as she felt relieved.

“What’s going on with you right now? I heard you went abroad,” Wanda asked.

“I’m traveling abroad. Elliot and I had a complete falling out. He wants me dead. It’s too bad he can’t kill me,” Chelsea mocked.

“Why not? Don’t tell me you plan on hiding for the rest of your life?”

“You underestimate me!” Chelsea said arrogantly.

“Without him, I still have Trust Capital and my brother to support me. I’m living a much better life than I was when I was with him!”

“Is your brother that amazing? Set up a meeting for me one day so I can get to know him!”

“Sure. I’ll introduce the two of you when I’m back in Aryadelle.”

“In that case, I’ll do one more thing for you to show my sincerity!” Wanda cackled wickedly.

“It’s no wonder you’re successful, Wanda. Of all the people I know, you’re the only one who’s so considerate of me.” Chelsea was in a fantastic mood.

“That’s because Avery Tate is my enemy. The enemy of my enemy is my friend. Our friendship was meant to be.”

Avery had cried against the steering wheel for what seemed like an eternity when her phone rang in her bag. She let out a heavy sigh, then wiped her tears away and pulled her phone out. She did not recognize the number flashing on the screen.

Normally, she would think before she answered an unknown number.

Since Robert got sick, she had given her contact information to several blood banks, so she answered the call without hesitation.

“Hello, is this Miss Tate? I have a package delivery for you. Should I drop it off at the package collection point or send it to your home?”

Avery froze for a moment, then said, “Send it to my house. There are people at home.”

She had not purchased anything online recently, so she wondered who the package was from.

Once the call ended, she composed herself, then stepped on the gas and drove off.

Avery arrived at home about half an hour later.

When she got out of the car, she felt a searing pain on her abdomen. She had cried too hard in the car earlier and strained her wound. Her stitches had most likely ripped open.

She walked into the living room and was about to tend to her wound when Mrs. Cooper appeared, pointed at the package on the floor and said, “That’s for you, Avery. I don’t know what’s inside. It’s very heavy.”

Chapter 726

Mrs. Cooper thought about how Avery should not be handling heavy items right now, so she said thoughtfully, “Should I bring it up to your room for you?” Avery stared at the package in front of her, then shook her head and said, “I didn’t buy anything, so I don’t know what’s inside. Please open it up for me.”

“Alright. I’ll go get some scissors.”

When Mrs. Cooper went to get the scissors, Hayden and Layla walked over.

Avery was in incredible pain from her wound, so she sat down on the couch.

“What’s in the package, Mommy?” Layla asked as she arrived next to Avery.

“I don’t know, either,” Avery said.

“I didn’t buy anything recently.” Hayden’s brow furrowed.

“Could it be something scary like the last time?” he guessed.

His words sent alarms ringing in Avery’s mind.

Mrs. Cooper had said that the box was heavy. Could there be things like bricks or cement inside?

“Take your sister to your room, Hayden.” Avery was worried that there really was something horrifying in the package. It would be awful if it scared the children. Hayden glanced at the package for a moment, then grabbed a hold of Layla and dragged her toward the stairs.

“I want to see what it is, Hayden!” Layla huffed quietly.

“You’ll have nightmares if it’s something scary.”

“I still want to see!”

“We’ll take a look after Mommy opens it.”

“Okay! Why isn’t Uncle Mike home yet? Didn’t he say he’d stay at home for the next few days to take care of us? He even said that Mommy needs to be taken care of!”

Hayden also did not know why Mike had not returned. He also had a feeling that something was something off about his mother’s mood. He had originally thought that everyone except Layla and himself would be happy about Robert’s birth. In the end, it felt like everyone was upset apart from him and his sister.

Did they not say that Robert would be able to come home after a month or so? Why was everyone so unhappy?

“I’ll give him a call.” Hayden led Layla into their room, then used his smartwatch to call Mike.

When Mike answered the call, he asked, “Hayden, is your mom home yet?”

“Yes. Why aren’t you back yet?”

“I’m at the hospital. I’ll be back later.”

“What are you doing there? Didn’t they say Robert can’t have visitors?”

Mike hesitated for a few seconds as he felt extremely torn.

Even if he kept things from Hayden right now, he was bound to find out if Robert did not make it through this.

“Your brother’s sick. Things aren’t looking good.” Mike tried his best to keep his tone light.

” Take care of your sister, Hayden.”

“What’s wrong with him?” Hayden’s expression instantly turned gloomy.

“Can’t they just treat him if he’s sick?”

“He needs a blood change. We can’t find a source right now, so they can’t give him a blood transfusion. If he doesn’t get one soon, he’ll die. This isn’t something that can be settled with money, nor is it something that your mother’s medical skills can solve. That’s why you need to be alright. The two of you are the reason for your mother to keep living.

In the living room downstairs, when Mrs. Cooper opened up the package, a black headstone appeared before her eyes.

She let out a scream of horror and stumbled back several steps!

Avery saw the headstone from the couch and shot to her feet.

Who would send her a headstone? Whose was it?! Her blood instantly boiled as a strong hunch rose inside of her.

Chapter 727

Avery trembled as she walked toward the black headstone...

"Avery! Don't look!" Mrs. Cooper snapped out of her shock and quickly blocked the headstone from view, not letting Avery catch a glimpse.

Avery quickly rushed over to Mrs. Cooper and shoved her aside.

"I want to see it... Show me!"

Before Mrs. Cooper blocked the headstone, she had already clearly seen the white text engraved on it.

The words read "Here Lies Robert Foster"!

Robert was still alive! Who would send such a thing to disgust her?!

"Avery... Whoever sent this must have had cruel intentions! Let's call the police!" Mrs. Cooper held onto Avery's trembling yet rigid body as she consoled her.

"You would be falling for their trap if you got too upset! You have to stay clearheaded, Avery! Robert is still alive! No matter what anyone says, he's still perfectly alive!"

Mrs. Cooper's words instantly shattered Avery's emotions that she fought so hard to control.

She held onto Mrs. Cooper and cried hoarsely, "Robert's in critical condition... I can't save Robert... I can't save him... I let him down... I won't forgive myself if he dies...."

Mrs. Cooper's eyes reddened as she said, "Life and death are unavoidable, Avery. If Robert truly doesn't make it, it must be because heaven awaits him with a better life. Don't blame yourself. Whoever's fault it is, it can't possibly be yours. Nobody loves Robert more than you do."

Over at the hospital, Elliot's emotions instantly crumbled the moment he saw his son.

With reddened eyes, he held back his tears and found the doctor.

“Why won’t my blood work?” he asked in a strained voice.

“Why would twins have different blood types? Even if they weren’t the same type, the difference shouldn’t be that large...”

“Mr. Foster, twins are categorized into identical and fraternal twins. In the case of the latter, there is indeed a possibility of the twins having different blood types. As long as their blood types are different, there will be huge discrepancies,” answered the doctor.

“I know you are very upset, Mr. Foster, but not every premature child gets to live. Miss Tate are still young, you could still...”

“I won’t give up on Robert!” Elliot snapped, cutting him off.

The doctor pursed his lips and did not know how to continue.

Just because they did not give up, did not mean that a miracle would happen.

If Robert did not get a blood transfusion tonight, there is a possibility that he would not make it to see tomorrow.

At that moment, Elliot’s phone rang.

When he saw that the call was from Mrs. Cooper, he immediately answered it.

“Master Elliot! Someone just sent Avery a headstone with Robert’s name on it! We don’t know who sent it! It’s too cruel! Avery cried so much that she passed out,” Mrs. Cooper sobbed.

Elliot’s fingers tightened around his phone.

A headstone with Robert’s name on it?!

Of course, Avery would not be able to stand it. If he had seen it himself, he probably would be furious enough to kill the person who made it!

“I’m on my way!”

Elliot hurried toward the elevator.

As he approached the elevator doors, a terrifying gut feeling suddenly rose inside of him.

He stopped in his tracks, then turned and walked toward the doctor’s office.

“Doctor, would someone who once had a serious illness and underwent several brain surgeries be able to donate blood?”

He refused to give up on Robert! He was terrified that Avery would not be able to handle his death.

This was why the idea of allowing Shea to donate her blood to Robert materialized in his head.

However, his idea was quickly shot down by the doctor.

“Of course not! The blood donor must be in good health. Someone who’s had a severe illness won’t have the same physical fitness as a regular person. Rashly donating blood like that could cause serious damage to the donor’s body!”

The little light that was left in Elliot’s eyes instantly vanished.

He would not let Shea take that risk.

As for Robert, he felt extremely guilty.

It was his dream to be a good father. In the end, he was the one who would directly cause the death of his own son!

Chapter 728

Perhaps it was just as Avery had said. He was not worthy of raising children or being a father!

With his own life in shambles, how was he supposed to care for a child?

By the time Wesley rushed over, only Mike and Chad were left waiting at the neonatal unit.

“What’s that, Wesley?” Mike asked when he noticed the case Wesley was holding.

The words “Blood Transfusion Kit” was printed on the case.

“Blood,” Wesley responded, then made his way toward the attending doctor’s office.

Mike and Chad followed him.

“Is that blood that Robert could use? Is it that RH negative stuff?”

“Yes, but there isn’t much,” Wesley said.

Mike and Chad were dumbfounded.

“Where did you manage to get it, Wesley?”

Wesley did not answer that question. His heart was heavy.

When he asked Shea if she was willing to donate blood to Robert, she nodded her head without hesitation.

After that, he ran a series of basic tests to see if Shea was in suitable condition to donate blood.

The results showed that she was not in good shape.

Wesley regretted bringing this matter up to Shea because she had insisted on donating her blood to Robert when she found out that she could save him.

Wesley could not argue against her and ended up drawing a quarter of a pint of blood first.

After getting her blood drawn, Shea’s complexion instantly turned pale.

Wesley quickly took her home before rushing to the hospital with the blood.

After he handed the blood over to the doctor, Mike and Chad surrounded him and asked, “Where did you get the blood, Wesley? We didn’t hear anything about a source being found!”

Wesley gave them the excuse he had come up with earlier and said, "A good samaritan donated it at my dad's hospital."

"A good samaritan? You're saying they didn't ask for money?" Mike was in disbelief.

"We should give them some money even if they didn't want it. How could we just let them sacrifice like that for free? Not only should we pay them, but we should be paying them a lot."

At this point, Chad lowered his voice and added, "If we don't have enough blood, we'll need them to donate more... We should pay them now so they can properly recover their health."

"That's right! Give me the good samaritan's contact information, Wesley. I'll pay them!"

Wesley's heart was heavy as he said, "They specifically said that they did not want any payment. They just wanted quietly to do something kind stay anonymous."

"That's weird. Are they really rich?" Mike said in confusion.

"Do you have their contact information? If the blood isn't enough, then you should contact them again. We'll give them anything as long as they're willing to donate the blood..."

Wesley was not one to easily lose his temper, but Mike and Chad's behavior made him clench his teeth.

"An adult can only donate blood again six months after the first donation! Even if Robert needed the blood, it can't just be drawn from one person... The most urgent matter now is to find more sources!"

"Don't be mad, Wesley. We don't know much about this stuff, so we might say something dumb. We just want Robert to get well soon."

Wesley composed himself, then said, "It's fine. I'm also anxious. I hope Robert recovers soon, too."

"Thank you, Wesley!" Mike said.

"Don't thank me. You should thank the blood donor." Wesley glanced around them, then asked, "Where are Avery and Elliot?"

"Avery isn't in good shape, so she went home to rest. Mr. Foster got a call earlier. It seemed like it was something urgent, so he left," said Chad. "I'll call him right now. He'll be relieved when he finds out we got the blood."

Wesley turned slightly to the side as his expression turned heavy. He did not dare face Elliot. He could not imagine how he would react if he found out that the blood came from Shea.

Over at the Starry River Villa, Elliot's phone rang as he got out of the car.

When he answered the call and heard what Chad told him, the tightness between his brows loosened.

It was as if a ray of light had appeared before him.

He strode into the villa's living room.

"Wesley was the one who brought the blood over. He said a good samaritan donated it at his father's hospital. He left after sending the blood," Chad reported.

"The doctor is testing the blood right now. If it's a match, they'll immediately start the blood transfusion for Robert." Elliot had no doubts, and let out a long sigh of relief.

Chapter 729

Elliot's pace quickened as he made his way up to the master bedroom.

When he opened the door, the lamp on the nightstand was turned on. Avery was sitting with her eyes wide open. They were blank globes of emptiness as if someone had taken her soul away.

“We found the blood, Avery,” Elliot said as he walked into the room.

This news was more useful than any of his consolation.

Avery immediately sat up when he heard his words.

Elliot quickly rushed over and held her.

“Stay home and rest, Avery. I’ll go to the hospital right now and see.”

He saw the light gradually return to her face and comforted, “Robert will be better.”

“Have they started the blood transfusion?” Avery grabbed Elliot’s arm and gazed at him with an expression of anticipation.

“The doctor is testing the blood right now. Wesley brought it over, so there shouldn’t be any issues,” he said hoarsely.

“You don’t look too good. Get some rest. I’ll let you know right away if I get any news from the hospital.”

Avery let out a huge sigh of relief.

The knot in her heart unraveled slightly.

“Go to the hospital, then!”

“Okay.”

Elliot helped Avery lie down, watched her close her eyes, then left the room.

When he arrived in the living room, a frosty chill appeared in his eyes as he asked Mrs. Cooper, “Where’s the headstone?”

“I threw it in the trash,” Mrs. Cooper answered with furrowed brows.

“Whoever sent it is too vile!”

Elliot strode out of the house. He pulled the headstone out from the garbage bin outside.

Under the streetlights, the white engraving on the headstone stabbed at his heart.

When the bodyguard saw Elliot pull the headstone out of the trash, he asked in confusion, "Where do you plan on taking that awful thing, Sir?"

He wanted to take the headstone from him, but Elliot did not let go.

"Open the trunk."

The bodyguard immediately opened up the trunk.

Elliot placed the headstone in the trunk, then got in the car.

After that, they made their way to the police station.

Elliot dropped the headstone at the police station requested, "Test this headstone for fingerprints and find out who's behind it."

He was not going to let anyone involved in this go! He arrived at the hospital at ten that night.

The blood that Wesley brought was a match for Robert, and they had already begun the blood transfusion.

Elliot urgently wanted to know who the blood donor was.

"Sir, Wesley said that the good samaritan who donated the blood did not want any payment and did not want to reveal their identity," Chad said.

"Also, after an adult donates blood, they have to wait six months until they can donate blood again. That's why we can't ask the good samaritan to donate again anytime soon."

"Let's hope Robert gets well soon!" Mike said.

"I'm just worried that a quarter of a pint isn't enough," said Chad with concern.

Elliot felt that there was something strange about this.

A regular person probably would not reject a handsome compensation. He could not help but feel uneasy. He found the doctor and asked about the donated blood type.

The doctor answered, "The donated blood is RH negative Type O blood. This blood type is a universal donor for all RH negative blood types."

Elliot did not hear the latter of the doctor's explanation.

It was because Shea's blood type was exactly the one that the doctor mentioned. Could it be that Shea was the blood donor?!

Chapter 730

With furrowed brows, Elliot pulled out his phone and dialed Wesley's number.

A few seconds after the call was made, he heard Wesley's exhausted voice.

"How's Robert doing?"

"Where did you get the blood, Wesley?" Elliot walked over to a secluded corner, then raised his voice and demanded, "You should know what I'm asking about!"

Shea spent every single day with Wesley. There was a high possibility that the blood that he brought belonged to Shea.

Wesley did not want to lie, nor did he want to tell him the truth right away.

"I don't think we have a trusting relationship, Elliot Foster," Wesley said calmly.

"Would you trust what I say? Did you ever believe me back when I explained that there was nothing going on between Avery and me?"

"This is a separate matter entirely."

"I've had a long day." Wesley did not want to continue speaking to him.

"If you want to know if the blood was Shea's, then you can ask her directly.

I'm sure she will answer your question."

"You don't think I'll ask her? It's late. I don't want to wake her," Elliot said.

"That's right. It's late, and I need to rest, too." Before Wesley hung up the phone, he pressured him and said, "I'm afraid the blood that I sent to the hospital tonight won't be enough. We need to find more as soon as possible.

Robert's sickness can't be dragged on any further."

"Don't you think I want to save my son?"

After Elliot said this, the words he wanted to say afterward got stuck in his throat and did not escape his lips.

He knew that Wesley was working hard to find more sources, so he could not lose his temper with him.

After a moment of silence, Wesley said, "Avery's wound can't handle too much stress. Take care of her."

"Got it."

"I'm hanging out." Wesley quietly sighed.

He knew that Elliot was going through a hard time. Not only did he have to carry the responsibilities of a father, but he also had to prepare for the pain of losing his son at any time. On top of that, there was Avery...

If anything happened to Robert, it would put a strain on his relationship with Avery.

Once the call ended, Elliot opened up his contacts BKMMCW

It was half-past ten, and Shea would usually be asleep by now.

He decided to call her tomorrow instead.

Just as he was about to put his phone away and go check on Robert, his phone screen suddenly lit up

When he saw that it was a call from Shea, his heart began to race.

Was it telepathy? She was still awake at this time of night.

Elliot answered the call.

"Why are you still up, Shea?"

"I had a dream about Robert... How is he? I'm so worried about him!" Shea's voice was drowsy.

“Wesley brought a bag of blood here tonight. They’re doing the blood transfusion right now,” Elliot said, then asked, “Shea, was the blood that Wesley brought yours?”

Shea never lied to him, so he was very nervous about her answer.

“It isn’t mine,” Shea said, then asked, “Could my blood save Robert? Big Brother, if my...”

Hearing her words, Elliot immediately interjected and said, “That’s not it. Your blood can’t save Robert. Your health isn’t in good condition, so you can’t donate blood. Remember what I’m saying to you.”

Shea responded obediently, then said, “It’s late, Big Brother. You should get some sleep, too. Your health will get worse if you don’t get enough sleep.”

“I’ll see if Robert will wake up tonight. I’ll sleep if he wakes up.” Elliot was much more relaxed than before.

“Go back to sleep, Shea. Turn on the lights if you’re scared.”

“Okay. Can I go to the hospital tomorrow? I’m worried about Robert.”

“You can come if you want.”

“Okay. I’ll go tomorrow morning.”

Chapter 731

Elliot walked over to the intensive care unit and sat on a bench outside.

Mike sat down next to him.

“Go home and get some rest,” Elliot said.

” I’m used to staying up at night. I won’t be able to sleep if I went back now.”

Mike leaned back against the chair and scrolled through his phone.

“I’m looking for sources in Bridgedale... It’s not like people who have this rare blood type don’t exist. Why do you think nobody’s donating? Are we not offering enough money?"

"Not everyone knows their blood type, and not everyone knows about our needs." Elliot's eyes were cold as he said, "The world's bigger than we think it is. Plenty of people live in areas with no electricity or water. They don't even know what the internet is."

Mike stared at him carefully and said, "That makes sense. I think I know why all those women fall for you. You're capable, but you also sometimes drive people mad."

"Please elaborate. " Perhaps it was because of the silence of the night, but Elliot felt calmer.

"Do you know what I like about Chad?" Mike gave him an example and said, "We tell each other everything. There are no secrets between us. I think most couples are just like us. You and Avery aren't like that, though. Maybe it's because you're someone who sits at the top of the pyramid, so you have more secrets that you can't reveal to others."

Mike's words turned Elliot silent.

"I can tell that you love each other, but you'll only continue to fight endlessly if you don't close the gap between the two of you. She won't marry you no matter how many kids you have and how much money you make," Mike continued.

Elliot's eyes glistened slightly as a hint of helplessness flashed across them.

"I don't need her to marry me, Mike. I just want Robert to get better and raise the children with her. " He lowered his gaze as he said indifferently, " Someone like me is content with just being able to have kids."

"Is that really what you think?" Mike chuckled coldly.

"Yes."

"Then, what if Avery wants to get married? What if she marries someone else in the future? Would you be able to be so carefree?" Mike said emotionally. Elliot felt a lump in his throat as he found it hard to answer his questions. Of course, it would be impossible for him to be carefree. He won't marry, but he also did not want to see her get married.

Suddenly, the doors to the intensive care unit burst open as the doctor walked out.

"Robert's condition is improving, Mr. Foster," said the doctor excitedly. "The blood transfusion worked!"

Mike shot to their feet as different levels of joy appeared on their faces.

"Was the blood enough?" Elliot asked nervously.

"It's better if we had a little more as back—up. His condition improved because he just got a blood transfusion. We don't know what will happen after this."

"I'll go find more right away," Elliot said.

"Me, too!" Mike exclaimed.

The two men had planned on getting some rest after Robert woke up.

However, now that Robert's condition had improved, they were even more afraid to fall asleep.

The next day, Avery arrived at the hospital accompanied by Mrs. Cooper. After the doctor explained Robert's condition to Avery, he said, "After Mr. Foster found out that the blood transfusion worked last night, he immediately left to find more sources. He's been calling every two hours to ask about Robert's condition. I've never met a father as dedicated as he is."

The doctor's words sent ripples running through Avery's heart.

"Thank you," she said hoarsely.

"I'm just doing my job. By the way, a woman claiming to be Robert's aunt came to see him this morning, ” said the doctor. “She looked pale, so I asked her to go home and rest.”

“Robert’s aunt?” Avery mumbled.

“Could it have been Shea?” she wondered to herself.

“Yes, her complexion was unusually pale. She looked malnourished and hypovolemic, ” said the doctor. “If she really was Mr. Foster’s sister, you should warn him about this.”

Chapter 732

Avery pulled out her phone, found Shea’s number, and dialed it.

The call went through, but nobody answered.

After the call was ended automatically, she called Wesley.

Wesley very quickly answered the phone and said, “How are you doing, Avery? How’s Robert’s condition?”

“I’m doing well. Robert’s also doing well right now... The doctor said that Shea came to the hospital this morning and that she looked very pale. I tried calling her but there was no answer. I’m a little worried about her.”

Alarm bells began to ring in Wesley’s mind.

“Okay. Let me know once you’ve seen her. She usually looks just fine, why would she suddenly look pale? If her complexion looks really bad, take her to the hospital for a check-up.”

“Got it.”

Wesley hung up the phone, then immediately called Shea’s bodyguard.

When the bodyguard picked up the phone, Wesley asked anxiously, “Where’s Shea right now? Is she okay?”

“She fell asleep in the car. We’re almost home,” responded the bodyguard.

“Shea’s complexion doesn’t look great today, Mr. Brook. I wonder if it’s because she woke up too early this morning.”

The bodyguard did not know that Shea had donated blood the night before. The blood was drawn in Wesley’s father’s office.

“Take her home to rest. I’m on my way over.”

“Understood.”

At the hospital, Avery was surprised when Henry’s family showed up.

“Avery, my parents wanted to come to see you a few days ago after hearing that you’d given birth, but my uncle said that you were in a bad mood so we didn’t end up coming,” Cole said. “How’s the baby doing?”

“He’s fine for now,” Avery responded.

“That’s good. Why isn’t my uncle here?” Cole asked curiously as he glanced around.

“He’s gone to find blood sources.” Avery turned to Henry and Olivia, then said, “The baby’s in the intensive care unit right now and can’t take visitors. There’s nowhere here to entertain you either.”

“That’s fine. We just dropped by to take a look and will leave soon.” Olivia pulled out a packet of cash and said, “This is a small gift for Robert. We hope he recovers and leaves the hospital soon.”

Avery could not decline the gift, so she accepted it and said, “Thank you.”

“You look a lot more haggard than before, Avery.” With a kind face, Olivia consoled her and said, “Robert will be fine as long as Elliot’s around to take care of him. You shouldn’t worry too much and focus on your recovery.”

“Avery is an amazing doctor. She might be able to help in Robert’s treatment. How could she recover in peace?”

“Ah, I almost forgot about that. Since Elliot isn’t here, then let’s have Cole stay here with you, ” said Olivia.

Avery immediately declined and said, “It’s fine. There are doctors and the bodyguard here...”

“Let me stick around for a while, Avery! I’ll leave once my uncle gets back,” Cole said, cutting her off.

“Robert is my cousin, after all.”

The word “cousin” made Avery fall silent.

Once Henry and Olivia left, Cole was much more relaxed.

“My parents want to have a good relationship with you and my uncle, Avery. That’s what I want, too. Since my grandmother passed away, my uncle’s never gone back to the old mansion. The entire place is cold and quiet. It shouldn’t be that way. I’ll treat you as my aunt from now on and do whatever you tell me to do...”

Avery raised her brows at him and said, “Is your company in trouble? Do you need your uncle’s help again?”

“How could you say something like that...”

“Didn’t you say I’m your aunt? Is that how you speak to your aunt?” Avery snapped.

“Listen up, Cole Foster. If you want to kiss up to your uncle, go ahead and do it directly. You’ll get nothing doing it through me,” Avery said, then shoved the packet of cash back to Cole and said, “Take this since you’re short on money!” Cole’s temples pulsed with anger, but he could only endure it.

Chapter 733

He picked up his phone and saw a message from an unknown number. He opened the message and the content came into sight.

‘Shea is gone. I will do as she asked and scatter her ashes to the sea. I’m sorry for the pain we've put you through. I'm really sorry. I will give up everything that I own in Aryadelle as my atonement. – Wesley Brook'

Eliot gritted his teeth as tears welled up in his eyes.

All his hard work on trying to calm himself for the past few days had all been ruined when he saw the message.

Shea was dead. She really was gone. She had given up on her life to have Robert.

Elliot had not put so much effort into protecting her throughout the years just so that she could be someone's blood bag.

His fingers began to turn white from how tightly he was holding onto his phone. When the screen dimmed, he pressed on it again.

He didn't want to accept the reality, but the message was an unforgiving reminder of what had happened.

Meanwhile, in Bridgedale.

Once Avery and Robert settled down, she made a phone call to the family member of Adrian in hope to arrange a meeting as soon as possible.

His family told her that she was welcome to visit them at their house whenever she had the time, so Avery handed her child to Mrs. Cooper and headed to the White Family Mansion. She had not looked into Adrian's background before, because it was not important; but now, she was intrigued by him.

Upon arriving at the White Family Mansion, Adrian's sister welcomed her.

"Miss. White, is your family from Bridgedale? Have you been to Aryadelle before?"

Adrian's sister was slightly taken by surprise.

“My dad is from Aryadelle and my mom is from Bridgedale.”

“Oh... What about Adrian? Same as you?”

“Doctor Tate, how is asking about this going to help with the treatment?”

Adrian’s sister was apparently reluctant to mention anything private.

“Of course it would help. We need to know how an illness developed in order to treat it, such as what happened to the patient prior to him getting sick,”

Avery said.

“I will need to get my dad to answer your question, then, because I hardly know much about my brother,” she said, before calling her father.

After twenty minutes, a man in his fifties appeared before Avery.

Avery’s eyes were caught as soon as she saw the man, who resembled someone she knew.

The man sat down on the couch across Avery. “Doctor Tate, I heard that you would like to know more about Adrian’s condition. He was born with the illness I’ve taken him to countless famous doctors, but none of them managed to cure him.”

Avery collected herself and nodded. “Are you born in Aryadelle?”

“Yes.”

“What about Adrian?”

The man remained silent for a few moments, before saying, “he’s born in Bridgedale. Forgive me, Doctor Tate, but I can’t tell you any more than this.

Adrian is a tragedy of our family and we’ve been suffering.”

Avery did not raise any further questions and got up to leave. She had felt odd when she last saw Adrian and that feeling had strengthened when she saw his father this time.

Chapter 734

Elliot's words left a deep impression on Avery's heart. He thought that Robert's sickness was life's punishment for him.

As a doctor, Avery could not agree.

Robert's illness was due to both the premature birth and the fact that his body was weak.

Her entire pregnancy was a rollercoaster ride. She was sick multiple times and had to take all kinds of drugs. She was also partially responsible for Robert's condition.

"I'll try to rush back in the next two hours, Avery."

Elliot decided to book an entire plane once he arrived at the airport.

"Drive safe," Avery croaked.

"I will. The signal here is pretty bad. I'm hanging up."

"Okay."

Perhaps neither of them realized that, before Robert was born, they had fought over the matter with Chelsea, and broke things off completely.

Now, all Avery wanted was for Robert's condition to quickly stabilize. Nothing else was more important than that.

Moments later, Chad arrived with dinner for her.

"Eat something, Avery!" he said. "The police found some preliminary clues on the headstone."

Avery raised her brows and asked, "The police know about that?"

"Yes. Mr. Foster asked the police to search the headstone for fingerprints to see where it's been." Chad handed her a glass of water, then continued, "The police found that the headstone was made in a family-run workshop on the outskirts of town. The owner is over fifty years old and his son is crippled. His father is also very old. He's usually the one making the headstones while his wife takes care of his father and their son. There are no surveillance cameras there. They heard from the owner that the person who ordered the headstone was a man in his thirties who was dressed in relatively casual clothes. He paid in cash and didn't leave any personal information."

"I see. I figured that they wouldn't dare leave information behind. People like that would only do evil things like this in secret."

"The police have started surveilling the area according to the description that the owner gave," Chad said. "Let's hope we can find who was behind it! Otherwise, none of us would be able to let this go."

Avery did not say anything. She had an inkling about who sent the headstone. It was either Chelsea or.

Both of them had mortal vindictiveness against her.

They must be laughing away seeing her son in critical condition right now.

"It probably wasn't Chelsea," Chad said when Avery stayed silent. "She's fled the country and absolutely terrified right now. I'm sure she wouldn't do something like this to provoke Mr. Foster."

"I'm the one she's provoking," Avery said, correcting him.

"The headstone was sent to my house."

"Robert is Mr. Foster's son, though. Playing this kind of sick joke on Robert is waging war against Mr. Foster. Chelsea definitely wouldn't have the guts to do that." Chad felt that he knew Chelsea rather well.

"Didn't they say she's got a mental illness? We can't know what someone with a mental illness is thinking," Avery mocked as she took a sip of soup.

Chad scratched his head in embarrassment, then said, "Let's eat! We'll see if the police can find out who did it.”

“I feel bad that you’ve been dragged into this whole thing with Robert, Chad.”

Avery put her spoon down after barely having a few bites of food.

“You don’t need to come by tomorrow. It’s the end of the year, so the company should be quite busy, right?”

Chad explained, “I’m not that busy. Mr. Foster pretty much settled all of this year’s work before he took time off. Besides, the vice president and Ben are there. This won’t affect our usual operations.”

Avery listened and nodded her head.

“If you really can’t eat much, then have more soup, Avery! Mrs. Cooper made it,” Chad said. “Your body’s still weak from giving birth. No matter how Robert’s doing, you still need to take care of yourself.”

Avery picked up her spoon and took a sip of her soup, then asked, “Let me take the liberty to ask you a question, Chad. Have you ever seen Elliot’s medical reports?”

Chad suddenly froze. She changed the way she asked her question and said, “Do you know how his health is?”

Chad responded and said, “I’ve never seen his medical reports. That’s something private, after all. Although I do have an idea about how his health is...”

Chapter 735

Avery stared at Chad and waited for him to continue.

“He has some stomach problems. When he gets busy and nobody is there to remind him, he’ll forget to eat which triggers his stomach issues. He’s got medication in his office and in his car. Other than that, he’s also got mild depression. I heard about that from Ben. You can’t really tell he’s got depression from your usual interactions with him.”

“I could tell. His mood is unpredictable, which gives people a sense of oppression.

“I’m used to it, so I don’t think it’s that bad,” Chad said awkwardly.

“Does he have any other illnesses?” Avery continued to ask.

Chad thought about it and said, “I don’t think there’s anything serious.”

“Anything psychological, for example?”

“Wouldn’t depression count for that?”

“Medically speaking, depression is considered a mental illness,” Avery responded.

“Oh... Are the psychological issues you’re talking about referring to people in mental hospitals with psychological disorders?” Chad frowned.

“Not all psychological disorders are severe enough for one to be sent to a mental hospital.”

“Why are you suddenly suspecting Mr. Foster of having a psychological disorder, Avery?” Chad asked.

“It’s not a sudden suspicion. I’ve had a feeling for a while,” Avery said softly.

“I’m suspecting this because he’s brought this up to me before. Don’t tell him that we talked about this.”

“Got it. From a doctor’s point of view, does it seem to you like Mr. Foster has a psychological disorder?” Chad’s mood was complicated.

He would never have connected Elliot Foster with a mental health patient.

“He’s always upsetting me, but I wouldn’t take him for someone with a psychological disorder just because of that. Besides, I’m not a psychologist.

My words have no authority.”

After dinner, Avery went to the intensive care unit to check on Robert.

Robert had slipped into a coma once again because of his anemia. Her heart ached at the sight of his tiny body and quiet sleeping face. It looked almost as if he would never wake up again.

Sometime later, the doctor burst into the room.

“Miss Tate! The bag of blood that Mr. Foster brought is being tested right now. If it’s a match, we’ll use it on Robert right away.”

Avery’s heart, which felt like it was dangling in midair, suddenly fell to the ground. She walked out of the intensive care unit with Elliot’s handsome yet haggard face.

He looked like he had not slept for at least two days.

“Thank you,” she said as she lowered her gaze. “You should go home and get some sleep. Don’t exhaust yourself.”

As she spoke, she suddenly noticed that his trousers were dirty where his knee was.

Elliot had always taken care of his appearance and would never show up in public in this state. She crouched down to pat away the dirt on his knee, but suddenly discovered that his other trouser leg was also dirtied in the same spot.

Elliot did not expect to forget to change into a clean pair of trousers, and he did not expect Avery to notice!

He instinctively took a few steps back.

“What happened?” When Avery saw him step back, she grabbed his arm and did not let him escape.

Her almond-shaped eyes were fixed calmly on him.

Elliot pursed his lips. He did not know how to answer her.

“Mr. Foster got down on his knees to beg for that bag of blood!” said the bodyguard indignantly.

Chapter 736

The moment the bodyguard said those words, everyone in the room was stunned.

People would believe it if someone said that Elliot Foster had killed someone, but saying that he got down on his knees must be a joke! He was a formidable force in Aryadelle. With his status, there would never be the need for him to bow down to anyone!

However, at this moment, Elliot was hanging his head. His silence was his confession.

Avery suddenly recalled what he had said on the phone earlier.

He said that he did not use force, and that he was going to try his best to be a good person so that their son did not have to pay for his mistakes.

Avery felt a tingling sensation in her nose. She pulled his arm and dragged him away from the crowd.

“What happened?” Chad asked the bodyguard once Avery and Elliot were out of sight.

“The person whose blood was a match was a lady in her fifties. She lives in the mountains, so her mindset is relatively ignorant. She thought that donating blood would shorten her lifespan. Mr. Foster offered money, but she didn’t want it. She said she was afraid to die. Mr. Foster tried to reason with her countless times to no avail. In the end, he could only get down on his knees and beg her,” explained the bodyguard as his brows furrowed and his fists clenched tightly.

“I’ve never seen Mr. Foster in that sorry state! There were plenty of ways for us to get that blood, but he insisted on choosing the most ridiculous method!”

he continued.

Chad's face was stern as he said, "He has his reasons for doing that. He has a kid now, so he needs to set a good example for him."

The bodyguard was not convinced, but he could not control Elliot's actions.

"Mr. Foster has gone this far for the sake of the baby. Avery Tate would be going too far if she still treats him badly!" snapped the bodyguard furiously. .

"Avery knows the difference between right and wrong. She won't give Mr. Foster trouble as long as Robert gets better," Chad said, then took a seat on the bench.

Elliot brought back over half a pint of blood this time. It was still uncertain if that amount was enough to help Robert with his blood change.

Avery led Elliot to a secluded corner. She had many things she wanted to say, but she could not say a word when it was time to speak.

Elliot was Robert's father. Everything he did for Robert was his responsibility duty.

Even so, she knew very well that the man standing before her was not someone who was easily shackled.

The fact that he had once almost strangled Hayden to death was proof that he did not have much patience with children.

She never expected him to go this far for Robert.

"Elliot..."

"I did what I had to do," Elliot interjected when he saw Avery's eyes redden.

"If there's a way to help Robert get better, I'll definitely do it. I'm willing to do it no matter what it is."

Avery sniffled and nodded her head. "You should go back and get some rest."

“I booked a room at the hotel next door. The doctor will contact me if anything happens to Robert,” he said.

“The doctors are watching him, so you don’t have to worry. Hayden and Layla should be home by now. You should head home, too.”

“I’ll go home once they start the blood transfusion,” Avery responded in a nasally voice.

“Alright, then. I’ll leave after that, too.” Elliot was exhausted, but he was not in a hurry to leave.

The two of them walked back to the intensive care unit.

After a few steps, Avery suddenly recalled something and said, “I think you should go home and rest! Shea came to the hospital really early in the morning. She must really want to see you.”

Her words reminded Elliot that he had indeed not gone home for several days. In the past, Shea would be throwing a tantrum because of this. Now that she was more sensible, not only was she not pestering him to go home, but she was also able to care about Robert.

He went home after they began the blood transfusion for Robert.

When he arrived at the mansion, he first took a shower, changed into clean clothes, then headed over to Shea’s room. He knocked on the door, and the door immediately opened up.

Shea beamed from ear to ear as she said, “I was about to go to bed when Mrs. Scarlet told me that you were home. I knew you’d come see me.”

Chapter 737

A loving smile appeared on Elliot’s face as he said, “I’ve been busy lately, so I haven’t been able to come home. I heard that you went to the hospital first thing this morning.”

"I couldn't go back to sleep once I woke up, but I slept a lot today." After Shea spent the day resting at home, her complexion looked much better than it did earlier.

"How's Robert doing?"

"I found a bag of blood for him today. He should be fine at least until tomorrow. " As Elliot said those words, he could not help but feel anxious. It would be great if they could find a large source of blood.

That way, they would not have to worry about Robert falling back into critical condition at any moment.

"You're amazing, Big Brother." Shea held Elliot 's hand and gazed at his face without blinking, " You've lost a lot of weight. It's heartbreaking! Mrs. Scarlet went to cook something for you. You have to eat more!"

She dragged him toward the dining room.

"Robert will definitely get better. I still have to teach him how to call me 'Aunt Shea!'"

"Then, you're the best father." Shea flashed him a smile and said, "Wesley said that Robert looks a lot like you, but I couldn't tell from the photos. Does Robert really look like you when you were a kid?"

"He does."

Shea suddenly began to imagine and said, " If I had a baby in the future, would they look like me, too?"

Her words made Elliot' s heart tighten in his chest.

Was she just saying this, or did she truly yearn for marriage and children?

"Who do you want to have a baby with, Shea?" Elliot deliberately asked in a casual tone.

He would never allow Shea to have children. Apart from the fact the giving birth was a painful experience, he was also worried that her illness could be passed down to her children.

Shea shook her head and said, "I still need someone to take care of me. How would I care for a baby?"

Elliot was relieved.

"Can I get married, Big Brother?" Shea asked unexpectedly.

The relief that Elliot just felt instantly vanished.

"Who do you want to marry? Wesley?"

She was meeting Wesley every day. If she wanted to get married, it must be to him.

When Shea saw the stern look on Elliot's face, she was suddenly afraid to speak.

"I think he's a good man," she said after a long moment of hesitation.

"No matter how good he is, I won't let you marry him," Elliot said sternly.

"The woman he wants the most is Avery! No matter how well he treats you, that isn't love."

His words ruthlessly severed Shea's enthusiasm.

"Wesley likes me."

"That's not the same as love. A person can like many people, but here is only one person they truly want." Elliot refused to let Shea suffer.

"You can be friends with him. I won't stop you from seeing each other, but you can forget about letting him snatch you away!"

Shea hung her head grumpily. She was upset, but she did not dare talk back to her brother. She trusted him from the bottom of her heart. Whatever he said must be right.

He said that the person Wesley loved the most was Avery. If that were the case, then she could only be a lifelong friend to him.

Why did she feel so sad about that?

"Don't be sad, Shea. I will always love you." Elliot wrapped his arms around her said, "I don't trust anyone to take care of you. Won't you stay by my side?"

When Shea smelled his familiar scent, her sadness quickly vanished.

"Okay. I'll always be with you, because I know you'll always protect me." Elliot woke up at ten the next morning.

When he picked up his phone, a text message caught his eye.

Chapter 738

There were new developments on the headstone case.

The police found the middle aged man that the shop owner said ordered the headstone, and they arrested him at three that morning.

The police sent Elliot a text after they made the arrest.

After Elliot read the message, he called the station. At the same time, he took the covers off of him and got out of bed. His call was quickly answered.

"Mr. Foster, we've arrested the suspect and he confessed to his crimes during the interrogation. He said that his motive was money," said the police officer.

"How did he know my son's name? I'm afraid a regular person would not have the capability of finding that out," Elliot said, bringing up his suspicions.

His suspicion made the officer fall silent for a moment.

"We'll have to continue interrogating the suspect to find that out, Mr. Foster."

"Hand him over to me. I can make him tell the truth."

Once the call ended, Elliot checked his messages. There were no texts from the doctor nor Avery.

Robert should be fine for now. He let out a sigh of relief, then put his phone down and entered the bathroom.

Once he finished washing up and went downstairs, Mrs. Scarlet immediately served up a sumptuous breakfast.

“Where’s Shea?” Elliot could not help but have a heavy heart as he recalled his conversation with Shea the night before.

He did not expect her to have feelings for Wesley to the point of wanting to start a family with him. If he had known this would happen, he never would have hired Wesley to take care of Shea.

“She went to see Wesley. She said she needed to talk things out with him,” Mrs. Scarlet said as she chuckled bitterly.

“I never thought I’d see the day where our Shea would fuss over a relationship. It’s actually a good thing. It means that she’s becoming more like a regular person.”

Elliot responded and said, “I won’t be able to come home every day. Please comfort her.”

“She should be able to get over it. No matter how well Wesley treats her, you’re still number one in her heart,” Mrs. Scarlet said as she poured him a glass of milk.

“Bring some soup over to Avery when you go to the hospital later.”

“I won’t be going to the hospital until this afternoon.” Elliot took a sip of milk, then said, “Mrs. Cooper makes her soup every day.”

“I’ll make some pastries, then. You can bring it to her in the afternoon.” Mrs. Scarlet then sighed said, “If your mother were still around, she would love her. Mrs. Cooper said that her clothes were covered in blood two days ago. A new mother should get proper rest after she gives birth.”

Elliot’s entire body stiffened when he heard those words. He wanted Avery to stay home and rest, but she refused to listen to him.

She would only be able to relax once Robert made it out of this storm.

Over at the hospital, the experts were having a discussion about Robert's condition.

Avery was listening to them in a corner.

"The blood clearly isn't enough. None of his vitals have improved. We're just temporarily relieving his symptoms right now. Things will start to deteriorate again before tomorrow. We can't continue like this."

The attending doctor offered his suggestion and said, "Robert won't have to suffer over and over again if we had a large amount of blood."

"His blood type is far too rare. Aryadelle aside, we might not even be able to gather enough blood if we search the entire world."

"That's right. The biggest issue here is that not many people would be willing to get their blood drawn. Despite Mrs. Foster's wealth and connections, as well as his formidable status in Aryadelle, it's still difficult to find enough blood."

When their discussion came to an end, the group turned to look at Avery.

Her eyes were filled with undisguised misery and disappointment as she said, "Let's drag this out for as long as we can. It's still better than watching him die right now."

When Avery walked out of the meeting room, she bumped into a wall of muscle. She was taken aback for a moment.

It was not until she smelled the familiar scent that she let go of her defenses.

Elliot's long arms wrapped around her in a strong embrace.

Chapter 739

Elliot did not say anything. He just quietly held Avery in his arms. Her broken heart immediately found comfort. She was filled with energy and began to believe that a miracle could happen.

Once her emotions were stable, Elliot handed the pastries he brought to her.

Avery took the pastries and began to eat.

“The results of the investigation are out,” Elliot said in a deep voice after she had eaten two pieces of pastries.

“Wanda Tate was the one who sent someone to order the headstone.” Avery closed the pastry box, then took a deep breath.

Elliot held her hand and said, “Wait here at the hospital. I’ll go find her.”

After he said that, he immediately got up and left.

Avery consoled herself as she watched his muscular back. This time, he definitely would not be soft hearted! He might have shown mercy to Chelsea because of their past, but he had no such past with Wanda.

Over at Wonder Technologies, Wanda’s face had turned pale as her hand trembled around her phone.

The subordinate she sent to order the headstone was caught. She used her connections in the police force to get more intel, but she found nothing. She was filled with uneasiness. She had thought that nothing could go wrong if the headstone was ordered out in the middle of nowhere with no surveillance cameras in sight. She was careless!

This case struck Elliot right where it hurt the most, so he would see this matter to the end no matter what he had to pay.

Now that her subordinate was in his hands, it was only a matter of time before they find out she was behind this.

Wanda let out a heavy sigh, then pulled out her phone to book flight tickets so she could flee the country.

When the landline on her desk rang, she trembled with fear as she answered the call.

“Madam Tate, Elliot Foster from Sterling Group is here with a bunch of people... He said he wants to see you.” The secretary gulped, then said, “Are you coming down, or should I send him up?”

Wanda’s teeth chattered as she struggled to answer, “Send security up to my office... Let him come up once security is here...”

Moments later, Elliot arrived at office before security could make it there.

Wanda had already composed herself and was trying her best to maintain the calm expression on her face. Before she could say a word, Elliot’s bodyguard placed the headstone in front of her, then yanked her out of her seat and pushed her down on her knees!”

“Elliot Foster! Let’s talk about this! There’s no need for violence!” Wanda was terrified into confusion.

“It’s true that I was the one who sent someone to order the headstone! You were the ones who forced my daughter Cassandra to her death, so I could not let that go! Even so, I have nothing to do with your child’s critical condition!”

Elliot stared coldly at Wanda as she argued, then said menacingly, “I’m going to use your skull to grind this headstone to dust.”

Wanda screamed in horror, then cried, “I know Charlie Tierney! We’re planning on working together! I know he’s got something on you... Are you planning to just let that be? If you let me live, then I’ll help you deal with him!”

The bloodthirsty hatred in Elliot’s eyes was slowly overtaken by reason.

He did not want to be threatened by Charlie, nor did he want to let Chelsea get away. This was because he did not want to disappoint Avery! Perhaps Wanda could be a useful pawn.

Elliot dismissed his bodyguard.

Moments later, he and Wanda were the only ones left in the room.

“My life is in your hands now, Elliot. I’ll definitely listen to everything you say.”

Wanda’s eyes were filled with tears and she looked pitiful. “Trust Capital is going to invest in me. I’ll have a lot of interactions with him from now on.”

Elliot sat down on the leather swivel chair, then fixed his dangerous eyes on her and said, “Charlie has a maroon box with him that belongs to me. I’ll give you three months. If you can’t get me that box by the end of that period, then I’ll make sure you meet a tragic death.”

Chapter 740

Elliot had no way of confirming that the maroon box he lost was in Charlie’s hands. He also could not make sure that Wanda would follow his orders obediently.

The reason he was telling her about this was so that he could use her to find out the whereabouts of the box.

The theft of the box might have happened a long time ago, but it would still occasionally come up to torment him.

That box was like a ticking time bomb, and he did not know when it would go off. He had thought about it for a long time but was still clueless.

Who was the one who went into his study and took that box?

If someone wanted to bring him down, they could reveal the information in the box at any time and ruin him!

However, the person who took the box had never contacted him nor revealed the box’s contents to the public.

If that person did not want to harm him, then why did they take the box in the first place? It was such a pickle that he wondered if nobody had actually stolen the box, but there was a glitch in the space-time continuum instead!

However, everything that happened in reality continuously reminded him that there was no such thing.

If there truly was a glitch in the space-time continuum, then why did everything that happened made him feel the true malice of the world? Shea arrived at Wesley's place that morning.

At noon, he personally cooked her a lavish lunch.

"Are you not feeling well, Shea? You're unusually quiet today."

Wesley placed the food in front of Shea, then tenderly examined her. Her complexion was paler than before after the blood donation.

However, it had recovered quite a lot compared to yesterday.

"I can't marry you, Wesley." Shea picked up her fork and lowered her gaze.

"My brother said that the person you like is Avery. You might like me, but you like her more."

Her words made the calmness on his face vanish.

"You told your brother about this?"

"I accidentally told him." Shea sighed, then said, "It's the same no matter when I tell him. If he won't let me marry you, then it must be for my own good."

"That's right. It's indeed for your own good. I've told you before that being by his side is the safest thing for you."

Then, Wesley continued casually, "As for Avery, I've always admired her.

She's a good person and an amazing doctor. I look up to her very much."

Shea lifted her head and gazed carefully at him.

"I'd be happy for an entire day if she looked over at me a few times. I turn into an idiot in front of her."

At this point, Wesley mocked himself and said, "I might like her, but I know that she doesn't belong to me because I can't give her happiness. Which is why I let go of that wishful thinking."

"Don't say that, Wesley. You're also a good person." Shea felt a little sad.

"I told you before that I won't get married or have kids in this life, Shea. That's why we can be good friends for the rest of our lives."

"Are you not getting married and having kids for the sake of being friends with me?" Shea said dejectedly.

"I don't want that... Other people have kids, but you don't..."

"The meaning of life is not necessarily to reproduce." Wesley placed a smoked rib on her plate, then said, "If I cared about marriage at all, then I would probably have more kids than Avery does by now."

"Alright! I'll still wish you happiness if you ever decide to get married one day," Shea said seriously.

"I've dragged my brother down, but I don't want to drag you down."

"You're not dragging anybody down," Wesley said sternly. "In the time that you've depended on your brother to live, you were also his spiritual support." Shea did not quite understand, but smiled sweetly anyway.

When Elliot arrived at the hospital that evening, the doctor rushed to him before he could find Avery.

"Mr. Foster, the experts have come to a unanimous decision after monitoring Robert's reaction to the blood transfusion in the last couple of days," the doctor said with a heavy expression on his face.

"A blood change would have an effect on Robert's condition. The reason why the last two transfusions aren't showing obvious results is because there isn't enough blood. If you want your son to recover, then he will need a complete blood change..."

"It would take at least an entire pint of blood."

One pint... All they needed was two adults to donate blood.

However, it was hard enough for them to find one donor. Where were they going to find two of them?

Elliot could not allow Shea to donate her blood. He could not allow her to take that risk! Then, what would happen to Robert?

He was the one who let Robert be born into this world. Did he truly have to watch as he died from this illness?

Just as he was standing on the edge of hopelessness, Avery walked over.

"Mike found the blood." She had just gotten off the phone with Mike and immediately rushed over to tell them the news.

"He found close to half a pint of blood. It's been sent to a hospital for testing right now. If it's a match, it can immediately be airflown here."

"We still need over half a pint... I'll go search for it..." Elliot mumbled.

"Where are you going? It's already dark out," Avery said as she grabbed his arm. She did not want him running around anymore.

"We could just send someone to get it if we find a source."

She did not want to see him flustered over this matter any longer.

As Elliot saw the care Avery felt for him, his eyes reddened with guilt.

What would she do if she found out that Shea's blood was a match for Robert? He did not want to tell her about this. He did not want to give her hope, only to disappoint her.

However, all they needed right now was one more donor... As long as they find one person to donate blood, then Robert would be saved!

It was not certain that something bad would happen if Shea donated blood.

Why did he not have the courage to take the gamble?

Elliot felt a lump in his throat, and tears suddenly fell from the corner of his eyes. The doctor was stunned.

Avery was also taken aback.

Why was he suddenly crying with all the people around them? Robert did not have a death sentence just yet. There was still a chance they could save him.

What was he crying for?

"What's wrong, Elliot?" Avery hugged him as she gently stroked his muscular back.

"Is it because you're too tired? I'll take you to the hotel to get some rest, okay? We could still save Robert. Don't be so sad."

Her comforting words sped up Elliot's emotional breakdown.

"I'm sorry, Avery... I let you down... I let Robert down..." He allowed himself to cry out loud.

"I can't protect anybody... I let all of you down..."

"We don't need you to protect us, Elliot. Just take care of yourself." Avery was supporting most of his weight, but it did not feel heavy.

Ever since Robert was born, she had spent every day in insurmountable agony. It was only in this moment, as she held a crumbling Elliot in her arms, that courage soared within her.

Whenever she was upset, she could lose her temper with Elliot throw all of the blame on his head. She had forgotten that he was also a human being who had moments where he could not bear things.

As Chad watched this scene, he took off his glasses and wiped the tears from the corner of his eyes.

When he composed himself, he was shocked to find Shea standing behind Avery and Elliot. She stood frozen in place and stared blankly at Elliot. She had never seen her brother cry. She was completely stunned by his crying face.

"What are you doing here, Shea?" Chad asked as he approached her.

Shea lifted her gaze in shock and said, "Why is Big Brother crying? Is Robert..."

"The doctors said that Robert still needs a pint of blood. Your brother's stressed out," Chad explained.

Chapter 742

Wesley, who was standing next to Shea, interjected and said, "Is a pint all they need?"

Chad frowned and said bitterly, "It's easier said than done! Even if we find someone whose blood is a match for Robert, we could get at most a little over a pint from them. Mike already found close to half a pint from someone in Bridgedale. We're still over half a pint short."

Shea's chest rose and fell rapidly after hearing his words.

"Do we just need a little over half a pint of blood to save Robert now?"

"That's right, but it won't be easy to find. Not that many people have this blood type to begin with, and the donor needs to be an adult between the ages of 18 and 55..."

Shea grabbed Wesley's arm, then said to Chad, "Wesley and I will go look for it."

Chad was confused, then said, "Go home and get some rest, Shea. You don't need to worry about this. It's already dark outside. If there's any information on a source, we'll be the first to find out."

He understood that Shea wanted to help, but he was always the person who needed to be protected. If nothing goes wrong with her, then that would be the greatest help to everyone.

Shea obediently nodded her head, then dragged Wesley away without another word.

Avery was hugging Elliot as she watched Wesley and Shea leave.

"I know why you're crying, Elliot." Her voice was calm and low.

"It's because of Shea, right?"

She was the one who carried out brain surgery on Shea the last two times.

Wesley was the one who handled the pre-op check-up, but he had also once brought it up to Avery. He said that Shea's blood type was special, and that it would be extremely dangerous if she overbled during surgery. That was why she was especially careful during the operation.

Elliot glanced at her with a pained expression on his face.

"Shea has the same blood type as Robert, right?" Avery said softly.

"You said you couldn't protect anyone because you want to let Shea donate her blood to Robert, but can't bring yourself to do it, right?"

She guessed everything that was on his mind correctly.

Elliot forgot about asking her how she knew Shea's blood type, because he was more concerned with choice right now.

"Don't cry, Elliot," Avery choked as tears escaped the corner of her eyes.

"Even if we can't save Robert, I would never ask Shea to donate her blood.

There's no guarantee that Robert would survive even if we had that blood, but we know for sure that something bad would happen if Shea donated her blood. We can't possibly exchange a life for a life."

Once they were out of the hospital, Shea told Wesley what she was thinking.

"Take my blood, Wesley! They just need a little over half a pint to save Robert now," she said with raised brows eyes filled with joy.

"If I could save Robert, I'd be so happy." Wesley released his arm from her grip.

His expression was cold and his voice was stern as he snapped, "Do you know what you're talking about right now? You can't donate blood again! Even a regular person needs a downtime of six months!"

"Robert will die if I don't give him my blood."

Then, Shea said cheerfully, "You just need to take my blood and give it to Robert. It's not like I'll die."

"How do you know you won't die?" Wesley retorted.

"What if you do?"

Shea blinked, pondered the question for a moment, then said, "As long as I can save Robert, it's fine even if I die."

She thought of her brother's sobbing face and felt a stabbing pain in her heart.

Elliot was miserable because of Robert's illness. He would be in more pain if Robert died.

Wesley's eyes filled with tears at the sound of her answer.

"If I was the one who was sick, and my brother could save me, I know he would." Shea grabbed his arm once again and said, "He was always protecting me, but I haven't been able to do anything for him. Now that I have a chance to help, I won't be scared even if I die."

"Go see your brother! I won't draw your blood," Wesley refused.

Chapter 743

Shea's brows instantly furrowed. She anxiously approached Wesley and held both of his hands.

"My brother definitely won't take my blood... He knew that I could save Robert, but he never asked for my help... That's exactly why I need to save Robert. I'm begging you, Wesley."

Her voice was soft as she begged.

"If I die, then I'll marry you in my next life. How's that, Wesley?" She held his hands tightly, then suddenly beamed and said, "I don't think I'll die, though. Mrs. Scarlet says I've got nine lives. No matter what sickness I get, the doctors could always cure me."

As Wesley gazed at the smile on her face and the light in her eyes, his hardened heart gradually began to melt. He asked himself why he liked being with Shea. Was it not because of her pure kindness?

In her European-style mansion, Wanda was wearing a silk robe and, after taking a sip of red wine to calm her nerves, dialed Charlie's number. She got to know Charlie through Chelsea.

They had dinner the night before last and walked about some business matters. The two of them shared many of the same ideas, so their conversation was very agreeable.

"He said he lost a maroon box?" Charlie began to imagine what that maroon box looked like.

"That's right. He said that you took it." Wanda drew a cold breath, then said, "What exactly do you have on him? Can you tell me?"

"Of course I can't tell you. What if you use it to threaten him if I did?" Charlie said shrewdly.

"Don't worry, though. You'll be safe as long as you listen to me."

"How could I trust you?"

"Chelsea did worse things than you did! If I can protect her, then I could naturally protect you!" Charlie said.

"Did he say how he lost that maroon box? Is there anything special about the way it looks?"

"He didn't say. He said it was with you, but I guess he was wrong." Wanda's eyes twinkled with a hint of slyness.

"I bet his deepest secret is hidden inside of that box. Who do you think could've taken it?"

"I didn't even know about a maroon box before you mentioned it to me. If I knew about it, then I would've already used it to threaten him..."

"Hahaha! He thinks you've got the box. If you revealed that it isn't with you, then he won't be afraid of you anymore." I changed her tone and said,

"We're on the same boat now, Tierney. If you don't guarantee my safety, then I'll tell him that the box isn't with you at all!"

"You truly are skilled and ruthless, Wanda Tate!"

"I don't have a choice. I was forced into this." Wanda's strained mood relaxed.

"Let's look for that box moving forward. I'm looking forward to a great partnership."

At three in the morning, there was news that the city's blood bank received a bag filled with a little over a pint of suitable blood.

The tests found that the blood was a match for Robert, and that it was non-toxic. The blood was immediately sent to the hospital where Robert was staying.

The attending doctor was overcome with joy and quickly sent a message to Elliot and Avery.

Avery had trouble sleeping recently, and she immediately woke up when she received the message.

After reading the text, she thought she was dreaming.

Just as she was about to call the doctor, she received a call from Mike.

When she answered the call, Mike's clear and powerful voice came through the phone.

"I'm sorry Avery! The blood I found was a match for Robert, but it wasn't clean..."

Chapter 744

Avery's heart tightened as she was filled with a sense of loss. She had just seen the doctor's text message before Mike called, but did not even have time to be happy before bad news came her way.

"It's alright," she muttered.

"I'll give the hospital a call."

"Okay. Did I wake you?"

"You didn't. I was already up. Thanks for working so hard the past few days.

"Avery threw back the covers and got out of bed. She planned to go to the hospital right away. "By the way, the blood bank sent over a little over half a pint of blood just now. I think that should be enough."

"That's great! If that's the case, then I'll get ready to head back," Mike said.

"Alright. I'm going to the hospital to check things out now."

"Okay. Please take care of yourself! Don't pass out before Robert gets better," Mike instructed.

"I shouldn't call you at this time, but I wouldn't have been at ease unless I did."

"I wasn't sleeping that well anyway."

Avery said a few more words to him, then hung up the phone. She checked the weather before she left the house.

It was thirty degrees out, and it was going to snow.

Every time she saw snow, or even the word "snow", she would be reminded of the passionate love that she shared with Elliot.

After all the years that had gone by, the two of them were still closely linked. It would be perfect if Robert could get better.

Avery took a long jacket from the closet, wrapped herself up in layers, then walked out of the villa's doors. She was met by the winter breeze and wrinkled her nose from the cold. She opened the door to the car and nestled into her seat. In an instant, the cold air was kept out. She started the car and stared blankly at the darkness ahead of her as she waited for the car to warm up.

It was not every day that she was having trouble sleeping. Her body was weak after giving birth, so she could easily fall asleep most of the time.

The reason why she could not sleep tonight was because Elliot's emotional breakdown at the hospital earlier left her unable to calm down.

Every time she closed her eyes, his miserable sobbing face would enter her mind.

No matter how many times she had chastised him broken up with him, it was still difficult for her to ignore her love for him that was buried deep inside her heart.

How could she bring herself to cruelly blame Elliot for Robert's condition?

How could he possibly hope for his own son to die prematurely? She was half the reason for his breakdown tonight.

At three in the morning, the hustle and bustle had left the city. Avery arrived at the hospital after a smooth journey on the road. She had just entered the neonatal unit when she saw Elliot's tall silhouette. She sent him back to the hotel to rest earlier in the evening. She thought that he could finally get some sleep, but he ended up arriving earlier than she did.

"They've started the blood transfusion." The exhaustion had not vanished from Elliot's face, but his eyes were sparkling.

"Mike said that the blood he found wasn't clean, so we only have a little over a pint of blood for now. The doctor said we could give it a try. Half a pint of blood isn't a small amount, after all."

Avery nodded her head and said, "Did the doctor call you or send you a text?"

"He texted me."

"Were you still awake?"

"I was asleep, but I set up a notification for text messages." Elliot examined her face, then said, "Didn't you sleep?"

"I couldn't sleep." Avery met his gaze and saw how bloodshot his eyes were, then asked, "Are you feeling better now?"

An unnatural embarrassment flashed across Elliot's eyes.

"Are you feeling embarrassed now?" Avery could not help but tease him.

"There were so many doctors and nurses around at the time. Your subordinates, too..."

"Don't remind me." Elliot's Adam's apple bobbed in his throat as his handsome face turned pink. "I'm not usually like that. Besides, they should understand my current situation."

"Nobody was laughing at you." Avery held his hand and led him over to a bench to sit down.

"You've already done your best. Even if the result isn't what we wanted, I won't blame you." It was as if she was saying that she had already prepared herself for the worst. He, however, was not ready.

Elliot could not accept his son leaving this world, because he was the one who forced Avery to have this child.

From the moment of conception, to the countless check-ups and his eventual birth, Elliot had poured in all his affection to this child.

"If anything happens to Robert, even if you don't blame me, I still wouldn't bother you ever again."

"Nor would I bother the kids," he thought to himself, but did not say these words. Hayden and Layla did not acknowledge him as their father. Even if there was nothing left but a piece of glass between them, Elliot had a feeling that the two children might never acknowledge him. His words made Avery feel peculiarly upset.

Robert was still alive! They were talking as if he was already dead.

Avery did not speak, so Elliot turned to glance at her.

When he saw her haggard complexion and lack of energy, he quickly pulled her into his arms and rested her head on his shoulder.

"Get some sleep. Robert will be fine. There's no use in worrying now," he whispered hoarsely into her ear.

There was something magical about his voice. The moment she heard his words, her heart finally stopped dangling in midair.

As Avery smelled Elliot's familiar scent, she unconsciously nuzzled against the warmth of his neck, then found a comfortable position and fell asleep in his embrace.

Elliot wished that time could stop at this moment. It was as if they were a married couple who had loved each other for many years.

If he had not broken down earlier, then Avery would definitely have asked him about Wanda

She would be furious if she found out that he had not dealt with Wanda.

In the quiet hallway, he heard himself sigh from the depths of his heart.

A nurse walked past them and Elliot's eyes followed her as she headed toward the intensive care unit. He wondered how Robert was doing. He was willing to endure any torment as long as his son would be alright

The sun came up about four hours later.

When the attending doctor approached Elliot, he first glanced at Avery, who was still asleep in his arms. She was fast asleep. If nobody woke her up, she could probably sleep for quite a while.

"Would you like to take her to the on-call room to rest, Mr. Foster?" asked the doctor.

"Nobody's in there right now."

Elliot was afraid to wake Avery, so he rejected the doctor's kind offer. "How's Robert doing?"

"He's in stable condition right now. The rash on his face has faded slightly. We'll have to continue monitoring him see if his condition would suddenly deteriorate at night like it did the last two times." The doctor adjusted his glasses, then continued, "If his condition doesn't deteriorate tonight, then he probably will gradually get better."

Elliot's chest rose and fell rapidly as excitement took over.

Avery felt the sudden rise in his body temperature and instantly woke up.

"The doctor said that Robert's doing really well right now, Avery." Elliot wrapped her in an emotional embrace.

"Robert will definitely get through this!"

He was hugging her so tightly that Avery found it hard to breathe, but the moment she digested what he had just said, her mood was lifted.

"Is that true? I'm not dreaming, am I?" she mumbled.

"It's not a dream, Miss Tate," the doctor said with a smile

. "Robert's vitals have improved greatly after this blood transfusion, so we can look forward to him making it through the night in peace."

Avery was moved to tears.

"I want to properly thank the person who donated the blood. Do you know who the blood donor is, Elliot?" Her question took Elliot by surprise.

Since last night, he had never once thought about this question.

All he knew was that the blood came from the blood bank.

"I'll go find out right now." He pulled out his phone and called the blood bank's manager.

Chapter 746

When the call went through, the blood bank's manager said, "The staff on duty were the ones who received it. I asked them about it and they said that the person who sent the blood didn't leave their contact information. I'm guessing it was a good samaritan that wanted to stay anonymous!"

Where in the world were all of these anonymous good samaritans coming from?

Once Elliot was done with the call, Avery said, "Let's go find that good samaritan!"

Now that Robert's condition was stable, there was nothing they could do at the hospital.

"The donor didn't leave a name." Elliot's hawk-like eyes rested on Avery as he asked, "Don't you think it's strange?"

Avery seemed to have something on her mind.

"When Wesley brought that bag of blood, he said that a good samaritan donated it anonymously."

"Do you think that this half a pint of blood was also from Wesley?"

Avery's lashes fluttered lightly. She shook her head and said, "I don't know. If it really was from Wesley, then why didn't he just bring it to us? Why did he have to do it through the blood bank?"

Elliot's expression suddenly turned grave.

Avery guessed what he was thinking.

"I'll call him!"

She pulled out her phone and was about to call Wesley when Elliot stood up.

His expression was cold as he said, "I'll stop by the house."

Avery knew that he was going to see Shea. He suspected that she was the blood donor.

She could not help but follow him out of the hospital.

As they walked out of the building, snow fell from the sky and blurred their line of vision.

As Avery watched Elliot walk away by himself, she suddenly stopped in her tracks. She suddenly began to feel afraid.

If the half-pint of blood last night really was Shea's, then how could her body possibly handle the stress?

Her hands and feet turned ice-cold at the thought. She watched as Elliot walked further and further away until he completely disappeared from her sight.

If the blood last night was Shea's, then could the quarter-pint of blood that Wesley sent before also be from her?

Her fear intensified the more she thought about it. She pulled out her phone, found Wesley's number, FNqMDR

Once the call was made, what came through the phone was not Wesley's voice, but the monotonous tone of the system notification.

"Sorry, the number you have dialed has been switched off. Please try again later." Avery thought that she had heard wrongly.

Wesley did not usually have his phone off. She could get through practically every time she called, but why was his phone turned off now? Could it be that Elliot had guessed right?

Wesley was a medical practitioner. He understood Shea's condition. As long as he had his reason, he would not draw Shea's blood.

Over at the Foster mansion, Mrs. Scarlet was surprised to see Elliot return.

"How's Robert, Master Elliot?" she asked.

Elliot did not change his shoes. He strode into the living room and said,

"Where's Shea?"

"Shea's not home," answered Mrs. Scarlet.

"She called me last night and said that Wesley was taking her to Sacred Hill to pray for Robert's recovery. She said she told you about it!"

Elliot's eyes instantly darkened as his teeth clenched.

"She didn't tell me anything! She lied!"

Mrs. Scarlet was shocked by his furious roar and quickly found her phone.

"I'll call her... I'll tell her to come home right away!"

Elliot clenched his fists tightly, then said, "I already called her. Her phone's turned off!" He did not only call Shea, but he also called Wesley.

Chapter 747

Both Wesley's and Shea's phones were turned off. It was clear that the good samaritan who donated their blood was Shea.

Shea had given Robert close to an entire pint of blood.

An adult could donate at most half a pint at a time. Shea should not be donating blood, to begin with, but ended up donating more than the usual amount expected from a regular person!

How could her body possibly handle that?

There was only one possible reason why both their phones were off, and it was that something happened to Shea. Wesley must not have been able to handle the consequences of his actions and decided to flee.

"I'll call Shea's bodyguard!" Mrs. Scarlet's eyes reddened as she fumbled with her phone with trembling hands.

If Elliot were not exhausted from this entire ordeal with Robert, she would have called him last night to confirm. He had never allowed Shea to go somewhere far away with someone else.

She should have been alert.

However, Shea had never lied to her!

Mrs. Scarlet was anxious and blaming herself. What would she do if anything happened to Shea?!

After she dialed the bodyguard's number, her call was answered moments later.

"Bring Shea home right away!" Mrs. Scarlet ordered.

"If anything happens to her, neither of us would be able to handle that responsibility!"

The bodyguard immediately got out of bed, then looked around him and said, "I... I think I was set up!"

"What did you say?!" Mrs. Scarlet was dumbfounded. When she saw Elliot from the corner of her eye, she immediately composed herself and said,

"Calm down. Tell me what happened."

"My mind's completely blank! I'm in a completely unfamiliar room and I don't need Miss Shea ... I'm afraid someone knocked me out..." The bodyguard quickly left the room.

"It must've been Wesley Brook. I remember he gave me a glass of water before I blacked out..."

Mrs. Scarlet hung up the phone, then turned to Elliot and sobbed, "The bodyguard said that Wesley knocked him out! Wesley must have taken Shea away!"

A chill washed over Elliot's face. He stormed off to look for Wesley.

At that moment, Wesley's parents were entertaining Avery, who had come to visit them.

"Has Robert gotten any better, Avery?" asked Wesley's mother, "I heard that he's got a rare blood disorder. Wesley and William have been asking around this entire time to see if they could find a suitable source of blood for Robert..."

"Wesley's phone is off, Aunt Sandra. Do you know where he is?" Avery wanted to find Wesley and ask him face to face.

"His phone's off?" Sandra was a little shocked. "He doesn't usually turn his phone off! Let me try."

Sandra found her phone and dialed Wesley's number. Sure enough, she could not get through.

"Is there something urgent you need to talk to him about? How about I take you to his place right now? He moved out after what happened in Bridgedale before."

Avery was stunned.

She had no idea that Wesley had moved out of the house. She constantly troubled him, but she never truly bothered to care about him. She was filled with guilt and self-blame.

Wesley had been working tirelessly since Robert got sick. If the blood he brought really was from Shea... Then, she might not be able to reprimand him about it!

"Please take me to his place, Aunty Sandra," Avery croaked lightly. Sandra did not know what was going on.

"What happened? What's going on with Wesley? Did... Did he get abducted again?!"

"That's not it," Avery explained.

"I don't think he was abducted. I need to talk to him about something else."

"What is it?" Sandra held Avery's hand, then gazed at her with widened eyes and said, "I only have one son, Avery. I won't be able to handle it if anything happened to him!"

"The hospital received half a pint of blood last night, but the donor did not leave any contact information. I wanted to ask Wesley if he knew anything about it."

After Avery's explanation, Sandra immediately felt relieved.

"You scared me! I thought he was in trouble!"

Then, Sandra took Avery to Wesley's place. When the two arrived at Wesley's apartment, a man was standing at his front door!

Chapter 748

When Elliot saw Avery and Sandra arrive, the cold expression on his face did not change.

There was nobody in Wesley's apartment. He had taken Shea away and nobody knew where they were!

"What are you doing here, Mr. Foster?" asked Sandra.

"Are you also here to ask Wesley about that half-pint of blood?"

Avery saw Elliot almost lose control of his emotions, and quickly walked over to him.

"Calm down, Elliot!" she hissed under her breath.

"Uncle William and Aunt Sandra don't know where Wesley went. I'll think of a way to get in touch with him. Give me some time!"

Elliot's eyes were bloodshot and the coldness on his face was indifferent to the world. It was his meticulous and constant care that allowed Shea to live a peaceful and healthy life until now.

Her condition finally took a turn for the better and she was beginning to live a life that was closer to that of a regular person, but Wesley ruined it all! How dare he draw Shea's blood?! Where did he find the guts to do that?!

Would he have acted this heartlessly if Robert was not Avery's son?

"If Shea's dead, I'll make him pay for it with his life," Elliot said clearly, then shoved Avery aside.

Once he left, Sandra grabbed Avery and said frantically, "What is he talking about? Why would my son have to pay if Shea died?! Wesley didn't take a dime from him and took care of Shea for him. How dare he make my son pay with his life?!"

Avery held Sandra up and said absentmindedly, "We suspect that the half-pint of blood was from Shea, Aunt Sandra."

"Oh... Then, that would be Shea's own will! My son would never force anyone! You know he likes you, but he's never forced you into anything! He's never made trouble for you! You know Wesley. He's the world's most gentle and accomplished man..."

"I know that, Aunt Sandra. I know the kind of person Wesley is, but if the blood really was Shea's, then her body wouldn't be able to handle it. As a doctor, Wesley should've been able to guess that. He shouldn't have listened to Shea even if this was her wish." Avery's eyes filled with tears as she spoke.

"Can you please help us get in touch with Wesley? It's immature for both him and Shea to go off-the-grid like this! If anything happens to Shea, I'm afraid I won't be able to hold Elliot back!"

Back in the day, he had rather broken up with her than reveal the secret between Shea and himself. Shea was a special existence in his life.

The way Elliot had shoved Avery aside earlier was a reminder that she could never take Shea's place in his heart.

However, she would not get jealous the way she used to.

It was not because she no longer cared about him, but because just like him, she also liked Shea very much.

Avery already gave Elliot her answer at the hospital yesterday. If she had a choice, she would never sacrifice Shea's health in order to save Robert's life.

Robert was her baby, but she was like a baby to Elliot, too.

"I'll go look for Wesley... I'll find him right away! You have to help him, Avery! If anything happens to Shea, you have to help Wesley! Even if he really did something that rash, it would only be to help your son!" Sandra's eyes were red with tears.

"Let's find Wesley as soon as possible first, Aunt Sandra. As long as Shea's still alive, I can guarantee his safety."

That morning felt as long as an entire century.

Avery contacted all of her and Wesley's mutual friends, but none of them knew where he was.

The longer she could not contact him, the stronger the ominous premonition she had inside her became.

Why did Wesley need to disappear with Shea if she was fine?

Avery took a deep breath as she felt a chill to the bone. Her fingers trembled as she opened up the messages on her phone and sent Wesley a text.

[Wesley. Did you ever think about how Elliot might be the one Shea would want to see the most if anything happened to her?]

She was afraid to say that Elliot was about to lose his mind! She was worried that would scare Wesley.

Avery received no reply to her text.

Chapter 749

Wesley's actions this time were in complete contrast with his usual conduct!

The snow was falling harder when Avery emerged from Wesley's house. Her car was covered in a thick layer of white snow.

She loved the snow. If her head was not filled with worry, she would probably take a leisurely stroll in the snow or build a snowman like a happy child.

However, when the snow fell upon her face now, all she could feel was a chill to the bone.

Avery got into her car and drove to the hospital.

At the neonatal unit, there was no sign of Elliot.

She had no idea where he was, but she knew that he was in indescribable pain.

He must be suffering even more than the night before!

It was easier to get over a pain that one could release. It was the pain that one could not talk about that hurt to the depths of your soul.

Outside the gates of Angela Academy was a black Rolls–Royce.

The car was parked quietly as the wipers rhythmically swept off the snow on the windshield.

Elliot was sitting in the car with his deep–set eyes staring blankly ahead.

Shea had spent over a decade here.

The entire time she was here, her IQ was stuck at the stage of a child.

She was afraid of strangers and did not like to talk, but every time she saw him, she would happily call him "Big Brother".

Avery called this place a beautiful prison that limited Shea's freedom, but that was not the case.

It was an environment that Shea was used to and could not leave behind.

Before her surgery, she was even more difficult to take care of compared to a typical child with mental disabilities.

Their father's abuse broke her apart, and she had no sense of security. If they changed the type of towel she used, she would scream and cry. If they changed her hairstyle, she would also scream and cry...

Elliot's mind was filled with the sounds of her screams from various periods of time.

It was because she had suffered a bitter life that he always went with whatever she wanted. He thought he could take care of her forever, but something like this happened because of his carelessness!

It suddenly turned dark outside.

The snow had stopped falling, but the wipers were still continuing to work away. Countless illusions began to appear in front of Elliot's eyes.

It was as if he could see Shea running toward him in the dark calling out for him to get out of the car with a smile.

He grabbed the door handle and was about to open the door when he received a text. The text message notification pulled him out of his imagination and back to reality. He was devastated! His heart throbbed in pain!

Elliot picked up his phone and saw a text from Shea!

She had sent him a video.

The video was recorded while Shea was in bed.

"I might die soon, Big Brother... I'm so scared... I wish you could hug me, but I'm too scared to ask Wesley to take me to you. I'm worried you'd blame me, but I'm even more worried that you'd be sad... That's why I asked Wesley to hide me... If I die, please don't cry, okay?"

"Don't blame Wesley, Big Brother... I was the one who begged for hid help... Apart from you, he's the world's best man... Don't blame him, Big Brother... I'm begging you..."

"There's one more secret I need to tell you... Mother... Our mother was... Cough cough... She was killed by someone..."

Chapter 750

As Elliot's tears fell onto his phone screen, he wiped them away with his fingers, but the video came to an end. He watched the video once again, and his heart ached even more! He immediately dialed Shea's number but was once again met by the monotonous sound of the system notification telling him that her phone was turned off.

This was the first time in her life that she made an important decision behind his back. He would not forgive her, nor would he forgive himself! He should have realized that she was smarter than she used to be. Why did he not notice that at all?

He should have been suspicious the moment Wesley arrived with the first bag of blood.

There were indeed good people in the world who would ask for nothing in return for their good deeds, but they would not so coincidentally bump into him.

At the same time, Avery also received a text message.

She picked up her phone and saw that it was from Wesley.

[I'm sorry.]

The short message made Avery freeze in place.

Wesley was apologizing to her! This meant that Shea truly was behind the two times that they received blood! He drew Shea's blood!

Something definitely happened to her because of this!

That was the only reason why he had to apologize. In an instant, the world spun around Avery. She felt as if the energy had been sucked out of her and she almost lost her bearings.

"What's wrong, Avery?" Chad quickly held onto her.

"You haven't been in good shape since you arrived at noon. My boss hasn't dropped by today either. What's going on?"

Robert was not completely free from danger yet, so Chad thought that Avery was out of her wits because of that.

However, her emotions were obviously triggered by what she just saw on her phone.

Something must have happened.

Avery tried her best to control her emotions. She did not want to lose her composure in front of Chad.

However, she could not stay calm every time she thought about how the blood that extended Robert's life was Shea's!

Her lips moved as she was about to answer Chad's question, but the doctor walked over before she could say a word.

"Robert is in stable condition now, Miss Tate! He's been improving since the blood transfusion last night. He's doing much better than he did the first few times!"

The doctor's words greatly delighted Chad.

"That's amazing! Mr. Foster would be overjoyed when he finds out about this!

I'll call him right now."

He pulled out his phone was about to call Elliot when Avery reached out and held his hand.

"Don't bother him."

"It's great news that Robert's condition improved. Why would that bother him?" Chad was confused.

"What exactly is going on, Avery? Shouldn't you be happy that Robert's going to be saved? Why do you look so sad?"

Avery withdrew her hand, then hung her head and choked, "Shea's in trouble."

Chad took a sharp breath, then exclaimed, "What happened to Shea?! She was just fine yesterday. She even said that she wanted to go help find sources of blood. How could something suddenly happen to her?!"

This entire thing was absurd! He had thought that they could finally feel relieved now that Robert's condition had improved ... How did Shea get in trouble during this crucial moment?!

Avery wanted to answer his question, but the moment she opened her mouth, her tears rolled down her cheeks as she sobbed, "She did find a source...

That's because... She's the source..."

The expression on Chad's face instantly changed.

The doctor was also stunned. It was sometime later before Chad called Mike and asked him to rush back to Aryadelle.

"Robert made it through the critical period."

On the other side of the line, Mike was ecstatic.

"That's wonderful! Let's have a party to celebrate once I'm back!"

"What's there to celebrate about?" Chad's voice was chilling.

"Shea's dead. She sacrificed herself to save Robert." Mike thought he had heard wrongly.

"Hurry up and get back here, Mike! I can't leave Avery alone, but I need to find my boss," Chad said in a strained voice. "This is a huge blow to him!"

At the Foster mansion, Elliot locked himself inside Shea's room.

Earlier, someone had sent over a package. Inside of it was Shea's phone.

The phone was filled with selfies and videos of Shea. He looked through every photo and watched every video.

Her lively smile made it seem like she was right in front of him, but she would never again appear before him.

During the years that Elliot had taken care of her, Shea was his spiritual support.

That was because he could only guarantee that nobody would pick on her if he lived a good life.

However, she ended up leaving him behind in such a cruel way.

When Mrs. Cooper rushed over, she saw Mrs. Scarlet in tears.

Mrs. Scarlet had taken care of Shea ever since she was a child. Shea was afraid of strangers, and Mrs. Scarlet was the one who spent the most time with her every single day. She treated Shea like her own daughter. How could she possibly accept that this was the end?

"Shea was too kind." Mrs. Coope handed a napkin to Mrs. Scarlet.

"The fact that she made this decision behind Avery's and Master Elliot's back means that she knew very well that neither of them would let her donate blood, even if that meant losing Robert."

Mrs. Scarlet was beyond devastated. "How stupid of her! She never thought about herself! It's all my fault for now stopping her when she called me! Who would go pray on top of some hill in the middle of the night?! If I'd stopped her then, she wouldn't have hidden away!"

At this point, Mrs. Scarlet cried in agony, "I want proof! If Shea's really dead, then I want to see her body!"

Mrs. Cooper's brows furrowed. "This is Wesley's fault. How could he just go with whatever she said? He knows about Shea's condition! Sigh!"

After a good cry, Mrs. Scarlet's reason gradually began to return.

"You should go take care of Avery."

"She didn't come home tonight," Mrs. Cooper said.

"How could she handle something like this? It'd be fine if Robert recovered, but if any problems pop up later on..."

"No way! Robert will be fine! If anything happened to him..." At this point, Mrs. Scarlet was suddenly out of breath.

"Master Elliot's luck can't possibly get any worse!"

Over at the hospital, Avery was sitting on a bench in the hallway. Her expression was blank and her eyes were lifeless. It was as if she was an empty shell. She had spent every second of every day hoping for Robert to get better soon.

Now that Robert's condition had improved, she felt even more gutted. She did not know with what emotions she should be facing this absurd reality.

Just like night, she was sitting here with Elliot. They were filled with worry over Robert's condition, but at least they could depend on each other.

Now, Avery felt as if she was indebted to him! It was a debt that could never be repaid. She could never pay him back with Robert's life, because he was Elliot's son, too.

This strange and complicated hitch left her feeling deeply powerless!

The next morning arrived in the blink of an eye.

After thoroughly examining Robert, the doctor approached Avery and said, "Robert's in stable condition now, Miss Tate. You can go home and rest. We'll let you know if anything happens again."

Avery nodded her head, then got up from the bench.

"I haven't told Mr. Foster about Robert's condition, Miss Tate. I heard that he was very upset right now, so I didn't want to bother him," said the doctor hesitantly.

"Please talk to him! No matter what happened, the fact that Robert's now out of danger is something worth being happy about."

Chapter 752

Avery did not have the courage nor the heart to tell Elliot about this good news.

After all, this happiness was built on top of the pain of losing Shea. If he felt a strong fatherly love toward Robert before, she was afraid that the love he felt might have changed by now.

Avery did not dare to expect Elliot to continue to love this child. She just hoped that he did not hate him.

She dragged her exhausted body home and was surprised to see Mike had returned.

"If Robert alright now?" Mike approached Avery, pulled her into his arms, then said softly, "Chad told me about Shea. Everyone's upset about this, but what's done is done."

Avery saw Hayden and Layla standing in the living room, so she maintained the calmness on her face.

"Robert's fine for no. The doctor asked me to get some rest." Her tone was no different from usual. Mike released her.

Avery walked over to the children and asked, "Have you guys had breakfast? Is it time for school?"

"It's the weekend, Mommy!" Layla said. "Uncle Eric's coming over today!"

"Did he say he would?" Avery was not aware of this.

"He told Hayden on the phone." Layla's eyes lit up with joy. "I really miss Uncle Eric. I'll get to spend every day with him again during winter break."

Avery did not say anything.

This entire thing with Robert and Shea drastically changed her mindset.

Even if Layla did not want to go to school and wanted to join the entertainment world, she would support her as long as her daughter was happy.

Life was too brittle, and one's end could come at any time.

Once Avery went to her room to rest, Hayden walked over to Mike and asked, "What were you whispering to Mommy about just now? What happened to Shea?"

Mike pursed his lips as a pained expression appeared on his face.

"What happened to Shea?" Layla also joined them.

Faced with the children's pestering, Mike scratched his head and said,

"Shea... She might have passed away."

Hayden's expression was suddenly stunned and revealed a type of anxiety that fit his age.

"What does that mean, Hayden?" Layla asked seriously as she nudged Hayden's arm.

She knew what the word "death" meant, but she was unfamiliar with the term "passed away".

"Shea's dead. We won't be able to see her ever again." Mike used the most easily understood way to explain things to Layla.

The moment Layla heard the news, streams of tears rolled down her face.

"How is Shea dead?" Layla pouted her lips cried miserably.

"I don't want Shea to die ... She's our friend and she's our aunt!"

Mike's eyes reddened as he said, "She sacrificed herself to save your little brother. She gave too much of her blood to him."The moment he heard Mike's words, all of Hayden's defenses crumbled.He turned his back toward them and wiped his tears away.

Avery heard the sound of Layla sobbing from her room.

She had a splitting headache. In that instant, she wished that the person that the heavens took away was not Shea, but her.

Over at the old mansion, Henry was dressed in a black suit and was getting ready to go see Elliot and discuss Shea's funeral.

He heard about what happened to Shea the night before, but it was too late at night to contact Elliot.

Shea was Henry's sister, too, but she had never called him "Big Brother".

Besides, the number of times that they met was scant.He was not greatly affected by Shea's death.

However, he had to show some sadness considering how much Elliot cared for their sister. Just as Henry was about the leave, a black Rolls-Royce was speeding in the mansion's direction!

Chapter 753

Henry walked to the front yard to welcome the guest.

The car came to a halt in front of Henry. When the car door opened, Elliot's bodyguard was the first to emerge.

The bodyguard got out of the car and threw a cold glance over at Henry.

Henry felt shivers run down his spine from the bodyguard's gaze.

What was going on? He was Elliot's biological brother. How dare a bodyguard look at him in such a provocative way?!

Many times, the way subordinates treated someone represented the way their superiors felt toward that person.

Henry was perplexed. Shea's death had nothing to do with him!

Just as he was feeling uneasy, Elliot emerged from the car. He glanced coldly at Henry, then strode into the mansion.

Henry was puzzled, but followed after him.

"I heard about Shea last night, Elliot. I wanted to contact you right away, but I didn't want to bother you that late at night. If you didn't come by, I was planning on going to discuss this matter with you."

Elliot's voice was chilling to the bone as he asked, "Discuss what?"

"Shea's funeral."

"Who said she was dead?" Elliot tightly clenched his fists as a savage fury burned in his eyes.

Henry realized that he had misspoken, then quickly said in chagrin, "Ah, my bad! I misspoke! Shea is my sister, too. How could I possibly curse her like that... I hope she can live a good life... Elliot ignored him and walked into the living room.

Henry was baffled. If Elliot was not here to talk about Shea, then what was he doing here?

By the time he entered the living room, Elliot was already at the bottom of the stairs.

He stood right there and did not walk up.

This was the spot where his mother was when she died.

Henry quickly realized this, then said out of guilt, "Do you miss Mother, Elliot?"

"Yes." Elliot's voice was nasally, and his breathing turned heavier. "Why did you kill her, Henry?"

Henry felt like an electric current shot through him.

"I-It wasn't me... I didn't... How could I kill Mother?! She..." he stammered.

"Then, it must have been your son." Elliot gazed at his brother with disappointment in his eyes.

"You hid the truth about our mother's death for your son, which makes you an accomplice!"

"Elliot! Why are you bringing this up suddenly? Who told you such nonsense? Bring them out so we can talk face to face." Henry did not want this matter to be exposed. Once he admitted it, there was no turning back.

Money was one thing, but whether or not he would be allowed to continue to live was another problem.

"This is how you repay her after she left most of the inheritance to you." Elliot did not answer his question, but continued ruthlessly,

"Don't you get nightmares at night?"

Henry's eyes filled with tears. He was not as capable as Elliot was, so their mother had set her will so that he would get seventy percent of her estate, while the rest would go to Elliot. He fell to his knees sobbed.

"I'm sorry! I let Mother down!" Henry cried in agony.

"Elliot, Cole is my only child..."

Elliot raised his hand and cut him off.

"I'm sick of hearing that. Since you can't educate your son, then I'll just end him right now!"

Henry was speechless.

Elliot took a silver handgun from his bodyguard, then said, "Seeing as he's my nephew, I won't let him suffer. I'll send him straight to hell with one shot!"

From the second floor, Cole stared at the handgun in Elliot's hand with widened eyes.

His face was void of color, and he was trembling from head to toe..If he were not holding onto the banister, he definitely would have fallen to the ground.

"Uncle Elliot! I don't want to die... I don't want to die!" he screamed uncontrollably. When Elliot heard his voice, he immediately pulled the gun's sleeve and loaded it. After that, he aimed the gun's barrel straight at Cole!

Chapter 754

Elliot decided the night before that he was going to take revenge for his mother.

If the one who killed her was his brother, then he would kill Henry. If it was Cole, then he would kill him. It did not matter who begged for their lives.

His fingers tightened around the gun as he aimed it at Cole. He began to count in his head, "One, two, three..."

A bang echoed through the entire mansion as a bullet shot in Cole's direction!

Cole was so terrified that he forgot to scream.

All he saw was a black silhouette flash before his eyes. Immediately after, this silhouette let out a blood curdling cry.

Cole watched as his mother fell into his arms, and saw the blood oozing from the corner of her lips! He realized that his mother had taken the bullet for him!

"Mom! Mom!" Cole wailed in agony as he held his mother in his arms.

Downstairs, Henry witnessed the entire thing and instantly rushed up the stairs.

"Olivia! Olivia! You can't die, Olivia! I'll take you to the hospital! I'll take you there right away!"

Henry made it up the stairs and grabbed his wife from his son's arms. As he carried Olivia down the stairs, Cole trailed along behind them.

When they walked past Elliot, not only did they not stop in their tracks, but they also quickened their steps.

Elliot was still holding the gun in his hand.

The one he wanted to kill was Cole. What if he did not give up until he achieved that goal?

Elliot was different from everyone else in their family. He was more coldhearted than any of them.

This was precisely why they all feared him.

"He left, Sir," said the bodyguard to Elliot.

"Should I go get Cole Foster back?"

Elliot glanced at the trail of blood on the floor, then said coldly, "A life for a life."

Since Cole's mother took his punishment in his place, this matter was settled for now. If he ever messed up again, then Elliot would kill him with his bare hands!

When Eric arrived at the Starry River Villa that noon, Layla immediately threw herself into his arms.

"I'm so happy to see you, Uncle Eric, but I can't bring myself to smile... My aunt died to save my little brother. I really like my aunt... I never even got to call her that... How could she die?"

Eric picked Layla up, then gently wipes her tears away.

"Your aunt isn't dead. She's alive in a different way," Eric consoled. "Her blood is running through your little brother's veins, so she will always be with him."

Eric's explanation made Layla stop crying.

Hayden's mood, however, turned heavier. He quietly returned to his room, shut the door behind him, allowed the tears to fall from his eyes.

Shea had asked him to call her "Aunt Shea" many times before, but he had always heartlessly rejected her requests. He hated Elliot, so the way he had rejected Shea was extremely cruel.

He regretted it now. He wanted to call her "Aunt Shea", but he would never get the chance to do so.

The last time he was this upset was when his grandmother passed away. He might not have called Shea his aunt, but he had already considered her a part of their family in his heart.

Around two in the afternoon, Avery was awakened by the sound of her phone ringing.

She thought it was the doctor calling, so she quickly rubbed her eyes and searched for her phone. When she found it, she saw Cole's name flashing on the screen.

Chapter 755

Why was Cole calling Avery?

Avery lay back down on the bed and answered the phone.

"My mother's dead, Avery," Cole sobbed on the other end of the line.

Avery froze for a moment. This was very sudden.

"Your mother's dead? How did she die?"

"Elliot Foster shot her," Cole choked.

"He wanted to shoot me, but my mother took the bullet for me. I'm in so much pain right now, Avery. I don't know who else to talk to..."

Avery sat up. Why did Elliot do that?

Shea got in trouble because of Robert. It had nothing to do with Cole!

Elliot would not kill someone for no reason. He was not that kind of person!

"Did your uncle do that because you did something horrible, Cole?"

Avery pestered. "What did you do?!"

Cole had simply wanted to complain to Avery, but he did not expect her to be more emotional than he was.

"It's true that I did something awful. I shouldn't blame my uncle for wanting to kill me, but my mother was innocent!" Cole drew a sharp breath, then wiped the tears from his face.

"My grandmother's death was caused by Zoe Sanford and me... I was stupid! I thought that I would never have to work again for the rest of my life as long as I kissed up to Zoe!"

"You killed your grandmother but still won't repent. How could you bring yourself to blame your uncle when your mother died because of you? If I were him, I would want you dead, too!" Avery gritted her teeth.

"One can be incapable, but should still have a conscience!" Cole's tears came to a halt.

"You don't have to speak up for me, Avery, but you don't need to give me this holier-than-thou attitude when I'm at my lowest! My mother's dead! I didn't kill her! I might not have a conscience, but I would never kill my own mother!"

"What about your grandmother, then? Was she unkind to you?" Avery retorted.

"If you could kill your own grandmother with your bare hands, then I can give you a holier-than-thou attitude!"

Cole clenched his teeth, then hung up the phone.

Avery let out a heavy sigh as she heard the sound of the call being ended.

How did Elliot suddenly find out that Cole was the one who killed his mother?

In the span of a day, Shea left him found out that his mother was murdered by his own nephew. Any typical person would not be able to handle this series of blows.

At the thought, Avery pulled off the covers and got out of bed.

After she washed up, she put on a clean cardigan, then walked out of the room.

In the living room, Eric was playing with Layla. When he saw Avery come out, he immediately shot to his feet.

"When did you get here, Eric?" Avery was fast asleep and did not hear him arrive.

"I got here earlier. I heard about Shea. Elliot doesn't blame you, does he?" Eric asked.

Avery lowered her gaze and said, "If he had to blame someone, he would blame the baby. I told him before that I would never let Shea donate her blood to the baby."

"In that case, the baby is even more innocent," Eric said with reason.

"Can the baby talk? Can he make decisions? If he blames the baby, then you should ignore him and take the baby with you."

Eric did not want Avery and the baby to suffer.

Avery understood his good intentions, but she had to go and find Elliot now. She was filled with uneasiness.

He must be in indescribable pain at the moment. Even if she could not truly comfort him, she should still check on him.

When Avery arrived at the Foster mansion, she parked her car outside the front gates.

The bodyguard saw her and immediately opened up the gates. Mrs. Cooper welcomed Avery as she walked into the front yard.

"What are you doing here, Avery? How's Robert doing?"

"Robert's fine." Avery hesitated for a moment, then asked, "Is Elliot home?"

Mrs. Cooper shook her head and said, "He left this morning and hasn't been back since then. What happened to Shea was a huge blow to him. Did you manage to contact Wesley? No matter what, we need proof if Shea's dead or alive!"

Chapter 756

Mrs. Cooper shook her head and said, "He looked really upset when he left this morning, so I was too afraid to ask. How about you give him a call?"

Avery pulled her phone out of her bag and dialed Elliot's number. The call went through, but there was no answer.

"Come inside, Avery! It's too cold out here." Mrs. Cooper led her inside.

"How's your recovery going?"

"I'm doing well," Avery responded casually.

The wound on her abdomen was still aching, but the series of events that were happening constantly made her forget about the pain.

"I'm also a woman and I've also had children. It hasn't even been a month since you gave birth, but you've been running back and forth between the house and the hospital. That must affect your recovery." Mrs. Cooper sighed, then continued, "Once Robert's condition is stable, you can rest at home in peace. Master Elliot will get through this by himself."

"I know. I just came to check on him." Avery would not be able to rest easy if she did not at least take one look at him.

"He should be back tonight." Mrs. Cooper poured her a glass of water, then said, "He spent all night in Shea's room last night. I'm guessing he didn't get any sleep."

"Could I go see Shea's room?" Avery took the glass of water from Mrs. Cooper and took a sip.

"Sure, but don't touch anything in there. I'm worried Master Elliot might get mad."

"I'll just look." If something had not happened to Shea, Avery would never simply go into her room.

Now, Shea had given up her life to save Robert. Avery felt that it was a great kindness, but she never truly understood Shea.

Mrs. Cooper led Avery to Shea's room.

The room was decorated in a dreamy, princess theme. Every single item in the room, from the dazzling chandelier, to a simple hair brush, was extremely unique. These were not things that one could simply buy on the market.

Elliot had given the best of the best to Shea, and Shea had given up her life to save their son.

Money could be measured, but love could not.

Elliot must be in excruciating agony right now!

Avery took a deep breath, then walked over to the vanity table noticed the photo album on top of it.

Before her fingers touched the album, she asked Mrs. Cooper, "Could I take a look at this photo album?"

Mrs. Cooper was not the master of the house, so she did not dare make her own decisions. However, Avery had just given birth to Elliot's son. Her meaning to him was extraordinary.

"It should be fine. Go ahead and look. I'll wait outside." Mrs. Cooper was worried that Elliot would be home at any time.

Avery sat down on the chair and opened up the photo album. It was the Foster family's old family album.

Some of the photos had turned yellowish with age. There were photos of both Elliot and Henry from when they were children.

Other than that, there were also photos of Shea. She knew that Shea's photos were also in the album because there was an inscription on one of the photos.

There were two adorably chubby children in the photo. The girl was wearing a puffy dress while the boy was dressed in a white shirt and overalls. They were sitting on the couch with a toy in each of their hands as they stared at the camera.

The inscription on the photo read, "One-year-old Elliot Foster and Shea Foster."

Shea Foster!

Avery drew a sharp breath!

Shea's full name is Shea Foster! She was most certainly a member of the Foster family! The Fosters had never publicly announced her existence, nor was she in the family register, but the photo in front of her could not lie!

Not only was Shea a Foster, she was also the same age as Elliot!

The two of them could be... Fraternal twins!

What else could explain the photo they took together when they were a year old? What else could explain the fact that they had the same last name?

Avery burst into tears! She had once broken up with Elliot because of Shea's existence.

Now that Shea was dead, the truth was finally in front of her! She buried her face in her hands and allowed herself to vent her painful emotions.

After crying for some time, she gradually began to calm down. She turned the page on the photo album.

After sifting through a few pages, Avery noticed that Shea was smiling in almost all of the photos before she turned two years old. However, in the photos after that, she rarely smiled and her eyes turned blank. By the time Shea turned four years old, she was no longer in the Foster family portraits.

Chapter 757

However, there were individual photos of Shea.

At the time, Elliot was also just a four-year-old child. Even if he was smarter than others his age, he still would not be able to do anything about wanting his sister to be a part of the family portrait.

Avery guessed that Elliot's father was the main reason behind the fact that Shea was left out of the family register. He could not accept having a mentally disabled child.

Otherwise, he would not leave his own daughter out of their family portraits.

Avery continued to look through the photos. When she turned a new page, she saw a photo of Elliot at five years old.

Looking at a five-year-old Elliot felt like she was looking at him now, but something did not feel right. Her heart tightened in her chest as her hands began to tremble.

Elliot did not look like this when she was looking at the earlier photos, but the five-year-old Elliot was obviously him!

Avery turned back to the earlier pages and tried to find photos of Elliot at four years old, but could not find any! She clearly remembered seeing individual photos of him before... Where did they go? She continued to flip the album backwards... There were no individual photos of him at three years old either. There was only a photo of him at two years old.

Avery pulled out that photo and compared it with the one of him at five years old.

These were... These were clearly not the same child!

Could it be that the absence of photos of him at three and four years old made it look like there was a much larger difference? Why were there no photos of him between the ages of two and five? What happened in between?

At that moment, Mrs. Cooper walked in and said, "I'm going to make dinner now, Avery."

Avery closed the album shut, then strode to the door and asked, "Isn't Elliot home yet?"

"Not yet. Stay for dinner!" Mrs. Cooper gazed at her eyes, then asked, "Why are your eyes red? Did you think about Shea?"

Avery nodded her head.

"Master Elliot would be upset if something happened to either Shea or Robert," Mrs. Cooper sighed.

"Let's just hope that Robert can live a peaceful and healthy life from now on. That way, Shea's sacrifice wouldn't go to waste."

It was completely dark outside by six in the evening.

Mrs. Cooper called Elliot to ask when he would be home, but he did not answer his phone.

"He's not answering, Avery. You should have something to eat first," said Mrs. Cooper.

"Didn't you say you still had to go to the hospital after this?"

Avery responded, then picked up her knife and fork.

Just as she was about to begin dinner, a car horn came through from outside.

Mrs. Cooper rushed to the front door to take a look, then hurried back to the dining room and said, "Master Elliot's home, Avery!"

Avery immediately dropped her knife and fork, then walked out of the dining room.

When she arrived at the mansion's front door, she saw Elliot getting out of the car into the dark night. His eyes were cold as ice as he gazed at her.

She knew that he would not blame her for what happened to Shea, but she could not help but freeze in that moment. She was not sure what she was afraid of.

Elliot approached Avery. Just as he was inches away from her, she unconsciously took a step back.

"Did you come to see me?" Elliot asked coldly as he gazed at her face. "What is it?"

Was he actually asking her why she was there? Did she need a reason to show up?

"I came to check on you," Avery said after mustering up her courage.

"I'm fine. You can leave." Elliot cut her off, then averted his gaze from her.

He walked away and went straight into his room upstairs.

Avery felt like she could hear her heart breaking into pieces!

She pursed her lips as bitterness spread through her entire body. If Elliot despised her this much, then he probably also did not want Robert anymore!

Chapter 758

The hallways in the hospital were secluded and quiet.

Avery made her way to the intensive care unit in the neonatal unit.

One of the nurses recognized her, then quickly approached her and said, "Robert's doing very well today, Miss Tate! If everything goes well, then you can just rest at home and wait until he can be discharged."

Avery nodded her head.

Since Robert was fine, there was no use for her to stick around.

As she left the hospital, her head began to spin. She knew exactly why she was upset.

She could try to convince herself over and over again to not care about Elliot's behavior. She could pretend to be cool and raise the children herself with no hiccups. However, why did her heart ache this much? She knew very well that Hayden and Layla might have always said that they did not want a father, but they wanted one in their hearts.

Avery knew that she needed him, too.

However, there seemed to always be an invisible pair of claws between them.

Every time they wanted to get closer to each other, those claws would reach out and rip them apart!

Were they destined not to be able to be together?

Avery arrived home at nine that night.

Mike saw the coldness on her face and guessed, "Did you go see Elliot?"

"I came back from the hospital." She did not feel like talking about Elliot.

"I went to check things out at the hospital today. The doctor said that Robert's condition is stable now, and there shouldn't be any issues from now on." Mike helped Avery to the couch, then said.

"Chad told me that it's better for you to leave Elliot alone for now. He was down for a while after his mother died. It's about the same situation right now."

Avery lifted her gaze and looked at Mike.

"He went to the old mansion to kill Cole Foster today, because Cole was the one who killed Rosalie. In the end, Cole's mother took the bullet for him. She died today."

Mike was speechless as he watched her talk.

"Robert was the one who took Shea's life," she continued.

"How does that make sense?! Robert doesn't know a thing right now, you never asked Shea to donate her blood..."

"That's how Elliot would think, though," Avery said certainly.

"I know him... That must be what he's thinking."

"That's his problem! Robert isn't just your child, he's Elliot's too!" Mike placed his hands on his hips.

"You look exhausted, Avery. Shea's already dead. That's something that we can't change. Since that's the case, then all we can do is accept it!"

Avery took a deep breath, then nodded and asked, "Are Hayden and Layla asleep?"

"They're in their room, but I don't know if they're asleep or not. They're pretty upset about Shea's passing, especially Hayden. I've never really seen him cry before this, but he was crying by himself because of Shea."

Avery recalled everything about Shea and her heart began to ache. Shea was a ray of light that could defeat all darkness.

Now that she was gone, her light disappeared along with her.

Avery returned to her room, washed up, then lay down in bed.

Her wide eyes were fixed on the chandelier above her head.

The light was blinding her eyes, but she endured it and refused to let her tears fall.

She did not blame Elliot. Even if he blamed everything on her and Robert, she still would not blame him.

When a person is at their lowest, they are completely void of reason.

When her mother died, she felt like her soul was sucked out of her body. She was close to madness and abnormally paranoid about everything. Everyone around her must have also suffered back then! She would give Elliot time. She could wait.

Two days later, a grand funeral was held for Cole's mother.

Elliot was not in attendance.

This showed that he had completely cut ties with his big brother.

What Avery did not expect was the fact that, after the funeral, Elliot had gone back to work.

Chapter 759

Avery wanted to return to work, too, but her body still had not recovered.

Even if she wanted to go back to the office, Mike would not allow it.

There was another thunderstorm today.

This winter was much colder than the years before. Mike reminded her not to leave the house before he went to the office earlier.

"You can invite your friends over to the house if you're bored, Avery," he said.

Avery simply grunted in response.

Once Mike left, she suddenly thought about how she did not really have many friends. Tammy's abduction left a permanent scar on her, and Wesley was nowhere to be found. She had no friends to invite over at all.

Mike returned an hour later with a bag of yarn.

"Knit a sweater if you're bored, Avery! You could make sweaters for the kids, or even for me." Mike figured that knitting was not a tiring activity, and it took more time. "You could even knit one for Chad's dog."

Avery put down the book she was reading, then looked at him and asked,

"Do I look that bored to you?"

"All you do is read. Aren't your eyes tired?"

"I can rest when I'm tired." Avery took a look at the yarn Mike bought.

"This amount of yarn would only be enough for a dog sweater."

"Don't you think Robert's about the size of a puppy now, anyway?" Mike teased.

"He won't be that small once he leaves the hospital," Avery said.

"I haven't knitted in a while. I might not remember how to do it."

"Express yourself freely. You don't need to be that serious about it." Mike glanced at the time, then said, "I'm going to the office. Things are busier at the end of the year."

"Watch the roads. It's slippery out there," Avery reminded.

"It's only the snow in our front yard that's thicker. They've got snow shovellers out on the roads to clear it." As Mike was about to leave, he suddenly thought of something.

"By the way, the doctor said that Robert can come home in two weeks."

Avery knew that.

The doctor had already called her to tell her about it.

He probably also called Elliot to inform him, but she did not know if he would go to the hospital when the time came.

Two weeks later, Avery had finished knitting a scarf a tank top for Chad's dog.

Mike was very impressed with her work.

"You're so talented, Avery. I bet Chad's dog would love this," he praised.

"You won't have time to knit when Robert comes home."

"Probably not," Avery answered absentmindedly.

"Are you thinking about whether or not Elliot would go to pick up Robert?"

Mike guessed.

"He probably won't."

"You guessed right." Mike did not have the heart to tell her the night before.

"Chad told me yesterday that Elliot's away on a business trip. He won't be back for a couple of days."

Avery's expression was calm as she said, "He did it on purpose. He doesn't want to face Robert.

"If that's the case, then forget about him." Mike already had a plan.

"Let's have a party to celebrate when Robert comes home."

"I'd rather not have a party. I don't want to show off the joy that came from someone else's pain."

Mike shrugged, then said, "Alright! Then, it should be fine if we celebrate at home by ourselves, right?"

Avery had no reason to refuse.

They arrived at the hospital half an hour later. The nurse had already carried Robert out of the intensive care unit.

He was much bigger than he was when he first entered the incubator, but he was still smaller than an average baby.

Even so, all of his vitals were the same as a regular baby. As Avery took Robert from the nurse's arms, her heart began to race uncontrollably!

Chapter 760

This was Avery's first official meeting with Robert.

When he was in the incubator, he was practically in a coma the entire time.

She had not visited him since he got better. She could not help but smile now as she looked at his glistening eyes.

"Robert! Sweet baby!" Mike stood next to Avery and gently poked Robert's cheek with his finger.

"Come to Uncle Mike!"

Mike carefully took the baby from Avery's arms.

At that moment, Chad walked over with a baby carrier and asked Mike to put Robert in it.

"Don't mess around if you don't know how to carry a baby," Chad warned.

"You have to support this part of his neck back here."

"You're talking like you're experienced. You didn't see how professional I was when Hayden and Layla were babies!" Mike bragged, then placed Robert in the carrier.

They arrived back at the Starry River Villa half an hour later.

The baby carrier carrying a sleeping Robert was placed on the couch.

Layla and Hayden gazed with widened eyes at their little brother.

Robert was asleep at that moment, so the two children's curiosity was quickly satisfied after staring at him for a little while.

Chad held his phone and took a photo of Robert.

Mike walked to his side, then asked, "Why are you taking a photo of Robert?"

Are you thinking of sending it to your boss?"

"Can't I keep it for myself?" Chad said, then put his phone away.

"You could come and see him every day. Why do you need a photo?" Mike said, exposing him.

"Don't send the photo to him. He can come here himself if he wants to see his son. If he doesn't come, then it means that he doesn't care about his son at all. Why do you need to use Robert's photo to bother him?"

Chad was rendered speechless by Mike's words.

As Avery listened to their conversation, her heart turned in her chest. She picked Robert up from the baby carrier, then made her way to her bedroom.

Mrs. Cooper trailed along behind her.

Once they were in the room, Mrs. Cooper shut the door.

"I'll watch over Robert, Avery. Get some rest if you're tired. If you're not tired, then you can hang out in the living room," said Mrs. Cooper.

Avery glanced at her and asked, "Do you plan on helping me take care of Robert?"

"Those were Master Elliot's orders. He talked to me about it before, but he also did not say that he didn't want me taking care of Robert."

Mrs. Cooper was Elliot's most trusted employee. Before Robert was born, Elliot had already discussed things with her.

"I know you have a nanny, but Master Elliot doesn't trust outsiders," said Mrs. Cooper.

"It doesn't matter how he feels about Robert right now, or whether or not he will acknowledge him as his son. In the end, Robert is still his own flesh and blood. He definitely doesn't want anything bad to happen to Robert."

Her words softened Avery's heart.

"You went through a lot during the birth. You first need to take care of your health. I'll take care of Robert."

Avery nodded and said, "Thank you."

"Master Elliot has always been kind to me. I'll be happy as long as I can be of help to you."

Avery felt much more relaxed with Mrs. Cooper's help to take care of Robert.

She walked out of the room and headed toward the living room.

Once she was out of the bedroom, Mrs. Cooper immediately pulled out her phone, snapped a photo of Robert and sent it to Elliot.

Robert woke up about half an hour later.

As Mrs. Cooper gazed at his glistening black eyes, she pulled out her phone once again, and snapped another photo to send to Elliot.

Anybody would fall in love with such an adorable baby.

Elliot was not a heartless person. How could he possibly not want his own son?

Hartsburg was a tropical city. It was 23 degrees in Avonsville, but it was 72 degrees in Hartsburg.

Chapter 761

Elliot's job was secondary. It was mainly to escape.

As long as he thought about how Shea had sacrificed herself for Robert, his heart would be torn apart again and again.

The phone screen lit up and he tapped the message.

A photo jumped into view—Robert's dark, dark eyes were open, looking adorably at the camera. As if she was looking into his eyes.

His breath hitched as he saw the picture.

He took a deep breath and put the phone down.

His rationality told him that Shea's death had nothing to do with Robert, but he could not cross the hurdle in his heart.

As long as he thought that Shea would never appear again and call him brother sweetly, his sorrow couldn't help but surge up and destroy all his rationality.

At night, at Starry River Villa.

Mike invited Jun and Ben over to celebrate Robert's discharge.

Babies Robert's age slept more.

Robert was sleeping when they arrived.

When they said that Robert resembled Elliot, Avery naturally thought to herself, Robert doesn't look that much like Elliot.

Because she had seen a photo of Elliot when he was young not long ago.

When Elliot was a baby, he did not look like this. She kept those words to herself.

Because at a glance, Robert did look a little like the current Elliot.

At dinner, Ben poured a glass of fruit juice for Avery.

"Avery, I sincerely apologize for misunderstanding you previously," Ben said.

"And you've worked hard giving birth to Robert!"

Chad asked, "Ben, do you know when the boss will be back?"

"You're his special assistant. If you don't know, how would I know?" Ben said.

"But I know something. He did go to Hartsburg for some business, but he chose the location. He insisted on going to Hartsburg."

"Maybe it's because Hartsburg is warmer!" Chad did not forget to defend his boss.

"He probably just doesn't want to face Robert's discharge." Ben changed the topic.

"Avery, don't worry. He'll be fine after a while. He's been busy dealing with Cole recently and doesn't have the energy to care about anything else."

"Deal with Cole?" Avery was stunned.

Cole's mother had already died for him. Was Elliot still angry?

"That's right! He wants Cole's company to go bankrupt spend the rest of his life in poverty," Ben said.

"If Cole wasn't his nephew, he wouldn't have left Cole alive."

Avery didn't feel sorry for Cole. Cole had brought this upon himself.

"Avery, has Tammy contacted you recently?" Jun suddenly asked, changing the topic.

"She sent me a message," Avery said.

"She went overseas with her family after she was discharged. After she heard about Robert, she sent me a message to comfort me."

Frustrated, Jun picked up his glass and drank from it..

"Jun, don't be discouraged. Look, Avery and Elliot are divorced and haven't remarried... Aren't they still together?" Ben comforted him.

Avery corrected him. "I only have contact with him because of the child."

'I can't have children with Little Sweetie. So it's most likely impossible for me to have children with her.' He drank again to drown his sorrows.

"Jun, live well first." Avery couldn't bear to see him so sad.

"No one can say for sure what will happen in the future. If you two are fated, you'll meet again in the future."

"Thank you," Jun said. "You have a worse problem than I do, but you have to comfort me."

Avery's heart sank. She picked up her juice glass and took a sip. After a while, Mrs. Cooper walked out of the master bedroom on the first floor and came to Avery's side.

"Avery, Auntie Hong called me just now and said that Sir is back. He must have come back to see Robert! I knew he wasn't such a heartless person!"

Chapter 762

However, Elliot did not come at eleven o'clock at night. If he really wanted to see Robert, he would definitely come over tonight.

"Avery, go back to your room and rest!" Mrs. Cooper looked at the time and said, "Robert is very obedient. If he cries at night, I'll make milk for him."

"Yes, thank you. I'll come and replace you in the morning."

Avery came out of her room and walked toward the master bedroom. She felt much calmer.

People can't get everything. With three children at her side now, as long as they were healthy and safe, nothing else mattered. She was relieved to think it through.

Back in her room, she was wide awake.

With Mrs. Cooper taking care of Robert, she did not have to worry about anything. She suddenly remembered the job she had taken when she was pregnant.

Because the patient was not in a hurry, she put this matter aside after the late pregnancy. She took the patient's chart out of the drawer and started at the beginning.

This patient was highly similar to Shea's condition. Now that Shea was gone, she was determined to treat this patient's illness.

Although curing this patient's illness would not bring Shea back, it would comfort her. She would do more good, so that if there was a reincarnation, she could hope that Shea would be able to live without illness and worry.

It didn't take long. Her eyes stung, but she still wasn't sleepy. She turned on the bedside lamp and a stream of information from the chart came into view. It was probably because of Robert's illness that she was more sensitive to blood types, so she immediately saw the patient's blood type.

Blood type: RH negative blood type o Avery looked at the string of words and felt as if she had been electrocuted.

This patient's blood type was exactly the same as Shea's, and it was similar to her illness... Was this a coincidence? What was even more terrifying was that this patient looked a little similar to Shea... How could there be such a coincidence?

She was suddenly eager to see the patient again. Because their first meeting had been so brief, his features were already blurring in her memory.

At a certain European-style mansion had been suffering from insomnia for the past few days and had a headache.

Elliot had killed Cole's mother. One had to know that Cole's mother was Elliot's sister-in-law!

Not only did he kill his own sister-in-law, but he also planned to bankrupt Cole's company! If this series of operations fell on Cole now, would it fall on him next time?

There was still more than a month until the three-month deadline given by Elliot.

In the past month or so, Elliot had not contacted her, which gave her the illusion that she was very safe.

However, she knew very well that Elliot had never forgotten their agreement!

She dialed Charlie. "Any news on that box?"

"Why? Did he ask for you? Hasn't he been busy with his nephew lately?"

Charlie's tone was neutral. "What did he say?"

Chapter 763

"He didn't look for me. But I don't have much time left! Charlie, have you made any progress?" Wanda said, "We're in the same boat now. If you can't protect me, I'll definitely drag you down with me."

Charlie said, "Wanda, aren't you afraid that I'll kill you? Where did you get the confidence to threaten me?"

"Charlie, I, Wanda, didn't get to where I am today because of my old face!"

Wanda's voice became sinister.

"I have many ways to escape unscathed, but I don't want to hide like a rat! I want to join forces with you to take down Elliot! Only by taking down Elliot can I deal with Avery without any distractions!"

Charlie was silent for a few seconds. He also wanted to take down Elliot.

Therefore, what he had to do now was not to fall out with Wanda.

'I've got a bit of a lead on the box.'

He had wanted to find the box first, but now that Wanda was asking, he could only say it in advance.

"What clue?" Wanda asked nervously.

"Wanda, I'll tell you when I find the box. If I tell you the details now, how do I know that you won't tell Elliot?" Charlie said cautiously. Wanda sneered!

No one who could survive in the business world was a fool.

Wanda had indeed planned to do so.

If Elliot wanted to kill her in three months, she could still betray Charlie. She would do anything to survive.

"In that case, let's talk about it when you find the box! If there's anything I can help you with, feel free to look for me." Wanda expressed her sincerity and said, "Between you and Elliot, I'm definitely more willing to cooperate with you."

"Okay. If there's anything I can do for you, I'll be in touch."

After hanging up, Charlie walked toward Chelsea's room.

Chelsea was relaxing overseas while avoiding Elliot. During this period of time, Chelsea was mentally and physically exhausted.

She didn't want to hide any longer, so she risked coming back. She didn't dare stay in her apartment, so she came to Charlie's side.

"Who are you talking to on the phone?" Chelsea had just taken a shower and was drying her wet hair with a dry towel.

"WJNFW;ga." Charlie stood at the door and looked at her face.

"Elliot gave her three months to find the dark red box. There's still more than a month left. Wanda is anxious."

"Oh, I've never heard of any dark red box." Chelsea's tone was indignant.

"Although I think I know him very well, I really don't understand him. He's cold and doesn't let anyone enter his heart. Even Avery can't enter.

Otherwise, Avery wouldn't insist on not remarrying him."

At this point, Chelsea smiled sarcastically.

"I don't know if it's because I hate Elliot now, but I actually think that Avery is very impressive. She can resist Elliot's temptation. Although it's very likely that she's playing hard to get, her methods are effective."

"Chelsea, do you know anything about Avery's eldest son?" Charlie wanted to find the dark red box as soon as possible.

Only by obtaining this dark red box could he really threaten Elliot.

"Hayden?" Chelsea put down the towel and began to search for information related to Hayden in her mind.

"This child is a computer genius! He can break through the firewall of the Sterling Group and make the company stop work for a few hours."

Charlie nodded. "I bribed one of the gardeners in Elliot's house. He told me that the year Avery returned to the country, Elliot's house did lose something. At that time, the entire Foster family was searched thoroughly. I suspect that Elliot's dark red box was lost at that time."

"Oh... As long as we know who entered Elliot's house at that time, we can find the person who took the box."

"Yes. But the gardener told me that Elliot doesn't have the habit of inviting guests at home. There are only a few people coming and going from his house," said Donald Johnson.

"You asked me about Hayden just now. Don't tell me you suspect him?"

Chelsea found it ridiculous.

"Hayden is just a child. Although he knows how to hack, it doesn't mean that he's so sharp in other aspects."

"Chelsea, the consequences of underestimating the enemy might kill you."

Charlie had already made up his mind. "I have to think of a way to meet this child."

Chapter 764

In Chelsea's opinion, although Hayden was young, he was smarter than ordinary adults.

And Avery's daughter was just an ordinary silly and sweet child.

So capturing Layla would be a little easier.

Charlie listened to her, lost in thought.

This was a risky move. If he wasn't completely confident, he wouldn't dare act rashly.

The next day, at seven in the morning, Avery came to the child's room.

The child was sleeping, but Mrs. Cooper was already up.

"Mrs. Cooper, thank you for your hard work last night. Go and rest now. I'll take care of the child during the day," Avery said.

"Yes, he drank milk three times during the night. He has a good appetite and is quite energetic," Mrs. Cooper said with a smile. "He's quite obedient. He cries when he's hungry and sleeps after eating."

"Xiaohan was like this when she was young. Rila just caused a little trouble," Avery added.

Mrs. Cooper was stunned for a moment.

"Avery, Rila and Little Han are also Sir's children, right? Although none of you mentioned this, everyone said so in private."

Avery said, "It's not that we don't want to talk about this, but he almost accidentally killed Little Han. If Little Han doesn't forgive him, I won't force the child to acknowledge him."

Mrs. Cooper understood.

"Sir was indeed an impulsive person in the past."

"Everyone has impulses." Avery sat on the edge of the bed and looked at Robert. "No one can do everything perfectly."

"Yes. I'll go and rest first," Mrs. Cooper reminded him. "You can put Robert in the living room so that you don't have to guard here all the time."

"Okay."

Avery carried Robert to the crib in the living room so that she could see Robert at any time and the nanny could help take care of her.

In a flash, it was ten o'clock.

Kinness had driven over to visit her and the baby. He brought many gifts, some for the child, some for her.

"Avery, it's winter vacation now, and you have to take care of Robert, so..."

Jin Sinian discussed with Avery.

Avery knew what he was going to say.

She looked at Layla. "Layla, tell Mama what you think. Mama has to take care of her brother, but Mama can take care of your brother, too. If you're at home, Mama can play games with you or take you out."

Robert was too young to even turn over. With Mrs. Cooper and the nanny taking care of him, she wasn't worried.

Layla glanced up at Jinnian, her bright eyes shifting, and then she said to Avery, "Mom, I want Uncle Sinian to play with me. Because Uncle Sinian can teach me so much, I want to be like my brother and be a wonderful person."

Jin Sinian quickly added, "As long as I'm not very busy with work, I'll send her back every day.

"Will this affect your work?" Avery asked worriedly.

"I can take care of the children myself."

Eric said, "Layla won't affect me. Just think of it as signing her up for a winter break class. I've hired a teacher to teach her vocal and dance, and if I have to take her on an announcement, I'll be sure to ask your permission."

Avery nodded.

"Thank you."

"It's no trouble. And I'd be happy to if Little Frosty would join Layla," Eric ventured.

Without thinking, Han shook his head and refused.

"Xiaohan has plans for the winter break in school. He won't be off until a week before the Spring Festival," Avery replied.

"Are you resting today? If you are, you can leave after dinner tonight!" Eric inclined his head.

"I see there's a lot of snow in the yard. Han, Rilla, let's have a snowball fight!" Layla pouted.

"You're an adult and I'm a child. My brother and I together can't beat you. I'll get Uncle Mike to help!"

With that, Layla immediately ran to Mike's room and pulled him out.

Finally, Layla and Eric were paired with Han and Mike for a snowball fight.

This game was very childish, but because of the children's laughter, the gloomy and oppressive atmosphere was swept away. She hadn't relaxed like this in a long time.

Chapter 765

Suddenly a cry brought her back to the present.

Robert was probably crying because of the noise outside.

Avery immediately picked him up from the cradle.

As soon as she picked him up, the little guy stopped crying.

"Robert, my brother and sister are playing with the snow outside. When you're a little older, can they take you with them?" She stood by the window with her son in her arms, looking out at the scenery.

Robert could not hug her vertically yet, so he stared at Avery's face with his big dark eyes, entranced.

"Baby, are you hungry? It seems like it's been two hours since you last drank milk... Mommy will make you some milk." Avery carried him to the crib.

The nanny wanted to help, but she realized that Avery was very familiar with everything, be it coaxing the child or making milk. Outsiders could not interfere at all.

"Miss Avery, you're amazing. No matter what you do, you're very good at it," the nanny praised.

Avery accepted the praise and asked, "When do you plan to go home for the new year? You could have just told me in advance."

The nanny said, "I'll take a break on the 29th! Robert is so young. I'm afraid you and Mrs. Cooper will be too busy. I can at least cook and clean for you."

"Thank you for your trouble."

"Not at all," the nanny said when she saw that she couldn't help.

"I'll get lunch ready."

At the Foster residence.

Elliot did not go to the company today. He had a cold, but he did not go to the company because of it.

He knew that Ben and Chad had gone to Avery's house to celebrate Robert's discharge last night.

If he went to the company today, Ben and Chad would definitely not be able to resist telling him about Robert.

Even if they could resist saying it, he would naturally think of it.

He'd toyed with the idea of going over to see the baby last night, but in the end the pain had overcome reason. He could not cross the hurdle in his heart. He felt that he might be ill, not physically, but psychologically.

After breakfast, he took a cold pill and drifted off to sleep.

When he woke at noon, he stared at the chandelier hanging from the ceiling, his spirits sinking further.

Perhaps there was a psychological problem and an element of illness.

Without the bond of a child, he might have allowed himself to be sick.

Evening

Mrs. Cooper picked up a call and did not know what the other party said. Mrs.

Cooper immediately took out her phone and handed it to Avery.

"It's Mrs. Scarlet. She's looking for you."

After Shea's accident, Mrs. Scarlet started to take care of Elliot's daily life.

Avery took the phone from Mrs. Cooper and walked toward her room.

"Avery, Sir asked a psychiatrist to come to the house today," Mrs. Scarlet said in a choked voice.

"He thinks there's something wrong with his mind. But I don't think a psychiatrist can open his heart. He might as well look for you."

Avery's heart sank. She understood what Mrs. Scarlet meant.

However, she might not be able to help Elliot recover from his grief. She had no confidence in herself.

"Avery, since Sir is unwilling to visit Robert, why don't... why don't you bring Robert over for him to take a look?" Mrs. Scarlet hesitated for a moment before saying.

Avery's fingers tightened around the phone.

Forty minutes later Avery carried the child to the Foster family.

Chapter 766

In truth, Avery felt uneasy. Her senses told her that so long as Elliot's issue wasn't resolved, bringing the child over to pressure him would only make things worse.

She regretted it as soon as she stepped foot into the living room of Elliot's mansion, but Mrs. Scarlet was extremely pleased to see Robert.

Mrs. Scarlet accepted Robert from Avery's arms and played with him for a while, before passing him back to Avery.

"Avery, Mr. Foster is upstairs. He's only had some soup tonight. That can't possibly be enough, but he won't even take another bite of food. I'm not sure if he's resting or in the study room right now," Mrs. Scarlet said as she led the way, "watch your steps while you are carrying the child."

"Mrs. Scarlet, maybe it's best that I don't disturb him," Avery said hesitantly,

"I'm worried that it would only increase his burden if he sees Robert."

Mrs. Scarlet was slightly stunned at her words, but then proceeded to say,

"but what if he finds relief in seeing Robert? He is Robert's father and he is going to have to face his own child one day. Is he supposed to just stay away from his son if he never manages to recover from the psychological trauma?"

The reason Mrs. Scarlet had asked Avery to bring Robert to visit Elliot was because she felt sorry for Elliot for being left alone.

Elliot's mother had passed away, Shea was gone and he had broken ties with his eldest brother as well; he no longer had a family.

Anyone would have had to suffer the same as Elliot would have been traumatized as well, so Mrs. Scarlet wanted Avery and Robert to remind Elliot what it was like to have a family.

"Give it a try, Avery! If he acts out, you can just leave with the child," Mrs. Scarlet said.

Avery nodded and thought to herself, 'I'm already here anyway, I might as well give it a try. What if it actually works?'

Once they were on the second floor, Mrs. Scarlet went to take a look in Elliot's bedroom.

The door to his bedroom was left open with no one to be found inside.

"He should be in the study room," Mrs. Scarlet said to Avery, "go ahead knock on the door directly. I won't follow you inside."

Apart from a bed, there wasn't much in Elliot's bedroom. Mrs. Scarlet would clean the room every day and hence, had so reservation in entering the bedroom; on the other hand, Elliot had a lot of belongings in his study room. The servants would normally stay away from the study room unless Elliot asked for it to be cleaned.

Avery stepped towards the study room with Robert in his arms. When she reached the door, she took a deep breath and knocked on the door, before listening carefully to the sound coming from inside.

Shortly after, the door was opened.

Avery froze at the sight of the towering figure that appeared before her.

Robert, who had been asleep in her arms, seemed to have sensed something and opened his eyes.

As soon as the child opened his eyes, Elliot's attention was drawn to his bright, shining eyes. It was the first time the father and son met one another's eyes.

Elliot's heart was instantly overwhelmed by emotions at how much Robert resembled him. He couldn't tell if he resented or loved, or felt nothing for the child, but he had yet to find a way to accept Robert's existence.

"Elliot..." Avery called out to him when she saw the dazed expression on his face.

Elliot snapped out of it and looked away from Robert. "Take him away."

His voice was hoarse and his tone was mild; for a moment, Avery couldn't tell what he was truly feeling from the words alone.

Elliot did not want to see their child, but did not seem to resent Robert as well.

Avery felt slightly disappointed. Robert was not at fault, so why did he have to treat their child with indifference?

Avery turned around with Robert in her arms and was about to leave, when she heard Elliot coughing

She immediately stopped on her track.

Elliot didn't cough all that often and would only do so when he was ill.

She strode to the stairs where Mrs. Scarlet was waiting and handed Robert to her, before turning around to head back into the study room. She strolled towards him and studied his flushed cheeks resulting from the constant coughing.

There was a strong emotion in the air that no one could label, but it felt like something would explode at the softest touch.

"Are you sick?" Avery asked and reached up to touch his forehead to test his temperature.

Elliot took a few steps back.

"It's just a cold. I don't have a fever."

Avery closed in on him and asked, "did you ask me to take Robert away because you are sick and don't want him to catch it, not because you don't want to see him?"

He stared at her with dark, brooding eyes and answered honestly, "both. Who asked you here? "

"No one asked me here. I'm just here because I want to," she said wilfully, before circling around his desk and turning off his laptop. She then took him by the arm and dragged him out of the study room."A cold might not be that big of a deal, but your recovery will be really slow if you don't rest. I know that maybe you just want to keep being sick so that you won't have to have Robert, but running doesn't solve any problem."

"And you are here to solve the problem," he summarized and guessed at the same time, "you want me to welcome the child with joy like everyone else and raise him together with you, is that right?"

"I did think of that before, but I know it's too hard for you. I don't want to put you on the spot, so I will raise my own child, but you don't have to act like you can't even look at him, like he is a murderer!" Avery instantly lost control of her emotions.

She let go of his arm, her chest heaving rapidly. "If Shea was still alive, she definitely wouldn't want your relationship with Robert to be so weird because of her!"

Provoked by the mention of Shea's name, Elliot's expression darkened he started walking back to his bedroom.

Avery followed closely behind. "You have a mild fever, Elliot, your temperature can go up at Knight if you don't take medicine now."

"I already took pills."

"What kind of pills? Show me." She followed him into his room.

Elliot paused and tensed his back; he was breathing heavily as though he was trying to contain himself.

Ignoring his anger, Avery strode towards the nightstand and picked up the box of medicine on it. It was a type of normal cold medicine; four pills were missing from the box, which Avery assumed had been consumed by him.

Out of habit, she glanced at the manufacture date and expiration date. After that, she tossed the box into the trash can.

"Elliot Foster, are you too old to think straight?"

She couldn't believe that an adult would take medicine without checking the expiration date. It was sheer luck that all he took was normal cold medicine, but why if it was something else?

"Where did you even find expired cold medicine?" Her heart sank as she couldn't decide whether he did it by accident or on purpose.

"I don't get sick that often." He swallowed hard as though he could read her thoughts and said, "I didn't take the expired pills on purpose."

"Call your personal doctor right now." She took a deep breath and commanded, "ask him to come over and look after you."

"I will get my driver to buy medicine." Elliot didn't think it was necessary to call his doctor.

"If you don't do as I say, Robert and I will stay here tonight," she threatened, "it's not like you can chase us out."

Her threat had worked and he called his family doctor as she watched.

Bitterness filled her heart as she watched him make the phone call.

'How desperately does he want me gone to actually call his doctor without a moment of hesitation?!' She thought.

After the call, she felt offended and no longer wished to remain in his room for another moment, so she turned to strode towards the door.

Chapter 768

After she left, Elliot called the family doctor once again and said, "I'm fine.

You don't have to come now."

The doctor was slightly confused. "Mr. Foster, I'm already on the way there.

Why don't I come and have a look?"

Elliot hung up. He reached up to touch his forehead and noticed that his skin was slightly hot to the touch.

He did not realize that he had a fever before Avery arrived. Though he did feel unwell, it did not affect his work; after Avery's visit, however, he felt as though all strength had been drained from him. He lied down on the bed and tried to empty out his emotions, but no matter how many times he tried, his effort ended in failure.

Whenever he tried to forget about what happened earlier, Robert's face would appear in his mind.

Robert's adorable, little face, and his bright, curious eyes were like a blinding ray of light that pierced through the darkness.

By the time the doctor arrived at Elliot's mansion, Elliot's had already drifted off to sleep.

The doctor touched his forehead and realized that Elliot's temperature was exceptionally high. He immediately took out the thermometer and checked Elliot's temperature.

The screen of the thermometer showed that his body temperature had reached 38.9 Celsius.

Normally, one would have to take medication for fever once their body temperature exceeded 38.5 Celsius, but because Elliot was asleep, the doctor could only place him on fluid infusion.

The next morning, Elliot opened his eyes and his fever had been brought down. His body no longer felt heavy and his headache had subdued.

Ever since Shea passed away, he had been drowning in sorrow, which led to insomnia. The lack of sleep had caused the headache in the end.

Catching a cold this time had given him a good night's sleep; he felt more energized and less depressed. He lifted the blanket and sat up, before noticing the medicine and note left on the nightstand by his doctor.

He picked up the note and saw that there was instruction on the dosage of medicine also a reminder for Elliot to take care of himself.

Elliot set the note down and got out of bed to open the curtains at the window. It was not snowing, and the snow in the yard from before was slowly melting away under the bright, golden light.

He turned around and walked into the bathroom.

After a shower, he changed into loose clothes and headed downstairs.

Mrs. Scarlet saw Elliot coming down the stairs and went up to him.

"Sir, do you feel better now? I should have known that you were sick when you lost your appetite and refused to have nothing but soup last night. This is my fault."

"I'm better now." His throat hurt as though it had been cut when he spoke.

"That's good to hear. I've made some soup. I'll bring you some."

Elliot strode into the dining room and as soon as he sat down, Mrs. Scarlet set a bowl of warm soup before him, before stir-frying some vegetables to serve with the soup.

Right before she was about to leave, Elliot asked, "were you the one who called Avery over last night?"

After a moment of hesitation, Mrs. Scarlet nodded. "There's a saying that a doer must undo what he's done. When I saw how much you've been suffering, I thought that maybe if Avery takes Robert here, you would be able to let go once you see Robert."

"It takes the right medicine to cure someone. My medicine is Shea, not Robert," Elliot said calmly, "I won't neglect Robert, I just can't love him the way a normal father would."

Though Robert did not take Shea's life, he was the reason why she was dead.

Mrs. Scarlet's eyes reddened. "I understand. I won't call Avery here again," she paused for a moment, before continuing, "the doctor told me to remind you to take your pills. Don't forget to do so."

"Yeah."

After a few moments of silence, Mrs. Scarlet added, "Mrs. Cooper messaged me an hour ago and said that she had traveled to Bridgedale alongside Avery and Robert."

Elliot's hand on the spoon twitched at the words.

"Avery plans to spend the new year with Robert in Bridgedale," she continued, "both Hayden and Layla are still over here! She didn't even wait for those two... Was she provoked in any way when she was here last night?"

Mrs. Scarlet knew that what she said would make Elliot uncomfortable, but she couldn't help it. After seeing Robert the night before, she had grown to love the child from the bottom her heart.

Chapter 769

Because Robert was identical to Elliot. If Shea was still alive and saw Robert, she would have spoiled the boy senseless.

A young woman as kind as Shea would never want to see Elliot keeping a distance from his son because of her.

Mrs. Scarlet left the dining room after saying what she had to say.

The spoon in Elliot's hand dropped into the bowl at the news that Avery had taken Robert to Bridgedale.

'She must be really mad to leave in such a hurry,' he thought.

Avery told him that she would raise Robert on her own; she took the boy away with her to Bridgedale so that he wouldn't have to see him. Elliot felt like he was supposed to be relieved, but he simply couldn't feel the slightest joy.

The thought of rushing to Bridgedale to find her even came across his mind, but was soon rejected.

'It's a good thing that she took him away,' he thought, 'that way, I will have time to cool down and keep check of my emotions.'

It was a spontaneous decision for Avery to take Robert to Bridgedale. Robert was still too young to travel on long-haul flights, but she laid awake all night thinking back to the cold looks in Elliot's eyes.

She didn't care if she was mistreated, but she couldn't allow her son to be mistreated. Motivated by rage, she decided to move her family to Bridgedale and spend new years there. She took Robert with her first, and Mike would take Hayden and Layla to meet with her in Bridgeable before Spring Break. Everyone in her family, including Hayden, Layla and Mike, all respected her decision.

Avery was grateful for their understanding and felt glad that they were willing to accept her, even when she occasionally decided to act rashly. She didn't leave in a hurry simply out of spite, but also because she wanted to see her patient again: a man that shared the same blood type, same condition and even similar looks with Shea.

The man had a wonderful name called Adrian White.

Though his surname was White, his first name Adrian symbolized 'the dark one'; putting the two words together somewhat made his name sound contradicting yet meaningful.

Adrian's looks gave her the same feeling as his name did. He had clear eyes, but often seemed gloomy. He would not have appeared that way without the pain he suffered from the illness.

When the plane in Bridgedale, their bodyguards sent them to the mansion.

Avery had not intended for Mrs. Cooper to tag along, as Mrs. Cooper was not familiar with Bridgedale at all, but she insisted on coming to help taking care of Avery's children.

"I have a nanny that I know from here and I will hire her to help take care of Robert with you. I don't want you to give yourself so much of a hard time," Avery said to Mrs. Cooper.

Mrs. Cooper nodded. "Avery, are you going back after the holidays?"

Avery read between her words and knew that Mrs. Cooper was concerned that she might remain in Bridgedale permanently.

"Of course, I will go back. Hayden and Layla go to school in Aryadelle and my company is there as well."

Mrs. Cooper sighed a breath of relief at her answer.

Meanwhile, in Aryadelle.

The house became extremely empty since Avery left with Robert.

Eric had taken Layla to attend classes for stage performances and Mike was busy with work since it was the end of the year; hence, Hayden was the only one left at home.

Hayden was attending special classes during the winter holidays and did not have class every single day. After completing his class for the morning, he was free for the rest of the day.

He had promised Layla that he would go find her in the afternoon, so after class, he took a taxi from the side of the road.

Not long after the driver started driving, he mumbled, "what's wrong with that black car behind me? Why is it following me?" Hayden's head snapped around to look behind him immediately.

Hayden was immediately alerted because he had been stalked before. He took out his phone and called Eric.

His phone was a gift from Eric; it was a cell phone tailor-made for children and Eric even saved his personal number in the phone.

Hayden told Eric about being followed and Eric immediately arranged a few bodyguards to wait for Hayden where he got out of the taxi.

The black car that was following Hayden raced by him as soon as he got out of the car, as though to make a statement that it was not following him, but simply happened to be driving on the same road.

"Are you here alone? Why didn't you bring your bodyguard?" Eric took Hayden's hand and took him into the building, where Eric and Layla trained for the entertainment company.

"It's new year soon and I told my bodyguard to go on leave," Hayden said.

"Your mom is going to be worried if she finds out." Eric remained thoughtful for a moment, before suggesting, "that person who was following you must have known that you don't have a bodyguard with you, otherwise he wouldn't dare to do such a thing. I will assign two bodyguards to you. Nothing bad can happen to you before you head to Bridgedale to find your mom."

Hayden didn't like being followed by bodyguards, but he knew that Avery had her hands full taking care of his younger brother; if something was to happen to him, it would break his mother's heart.

Hayden nodded in agreement.

"Layla learned a dance sequence today, but she might not be that good at it yet. When she asks you later, compliment her, okay?" Eric reminded him thoughtfully.

Hayden nodded dazedly, as he tried to figure out who sent someone to follow him. Could it be Chelsea? But Chelsea had been hiding under her shell lately and wouldn't dare to show herself. Could it be Wanda? She was the one behind that incident with the grave, after all. She desperately wanted Robert dead, so naturally, she would want Hayden and his sister dead as well.

'Why hasn't Elliot dealt with her yet? What exactly is he thinking?' He thought, 'Mom took Robert to see him last night decided to go to Bridgedale first thing this morning.

She must have been bullied when she was at Elliot's. That dirtbag!

Rage burnt hot within Hayden. To think that he had expected a dirtbag to make his mother happy, he must have been dreaming.

Eric took Hayden to the dancing room, where Layla was dancing under the teacher's lead.

Hayden felt disoriented when he saw how devoted Layla seemed.

Layla would always be easily distracted when she was doing her homework, but she seemed extremely focused at the moment.

Hayden didn't want his sister to be an idol, but kept his thoughts to himself when his mother did not oppose the idea; and when he saw how much Layla had changed, he had a change in mind.

As long as she is happy, she should be able to do anything she wanted.

Soon, the song was over and the dancing ceased.

Layla immediately ran towards Hayden. "Hayden! How did I do?" She batted her beautiful eyes and asked in excitement.

"It's good."

"I knew you would compliment me, Hayden! Dancing is so tiring, though! I want you to carry me!" Layla clung onto Hayden like a koala.

Hayden took her hand and took her to sit down on a chair on the side. "Stop if you are tired."

"I have to keep going! The teacher said that I'm still not familiar with a few moves and I need more practice to master them." Layla grabbed Hayden's hand and continued in a soft voice, "Uncle Eric said that he is going to take me to appear on a new year show in a few days. I'm going to perform well, Hayden. Uncle Eric says that Mom will be able to see me on television then."

Chapter 771

Seeing the determination in Layla's eyes, Hayden simply said, "good luck."

Meanwhile, Cole stood in front of the office window and watched as the neon lights lit up the city. The bustling night view outside signaled the start of the night life.

Had it been any time before, he would have left the office and headed out to enjoy the night scene; but today, he wasn't in the mood. He had been forced into bankruptcy by his own uncle and would be bearing a tremendous amount of debt. He did regret what he had done, but mostly, he resented it all. He had been leading a comfortable life as Elliot's nephew, and yet, it was as easy as killing a bug for Elliot to crush him.

For the past few days, Cole watched his own father called Elliot countless times, begging for mercy in order to salvage the situation. His father had hoped that Elliot would forgive him for the sake of their kinship, but Elliot would either refuse the call or transfer the call to his assistant.

'Elliot is merciless! My own mother had already died and I just want to live my life in peace. Why do I have to bear such a high debt? It's worse than killing me,' he thought.

An unknown period of time had passed before the door was opened and Henry stepped in.

"Leave now! Starting tomorrow, this will no longer be your company," Henry said coldly, "your uncle might be ruthless, but you are ungrateful! I wouldn't have been affected if you weren't my son, and I wouldn't have to clean up after a murderer like you!"

"Dad, I know that I've made terrible mistakes, but it's already happened. What's the point of scolding me now?" Cole turned around to face his father.

"I am on the wrong path because you fail at parenting."

Henry's lips trembled as he was rendered speechless.

The two left the company and returned home with red eyes.

The servants served dinner at the table, but Henry had no appetite. He only felt like drinking.

"Let's sell this mansion! This is the only property I own that's worth something. Sell the mansion and clear your debt. After that you are no longer my concern," Henry said as he poured wine into his own glass.

"I don't want to sell the mansion," Cole said with a lump in his throat, "if we sell this.

mansion, where are we going to live? I am not married yet. Without a house, how am I supposed to get a wife?"

"You are still thinking about getting a wife right now?!"

"If I don't get a wife, that means the end to your legacy." Cole drank a whole glass of wine and asked, "Dad, you are Elliot's father. Don't you have anything that you can hold against him?"

"Hold against him?" Henry was stunned for a moment.

"I might be his older brother, but we are too far apart in age so I haven't a clue about his business."

"I'm not talking about business. I mean his private life... I heard that he was the one who killed Grandpa," Cole lowered his voice and continued, "Dad, you must know something about this, right? Why haven't you ever mentioned it to me? If it wasn't for someone to come to me about this..."

"Who came to you? Who told you that?!" Henry's eyes widened in shock.

"Bringing your uncle down doesn't benefit us in any way!"

"But what if someone is willing to pay my debt for me? Dad, I will never agree to selling the old Foster mansion. The market value of this place will only go up in the future," Cole said in a calculative tone, "have you heard of Charlie before? He used to be Elliot's classmate, and he is also Elliot's competitor."

Instantly, Henry's eyes were filled with complex emotions.

He, too, wanted to keep the old Foster mansion, but it was never a good thing to betray his family with scandal. If his mother was still alive, she would have a heart attack.

"Dad, I don't know what's there to think about. Elliot has left us with no choice. Will keeping his secret do you any good? Right now, all I want is money!"

A stream of tears scrolled down Henry's cheek. "Your grandfather was, indeed, killed by your uncle. Your uncle came close to being thrown into juvenile jail. In order to protect him from it, your grandmother found a psychologist and forged a document stating that Elliot was psychologically disabled."

Chapter 772

Cole listened to his father as though he was listening to an intoxicating story.

"So, is my uncle really mentally ill?"

Henry frowned and sighed. "There are different levels of severity to mental illness. Even if your uncle was ill, he had not had another episode since then.

How else did he succeed afterward?"

"His business took off, but his love life did not. Avery divorced him and refused to hand over the custody of her children. Do you really think it's because they don't love each other? Maybe she's known about his illness the entire time and decided not to be with him!" Cole guessed.

Henry considered his words thoughtfully.

"Dad, we already have nothing. We have nothing else to lose. Even if we side with Charlie, what exactly can Elliot do to us? I don't have any more money that he can take anymore!" Cole found his determination in desperation.

"I have to work with Charlie."

Henry took his glass and drank all the wine in it.

"Tell Charlie about this, and then what?" Henry scowled.

"Even if you tell everyone that Elliot murdered his own father, what's going to happen? Back then it happened, your grandmother's first reaction was to protect him. If even your grandmother wouldn't blame him on this, what gives anyone else the right to punish him for it? Besides, it happened too long ago!"

"Dad, the reason why you are not as successful as Elliot is because you are not as ruthless as him." Cole poured his father another glass of wine.

"He has just enormous influence now and once a scandal like this gets out, it will destroy him! Charlie wouldn't try so hard to find his weakness otherwise."

"Elliot is still my brother!"

"But he killed your wife and forced your son into bankruptcy! Do you still care that he's your brother? Is he going to take care of you when you grow old?"

Cole's words had rendered Henry speechless.

Half an hour later, Henry had too much to drink and started turning red.

"Standing against him won't end well for you... I am going to retire to the country... Don't come to me for anything from now on... It's up to you if you have a death wish... but I don't... I don't want to die..."

Cole clenched his fists at his father's words.

"Elliot is a god to you, but not to me! Sooner or later, he will be defeated by someone better than him! Maybe he will end up even worse compared to us!"

Cole said, as his eyes glammed with hope for such a day to arrive.

He returned to his room after stepping out of the dining room called Charlie.

Though he was slightly drunk, he was excited and felt as though he could see the Elliot's scandal being printed on tomorrow's headline.

"Charlie, does your offer still stand?" He asked, "I've learnt my uncle's secret, but I need you to pay off my debt."

"Just how much exactly do you owe?" Charlie asked calmly, "I'm not as rich as your uncle, so it depends on how worthy your tips are."

"My tips are definitely worth the money. If you don't intend on working with me, then I will just find someone else," Cole said confidently, "my uncle has plenty of enemies. I can just find the wealthiest amongst them and they would surely pay my 7.5 million debts off for me."

Charlie considered the amount '7.5 million' and hesitated for a few moments, before saying, "I will give you a prepayment. Tell me everything that you know and I will transfer the remaining balance to you."

Cole had not expected that Charlie would agree to it so quickly; it seemed like he really was determined to destroy Elliot.

After the trade, Charlie felt slightly displeased because the information Colt provided him sounded like it was the most shocking news at first, but Charlie had already heard of it before; he simply hadn't been able to put all the pieces together just yet.

Which meant that he had spent 7.5 million on a confirmation from Cole.

The crimson-colored box that Elliot had lost potentially contained information related to his condition. Once he obtained the box, Charlie would be able to make Elliot his puppet.

At that point, 7.5 million aside, Elliot would have to pay him even if he asked for 75 million or 750 million. At night, Elliot was about to rest at eleven when the screen of his phone lit up all of a sudden.

Chapter 774

She felt like there could be some sort of connection between Adrian, his father, Shea and Elliot; not social connection, but biological connection.

Avery was startled by her own thought.

Had she been too tired lately, to come up with such a senseless idea?

Aryadelle and Bridgedale were so far apart that even if Adrian's father was from Aryadelle, there was no way that he was related to the Fosters.

The Fosters were so wealthy that they were untouchable in Aryadelle; though their family relations were a mess, if something did happen, Avery would have at least heard of it throughout the time she spent by Elliot's side.

However, she had not heard of any rumors apart from matters concerning Shea.

The car stopped in front of the mansion and she got out of the car.

As soon as her feet touched the ground, she spotted an elegant figure standing by the door.

"Avery!" The person spotted her as well and immediately greeted.

A smile appeared on Avery's face at the familiar voice. It was Tammy.

Since Tammy had been discharged from the hospital, she had traveled to Bridgedale with her mother. Once she caught news that Avery had come to Bridgedale with Robert, she immediately hurried over.

"I thought that you said you are coming tomorrow?" Avery was slightly surprised. Had she known that Tammy was visiting, she would not have gone to the White Family Mansion.

"I just really want to see Robert." Tammy hooked her arm on Avery's and pulled her into the living room.

"Robert is a little handsome fellow, and he is definitely going to bewitch countless women when he grows up." Avery couldn't help but chuckle.

"I don't expect that he would. I'd rather he stays healthy and safe."

"He seems energetic, so he's definitely healthy," Tammy said as she strolled towards the crib and played with Robert. "Avery, are you going back to Aryadelle after new years?"

"Yeah. You?" Avery asked.

"I have classes starting in Spring next year, so I don't plan on going back just yet." Sorrow filled Tammy's eyes.

The trauma from the latest incident had affected her, after all; Tammy's eyes used to be filled with spirit, but now, her eyes were no longer as bright.

"Tammy, you Jun..."

"Things between us are over. I told you, his family was pressuring me to give birth."

"Okay. I will support you no matter what your choice is." Avery's lips curled into a smile.

"You and your mom should come over to my place for new years! The more the merrier."

"Sure!" Tammy agreed right away.

"Avery, back when you broke up with Elliot, did he pester you?"

Avery remained thoughtful for a few moments.

"Back when we broke up, he was a successful business man and I was just a college student; if we are talking about pestering, I think I was the one who pestered him. Besides, he is too proud to do that."

"But you didn't exactly pester him as well, right?"

Avery sat down next to the crib.

"It really hurt at first when we broke up and sometimes I would really want to message him, but I know that doing so won't change anything; so, I packed my schedules with activities to keep myself busy."

"Hm. Jun has been messaging me lately and it's quite bothersome." Tammy had decided to forget him and start a new life, but Jun would send long messages every single day to recap on their past.

"You can block him if you don't want to receive messages from him."

"Should I really go that far?"

Avery wasn't sure how to answer. If one refused to do what had to be done and remained involved, it would only be more painful.

"Whatever. I'll block him! It's impossible for us to get back together again anyway." Tammy took out her phone and blocked Jun on every platform.

"If he still manages to find a way to bother me, then I'm going to get a new boyfriend to make him give up."

Meanwhile, in Aryadelle. Elliot remained depressed for two days, before deciding to hold a funeral for Shea.

Chapter 775

He had never publicized their relationship when Shea was still alive. It was a decision he made to keep her from the interference of the outside world; not even Avery understood him and thought that he hid Shea away from others' knowledge because he was ashamed of her intellectual disability. He had never once been ashamed of Shea; she would have died long ago if he felt ashamed of her.

With Shea gone, he no longer had to worry about someone bothering or hurting her. Upon deciding that he would hold Shea's funeral, he started making arrangements on his own.

When news got out, Hayden told Mike that he wanted to attend Shea's funeral.

Mike immediately called Chad to ask if they could go.

"Mr. Foster is the one who drew up the guest list, you and Hayden are not on the list," Chad said in a troubled tone.

Mike lifted an eyebrow. "Is Avery on it? If her name is on it, then Hayden and I will attend the funeral as her representatives."

"No," Chad said directly, "he only invited some of the managers in the company and some clients that Sterling Group has worked with for years... He didn't invite Avery or any friends, for that matter..."

"Oh... But Hayden says that he wants to see Shea off. Go ask Elliot if Hayden can come, if he says no, he will never hear Hayden refer to him as his father again," Mike threatened, "even if Shea died because of Robert, Hayden has nothing to do with it."

"I get it. Don't get so riled up. I'll go ask right away."

Chad hung up and took a sip of cold water to calm himself. He spent some time preparing himself, before gathering the courage to call Elliot. When the call was answered, he expressed Hayden's will to attend Shea's funeral and started building Hayden's case.

"Mr. Foster, Shea was very close with Hayden when she was alive..."

"Sure," before Chad could finish, Elliot agreed.

Chad felt slightly dazed, as he had not expected Elliot to agree without reservation.

After the call, he conveyed Elliot's response to Mike.

"My boss isn't that narrow-minded. Once Shea's funeral is over, he should be able to slowly recover."

"I don't care about him," Mike said, "now that all three kids belong to Avery, things are great.

"You have no empathy. Shea is Mr. Foster's biological sister. They were fraternal twins." Mike froze.

"Shea's real name is Shea Foster. It's written on her tombstone," Chad continued, "if she was still alive, we would probably never learn her real name."

"Why would he keep it hidden if they were brother and sister? I hate sneaking around most!" Mike mocked and decided to tell Avery about it to see if she would like to attend the funeral.

Avery remained quiet for a few moments when she heard the news. For the past few days, she had been hoping for a miracle; as long as Shea's body was not found, she could still be alive.

However, if Elliot had decided to hold a funeral, it meant that he had obtained intel that confirmed Shea's death.

"I need to take care of Robert, so I'll pass. You should take Hayden and go. If Layla wants to go, take her with you as well," Avery said.

"Alright," Mike said.

"Has Shea's body been transported back?"

A bold thought appeared in Avery's mind: she wanted to run a DNA test on Shea and Adrian. She wanted to know if the two were related... how else could she explain all the coincidences?

Chapter 776

"I didn't hear anything about the body. What's wrong? You can't possibly be thinking of reviving her from the dead, right?" Mike's mind ran wild. Avery's head started to hurt.

"I was just asking, Mike. If I can revive the dead, then no one will truly die on this earth. Don't you think that's really scary?"

"Oh. I didn't hear that Wesley will be coming back, so there probably won't be a body. Elliot must have gotten news that Shea was dead, though; he wouldn't have arranged a funeral otherwise."

"Yeah."

"Are you really not coming back? Robert is still little. You can hand him over to the nanny and come back for a short trip."

Mike wanted her to attend the funeral. No matter the nature of their relationships with Elliot, they had always been close to Shea.

"I've failed Shea," Avery spoke her mind in a hoarse voice.

"If only I realized what she was thinking earlier on, I would not never have let her do what she's done. I feel like I'm going crazy. I met a patient that has the exact condition as Shea. Not only do I think that he looks like her, I've even gone so far as to imagining that there's a connection between him and Shea simply because they share the same blood type..."

Mike was silenced at her confession. He had not known that she was treating another patient in Bridgedale.

"I've just realized it, but maybe it is their unique blood type that makes them more prone to this illness!" Avery said as sharp pain pierced through her heart.

The world was never short of coincidence, but the chances of ordinary people being exposed to those coincidences were slim.

It was likely that Adrian and Shea were not related in any way; they simply happened to share the same blood type and were both diagnosed with the same condition.

As for the resemblance in their looks, perhaps it was merely a result of how much Avery missed Shea.

"Avery, it's best that you don't attend the funeral. I think that you are not in right state of mind," Mike said after remaining silent for a few seconds.

"Do you ever feel like everything seems small next to life death?"

Avery hummed in response.

"Since we are still alive, then let's live our lives with joy!" Mike consoled, "I will take the kids to the funeral. Once it's over, I will wrap things up at work as soon as possible and bring the kids with me to join you."

"Okay."

Meanwhile, in Elliot's mansion, all belongings in Shea's room had been organized and packed, before being moved and locked inside the warehouse.

Elliot thought of leaving her belongings as they were, but he couldn't help but wanting to go into her room. He would be reminded of her at the sight of her things and whenever he was reminded of her, he would also be reminded of why she died.

His psychologist told him that he should not consider Shea murdered if she was not forced into donating blood.

There was something more powerful than hatred in this world, and that was love.

Because of her love for Robert, Shea had saved him with no concern for her own life. He should not turn Shea's love into never-ending resentment, so he listened to his psychologist and tried to overcome it. He did not do it for himself; he simply didn't wish to torture Avery and their children over this.

A day before the funeral, Elliot received a phone call from Wanda.

It was the first time Wanda had taken the initiative to call him ever since they met two months ago.

Seeing the way Cole's company went into bankruptcy, Wanda was concerned that Elliot would have more time to spare and that she would be his next target, and that was the reason for her phone call.

"Elliot, I heard something," Wanda said, "I had dinner with Charlie last night and asked him about the crimson box when he got drunk." Elliot started breathing heavily.

Chapter 777

"He said that he has something to hold against you, but he won't use it thoughtlessly because he needs to reserve it for the right timing," Wanda said hastily, "as for what's the right timing that he was talking about, I have no idea. Charlie is a sly man. I haven't known him for long, so he doesn't really trust me. But we are content with our partnership so just give me more time and I will find a way to get that box back to you."

"You already know that the box contains something that would post a threat to me; why would you give it back to me should you ever get your hands on the box?" Elliot said sarcastically.

Wanda froze. Her mind went blank as she dazedly tried to think back to what she had just said. Why did Elliot sound as though he had been provoked?

"I just wanted to know if Charlie has the box. Now that it's confirmed that he does, you are useless to me," Elliot gritted out coldly, "Wanda Tate, whatever you are plotting, I know everything."

Wanda was scared senseless at merely the sound of his voice.

"Elliot! I am not plotting anything! I wouldn't dare to! My nemesis is Avery, not you! Your business and your life have nothing to do with me..."

"Avery is a part of my life," he interrupted her and said, "Cole was the one who got your daughter killed; Jack Tate was the one who drafted the will and left Tate Industries to Avery's hands. The only reason you see Avery as your nemesis is because you have been so used to bullying her that your jealousy has consumed you when you see that she was doing better than you."

Wanda's hand on her phone started to tremble.

"I won't kill you now," Elliot drawled, his tone powerful and intimidating, "because death would free you; whereas keeping you alive means you remain tortured. I will make it so that you beg for the sweet release of death in the end."

Wanda's blood ran cold. "Elliot Foster, don't forget that I was the one who brought you and Avery together to begin with! I was her step-mother! I was her family for over twenty years!"

"You killed your mother. I won't give you the pleasure of a happy ending," he said, before hanging up collapsed onto her seat.

Though Elliot had said that he wouldn't kill her for the time being, her fear had only grown.

Indeed, true horror was when one could not tell one's fate. If she wanted to turn the table, she would have to obtain the crimson box before Charlie; that box was the key to staying alive for her.

At night, the looks in Elliot's eyes darkened as he burned through cigarette after cigarette.

He wanted to be a good man, but the gods had not rewarded him for it; instead, there were always people who tried to challenge his boundaries. If that was the case, he might as well continue being the bad guy. He put out the cigarette and made a phone call.

"Where is Charlie now?"

"He is at a dinner meeting."

"Keep your eyes on him."

"Yes, Mr. Foster. Do you have any further instructions for me?"

"Yes."

At three in the morning, one of the high-end residential buildings in the city center caught on fire, followed by horrifying explosions from where the fire had started.

Instantly, the sky was lit by fire.

The petrifying crimson flame burnt bright through the night and it almost seemed like the world was ending.

Just then, Elliot sat in the empty room that once belonged to Shea in a formal black suit.

As the noises of explosions pierced through the sky, he held a wine glass in one hand and a bottle of wine in another to pour himself a glass.

Chapter 778

If there was one thing Elliot hated most in his life, it would be being threatened by someone.

'So Charlie has something to hold against me, but won't move because he is waiting for the right time?' He thought to himself, 'ha! I won't give him the chance. If he won't act, then I'll destroy him along with the box. Even if the fire doesn't kill him, his house would be burned into ruins.

The siren of the ambulance echoed in the air through the silent night.

In Starry River Villa, Hayden had been woken up by the noises, and was shocked when he saw the sky painted with red. He crawled down the bed and stepped towards the door in the dark, before opening it and walking towards Mike's room.

Mike had just fallen deeply asleep and had not noticed all the noises on the outside.

"The sky is red." Hayden pointed outside the window to show Mike.

Mike rubbed his eyes and saw what was happening outside, so he took out his phone to check the news

"A fire broke out in a residential building in the city center." Mike yawned.

"Something exploded so the fire was spreading wide."

Hayden stood still after learning what had happened.

Mike noticed that he seemed depressed and tapped him on the shoulder.

"Big H, do you miss your mom? I will take you and Layla to Bridgedale in a few days. It's late now, go back to sleep! By the way, it might look scary out there, but the fire won't spread to our area, so don't worry. Go to sleep!"

Hayden hadn't thought of Avery until Mike mentioned her. He was actually affected by the noises of the ambulance and the light from the fire in the dark night; when he realized that someone might die during the disaster, his heart simply grew heavy.

He had not been this sentimental before, but perhaps Shea's passing had traumatized his young heart.

The next day, the fire that broke out in the city center in the middle of the night had appeared on the headline because it had occurred in a high-end residential area.

Apart from that, not only did the fire destroy the unit where it first started, it affected all the units on the same floor, along with the floors above and below.

As for the unit where the fire broke out, everything was burnt to ashes except for the load bearing wall.

Luckily, the people who lived in that unit managed to escape during the explosion, and according to the news, two people were found critically injured.

It was one of the most alarming news stories of the community in recent months, but Mike did not bother to look into it because it was the day for Shea's funeral.

He woke up early and took the children to breakfast, before rushing to the funeral venue.

Upon arriving, Chad leaned towards him and whispered, "have you seen the news today? That headline about an indoor gas explosion..."

"You mean that incident that took place at three in the morning?"

"Yeah! Do you know whose apartment that is?" Chad asked mysteriously.

Noticing something unusual, Mike asked, "is it someone we know?"

Chad nodded.

Both Hayden and Layla widened their eyes and leaned closer to eavesdrop.

"That's Chelsea's brother's place. She lived there, too. When the explosion happened, she was in there," Chad immediately told him, "the siblings barely made it, but both of them suffered rather severe injuries."

"Is this the gods' way of punishing them?"

"Not the gods. It's Mr. Foster."

Chad didn't give too many details considering how many people were around them. Mike nodded. "Let me tell Avery about this."

Chapter 779

Mike summarized the incident in simple wordings and sent it to Avery while attaching a photo of Elliot that he took in secret along with the message.

It was ten at night in Bridgedale. Avery had just gotten into bed and had yet to fall asleep.

When she saw the message Mike sent, she tried to picture the reason behind Elliot's action, but her lack of imagination had left her helpless in figuring out why he would suddenly attack the Tierney siblings.

If it was done to seek revenge from Chelsea for causing Avery to go into delivery early, why would he burn Charlie's apartment down, and why did he choose to do so at such a time?

There had to be something else going on apart from his history with the Tierney siblings.

Had it been any time before, Avery would have confronted Elliot to ask him what had happened between them, but she no longer had the energy for that.

Her three children had taken up eighty percent of her energy; and what little was left was reserved for treating Adrian's illness.

She had come to an agreement with the White Family that she would perform the first surgery on Adrian after new years. After the first surgery, they would decide if they could proceed with the second surgery based on the outcome. Seeing that she did not reply, Mike took a photo of Hayden and Layla and sent it to her.

This time, she couldn't help but reply, 'why are Layla's eyes so red? Did she cry?’

‘Yeah. Shea’s photo was displayed at the funeral and she cried when she saw it.’

Avery was overwhelmed with emotions when she received his reply. If she was at the funeral, she wouldn’t be able to hold back her tears as well.

After remaining silent for a while, she sent another message.

‘How is he?’

‘Which one? Are you talking about Hayden or Elliot?’

Avery gasped awkwardly.

Mike was teasing her on purpose, but did not want to enrage her, so he replied right away.

‘Hayden didn’t cry, but has been frowning the entire time. Elliot is the same.

There’s no doubt that they are father and son. They are practically identical.’

Avery held onto her phone slowly began to drift off the sleep.

Shea would rest in peace and all the pain would sooner or later fade.

Meanwhile, in a hospital in Aryadelle.

Wanda rushed to the hospital at the first chance she had to visit Charlie. It wasn’t that she truly cared if Charlie lived or died; she simply wanted to see how miserable he was.

Elliot told her the night before that she would not have a happy ending, and because of that, she had not been able to sleep much since the fire.

She had seen her share of vicious people, and she herself was someone who would do anything to get what she wanted; but Elliot was different from them all.

Because of how powerful and wealthy Elliot was, it would take someone with nine lives to defeat him in Aryadelle.

Inside the ward, Charlie's body was completely wrapped in bandages except for his eyes and mouth.

Wanda set the flowers and fruits she brought down and consoled Charlie's mother.

"Sis, this is not an accident," she said, "Elliot set the place on fire."

When she spoke, Charlie reacted right away from the bed. He tried to nod but his eyes were soon filled with tears from the pain.

His mother felt even worse when she saw her son's reaction.

"Charlie, we just need to protect our own properties. If you focus too much on taking something that belongs to others, you could risk what you have in the end!" Charlie's mother knew how ambitious her son was, and felt helpless when she saw what had happened to him.

"Don't cry, sis. Charlie will get better," Wanda said, "I want to talk to him, alone. I will talk some sense into him."

Charlie's mother nodded and left the room.

Wanda said to Charlie, "I see how you've ended up is like looking into my own future, but I don't want to submit to my fate, so I have to gamble. I thought of a perfect plan and I will surely be able to get that box. However, I will not be working with you any longer, because you have been utterly defeated this time."

Chapter 780

As Wanda was leaving, Charlie's eyes were filled with resentment and tears. 'I'm not dead yet! How dare Wanda look down on me?!' He thought, 'it's bad enough that Elliot doesn't consider me his rival. Who does Wanda think she is to look down on me?'

At the memorial service, personal belongings that represented Shea were carried onto the car after the ceremony and they were meant to be buried next to Rosalie's grave.

The rest of the guests headed towards the hotel for the lunch service; Mike was about to take the children to the hotel as well, but noticed that both Layla and Hayden were staring at Elliot, who was about to deliver Shea's belongings to the graveyard.

"He is going to the graveyard. Do you two want to go with him?" Mike asked.. Hayden nodded and Layla copied his motion.

"Alright! Let's go with him, then." With that, Mike took them along with him and headed towards the graveyard.

The graveyard was surrounded by mountains and the temperature was extremely chilling.

Once they buried Shea's remains, the gravestone was planted. Elliot kneeled and placed a bouquet of lilies in front of the grave while looking at the smiling photo of Shea. "Shea, if there's a next life, don't be so silly again."

Layla heard him and mumbled, "Shea isn't silly! silly people know nothing, and she knew everything."

Mike gave Layla a look and silently hinted her to stop talking.

"Shea must have known that it's my mom who did her surgery, that's why she likes my mom so much. That's why she likes me and my brother, and also our little brother..." Layla was so depressed; she knew that if she didn't take the opportunity to speak her mind, she wouldn't get another chance again.

"If I have a time machine that allows me to travel back in time, I will definitely stop Shea from giving her blood to our brother. Robert is really cute, but I didn't want to lose Shea as well."

Elliot's body stiffen at Layla's words.

Avery was the one who performed Shea's surgery? It was Avery the entire time.

Elliot felt as though he had been struck by lightning.

Mike watched as Elliot's face turned from white to red, before darkening.

"Layla, why would you spill everything out like that? Your mom didn't even mention this to him," Mike whispered to Layla.

Layla didn't think that she had done something wrong.

"But Shea is already gone! Even after the two surgeries my mom did for her, she still died!"

"Two surgeries!" Elliot thought, "Avery was the one who did both surgeries on Shea!"

Elliot swallowed hard as he stared intently at Layla's face, feeling as though everything before him was a dream.

If Avery was the one who performed the surgeries on Shea, why was he completely unaware of it? He even ended up paying Zoe 300 million like a clown.

He felt like a fool, while Avery watched everything refused to mention this to him even after Shea's death. If Layla hadn't talked about it, was Avery going to keep this from him forever?

Mike could sense that Elliot was emotionally unstable, so he picked Layla off the ground and took Hayden's hand with his other hand, before saying goodbye.

"It's too cold here. I will take the kids and go now."

With that, Mike left hastily before Elliot could react.

The weather was cloudy and it looked as though the sky was about to fall.

The graveyard was surrounded in silence, so one would distinctly hear the slightest movement.

Elliot looked back at Shea's smiling face in the photo as his state of mind shifted drastically.

It was no wonder that Shea would call out to Avery every time after the surgeries; it was no wonder that Shea said she heard Avery's sound after the second surgery and refused to accept that Zoe was the one who performed the surgery.

Chapter 781

Zoe's story was nothing but an enormous lie, yet he was even more laughable than her. At least Zoe knew that it was a lie from the start, but he had believed her story up until now.

"Avery Tate, why would you do this to me?" Elliot mumbled as he quietly sobbed, "why?"

All he received in response was the sound of the wind blowing.

On the way home, Layla muttered in confusion, "why isn't Dad happy when he finds out that Mom was the one who performed surgeries on Shea?"

"Layla, would you be mad if your brother lies to you?" Mike tried to explain with a metaphor. "Your dad wouldn't have been upset if he had known about
"Why didn't Mom tell him, then?"

"Because your mom didn't want anything to do with him at first. She was afraid that if she gets involved with him, he would come and take you and your brother away from her. By the time their relationship improved, it was too long in the past for her to mention."

Layla still seemed slightly confused by Mike's explanation.

"The adults' world is so complicated!"

"Yeah! Which is why people like Shea are actually rather lucky." Mike glanced at Layla and said, "your eyes are all swollen now. I thought that you had a rehearsal tonight?"

"It's a rehearsal, not the official live performance." Layla rubbed her eyes and it hurt a little." After the show, I want to go find Mom."

"Sure."

In the evening, Avery made a video call to them.

It was seven in the morning in Bridgedale and that was usually the time they video called one another.

"Shea has been buried and Layla has gone off to attend the rehearsal for the night ball." Mike and Hayden stood before the camera in the video call with Avery.

"Layla told Elliot that you were the one who performed surgeries on Shea and he was really emotional as though he had been struck."

Avery remained silent.

"Did he contact you?" Mike asked.

"No." Avery drew a quiet deep breath and changed the subject.

"Layla's classmate's mother contacted me saying that her child will be having a birthday celebration soon, would like to invite Layla as a guest. That child seems to be quite close with Layla so if you have time tomorrow, take Layla over. If you are busy, tell the bodyguard to send her."

"Oh, I'm busy tomorrow. I will tell the bodyguard to send her there, then."

"Sure." Avery turned her attention to Hayden. "Hayden, do you have class tomorrow?"

Hayden nodded.

"What do you learn in the special classes?" Avery hadn't a clue about what Hayden was studying, as it was a completely different field as her profession.

Hayden briefly went through the content of his curriculum and Avery complimented him as she often did, “you are so brilliant, darling. I am so proud of you.”

It was a simple complement, but Hayden felt especially proud.

After the video call, Mike looked at the time and said, “why don’t we go shop?

You mom said that Layla will be celebrating her classmate’s birthday tomorrow, so let’s go get a gift.”

Hayden didn’t like going out at night and rejected his suggestion.

“Go find Uncle Chad for that!”

“Alright! Layla will get home a little late tonight, so you can go ahead and sleep first if you get tired. Don’t wait up,” Mike reminded.

“I will be out late as well.”

“Okay.”

The next day, Layla arrived at her classmate’s home with a present accompanied by the bodyguard. As the living room was packed with children, the owner of the house invited the bodyguard to a poker game in the multi-function room.

After playing with the others for a while, Layla slowly developed the urge to relieve herself, so she headed to the bathroom.

A woman followed her inside.

Layla, who didn’t want to be watched as she used the bathroom, said,

“Auntie, I don’t need help.”

The woman locked the door from the inside and said, “go ahead and use the bathroom first, Layla. I came in because I needed to ask you something.”

Chapter 782

Layla was not a clueless child. She glanced at the woman who followed her in with the corner of her eyes. She did not know this person at all, so why would she claim that there was something she needed from Layla?

Layla relieved herself and swiftly pulled her pants back up.

“Don’t be nervous, Layla. I’m not a bad person,” the woman immediately started talking once Layla was dressed.

“I am sent by Elliot.”

Layla instantly lowered her defenses at the mention of Elliot. Though she did not officially admit that Elliot was her father, he had been nice to her; at the very least, she believed that Elliot wouldn’t hurt her.

She sighed a breath of relief and said, “you scared me, Auntie! Why did Elliot sent you here to look for me? Why didn’t he just contact me directly? I saw him just yesterday!”

Guilt flashed by the woman’s eyes. “It’s more of an important matter and it’s peculiar, so he was worried that he might scare you if he talked to you directly; that’s why he told me to come instead.”

Layla was only beginning to let her guards down, but immediately became nervous again at the woman’s words.

“What kind of important and peculiar business do you have to say to a kid like me?” Layla enjoyed pretending to be an adult, but she had never forgotten the fact that she was a child. “My mom is in Bridgedale, but you can call her! You can talk to my brother as well!”

In Layla’s mind, though her brother was the same age as her, Hayden was already a mature individual.

The woman shook her head. “Your mother doesn’t know about this. It’s about a crimson colored box.”

The look on Layla’s face instantly froze in response to the words.

'A crimson-colored box?'

Layla had received countless gifts on every special occasion and they were all wrapped in boxes of different colors, so Layla couldn't quite understand what the woman meant by 'a crimson colored box'.

"There's no rush, Layla. The crimson box I'm talking about belongs to Elliot. Did you and your brother take a crimson-colored box from his house before?" Woman explained in details Layla immediately remembered.

It was the crimson-colored box that she had taken from Elliot's study room when she went to his house.

In truth, her mother had been rather strict on educating them and stealing from someone's home was absolutely forbidden; however, something ticked off in her head that day when she thought of what a dirtbag Elliot was for not raising her and her brother, and making her mother angry. Hence, she took something of his on purpose as a punishment towards her.

She had been younger then and there wasn't much she could do to Elliot even if she wanted to, but she had never imagined that a box that she had randomly taken contained something that important.

"Do you remember it now, Layla? The box contains something really important to Elliot." The woman noticed Layla looking away and instantly knew that there was something to it. If Layla hadn't seen or taken the box, she would have denied it right away.

A child her age could never hide what was truly on her mind.

Layla looked up and scanned the woman up and down.

Her brother had told her that the box contained something important to Elliot and that she was to keep it a secret. None of them had mentioned it to their mother or Mike that the box was buried under a tree in their yard.

‘A crimson–colored box?’

“There’s no rush, Layla. The crimson box I’m talking about belongs to Elliot. Did you and your brother take a crimson–colored box from his house before?” Woman explained in details Layla immediately remembered.

Her brother had told her that the box contained something important to Elliot and that she was to keep it a secret. None of them had mentioned it to their mother or Mike that the box was buried under a tree in their yard.

Chapter 783

But how did Elliot realize that she was the one who took the box? Unsettled, Layla had no clue as to what to do when there was no one else she could rely on.

"I... I don't know... Auntie, I want to go home." Layla lowered her gaze and tried to exit the bathroom.

The woman stood before the door and stopped her from getting out.

"Layla, I know that you might be a little scared right now. So am I," she lowered her voice, "but if you don't tell me where the box is, not only will Elliot me, he will kill the bodyguard who sent you here as well. You should have heard what kind of a man he is, right?"

Layla shook her head frantically without a moment of hesitation. "Is he going to kill me, too, if I don't say anything? No way! He won't do that!"

"He is definitely not going to kill you. You are his daughter, after all. But do you want to see the bodyguard who sent you here die?" The woman's voice was soft, yet filled with threats.

Layla's eyes reddened as she sobbed, "no... I don't want my bodyguard to die..."

"Layla, that box belongs to Elliot. All you need to do is to return it and nothing bad will happen," the woman coaxed, "it was Elliot's to begin with, so let's return it to its owner, okay?"

Layla's defenses crumbled.

"I... I need to talk to my brother first..."

"Why would you need to talk to him? What would happen if he doesn't approve? If that happens, both me and your bodyguard would die at the hands of Elliot.” Tears scrolled down the woman’s face as she spoke, “return the box in silence and tell your brother when he finds out. Surely he wouldn’t blame you; he might not even notice it at all.”

Layla raised her hand to wipe away her tears as she struggled. She had never encountered a situation like this before and how could a six-year-old like her possibly made up her mind?

“Layla, is that box at your house? Let me send you back, okay?” The woman continued, “tell you bodyguard to drive the two of us back to get the box.”

Layla reluctantly nodded. “My brother would be mad if he found out.”

“Then don’t tell him. The box belongs to Elliot, not your brother. It was wrong of you to take something that isn’t yours to begin with.”

The woman’s words finally convinced Layla to let her guard down.

She was the one who took the box FJOMGY:c now, she had to be the one to return it; it could be a good thing to pretend that nothing had ever happened.

They drove back to Starry River Villa. The woman and the bodyguard waited in the yard while Layla went into the mansion on her own.

It was the first time she had ever felt so alone. Mike and Hayden were not at home and there were only nannies left to clean the house. Had any of them been at home, she would have rushed towards them to tell them what had happened.

Layla sighed gloomily and took out a shovel, before walking back to the woman and point at one of the trees.

The woman accepted the shovel in pleasant surprise.

Hayden was the one who buried the box. Since he was still a child and could hardly measure up to the strength of an adult, he couldn't bury it too deep; it took the woman a short while of digging before she found the crimson box.

The woman gave Layla an overjoyed smile after getting the box.

"Layla, you are such a good girl! Well then, I don't overstay my welcome," she said happily, before leaving the mansion with the box.

The bodyguard watched the woman left in confusion.

"Layla, what did she just dug up? Why are you giving it to her?"

"That's Elliot's, not mine." Layla pouted.

"Oh." The bodyguard responded, but soon realized that something was wrong.

"But why are you giving Elliot's thing to that woman?!"

Chapter 784

"That lady was sent by Elliot," Layla explained to the bodyguard in all seriousness, "Elliot is a bad person! She said that if I don't give the box up, Elliot will kill you. You protect me every single day, how can I let him kill you?"

The bodyguard felt flattered and surprised at the same time. "Why don't I feel like that's the kind of man Elliot Foster is? If one beats a dog, one has to answer to its master. I am hired by your mother. How is he supposed to explain himself to your mother if he kills me?"

Layla blinked blankly. "So, you are saying that he doesn't dare to offend Mom?"

"Yeah! When has he ever bullied anyone in this house? Whether it's you and your brother, or your Uncle Mike, he has always been quite polite when he sees you all," the bodyguard rationalized, "why would he kill me when I didn't do anything to him?"

“But I stole from him,” Layla mumbled while tugging at the corner of her clothes.

“I stole that box from his house and it contains something really important. Now that I’ve returned it to him, he probably won’t be mad anymore.”

The bodyguard felt like there was more to the story, but since Layla had gone ahead and returned the box, there was nothing much left to be concerned with.

Just then, on the highway outside Starry River Villa, the woman who obtained the box called her employer smugly to report the good news.

She had not expected to accomplish her mission so easily. As she had expected, Layla was a simple-minded little girl who would panic at the simplest threat.

It was also sheer luck that she had succeeded, because Layla’s house happened to be empty and everything went smoothly when Layla had no one else to talk to.

Once the call was answered, the person on the other side of the line asked, “how did it go? Did you get it?”

“I did! It went smoothly!” The woman played with the crimson-colored box while sitting on the passenger’s seat.

“I heard that this box contains Elliot Foster’s secret... It’s no wonder that you are willing to pay such a high price for it!”

“It means death to ordinary people if they get their hands on the box. Don’t even think about keeping it to yourself, or you will die,” the employer warned sarcastically, “don’t take Elliot Foster lightly! If you don’t get me the box, I will send your personal information to him right away! If I can’t have it, you are not getting out of the woods either!”

The woman paled in fear. "That's not what I mean to say... I've never thought of keeping the box to myself. Money is more promising and I don't want to take that big of a risk. Just transfer the money to my account. I'm already on my way."

As soon as the woman finished her sentence, a deafening 'baam!' followed as a white car lost control and ran into them.

The woman screamed as the car was sent flying and the heart-wrenching shout was heard by the employer through the phone...

A smug expression had appeared on Wanda's face as she was assured that she had the box, but when she heard the screaming, she stood up from her chair hastily and shouted at the phone, "hello?! What happened?! What's going on??"

However, there was nothing but static on the other end of the line. She seemed to hear the sound of glass breaking, cars honking frantically and the pained moans of a woman...

All the sounds came together to form a picture of a car crush.

Wanda was stunned.

The person she had sent had obtained the box with such ease that she thought that she would have the crimson-colored box within half an hour, but instead, a car accident took place at such a crucial time.

If there was a car accident, the police would arrive at the scene immediately and all personal effects inside the car would be taken away.

If the police collected the box and realized that the content inside belonged to Elliot, they would contact him right away to return it to him.

Wanda felt like she was going crazy. She could not allow that to happen. She must hurry over and get the box. She grabbed onto her phone tightly and her brain went into overdrive. The car crash had likely taken place near Starry River Villa because the woman she hired had contacted Wanda immediately after obtaining the box.

Chapter 785

After confirming that, Wanda rushed out of the company and drove towards Starry River Villa.

She arrived at Starry River Villa at the fastest speed she could manage and spotted the scene of the car crash as soon as she drove onto the highway outside the villa.

She got out of the car and stepped towards the crowd that surrounded the scene.

A black car and a white car had crashed into one another to the extent that both were deformed; the scene was chaotic and covered with a terrifying amount of blood. Apart from the blood, the one thing that was most eye-catching had to be the person laying on the ground covered by a large piece of white fabric.

It was not a person, but a body.

Wanda stood amongst the crowd and studied the clothes of the deceased under the white rug... From the clothes alone, she had come to a conclusion that it was the person she had hired.

Her blood instantly ran cold.

'So what if she is dead? Where is the box?! Where is the box??' She thought.

She desperately wanted to rush towards the car to search for the box, but the police officers were taking photos of the crash site and she didn't dare to act rashly. If Elliot found out that she was at the accident scene, he would be able to find an excuse to punish her even if she wasn't there to look for the box.

Her eyes began to turn red as she stared at every single item that the police recovered from the car; when she saw the blood–stained box being taken out, she felt that she was running out of air and was about to suffocate.

‘That’s the box! That has to be the box! That’s the box that contains what I need!’ She thought and pushed her way forward subconsciously.

One of the police officers opened the box to check what was inside.

Wanda held her breath and widened her eyes to the point that her eyes looked as though they were about to pop out of her sockets.

She watched as the officer opened the box to have a look inside, before closing it back up and tossing it aside casually like it was garbage.

Wanda stared at the crimson–colored box DNIŁDV

‘Can...can it be that there is nothing inside that box?!’ She thought, ‘why else would the police officer just toss it on the ground like that?’

If there was something in the box, the officer would have taken it out to inspect it; but instead, he opened the box without taking anything out, before closing it back up. It could only mean that the box was empty.

Wanda couldn’t help but step back.

If there was nothing inside the box, there was no need for her to waste any more time here.

An hour later, Elliot caught the news that the crimson box that went missing from his study room had resurfaced.

The bodyguard brought the box to him and he scowled at the sight of the blood on the box. If it wasn’t for the fact that the box contained his personal belongings, he would have never lay a finger on it.

He accepted the box and opened it...

When he saw that there was nothing inside, he immediately clenched his fingers and crushed the box in his hand.

“Mr. Foster, they found this box at the scene of a car accident. The couple in the car are both dead,” the bodyguard said, “the police said that the box had been empty from the moment they took it out from the car.”

Chapter 786

Who took the content inside the box?

The truth seemed so close, yet so far. The one thing he could be certain of was that the person who took it was around him.

The car crash took place on the highway outside Starry River Villa, so there was a high chance that the box, or the content inside the box leaked from Starry River Villa, it would be hard to explain why the car crash took place there otherwise.

In the hospital.

Though Chelsea managed to survive, she was suffering excruciating pain because the left side of her face had been burned. The doctor had told her that there would be a scar on her left cheek and it was unsalvageable. She had been tending to her looks with extra care since she was young, and couldn't accept the fact that her face was ruined.

It was more devastating than death, but even death didn't come easy.

“You should realize the reality now, Chelsea!” Mrs. Tierney sat by the bed and said in a cold voice, “I told you to stay away from Elliot Foster long ago and you wouldn't listen. With how you've turned out right now, I truly worry for your life from now on.”

Mrs. Tierney was the biological mother of Chelsea and a step-mother to Charlie, but she favored Charlie because the legacy of the Tierney Family rested in Charlie's hands.

She treated Charlie as though he was his biological son in hope that he would in turn protect her in the future.

“Just forget that you have a daughter like me from now on!” Chelsea said in desperation, “Charlie treats you well any way. All you need is him.”

“You are still my daughter. Of course, I wouldn’t want you to lead a miserable life.” Mrs. Tierney lowered her gaze.

“Your brother broke one of his legs and will be a cripple for the rest of his life.”

“So what, if he’s a cripple? It doesn’t affect his right to inherit the family properties; my face is ruined. There won’t be any rich man out there willing to take me. There’s no way I can find a proper job like the one I had before either,” Chelsea sobbed, “I’m useless. Is this my karma?”

“Chelsea, your self-pitying is very unbecoming.” Mrs. Tierney scowled.

“Your brother will definitely take care of you. No matter how bad it gets, you will have someone to rely on. Don’t act as though the others owe you something.”

“Mom, I really hate you. Do you really not know why I follow Elliot around? It’s because what he gave me was way more than what you have given me. When I was by his side, you two would never look down on me. Elliot can ensure that I am respected.”

“What gives you the right to be mad at me and your father? Without the Tierney Family, do you really think that you can approach Elliot to begin with?” Mrs. Tierney said sarcastically, “you have such a stubborn and strange character. I wonder who you got that from. I have nothing else to say to you.”

Mrs. Tierney said in contempt, before getting up to leave the room.

If the day she broke all ties with Elliot was the gloomiest day in Chelsea’s life, then today was truly the end to her world.

Fame and money might get her respect from others, but what truly made one feel safe was a healthy body.

How was she supposed to live out the rest of her life?

Mrs. Tierney stepped out of Chelsea's room and came to Charlie's. She was surprised when she saw someone visiting and it happened to be Elliot.

The fruit basket and flowers he brought oozed a strong fragrance. Mrs.

Tierney walked towards him with despair in her eyes. "Mr. Foster, my son's disabled and my daughter's face is ruined, are you still not satisfied? How is this different from killing them?"

On the bed, Charlie widened his eyes while tears welled up in them. His lips trembled as though he was trying to say something to Elliot, but in the end, he could only manage to make weird gurgling noises.

"They used to be my friends, and it pains me to see them turn out like this,"

Elliot said calmly, "Charlie seems a bit agitated, so I will leave him alone now."

With that, he strode out of the room.

The reason that he came to visit Charlie was to check his current condition.

The content inside of the box was taken and there were only two suspects in his mind: Wanda, or Charlie.

Chapter 787

From what he had seen, Charlie couldn't speak, so he wouldn't be able to make any command or steal the content of the box.

"Mr. Foster, Chelsea is right next door, would you like to go see her?" The bodyguard asked Elliot, "I heard that her face is ruined. For someone who empathizes beauty so much, a scar on her face would be a living hell for her."

The bodyguard only mentioned it because he knew that Elliot hated Chelsea.

Elliot had no intention of visiting Chelsea at first, but stopped at the bodyguard's suggestion, before stepping towards Chelsea's room and opening the door. Chelsea glanced over and met his eyes; instantly, her eyes were filled with fear. She covered her bandages-wrapped face and subconsciously avoided eye contact.

"I thought you ran to another country?" Elliot swallowed hard and mocked sarcastically, "how dare you come back?"

Tears welled up in her eyes as she uttered in despair, "I'm not running anymore, Elliot! Just kill me!"

She moved the blanket away and stepped out of bed, before stumbling her way towards him and kneeling. She grabbed onto the corner of his trousers and said, "I'm ruined, Elliot! My whole life is ruined! Just end it already! I don't have the courage to end my own life...so just kill me..."

He

lowered his glance at her expression and felt somewhat sympathetic at how desperately she longed to die.

"The more you wish you are dead, the more unlikely I am to kill you." He stared down at her with his cold eyes and shoved her aside.

"Live the rest of your life crawling and struggling like an ant."

By the time he exited the hospital, the night had fallen over the city, covering it with a mysterious and chilling darkness. The branches whined in the freezing breeze and the snow on them fell onto the ground as they moved. The driver drove out of the hospital once Elliot was inside the car and asked, "where to, Mr. Foster?"

Elliot remained quiet for a few moments, as he couldn't decide whether to head home or go to Avery's mansion.

The car crash had taken place near Starry River Villa .He wanted to know if they were involved in the incident.

When he sent his men to look for Wanda earlier that afternoon, he came to learn that she had already fled overseas; if Wanda was the one who took what was in the box, she wouldn't have to escape and could directly blackmail him with the content instead.

Hence, there was a great chance that Wanda did not possess it.

"Starry River Villa," he muttered.

"Understood, Mr. Foster." The driver turned the car around and drove towards Starry River Villa.

In Starry River Villa, Layla was on a video call with Avery using Mike's phone. They would usually converse in a group in most video calls, but today, Layla had Hayden, on the other hand, had yet to return home because he hadn't finished his homework.

Just then, Layla was whispering sweetly to Avery in the living room.

"Mom, I am never going to any of my classmates' birthday parties again." Layla Avery sensed that Layla was acting oddly. "What's wrong, Darling? Did something happen?" Layla pouted and was about to shake her head when she caught sight of a towel thrown to the ground.

Chapter 788

'Why is he here all of a sudden? I've already returned the box to him!' Layla thought.

Scared that he was here looking for trouble, she immediately ran out of the living room and shouted, "Uncle Mike!"

Layla's scream had frightened Avery.

When Layla dropped the phone to the ground, the camera was faced at the ceiling of the living room so Avery could only attempt to guess what had happened from the noises as she couldn't see anything at all.

One thing that she could be certain of was that Layla was in a dangerous situation.

"Layla!" Avery grabbed onto her phone tightly and stepped out of her room.

Her heart sank; though she was in Bridgedale at the moment, if something was about to happen to her daughter, Avery would not hesitate to travel back to Aryadelle right away.

Elliot scowled when he saw the way Layla ran off in fear. He had met with Layla plenty of times and though she had never been polite with him before, she had never acted so frightened either. He raised his hand to touch his own face and confirmed that there was nothing on his face; what was Layla so scared of? He stepped into the living room and spotted the phone on the ground, so he immediately picked it up

Startled by Layla's scream, Avery was still calling out to Layla.

Elliot looked at the screen and explained, "I startled her. She is with Mike right now."

When Avery heard his voice and saw his familiar face, the anxiety and tension in her heart faded, and was soon replaced by confusion.

"Why is she that scared of you?" Avery questioned sharply with a frown.

Elliot felt helpless, because he was wondering the same thing as well:

"Why are you in my house this late at night?" Avery continued to ask when he did not respond.

"It's not that late." Elliot studied the aggressive look on her face and felt a lump in his throat when he was reminded of the reason why she had taken Robert with her and left.

"I happened to drive past this place and decided to drop by."

"Neither your company nor your house is in the same direction as my house."

Avery exposed him of his lie asked, "what exactly have you done to Layla?"

Not far away, Mike walked into the living room with Layla in his arms.

Mike had asked Layla the same question as well, but Layla had only shook her head and refused to say anything else.

"Maybe it's because I didn't knock when I came in," he explained, "I parked the car outside the yard so she didn't expect someone to walk in out of the blue."

"You are no stranger to her. Even if you come in unannounced, she wouldn't be this frightened," Avery denied his explanation and continued, "pass the phone to Layla. I am asking her."

Layla lowered her eyes and avoided looking directly at Elliot's face.

Mike took the phone from Elliot and faced the camera at Layla's face.

"Layla, talk to your mom. What did Elliot do to you? Don't be scared. Your mom might not be here, but Uncle Mike will protect you."

Layla didn't have the courage to say a word. If her mother found out that she had stolen something from Elliot, Avery would surely be furious.

"Layla, did I startle you because I didn't knock just now?" Elliot couldn't help but ask when he noticed that Layla was pouting wordlessly.

"Don't speak, or I will suspect that you are pressuring her!" Mike glared at him.

"I've never seen her this scared before." Elliot pursed his lips and waited for Layla's response.

Chapter 789

Layla took the phone and looked at her mother from the screen, before muttering, "Mom, he didn't knock when he came in...so I thought bad people had come inside..."

She did not have the courage to confess to Avery. If only her brother was around.

Layla decided that he would tell her brother about what happened when he got home so that he could help come up with a solution.

Avery relaxed at Layla's explanation and said gently, "Layla, I feel like you are in a bad mood today. Did something happen at your classmate's place? Don't be scared, you can tell me anything."

Elliot stood by the side and felt odd when he heard what Avery said.

"Layla went to her classmate's house today?" He thought, 'it must have something to do with why she is acting odd.'

"I'm fine, Mom," Layla said while sneaking a glance at Elliot's direction.

"If something happened, you have to tell me. You can call me anytime you want," Avery reminded.

"I know, Mom," Layla said and blew a kiss at the screen.

After the video call ended, Layla handed Mike his phone back.

Mike put the phone away and stared at Elliot warily. "Who are you looking for? What do you want?"

"I want to speak with Layla alone," Elliot said, "I want to apologize to her for scaring her just now."

"Apologize right here! There is no need to talk to her alone." Mike wasn't sure what Elliot was thinking, so there was no way that he would allow Elliot to be alone with Layla.

“Layla, please believe me when I say that I would never hurt you.” Elliot turned his attention to Layla and said, “if I ever hurt you, let the gods punish me by never letting me see your mother again.”

Layla had buried herself into Mike’s arms but instantly felt less frightened at Elliot’s words. She struggled to get down and lifted her chin. “I happen to have something to tell you as well.”

Elliot nodded and followed her to the guest room on the first floor. Once they were inside,

Elliot gently closed the door behind them.

“Why are you so scared of me, Layla?” Elliot couldn’t wait to ask, “what happened when you were at your classmate’s house today? Your mom isn’t around right now, so you can tell me.”

Layla frowned at his words. He was the one who sent someone to her classmate’s house, asking for the box. Did he forget about it?

“Layla, I am your father. Even if you won’t admit it, it doesn’t change the nature of our relationship. I will bear the responsibility of a father protect you with everything I have.” Elliot opened up to her when he noticed her hesitation.

“Weren’t you the one who sent a woman there to look for me and threaten to kill my bodyguard...?” Layla clenched her fists angrily and asked.

Elliot’s eyes glammed coldly at the realization that someone had threatened Layla using his name!

‘How abhorrent! It’s no wonder that Layla seems so scared when she sees me,’ he thought.

“It wasn’t me, Layla! Why would I kill your bodyguard? I pay all bodyguards that work here extra every month. I couldn’t possibly send someone to threaten you as well.” He hastily squatted down and looked her directly in the eyes.

“What did that lady tell you to do?”

Layla’s eyes reddened in fear at Elliot’s explanation. If Elliot was not the one who sent that woman, it meant that she had been fooled and handed Elliot’s belongings to a bad person.

Thinking that Elliot would be furious if he learnt the truth, Layla started crying.

“Boohoo... I am such an idiot...”

Elliot’s heart ached at her tears and lifted her up, before gently wiping her tears away.

“Don’t cry, Layla. As long as you are safe, nothing else matters.”

“But I gave your stuff to someone else...” Layla looked at him through the tears and pouted as she confessed, “it’s the... the crimson-colored box...”

Chapter 790

Layla became even more upset after that.

Elliot was not at all surprised.

Everything would make sense if Layla was the one who took the box; it explained why they couldn’t seem to find out who stole the box because no one would suspect a four-year-old child.

Layla was very dependent at the time, and who would suspect a child who couldn’t take care of herself?

Apart from that, it also explained why the content inside the box was never publicized or used to blackmail Elliot after it was taken.

“Layla, what kind of clothes did that woman wear?” Elliot sat her down on a chair, before wiping her tears away with tissue. When her sobbing had ceased, he continued, “was she a gray coat?”

“How do you know?” Layla looked at him, red-eyed.

“Did you get the box back?”

Elliot remained thoughtful for a while, before he decided to tell her the truth.

“No, that lady who lied to you had died in a car crash. Whatever’s in the box had been taken. Don’t be sad though, what’s lost is lost.”

“But my brother said that the box contains something really important...” Layla snuffled and lowered her lashes.

“I’m sorry. I shouldn’t have taken your stuff.”

Elliot felt exceptionally calm as he listened to his daughter’s apology. Had it been anyone else who took what belonged to him, leading to such an unfortunate outcome, Elliot would have made them pay; but because it was his daughter who did it, he did not intend on blaming her even if the sky was the fall upon them.

Curious to what she was thinking at the time, he asked, “why did you take the box?”

“I hated you, so I took something of yours. I want you to get nervous when you can’t find it.” Layla pouted regretfully.

“If only I knew that it’s that important, I would have never taken it!”

“Don’t cry, Layla. Let’s not tell your mom about this.” Elliot didn’t want Avery to worry, and judging from how scared Layla appeared to be, she must have kept it from Avery.

He had asked Avery about the box when it went missing at the beginning; Avery would have told him if she knew anything about this.

Layla looked at him. “What about my brother?”

“You can choose not to tell your brother if you don’t want to.” Elliot looked at her gently said, “just pretend that nothing happened today. It’s going to be a new year soon; you and your brother should go have fun with your mother.”

“What about you?” Layla finally let her guard down and felt an indescribable warmth spreading from her chest to throughout her body. Her father didn't seem too bad after all.

“I will be spending new years in my house.” Elliot studied Layla's face, which resembled Avery, and asked endearingly, “what new year gift do you want? I will buy it for you before you leave.”

Layla blinked thoughtfully as she contemplated it.

There were plenty of things that she wanted, but most could be obtained from her mother, Mike or Eric.

“I like hair clips. I already have a lot of pretty hair clips but I will still be very happy if I get new ones.” Layla told him the gift that she wanted most and asked, “what new year gift do you want? I can buy you a gift as well. To tell you a secret, I have a lot of money!”

“I want you to call me Dad,” Elliot confessed his wish, “even for once.”

Layla was stunned. She had never called him 'Dad' before and to suddenly start felt somewhat embarrassing.

However, she had lost something that belonged to him, and not only did he not blame her, but he also offered to buy her a new year gift. It seemed as though calling him 'Dad' was not too much a thing for him to ask. “Dad,” she looked up at Elliot's sophisticated features and muttered shyly.

Chapter 791

The only reason Layla would so obediently call him Daddy was because they were the only ones in the room.

If Hayden was there, Layla would never dare to do so.

Hayden hated Elliot so much. Between Hayden and Elliot, she would surely stand with Hayden.

Elliot's dark eyes instantly turned into a gentle delight.

"If you don't get angry with Robert, I'll call you Daddy once more." Layla saw the smiles on Elliot's face, so she started bargaining with him, "Robert is still young. I have to protect him."

Elliot's eyes reddened a little. He said hoarsely, "Layla, I'm not angry at Robert. I'm angry at myself. I wasn't thoughtful enough. I did not care enough for Shea."

"Daddy, this has nothing to do with you," Layla corrected him sternly.

"Shea wanted to save Robert. Even if you didn't let her do it, she would still secretly do it. Just like how I wanted to steal your things. I knew it was wrong, but I still wanted to do it."

Layla's analogy was somewhat inappropriate, but she called him Daddy, which suddenly made him find a whole new meaning in life.

Mike had been standing outside the door, eavesdropping on their conversation. Unfortunately, he heard nothing because they were talking softly. Furthermore, Mike was sure that Elliot would not dare to do anything to Layla, so he was chatting on the phone with Chad.

Suddenly, the door opened. Elliot and Layla came out of the room.

"Are you done talking? What did you talk about? Why is Layla crying?" Mike saw Layla's reddened eyes. He said nervously, "Layla, did Elliot bully you?"

Layla shook her head. "He said that he wants to give me a gift. I'm so touched I cried."

Mike was baffled.

Elliot changed the subject. "It's late. Is Hayden still not back? Are his classes that heavy right now?"

Mike said, "Since you care for him so much, why don't you go and pick him up?”

Elliot knew that Mike was taking a jab at him, so he said in restrained, “I’ll make a move.”

After Elliot left, Layla tugged on Mike’s arm and huffed, “Why are you so fierce to my Daddy!”

“Babe, you’re actually up for him! My God! What did he give you? How could you be bought so easily!” Mike exclaimed.

“Uncle Mike, I don’t think he’s that bad. Previously, when Robert was sick, he cared for him a lot.” Layla blushed. She has already accepted Elliot, so when she thought about Elliot she would naturally think of his good side.

“He is indeed not that bad, but Hayden would never acknowledge him. Aren’t you Hayden’s copycat?”

“The copycat will grow up too!” Layla said with puffed cheeks.

“Anyway, I have already accepted his gift.”

“Layla, if you really want to reconcile with Elliot, your Mommy won’t stop you. I won’t stop you either,” Mike said peacefully, “But when Hayden is back, you have to tell him about this yourself. I won’t dare to interfere in between you siblings.”

Soon after, Hayden was sent home by the bodyguard. Hayden already had dinner, so once he returned home, he went straight to his room.

Layla followed behind him. She tugged on the corner of his shirt.

“Hayden, if I were to acknowledge Elliot as our Daddy, will you not play with me ever again?”

Hayden stopped in his tracks. He looked at Layla in surprise.

“Have you reconciled with him?”

“I...” Layla stuttered. She did not know where to begin.

Hayden measured Layla's face and realized that she was no longer the silly little girl in his memories.

"I won't stop you from acknowledging him, but I won't do it," Hayden said coldly, "Of course, now that he has a new son, he won't care about me."

Chapter 792

Layla said confusedly, "Hayden, what do you mean by the new son? Are you talking about Robert? Is there a difference between new and old? You and Robert are all his sons, right?"

Hayden was speechless.

"If he were to have another daughter with Mommy in the future, will I be the old daughter then?" Layla said, "Hayden, I don't think Daddy is the type of person that only likes new things."

"He treats you well so you think he is a good person, but he does not treat me that way!" Hayden did not want to think about anything that has to do with Elliot.

"Don't mention him in front of me, I don't want to hear about him."

"Hayden, when he was bad to you back then, that's because he didn't know that you're his son. It has to be that way." Although Layla was a little afraid of Hayden getting angry, she did not want to see Hayden and Elliot in such a bad relationship.

"Even if he didn't know I was his son, he knows that I am Mommy's son," Hayden retorted, "When he goes mad, he wouldn't think about all these."

"Okay, then. Hayden, I won't acknowledge him anymore, but I called him Daddy twice today," Layla said conflictly.

"Since you have already called him Daddy, that means you have already acknowledged him." Hayden looked at Layla with a betrayed expression.

“You’ve grown up. Let’s not sleep together in the future.”

Layla started crying. “Hayden, I’m scared to sleep alone.”

Hayden looked at her reddened eyes. He turned softhearted.

“What did Elliot give you? Why did you call him Daddy?”

Layla shrugged and scratched her head.

“I didn’t want him to blame Robert for Shea’s incident. He said that he doesn’t blame Robert. He said that he was going to spend New Year alone at home. I thought about how lonely he would be, so I took pity on him. He said for a New Years’ gift, he would like me to call him Daddy...”

“This is just a tactic that dirtbag uses! He often does this in front of Mommy! Which is why Mommy is bewitched by him.”

When Layla heard what Hayden said, she could no longer lie.

“He knows I stole his box.” Layla pouted came clean.

Today, a bad lady came and take the box away, but not only did Daddy not blame me, but he also comforted me.”

Hayden’s face instantly turned serious and cold.

“Daddy said that the bad lady died in a car crash.”

At that, Layla’s eyes turned wet.

“I’m afraid. I don’t dare to tell Mommy or Uncle Mike. It was Daddy who came to comfort me. Hayden, if you were to come back earlier, I wouldn’t be that scared.”

Hayden retracted his defensiveness a little.

“Layla, don’t be afraid. Since he doesn’t blame you, then just treat it like this never happened.

“Hayden hugged Layla and patiently comforted her, “Since you acknowledged him already, don’t regret it. I’m not angry. I won’t blame you either.”

“Hayden, he said the things in the box are gone,” Layla sniffled, “He said that the things are not important, but if they are not important, why would the bad person come to look for me because of the box? I won’t dare to take his things anymore in the future.”

“Don’t believe what strangers tell you in the future,” Hayden warned, “If Uncle Mike and I are not there, you can tell the bodyguard.”

Layla nodded furiously, “Daddy asks me not to tell Mommy about this.”

“Hmm, Mommy needs to take care of Robert. It’s tiring.”

The next day, Elliot took the photo of the woman who died in the car crash to Layla’s classmate’s house, the one who invited Layla over the day before.

“At my daughter’s birthday yesterday, we invited a group of classmates over to have fun. I do not know the woman in the photo. She said that you sent her to care for Layla, which was why I let her in.” Layla’s classmate’s mother looked at the photo Elliot passed to her and explained, “I only believe her because she said that Layla is your daughter. I thought that not everybody knows about this private fact.”

“Your daughter’s birthday is not yesterday,” Elliot said coldly, “If you’re going to continue to lie to me, we don’t have to continue this discussion!”

“Mr. Foster, my daughter’s birthday is indeed not yesterday, but I decided to hold a party for her at the very last minute because a cake brand contacted me saying that they would sponsor my daughter’s birthday cake and some limited–edition gifts, as long as I invite a few kids over, take some photos, and upload them online.”

“Which cake brand is this?” Elliot suddenly furrowed his brows and questioned sternly.

After knowing which cake brand, Elliot stormed off.

An hour later, Elliot arrived in the main headquarters building of said cake brand. The cake brand, Tarragon Industries, is the leading company in the cake industry.

Chapter 793

Elliot did not know the owner of this cake brand, so he felt that there must be someone else behind this

“Mr. Foster, this event is indeed done by our marketing and promotion department. As for how they pick the kids to work with, I don’t know. I only see results,” The owner of the cake brand said to Elliot honestly, “I’ll look for the person in charge of this activity, please wait a while.”

When Elliot heard the explanation, he took up his cup and took a sip.

A moment later, the owner of the cake brand finished the call and looked at Elliot strangely in surprise.

“Mr. Foster, my manager said that people from your company contacted us and requested that we add that kid to the list of our promotional activities. My manager did it because of you, which was why he contacted that kid...”

Elliot’s gaze instantly darkened. The person behind this was extremely bold! How dare they use his name throughout the entire process. What was unbelievable was how they could trick everyone there.

If he did not find Layla to clear things up, he might have been still in the dark.

In the evening, Elliot came to Starry River Villa. He promised Layla the night before that he was going to give her gifts to celebrate the New Year.

He went to the mall that afternoon and picked a few hair clips. He did not know whether she would like it or not.

Elliot entered the living area. Mike and Hayden walked out. Layla was attending a shoot that night. She was not home.

“This is the gift I bought for Layla. When she returns, please pass it to her,”

Elliot said to Mike.

Mike took over the presents and had a look. Then, he immediately raised his eyebrows. “What else?”

Elliot was a little stunned.

“Don’t tell me that you only bought it for Layla?” Mike exclaimed in disbelief.

Elliot instantly understood what he meant. Hayden too.

“I don’t want his gifts!” Hayden said with a cold expression before storming off to his room upstairs.

Mike looked at Hayden’s defiant figure and took two steps forward to Elliot.

“Did you really not buy him a gift? It’s up to him whether he accepts it or not, but if you didn’t buy anything for him, that’s too much!”

Elliot’s face flushed a little. He took a little box out of his pocket. “I don’t know what he likes, so I just simply bought one. Give it to him!”

Mike accepted the box opened it. It was a gold bar. The gold almost blinded Mike with its shininess.

Mike looked at Elliot in confusion.

Elliot’s face blushed

“Do you think that it’s a bad gift?”

Mike replied, “This is such a random gift!”

“I have my reasons for giving this to him,” Elliot swallowed his saliva and explained.

Chapter 794

After Elliot explained his reason, Mike bawled in a fit of laughter.

“From your gift-picking skills, I have reasons to believe that you only attracted Avery because of your face and your money,” Mike teased him mercilessly.

“She doesn’t like my money,” Elliot corrected him.

“You can earn money, that means you have capabilities. You’re not all useless.” Mike roared in laughter, “By the way, I heard that Layla has called you Daddy last night. You got a daughter for free. I’m sure you’re delighted?”

“You sure don’t mince your words.” Elliot furrowed his brows.

What did he mean by free? Layla was his daughter. This was a fact. If Layla was willing to let him raise her, he would take the time out to do so too.

“The truth is always harsher. How are you and Avery doing? Are you still at a standoff?” Mike changed into a subject that made Elliot feel worse.

“Shea’s funeral has been done. Let her rest in peace! You still have to live your life.”

“Are you asking me to go to Bridgedale and take her home?” There were hints of mockery in Elliot’s tone, “She treated Shea, yet she didn’t tell me. No matter what she does, she always places herself first and I’m at the last.”

“Don’t you think you’re thinking too much into this?” Mike crossed his hands on his waist, trying to talk sense into Elliot.

“Why does she not spend her life with you? Why did she secretly give birth to the children? It’s because you said you didn’t want children! You didn’t want children, but she chose to have kids, so she gave you up! Until now, I still don’t understand why you insist on not having children!”

“I’ll tell you the reason!” Elliot’s gaze darkened. He enunciated, “Shea and I are twins. When I was young, I also had Shea’s condition. Shea is retarded, and so was I! Do you know Shea’s condition is much more serious than mine? All because she is a girl! My father not only hates retards, but he is also a misogynist! I received the best treatment when I was young, yet Shea got worse after being beaten up by my father over again! I don't want children because I don't want to pass on my terrible genes to the next generation!"

Mike never thought that Elliot would spill out all of the things that have to do with his reputation. He blushed and awkwardly turned around, pouring Elliot a cup of water.

"Is it because Shea is dead, so you have no regard for this anymore?" Mike touched his nose." Don't worry, I won't say a word of this. Chad too."

"You also think this is a shameful matter, huh?" Elliot accepted the cup of water, but he did not drink it. He looked at Mike calmly with a glum expression.

"It's not that shameful. It's just that your identity is rather special. If this were to spread, others would surely talk." Mike analyzed, putting himself in Elliot's shoes.

"No wonder you insisted on not saying this. Are you afraid that Avery would look down on you? She is not this type of person."

"I know that she is not this type of person, I just don't want to have any offspring."

"But you two now have three healthy children," Mike comforted him, "Since the three children are healthy, you don't have to think that your genes are inferior anymore. Also, your condition was healed when you were young, which meant that your condition wasn't that serious."

Elliot did not want to discuss his condition. It was an ugly scar. At that moment, he had the power and wealth to cover up that ugly scar. He did not want others to know about this terrible past.

Mike looked at Elliot in pain. He suddenly had compassion for Elliot.

“I won't give you a hard time anymore.”

“I don't need your pity.” Elliot put down the cup without drinking a single drop.

“I also don't need Avery to take pity on me.”

He turned around and walked into the cold night.

Mike saw him leaving. He took a deep breath and collected his thoughts.

Hayden was standing in his room. He heard the sound of a car engine roaring and immediately ran to the balcony, watching the black Rolls–Royce leaving.

He had mixed feelings toward Elliot. What he was sure of, was that he hated Elliot, yet sometimes he also longed for Elliot's attention.

A moment later, Mike knocked on the door and entered.

“Big H, Elliot bought you a gift.” Mike walked over with a small box. He showed the gold bar to him.

“This gold bar is amazing!”

Mike looked at the gold bar. His gaze instantly lost his previous sharpness.

He was lost and confused.

Why did Elliot give him a gold bar? Did he look like the person that likes gold?

“Look! There's an engraving on it!” Mike said excitedly!

“The words were engraved by Elliot himself!”

What Elliot said as he picked a gold bar because it was huge enough, he could engrave words on it.

Chapter 795

That way, Elliot could pass on what he wanted to say to Hayden.

Hayden accepted the gold bar to see what was engraved on it.

'Happy New Year.'

Hayden harrumphed and put the gold bar back into the box.

"There's still engraving on the back!" Mike placed the gold bar in Hayden's hands once more. Hayden was spirited. He looked at the gold bar closely once more.

'I'm sorry.'

Hayden was speechless. Was Elliot apologizing to him through the gold bar? How comical! Does Elliot not have a mouth? Why did he not apologize in person instead?

"Big H, the gold bar it's quite heavy. It should be worth quite a lot! Why don't you keep it!" Mike placed the gold bar and the box in Hayden's hand.

"Elliot gave you a gold bar because he thinks you're golden. You're shiny and glittery. You burn bright."

"You're describing a star."

"Oh, what he means is that you have a bright future. You'll do great things."

"I will surpass him in the future!" Hayden threw the gold bar aside.

"I don't need his apology! A moment later, Mike came out with the box.

Hayden refused to accept Elliot's gift. Mike did not want Elliot to be upset, so he decided that he would keep it on Hayden's behalf.

At Elliot's mansion. After a shower, Elliot came out wearing a robe to his nightstand. He pulled the drawers open and took medicine out from them.

After Shea passed away, he had been regularly on medicine. If he did not take them, he would not be able to control his negative emotions.

After the medicine, he picked his phone up to see if there were any messages. From what he knew of Hayden, Hayden would never accept his gift, yet the message from Mike wrote, [Hayden doesn't like your gift, but he kept it. Next time when you pick a gift for him, can you consult me first, please?]

Elliot saw the message and smiled. Hayden accepted his gift! He was not a good father, yet Hayden was willing to give him a chance to make amendments.

His eyes were teary. Just like the night before, because Layla called him Daddy when he went home, tears could not help but fall.

After Shea left, at one point he felt as if he had lost his meaning in life. At that moment, Layla Hayden made him feel as if he was useful.

At that very moment, in the hospital's intensive care unit.

Charlie was lying in bed with a laptop in front of him. Something was playing on his laptop because he was engrossed in it.

He was not that sad anymore. God did not take his life away not because He wanted him to suffer, but to let him rise once again! He has gotten the things in Elliot's box!

Chapter 796

The laptop was playing a video of the funeral of Elliot's father.

At the same time, Elliot's psychiatric diagnosis was also with Charlie.

The day that Wanda came to visit, she deeply agitated him. That was because Wanda said that she was about to succeed, so Charlie sent men to keep watch around Starry River Villa.

He never thought that his men soon got it! This was Wanda's consequence for disrespecting him!

Once he has discharged from the hospital, he would properly plan.

This time, he would surely make Elliot pay a painful price!

The backstage of the gala.

After Layla's performance, she was interviewed by the media. Since her debut was with the help of Eric, her starting point was much further than any child celebrity.

Other than that, she was pretty and tall. She was also rather talented, whether it was singing or dancing. If she underwent professional training in the future, she would surely be famous!

"Layla, what do you think of your performance tonight? Rate yourself from one to one hundred," The reporter said.

Layla smiled. "One hundred."

"Then, how much would you rate Eric?"

"Does he need any rating at all? The screams and cheering from the audience is enough." Layla's animated face made the reporters laugh.

"Layla, do you have any New Years' wishes?"

"I wish to receive a lot of beautiful gifts. Of course, family health is important. No one should get sick," Layla added after thinking for a while.

"Layla, you're so mature. I see that you're always so happy. Don't you have any troubles?" The reporter looked at her as if she was a future celebrity.

If she got even more famous in the future, this video would surely be famous too.

"Of course, I have troubles, but I can't tell any of you," Layla puffed her cheeks and sighed.

"Then, do you have any happy things that happened to you recently? I'm sure you could share happy events, right?" The reporter continued to pry.

"I never had a good relationship with my father previously, but it's getting better with him," Layla could not help but talk about this, "It's great to have a father."

“Is your father in the industry too? Is he here tonight?” Layla shook her head.

“He isn’t in the industry. He doesn’t know that I’m here on a shoot tonight.

Our relationship only got better a little, we’re not there yet! I still have to evaluate his performance in the future!”

“Then, what do you hope he does in the future?” The reporter did not ask who her father was, because it has long spread among the reporters that all of Avery’s children were Elliot’s.

Since Elliot was at the very top of the social pyramid in Aryadelle, no one dared to write any gossip about him without any concrete facts.

“I have never thought about it, but he has to at least not do things that would make me sad.” Layla’s face suddenly turned serious.

“Also, he can’t do bad things. If not, it would embarrass me.”

The interview ended quickly because Eric came over pulled Layla away.

Chapter 797

“Layla, did the reporters give you an interview just now?” Eric asked.

“Hmm, they just asked some questions,” Layla said with a yawn, “Uncle Eric! I’m sleepy! I want to sleep.”

Eric lifted her.

“Go sleep! Once you’re up, you can be with your Mommy in Bridgedale.”

Layla initially had a tired expression, but after hearing what he said, she smiled sweetly.

“I miss Mommy. I have so many things I want to tell her...” Layla said softly and closed her eyes.

In Bridgedale, Avery had been busy preparing for the surgery the past few days. Mrs. Cooper and another nanny had been taking good care of Robert. Avery occasionally came to see Robert, because they had agreed to spend

New Year's Eve together, Tammy was in charge of curating the menu for dinner. She passed it to Avery to have a look.

Avery looked at the menu and said respectfully, "You're much more knowledgeable when it comes to food. I trust you."

"Avery, you won't mind if I bring another person along, right?" Tammy took the menu back. Her facial expressions were rather unnatural.

"Of course, I won't mind, but who are you bringing?" Avery sized her face up. She felt as if Tammy had something to announce

"Uh... I have a new boyfriend. A Bridgedalean. He is good to me, so I agreed to be his girlfriend. I'm only doing this for myself. If not, all I think of is Jun whenever I close my eyes. I'm going crazy," Tammy sighed and continued, "Didn't they say the best way to forget a person is to start a new relationship?"

"Tammy, are you serious?" Avery said heartbreakingly, "Jun sent me a message yesterday. He said he can't forget you. He fought with his parents because he did not want to be only a tool to bear children. I tried to talk him out of it, but I don't think he took my advice."

Avery did not want to upset Tammy, so she did not tell her about this. After all, to completely cut ties with Jun, Tammy has blocked all of his contacts.

The expression on Tammy's face froze. Her eyes instantly reddened.

"Let's call him and ask," Avery picked up her phone. She found Jun's contact dialed him

The call soon connected.

"Jun, you said that you fought with your parents. Are you all fine?" Avery put it on the loudspeaker.

Jun chuckled lightly. "I'm fine! But I'm not sure about my parents. I've blocked them. Just as cruel as how Tammy blocked me. I'm staying with a friend right now. After the New Year, I will start a business again. I won't rely on them anymore."

Jun's words made Tammy cry suddenly.

"Jun! Are you nuts! What business do you want to do? Hasn't your previous business made you suffer enough? Would it be hard for you to admit that you're a useless rich brat? If you don't rely on your parents, who are you going to rely on?" Tammy snatched over Avery's phone.

She mocked, "Let me tell you, I already have a new boyfriend! I will never get back together with you! My new boyfriend is not only handsome, but he also treats me much better than you! You can't even compare to him!"

Avery saw how Tammy has lost it. She immediately snatched her phone back.

On the other end of the line, Jun lost it too! He said with a thick nasal, croaky voice, "Tammy! Are you not going to get back together with me? Have you really found a new boyfriend?" ,

"Yes!" Tammy roared into the phone. Her words were getting meaner.

"Unless you're willing to marry into my family and take my last name! You'll be the b*tch of the Lynchs! Then maybe I'll consider taking you back!"

"F*ck off!" Jun was so angry he was trembling. He threw his phone out!

A loud sound came through the call. Avery took a deep breath and hung up.

"Tammy, why did you humiliate Jun that way?" Avery choked up.

"He was once the man that you love the most! How could you do that to him?"

"Elliot was also once the man you loved the most! Didn't you also not give him custody of the children? His sister has died. He is grieving, yet you're not in Aryadelle to be with him, you ran all the way here with your child.”

Tammy looked at Avery coldly. Her tone was even colder.

“People are all selfish. You’re selfish too!” Avery was stunned. Tears immediately fell!

Chapter 798

“You’re right.” Avery looked at her.

“I will always place my children and me first. A selfish person like me has no right to say anything about you.”

Tammy said, “Avery, don’t feel aggrieved. You have nothing to feel aggrieved about. You have never been through hardship.”

Avery said, “Yes, what I have been through is nothing compared to you all.”

Tammy did not want to hear Avery talk about this. Even hearing her voice annoyed her. They were not like that before.

To put it bluntly, Tammy could not get past that incident. Although she said that the humiliation that she went through had nothing to do with Avery, her heart could not let it go.

If she did not know Avery, she would not have been kidnapped. She could have grown old with Jun, instead of hurting each other.

Tammy stormed off. She got in the car and quickly drove off.

She was in too much pain! She has already decided to turn over a new leaf.

Why did Avery have to choose that moment to tell her about Jun?

Tammy cried all the way home. Mary saw Tammy almost crashing into a tree.

She quickly ran out.

“Tammy, what happened?”

“Mom!” Tammy took off her pretense and ran into Mary’s arms.

“Jun fought with his parents because of me! He even blocked them! He said that he was never going to rely on his parents anymore! How comical! He will die of hunger without his parents! He said that he wants to start up his own company! The last time he tried his hands in a startup, he was so stressed he couldn't eat or sleep. I don't know where he gets the courage to do it!"

"Are you worried for him?" Mary sighed.

"He is almost thirty, yet he is still so naive and arrogant! I scolded him. He must have loathed me to death," Tammy said and cried louder, "Mom, I scolded him terribly! I didn't want him to cut ties with his family! He can't even take care of himself! He is impractical. Without his parents, he would be bullied by society!"

"Tammy, he is the only child. His parents will surely care for him. Just like how you're our only child. No matter what happens to you, whether you upset us or not, we will never give you up," Mary comforted Tammy.

"Mom! Not only did I make Jun hate me forever, but I also fought with Avery. I have no one anymore. I only have you GMVMGP=g Dad."

"Stop crying." Mary gently patted Tammy's back.

"It will pass."

At the Starry River Villa, Layla woke up and found a few pretty boxes next to her bed. She opened them all. It was an array of hair clips. She took all of the hair clips and ran to Mike.

"Uncle Mike! Did Daddy give me these beautiful hair clips?"

Mike had to attend the company's year-end gala that day, so he got up earlier.

"Hmm, he brought them over last night. Do you like it?"

"I like them all! He knows how to pick! All the clips have pretty gemstones on them!" Layla praised Elliot.

Mile thought about the gold bar he bought for Hayden, he could only smile.

“Are you going to stay at home and wait for me together with Hayden or come with me to attend the company’s gala?”

“I want to wear the hair clip Daddy bought for me and attend the gala with you!”

“Then, go get your brother. Ask him to join us,” Mike said, “After the gala, we’ll head straight to the airport!”

Layla obediently nodded and went to look for Hayden. At the Sterling Group, Elliot was busy dealing with work.

Chapter 799

There was a knock on Elliot’s door. Then, it was pushed open.

Ben entered. “Elliot, it’s almost the New Year. How do you plan to celebrate? Will you be home or out on holiday?”

Elliot did not look up. His tone was calm. “I’ll be spending it at home.”

“Then, I’ll come over to your place to have dinner! I’m not going back to see my parents.” Ben walked over to Elliot’s desk and sat down.

“Chad’s culinary skills are quite good. We’ll get him to cook.”

Elliot look at him and said directly, “You all don’t need to accompany me.”

Ben scratched his head. “It’s not only to accompany you. My parent’s house is too cold. They are on a vacation on a tropical island right now! I don’t want to be their third wheel.”

Elliot said, “Your parents have such a good relationship, why don’t you get married?”

Ben sighed. “If I get married, that means I have to bear a huge responsibility. I think being single is quite good. I get to have fun with whomever I want.”

“You still can’t get over Chelsea, right?” Elliot thought for a while and told him, “Chelsea’s face is ruined. She should still be in the hospital.”

"I know, I want to visit her, but I'm afraid she can't take it. She must surely not want to see anyone right now." Ben smiled mockingly.

"I used to admire her a lot, but that was in the past. After she used me to go up against Avery, she no longer has a place in my heart."

Elliot picked his cup of coffee up and had a sip.

"Sometimes, I think that time is cruel. Not only will it change our environment, but it also changes our hearts," Ben teased, "But don't worry, I will never betray you."

"You got it the other way around," Elliot corrected him, "It's because people change, which is why the environment changes according to it."

"You're right. Thinking that one could be friends forever, yet they become enemies in a blink of an eye," Ben said helplessly, "At least the terrible year is coming to an end! Next year will be better!"

"Our financial report is not that bad," Elliot comforted him.

"Haha! Yes! I'm going to get fireworks! We'll have fireworks in your courtyard throughout the entire night!" Ben chuckled left.

At the hospital.

Charlie was discharged that day. He has decided to head home to recuperate. Chelsea was asked to discharge as well, to leave together with him, but Chelsea was unwilling to do so.

If she could, she hoped that she could stay in the hospital forever. That way, she did not need to face her ugly face.

Charlie sat in the wheelchair. He looked at Chelsea on the bed coldly.

"Chelsea, only your face is ruined. There is nothing to fear," Charlie said relaxedly, "Let me see what your face has turned into."

Chelsea's injured left face was wrapped in bandages. She refused to let the doctors unwrap the bandages or even change them.

“No! Charlie! Don’t force me!” Chelsea’s tensed body started to tremble.

Charlie glanced at the two bodyguards by the side. “Pin her down.”

Then, he instructed the doctor, “Unwrap her bandages!”

The bodyguards disregard Chelsea’s struggle, pinning her to the bed.

The doctor quickly walked over and unwrapped Chelsea’s bandages.

Chelsea has been crying every day. She refused to change her bandages, so not only did her face not heal, but it had turned worse.

Disgusting blood and body fluids mixed together. It was a terrifying sight to behold! No one dared to look at it straight!

Charlie looked at the wound on her face. He was stunned for a while before mocking, “Chelsea, oh, Chelsea! Even beggars on the streets are better than you!”

Charlie’s words broke Chelsea’s heart. Not only did he humiliate her with words, but he also got someone to bring a mirror over, forcing her to see how scary her face was!

Chapter 800

After seeing the wounds on her face, Chelsea was silent.

Then, she let out a maniacal laugh!

Her right face was still smooth and exquisite, but her left face was mulch. It was as if some parts of it were missing, half of her face was caved in!

Her wound was much uglier than she had imagined! A million times uglier!

Her ego was badly wounded. All the grievance she received in the past was not as great as the harm her wounded face brought to her!

No wonder the brother that loved her the most in the past would suddenly have a change of attitude.

Even her mother, Jeanette, could not help but take a step back after seeing the wound on her face.

“Charlie, you get discharged first!” Jeanette retracted her gaze. She did not want to spend another second longer there.

“If she wants to stay in the hospital, let her be! You don’t have to deal with her.”

“Mom, how heartbreaking is it to say this in front of her! Although she is an ugly one right now, I will never forget how pretty she was in the past.” Charlie looked at Jeanette and smiled.

After they left, the doctor cleaned the wound on Chelsea’s face and wrapped it up in bandages once more.

“Miss Tierney, although your face is ruined, you should be glad you’re alive.”

The doctor took pity on Chelsea’s situation.

“As long as you’re alive, your possibilities are endless. If you’re dead, there is nothing you can do anymore. Beauty is not the basis of a person’s success.”

Chelsea looked at the doctor coldly.

“That’s because the person who got humiliated is not you

“How do you know I haven’t been humiliated before?” The doctors said politely, “If you want to discharge, I can prescribe you some medicine. You need to change your bandages three times a day.”

“I want to stay here. I don’t want to go home!”

“You’ll get sick easily if you stay here,” The doctor said, “I advise you to go home and recuperate.”

“Hehe! Fine! I’ll get discharged! Are you happy now! Anyway, I won’t dare to die. I have to face reality sooner or later!” Chelsea flipped the covers aside got down from the bed.

On the way back in the taxi, Chelsea thought a lot. She used to think that Elliot was mean to her. However, at that moment, she missed Elliot a lot.

Elliot treated her much better than her mother. He was much better than her brother and might look like he loved her, but he was only after her pretty looks.

She was the foolish one for messing it all up.

When she returned home, she was Charlie and their father happily discussing something. Chelsea was stunned.

Charlie's home was set on fire. His legs were crippled. He should be in pain and depression. How could he still laugh?

"Dad, Charlie, I'm home." Chelsea walked over to them and interrupted their conversation.

Frank, Chelsea's father, cast her a condescending glance. He ignored her.

Charlie saw her and his smile vanished.

"Didn't you want to come back? What made you come to your senses?"

Chelsea, although your life is ruined, all you need to do is to care for our parents. I will surely still feed you."

Chelsea forced her tears back. She said docilely, "Charlie, I will listen to Mom and Dad in the future, and you, too."

"Hmm. Are you wondering why I'm in such a good mood?" Charlie could see what was on her mind through her gaze.

"Charlie, I hope that you can defeat Elliot. If not, what if he bullies us again?"

Chelsea lowered her gaze and said worriedly, "This time, my face is ruined, you broke your leg. If there is a next time..."

"There will not be a next time!" Charlie barked fiercely.

"I have gotten a grip on Elliot! If he dares to do anything, I will expose him!"

Chelsea nodded and returned to her room.

In the evening, at Elliot's mansion. After dinner, Elliot received a message on his phone. It was from Mike.

[I'm taking the kids to Bridgedale tonight. Layla told me to send you a text.]

Elliot read the message. His creased brows relaxed. He replied, [Safe travels.]

A while later, Mike sent another message. This time, it was a link.

Elliot tapped on the link that brought him to Tweeter.

Chapter 801

The reporter asked, "Layla, do you have any New Years' wishes?"

"I wish to receive a lot of beautiful gifts..."

"Do you have any happy things that happened to you recently?"

"I never had a good relationship with my father previously, but it's getting better with him. It's great to have a father."

Elliot's eyes were a little wet at that point. He never thought that Layla would mention him in her interview. In her heart, he must be someone important to her already!

The reporter continued, "Is your father in the industry too? Is he here tonight?"

Layla said, "He isn't in the industry. Our relationship only got better a little, we're not there yet! I still have to evaluate his performance in the future!"

"Then, what do you hope he does in the future?"

"I have never thought about it, but he has to at least not do things that would make me sad. Also, he can't do bad things. If not, it would embarrass me."

The video ended there.

Layla's last sentence rang in his mind for a long time. As her father, he should indeed give his children a positive image. He has to work hard not to embarrass them.

He saved the video and planned to use that to remind himself constantly.

When he headed upstairs, his phone rang. He picked his phone up and saw the incoming call. He instantly furrowed his brows.

How did she dare to call him? He pondered for a few seconds and answered the call because he was curious.

After about more than ten hours of flight, the plane finally landed in Bridgedale.

Mike brought the two children to see Avery.

“Mommy, I have something I need to tell you.” Layla held Avery’s hand with one hand while pointing at the hair clip on her head with another.

“Daddy gave me this as a gift. I have already started calling him Daddy.”

Avery replied, “I know. Uncle Mike told me two days ago.”

“Oh, Mommy, are you angry?”

Avery shook her head. “You call him Daddy because you must have thought that he treats you well.”

“No matter how well he treats me, he won’t treat me as well as you, Mommy. I like you the best, Hayden. Daddy can only come in third.” Layla immediately pledged her allegiance.

Mike heard what she said and felt troubled. “What about me? Where am I placed?”

“You’re placed in two and a half because you are after Hayden and before Daddy,” Layla replied seriously.

Mike did not know whether to laugh or cry. After putting the luggage down, Mike went to Avery’s room to have a look at Robert.

He was sleeping soundly.

“Mike, I have surgery after the new year. Can you wait for me to complete the surgery before returning to Aryadelle?” Avery said.

“Of course. Is this surgery on that person with the same condition as Shea?”

“Hmm.”

“What a coincidence,” Mike said with a sigh, “I think you’ve said it before that this is a rare disease. It’s not a usual case of mental retardation.”

Avery nodded.

“What do you think about Elliot?” Mike thought back about what Elliot told him that he had the same condition as Shea when he was young, so he asked Avery, “Do you think his mental capabilities are normal?”

Chapter 802

Avery thought that she misheard, so she did not answer this question.

Turns out, Mike did not give up on it. He asked once more.

“Mike, why would you ask this question?” Avery was stumped.

“Did he do something that makes him seem that way?”

Mike shook his head. “I’m not close to him, so I’m asking you.”

“If you’re not close to him, then why would you doubt his intelligence? If someone were to doubt your intelligence, would you be happy?” Although Avery was still giving Elliot the cold shoulder, she would not want to see him be talked down upon.

Mike promised that he would not tell Elliot’s secret, so he tried hard to come up with a reason.

“He and Shea are twins. Shea has the condition, would he have it too?”

“They are fraternal twins. You can treat it as if they are two completely different beings. Their blood types are different too,” Avery explained.

Mike might look like he understood it, but he was still filled with curiosity.

Why was Elliot's condition cured when he was young? That great doctor not only cured Elliot's condition completely but there were also no after-effects either.

Elliot could have his achievements at that point, which proved that his intelligence was not only fine, but it was also better than many.

"Did Elliot contact you?" Mike changed the subject.

Avery asked, "Why are you asking me this?"

"You two have three children together. Are you planning to just ignore each other forever?" Mike furrowed his brows.

"He isn't angry with Robert anymore. He is mainly angry that you kept the fact that you were treating Shea from him. If you didn't keep that from him, he would never have treated Zoe as his savior. The other crazy things that happened after that wouldn't have happened too..."

"Mike, if things could be repeated, I would still do it," Avery said calmly,

"Tammy said that I was selfish. I am indeed selfish."

Mike was stunned. "Tammy said that to you?"

"She is right. Selfish people usually live better." Avery looked at Robert who was sound asleep.

"Now that the children are with me, if Elliot doesn't come to look for me, he won't be able to see them. I don't need to look for him."

Mike could not help but applaud what she said.

"Don't wake Robert up." Avery pulled him out of her room.

"Go have some food! Then, rest. We'll go to the supermarket to get some groceries for New Year's Eve tomorrow."

"Okay, will Tammy her mother come too?"

"I don't know." Avery seemed down.

“She might not come.”

“Oh, did you two argue? Since you both haven’t reconciled, then just take time to calm down!” Mike said, “The older we get, the more things I realize that aren’t in full black and white.”

“Why are you so perceptive?”

Mike scratched his head and teased, “Because I know a lot of secrets, but I can’t tell you.”

“Do you think I’m going to ask you what they are? I’m not going to do that. I’ll make sure you suffocate to death with your secrets,” Avery teased.

“Avery! You’re getting meaner!” Mike said loudly, “No wonder men find you so attractive!”

Avery did not take his words to heart because Mike was not a person who could keep secrets. He always had a strong urge to tell her whatever secrets he found out. He would tell her at the first moment.

At night, after Layla and Hayden had fallen asleep, Avery came out from the children’s room.

Mrs. Cooper was carrying Robert in her arms, standing outside the door of her bedroom.

Avery walked over.

Mrs. Cooper said, “Avery, you have been playing with Hayden and Layla the entire afternoon, I’ll look after Robert tonight.”

“I’m not tired. I can look after him for a while.” Avery took over Robert from Mrs. Cooper.” He’s great. He won’t make a fuss.”

Sometimes, she could put him on the bed with a toy and he would play alone for a long time. Robert did not know how to flip over yet, so she was not worried that he would fall to the ground.

Avery returned to her room with Robert. After putting him on her bed, she went to the shower to fetch some water. She planned to give Robert a bath. After fetching some water, she returned to her bed and looked at the time on her phone.

A message appeared. It was from Elliot.

[Has the kids arrived home safely?]

Chapter 803

Elliot called Mike. Mike's phone was turned off. He was worried about the children's safety, so he could only ask Avery.

Avery replied, [Hmm.]

After replying to Elliot, she placed her phone down and took Robert's clothes off.

She wanted to pretend that she did not care about him, but after taking Robert's clothes off, she could not help but pick her phone up again to see if he had sent any new messages.

Naturally, there were none.

Avery disappointedly placed her phone down and carried Robert to the bathroom. An hour or so later, Mrs. Cooper came to take Robert away.

Avery picked up her phone once again. She went through Elliot's messages once more, also going back through their chat history.

The more she saw the more upset she was. She was indeed a little selfish and impulsive.

Shea's passing was a huge blow to him. Perhaps, she should have been more patient and forgiving to him and not gotten into a fight with him and then brought Robert to Bridgedale.

She wanted to send him a message, but she did not know what to send. She accidentally opened the calendar. Two days later, it was the New Year in Aryadelle. She would send a message to him then!

In a blink of an eye, the New Year arrived.

Once Avery got up, she got her children into new clothes before decorating the house together with Mike.

Layla saw how lovely they were before secretly sneaking into Avery's room. It was the New Year that day, Layla thought about how lonely Elliot was, so she thought of sending him a message with Avery's phone.

Avery's phone was placed by the side of her bed. When Layla entered her room, she picked her phone up and easily unlocked it, and opened the chat.

Although she did not know how to spell Elliot's name, she could roughly recognize it.

She sent Elliot a voice message.

At that moment, it was eight in the evening at Aryadelle. Ben and Chad were over at Elliot's to spend the New Year's Eve together.

The courtyard was filled with fireworks. Ben was about to light them up.

Elliot had just finished a call when he saw Avery's voice message. His eyes darkened his chest constricted tightly. He played the voice message with slightly trembling fingers.

"Daddy! Happy New Year! Mommy is decorating the house, so I'm secretly sending you a message with her phone!"

Layla's clear voice could be heard.

Chad heard the message and immediately went over to Elliot. "I heard Layla's voice."

Elliot smiled mysteriously and played the voice message once more. Chad heard what Layla said. He was happy for Elliot.

“Mr. Foster, do you plan to give Layla some money as a New Year’s gift?”

Chad reminded Elliot.

Elliot keyed in a series of numbers and transferred some money.

Chad coughed and reminded him once more. “Although the other two children didn’t send you a voice message, they are your children too. You should treat them equally.”

After Avery finished everything, she returned to her room to grab her phone.

She was about to call Tammy to come to have dinner.

Although they had fought a few days ago, Avery was worried for her.

Avery unlocked her phone. Elliot’s chat appeared in front of her! There were three huge transfers from him.

Avery was stunned for a while. Her heart was beating fast! On an impulse, she dialed him.

Chapter 804

Chapter 804 The call soon connected. Elliot’s low and mesmerizing voice came through.

“Layla?”

“It’s me,” Avery said awkwardly, “Why did you transfer money to me?”

Elliot said, “Those are for the children.”

Avery was even more awkward.

“If you want to give them money, can’t you give them in person? Why do you have to send it to me?”

Elliot explained, “Did you not see the message Layla sent to me? She sent me a voice message greeting with your phone.”

Avery was speechless. She wanted to dig a hole for herself and hide in it.

She only saw the transfers. She did not scroll up.

She tapped open their chat and scrolled up. She saw that she sent a voice message over. It must have been Layla.

Avery took a deep breath. She was feeling so awkward she was blushing.

She did not know what to do.

“Mommy!” Right at that moment, Layla ran into her room. Seeing Avery holding her phone, Layla immediately covered her mouth with her hand.

Avery looked at her and passed her the phone.

“Your father.”

After all, Elliot answered the call by saying Layla’s name. Their fatherdaughter relationship was moving

Layla took over the phone and asked, “Daddy, did you see the message I sent?”

“I saw it. I sent you some money, it’s on your mother’s phone.”

“Oh, only for me? Does Hayden have some?”

“Yes.”

“What about Robert?” Layla continued.

“Yes, there is.”

“Hehe, what about Mommy?” Layla asked cheekily, “Mommy has been taking care of us. It’s tiring.”

Elliot responded, “Yes.” He immediately added on for her.

Suddenly, the fireworks in front of him lit up the night skies!

He looked at the brilliant fireworks in the sky. He was suddenly not afraid of the dark anymore. Fireworks would only shine the brightest under the dark skies, so darkness was not that intimidating after all.

“Daddy! Are you having fireworks over there? I can hear them!” Layla yelled excitedly.

“Hmm, do you want to see?” Elliot asked.

“I do! Let’s turn on our cameras!” Layla’s words made Avery, who was changing her clothes by the side, stiffened.

To make it feel more festive, she bought herself a red dress. The three children were in red too, it made it seem more festive that way.

When she had changed into her dress, Layla was already on a video call with Elliot. “Mommy, Daddy is having fireworks! It’s so pretty!” Layla took the phone ran over to Avery Layla did not even give Avery the chance to hide. She immediately faced the phone with her.

Elliot had the back camera of his phone turned on so that Layla could see the fireworks. Avery could not see him, but he could see her face.

The moment he saw her, his palms started sweating. Although he knew that she could not see him, his heart still skipped a beat.

She was wearing a red dress with her hair down. Her eyes were clear and bright. She was looking at him seriously.

No. She was not looking at him. She was looking at the fireworks on her phone.

‘Elliot took a deep breath to calm himself down, yet he could not help but stare at her.

“Mommy, I want fireworks too!” Layla pouted.

Avery patted Layla on the head. “We can’t put fireworks here. If you want to play with fireworks, we can drive to the outskirts tonight.”

Chapter 805

“Then, forget about it! It’s so cold at night!” Layla gave up on that idea.

“Let’s just see Daddy’s fireworks!”

“Hmm! Go ahead!” Avery moved away from the camera. After she left, the light in Elliot’s eyes vanished too.

Avery came out of her room and found Mike. “Mike, call Tammy!”

“I’ve already done it,” Mike said with an expression that says he understood her.

“I got Big H to call her. She said she would come over soon.”

Avery said, “Thank goodness for you.”

“Hahaha! Tammy might be angry with you, but could she be angry with the children?” Mike measured Avery up in her new dress.

“All of you are wearing red except me. Am I not family?”

“Don’t you hate the color red?” Avery retorted, “It’s because I treat you like family, so I remembered your likes and dislikes.”

Mike was speechless

A while later, Tammy arrived. She came alone.

“Where’s Aunt Mary?” Avery pretended as if the fight never happened. She asked calmly, “Didn’t you say you’re bringing your boyfriend? I even prepared a gift for him.”

Tammy also pretended that the fight did not happen. “I got my mom to return to Aryadelle to be with my dad. I broke up with the new boyfriend.”

Mike exclaimed in shock.

Avery glared at him to shut his mouth.

“Is talking in your sleep a sickness? Can it be cured?” Tammy asked sincerely, “I was talking in my sleep, calling out to Jun. My new boyfriend overheard what I said. He fought with me, and I was annoyed, so I broke it up.”

Avery was speechless.

Mike said, "Tammy! You're amazing! But don't be sad. Your new boyfriend isn't really understanding. If he truly loves you, he should have helped you get past this painful period of loss!"

Tammy said, "I was initially feeling guilty, but after hearing what you said, I think what you say makes sense."

They bonded immediately and decided to drink over it.

A moment later, Layla finished her video call. She came out with Avery's phone in her hands.

"Mommy! How much money did Daddy give?" Layla passed the phone to Avery.

"He made me keep the gift. Hehe, of course, I'll accept it!"

Avery took her phone over look at the screen.

The four transfers have been accepted.

If Layla did not accept the transfer, she would not have accepted money from Elliot.

"Mommy, how much money is that? I can't count that far," Layla asked.

"One hundred and fifty thousand for each of us." Avery placed her phone on the coffee table.

" Aunt Tammy is here. Let's eat!"

"Oh, Mommy. Our money is yours," Layla said generously, "What is ours is yours."

"Hmm, what is mine is yours too," Avery replied gently.

At Elliot's mansion in Aryadelle. The bodyguard was lighting fireworks while Ben and Elliot were drinking.

Mrs. Scarlet was busy in the kitchen while Chad served them dishes.

"Elliot, only the two of us are drinking. Isn't it a little boring?" Ben said,

“Should we get more people over? Or we head out to play?”

“I’m not going anywhere tonight.” Elliot put his wine glass down and said in a hoarse voice.

” I’m feeling a little dizzy. I haven’t drunk in ages. My tolerance has gone down.”

Ben took away his wine glass and warned, “You’ve had alcohol tonight, you can’t eat medicine.”

“Hmm. Get Chad to accompany you! I’ll go lie down for a while.” Elliot left and returned to his room. Plicably worried as if something were about he unbuttoned his collar. He was to happen.

The fireworks were still going on outside. He walked to the bed and lay down. In his pocket, his phone beeped. He took his phone out and saw the threats Charlie sent over.

Chapter 806

In Bridgedale, after Mike and Tammy had a few rounds of alcohol, they started to vent to each other.

Tammy said that she was in a lot of pain. She knew that there was no hope with Jun, yet she still could not forget him.

Thus, Mike spread his hair apart to show her his scar. “I almost died previously. Right when my injuries were the most serious, my boyfriend dumped me. I think I’m worse off than you. After all, you’re not the one that got dumped.”

“Okay, you’re much worse than me. Not only was I not dumped, but I also did not almost die from sickness.” Tammy raised her glass to him.

“How did you come out of it?”

Mike took a sip of wine. “I can now say that I am not afraid of death, but when

I was almost dying, I was actually quite afraid. Avery saved me from the brink of death. What I then thought was not that I had been dumped, but I was still alive. Do you understand the joy of returning from the brink of death?

Hahaha!"

Tammy nodded. "To be honest, although I'm in pain and I can't sleep well at night, I'm still quite satisfied when I have food. I won't die just because a relationship doesn't work out. Being alive is quite good."

Mike said, "Yes! You're so pretty, I'm sure you'll find better men in the future."

Tammy said, "Thank you for drinking with me and comforting me. I feel much better."

"We're friends! Don't mention it! It's the New Year. Let's not be unhappy!"

Mike poured her some wine.

Avery took a bottle of fruit juice over and swapped the wine bottle with it.

"Don't drink too much. You'll get hungover." Mike immediately handed his glass to Avery.

"I'll listen to you. I still want to watch Layla's performance!"

Tammy lifted her cup and downed it. Then, she said to Avery, "Avery, I was too impulsive when we last fought. I shouldn't have lost my temper at you."

"Let the past, be the past. You don't have to bring it up again." Avery saw how Tammy blushed. She took away her wine glass.

"Just stay over tonight! Didn't you say Aunt Mary has returned to Aryadelle?

There's no one to care for you when you get back home. I'll be worried."

"Hmm. Hmm." Tammy burped fumbled around.

"Have I given something to the kids? Where's my bag?"

"Your bag is over on the sofa. Have some food first, the gifts can wait." Avery poured a glass of warm water for her and placed it in front of her.

“Tammy, no matter how painful the past, it will pass. Don’t be afraid. I will always be with you.” Tammy’s reddened eyes sparkled with tears.

“My mom said the same thing too.”

“Because it really will pass. Whether it’s a happy thing or a terrible thing, it will all become memories,” Avery comforted Tammy.

Mrs. Cooper took Avery’s phone over.

“Avery, your phone is ringing.”

Avery accepted her phone from Mrs. Cooper. She saw that it was from Elliot.

It was not a normal call but a video call. She recalled that they have not reconciled yet, why did he video call her?

She accepted the call. Just when she was about to ask if he was looking for Layla, she realized that he was lying in bed. His handsome face had a tinge of redness. His eyes were a little in a daze.

He was clearly drunk. She did not think he was calling looking for Layla.

Avery took her phone and headed to her room.

“Avery, Happy New Year.” When Elliot saw her face, he said to her.

Avery entered her room and closed the door shut.

“Elliot, are you drunk?” She asked, but she thought that if he was not drunk, he would not have called her.

Elliot wanted to prove that he was not drunk, so he sat up.

After sitting up, he said hoarsely, “I’m not drunk.”

“Oh, how much have you drunk?” Avery also sat down by her bed.

“Two or three glasses.” Elliot rubbed his temples and said hoarsely, “You haven’t wished me a Happy New Year.”

Chapter 807

Avery was speechless.

Elliot was already in such a drunken state, yet he said that he was not drunk.

“Happy New Year.” Avery furrowed her brows.

“Did you make a video call just for this?”

“No.” Elliot’s tone was firm. His thoughts were clear.

“Where’s Robert? Can I see him?”

Avery did not expect that Elliot would request that.

“You finally thought about this child?” Avery took a job.

“You don’t blame him anymore?” :

Elliot did not retort. He merely responded, “I have never forgotten him.”

He had tried so hard to protect this child with all his might once, how could he have forgotten about him?

“How did you come to terms with the child?” Avery wanted to know his process of coming to terms.

“Even if I killed him, Shea would not come back to life.” His tone was terrifyingly cold, but his eyes still had a shade of an intoxicated daze.

“Rather than blaming the small and weak child, I should just blame myself.”

“What use is there blaming yourself? You didn’t force Shea to do so,” Avery rebutted, “Elliot, don’t you find it exhausting to live like that? I know that losing Shea is a painful thing for you, but if you don’t put it down, none of us can come out of this trauma.”

Her words silenced Elliot for a short while. He looked at her quietly, and so did she.

After a long time, he broke the silence, “Let me see Robert.”

Avery came to her senses and looked at the huge bed. Robert’s eyes were wide open, docilely looking around. He did not cry nor made a fuss. He was a great child.

“Babe, when did you wake up? You did great today! You didn’t even cry!”

Avery teased Robert before aiming the camera at him.

“Look at who this is? This is Daddy.”

Elliot looked at Robert’s face on his screen. He had mixed feelings. He knew what Robert looked like. Mrs. Cooper sent him pictures of Robert daily, but it felt different seeing him through a video call.

“He does look like me,” Elliot said after looking at Robert for a while.

Avery could not help but retort, “You don’t look like that when you’re young.”

“You’ve seen how I look when I was young?” Elliot asked.

Avery was stunned. Elliot did not know that she had once entered Shea’s room seen photos of them when they were little.

At that moment, she accidentally let slip, but she did not plan to lie.

She carried Robert up and pointed the camera at herself. “After Shea’s accident, I once went to your house to see photos of you when you two were little. I did it secretly. It had nothing to do with anyone else.”

Elliot’s face did not have many reactions. “I rarely look at photos of me when I was young.”

“Hmm, how did you spend the day?” Avery saw Elliot sitting in bed alone, she felt an inexplicable loneliness in him.

“Ben and Chad came over to be with me. They are still here.”

“Oh, do you want to see Robert in person?” Avery did not know why she said that. It seemed like an invitation, “You should have about seven days of holiday, right?”.

Elliot heard what she said. He was tempted.

His head was no longer dizzy. He sobered up quite a bit too. He even wanted to immediately check on flights. If there were no available flights, he would take a private jet over.

He wanted to be with her. He wanted to be with his children. However, he could not.

Chapter 808

Elliot was afraid that once he saw Avery and the children, he would be too engrossed in the happiness that he would not be able to calmly face the darkness behind him.

He did not want his terrible problems to affect her and the children.

Avery looked at Elliot remaining silent. She could see the complicated gaze he had. She could not read his expressions.

She thought that as long as she took the initiative to invite him and be the first one to admit defeat, he would accept it. However, why was he remaining silent?

What was he thinking about?

"It's fine if you're not free." Avery could not stand such endless silence and speculation, so she said, "Layla said that you were spending the New Year alone, so I..."

"Do you wish for me to come over?" Elliot interrupted her.

If he rejected her, she would be sad. The thing that he did not want to see the most was her being sad.

Avery blushed at his question. She had already openly invited him, yet he still wanted her to express her opinion once more?

"If you want to come, just come. If not..." Before she could say, "Forget about it," Elliot interrupted her.

"I'll look at tickets."

Receiving his answer, Avery's tightly constricted heart relaxed.

"It's time to feed Robert. I'll go make his milk," Avery said, "I'll hang up!"

"Hmm." Elliot was completely sober already.

He knew what he was saying a moment ago. He also knew what he was about to do.

Layla has already accepted him. Hayden was not as resistant to him as before. Avery also did not blame him for getting angry at Robert.

Avery and the children were welcoming him with an open hug. Elliot could not resist such a temptation. Even if it was only a few days of warmth, he has to seize the opportunity.

After booking his flight ticket, he went to shower.

A moment later, he dressed up and headed downstairs with a suitcase.

Ben and Chad saw him coming down. They were rather surprised because he looked spirited. Gone was the exhaustion when he first went upstairs.

"Elliot, are you leaving?" Ben walked over to him sized him up.

"You even took a shower and put cologne? I remember that your shower gel doesn't smell like this."

Chad nudged Ben with his elbow from behind.

"Mr. Foster, are you going far? Are you heading to the airport? I only drank some wine. I'll send you!" Elliot rejected Chad.

"Both of you reek of alcohol. Please stay further away from me."

Ben and Chad never thought that they would be despised by him. They were slightly heartbroken.

"It takes more than ten hours to get to Bridgedale. Even if you don't smell of alcohol, you'll reek of other smells..." Ben tried to retort.

"You two just continue drinking. I'm leaving," Elliot said calmly and left with his suitcase.

Ben saw him leaving. He tutted and sighed.

“Look at how arrogant he is! Once he has a woman, he doesn’t see us!”

“Ben, don’t be jealous of him. Although he has a woman in his life, he fights and argues with Avery every few days. They spend barely one-third of the time together in a year,” Chad comforted Ben.

Ben felt much better when he heard what Chad said.

“How could we compare to him? He already has three children. We have none,” Chad said once again.

This time, Ben was thoroughly heartbroken.

At Bridgedale, after Avery fed Robert, her phone screen lit up once again.

She lifted Robert up straight, in case he puked milk out. Using the other hand, she picked up her phone and saw the flight information that Elliot sent her.

In another ten hours or so, he would appear right in front of her. At that thought, Avery felt the need to inform Mike and the children about this.

Chapter 809

Since she was the one that invited Elliot over when he arrived, he would most likely stay with them. It was easier for him to spend time with the children that way too.

Avery carried Robert to the hall. Mrs. Cooper immediately went forward to take Robert from Avery.

“Mommy, who called you just now?” Layla has finished her meal. She got down from her chair and went up to Avery.

“Your father,” Avery said. She held Layla’s hand and headed to the dining hall.

“He has decided to come to spend the New Year with us.”

In the dining hall, everyone heard what Avery said.

“Avery, are you saying Elliot is coming?” Mike asked loudly.

“Hmm. He is going to board the plane soon.”

“Oh, then what about Chad? Is Chad with him?” Mike was not concerned for Elliot. He only cared about Chad.

Avery said, “I didn’t ask him about this. Why don’t you call Chad and ask?”

Mike replied, “Forget about it. I doubt he will come. He said that he is spending time with his parents during the holidays.”

“Hmm. Try and understand! He has been working all year long. He only has this time to spend with his parents,” Avery comforted Mike.

Mike nodded and walked over to her. He hinted with his eyes to Avery, pointing at Tammy.

” She started drinking again. No matter how I try to talk to her, it’s pointless. Why don’t you call Jun! She’s missing him so much the only thing left she didn’t do is to tattoo his name on her face.”

Avery looked at Tammy. Tammy did not cry or make a fuss, but she drank glass after glass. Things could not go on that way.

Avery turned around with her back facing Tammy. She found Jun’s contact and dialed him.

“I’m sorry, the number you have dialed is not in service.” The cold automated voice rang out.

Avery thought that she had misheard.

How was Jun’s phone number not in service? The phone number was tied to a person’s name. It was also connected to assorted cards and accounts.

Even if one lost their phone, they would immediately get the number back. It was not that easy to change numbers.

Avery dialed Jun once again. The automated response rang again.

Jun has changed numbers! Only by changing numbers would his number be not in service!

Mike noticed Avery's expressions. He had a bad feeling.

"What happened?"

"Jun changed his numbers." Avery pursed her lips. She did not know how to tell Tammy this.

Jun was determined to cut ties with his past. If Tammy did not say those words to him a few days ago, he would not have done so.

Avery did not want to see this happen.

No matter how harsh Tammy's words were, they were only spoken out of spite. She did not want Jun to suffer on her behalf, which was why she was forced to be the bad character.

How could Jun take it personally? However, what else could Jun do other than take it personally?

They were both at a stalemate.

Just like how back then when Avery was pregnant with Elliot's children, but Elliot did not want children, so they broke up.

"What are you two sneakily chatting about?" Tammy has finished the wine in her glass. She walked over to them, holding onto the edge of the table for support.

Avery hinted at Mike with her eyes, asking him not to say a word.

Mike understood nodded.

"Who changed their phone number?" Tammy walked to the middle of them.

She placed her arms around their shoulders and asked them.

Mike let out a muffled snort. He realized that they could not hide it from her, so he came clean, “Your ex-husband.”

Tammy’s hands retracted from their shoulders as if she had been pricked by thorns.

“Tammy, let me take you to your room to rest!” Avery helped Tammy toward the guest room.

Just when they were almost by the guest room, Tammy stopped in her tracks.

Her eyes were reddened.

“Didn’t you say that Elliot’s coming? I don’t want to see him! I think I’ll go!”

She insisted on leaving, Avery could only get the bodyguard to send her home.

After Tammy left, Mike comforted Avery.

“Everyone has their own adversaries that they need to pass on their own.

She will come out of this. You should think of what you’re going to do when Elliot comes!”

Chapter 810

Chapter 810 Avery did not understand what Mike was trying to say.

“What will happen to me when he comes?”

Mike said, “What do you think? We don’t have any extra rooms in our house.

The room that you brought Tammy to is so small. Tammy might still be able to stay in it, how could Elliot take it?”

Avery said, “If it’s fine with Tammy, why can’t he stay? If he thinks that the living conditions here are not great, he can book a five-star hotel outside.”

Mike raised his brows and looked at her.

Avery turned sheepish.

“What are you looking at me for! We’ll see about it when he comes. Maybe he won't stay with us. Maybe he'll head to the hotel once he lands."

Mike responded lightly, "Oh," before asking, "How long is he here for?"

"He didn't say. Is this important? He won't be here for the rest of his life."

"I'm only casually asking, why are you so worked up?" Mike continued to measure her up with a meaningful gaze.

"Why did he suddenly decide to come over? Why did he not come yesterday!

Don't tell me you invited him over!"

Avery's face flushed red. It spread to her ears.

"If you're going to say any more on this, you'll stay in the small room in the future. I'll use your room to host guests," Avery threatened.

Mike harrumphed coldly, "I am willing to give my room to others, but I'm not sure if Elliot would be willing to stay in it! After all, he's a clean freak."

Avery's temples hurt. She turned around and headed to the dining hall. She planned to clear the dishes. Mike chased after her.

"I'll do it. Go comfort Big H. He heard that Elliot is coming. I don't think he's too happy about it!"

Avery immediately headed to Hayden's room once she heard what Mike said.

Hayden was indeed unhappy. It was a mood-killer when he heard that Elliot was suddenly coming. He did not want to see Elliot. He did not want to be friendly to him or talk to him.

Avery entered and walked over to Hayden.

"Hayden, I know that you can't accept him." Avery has never forced Hayden to acknowledge Elliot as his father.

"I only invited him over because Shea has passed away. He is in much more pain than us. This year, Shea can't spend the New Year with him. His mother is gone too. He has fought with his brother's family..."

"Mommy, we did not cause his misery." Hayden has never so rudely interrupted Avery's words before, but he could not accept how Avery took pity on Elliot.

"Shea died because she tried to rescue Robert," Avery said sternly, "Hayden, I don't care how much you hate Elliot. This is something that you can't ignore."

"I have never forgotten about Shea," Hayden suddenly said agitatedly, "I have also never forgotten about how Elliot almost strangled me to death!"

Avery suddenly lost her composure. She hugged Hayden, choked up, said, "I'm sorry, Hayden. I was the one that invited him. He has boarded the plane."

"I never said to not let him come." Hayden let go of Avery.

"Layla likes him a lot. In the future, Robert would like him a lot too. Only I wouldn't like him."

"Hmm, I don't ask of you to like him. Once he is here, just treat him as if he was air. If you think he is in the way, you can stay in your room, or you can ask Uncle Mike to take you out."

"Mommy, don't worry about me. I am no longer a kid." Hayden did not like how Avery had to tiptoe around him.

"Hayden, I can't stop worrying. Whether it's you, Layla, or Robert, you are all my precious babies."

Hayden's eyes turned sore. He choked up a little. "Mommy, do you like him a lot? You give birth to three of his children. You must like him a lot, right!"

If Hayden was an outsider, Avery would have denied it.

"I'm not God. I can't control my feelings. If back then he strangled you to death, I would have killed him to avenge you. No matter how much I like him, I will always place the three of you before him."

Since the children were much weaker than Elliot, she needed to protect them, so she would stand with the kids.

Hayden smiled a little at her answer.

“Mommy, I’m fine.”

“In Aryadelle, during the New Year, no matter how unhappy things got, people would try to control their anger. That’s because the New Year is the start of a new beginning. If one was calm during the New Year, the year ahead would be smooth sailing,” Avery explained to Hayden, “I hope that you’re healthy and you do well in your studies.” Hayden nodded obediently.

Chapter 811

At five minutes past midnight, Elliot landed at the airport in Bridgedale.

Mike was at the airport to pick him up. It was not Avery that told him to pick Elliot up, but Chad called him to make sure he picked Elliot up at the airport. As for where to send Elliot to after picking him up, Chad said that he was to send Elliot back to Avery’s house, to let Avery arrange the next part, so after Mike picked Elliot up, he sent him back home.

At that moment, the bodyguard, servants, and the children have gone to bed. However, Avery was waiting in the living area.

When Mike saw her, he yawned. “I’ve picked him up, I don’t think there is anything I need to do anymore, right?”

Avery ignored him.

Elliot was looking at Avery closely. There was no one else in his view.

Mike felt as if he was nothing at that moment. He felt awkward and aggrieved at the same time. He said, “So, I’ll go back to my room?”

Still, no one responded to him. He slipped back to his room and planned to complain about it to Chad.

In the living area, when Avery saw Elliot carrying his own suitcase, she asked, "You didn't bring a bodyguard?"

"Hmm." He was there to spend the New Year with her and the children, so he got the bodyguard to take a leave too.

He was in Bridgedale, not Aryadelle. He did not know many people there.

Avery's mind was suddenly in a mess. It was late at night already. She still had to take him to his room, but the room was indeed a little small. It was previously used as a storage room. After all, their house had not housed so many people before.

After Robert's birth, Avery hired a nanny and a bodyguard, so the house did not have enough space anymore.

During the daytime, she was confident that it would be fine for Elliot to sleep in the small room. However, once he was there, Avery could not bear to let him sleep in the small room.

"Are you hungry? Mrs. Cooper has prepared some food for you. I'll go heat them up." Avery planned to distract him with a meal so that she could return to her room to take out her daily annuities so that he could sleep in the master bedroom.

However, Elliot shook his head.

"I'm not hungry, I've eaten on the plane."

"Oh it's late Let's put you to bed!" Avery led him to the room worriedly. Elliot followed behind her, measuring her long hair slender figure up from a close distance. She was always that thin, as if she would fall if a wind blew by. Arriving at the master bedroom, she opened the door.

When Elliot noticed that Avery brought him to her room, his handsome face flushed an unnatural tinge of red, making him look rather sexy.

Was she letting him sleep in her room? Were they going to sleep together?

“Uh, the room is a little messy. Let me tidy up a little.” Avery blushed, quickly entered, and walked over to the side of the bed.

Elliot placed his suitcase down and helped her tidy up too. His hands were longer than hers, so he quickly tidied the things on the bed.

“Avery, are you really planning to let me sleep in your room?” Elliot gazed at her with his jet black eyes.

Chapter 812

Avery’s room was filled with children’s daily amenities. It was obvious that she cared for her children. If she had planned to let him stay in her room, she would have cleared it up.

Avery hesitated for a few seconds before deciding to be honest with him.

“This house isn’t that big. Now that there is another baby around, so I hired a nanny. Although the security here is not bad, for the sake of safety, I hired a bodyguard. They take turns staying over daily...”

Avery explained so much when she was only trying to say one thing.

“If there isn’t any extra room, I can go to a hotel.” Elliot did not want to trouble Avery.

“It’s not that there isn’t any extra room...” Avery lowered her gaze and said softly.

If it was not that late at night, she would most likely get him to stay at the hotel already. He came over this time without a bodyguard. It was already so late at night. What would happen if something were to happen to him if he went out alone?

Elliot was confused at Avery’s answer. If there was an extra room, why did she let him have the master bedroom?

“You take my room, I’ll sleep in the other room.” Avery was afraid that there would be a misunderstanding, she immediately added, "The other room is a little small, I'm afraid you won't get used to it."

"As long as they're a place to stay, I'm fine. It's okay if it's small." A hint of disappointment flashed across his eyes, but he quickly collected his emotions.

"I'll bring you to go have a look." Avery headed for the door.

Elliot carried his suitcase and followed Avery to the small room. This room was indeed a little small. Other than the bed and a nightstand, there was no space for other furniture. Even the bathroom was small enough only for one person.

This was the mansion's default design for the nanny's room. However, Avery did not want to feel like she was mistreating the nanny, so she got the nanny to stay in the guest room.

At that moment, she could not just get the nanny to move to the nanny's room just because she had a guest.

If it was only meant for staying one night, like Tammy being drunk for one night leaving the next day, it would be fine.

However, Elliot was not only staying for one night. He was there for a few days, so Avery was a little embarrassed to bring him to the small room right from the beginning.

"I'll stay here." He placed his suitcase in the room.

"As long as there's a place to rest." Avery nodded.

"Then, I'll go get you some toiletries."

"Okay."

Although he brought a suitcase, it could only fit a few sets of clothes. One was because he left in a rush, he did not have the time to pack more thoroughly. The other reason was that he rarely did such tedious matters.

A moment later, Avery arrived with a full set of toiletries.

Elliot's suitcase was already open. Avery could not help but sneak a peek at it.

"Did you not bring pajamas?" She noticed that his suitcase was filled with formal wear.

"I forgot to bring them." Elliot took his clothes out from his suitcase, planning to hang them on the rack

"Oh. Mike should have an extra one. I'll go get it." Avery said and left.

A moment later, she returned with a clean set of pajamas.

"Go rest after your shower. The children get up early. It would be noisier at home during the day," Avery reminded him.

Elliot nodded. "You go to bed too!"

Before she left, she glanced at the room once more. She finally understood Mike's worries during the day.

Elliot was such a towering figure. He looked out of place standing in such a small room. It felt as if he would knock into the wall if he was not careful.

"Thinking back about his mansion back in Aryadelle, his living area alone was larger than an entire commercial flat. Since when has he stooped to such a low level?"

However, he would not stay in her bedroom. He insisted on staying in the nanny's room! She could not possibly have forced him to stay in her room, right!

Returning back to her room, Avery lay in bed but could not sleep.

She found it unreal. Elliot came just when he said he would. Before seeing him, she always felt that they would surely get into a huge fight every time they met.

Chapter 813

Chapter 813 Although they did not have any obvious conflicts at the moment, in the past, they could take any single matter and fight for three days nonstop! However, after seeing Elliot, Avery calmed down. He was not there to fight with her. Perhaps the children were there, so they were not like before, losing their temper at any moment.

In the nanny's room, Elliot finished his shower and walked to the bed to sit. He picked up his phone and saw a message from Chad. It was a message regarding the hotel.

[Mr. Foster, I've booked you into a hotel closest to Avery's house. The hotel provides transportation too. It takes less than 10 minutes to and fro. It won't take up much of your time with the kids.]

Chad could not accept that Elliot would be treated this way!

It was fine if Avery did not love him, but could she not torture him?

Elliot replied, [I'm staying at her place. Cancel the booking.]

[Didn't she put you in the nanny's room? Why doesn't she let the nanny stay there? It must be small, right? How could you possibly stay there?]

Chad's reaction made Elliot feel as if he was being arranged by Avery to stay in a dog cage.

Although the nanny's room was a little small, the bed was at least one and a half meters. To Elliot, as long as he could sleep, that would be enough.

He was there to see Avery and the children, not on a holiday.

Elliot did not want to explain much. He merely replied, [I'm going to bed.]

Then, he put his phone down. What was strange was that he had already slept on the plane, but when he lay down in bed, he soon fell asleep. He even forgot to take his medication.

Usually, when he was home, if he did not take his medication, he would surely lose sleep.

Did that mean that Avery was much more effective than medication?

The next morning, after Avery got up, she immediately went to look for Layla to ask her to be quiet. Elliot had sat a more than ten-hour flight over. On top of that, he needed to adjust to the time difference. Avery wanted to let him sleep in longer.

Just when she was combing Layla's hair, Mrs. Cooper hurriedly rushed in.

"Avery, Mr. Foster knocked his head on the wall! He has a huge bump on his head! Go help him deal with it, please!"

Mrs. Cooper blamed herself very much.

She initially brought Robert to Elliot's room to show him. When she knocked on the door, Elliot knocked himself against the wall because he was too anxious to open the door.

At that time, he was washing up in the toilet. He knocked on the wall when he came out of the washroom. Mrs, Cooper heard a loud sound from outside the door!

Avery never thought that the thing she worried about the night before would happen so fast.

She immediately went to take her medical suitcase rushed over to Elliot's room.

Elliot was sitting by the bed, clutching his head with one hand. His face seemed peaceful enough.

When his eyes met with Avery, he avoided her a little, because he felt a little embarrassed. Not only did she have to care for the children, but now she had to care for him too.

“Let me have a look.” Avery walked to him and placed her medical suitcase on the bed, opening it up.

Elliot hesitated for two seconds before moving his hand away. He explained, “I’m not bleeding. It’s not that painful anymore.”

“Don’t think that just because you’re not bleeding it’s not serious. There are bruises on your head, which means you knocked too hard. We’ll go do a CT scan at the hospital later.”

Elliot lifted his head and looked at her. “I’m sure that’s not necessary?”

Avery lowered her gaze. “I’m the doctor, listen to me.”

‘Elliot instantly lost all bravado. Not only was she the doctor, but he was also at her place.

“You’ll sleep in my room tonight,” Avery said in a commanding tone while disinfecting his wound with a disinfectant.

Chapter 814

Elliot let out a muffled harrumph. Avery did not know whether it was in response to her, or he was in pain.

There was some shuffling coming from the door.

Elliot looked over to see Mrs. Cooper carrying Robert while Mike carried Layla. Four of them stood outside the door, peeking into the room to check out the situation.

They could actually just enter the room to have a look. Eliot did not know why they had to stand outside the door.

Although it was a little embarrassing that there was a huge bump on his head, it was not that awkward that he did not dare to see anyone.

Avery dressed for his bruise and kept her medical suitcase.

“Go have breakfast. After breakfast, I’ll take you to the hospital,” Avery said.

“I’ll head there myself.”

“Are you familiar with the hospital here?” Avery retorted, “I know people. We can go straight to do the scan. If not, if you wait for the hospital’s procedure, you might not be able to do it today.”

Elliot was speechless.

Although he was rich, he was not at Aryadelle. He also has connections over there, but it was indeed easier to rely on Avery for medical consultations.

Elliot and Avery came out of the room. Everyone’s gaze landed on Elliot’s face.

“Daddy, why did you knock yourself?” Layla looked at Elliot in confusion.

Mike gasped, “Didn’t I tell you the reason already? The room your father is in is too small.”

Layla glanced at the room.

“But I don’t find it small at all!”

Mike said, “That’s because your father is much bigger than you. This room is not small for you, but for your father, it’s too small.”

Layla looked at Elliot once more.

“Oh, Daddy, you poor thing. But I can’t get you to sleep in my room because Hayden would never agree to it. You can sleep in Uncle Mike’s room though. Uncle Mike’s room is huge! The bed is huge too! You two can sleep together. It’s not a problem.

Mike was bewildered.

Elliot’s expressions changed. He immediately said, “I can sleep in your mother’s room.”

Mike let out a sigh of relief.

Layla looked confused. Then, she said out loud, "But you two cannot have another child! We don't have enough rooms at home!"

Avery were dumbfounded.

Because of what Layla said, Elliot was distracted all during breakfast.

Avery's mansion was clearly too small already. It was not that Avery did not have the money to change to a bigger mansion. Why did she not move to one?

He could help her buy a new mansion, but Avery would never accept his kindness.

After having her breakfast, Avery saw how hesitant he looked, she immediately said, "I'll wait for you outside."

Elliot came to his senses. He chugged the milk in one gulp and went after Avery.

On the way to the hospital, Avery broke the silence. "Don't take Layla's words to heart."

"What did she say?" Elliot did not react in time.

Avery's face blushed red. She quickly changed the subject.

"Are you still in contact with Jun? Why is his number out of service?"

"He did send me his new number. Do you want it?" Elliot said and took his phone out. He found Jun's new number and sent it to her.

"It's not for me. He suddenly changed numbers, isn't that a little cruel?"

"Are you standing up for Tammy?" Elliot looked at her.

"Am I missing some crucial information? Wasn't it Tammy that insisted on a divorce?"

Chapter 815

Avery heard Elliot's tone. It did not sit well with her.

“Elliot, do all men think like you? Why would Tammy want a divorce, don't you know why? If Tammy doesn't love him, she doesn't have to worry about him being pressured by his parents

“Avery, if Jun insists on being together with Tammy, no matter who pressures him, this is something that he has thought about and feels that he could bear it. Now, whether it's Jun changing numbers or him getting married, it's his freedom.”

The two of them did not argue over their own matter, but they fought because of Jun and Tammy.

However, Avery soon calmed down quickly. She gave Elliot's words serious thought. After some thinking, she thought that what Elliot said made sense too.

“Why does everyone like to think from their own standpoint and do things that they think are good for the other party when it's actually not?” Avery lamented.

“Because they think that they are right,” Elliot replied.

“This not only applies to Jun and Tammy but us too.”

Avery remained silent. Even if she knew where the problem was, it was still hard to change.

This was not a situation that could be changed by one party alone. Both parties needed to change together.

When they arrived at the hospital, Avery brought Elliot to see a doctor that she knew. The doctor brought Elliot for a CT scan while Avery patiently waited in the office.

About 40 minutes later, the doctor brought Elliot back with the results.

“Avery, your friend's head is fine.” The doctor passed the results to Avery.

“Are you free in the afternoon? I want to buy you a meal.”

Avery looked apologetic. “I’m sorry, I have something on later.”

“Is it important? We haven’t chatted for a long time,” The doctor lamented.

“I have a friend coming over. He just called him and said that he was coming to look for me,” Avery explained, “I’m sorry. I will be in Bridgedale for the time being. I’ll buy you a meal one day.”

“Okay, deal. I’ll wait for your call.”

“Okay.”

Coming out of the office, Elliot asked her, “You have a friend coming? What friend?”

“Eric. He is at the airport. Avery looked at her. “We’re going to the airport to pick him up.”

Elliot was on guard. “Is he staying at your place too?”

“Do I still have a place for him to stay?” Avery was done with Elliot’s imagination.

“I’m guessing he is here to give the children gifts.”

“It’s clear what he is up to by trying to please my children,” Elliot’s cold voice came over.

Upon hearing that, Avery chuckled. “Your head is already so swollen, yet you still have the time to think nonsense. Although you didn’t have a concussion, you still need to rest.”

Elliot pursed his lips said nothing more.

A moment later, they arrived at the airport and successfully picked Eric up.

Eric was a little surprised when he saw Elliot, but he did not care for Elliot.

Once he got in the car, he took a gift box out and passed it to Avery.

“Avery, Happy New Year.”

Elliot was sitting in the passenger seat in front. Looking at the intricate gift box, his eyes were cold.

Avery happily accepted the gift. She opened it and saw a shimmering necklace with precious stones.

“This must be expensive! I’ve already said before to not give me expensive gifts.” Although Avery liked the necklace a lot, she found it too expensive.

She barely finished her sentence when Elliot had already snatched the box over and returned it to Eric.

“Whatever jewelry that she likes, I can buy it for her. She can buy it on her own too. She doesn’t need you to give it to Ker.” There was undisguised aggression in his tone.

Avery furrowed her brows. Just when she was about to say something, Eric said, “Oh, so other than fighting with her, you would also buy her gifts?” His calm jabs infuriated Elliot to no end!

Chapter 816

“Elliot,” Avery called him when she saw his darkened expressions. She immediately said, “It’s the New Year. You don’t have to argue just on small matters.”

He slightly calmed down upon hearing what she said.

Eric said, “I have been giving Avery gifts every festivity, other than giving her a ring, I have given her every other type of jewelry. You usually don’t care for her, now I’m just doing what I usually do, what right do you have to get angry?”

Avery’s impression of Eric was always a gentle one. At that moment, when he was questioning Elliot, she felt it rather strange.

Of course, she did not get angry at Eric because of what he said. Eric was targeting Elliot because of her.

“So what?” Elliot raised his eyebrows. He said condescendingly, “Are you together with her already? If not, shut up.”

Eric was speechless because of this. It made Avery angry too.

“Elliot...”

“Are you going to drive or not? If not, I’ll drive,” Elliot interrupted her.

He knew that Avery was going to stand up for Eric, but he did not want to hear about it.

Avery took a deep breath and opened the car door. She got out of the car from the driver’s seat and went to the backseat to sit together with Eric.

Elliot calmly moved from the passenger seat in front to the driver’s seat. The moment his hands touched the steering wheel, Avery regretted it.

“Do you have a driving license in Bridgedale?”

Elliot stepped on the gas pedal and calmly replied, “No, but I have been driving for twenty years.”

Avery’s head hurt. Looking at his stance, she doubted he would plan to step out of the driver’s seat.

Eric passed his gift to her once again.

“Take it. Every gift I gave you, I picked on my own. If you refuse this, I’ll be sad.”

Elliot saw Avery’s change of expression from troubled to become softhearted from the rearview mirror. In the end, she accepted Eric’s gift.

“Eric, this is the last time. If you’re going to give me jewelry again the next time, I’m not going to take it. I don’t like wearing jewelry. It’s not convenient whether I’m working or taking care of the children.”

“Then, I’ll give you something else next time,” Eric said softly.

“How many days off do you have?” Avery asked.

“It’s up to me. If I want to work, I could work every day. If I want to rest, it’s the same too.” He smiled teased, “I don’t quite like the New Years’.

Ever since I was cured, my parents have been urging me to have children.”

“They might just be afraid of losing you once more. If you have children, they might feel that your life has been extended,” Avery said, standing from his parent’s perspective.

“I know, but I can’t just live my life according to their wishes.” Eric smiled bitterly.

“Hmm, talk to your parents. Don’t fight with them. No matter what their requests are, they come from a good place.”

“Avery, you sound just like my mother.”.

“Because I have children, so I can understand how your parents feel.”

“Although you have children, you’re still single.” When Eric said this, he rose his voice a little. He meant to say this for Elliot to hear.

Avery was single. Anyone could pursue her, and Elliot had no right to interfere!

A moment later, the car stopped at the parking lot of a mall.

Avery looked out of the window. She was stunned.

“Elliot, why did you bring us here? Are you lost?”

Elliot’s expression was cold. His tone was even colder.

“Get out!”

Avery furrowed her brows. Before getting out of the car, she said to Eric,

“Eric, wait in the car, I’ll go talk to him.”

Then, she got out of the car and strode to Elliot. “Elliot, why are you throwing a tantrum!”

Chapter 817

Elliot grabbed Avery's wrist and pulled her along into the mall without saying a word.

Avery instantly understood his meaning.

"Elliot, I don't want you to buy me gifts! I only want to go home right now!"

Avery tried to break free from his clutch, but he held her tightly.

"Why did you not refuse Eric's gift?" Elliot retorted, "There is no reason for you to accept his gift but not mine."

Avery thought that she had misheard him. How could he possibly say such childish things?

When Eric saw Elliot forcing Avery along, he immediately pushed open the car door and ran over.

"Why are you following us?" Elliot looked at Eric in detest. "You're a big star, aren't afraid that others would recognize you? Don't you drag Avery and me down, lest the paparazzi take photos of us!"

Eric retreated to the car because of what Elliot said. Eric was not worried about the paparazzi, but he knew that Avery did not like her photos being taken.

After Eric returned to the car, Avery glanced at Elliot.

"The next time you want to give me a gift, buy it beforehand. Don't you think it's a little awkward right now?"

Elliot said, "Eric should be the awkward one. He is showing off in front of me."

"How is he giving me gifts showing off?" Avery questioned Elliot, "Who are you to me?"

Elliot's dark eyes met with hers.

"I am whatever you say I am. I am fine with anything."

Avery was speechless. His reply made her short of breath and blushed. She did not know what to do.

Elliot pulled her along to a jewelry store.

“Take your most precious jewelry out,” Elliot said to the salesperson in a hottempered manner.

The salesperson was delighted upon hearing what he said, “Sir, our high-end custom-made selections have to be collected at the flagship store. Please tell me your budget, so I can recommend you accordingly...”

“As long as she likes it, the price is not a problem,” Elliot demanded.

The salesperson immediately took an intricate album to show Avery.

“Miss, this is our high-end custom-made selection. Which one do you like, I’ll immediately get someone to send it over for you to try.”

Avery looked at the album. Before she could look closely, her stomach grumbled.

She did not eat much that morning. It was already noon at that moment. She was so hungry she felt a little dizzy.

Let’s head back to have lunch first! She closed the album tried to discuss it with Elliot.

Elliot was not willing to return home empty-handed.

He passed her the water that the salesperson served him. At the same time, he asked the salesperson, “Do you have some food here?”

“Yes, I’ll get them to send some over.”

Avery was so awkward she slapped her forehead.

Elliot flipped through the album and started to look through it seriously. He was more inclined to a minimalistic style, but he remembered how dazzling the necklace that Eric gave to Avery was. Was it because Avery liked it?

He picked a similar type of necklace and showed it to Avery.

Avery looked at it and asked him seriously, "This is such a dazzling necklace. If I'm going to wear it, I have to make up and dress up nicely. I would need to get a gown too..."

Elliot said, "Even if you don't put on make-up or dress up, you would still look beautiful wearing it."

Avery raised her eyebrow. "Are you trying to say that the necklace itself is very pretty, no matter who wears it, it'll be pretty?"

Elliot corrected her, "You have it the other way around."

What he meant was she was gorgeous. She would look good no matter what she wore.

When Avery understood what he meant, her body heated up. Elliot was giving her gifts and flirting with her. What was he trying to do?

Chapter 818

When they came out of the mall, Eric saw how they were standing closer to each other and seemed more relaxed. They looked like any other couple in the streets.

When they entered the mall, they were still tugging around as if they were fighting.

What made them reconcile so quickly was definitely not the gifts in the mall. If Elliot could resolve their conflict by giving Avery gifts, they would not fight all the time.

It looked like Elliot gave in to Avery.

When they returned to the mansion, Avery kept her gifts in her room. She never thought that Mrs. Cooper had already moved Elliot's things over.

"Didn't you say you were hungry? Go have some food first!" Elliot said.

"Hmm, I'll go pack up a little. Take my room tonight. I'll go to the small room."

"If that's the case, I'll take the small room." Elliot did not want to take up her space.

"This morning was an accident. I'll be careful in the future."

"Are you threatening me?" Avery looked at the bruise on his forehead.

"Are you trying to sleep with me?"

"Forget about trying." Elliot entered the room and shut the door.

"So, what if I sleep with you? Do you think I can do anything to you?"

Avery blushed red. She never thought he would say such cheap words.

"You just had a baby. What do you think I'll do to you?" He walked over to her and loomed over her, looking down at her.

"How could I bear to watch you stay in the small room?"

Her misunderstanding of him immediately vanished. His body warmth overwhelmed him. She pushed him away, troubled.

"Let's have some food!"

When in actuality she was not hungry.

When they were buying the necklace, the salesperson gave her some food. It tasted quite good, so she had quite some of it.

Coming out of her room, they realized that others were already seated at the dining table.

When Mrs. Cooper saw them, she immediately said, "Come eat! Layla said she was hungry, so we have started eating."

Because Eric was there, the children's attention was all on him. On top of that, Mike had more things to talk about with Eric, so naturally, Elliot was being left out.

After lunch, Avery got Elliot to rest.

"Are you coming as well?" Elliot asked.

“I’m not taking a nap. Eric is leaving at night, I’ll spend some time with him now,” Avery did not care about Elliot’s reaction. She said calmly, “You’re hurt. You need to rest more. I don’t want you to return back to Aryadelle with your injuries still unhealed.”

Avery said GLWMCQ;f headed to the living area.

Eric brought gifts for the children. When Hayden and Layla received their gifts, they immediately opened them.

“Avery, this is for Robert.” Eric passed Robert’s gift to Avery.

“I don’t know what to get him, so I bought him a coin of his zodiac.”

Avery accepted the present. “Eric, I think you spend at least half a year thinking about what to buy for me and the children.”

“Haha, at least my life wouldn’t be that boring,” Eric said and changed the subject.

“Have you and Elliot reconciled? I see that he is very jealous.”

“Even if we haven’t reconciled, he is just like that,” Avery said, “He said that he would not get married, but he wouldn’t let me get married to. He is single right now, but he wouldn’t let me have a boyfriend either.”

“What right does he have dictating you?” Anger flashed in Eric’s eyes.

Mike chuckled, “Haha! Eric, you don’t understand. Even if they are not together, that doesn’t mean that they don’t love each other! Elliot knocked his head this morning, he wasn’t bleeding but Avery still sent him to the hospital for a CT scan. If I were to knock my head, I wouldn’t receive this treatment.” Avery glared at Mike. Mike coughed and took his phone out. “I’ll call Tammy and see if she wants to come over.”

Avery said, “Elliot is here. She wouldn’t want to come.”

Mike asked, “Why? Because Elliot knows her ex-husband? But you know her ex-husband too?"

Avery said, "Elliot and Jun are not just acquaintances. They are close.

Tammy is strong headed, she would not want to let Elliot see her being sad."

"So, what if Elliot sees her being sad? Let's take a step back, so what if Jun sees her being sad?" Mike shrugged. "I don't know whether she is hungover or not. I'll go pick her up."

Chapter 819

"Okay, if she doesn't want to come, don't force her," Avery said.

"Okay."

As Avery expected. Tammy did not want to come, but it was not because Elliot was there. It was because of Eric.

Tammy was a fan of Eric. She wanted to see him badly, but because she drank too much the night before and cried terribly in the night, her face was extremely puffy that day. Her eyes were reddened and puffy that she could barely open them. She could not see anyone under such conditions.

After dinner, Avery sent Eric off. When she returned to the living area, she saw Elliot carrying Robert. This was the first time she saw Elliot carrying a child. She could see that he was a little nervous. His body was tense, especially his arms.

Elliot was tall. He had slender limbs. Robert, on the other hand, was extremely small. Elliot was probably afraid that he might drop the child.

"He knows I'm carrying him, but he is not crying at all." There was a hint of delight in his tone.

Mrs. Cooper smiled and said, "Robert is still young, he doesn't recognize anyone yet!"

Elliot responded awkwardly.

"Mr. Foster, you have to live with the kids, only will they be close to their parents when they grow up,” Mrs. Cooper advised, “Once you’re back in Aryadelle, you should move to Avery’s house and take care of Robert together! Not only for Robert but also for Layla and Hayden.”

When Avery heard what Mrs. Cooper said, she immediately looked at Elliot. Elliot was engrossed in looking at Robert. It was like he did not hear what Mrs. Cooper said.

Mrs. Cooper saw Avery looking at her, she smiled and said, “Robert just woke up. Mr. Foster wanted to carry Robert, so I passed Robert to him.”

“Hmm. Had Robert had his milk? I’ll go make him some,” Avery said and went to the disinfectant box to retrieve his milk bottle.

Elliot carried Robert and followed her. He wanted to learn how to make milk for his children. Once he knew how to do it, he could make it for Robert too.

“Are you tired, carrying him?” Avery asked.

“He’s so small. It’s not tiring at all.”

“Then you carry him longer.” Avery’s arms were sore from carrying Robert.

Her back was sore too, which was why she always put him on the bed.

Suddenly, an idea appeared in her mind.

” Should Robert sleep with us tonight?”

Elliot understood why Avery said that. She did not want to spend time alone with him.

“Hmm.” Elliot did not mind. He has never taken care of children before. At that moment, he was willing to try anything for his children.

In a blink of an eye, it was nine at night. Avery put Layla Hayden to bed before returning to her bedroom.

Robert was in the middle of the huge bed. Elliot was sitting by the bed, holding a toy and playing with Robert.

After Avery entered, Mrs. Cooper left the room.

“You go take a shower first.” Elliot looked at her exhausted face. He said heartbrokenly, “Just go to bed after your shower. I’ll take care of Robert tonight.”

Avery felt a little moved. If Elliot wanted to be a good father, she would not stop him. She took her pajamas and entered the bathroom.

Half an hour later, she came out of the bathroom and saw Elliot, topless, carrying Robert.

“Why did you take off your clothes?” Looking at this thin-fit body, her face blushed hotly.

Chapter 820

Elliot swallowed his saliva and said confusedly, “He was crying just now, so I fed him some milk, but he puked after drinking. Did I do something wrong?”

Avery understood and walked toward him. She looked at Robert. His mouth still had some white foam.

“Babies puke. Once he grows older, he will be fine.”

“But he didn’t puke when you fed him in the afternoon.” Elliot suspected that he did something wrong.

He was not exaggerating, but when Robert finished the entire bottle of milk, he puked almost all of it out, which completely drenched his shirt.

Seeing how sincere Elliot asked her, she analyzed the problem for him.

When you’re making the milk, make sure that you don’t let too much air enter the bottle. After Robert finishes drinking, he must be upright for a while.

Sometimes, no matter how you pay attention to it, he will still puke. This isn’t all your fault. He is at the age where he would just puke.” Elliot let out a sigh of relief.

“He puked almost all of the milk out. Will he be hungry? Should I make him another bottle?”

“No need. He isn’t crying, that means he isn’t hungry.” Avery took Robert over from him. She saw his chest covered in milk.

“Go take a shower! You reek of puke.”

Not only Elliot, but the entire room reeked of puke.

Elliot went to the bathroom. Avery placed Robert down. She took a wet tissue to wipe his little mouth. Then, she asked tenderly, “Babe, are you happy that your Daddy was carrying you? Your puked scared him! He is not a coward. He cares for you, which is why he was nervous.”

Avery said while changing Robert’s bib. When Robert had a clean bib, he smiled adorably. At that moment, he knew how to smile. Usually, it was not a laugh. He just smiled quietly.

“Did you smile at your Daddy? If you were to smile at him, he would be extremely happy.” Avery carried Robert.

“He said that he wants to take care of you tonight, but I’m a little worried. I’m not worried that he wouldn’t do a good job. It’s just that he hurt his head today...”

Just when Avery said her worries out loud, a knock came from the door. Avery, with Robert in her arms, walked over to the door and opened it.

“Avery, let me take care of Robert tonight!” Mrs. Cooper said, “Isn’t Mr. Foster hurt? I’m afraid that Robert will disturb his rest.”

Robert needed to be fed every two to three hours. Even if Avery were to take care of him, it would surely wake Elliot up too.

Avery did not give it much thought. She passed Robert to Mrs. Cooper.

“He just drank milk, but he puked a lot.”

“Okay. Rest well.” Mrs. Cooper helped Avery close the door.

When Elliot came out of his shower, he saw Avery lying in bed on her phone and Robert nowhere to be found. Thus, he asked, “Where’s Robert?”

“Mrs. Cooper took him away. She’s afraid that Robert will disturb you.” Avery put her phone down and looked at him. She suddenly blushed.

“Why are you not wearing clothes again?”

“I didn’t bring my pajamas.” Elliot walked over to the side of his bed and sat down.

“I didn’t want to sleep on the same bed with you wearing another man’s pajamas.”

Avery was speechless.

“Do you have any water-resistant bandages?” Elliot asked seriously.

“I want to wash my hair.”

“You can do it at the hairdressers,” Avery suggested, “I’ll take you there tomorrow. It’s late. Go to bed!”

She did not nap in the afternoon, so she was extremely sleepy at that moment.

Elliot raised his hand to switch off the light and laid down next to her.

“Avery, hire another nanny!” Elliot did not want to tell her that when he was showering, he realized that his arms were a little sore.

He only started taking care of Robert in the evening for a few hours. How did Avery do it every day?

He works out all year long. His body was quite fit but taking care of children was different than working out. One would not constantly lift weights in the gym but taking care of children requires carrying them for a long time. No matter how small the child was, they would be at least five kilograms.

“I plan to do so too, but I’ll think about it when I return to Aryadelle.” Avery’s voice got gradually softer as if she was almost falling asleep.

Chapter 821

“You just need to oversee the children, you don’t need to do it all on your own,” Elliot said before she fell asleep. He asked, “How is your recovery?” Avery had a cesarean section. Compared to natural birth, it was much more damaging to the body.

Avery was suddenly awake due to Elliot’s concerns. Why was he suddenly concerned about her recovery? Asking this at that moment was hard to not let overthink.

“Women can’t have sex within three months of giving birth. This is common knowledge.” Avery’s tone tightened.

“What nonsense are you thinking?” Elliot’s breathing turned heavy. He said in a low voice, “I’m asking you how your recovery is. I never said anything about sleeping with you.”

Avery let out a sigh of relief.

“It’s going well!”

Her nonchalant answer made him turn the lights on. Seeing the room lights turned on. It pierced her eyes.

“What are you doing? Are you not tired because you slept in the afternoon? If you’re not tired...”

Elliot sat up and flipped her covers aside. He quickly lifted her shirt up, trying to have a look at her scar.

“Elliot! What the hell are you doing!” she slapped his arms.

However, Elliot was not bothered by it.

After having looked at her scars, he tucked her back in bed.

“Avery, you need at least four nannies.” He wanted to take it easier.

Avery did not know why but she thought back about what Tammy said before, so she teased, "Why not ten instead? Two nannies for each child, one to cook, two to clean the house, and one more to take care of me."

Elliot thought for a while before nodding.

"You do need ten."

Avery was speechless. He could not see that she was joking! If she did not clarify that she was joking, Avery felt that Elliot might hire ten nannies the next day.

"Hayden doesn't need a nanny, and neither does Layla..."

"Then, at least six nannies," Elliot said, "You only have two at home. How is that enough?"

"My God! I can't fit so many nannies at home." Avery was initially extremely sleepy, but when she started talking about that, her head hurt.

"I know, you would surely say to change to a bigger house, but I don't want to. I picked this place together with my mother."

"The cleaning and cooking nanny doesn't need to stay at home. Don't you have an extra small room? I'll call Mrs. Scarlet right now to get her to take a plane over." Avery was speechless.

"Whatever, after all, she's your staff."

Elliot made the call and turned off the lights. He laid down next to her.

"Elliot, you're really noisy. You're much noisier than a child." Avery took a jab at him, "If I were sleeping with Robert, I would be asleep by now already."

Elliot looked at the ceiling. He said, "I've slept in the afternoon. I'm not tired right now."

"Then, don't disturb me."

"Hmm, go to bed."

Although Elliot no longer disturbed her, Avery still could not sleep. After all, there was another person on the bed. She felt rather restricted.

“Elliot, when are you leaving?” Avery broke the silence. Elliot turned toward his side facing her. He saw her in the dark.

“I just came and you’re hoping for me to leave already?”

“Can you stop thinking negatively? I’m asking you when you are returning to Aryadelle, I’m not chasing you away.”

Chapter 822

Elliot’s breathing was a little heavy as if he was thinking about this question.

“A few days later.”

If Avery did not ask him about this, he never thought about it.

“Oh...if you can’t sleep, you could go out.” Avery was afraid that Elliot would be bored.

“If you find it boring to go out alone, you can take Mike with you.”

“Do you think we get along well with each other?” Elliot sneered and asked,

“Aren’t you tired? Am I disturbing you?”

Avery took a deep breath.

“I am very sleepy, but at the thought that you’re next to me...”

“Do you want me to leave?” Elliot did not want to disturb her rest.

“Where could you go?” Avery muttered softly, “It’s not entirely because you’re next to me that’s why I can’t sleep. I feel that we have conflicts that are not resolved yet, but I can’t pinpoint it.”

“Avery, if you keep thinking of unhappy things, you won’t be able to sleep tonight.” Elliot patted her on the shoulders.

“Flip over.”

“What are you doing?” Avery did not understand but she still flipped over obediently.

“Don’t think about anything, just close your eyes.” He placed his huge palms on her lower back. He started gently massaging her. He heard that after birth, a woman’s lower back would be extremely sore. He could not bear her pain on his behalf, so he could only help her relieve it. His warm fingers were like magic.

It released all of her tensions. She felt as if she was floating on clouds. Her body never felt that relaxed. Avery wanted to ask Elliot who did he learn that from but because she was too comfortable, she forgot to ask. Soon after, she slept soundly.

After she slept, Elliot cuddled her in his arms. He longed for her familiar smell. He missed her soft body and mesmerizing smile. Even if she was sometimes overbearing, he wanted to be with her.

In the other room, Mike was on a video call with Chad.

“I’m suspecting that your boss is using himself to gain pity!” Mike leaned back on the chair and analyzed enthusiastically, “Do you call his injuries serious? But he didn’t bleed. But it’s not light either, he had such a huge bump! Whenever say his injuries, she immediately allowed him to sleep in the master bedroom. Tsk, what a manipulative man!”

Chad adjusted his glasses.

“Can you stop having prejudices against Mr. Foster with your dirty mind?

Isn’t it good that they reconciled? Don’t spoil it.”

“Do you think I’ll dare to do anything? Even if it’s not because of you, I won’t dare to do anything! Avery better not care for him too much!” Mike said sourly,

“I don’t want to talk about them anymore! Let’s talk about you! Did your parents urge you to get married?”

“What do you think?” Chad has a little girl in his arms.

The little girl was about two years old. She looked at Mike on the screen with her big eyes, silently.

“Not only marriage. They are also demanding I have children. This is my cousin’s daughter. Cute, right?”

“Get your parents to give birth to another one then!” Mike teased, “No matter what, you’re mine.”

“Are you nuts? If I were to tell my parents that, they would break my legs,”

Chad suddenly said agitatedly. The little toddler in his arms was frightened by him. She started crying. Chad immediately placed the phone down. He brought her along to look for snacks and toys.

clearly what was going on on the other end of the line.

“Chad, pass me the child! Didn’t I say that I wanted to introduce a girlfriend to you? I brought that girl over! Go and see her!” A woman’s voice came over.

Chad refused. “There’s no need...”

“What do you mean no need? She has already come over! You’re just too shy!” Mike’s expressions sank.

Chad that coward. If he did not dare to announce their relationship, he would do it himself!

“The next day, during breakfast, Elliot told Avery about Mike returning to Aryadelle.

Chapter 823

Avery asked confusedly, “He told you that? Why didn’t he tell me about it?”

Elliot picked up his cup of milk and took a sip.

“Because he asked me about Chad’s parents’ address.”

“Oh, what is he going to Chad’s parents for?” A bad feeling arose in Avery.

“Is he going to visit them or...”

“It’s what you think it is. He plans to announce their relationship to his parents,” Elliot said.

Avery had a complicated gaze.

“He doesn’t know where Chad’s parents’ house is, so Chad definitely did not call him there. If he just goes there to announce their relationship so suddenly, Chad would surely be mad.” Avery wanted to call Mike to get him to come back.

“I’m telling you this not because I want you to interfere with them.” Elliot looked at her.

“I’m just telling you that most couples would stumble upon such difficulties.”

“I know.” Avery retracted her gaze from his face.

“Didn’t you say you wanted to wash your hair last night? I’ll take you to the hairdresser after breakfast.”

“Okay.”

“After you wash your hair, let’s take the children out to play!” Avery said,

“There are many festive places to see in Bridgedale.”

“Hmm, are we taking Robert along? He’s still so young, can we take him out?” Elliot wanted to take Robert out, but he was afraid that it was too cold outside, and Robert would freeze.

“We’re definitely not bringing Robert. He shouldn’t go to places with a crowd.”

Then, Avery looked at Layla and Hayden. Hayden understood what Avery meant, so he said, “Mommy, I have homework to do, I’m not going.”

“Hmm.”

Avery looked at Layla.

“Layla, are you coming?”

“Robert can’t come, Hayden doesn’t want to go. If I’m not going as well, how sad will you two be!” Layla pouted and sighed. Avery was amused by Layla’s conceited reaction.

“If you don’t want to go, I’ll go shopping with your Daddy. Then, we’ll have a good meal. Since Hayden is staying home to do his homework, you can help look after Robert!” Layla pouted.

“I want to go shopping and have a good meal together with you!”

After breakfast, Elliot and Avery brought Layla out. The bodyguard was driving. Elliot and Avery were sitting in the backseat with Layla in the middle of them.

“How good would it be if our family could always be together.” Layla held their hands and smiled.

“Although Hayden doesn’t like Daddy now, who knows if he would change his mind in the future? Hehe!”

Elliot heard Layla’s infectious laughter, he smiled, but his heart constricted tightly. He wanted to be with Avery forever, bringing their children up.

However, he did not know if God would fulfill his wish.

At Aryadelle, at the Tierneys.

Charlie was already used to using a walking stick. He could walk without a walking stick, only that it would be very uncoordinated.

It affected his composure, so he would rather use a walking stick. Chelsea, on the other hand, still could not come to terms with her ruined face. Even if her wounds have already started scarring and no longer hurt. Her ugly face constantly reminded her that she would never have another man fall for her ever again in this life.

Even if she could marry Elliot, she would never have his heart. Yes. She was about to marry Elliot. It was just like a dream. Charlie used whatever chips he had on Elliot and threatened him to marry Chelsea. Elliot agreed to it.

Chapter 824

Chelsea was of course happy. This was the happiest thing that happened to her after her discharge from the hospital.

However, other than being happy, she was also hurt on the inside. That was because Charlie would openly tell her the reason for doing so.

Chelsea has been the high and mighty spoiled princess for most of her life.

Now that her face has been ruined, she was worthless to Charlie! No, not completely worthless. Charlie could use her to humiliate Elliot.

Elliot had such a respected status. Charlie made him openly marry Chelsea so that everyone would know that Elliot had married an ugly woman that even an ordinary man would not want to!

Chelsea hated Charlie a lot! She hated him to the bones!

“Chelsea, you are nothing but a chess piece right now. If you want a good life, I can give it to you, but you must obey me,”

Charlie warned her, if you dare to betray me, I'll kill you mercilessly. Your face is just too disgusting! Even if I don't look at you, you'll appear in my dreams, disgusting me.

Chelsea's lips quivered. With her temper in the past, she would have slapped Charlie and scolded him before leaving the house. However, with her current condition, where could she go if she left home?

“Charlie, I know how ugly I am right now. I also know I am not worth much. I'm just helping you to disgust Elliot...” Chelsea said self-deprecatingly with a bitter smile.

“Chelsea, you're wrong. Not only that, but you also must spy on his every move. You must honestly report to me his every move. My goal is not just trading you in as the bride!”

Chelsea nodded obediently, “Charlie, don’t worry. With my looks now, Elliot will never love me. I can only rely on our family. We are in the same boat. I will never betray you.”

Charlie especially liked how docile she was. At the same time, he felt rather a pity.

“Chelsea, how good would it be if you were that obedient in the past.” Charlie sighed.

“Too bad! Your face!”

At Bridgedale’s Disneyland.

Layla always wanted to see the fireworks, so Avery suggested that they went to see the fireworks show. Due to a huge crowd in the theme park, Elliot had been carrying Layla all the way.

At night, the crowd was even more!

Avery was pushed by someone. Elliot immediately reached his out and grabbed her hand tightly.

Avery felt how sweaty his palms were. She looked at his determined-looking side profile.

“You’ve been carrying Layla all this while. It’s tiring, right?”

“I’m fine. There are so many people here. She can see better if I carry her,” Elliot said relaxedly.

If he did not carry Layla, Layla’s gaze would be blocked by the adults.

“Daddy! Put me on your shoulders! Look at the girl in front of us! She’s sitting on her Daddy’s shoulders! I want you to put me on your shoulders!” Layla pointed at a father daughter duo in front and said enviously.

Elliot did not even give it any thought before putting Layla on his shoulders.

Layla yelled excitedly, "Daddy! I'm so tall! I'm taller than her! Hahaha! Will you take me out to play again next time?"

"Sure." Elliot smiled brightly and agreed to his daughter's request.

Avery saw this heart-warming scene. She could not help but take her phone out and capture this beautiful scene forever. The moment she took the photo, bright fireworks tore through the skies!

Instantly, there were cheers all around!

Everyone cheered happily!

"Mommy, mommy! Look! Such beautiful fireworks!" Layla yelled.

"Yes!"

"Daddy, did you see it!"

"I saw it too." Elliot smiled joyfully. If time could stop at this moment forever, he would not have any regrets about it.

Chapter 825

In one of the small towns of Aryadelle.

Mike's sudden appearance caught Chad off guard! Mike brought over a bunch of expensive gifts. He greeted Chad's parents enthusiastically.

They also passionately hosted him.

After exchanging greetings, Chad got Mike to immediately leave, but Mike refused.

"Is that woman that you're on a blind date with still here?"

Mike said nosily, "How dare you go on a blind date while I'm not around!"

Chad said condescendingly, "You came all the way here because of that? How lame! We only met for a while then we left! I did not even ask her for her contact!"

"Who's the lame one? When are you going to come clean to your parents!"

Look at how cowardly you are! I'll help you do it!"

"F*ck! My mom has high blood pressure! I told you about this before!"

Chad could not get Mike to leave, so he could only push him into his room.

"I know your mother has high blood pressure, but this can't be cured. Are you just going to lie to them forever?" Mike raised his eyebrows.

"I know you can't tell them, so don't you stop me. Chad took a deep breath and decided to let Mike have a go. If he did not come clean to his parents, his parents would keep urging him to get married and have children. Previously, he thought that he could just go down this path until Mike appeared in his life, then only he realized that life could be different.

During dinner, Mike sat next to Garrett, Chad's father. They were drinking like buddies.

Chad's relatives were all-praise for Mike.

They thought that he was not only good-looking, but he was also so affectionate and friendly. It was rare to have such a person.

"Chad, is your foreigner friend married? Does he have a girlfriend?"

Tanya, Chad's mother, asked her son.

Chad was a little stunned. He did not know how to answer his mother's questions.

Just when he was hesitating about how to answer, Mike placed his wine glass down and said to Tanya, "Aunt Tanya, I don't have a girlfriend. I only have a boyfriend."

The lively atmosphere immediately came to a halt! Chad found his mouth gone dry. He picked his glass of water up and took a sip.

Once they understood what Mike meant, they chuckled and said, "Aunt Tanya, what he is saying is he swings for the other team. Young people nowadays are different from the older generation..."

Tanya responded, "Oh."

She was still a little concerned, so she asked, "Why didn't you bring your boyfriend over?"

Chad suddenly coughed violently. He was trying to remind Mike to stop talking, if not his mother might not take it.

However, Mike ignored him.

Mike took the bottle of beverage and poured some for Tanya. He smiled and said, "My boyfriend is sitting next to you!"

The atmosphere was much more terrifying than they expected! Garrett coughed violently and all the other relatives looked at Chad.

Chad immediately covered his face with his hands. He did not know how to deal with them.

The next second, Garrett stood up and picked up a broom! Mike noticed that things were off. He immediately grabbed Chad and ran away!

"Why is your father so rough!"

While talking, Mike has already fished for his car keys and unlocked the door.

"My dad has always been that way! Did you think I was joking when I saw he would break my legs!"

Once the car doors were unlocked, they immediately got in the car.

The car sped off! Chad wanted to look back but did not dare to do so.

"Mike, it's all your fault! I don't think I can return home ever again."

Chad looked up and took a deep breath. He was in pain.

"Not necessarily. Your parents might not come to terms with it yet, but it would be better soon,"

Mike comforted him, "You're such a brilliant son. How could they not want you."

Chad's phone rang right at that moment.

Chapter 826

A minute later, the car stopped by the roadside urgently.

Chad got out of the car and ran home! Mike punched the steering wheel! He could not ask Chad to give up on his family, but he also did not want to be the one that was given up on.

He felt aggrieved, so he took his phone out. He wanted to call Avery to complain.

Before dialing, he suddenly remembered that Bridgedale has a time difference.

At that hour, Avery must have already been in bed. He did not want to disturb Avery's sleep, but it would be fine to disturb Elliot. He sent Elliot a message.

About an hour later, Elliot gave him a call.

"Is Avery asleep?" Mike asked.

"She just fell asleep. What's up?"

Elliot was having the call in the bathroom.

Even so, his voice was very soft.

"Chad's mother fainted due to high blood pressure. I caused it." Mike was smoking gloomily.

"I'm guessing Chad hates me to death right now."

"He told you about this before."

"Yes! But I can't just stay silent about our relationship just because of this right? Is this fair to me?"

Mike let out a puff of smoke.

"He doesn't want to answer my call right now nor reply to my messages. What does that mean? Is he breaking up with me?"

Elliot said, "Give him some time.Maybe his mother is in the hospital, and he needs to take care of her."

"Oh.Before I told them about my relationship with Chad, his parents liked me a lot."

Mike felt terrible.

"After announcing to them, their attitude toward me changed very quickly.I'm very lost right now.He doesn't let me go look for him, but I don't want to see you and Avery being all lovey-dovey."

Mike was waiting at the Starry River Villa at that moment.

"You can't ask others to think like you,"

Elliot said calmly, "His parents are rather conservative.It's normal that they can't accept it.Before they can accept you, you have to bear the so-called unfairness."

"Are you trying to ask me to be Chad's secret lover?" Mike snorted.

"I can't f*cking take it! I won't accepted it!"

"Then, break up."

"F*ck off!"

Mike was already annoyed.

After listening to Elliot, he was even more so.He should have called Avery instead.

Avery would never put it so harshly.

Elliot came out from the washroom.

On the bed, Avery slept peacefully.

There was only a night lamp by the bed, it was dim, so it would not affect her sleep.

He wanted to lay down next to her and fall asleep together, but he could not fall asleep at all.

From the day before until that day, he felt enormous joy.

The more joyous he felt, the more worried he¹⁸ was. He could lie to himself that this is all a dream.

Once the time was up, he could leave, but what would happen to Avery and the children? He could not imagine what Avery's and the children's reactions would be once she finds out that he was marrying Chelsea. They would be in pain. They would be disappointed, and even in despair.

Elliot has regretted it! He should have succumbed to her temptations to come tocb Bridgedale.

If he was in Aryadelle alone.

Even if he was lonely and unhappy, at least he would not be so conflicted and worried as he was at that moment.

He could have settled his issues before asking for forgiveness from Avery and the children, but it was too late! Elliot walked to Avery's desk and stopped in front of it.

Chapter 827

Having a desk in her bedroom, Elliot guessed that Avery must have spent countless nights there. Her desk was clean and tidy. Her documents were placed in folders.

There was only a laptop on her desk. Elliot wanted to know what Avery was currently busy on, so he casually took a brown envelope out from her folder. The brown envelope wrote 'Case Files'. He slowly opened it and took a stack of documents out.

"Elliot..."

Avery's gentle voice suddenly rang out from behind.

"What are you doing?"

She suddenly woke up and saw a blurry figure standing by her desk. She thought she was hallucinating, so she looked closer at it for a while.

After making sure she was not in a dream, Avery sat up.

Elliot quickly placed the brown envelope back into its original place.

"Don't you have a study room?"

Elliot quickly collected his thoughts and walked over to her.

"I noticed you placed a study desk here."

Avery rubbed her eyes.

"I do have a study room, but I prefer to stay in the bedroom. I could lie down and rest once I'm tired."

"Did I wake you up?"

Elliot said apologetically and explained, "I was on a call with Mike. He said that Chad's mother had passed out."

"That serious?"

Avery took a deep breath. She tugged on Elliot's arm and asked further, "What happened?"

"Chad's mother has high blood pressure. She has been admitted to the hospital before."

"Mike is too impulsive! I'm going to call him now!"

Avery's chest was heaving. She turned around and took her phone.

Elliot pulled her back.

"Are you going to call him just to reprimand him? No need. This is their affair. They will settle it on their own."

"I'm asking him not to be so impulsive in the future."

"Things have already happened. It's pointless for you to say anything right now. Also, sometimes being impulsive is not a bad thing,"

Elliot said, "Knowing Chad, he will never tell his parents about this."

Avery suddenly felt helpless. She wanted to help but did not know how to do so.

Just like Elliot said.

This was their matter.

Only they could solve it.

"Do you think when we fight, they feel that way too? Like they want to help but they can't do anything about it." She smiled helplessly.

"Elliot, you carried Layla the entire day, you must be exhausted! She's much heavier than Robert."

Emot could not lie to her, so he told her honestly, "Yes, but I'm very happy."

"If this goes on, you're going to spoil her rotten."

Avery blushed a little and said, "I just had a dream. More accurately, a nightmare. I was woken up by the nightmare."

"What is it?"

He noticed the sweat on her forehead, so he went to pour a glass of water for her.

"I dreamed that you asked Hayden for forgiveness. Hayden demanded a request. He said that as long as you agree to it, he will forgive you,"

Avery recounted her nightmare to Elliot.

Elliot's back tensed. He asked hoarsely, "What did he ask for?"

If it was real, no matter what Hayden ask for, he would agree to it.

"Hahaha! If I mention it, you won't think that it's a nightmare anymore." Avery chuckled.

"He asked you to stretch your neck out so he could strangle you. Hayden would indeed do such a thing."

Seeing how brightly she smiled.

Elliot brought the glass of water to her and replied, "Then, I'll strangle him tomorrow?"

"I'm teasing you!"

Avery accepted the glass of water and took a sip.

"Don't worry so much about Hayden. If you're as great as today, he will come to accept you sooner or later."

Elliot was in a daze.

"What if I can't?"

"Hmm?"

Avery was stunned.

"What I mean is I'll be busy after this," Elliot explained.

He swallowed his saliva.

"When you go back to work, the children have to go back to school too!"

As long as you can be like how you were today when you are with the children. Avery returned the glass to him.

"You can do it, right?".

Elliot's words were stuck in his throat. He nonchalantly changed the subject.

"It's late. Let's go to bed! I'll hug you to sleep, you won't have nightmares that way."

Chapter 828

Avery was a little stunned.

Elliot did not reply to her question? When Elliot reached his arm over, about to hug her, she pushed him away.

"Why didn't you answer my question? Can you do it or not? If you can't, don't hug me."

The request she made was not at all too much to ask for.

All she asked was that he spends more time with the children whenever he was free.

If she could do it, why could he not? If he could not do such a simple thing, he should not have children at all.

"They are my children. Of course, I'm willing to do anything for them."

Elliot hugged her around the waist tightly.

"Your questions made me feel guilty."

Hearing his explanations, Avery let out a sigh of relief.

"Elliot, next time when I ask you a question, no matter what question is it, you have to answer me."

Avery looked at him seriously.

"If you don't, my mind goes wild. To others, I can be calm and logical, but to you, I lose control of my emotions easily."

"Hmm."

Elliot did not dare to look her in the eyes. He reached out and was about to switch off the lights.

"Elliot, look at me."

Avery held his face with both hands, forcing him to look at her.

"Why are you being shifty? You didn't do anything bad, why don't you dare to look at me?"

Elliot's body temperature suddenly shot up.

His breathing turned heavy.

"Avery, don't flirt with me at night."

Avery was speechless. She pulled her covers over her head! How awkward!

She thought that he could not sleep because there was something on his mind. She also thought that because he was not answering her questions and his eyes were shifty, he must have done something.

Turns out, he was just thinking about a different matter.

Looking at her covering herself with the covers, Elliot chuckled gently.

After switching the lights off, he pulled the covers off her head.

"Don't suffocate yourself."

"I think you're the one suffocating!"

Avery retorted, le blushing.

After switching off the lights, they could not see each other's face clearly, only the outline of it, so Avery could boldly stare at his face, even if she could not see it clearly.

Elliot climbed on top of her and whispered in her ears.

"I am indeed suffocating from love. Help me out?"

Avery's ears turned hot. She wanted to push him away, but his kiss landed on her.

Instantly, the energy in her was depleted! She stopped resisting pushing him away.

A few seconds later, he hugged his fit body tightly! The next morning, when Avery woke up, she saw Elliot pacing around with Robert in his hands.

The morning glow landed on father and son, making it seem very heartwarming.

Avery thought she was dreaming, so she silently lay there and watch.

When Elliot saw her face, he shattered her illusion.

"You're up? What are you thinking?"

Avery instantly came to her senses.

"Why are you carrying Robert?".

"Tammy is here." He walked over to her and sat down.

"I think she wouldn't want to see me, so I better not make her angry."

"Oh.What time is it now?"

She looked out and the sun was piercing.It did not seem like early morning

Elliot looked at his wrist and saw the time.

"Eleven.Those that don't know might think that we went a little too hard last night."

Avery lifted the covers and said, "Don't talk about such adult topics in front of our baby."

"It's not like he understands."

Chapter 829

"Even if he doesn't understand, won't you be shy?"

"If I'm shy, would he be born?"

His retort made Avery blush.She put on her clothes and quickly entered the washroom.

Downstairs, Tammy and Layla were munching on snacks and chatting.

"Does your father not want me around? After I have arrived, he doesn't even come out,"

Tammy teased.

Layla immediately shook her head.

"Of course, Daddy welcomes you.He must be in Mommy's room watching her sleep!"

Tammy said, "What is there to see? Won't he be afraid that he would wake your Mommy up?"

Layla scratched her head, trying to think of a retort for Elliot.

At that moment, Avery walked over.

"Tammy, since when did you come? I had too much fun last night, so I overslept."

She walked over to Tammy and explained.

"All you did was just see fireworks. Why are you so tired?"

Tammy looked at her interestingly.

"What's going on with Elliot? Why is he avoiding me?"

"He said that he was afraid you might be unhappy seeing him, so he's in the room taking care of Robert,"

Avery said softly, "I don't know what he is thinking."

"Hehe, I know what he is worried about."

Tammy smiled rather tensely.

"I heard that Jun had a blind date. The woman is much better than me. Not only is her family richer than mine, but she looks elegant too..."

Avery's expression was plastered on her face.

"So quick? Didn't he cut ties with his family? Since when did he reconciled with them?"

"After our last fight, he went back home to reconcile with his parents. He should thank me. If it were not for me, do you think he would come to his senses so quickly? If he doesn't come to his senses, would he have such a great fiancée?"

Tammy has made up intricately that day.

Although her tone was rather sour, no one could see how upset she was from her expression.

"Fiancée? He is going to marry this woman?"

Avery found it progressing too quickly. She could not keep up.

"Hmm.They even set the date already."

Tammy smiled and said, "This is the first time since I knew Jun that he does things efficiently.It's an improvement! A good thing!"

Avery looked at Tammy's forced smile.

She felt terrible.

Other people might not understand Tammy, but Avery knew Tammy very well.

How could Tammy let go of Jun? Seeing Jun getting married to another woman, she must be in so much pain! However, it was better to rip the bandaid quickly.

Now that Jun was going to get married to another woman, this would let Tammy give up completely too.

After a while, Tammy might be able to start her new life as well.

"Get your man to come out! It's lunchtime ! Don't stop him from eating just because of me.Jun and I have completely ended things."

Tammy drank a cup of water and said to18 Avery.

Avery immediately got up and went to her room to call Elliot out.

During lunch, the atmosphere was rather awkward.

The two children understood this.

They quickly left the dining table after they finished their meal.

Avery looked at Elliot, then looked at Tammy.

"Are you guys just going to stay silent? Don't you find it strange?"Avery broke the silence."

Elliot, why didn't you tell me that Jun was getting married?"

"Do you want to attend his wedding?"

Elliot asked in retort, "I thought that you wouldn't be interested in it, so I didn't tell you."

Avery said, "Of course, I won't attend his wedding."

"Avery, attend his wedding."

Tammy put down her utensils.

"If he invited me, I would definitely go. But because he didn't invite me, you should go on my behalf!"

Avery looked awkward.

"Why should I attend? I do not want to wish him happiness."

Avery paused for a while before explaining, "Let's swap roles for a while. If Elliot were to get married to another woman, could you calmly wish her?"

Avery's words made Elliot suddenly cough violently!

Chapter 830

Chapter 830 Mrs. Scarlet immediately brought some water for him.

Avery reached out to pat Elliot on the back

"Eat slower. Did you choke?"

Tammy looked at Elliot suspiciously. She found him strange.

Her woman's sixth sense tells her to ask him, "Elliot, I find you shifty. Did you connect fun with his fiancée?"

When Tammy asked this, Avery immediately retracted her hands from Elliot's back.

Elliot was halfway drinking water, because of this question, he was forced to stop.

He forcefully swallowed and denied, "No... I do not know his fiancée."

"Oh, then why are you so worked up?"

Tammy harrumphed and looked at Avery.

"If Elliot were to get married to another woman, of course, I won't be calm! It would be respectful enough of me to not crash his wedding!"

Avery nodded, "I know, so I don't think I could also see Jun getting married to another woman. Tammy, forgive me!"

"Jun and Elliot are different,"

Tammy said, "I was the one that dumped Jun, which was why he got married to another woman. I don't blame him. You and Elliot are different."

"How is it different? Every time I break up with him, I was the one that called it."

Although it was a little embarrassing discussing this in front of Elliot, her relationship with Elliot was quite good at that moment, so she did not mind.

"Hahaha! You two have children! If Jun and I had children, there would be no other woman!"

Tammy almost laughed in tears.

"No matter how badly you guys fight, if he were to get married to another woman, he is the dirtbag! Unless you get married to another man before him, then only he can get married to another woman."

Elliot downed the remaining glass of water.

He has already calmed down.

From their conversation, he could already guess how big of a sensation this would cause when his marriage to Chelsea was announced.

"Why are you not eating?"

Avery looked at him holding onto his glass. He seemed to be listening to them chatting attentively.

She reminded him, "You have finished your food!"

"Hmm."

Elliot placed his glass down and picked up his utensils once again.

Mrs. Scarlet came over and asked, "Mr. Foster, should I get you another plate?"

Elliot shook his head.

"No need."

"Tammy and I didn't bad mouth Jun, right?"

Avery asked confusedly, "You seem distracted."

Tammy looked at him.

"Don't tell me you were the one who put the idea in Jun's head, asking him to look for another woman to marry?"

Elliot looked at her and enunciated, "I am never interested in another person's personal matters. Whether he wants to get married to another woman or become a priest, it has nothing to do with me."

His cold gaze and tone made Tammy swallow her saliva.

Tammy is only asking casually, you don't have to take it seriously,"

Avery said and looked at Tammy, "When is their wedding? Why are you asking me to attend?"

"First of April."

Tammy lowered her gaze and said, "I wondered who picked the date. First of April, April Fools."

Avery looked at the calendar on her phone.

It was soon the first of April.

It was a little rushed for wedding preparation.

Jun's wedding was rather rushed.

The first of April was not a holiday.

It would make more sense to set it for the first of May.

That meant that Jun was into the wedding.

He only agreed to get married because he wanted to infuriate Tammy, or perhaps his parents pressured him to do so.

In the afternoon, Tammy left.

Avery found it boring staying at home, so he got Elliot to go out for a walk.

Chapter 831

"Shall we take the children?" Elliot asked.

Avery looked at Elliot and asked, "Do you want to take the children?"

She could not understand him.

"I do."

Although carrying them was not easy, it was joyous to spend time with them.No wonder people said that children were a sweet burden.

"But I don't want to take the children along today.I want to take you to a place." Avery said.

"Where are we going?"

He put his hands in his pocket.

"We have to tell the children, right! If they don't want to come with us, we don't have to bring them, but what if they do?"

"Let's go to my college.Wait for me here.I'll go tell the children,"

Avery said and headed to their room.

A moment later, she walked quickly back to him and held his arm.

"Layla wants us to bring good food back for her.Let's go!"

Avery drove and brought Elliot to her college.

Her college was a world-famous medical school.

"When you came here to study, you were quite late in your pregnancy, right?"

Elliot walked next to her on the wide path on campus.

College students on their bicycles passed them by.

School started earlier in Bridgedale.

"More accurately, I only started studying after I gave birth."

Avery held his hands tightly.

"We have too many regrets. Elliot. I don't want us to be like the past. Every time I fight with you, whether it was your problem or mine, I feel like I was skinned alive."

Words were stuck in his throat.

He replied hoarsely, "Me too."

"I was young. I used to be swayed easily by my emotions. I judged everything subjectively," Avery said remorsefully, "When I was here studying. Every time I thought about you, I hated you. I brought you here today to put down my previous resentment. I hope that we can start over again."

Elliot's eyes were sore.

Tears seemed like they were on the verge of falling.

He held her hand tight and forced his tears back "Elliot. It's Valentine's Day today."

She pointed at the girl with a bouquet in her arms.

Her tone was rather envious.

"Because today is Valentine's Day, which is why I wanted to spend time with you alone."

Elliot swallowed his saliva and replied, "I'll go buy some flowers."

"Buy it later! I want to see Professor Hough."

Avery led Elliot forward.

"After Professor Hough passed away, he donated some of his estate and books to the school. The school built a statue to honor him."

"Hmm."

"Actually, Professor Hough's passing was not unexpected."

Avery has never said this to anyone before.

"A few months before he passed away, he had an accident in his lab. He was resuscitated."

"What a pity. He was still so young."

"He overworked."

Avery said, "Everyone's energy is limited, so sometimes letting people go is letting oneself go too."

They walked around the campus and exited from the gates.

Elliot's eyes soon locked onto a florist nearby. He quickly ran over and bought a bouquet of red roses. He passed her the bouquet of red roses.

Avery's heart was beating wildly like a little girl in love! He took her right hand and silently placed a ring on her ring finger.

Avery's smiles were replaced by surprise.

"Other men might not dare to give you rings, but I dare to do so."

It was like he was swearing in.

He enunciated, "Avery, no matter what happens in the future, my heart belongs to you."

Chapter 832

Avery looked at the shimmery diamond ring on her hand. Her eyes turned wet. She could not control her emotions. She ran into his arms and hugged him tightly.

"Since when did you buy the ring? We have been together every day. I didn't realize that you prepared a gift beforehand."

Avery thought that he did not know that it was Valentine's Day that day.

From morning until the moment that she reminded him that it was Valentine's Day, he did not look strange or behave out of the ordinary.

"When I bought the necklace for you, I had a look at the rings too,"

Elliot explained, "It's hard to not know what today is."

A few days ago, Valentine's Day promotions started taking place.

This morning, all news regarding Valentine's Day was pushed to his phone.

"If I didn't mention Valentine's Day just now, when were you planning to give me the ring?"

Avery let go of him. She looked at his handsome face with reddened eyes.

Elliot looked at her affectionately.

He said in a hoarse voice, "I know that you will remind me. I have been waiting for it since the afternoon when you saw your calendar."

Avery laughed, but she was a little angry too.

"Can't you be more proactive! Must you wait until I mention it!"

"I took the initiative to put the ring on your finger. Doesn't that count?"

He held her hand in his palms.

"Avery, what's next?"

Avery looked at the people on the streets with happiness on their faces.

She smiled and said, "Just like that. We'll take a walk."

She wanted everyone on the streets to see her wearing a ring with a rose bouquet in her arms, also holding onto the man she loved the most.

She wanted to tell the world that she was the world's happiest woman.

In Aryadelle, Chad transferred his mother to the best hospital for treatment.

After Ben received the news, he immediately came to the hospital to visit Tanya.

Tanya has already come around, but she was not in a good mental state.

"Ben. Why did my son turn out this way?" Tanya said with tears in her eyes.

"Does his boss know about this? I want to look for Elliot to demand an explanation!"

Chad stood next to her. He wanted to explain it to her, but Tanya refused to listen to him. He was afraid that he would be too agitated and spoke out of line, only deteriorating Tanya's condition.

Ben gave him a look, asking him to not speak Chad turned around and took a deep breath.

Ben held Tanya's hands and comforted her, "Aunt Tanya, this is Chad's private matter. Although Elliot is his boss, he could only deal with matters of work."

"Chad has told me all about it! Mike works for Avery Tate. You don't have to tell me about Avery's relationship with Elliot. My son turned out this way, Elliot has to take responsibility!"

Tanya pushed Ben's hands away.

Ben said, "What do you want Elliot to do? To split Chad and Mike apart? Aunt Tanya, are you not afraid that Chad would hate you?"

Tanya sneered.

"I never said that he can't like men. There are so many men in this world. Why did he have to pick a foreigner? That man doesn't look like he is serious. If Chad were to pick you, I wouldn't be that angry!"

Ben was bewildered.

He never thought that he would be involved in this.

Chad was baffled too! How could her mother say such strange and absurd things?"

Just when Chad and Ben were so stunned, they were at a loss for words, Tanya said something even more shocking, "If Chad were to be with Elliot, maybe I would even praise him for his abilities to bag him!"

Chad did not dare to cover Tanya's mouth, so he could only pull Ben away from the ward.

Chapter 833

"Ben! My mother is a little demented! Don't tell others about what she said just now!"

Chad was almost losing it.

"if Mr.Foster hears about this, he will surely fire me!"

Ben was laughing so hard tears fell.

"Chad, don't get too worked up.Aunt Tanya's mind is clear.She objects to you being together with Mike because she despises him for being poor.Get Mike to earn more money.It will be fine."

Chad shook his head.

"My mom thinks that being friends with Mike is alright, but not as a partner because he looks like a dirtbag.This was what she said."

"Hahaha! Yet you call her demented! I think your mom sees anyone better than anyone else.Don't fret about it.Just take care of her."

"Hmm.Ben, are you free tonight? Can you help me go see Mike? I have ignored him for two days.I'm thinking he might be exploding soon."

Chad furrowed his brows.

"I can't leave the hospital yet and I also don't know what to say to him."

"Don't worry, I'll go check up on him."

Ben came out of the hospital and immediately drove to Starry River Villa.

As expected, Mike was alone, living an unregulated lifestyle.

"Why are you not returning to Bridgedale?"

Ben bought breakfast and put them on the coffee table.

"Avery doesn't let me go back"

Mike lay on the sofa and said, "She said that I triggered Chad's mother's condition, so I have to wait until she gets better."

"Oh.His mother is much better.Don't be too down.His parents don't understand you.They have a misunderstanding.Just buck up and try hard to earn money to appease Chad's..."

"I want to buck up too, but Chad is ignoring me.That bastard!"

"He has been scolded terribly by his parents.Try to understand."

Ben lit a cigarette and changed to a lighter topic.

"Has Elliot and Avery reconciled? I saw Avery show off her ring on social media."

Mike was stunned.

"She didn't tell me! I haven't been looking at my phone either."

"It was Valentine's Day.They spent Valentine's Day together."

Ben exhaled a puff of smoke."

Other than a diamond ring, they took a photo together.

They look so happy as if they were getting married."

Mike unlocked his phone and looked at Avery's social media.He saw the photos that Ben mentioned.

"I think she doesn't want me back just so that I won't disturb them on their honeymoon!"

Mike jabbed, "Hmph.Showing off your love does nothing for me!"

"You're only not showing off your love because Chad doesn't allow you to do so right?"

"Ben, you can just stop talking.I won't think that you're dumb."

"I bought breakfast for you.Have some!"

Ben teased, "Chad told me to come to look for you.If it wasn't for him, I would be on a date with a gorgeous lady right now!"

"Tsk, then go for your date then!"

Mike took the breakfast, turned around, and returned to his room.

"Close the door when you leave!"

Ben indeed had a date, but it was not with a gorgeous¹⁸ lady.

Chelsea called him that morning to meet up.

Ben did not ask why Chelsea wanted to see him. He immediately agreed to it.

One because he was still on holiday, another reason was that he did indeed want to see Chelsea.

He knew that her face has been ruined but did not know how badly damaged it was.

They met at Chelsea's place.

Chelsea did not have any makeup on. The scars on her face were so terrifying Ben was at a loss for words.

"Why don't you ask me why I moved back?" Chelsea poured him some water.

"Ben, don't look at me with pity. I'm about to become Mrs. Foster. I'm not pitiful."

Ben's hand trembled and the cup of water fell.

"Chelsea, what did you say?"

"I said I'm about to become Mrs. Foster. In three more days, Elliot will announce this marriage."

Chelsea bent down to pick up the cup.

"God is still merciful. Although I'm ugly, Elliot is still willing to marry me."

Chapter 834

Ben drew a sharp breath.

He held back his anger, grabbed onto Chelsea's collar, and roared, "Chelsea Tierney! What the are you talking about?! Why would Elliot marry you? He's with Avery now! If he had to marry anyone, it would be her!"

Chelsea let out a light chuckle.

"I know he's with Avery. They have children to take care of, after all. I don't mind. If I can't have his heart, I'd be more than happy to have his body."

Ben laughed coldly, released his grip on her, then said, "You must have been traumatized from getting disfigured. You're delusional! If Elliot really wanted to marry you, why wouldn't I know about something that important?"

"It's not like you're the one he's marrying. Isn't it normal for you not to know?"

Chelsea placed her empty glass on the table as she remained calm and said, "I'm only telling you about this because I see you as a friend, Ben. I know you don't want to be my friend, but to me, you're the most important..."

"Shut up!"

Ben cut her off.

"Are you telling me all of this to try to move me, or are you thinking of using me once again?"

Chelsea shook her head with a smile, then said, "I won't use you, nor am I trying to move you. After I was disfigured, I practically have no friends by my side anymore. My family is also disappointed in me and think I'm an embarrassment to the Tierney name. You're the only one I had the courage to meet, because I know you wouldn't mock or provoke me."

"It's true that I won't kick you while you're down. However, if you say you want to marry Elliot, the little sympathy I have left for you will be gone!"

"I'm not crazy, Ben."

Chelsea gazed at Ben's face and said calmly, "I bet Elliot is very happy with Avery right now. Don't tell them about this and ruin their mood. I'll let them enjoy their bliss for a few more days!"

"Oh, you're not crazy. I'm the crazy one, or maybe Elliot is!"

"You wouldn't be this emotional if I wasn't disfigured, would you? You used to say that I'm worthy of only the best of men. You even said that Elliot and I were a good match."

Chelsea laughed bitterly.

"Now that I'm disfigured, you don't think I'm worthy of him anymore."

"Do you really think your face has anything to do with it, Chelsea? If Avery was the one who was disfigured, I would still think that she's a better match for Elliot! Your d*mned face has nothing to do with it!"

Ben yelled furiously.

"You were cruel and vindictive, and this is your retribution! Even if you really married Elliot, I still wouldn't respect you, let alone be your friend!"

Chelsea remained silent as her eyes filled with tears.

Since she was disfigured, Charlie would use the most cruel words to insult her every day.

However, she had never shed tears in front of him.

She felt that the weaker she came across, the more brutal Charlie's persecution would become.

"Keep me company, Ben! I'm so lonely."

Chelsea took a seat on the couch, then hung her head and sobs, "I know I've done a lot of unforgivable things, but there are worse people in the world. They're all around me. They're still living their best lives, so I can't die."

Her shrill wails gave Ben a splitting headache.

He wanted to leave, but his feet felt heavy and would not move. He wanted to call Elliot to ask what was going on, but Chelsea's warning was still fresh on his mind. He could sit here for a while and ponder if he wanted to wait and see if what she said would turn out to be true three days later.

Meanwhile, Elliot had trouble sleeping again in Bridgedale.

He spent the entire afternoon out with Avery that day.

Logically, using up all of that energy should make it easier for him to fall asleep.

However, no matter how many times he shut his eyes and forced himself to fall asleep, it made him feel more awake than before.

He was afraid of waking Avery, so he stayed still the entire time.

During the night, Avery turned over and threw her arm over Elliot in her drowsiness. She was shocked to find that his body was rigid. She suddenly woke up, then asked hoarsely, "What's wrong, Elliot? Why are you still awake?"

Elliot could not lie to her, and said, "I forgot my pills."

"What pills?"

Avery immediately sat up, turned on the lights, then looked at him with a stern expression and asked, "Do you mean your antidepressants?"

Chapter 835

"My sleeping pills, too,"

Elliot said through bloodshot eyes.

"Is your insomnia that bad?"

Avery ruffled her disheveled hair.

"How did you sleep last night? What about the night before? Don't tell me you haven't gotten a good night's sleep at all?"

As she spoke, she pulled back the covers and got out of bed.

Since Elliot could not sleep without his pills, then she had to go buy some got him.

"It started last night."

Elliot did not want Avery to worry, so he said casually, "It's probably because I've been so happy the past couple of days that I keep thinking about Shea."

"I know Shea's passing was a huge blow to you, but we need to move forward in life. If Shea was still alive, she wouldn't want you to be sad."

Avery put on her coat, then said, "Do you remember the name of the pills you take? Or should I follow my own judgement?"

"I'll go with you," Elliot said as he got out of bed.

"It's fine. Lie back down,"

Avery said as she pushed him back down on his back.

"The drugstores would be closed by now. I'll have to get them from the hospital. I'll ask a friend for help, so I'll be right back"

"You have so many connections here in Bridgdale, and life is so convenient. Why didn't you just settle down here before?" Elliot asked.

"No matter how good it is here, it still isn't my hometown."

Then, Avery jeered, "I have a lot of connections in Aryadelle as well, but none of them are as powerful as you are. That's why you don't know they exist."

"Get the bodyguard to go with you."

"Get some rest and don't worry."

Avery picked up her bag and walked out of the bedroom.

As Elliot watched her back, he let out a silent sigh.

His torturous sleepless nights were caused by the fact that he knew happy days were coming to an end. He knew that was the problem, but there was nothing he could do about it. He had yet to figure out how he could say his goodbyes to Avery once they returned to Aryadelle. He stared blankly at the ceiling as the blinding lights stung his eyes.

Suddenly, a cold drop of liquid rolled down toward his ear. He wiped the tear away with his finger, then shut his eyes.

Avery returned with the medication forty minutes later.

Mrs. Scarlet heard her return and came out of her room to ask where she had gone at that time of night.

Elliot heard their conversation clearly from the room.

Soon after, Avery entered the room with a glass of water.

Elliot sat up in bed and felt guilty when he saw her cheeks flushed from the cold.

"It must be cold outside."

"Just a little. It's warm at home."

Avery placed the pills and water on his nightstand, then took off her coat and hung it up.

"Why didn't you mention before that you didn't bring your pills? Would you have stayed up all night if I didn't notice that you had insomnia?"

"I didn't expect to have trouble sleeping."

"You were regularly taking your pills before this, did you really not expect this if you suddenly cut yourself off? Did you think I could cure your insomnia?"

Avery sat down by Elliot's side and gazed at his profile.

"I talked to the doctor for a little bit. He said that curing insomnia greatly depends on regulating your emotions."

"I've tried that, but it didn't work."

Elliot took the pills, then joked, "I'm not old, yet. There's no need for you to take care of me like this in the middle of the night. It'll be tougher when I actually grow old. Maybe you should go find yourself a younger man."

Avery let out a hearty guffaw.

"Sure! I'd like to see if younger men are more obedient, too...However, you might already get better by the time I find a younger man!"

Chapter 836

Elliot's pills took effect half an hour later, and he fell into a deep slumber.

On the other hand, Avery was no longer tired. She thought deeply about all the things that happened between them since Elliot arrived. She had spent every day in bliss.

Not only was she sleeping well, but her appetite had also improved. She had thought things were the same for him. She did not expect that he would suffer from insomnia. She wanted to help him, but there was nothing else she could do other than buy medication for him.

In the days that followed, she could treat him better and love him more.

If one day was not enough, then she would spend the next month or year to finally fill the emptiness he felt from the loss of Shea.

It was ten the next morning by the time Elliot woke up.

The moment he stepped out of the room, Avery immediately led him to the dining room.

"Let's go out after you eat."

She had arranged the entire day's schedule.

"We'll take the kids along with us."

Elliot glanced at the weather outside, then said, "It doesn't look like a good day to go out."

It was foggy outside, which meant the roads would not be as visible if they drove.

"It's normal for it to be foggy here in the winter," Avery said matter-of-factly.

"We'll just drive slowly."

"Is there something going on today?"

Elliot saw how excited she was to go out and did not want to rain on her parade.

"I don't know. We're not going out for fun. We're taking family portraits today," Avery knew Elliot would not refuse, then said, "I already booked a photographer."

Elliot lowered his gaze, then expressed his doubt and asked, "Is Haydenie going?"

"Of course! It's a family portrait, so we can't miss out on anybody."

Avery knew he would feel doubtful and explained, "Hayden might not like you, but he loves me, Layla, and Robert. Whatever the matter, as long as I discuss it with him, he would typically agree to it."

Her words oozed the pride and joy of a mother who was loved by her son. Elliot was envious.

"The wound on my head would make me look bad," he said with concern.

"I can use a skin-colored bandage to rewrap it for you. The photographer can edit the photo later. I actually think you still look very handsome now," Avery praised.

"You have a good looking face. You'd still be handsome even if you shaved your head bald."

Elliot was over the moon after receiving her compliments.

At this point, even the sky falling wouldn't stop them from taking family portraits that day, let alone the wound on his head.

Avery chose one of Bridgedale's most popular professional photographers for the photoshoot.

She was a female photographer.

After she received Avery's call, she canceled all of her other jobs that day and agreed to take family portraits for Avery.

Soon after, two cars came to a halt in front of the photography studio.

Elliot, Layla, and Mrs. Cooper took one car, while Avery, Hayden, and Robert took the other.

After Elliot carried Layla out of the car, he walked over to Avery's car. He wanted to help carry Robert, but Avery shook her head and got out of the car.

Hayden was the only one left in the car.

The father and son duo met eyes.

Elliot wanted to unfasten Hayden's seatbelt on the safety seat for him, but Hayden already exited the car himself by the time Elliot walked around to his side.

They almost bumped into each other.

Elliot immediately reached out to support Hayden, but Hayden shoved him away on reflex.

Chapter 837

Avery witnessed the entire thing.

"Come here, Hayden," she said as she tried to break the awkwardness.

Hayden hurried over to his mother's side.

"You get over here too, Elliot!"

Avery called out when she noticed Elliot was in a daze.

Once they entered the studio, the photographer greeted them warmly.

"I can't believe you already have three children at such a young age, Miss

Tate," exclaimed the photographer with an expression of envy and shock "You have such a great relationship with your husband, but I never heard any news about your marriage!"

Avery felt embarrassed and said, "We're not husband and wife at the moment, but it won't stop us from taking a family portrait."

The photographer sensed that she had misspoken, then quickly apologized and changed the subject.

"I've got some samples here, Miss Tate. Please take a look. Otherwise, you can tell me if you have a theme in mind."

Avery looked through the samples, then let Layla and Hayden choose.

"I think they're all pretty good, Mommy."

Layla was having a hard time choosing.

"Uncle Eric said that I look good no matter how I'm photographed, so you should choose!"

Once Avery picked two different styles from the samples, the makeup artist began to style her.

Back in Aryadelle, Tanya's blood pressure had gone down and she was demanding to leave the hospital.

Chad took her to his place in hopes that she would stay with him for a couple of days before sending her home.

"When did you buy this house, Chad? I don't remember your place being this big! Why didn't you tell me you were getting a new place?"

The more Tanya looked around Chad's house, the more satisfied she was with what she saw.

It was a spacious and comfortable place with grated lighting.

There was not much furniture in the house, and it felt slightly empty, but it emanated a minimalistic style.

"I can't afford a place like this on my salary," Chad said guiltily.

"Mike said my old place was too small, so he gave me the money to buy this one."

"Huh?!"

Tanya's cheeks flushed scarlet as her brows furrowed.

"He bribed you with a house? How much could this place cost?"

"This house cost fifteen million dollars, Mom."

Chad poured his mother a glass of water, then added, "It's nothing much, but it's in a good location. I can walk to work from here every day."

The words "fifteen million dollars " echoed in Tanya's mind as her expression turned awful.

"This place cost that much?!"

She stayed in shocked silence for a moment, then asked, "Whose name is on the lease? Was it paid for in cash or did you take out a mortgage?"

"It's in my name."

Chad took a sip of water, then added, "I took out a mortgage. I'm paying it off every month."

"Ha! I knew he wasn't that rich!"

"He wanted to pay for the house for me, Mom. I was the one who insisted on taking out a mortgage. He paid ninety-nine percent of it, and I took a mortgage for a hundred and fifty thousand dollars. I pay fifteen hundred dollars a month in property taxes."

"Are you with him for his money, Chad?"

Tanya calmed herself down, then had a heart-to-heart with her son.

"I've told you that you only need enough money to spend. There's no need to do anything you dislike for the sake of money..."

"I would still love him even if he didn't have money, Mom," Chad said sincerely.

"I know you and Dad can't accept this, and I don't plan on convincing you. Let us be for now. We'll naturally break up if we find that we're not suitable for each other."

That evening, Chad went to see Mike. Mike opened a bottle of champagne for him.

"How did you convince your mother to go home?" he asked as he clinked glasses with Chad.

"She took my credit card. She said she had to have at least my person or my money with her," Chad said frustratedly.

"I'm penniless right now."

"Haha! I'll take care of you!"

Mike was in a great mood.

"They should've just said they wanted money! It didn't have to lead to someone being hospitalized!"

"I think you might be lovestruck, Mike."

Chad picked up the bottle of wine and poured himself a glass.

"You coughed up the money to buy me such an expensive house, but you're still crashing at Avery's place. You got me a new luxury car, but you're still driving that wreck of a car that's been discontinued."

"You call that lovestruck? I think the way Elliot spends money on Avery is even scarier. Would that make him lovestruck, too?" Mike retorted.

Chapter 838

"Mr. Foster isn't lovestruck, he's just got a lot of love to give!" Chad said.

"Not only is he generous with his money when it comes to Avery, he's also generous with his love! It isn't like there aren't more beautiful women around him, but he's never given any of them the time of day."

"That's because women who are more beautiful than Avery aren't as capable as she is, and the ones who are more capable than her aren't as young and beautiful."

Mike began to sing Avery praises.

"If I was into women, I'd fall in love with Avery too."

Chad gave him a kick. He had only praised him a little bit, and he already had his head up in the clouds.

"You can't take a joke! Avery and your boss are going to remarry. Once they're back in the country, I won't have a place in this home anymore."

Mike had on a pitiful face, but he was in a good mood.

"I guess I'll just have to move in with you then!"

"Are you sure they're going to remarry?"

Chad had spent the past few days taking care of his mother at the hospital, so he did not hear about this.

"It's highly likely they will remarry. Work begins in a couple of days, but Elliot still hasn't decided on when he's coming back. I bet he's having too much fun there to want to return," Mike joked.

"He's the boss. He can have as much fun for as long as he wants. Even if Avery doesn't come back, you'll still have to be back at work on time, right?"

"That's right. Don't you have to go back to work as usual even if your boss isn't around?"

"Whatever. Let's drink!"

Chad thought of how chaotic the holidays were, and now that things were finally calm, it was almost time for him to go back to the office.

Meanwhile in Bridgedale, it was evening by the time the portraits were done.

The photographer offered a few complimentary couple shots for Avery and Elliot.

"I'll send the photos to you soon. I wish you all the happiness in the world!"

"Thank you. It's been a pleasure," Avery said.

"The pleasure's mine. It's an honor that you chose me."

The photographer walked them to the exit, then said, "By the way, may I post a photo of the two of you on my personal social media account? I think you both did very well during the shoot."

"Sure," Avery answered without hesitation.

"As long as you don't post photos of the children."

"Don't worry. I won't post your family portraits online. It's your privacy, after all!"

"Thanks."

As they walked out of the studio, Avery turned to Elliot and said, "You don't mind that I agreed to her request, do you?"

She did not mind people finding out that she was with Elliot now. She felt that Elliot probably did not mind either.

Elliot was carrying Layla in his arms as he responded plainly, "I don't mind."

The photographer was from Bridgedale, so anything she posted online here most likely would not reach Aryadelle.

It was not a problem even if it reached Aryadelle, since his relationship with Avery was already well known throughout the country.

"You look pretty tired,"

Avery saw the trouble in Elliot's eyes.

He seemed fine then they left the house at noon.

Elliot forced a smile and said, "Layla's falling asleep."

"I'm not tired though!"

Avery opened the car door, then tapped Layla on the shoulder and said,

"Don't sleep, sweetie. We're heading home now!"

"I couldn't go back to sleep after I woke up when you went out to get Daddy's medicine last night... I didn't get enough sleep..."

Avery glanced at Elliot and said, "Could you hold her?"

"Sure.It's my fault, anyway,"

Elliot said, blaming himself.

"Let's head home!"

On the drive back, Avery received some digital photos from the photographer.

They were photos of her and Elliot.

There was one of him hugging her, and one of him kissing her as he held her face.

Every single photo was oozing with exceptional romance.

Hayden noticed Avery laughing at her phone, then asked curiously, "What are you looking at, Mommy?"

Chapter 839

"I'm looking at photos of me and your father.Would you like to see them?"

Avery asked.

Hayden immediately turned to look out the window and said, "I don't."

"I won't look at them either then."

Avery put her phone down, then turned to her son and said, "Thank you for today, Hayden.I suggested taking family portraits because we haven't taken one since your grandmother passed away.There's also another reason."

Hayden withdrew his gaze from the window.He was willing to listen to his mother.

No matter what Avery said, he could take her seriously.

"Last night, your father told me that he's been depending on medication to fall asleep ever since Shea passed away.He didn't bring his pills, so I went out to get some for him last night.He isn't perfect, but neither am I.I've thought about it seriously, and I want to spend the rest of my life with him."

Avery was informing Hayden that she would be living with Elliot in the future.

This was something that Hayden had already expected.

Since Elliot arrived, Avery spent all of her time with him, day and night.

Whenever the two of them went on a date, Hayden had to stay home and watch Layla.

He did not like sharing his mother with Elliot, but he could tell how much happier Avery became since Elliot showed up.

"As long as you're happy, Mommy."

Hayden's brows furrowed as he said words way beyond his years, "When Robert, Layla, and I grow up, we might not be able to spend as much time with you."

"I'm not thinking that far ahead, because the future is ever-changing."

Avery held Hayden's hand, then said, "Let's appreciate what's in front of us right now."

After the photographer posted the photos of Avery and Elliot on social media, the photos were immediately spread far and wide.

This was because of their good looks, and also because of their status.

One was the richest man in Aryadelle, while the other was a prominent entrepreneur in Bridgedale and a famed neurologist.

Their photos very quickly made it to Aryadelle.

The entire country celebrated the news of their relationship.

In the eyes of ordinary people, Avery and Elliot were a match made in heaven.

If one were to search their names online in Aryadelle, the first result was a news article about them donating drones to the Border Security Force.

This further deepened the public's admiration for them.

That night, Avery woke up from a nightmare. She dreamed that Elbot left without saying goodbye and returned to Aryadelle.

She reached out her hand, and the uneasiness she felt instantly calmed down the moment she felt his warmth. She checked the time on her phone and ended up noticing that someone had sent her a friend request on social media.

Avery did not normally accept friend requests from strangers, but the verification message that came with the request caught her eye.

[Avery Tate! This is Chelsea Tierney's cousin! You're so shameless!]

Seeing those words in the middle of the night instantly woke Avery up. She accepted the friend request and wanted to ask this person what made her so shameless.

However, before she could confront the person, they sent over a photo of Avery and Elliot with the message: [You're so shameless , Avery Tate! Elliot Foster is my cousin-in-law. Who are you trying to disgust with such a revolting photo?]

Avery was stunned.

[Are you blind? I made it clear in my verification message! I'm Chelsea Tierney's cousin!]

[When did Elliot and your cousin get together? They weren't together before, and they never will be!]

To get the person to stop harassing her, Avery turned on her phone camera and took a photo of Elliot sleeping next to her.

Then, she sent the photo over with the message:

[He's lying down next to me right now. Should I wake him so you can talk to him?]

Chapter 840

The person texting Avery probably did not expect Elliot to be right next to her and was shocked for a moment.

Avery composed herself, then texted: [You said you're Chelsea Tierney's cousin. Why should I believe you?]

[I really am her cousin! My name is Ruby Sullivan. Call and ask Chelsea if you don't believe me. You have her number, right?]

[I don't. Send me her number.]

Avery had Chelsea's number.

She said she did not so she could check if the person texting her was a liar.

The person sent Avery a series of numbers.

Avery checked it with Chelsea's number and then confirmed that the person did know Chelsea.

Her heart instantly turned cold.

If this person really was Chelsea's cousin, then could what she said be true?

The world began to spin around Avery as her temples suddenly began to throb in pain.

Elliot spent every single day with her and the children.

He had absolutely no interaction with Chelsea.

How was it possible that he was suddenly marrying her? If he was going to marry Chelsea, then he should be by her side right now! Was Chelsea not disfigured? Even with that fact aside, how could Elliot possibly feel anything for Chelsea? Avery's back broke into a cold sweat at this point.

She could not forget all of the pain that Chelsea put her through, nor could she forget how she tormented Tammy! If Elliot dared to date Chelsea, then Avery would no longer want anything to do with him! However, as long as he still had his reason, Elliot should know that he could only pick one between her andie Chelsea.

Ruby: [Why aren't you saying anything? You're embarrassed and feeling bad, aren't you? You're a homewrecker! You wh*re!]

Avery's eyes stung slightly as she read the text, and her fingers trembled as she typed a response.

[When did Elliot say he was going to marry your cousin? Nobody told me about this. Even if I am a homewrecker, I didn't turn into one knowingly! Watch your mouth!]

Ruby: [Hasn't Elliot told you about it yet? Hahaha! What a sc*mbag! He's still stringing you along when he's about to marry Chelsea. You poor thing, Avery Tate! You got duped!]

Avery held back her rage and retorted.

[Judging by your tone, I'm guessing they've already set a date?]

Ruby: [All you need to know is that Chelsea's family is already preparing for the wedding. My mother said that they'll announce the news in a few days!

The entire Tierney family already knows about this. Could it still be fake?

Avery's hand clenched tightly around her phone.

She could not move her fingers after reading that last text.

This was not a dream! The pain in her heart was too real! She could hear the sound of herself breathing heavily and gritting her teeth.

Ruby: [My cousin is disfigured now, so her self-esteem is pretty low. Just because she won't confront you, doesn't mean the Tierneys are just going to sit back and take this! Listen up, Avery Tate. If you continue to stick to Elliot Foster, I'll make sure the whole world finds out that you're a homewrecker!]

Those words drove Avery's heart to tremble with rage. She was gasping for air like a fish out of water.

There were two voices in her mind.

One was telling them that Ruby would not lie about something like this, and Elliot was going to marry Chelsea! The other voice was comforting her and telling her that Elliot would never marry Chelsea! Why would he? Just because she was disfigured? Just as tears had blurred Avery's vision and she decided not to reply to the text, Elliot suddenly reached out and wrapped his arm around her waist.

He scooped over and pulled her into his arms.

Avery froze. She thought that he had woken up and would call out her name in the next second.

If he did, then she would definitely not be able to stop herself from asking if he was going to marry Chelsea.

However, Elliot did not speak.

He was still asleep.

As his steady breathing fell on the back of Avery's head, she felt his warm body temperature and breath, and gradually calmed down.

She picked up her phone and saw a series of insulting and threatening messages from Ruby, then replied: [Do you know why Elliot wants to marry Chelsea?]

Ruby: [For profit, of course! How could your lousy company compare to Trust Capital? Elliot Foster will only be able to make more money if he joins forces with the Tierneys!]

Avery stared at the jarring text and did not believe a word of it.

Trust Capital was indeed wealthy, but Avery's company was not some lousy company! If Elliot truly was someone who cared about profits, then he would not have spent all of that money on her over the years.

There would also be no reason to waste so much time on her. Avery believed that, as long as Elliot was willing, he could find the richest woman in the world and marry her for the biggest profit.

However, he never did anything like that.

There was also no reason for him to betray himself for Trust Capital. Avery's intuition told her that there was something strange about the entire thing, so she wiped her tears away and decided to find a chance to talk to Elliot about it.

The next morning, Elliot got up, then stood by the bed and watched Avery's sleeping face.

He could not bring himself to wake her. He had to return to Aryadelle today.

Charlie had sent him a text saying that the Tierneys have made all the arrangements for the wedding, and warned him that they would announce the news of the marriage if he did not do it.

Elliot did not want the Tierneys to make the announcement.

It would be a bigger blow to Avery if she found out about his wedding through the Tierneys.

As if she sensed something, Avery suddenly opened her eyes.

When their eyes met, Elliot flashed her a tender smile.

When Avery saw his smile, she smiled as well.

At the same time, she remembered the texts that Chelsea's cousin sent the night before.

She suspected that it was all nothing but a dream! She anxiously picked up her phone and checked her messages... She drew a sharp breath. It was not a dream. It was all real.

The messages between her and Chelsea's cousin at three in the morning were still there.

"Elliot."

Avery put her phone down and sat up.

She wanted to talk to him about this.

"Hmm?"

Elliot threw Avery's cardigan over her shoulders, then said casually, "I have to go back to Aryadelle today, 18 Avery."

"Oh. I thought work was starting the day after tomorrow? Won't you stay another day?"

Avery was filled with anxiety.

Could he be leaving a day early because he really was going to marry Chelsea? He had given her a diamond ring on Valentine's day, and they promised to love each other forever she could still see those memories in front of her.

Why were they changing?

"There are some things I need to head back earlier to deal with," Elliot said plainly.

"What sort of things?"

Avery pestered as she gazed at his handsome face. She never used to do this. She absolutely respected him and would never overly butt into his matters.

No matter how intimate the relationship, space was still necessary.

"Some business matters and some personal ones."

Elliot did not expect Avery to ask further questions, so his expression was slightly stunned.

"What sort of personal matters?"

Avery continued to ask nonchalantly.

She wanted to find out if he really had the audacity to marry Chelsea! Elliot gazed at Avery's cold eyes, and his heart tightened in his chest.

Did she know something?

"I haven't visited my mother's and Shea's graves yet," he said as his palms began to sweat profusely.

Adam's Apple bobbed in his throat as he clenched his teeth. He did not have the courage to tell her the cruel truth. If he did not settle this matter, it would continue to haunt him for the rest of his life. He needed to deal with this to give Avery and the children a stable life.

"Is there anything else other than visiting their graves?"

Avery continued to press on, to the point of grabbing Elliot's hand and not allowing him to escape.

Chapter 842

As Elliot gazed at Avery's determined face, he more or less confirmed that she knew about him and Chelsea. She was fine when they went out yesterday, if she had found out the day before, she would not have happily brought him out to take the family portraits. Someone must have told her about it after he fell asleep the night before, "I'll leave tomorrow, then."

Elliot did not know how to answer Avery's question.

All he could do was go along with her. He would rather leave a day late than explain the real reason he was returning to Aryadelle.

Avery let go of his hand, but her eyes continued to stay on him as she said coldly, "When did you and Chelsea make up, Elliot?"

"I haven't seen her in a long time," Elliot answered truthfully.

What those words meant, was that he did not make up with her.

"I see... You didn't see her after she got hurt?"

"I didn't."

Elliot hung his head slightly.

Avery's gaze made him feel like he was enduring the most severe punishment.

"Do you like her, then? Did you ever like her? Answer me!"

Avery clenched the covers tightly, but she could not stop her body from trembling.

"Never," Elliot answered clearly and assuredly.

He never had feelings for Chelsea, not even before he met Avery. If he ever liked Chelsea, then he would not have let her stay by his side all these years with nothing to show for it.

"Tell me, Elliot. Am I a homewrecker?!"

Avery ripped the bandage right off and demanded loudly.

"You are not."

Elliot lifted his gaze to look at her.

"I know what I'm doing, Avery. I remember every single thing I've ever said to you."

Avery laughed out loud, but her eyes were tearing up.

"The ring is real, and so are your promises. Then, is it also true that you're going back to marry Chelsea?!"

Elliot pursed his lips as he watched the tears on her face.

"And you say I'm not a homewrecker ... You're about to marry someone else... Am I the only one in the world who didn't know? What were you thinking? What do you take me for?"

Since Elliot did not answer her question, Avery was sure that he really was about to marry Chelsea.

Chelsea's cousin would not attack her for no reason.

Elliot might have spent the past few days with her and the children, but she could not help but feel like he had a lot on his mind.

It turns out that she was not overly sensitive or thinking too much.

He truly had a problem! Since he was about to marry Chelsea, why did he come to Bridgedale to see her? His actions were similar to him feeding her poison that he had concocted with his bare hands.

A knock on the door broke the awkward silence in the room.

Elliot watched with an aching heart as Avery quickly wiped the tears off her face and lay back down in bed.

He walked over to the door and opened it.

Mrs. Cooper was standing at the door with Robert in her arms and Layla by her side.

"Why are you and Mommy still in bed, Daddy? Breakfast is getting cold! It's snowing today. Do you two want to play with me?"

Layla lifted her head and flashed a face of anticipation. She was used to her parents spending time with her the past few days.

Since the moment she woke up this morning, she was already looking forward to playing outside.

Elliot turned to look back at the bed.

Avery heard Layla's voice, but she continued to pretend to be asleep.

Elliot felt even worse after seeing what a tough time Avery was having.

"I'm going back to Aryadelle today, Layla."

Avery would only be more upset and furious if he did not leave.

Layla put on a pitiful face and said, "Okay! Why didn't you say anything yesterday? I didn't know you were going back today."

"I forgot to tell you about it yesterday. I'm sorry, sweetie."

Elliot picked Layla up, then said hoarsely, "Your mother's still sleeping. Let's not bother her."

"Mommy never used to sleep in, Daddy. Why has she been sleeping in every day since you got here?"

Layla asked with a confused expression on her face.

Mrs. Cooper's cheeks flushed and she chuckled out loud.

Avery kept her back facing the door as tears escaped her eyes.

The final line of defense in her heart utterly crumbled after hearing her daughter's voice.

Chapter 843

If Layla found out that her father was about to return to Aryadelle to marry another woman, she would be devastated! Once Hayden found out about this, he would definitely despise Elliot even more.

Was Elliot really doing this for the sake of profit? If not, then why was he doing it? He had said himself that he did not love Chelsea.

Was money more important than love and their three children? Avery could not understand Elliot's decision.

He was more than capable of earning his own money, and a lot of it at that.

Her company was also steadily making a profit.

How much money did he need to finally be satisfied? Tears streamed down Avery's cheeks and soaked her pillow.

When there were no longer any sounds coming from outside the door, she turned on her back and stared at the ceiling as she cried silently.

Downstairs, once Elliot was done with breakfast, he picked Robert up in his arms.

Robert's glistening black eyes were fixed on his father's face, and Elliot wondered what he was thinking in his tiny head.

He gazed at his son with a smile as he thought, "I don't know when will be the next time I'll get to hold you again."

"What time is your flight, Master Elliot? I'll go pack your things for you," Mrs. Cooper said.

Elliot thought of how Avery was crying in the room and then quickly said, "It's fine. It's just some clothes. I'll just leave them here."

Mrs. Cooper beamed and said, "That's true. If you leave your clothes here, you can wear them when you come here again."

She was under the impression that Avery and Elliot were stuck together and completely inseparable.

In the room, after allowing herself to sob her heart out, Avery threw back the covers and got out of bed.

Running away never solved any problems.

Even without Elliot, she still had the children.

She must never be knocked down by hardships.

When Avery walked into the bathroom to wash up and saw her haggard complexion and hopeless expression, she suddenly realized that Elliot Foster was not just a man to her.

She had already engraved his name into her heart and included him in her dreams for a beautiful future.

Without him, her life would be bleak and dark Moments later, she rushed down to the living room. She saw Mrs. Cooper and Mrs. Scarlet folding the laundry.

Robert was in the crib while Layla was playing with him.

If Elliot was at home, he would be by the children's side.

"Where's Elliot?"

Avery asked worriedly.

"He left. He's going back to Aryadelle today. Didn't he tell you?"

Mrs. Cooper was confused.

"He said you were sleeping and asked me not to wake you."

Ha! Did he not say he was only leaving tomorrow? Was he afraid that she would beg him to stay, so he could not wait to escape?! The more Avery thought about it, the more unwilling she was to accept this entire debacle!

She picked up her car keys and immediately ran out of the house.

Mrs. Cooper watched her leave and wondered out loud, "Did Avery's eyes look puffy to you?"

"They did!" answered Mrs. Scarlet.

"They were red and puffy.

Maybe she didn't want Master Elliot to leave and cried in the room by herself."

Mrs. Cooper suddenly realize something and exclaimed, "No wonder Master Elliot asked me not to bother her!"

Once Avery drove the car out onto the road, the snowfall outside turned heavier. She hated this fluttering blizzard! It was also snowing heavily the last time she and Elliot separated.

However, today's snowfall was obviously heavier than the one back then.

When she reached the city center, traffic was backed up because of the weather.

Avery was frantic with anxiety as she saw the unmoving traffic in front of her.

All she wanted was to make Elliot stay! Did life really have to go against her like this?!

Chapter 844

Avery never believed in fate.

Even if life wanted to stop her, she would never give in that easily.

She opened the car door then stepped into the cold winter snow without hesitation, She ran frantically toward the airport.

There was only one ending she wanted.

She was not going to let Elliot go just like that! At the VIP waiting lounge at the airport, Elliot lifted his wrist and checked the time on his watch.

His flight was one in the afternoon.

There was another hour until the plane would take off.

He stood by the giant windows and his heart felt as cold as the fluttering snowfall outside.

If there was any other way, he would never do anything to hurt Avery and the children.

Being cruel to her and the children was the same as being cruel to himself. He would be in more agony than them.

Charlie had something on Elliot and was now forcing him to marry Chelsea.

He had no other choice.

If he did not act out this play, there would be no end to the torment he would have to endure in the future.

He did not want the children to be ridiculed because of his scandal.

He also did not want Avery to find out about this.

He could allow his reputation to be ruined and not care about how others viewed him, but he cared about what Avery thought of him.

If it were not for Avery and the children, he would not be pinned down even if Charlie found evidence of his murder case! Elliot was never a good man.

It was Avery and the children who made him want to become a better person.

He was never a coward, but he was terrified of Avery and the children distancing themselves from him out of fear after finding out about this.

He needed to take a gamble.

If he won, he would never have to worry about being threatened again.

Avery ran all the way into the airport departure hall.

She did not have time to brush the snow off of her body or catch her breath.

She found the flight to Aryadelle on the flight information display system, then immediately rushed toward the designated security checkpoint.

She squeezed through the crowds and finally made it to the security checkpoint.

"Elliot Foster!"

Avery immediately recognized Elliot's silhouette in the crowded airport.

He had already gone through security.

If she was even a minute late, she would not be able to see him!

"Elliot! You can't leave!"

She stood on the other side of the security barrier and begged miserably, "I still need to talk to you! You can't leave!"

When Elliot saw how Avery had abandoned her pride and dignity to come to him, he felt like he had a bitter taste in his mouth.

He clenched his fists, then strode toward her.

When Avery saw him heading in her direction, tears finally escaped her eyes uncontrollably. She knew he was not that heartless.

As long as she pleaded with him, he definitely would not leave.

Elliot hurried over to Avery.

Before he could stand still, she reached out and held his hand."

Listen, Elliot. I know I have a bad temper and that I'm always picking a fight with you. I'm always making things hard on you, but I can change... As long as you don't marry Chelsea, I'll change! You know Chelsea and I don't get along at all. If you marry her, I'll never forgive you! Don't push me and the children to stand against you..."

Avery's emotions were in chaos. She sobbed as she poured her heart and soul out to Elliot.

What if he left if she did not say everything? She believed that he would change his mind once she made the stakes clear.

He loved her and he loved the children.

There was no way that he would abandon them for Chelsea unless the past few days were nothing but an act! However, Avery could not figure out why the man standing before her would pretend to be a good man and father.

"Give me some time, Avery."

Elliot's voice was hoarse.

He withdrew his hand from her cold grip, then brushed off the snow from her hair.

"Go home."

As Avery watched his cold demeanor and heard his familiar voice, she thought she was imagining things.

He told her to go home... He told her to go home without a moment's hesitation! If he did not go home with her right now, then he was choosing to abandon her and the children! "Are you absolutely sure, Elliot?"

Avery asked as she gazed into Elliot's eyes in disbelief.

"You want me to go home, then you'll go back to Aryadelle and marry Chelsea... Is that it?"

Chapter 845

After Avery spoke, the security personnel reminded Elliot that it was time to board the plane.

"I need to head back to Aryadelle to settle some things, Avery. Please give me some time..."

"I won't! If I give you time, then you'll go and marry Chelsea! I won't accept you marrying another woman, Elliot! It doesn't matter if it's with Chelsea or anybody else! As long as I'm not the bride, I won't allow it!"

Avery clenched her teeth, then said, "If you leave today, you can forget about ever seeing me or the kids ever again!"

Since her begging did not work, she could only resort to threatening him.

If the Tierneys were using something to threaten or lure him, then she could threaten him, too! She refused to believe that the Tierneys had a bigger bargaining chip than she did.

Elliot's eyes were reddened and glistening with tears as he gazed at Avery with a pained expression on his face.

He had gone from being forcibly calm to teary-eyed in a matter of seconds.

Avery had pushed him to tears. She did not want things to become this ugly, but she absolutely could not accept him going off to marry Chelsea.

"If I was the one who was about to marry another man, would you also be this nonchalant about it? Would you be able to understand my feelings?"

She lifted her chin and did not allow her tears to escape.

"I'm only giving you one chance. You can come home with me now, or we're over!"

Elliot's heart ached so badly that it was hard to breathe.

Avery wanted to end things with him! He understood why she was doing this, but it was hard for him to accept it.

There was no way he could agree to end things with her, but it was also impossible for him not to marry Chelsea.

Living was sometimes more agonizing than death.

Right now, he was better off dead than alive.

The woman that he loved the most was standing before him with tears in her eyes. He wanted to pull her into his arms and make her smile again.

Not only could he not do that, but he was also breaking her heart!

"You b*st*rd!"

Elliot cursed himself in his head. He held Avery's face in his hands and planted his thin lips on her coldie ones.

There was a mountain of things that he wanted to tell her, but it was not the time yet.

After knowing each other for so many years, there was unspoken chemistry between Avery and Elliot.

She could easily pick up what his every gaze and action meant.

She shoved him away with all of her might, then turned and left without giving him another look. He had already chosen Chelsea.

What did he think a kiss would change? She refused to completely lose her pride and reason for him.

She would not be a mistress and she absolutely refused to be his puppet.

As Elliot watched Avery leave, he felt like his heart was shattering into a million pieces.

This was broken trust and the end of ancb obsession.

"Are you still boarding the flight, Sir?" asked the airport staff.

"If you are, then you're going to have to hurry!"

When Avery arrived at the airport's entrance, something inside of her was calling out to her and she froze in her tracks. She spun her head around as tears streamed down her face.

Back at the security checkpoint, there was nobody else there apart from the airport staff.

Elliot left.

He left unwaveringly and determinedly! It looked like he did not take anything with him, but he had left with all of Avery's love and trust.

She would never believe in his words again. She would never listen to a word he had to say again. She would treat the sweetness of the past few days as nothing but a dream.

Now that the dream was over, it was time for her to wake up.

She was devastated, but it was better than living a joke! When Avery walked out of the airport, the heavy snowfall practically blocked her line of vision. She reached out, and a few snowflakes fell onto her palm. She stared as the pure white snow slowly melted in her hand, and could not help but burst into gutwrenching sobs.

Why?! Why was she able to melt snow, but unable to warm Elliot's heart?!

Chapter 846

By the time Avery walked her way back home, it was already evening.

The weather was not great today, and it had turned dark outside earlier.

Mrs. Cooper was shocked to see her drenched and in a daze.

"What happened, Avery?"

Mrs. Cooper held Avery's hand.

"Did you not want Master Elliot to leave? Don't be like that. You can go back to Aryadelle whenever you want, right?"

Avery shook her head, then croaked, "Where are the kids?"

"Robert is sleeping. Layla and Hayden are taking a shower. They were making a snowman in the front yard earlier and got soaked," said Mrs. Cooper.

"You're drenched, Avery. Go and take a hot shower. Do you need my help?"

Avery shook her head, then turned away and headed toward the bedroom.

Mrs. Cooper was worried and followed behind her.

"By the way, don't mention Elliot Foster in front of the children ever again."

Avery stopped in her tracks, then turned to Mrs. Cooper and continued, "We broke up. You and Mrs. Scarlet work for him..."

She could not bring herself to continue the rest of her sentence. She wanted to send Mrs. Cooper and Mrs. Scarlet back to Elliot.

Since they were broken up, she could not continue to keep them by her side.

Mrs. Cooper's face turned pale as she could not accept what she just heard.

"This is too sudden, Avery! I... I don't know what to say, but I want to stay here and take care of Robert."

"You work for him, though. From now on, I won't have anything to do with him. I like you, but I don't want to continue to have any connection to him because of you," Avery said, revealing her thoughts.

Mrs. Cooper's eyes filled with tears.

She did not know what to do.

At this moment, Mrs. Scarlet walked over and said to Avery, "I don't know what happened between the two of you, Avery. It's regretful, but I've spent my whole life working as a nanny for the Fosters. I will be leaving tomorrow."

Avery nodded, then turned to Mrs. Cooper and said, "You should go with Mrs.Scarlet."

Mrs.Cooper could no longer handle the reality at hand and walked away in tears.

"She's developed a liking for Robert, Avery.You should let her make her own choices.If she's willing to stay behind and take care of Robert, then she can quit working for the Fosters and work for you instead," said Mrs.Scarlet.

"She's been working for the Fosters all these years.I don't want to trouble her."

"Are things between you and Master Elliot truly over?"

Mrs.Scarlet could not understand how they were both just fine yesterday but are now broken up out of nowhere.

Avery's lashes fluttered as she said, "He's going to marry Chelsea Tierney.Do you think there's anything left to redeem?"

Mrs.Scarlet took a step back.

She was so shocked that she could not say a word.

That night, Avery tossed and turned in bed.

As the clock ticked away, her body temperature slowly rose.

Her mouth felt dry and she was very thirsty.

When she threw back the covers and sat up, her head started spinning.

She immediately realized that she had acb fever.

The next morning, Mrs.Cooper gave Elliot a call after careful consideration.

At that moment, Elliot had just gotten off the plane.

"Master Elliot, Avery said you're going to marry Chelsea Tierney, so she could not keep Mrs.Scarlet and me by her side."

Mrs.Cooper had spent the whole night thinking about her final decision.

"I don't think you'd do something like that, but Avery wouldn't lie to me.Mrs.Scarlet will be returning to Aryadelle today, but I won't be going with her."

Elliot grunted in response.

"Robert is still a baby.I'd like to stay by Avery's side and take care of Robert.No matter what happens between you and Avery, Robert is still your child.I'll stay with Avery to repay all the years that you took care of me."

"Alright," Elliot said.

After she hung up the phone, Mrs.Cooper headed to Avery's room.

Chapter 847

Mrs.Cooper was going to Avery's room to get Elliot's suitcase to hand over to Mrs.Scarlet.She figured that Avery would not want to see Elliot's things.

Instead of throwing it out, it would be better to let Mrs.Scarlet take them with her.

Mrs.Cooper knocked on the door, then walked into the room.

"I already gave Master Elliot my resignation, Avery."

She sat by the bed, saw that Avery's eyes were open, then continued, "I'm here to take his suitcase for Mrs.Scarlet to bring back with her."

Avery's complexion was haggard, but her tone was certain as she said,

"Since you've already resigned, don't contact him again from now on.Don't even send him any photos of Robert."

"Alright."

"I've already packed his things.The suitcase by the desk is his."

Avery had a fever the night before and took some medication when she woke up.

When she saw Elliot's suitcase, she stuffed all of his things inside of it.

"You don't look so good, Avery.You should get some more sleep,"

Mrs.Cooper said and then quickly dragged the suitcase out of the room.

After sending Mrs. Scarlet off, Mrs. Cooper was deep in thought. She eventually called Mike and asked him to call Tammy.

"Why are you looking for Tammy? Doesn't Avery have her number?" Mike asked in confusion.

Mrs. Cooper sighed heavily.

"What's wrong? Don't sigh, I was just saying casually. I'll call Tammy right now."

"Maybe you should come back here, Mike!"

Mrs. Cooper's heart ached as she recalled Avery lying in bed with bloodshot eyes and a dazed expression on her face.

"Avery and Master Elliot broke up. She said he's marrying Chelsea Tierney. Everything was too sudden and I didn't ask too many questions."

"What the f*ck?!"

Mike snapped as he shot to his feet.

"Elliot's marrying Chelsea Tierney?!"

"That's right. I wanted to ask you to get Tammy here to be with Avery."

Mrs. Cooper did not want to talk further and hung up the phone once she was done speaking.

Mike's hand clenched tightly around his phone as he quickly digested the information he had just received in his head.

Chad walked over when he heard the commotion.

"What did you say? Mr. Foster is marrying Chelsea? Who were you talking to?"

"Are you telling me that you didn't know your boss was about to marry Chelsea Tierney?!".

Mike stared at Chad and could not help but feel suspicious.

"Are you sure you're not just spewing nonsense?! If I knew about it, would I be able to keep it quiet?"

Chad was furious.

"How could Mr.Foster marry Chelsea? He didn't even want her before she was disfigured.Now that she's disfigured, why would he suddenly want to marry her?!"

"I don't f*cking know! Mrs.Cooper was the one who told me! Would she lie to me?"

Mike shoved Chad aside and said, "That sc*mbag! I'm going to find him and ask him myself!"

Chad grabbed his arm and said, "Can you not be so impulsive? I'll go and ask You stay home! Elliot did not tell anyone that he was returning to Aryadelle, but Ben showed up at the Foster mansion not long after he arrived himself.Ben had spent the past few days holding himself back. After he met with Chelsea the other day, he asked around and found out that the Tierneys truly were preparing for a wedding.

"You should know what I'm here to say, Elliot."

Ben stood in front of Elliot with an expression of worry.

"Why? Tell me why you're doing this!"

Elliot was sitting on the couch and leisurely opening a pack of cigarettes.

"I don't need to explain my actions to anybody."

"Oh, so you don't need to explain yourself to Avery either?" Ben mocked.

"Or did you two break up again?!"

Elliot threw the pack of cigarettes on the table and the cigarettes fell out all over the floor.

"This is my business.It's got nothing to do with you!"

His frosty eyes were filled with an eerie chill.

Ben kicked the coffee table in front of him and roared, "Do you know what Chelsea looks like right now?! Ha! Go ahead and marry her if you're not afraid of having nightmares with her in your arms!"

Chapter 848

"Did you meet her?"

Elliot picked up a cigarette and held it between his fingers.

"I did."

Ben saw that Elliot did not lose his temper, so the rage inside of him calmed down quite a bit. He even lit his cigarette for him when he saw that he didn't have a lighter.

"She was the one who called me."

Ben took a seat next to Elliot, picked up a cigarette from the coffee table, and lit it.

"Does she have something on you?"

Elliot lowered his gaze slightly and then said bitterly, "Not her."

"Oh. The Tierneys have something on you? I was thinking, the Chelsea I know wouldn't have the guts to show up in public with the way she looks right now. Even if she really wanted to marry you, she wouldn't want a big wedding."

Elliot turned to Ben and asked, "What does she look like now?"

"It's hard to describe. I panic every time I think about her face,"

Ben said through gritted teeth as he snapped his cigarette in half.

"All of the love and hate in the past have paled. I can't tell what she's feeling right now. It's scary, but I also sympathize with her."

Elliot ashed his cigarette in the ashtray and then said hoarsely, "I'll go see her tomorrow."

"She might reconsider once you see her tomorrow."

Ben leaned back on the sofa and let out a heavy sigh.

"I can marry her no matter what she looks like."

Elliot took a puff of his cigarette and exhaled a ring of smoke.

"I've already hurt Avery and the kids. I don't have another choice."

"Did you already decide before the new year?"

Ben interrogated as he gazed at Elliot's profile.

"Why did you go to Bridgedale, then? You spent Valentine's Day with her and even took family portraits. Were you out of your mind?!"

"That's right. I was out of my mind," Elliot answered honestly.

"Even in my dreams, I want to be with her. When she called me over there, all of my reason went out the window."

"You knew that would hurt her even more. Why couldn't you have some selfcontrol? How did you expect her and the kids to feel? You didn't tell her you were being threatened, did you? I bet you didn't!"

Ben knew him far too well.

Elliot never revealed his pain to anybody.

The closer he was to someone, the more he would hide it.

"Tell her and let her worry?"

Elliot said word after word, "It's my own problem. I'll deal with it myself."

"I know you can handle it, but once you've solved your problems, Avery might not forgive you."

Ben shoved the reality at him and said, "If Shea hadn't sacrificed herself to save Robert, do you really think Avery would have gotten back with you soie quickly?"

His words instantly caused Elliot's brows to furrow tightly.

A beam of light shone in through the windows from outside the door.

The light stung Ben's eyes.

He immediately stood up to see who had the gall to act so arrogantly in front of Elliot Foster's house! Were they not afraid of being beaten to a pulp by the bodyguards? Ben walked over to the window and saw Chad and Mike walking into the front yard one after the other.

He let out a cold chuckle and said, "Mike's here for you, Elliot."

Elliot killed his cigarette in the ashtray.

When the mansion's front door burst open, Chad quickly shouted, "I couldn't stop him, Sir! Don't take anything he says to heart!"

"Chad Rayner! Even if your boss kills someone, you'll still say he was right! You must be f*cking blind to follow such a piece of sh*t who can't tell right from wrong!"

Mike snapped rudely.

Ben was afraid they would fight, so he pulled Chad aside.

Mike stormed over to Elliot and the bodyguard immediately stood in his way.

Mike was afraid to make a move, but he was not afraid to chastise him.

"Elliot Foster! You hurt Avery and the kids because of that nasty business of yours. Are you even human? You're not! You're trash!"

The bodyguard immediately dragged Mike out of the house, and Chad quickly followed them.

"I'll take you to the airport!"

Chad was upset about getting insulted, but he did not take it to heart after thinking of how much Avery must be suffering right now.

Chapter 849

No matter how you looked at it, Elliot was in the wrong this time.

Even if there was something he could not talk about, what did Avery do wrong to deserve this? Mike got into the passenger seat and fastened his seat belt, then remembered what Mrs. Cooper asked him to do.

He pulled out his phone and called Tammy.

Over in Bridgedale, Tammy immediately drove over to Avery's place after receiving Mike's call.

Avery had taken medication for her fever the night before, but her fever only subsided temporarily.

In the morning, her fever came back. She had planned on explaining the change in her relationship with Elliot to the children after she got up that morning.

However, she was worried that she would pass her fever to the children, so she spent the entire time resting in her room.

After Tammy entered the room, she shut the door behind her.

Avery heard her and opened her eyes.

"Are you not feeling well, Avery?"

Tammy approached the bed and touched Avery's forehead.

"You're a little warm. Did you take any medication?"

"I did."

Avery gazed at Tammy and asked weakly, "Who called you here?"

"Mike called me."

Tammy sat by the bed and began to sob a few seconds later.

Avery was stunned.

"Avery, I thought I was having a rough time, but you've got it worse than I do... Why are our lives like this? I'm so upset! I feel like crying every day but I'm afraid to cry in front of other people. I'm worried they would laugh at me.He's just a man.There are plenty of them in the world.I could just pick any one of them... But my heart aches every time I think of how the man I'll be with in the future won't be Jun."

Avery listened to Tammy's woes and quickly sated up.

"Lie down, Avery.I'm fine."

Tammy helped Avery lie back down on the bed.

"Maybe I had it too easy in the first half of my life, so going through a little bit of hardship now feels like the world is crumbling around me.You're so much braver than I am.I've always been envious of you.Not only can you take care of yourself, you're also so good at taking care of the kids.I can't even take care of myself."

"I'm not as brave as you think, Tammy," Avery said slowly.

She thought of how she had cried her eyes out at the airport when she broke up with Elliot yesterday.She also recalled how she had fallen several times when she ran to the airport in the snow.

If the cars on the road were driving just slightly faster at the time, she would not have a fever today, but would be at the hospital after a car crash instead.

Tammy gazed at Avery's haggard yet flushed face and asked, "Why is Elliot marrying Chelsea Tierney?"

"He didn't say," Avery said coldly.

"It doesn't matter anymore."

Tammy wanted to comfort her, but her mind was18 blank.

"Get some sleep, Avery! I'll go check on Layla and Hayden."

"Alright."

Avery was exhausted, but every time she fell asleep she would wake up shortly after.

It was as if a rock was pressing down on her heart and she could barely breathe.

Her lack of sleep was probably the cause behind her neverending fever.

Tammy walked out of the room and went to see the two children.

Hayden was working on a new puzzle in the living room while Layla sat on a stool next to him and watched intently.

Neither of them made a sound and were very well behaved.

It was slightly different than usual.

Tammy watched them for a bit, then broke the silence and said, "Elliot Foster broke up with your mother."

The children's heads immediately shot up and they stared at Tammy at the same time.

Chapter 850

Tammy felt she was being too cruel.

She could have waited until Avery had recovered and let her tell the children about the matter herself, but she could not bring herself to let the children stay in the dark.

"Hayden told me about it this morning, Aunt Tammy."

The moment Layla spoke, her eyes reddened.

"I won't trust Daddy anymore. He's a bad man!"

Tammy pulled Layla into her arms and cooed, "Don't cry, Layla. Even without your father, you still have your Mommy, your brother, and me. We will always love you."

"I'm mad at Daddy for lying to me."

Layla rubbed her eyes, then said, "I'm also mad that he made Mommy sad. Mommy's so upset that she got sick. I can't cry... Mommy would be even sadder if I cried."

Tears were streaming down her face as she said those words.

"I'll try to cry softer..." she sobbed.

Tammy's heart was breaking.

"Let's stop crying after this, sweetie. That dirtbag isn't worth your tears. He could be living his best life in Aryadelle right now!"

Layla felt betrayed, then mumbled, "He was so nice to me. When we went out, he would always carry me because he was worried I'd get tired from walking."

"He was also good to your mother."

Tammy had seen the sweet photos Avery had posted on social media in the past few days.

"However, he's about to marry another woman. The world that adults live in is too complicated and you might not understand it right now. You and your brother just need to focus on growing up well and not let anything else bother you."

Layla pursed her lips in distress.

"How about I take you and your brother out to play, Layla?"

Tammy wanted to take the kids out to get some air.

Layla shook her head and said, "I don't want to go out and I don't want to play. I want to stay home. Mommy's sick. I'll wait until she recovers."

"You're such a good girl, sweetie."

"I'm not as good as Hayden. He knew from the beginning that Daddy was a bad man," Layla said, then glanced at Hayden and added, "I'll listen to Hayden from now on."

Back in Aryadelle, after a night's rest, Elliot called Chelsea to set up a meeting.

An hour later, Chelsea showed up in a black face mask and kept a low profile.

Elliot was sitting on the couch reading the latest issue of a finance magazine.

When Chelsea took a seat on the couch across from him, he casually put down the magazine. He lifted his gaze to look at her.

Chelsea hung her head and did not take off her mask. Her eyes were the same as before, but her gaze was different¹⁸ now. She used to be hardheaded and would not show weakness even if she made a mistake.

However, her low self-esteem could clearly be seen in her eyes.

"Take off your mask," Elliot said.

Chelsea slowly lifted her hand and took off her mask.

When Elliot saw the left side of her face, his gaze instantly stayed fixed on it.

It was pretty much as Ben had said.

Chelsea's face was utterly disfigured.

"Do you hate me, Chelsea?" he asked.

Chelsea did not expect him to say that and was slightly taken aback.

"I don't hate you. I hate Charlie."

"I was the one who started the fire."

Elliot was practically saying that he was the cause behind her disfigurement.

After Chelsea realized what he meant, tears instantly began to stream down her cheeks.

"I know! Someone already told me it was you, but you didn't know that I was staying there at the time. You wanted to kill him, not me."

"If I had a choice, I would want the both of you dead," Elliot said cruelly.

"Don't tell me you think I have feelings for you?"

Chelsea let out an embarrassed chuckle, but her tears did not cease.

"Stop crying," Elliot said in a deep voice.

"If you can't carry out the promise you made to me on the phone, you should know what the consequences will be." Chelsea wiped her tears away and quickly composed herself.

"I know. This is my last chance. If I don't seize it, then I'll kill myself even if you don't."

Chapter 851

"Good."

"I'm not the one who wants to marry you, Elliot." Chelsea thought about it, then decided to clear things up with Elliot.

"Charlie wants to use me to humiliate you. I don't want to get married, let alone have a wedding."

"It doesn't matter anymore," Elliot said casually. Chelsea froze for a moment, then stared at his cold expression and asked,

"About Avery Tate..."

"Just do what you promised, Chelsea. You don't need to bother with my personal matters."

"I can help you explain things to her!" Chelsea offered.

"There's no need for that!" Elliot snapped.

"Don't bother her!"

He knew very well how Avery was feeling at the moment.

She would get mad if anyone mentioned him in front of her now. She would be even more furious if Chelsea was the one to do it.

It was better not to bother her before everything was settled.

Once things were handled, he would go to her and admit his mistakes himself.

Two hours later, the news of Sterling Group's president, Elliot Foster, spending a fortune to marry the daughter of Trust Capital, Chelsea Tierney, made headlines and went viral online.

The news was announced based on Charlie's requests.

Not only did he want the entire world to know that Elliot was marrying Chelsea, but he also wanted it to be known that he was going to spend a fortune doing it.

The news article stated that Elliot would give Chelsea seven hundred and seventy-five million dollars as a token of his love.

The article also reported that not only did Elliot not leave Chelsea after she was disfigured from a fire, but he also wanted to throw her a grand wedding.

Of course, Chelsea would never see a penny of that money as it would be directly deposited into Charlie's account. Charlie was using the wedding to justifiably rob Elliot in broad daylight and make him a laughingstock in the eyes of these public.

This was because photos of Chelsea after her disfigurement were also included in the article.

The moment the news broke, it immediately started a heated discussion in Aryadelle.

[Elliot Foster and Chelsea Tierney? Is there a glitch in my memory? Why was I under the impression that Elliot Foster was dating Avery Tate?]

[Why is Elliot Foster marrying Chelsea Tierney? She looks terrifying after she got disfigured!! I'm not looking down on her, but is Elliot Foster really not afraid of looking at her face?]

[It must be true love, right? Otherwise, I can't understand why someone as rich as Elliot Foster would want to marry a disfigured woman!] [Did Elliot Foster get abducted??]

[I just saw photos of Elliot Foster kissing Avery Tate a few days ago! Now he's marrying Chelsea Tierney? I don't know if he's a dirtbag or a god!] [Could this be some kind of unsolved mystery?! No normal man would choose Chelsea Tierney, right? He even spent $775 million on her... If it were me, I wouldn't even give her seven bucks !]

Over in Bridgedale, Avery's fever finally subsided. She went into the bathroom to take a shower, changed into some clean clothes, then came out of the room.

"Is something wrong with Elliot Foster?! Is marrying Chelsea Tierney something to show off about? It's even making headlines here in Bridgedale! What a f*cking joke!" Tammy roared angrily.

"Is he worried that Avery won't see it? How could he be so cruel?!" Mrs. Cooper noticed Avery walking over and immediately signaled Tammy with her eyes to ask her to stop talking.

When Tammy turned around and saw Avery, she instantly held back her raging emotions.

"Do you feel better now, Avery?" Avery's face was pale, but she nodded her head. She had heard everything that Tammy said just now.

Chapter 852

"Don't look at your phone for a few days, Avery." Tammy could not help but remind her.

" Elliot bought over the news in Bridgedale. It's disgusting."

Avery did not respond. Her fever had subsided, but she was starving after not eating all day. Besides, her throat was dry and she could barely make a sound.

“Have something to eat first, Avery. I’m going to the airport to pick up Mike. He’s about to arrive soon, so I’ll head there now,” Tammy said, then left the house. Mrs. Cooper brought out a bowl of soup and placed it on the table in front of Avery.

After finishing the soup, Avery recovered some of her energy.

“Layla, Hayden.... Why are you staring at me like that?” Avery forced a smile.

“I just caught a cold. I’ll be fine soon.”

“Were you crying in secret, Mommy?” Layla pouted when she saw her mother’s reddened eyes.

“Don’t be sad. You still have me, Hayden, and Robert. We would never leave you.”

“I know that. Which is why my mood is better now that I’ve recovered.” Avery reached out and gently stroked Layla’s hair.

At that moment, Hayden walked over and, without saying a word, quietly hugged Avery. As Avery held a child in each arm, it was as if she could feel her body being filled with energy.

“I wanted to give all of you a complete family, but I realized that there’s no such thing. Our lives are complete as long as we’re happy. Don’t worry about me. I’m happy as long as you’re by my side.”

“I’ll be good from now on, Mommy. I’ll listen to you and Hayden.” Layla took a huge emotional blow this time. What happened had left her young spirit traumatized.

“I’ll take care of Layla, Mommy. Do whatever you want to do from now on and don't worry about us," Hayden said maturely.

Avery was so moved that she took a deep breath and forced herself to hold back her tears. She would have no regrets in this life as long as she managed to raise her children well. Once Tammy picked up Mike from the airport, she gave him a once over and asked, "Are you wearing pajamas?" Mike opened the car door, got into the passenger seat, and fastened his seat belt.

"I was in a rush."

"You're not wearing a jacket. Aren't you cold?" Tammy turned up the heater in the car.

"I'm about to lose my mind with anger thanks to Elliot Foster." Mike was wearing a t-shirt, a pair of casual trousers and a pair of house slippers. He and Chad were living in their perfect little world at home when he received Mrs. Cooper's call. When he went to confront Elliot, his bodyguard had thrown him out, then Chad had sent him straight to the airport.

"How's Avery? She must've cried her eyes out, right?" Mike frowned at the mention of Avery.

"Pretty much! Her eyes are all red and swollen as if her soul left her body. She had a fever for a whole day. It just subsided." Tammy drove the car onto the road, then said, "Elliot Foster is a joke."

"Don't even mention that piece of sh*t!" Mike hissed through gritted teeth.

"Before Avery was with him, she and the kids were perfectly happy. They don't need Elliot Foster at all! Being near him would just bring them bad luck!"

"I think you're right," Tammy said. "Don't say those things in front of Avery, though. She shouldn't be triggered right now."

"I know. Thanks for keeping her company. Your own life's still a mess too..."

Would you call yourselves the unlucky sisters now?"

"Shut your mouth," Tammy said as she fired a glare at him.

"Stay with her from now on. I need to go back to Aryadelle."

"Weren't you going to further your studies here? Why are you suddenly going back?"

"Heh, I'm going back to attend that dirtbag's wedding!" Tammy said cynically.

"Who knows? Maybe I'll get a chance to stand up for Avery."

Mike crossed his arms in front of his chest, then said firmly, "It sounds more like you're going back to see your ex-husband's wedding!"

"I'll go to both their weddings!" Tammy refused to shy away.

"I won't miss out on such a once -in-a-lifetime opportunity to join in on the fun."

"Do you have some kind of misunderstanding toward men? How is marriage a once in a lifetime thing? Both of them are marrying for the second time!"

Mike teased.

"After this, they might divorce again and move on to their third marriage..."

Tammy's jaw dropped. Mike's words might be hurtful, but they were not completely unreasonable.

Chapter 853

"I'm still going back to watch the show. You've seen Chelsea Tierney's messed-up face, right? It's terrifying. Elliot can't be marrying her for love! It must be chaos back in Aryadelle! I want to go back and find out why exactly he's marrying her. That's much more meaningful than furthering my studies!"

They arrived at the house moments later. Mike opened the car door and strode into the living room.

Avery was stacking blocks with Layla. Mike walked over to her side and examined her face.

“What are you doing?” Avery nudged him slightly.

“Isn’t work starting soon? Who told you to come here?”

Mike tutted and said, “I wanted to come so I came. Don’t tell me that the company can’t function without me. I didn’t know I was that important.”

Tammy laughed and said, “Don’t blame him, Avery. He’s still in his pajamas and didn’t even bring a coat. He was obviously in a rush.”

Avery heard that then glanced at Mike and mocked plainly, “It’s not like I died. Can you not be so dramatic?” “I’m not as worried now that I’ve seen you like this,” Mike said.

If she was too sad, she would not have the energy to pick on anybody.

There was a pin-drop silence that night. Avery could not sleep, so she sat at her desk and opened up her laptop. Now that the holidays were over, it was time for her to get back to work. As long as the sky did not fall and she was still alive, life would continue to go on a set course. She needed to quickly get her emotions together. Adrian’s upcoming surgery was no small feat. She had to succeed.

She suddenly recalled how she had woken up in the middle of the night a few nights ago and saw Elliot standing at the desk.

What was he doing at her desk at the time? She remembered that he had hurriedly shoved something into the drawer after she called out to him.

She glanced at the drawer and took up the uppermost folder. The moment she took out the folder and saw the sagging white thread, she went into a trance. Elliot had obviously opened the folder because the white thread was wrapped around it⁹⁴ before.

Avery opened the folder and took out all the documents within.

The documents were all of Adrian's and Shea's medical records. She had depended on her own memory to reproduce Shea's records.

What was certain was the fact that Elliot had seen the files in the folder, Avery just did not know how much of it he saw.

She lowered her gaze and let out a heavy sigh.

It did not matter whether or not he saw the documents or how much he saw.

He was already back in Aryadelle and about to marry Chelsea. He did not care at all what Avery was doing or thinking.

Why should she go through the pain of thinking about him?

Avery flipped through the documents once, then put them down in frustration.

Then, she turned to her laptop and searched Elliot's name online.

News about Elliot very quickly appeared before her eyes.

The keywords on the headlines showed up in bold, red font.

[775 million-dollar marriage.]

[Disfigured but not left behind.]

[True love conquers all!]

Avery violently slammed her laptop shut!

Chapter 854

Back in Aryadelle, once news broke on Elliot Foster and Chelsea Tierney's impending nuptials, details regarding their wedding also began to spread far and wide. Everything from the wedding venue and the number of guests, to the dinner menu, wedding favors, and the bride's jewelry were all made public online. This grand, upcoming wedding was the pride and joy of the Tierney family.

Wanda, who had once mocked Charlie at the hospital, could not help but give him a call when she read about the shocking news, "You sure are treacherous, Charlie Tierney!" She was slightly angry.

"You were the one who took the box's contents, weren't you? That should've been mine!"

If Charlie had not taken the box's contents away, the person threatening Elliot right now would be her!

The seven hundred and seventy-five million dollars should also be in her pockets!

"Would you like to attend my sister and Elliot Foster's wedding, Wanda? Let's talk face-to face about the question you just asked!" Charlie let out a maniacal laugh.

"I'll entertain you well if you have the guts to show up. I'll even ask my new brother-in-law to go easy on you."

Of course Wanda wanted to watch Elliot marry Chelsea.

The reason this news managed to rock the world was not only because of Elliot's status but more so because he was marrying a hideous monster! How could she not want to watch that with her own eyes? However, Wanda was afraid to die. She was cooped up hiding away in Bridgedale, but at least Elliot could not kill her.

"You sure have guts, Charlie Tierney. If I were you, I wouldn't be able to threaten Elliot Foster this directly." Wanda hesitated for a moment, then asked, "Aren't you afraid he'd kill you?"

"Ha ha ha! Didn't he almost kill me once? When it comes to someone who uses cruel tactics like Elliot Foster, the only way to have a chance against him is to be even more cruel," Charlie said, sharing his experience.

"Now that I have something on him, I'll ruin him if he lays a finger on me!"

"I see. In that case, you better hide what you found well. If he ever gets it back, you're dead meat," Wanda warned.

"Of course, I'll keep it safe." Charlie snickered menacingly.

"To be honest, I don't even have it with me. If Elliot kills me, then my subordinate will immediately make his scandaled public!"

"You gave it to your subordinate? Aren't you afraid they'd betray you?"

Wanda did not expect Charlie to tell her this much,

"Since I did it, then, of course I'm not afraid. That's because I have another subordinate holding this subordinate's family hostage. If he betrays me, then my other subordinate will kall his entire family. Isn't this kind of mutually restrained relationship so beautiful?" Charlie chuckled excitedly at his ownie scheming.

Wanda wanted to ask what happens if both his subordinates betrayed him, but she calmed herself down and did not say it. Ordinary people would not take such a big risk. There was a knock on the door and Charlie hung up the phone then walked over to the door and opened it.

Chelsea was standing in the doorway with a long face.

"Can I choose my own makeup and hairstyle for the wedding, Charlie?"

Charlie gazed at her face, then said bluntly, "Of course not. Didn't I already tell you? You're just a pawn for me to humiliate Elliot Foster right now. How could a pawn have its own thoughts and opinions?"

"Aren't I humiliating the Tierney name at the same time?" Chelsea retorted.

"It isn't the same. You're not my biological sister. You're humiliating your own mother. From the moment you were born, you never had the right to be the Tierney heir. You can never represent the Tierney family," Charlie said heartlessly.

"How can I turn Elliot into a laughing stock if I don't show off your ugly face?"

Ha ha ha ha!” Chelsea clenched her fists, then turned and walked away. She had heard Charlie’s entire phone conversation in the room just now.

He said that the stuff was with his subordinate.

Chelsea grinned lightly. Some people were killed by their own stupidity, while others were killed by their own arrogance.

Charlie was not stupid, but he was insanely arrogant. The moment he had a taste of power, he immediately treated everyone around him as fools!

Chelsea swore that she would do whatever it took to get the Tierney fortune back!

Chapter 855

Chelsea never used to care about the Tierney fortune. She only wanted to be respected and recognized by her family.

Now, however, she did not need anybody’s respect. She only wanted the entire Tierney fortune in her hands!

It was the first day of work over at Sterling Group.

Nobody expected Elliot, who was about to be married, to show up at the office first thing in the morning.

However, he stayed in his office the entire time and did not step out even once.

The vice president and the Chief Financial Officers were the ones who distributed that year’s annual bonuses. Of course, the employees would not let go of this opportunity to find out the truth behind the gossip

“Is Mr. Foster really marrying Chelsea Tierney, Sir? Why is he doing this?”

The vice president was distressed.

“I really don’t know anything about this. How about you ask Mr. Schaffer?”

“How would I know anything about the boss’s personal life?” Ben said with a comical expression on his face.

"I only found out after the news broke myself. If you really want to know, you can go to his office and ask him in person!"

The employees waved their hands in the air in refusal.

"You're close friends with the boss, right, Mr. Schaffer? Won't you help him out?"

"I know you're concerned for the boss, but you shouldn't be this pessimistic," Ben said.

"People can get legally married, but they can get divorced, too!" Looks of shock instantly appeared on everyone's faces. Once they were done distributing the bonuses, the vice president pulled Ben aside and asked, "When is Mr. Foster getting a divorce?"

"He isn't even married yet," Ben said.

"How am I supposed to know when he's getting divorced?"

"I thought Mr. Foster told you about his plan!"

"What plan? Why didn't I know he had a plan?"

"Isn't Mr. Foster marrying Chelsea Tierney so we could get into business with Trust Capital?" Ben did not know whether to laugh or cry.

"Even if we do work with Trust Capital, they'd be the ones using us to make more money! Also, the seven hundred and seventy-five dollars was exaggerated in the news. It's already been wired over to Charlie Tierney."

"It looks like Charlie Tierney's really got something on Mr. Foster."

Ben did not comment on that, but said, "It's too bad someone won't sympathize with him because of that."

"Who are you talking about?" asked the vice president, confused. Ben raised his brows but did not say anything.

“Oh! You mean Avery Tate, right?” The vice president understood him.

“If Avery Tate was marrying another man, I doubt Mr. Foster would be able to respect her choice and silently wait for her. I’ll change my last name if he doesn’t murder thatcb man.” Ben had no retort.

Over in Bridgedale, Layla was lying in bed in the children’s room. Her eyes were wide open as she mumbled, “I don’t believe that Daddy is a bad man, Hayden... He didn’t blame me when I lost his stuff last time...”

Layla’s words struck Hayden like an electric shock.

A lightbulb lit up in his mind. Could Elliot’s sudden decision to marry Chelsea Tierney have something to do with the thing that the Tierneys took away?

Hayden despised Elliot but seeing how his actions hurt his mother and sister made him feel very upset.

Was his scandal not just the fact that he had a psychological illness? Elliot was such a proud man and so afraid of people finding out about this that he ended up getting controlled by the Tierneys because of this. Hayden did not want to get involved in his business, but he simply could not accept how arrogantly the Tierneys were behaving!

Chapter 856

It was eight at night in Aryadelle when a social media post exploded online. It was a status update on Charlie Tierney’s private account.

The post read: (Elliot Foster has a psychological disorder.)

It was a short post, but it was enough to leave everyone in horror.

The status was posted on a private account, but online users very quickly used the information from the post to find out that the account belonged to Charlie Tierney.

Elliot Foster was about to get married to Charlie Tierney’s sister, Chelsea Tierney. Since he revealed such appalling news online during such a crucial moment, was the wedding still happening?

After the post went viral, Charlie's friends called him and told him about the news. Charlie's clenched his teeth and hissed, "I haven't been on social media in forever! I didn't post anything online!"

Then, he logged into the account that he had left alone for years and saw the shocking status update.

Charlie's blood boiled as he stared at the post and his mind turned into a chaotic mess.

Who did this?

Who was the one who logged into his social media account and announced this secret online? Charlie immediately deleted the post, then posted an explanation: (My account was hacked. I was not the one who posted the previous update. A police report has been made!)

After he posted the status, he immediately called the police.

However, it was already too late.

His status update had already been screenshotted and spread all over the internet... When Elliot saw the post, his deep-set eyes were filled with disbelief.

If Charlie was not drunk out of his mind and lost all of his reason, he would never have the guts to announce such a thing online.

This secret was Charlie's bargaining chip against Elliot. Now that Charlie had exposed him, Elliot no longer had to endure his threats. His phone rang soon after. It was Charlie.

The moment Elliot answered the phone, Charlie frantically rambled, "I wasn't the one who posted that status, Elliot! My account was hacked! The website can prove my innocence! Also, I've already called the police. I've bribed all the news outlets and I'll clear this whole thing up! Don't worry about getting affected by this! I'll deal with this!"

Charlie was worried that Elliot would beat him at his own game.

After all, the news that Elliot suffered from a psychological disorder had now spread across the country.

This matter might affect Elliot's reputation, but it won't affect his position as the head of Sterling Group. Charlie knew that Elliot had killed his own father, but he had no proof. As long as he had no proof, Elliot could sue him for defamation. Charlie was not willing to take that risk.

"How much patience do you think I have left, Tierney?" Elliot asked hoarsely.

Charlie's face flushed as he said, "It really wasn't me! Wouldn't I be embarrassing myself if I did that?"

"Who else did you tell about this?" Elliot asked casually.

Charlie pondered quickly, then answered, "Chelsea! I've only told Chelsea about it! It must've been her! She doesn't want to marry you because she doesn't want to be ridiculed! She hacked into my account and posted that status to pit us against each other! Don't worry, though. She has no proof! She can talk her mouth off but nobody will believe her!"

Elliot listened to Charlie's words and pondered silently. Chelsea did not do this.

She had a secret arrangement with him.

Chelsea would get back what was Elliot's from Charlie, and Elliot would help her get the Tierney fortune. At that moment, Elliot's office doors burst open and Chad strode in.

Chapter 857

"I just called Mike, Sir. He said he wasn't the one who hacked into Charlie Tierney's account." Chad adjusted his glasses, then continued, "He said it was Hayden.”

Elliot covered the microphone on his phone, then hung up. It was Hayden It was not surprising! Hayden knew the entire time that Layla was the one who took the box, so he must have already known about the box’s contents. He suddenly recalled that the reason why he almost strangled Hayden to death was that Hayden had said that he was sick. He did not think about why Hayden would say such a thing at the time.

Now that he thought about it, he was a complete idiot! Hayden had known about Elliot’s secret this entire time. Even if Elliot never laid a finger on Hayden back then, Hayden would still never acknowledge Elliot as his father! Hayden looked down on him!

Otherwise, he would not have hacked into Charlie’s account and nonchalantly reveal Elliot’s secret to the public.

“Hayden was just playing a prank, Sir.” Chad only knew that Hayden was behind this, but he did not know why he would say something like that.

“It’s not a prank,” Elliot said with certainty.

“He did it on purpose.”

“Even so, you shouldn’t hold it against him. He’s just a child, after all.

Besides, he probably did it to stand up for his mother.” Chad was guessing from Hayden’s point of view.

Elliot shut his laptop, then walked around from behind his desk.

When he arrived next to Chad, he said in a low voice, “Go home!”

Hayden did what he did to tell Elliot that he knew about everything.

He never took Elliot seriously before, and that was still the case. He could easily make Elliot’s fear public and not be afraid of Elliot taking revenge on him.

Of course Elliot would not be upset with Hayden. It was just as Chad said, Hayden did this to stand up for his mother. The thought of Avery's wrong expression made Elliot feel like punching himself. Once Elliot left, Chad was in a daze.

Elliot's reaction seemed overly calm.

It was fine if he was not mad at Hayden for saying he had a psychological disorder, but how could he be so calm with the news going viral online?

Over in Bridgedale, Mike glanced over at Hayden a few times over breakfast.

Hayden ignored him, finished his breakfast, then returned to his room.

Moments later, Avery's phone rang. Mrs. Cooper handed Avery her phone and said, "It's Tammy."

Avery immediately answered the call.

"I've got huge news, Avery! Elliot has a psychological disorder!" Tammy did not expect to run into such explosive news when she had just returned to Aryadelle.

"I'm not the one saying this! It was Charlie Tierney! He said his account was hacked and that it's not true, though."

The tone and content of Tammy's words took Avery's emotions on a roller coaster ride. She was mortified.

"Nobody believes Charlie Tierney's explanation. Everyone thinks Elliot really is sick. Otherwise, he wouldn't marry Chelsea Tierney. I read some theories online and I think they're right!"

It had been a while since Tammy felt such excitement. Maybe seeing others suffering more than she was made her look less pitiful.

"Did you hear what I just said, Avery?" When Tammy noticed Avery's silence, her own emotions began to gradually calm down.

“Don’t tell me you already knew about this? I won’t laugh at him if he really is sick. I’m just shocked!”

“I don’t know about his business,” Avery said.

“Oh, you scared me!” Tammy felt relieved.

“He hasn’t responded since the news broke. Do you think he could actually be sick?”

Chapter 858

Avery pondered for a few seconds, then responded coldly, “I don’t care.”

Tammy could feel Avery’s resolution toward Elliot from her tone. She was right. Nothing that happened to Elliot right now was worth Avery’s sympathy. All the gossip about Elliot completely disappeared from the internet overnight. People might not be able to discuss the matter online, but everyone was still talking about it in private.

“I think there’s something abnormal about Mr. Foster too,” said one of the employees at Sterling Group.

“I think he might not even be from this world. He could be an alien from another planet. Nothing else would explain how he’s so outstanding at such a young age.” Everyone burst into laughter.

“I think that even if Mr. Foster had a psychological disorder, it’s not something that would make him go on a killing frenzy. I’ve been working here for a long time and I’ve never heard any negative press about him. Our company has the highest yearly salary increment in the industry. You can’t find anything wrong with such a great boss!”

“That’s right! I think Charlie Tierney was trying to spoil Mr. Foster’s reputation on purpose! Saying that someone hacked into his account was just a lame excuse!”

Ben heard the discussion when he walked by the pantry, then strode over to Elliot's office. He burst into the room without knocking.

Elliot was quietly sitting at his desk with his eyes fixed on his laptop, but it was obvious that he was not paying attention to the screen at all.

"Why aren't you taking a break at home?" Ben took a seat across from him and examined him.

"It's working hours right now," Elliot responded without emotion.

"The news online is true, right?" From the moment the news broke to it now being common knowledge, Ben had a strong hunch.

"Charlie was holding this over your head, wasn't he?" Elliot confirmed blandly. Ben's face turned pale.

"Of all the years we've known each other, why did you never say anything about this, Elliot? What a joke. How could I possibly not know if you really have a psychological disorder?"

"You said the same thing back then," Elliot said. Ben froze for a moment, then immediately understood what he meant. He was talking about Shea.

Before Shea was introduced, nobody around Elliot knew of her existence.

"It's an old illness, right? You're fine now, right?" Ben still refused to believe that this was true.

"You get a medical checkup every year. Weren't the results always pretty good?"

"What does it matter if it was before or now?" Elliot glanced coldly at Ben.

People who simply wanted to join in on the fun would not care about any of this. A short post about Elliot Foster suffering from a psychological disorder was enough for them to have the time of their lives!

"Now that this matter has been exposed, there's no reason for you to marry Chelsea anymore," Ben said resolutely.

“Cancel the wedding and make the Tierneys return the money!”

Elliot shook his head and said, “The show has just begun.”

“What show? What are you planning, Elliot? If you really marry Chelsea, Avery won’t ever forgive you!” Ben exclaimed emotionally.

“Do you think I’m still hoping she’ll love me the way I am right now?” Elliot said as he broke into a bitter smile.

While the news of his scandal was going viral, he saw Eric Santos upload a series of photos on his social media account.

They were photos of him skiing with Avery, Layla, and Hayden. Elliot could see Avery’s smiling face through the protective goggles. She and Eric were a good match.

“She’s a doctor. How could she possibly abandon you just because you’re sick?” Ben said.

” Besides, your illness doesn’t affect your daily life at all. If Charlie hadn’t revealed your illness...

“Hayden was the one who leaked it. He’s known about it this entire time.”

Chapter 859

“Then. What does Avery think.” Ben hesitated for a moment before asking this question Brause the answer was already clearly written on Elliot’s face.

Elhot took out a cigarette and lit it up.

“Don’t smoke so much, Elliot,” Ben noticed the new lighter in Elliot’s hand and guessed that he hai probably smoked a lot in the past few days.

“I didn’t want to embarrass the children,” Elliot said as his bloodshot eyes glistened with deep hatred.

“I want Charlie Tierney to die a horrible death!” When he said that he did not want to embarrass the children, Ben instantly understood what he was feeling Layla and Hayden were already attending school. They were no longer three-year-olds.

They could find out about any of society's trending news from their classmates and teachers. If things got blown out of proportion, would their classmates view them differently? Would they also think that Layla and Hayden were abnormal? Over in Bridgedale, Eric took Avery and the twins out skiing.

Avery did not feel like going out, but since the children wanted to go, she had to agree to it. She was not very good at skiing, so Eric guided her the entire time.

Experiencing new things could indeed make a person temporarily forget their troubles.

After spending the entire day out, Avery was completely out of energy and had no strength left to think too much.

"Thanks for today, Eric!" Mike said.

"Did you post the photos up on social media to try to p*ss someone off?"

"I just wanted to share my daily life with my fans," Eric responded. Mike especially liked this abouted Eric. No matter what little things he was doing in secret, he could always act as if he had nothing to hide.

After dinner, Avery returned to her room and took a shower.

When she walked out of the bathroom after her shower, she noticed Mike standing inside her room.

"Do you think it's appropriate for a man to be in a woman's room like this?"

Avery threw on a cardigan, then said, "You're beginning to cross too many boundaries."

"Aren't you always barging into my room without knocking?" Mike took a seat on the chair by the desk, then said straightforwardly, "I'm guessing you already know about what's happening in Aryadelle, Avery. I bet Tammy already told you about it, right?"

"Did you wait around here just to ask me that?" Avery sat down on the bed with eyes cold as ice.

Mike scratched his head and said, "Actually, I already knew about this a long time ago. I didn't tell you since it was Elliot's private matter. I couldn't just blurt that stuff out, right?"

"He told you he's sick and you believed him?" Mike was confused by her words.

"What do you mean? Are you saying he lied to me?"

"Do you think he looks like someone with a psychological disorder?" After hearing about this from Tammy, Avery thoroughly recalled all the moments she had spent withcb Elliot.

Elliot did not have the best temper, but there were no serious issues with the way he did things and treated people. He had his own way of dealing with the world. As long as things went his way, he would not simply hurt anybody.

Mike was stunned.

"Of course, I don't think he looks sick! Maybe he had a disorder once and got cured later."

"Why use the past to torment others?" Avery retorted.

"If he could tell you about his past illness, then why couldn't he tell me about it? If he thinks that breaking up with me is for my own good, then fine. I won't ever get involved with him again!"

Mike walked over to her and patted her on the back.

Chapter 860

Mike held Avery in his arms and comforted her in a low voice.

"Men and women have different ways of thinking. He must have been afraid that this would affect you and the children. He was wrong to assume your ability to handle these things.”

“I don’t want to know what he was thinking because he has never told me how he truly felt,” Avery sobbed, “I would be a joke if I always had to depend on others, or the news, to find out what he was going through! I can’t sympathize with him! Even if he died from a sickness right now, I still won’t feel bad for him!”

“Don’t cry, Avery.” Mike had a mountain of things he wanted to say to console her, but they never escaped his lips,

Love was not something that could be explained with a few sentences.

Elliot was threatened into having to marry a disfigured Chelsea and become a laughing stock. He had spent the first half of his life in glory and never had to experience this type of humiliation

However, what did Avery ever do wrong? Avery got tired from all the crying and fell asleep. She did not dream that night and had a fairly good night’s sleep. When she woke up the next morning, she was in good spirits apart from her slightly puffy eyes.

Today was the day of Adrian White’s surgery.

Avery made her way to the hospital at ten in the morning.

“Are you alright, Doctor Tate?” Adrian’s father, Nathan White, asked as he gazed at her with shrewd eyes.

“Your issues with Elliot Foster won’t affect the surgery, right?”

Avery did not expect Nathan to say such things.

Her relationship with Elliot had never completely been made public, but Nathan seemed to know quite a bit about it.

“Mr. White, I would be honest with you if I was not feeling well and not fit to perform surgery. Since I'm here, it means I'm fine," Avery explained clearly as she stared at Nathan's face.

For some reason, once again, looking at him in such close proximity made her feel a peculiar sense of familiarity.

"I'm sorry. I was not doubting you. I just don't think Elliot Foster should treat you like this." Nathan smiled softly.

"That's between him and me, Mr. White," Avery said in astonishment.

"Do you perhaps know him well?"

Nathan shook his head with a grin and said, "How could I possibly know a bigshot like him? I'm just an ordinary businessman. I'm afraid my annual income isn't even as much as how much he makes in a day!"

His teasing came with a hint of mockery and made Avery feel extremely uneasy. She could not help but feel like his words carried a strange vendetta against Elliot.

"You should go and check on Adrian, Doctor Tate! The doctor gave him a checkup and said he was fit for surgery," Nathan said after holding back his emotions. Before Avery walked into the patient's room, she glanced at the man and woman standing behind Nathan

The woman was Adrian's sister whom she had met before. However, this was the first time she had seen the man standing next to her.

"This is Adrian's brother, Doctor Tate. He's normally quite busy, so you haven't met him before. Since today's the day of Adrian's big surgery, our whole family came to support him," explained Nathan.

"I see. Is your wife not here today?" Avery could not help but ask. She typically did not care much about her patient's family's private matters, but Nathan made her uncomfortable and she had to ask.

“We’re divorced.”

“I’m sorry.” Avery’s curiosity came to an end. Once the conversation was over, she entered the patient’s room. After she looked through Adrian’s vitals and test results that day, she pulled out her phone and checked the time.

She was not sure how long the surgery would take. What she could confirm was that, by the time the surgery was over, Elliot and Chelsea’s wedding should already be nearing its end.

They had announced the news of their engagement a few days ago, and could not wait to hold the wedding. It did not matter if Elliot wanted this wedding or not.

Today, he was about to become someone else’s groom! Avery pursed her lips, then pressed down on her phone’s power button until the screen turned dark.

Chapter 861

Back in Aryadelle, it was the day of Elliot Foster and Chelsea Tierney’s wedding.

Charlie was welcoming guests at the hotel’s entrance along with Chelsea’s mother.

Everything was going according to Charlie’s plan without a hitch.

The first reason Charlie wanted Elliot to marry Chelsea was to humiliate Elliot. The second reason was that he wanted the whole world to know that there was a marriage between the Tierneys and the Fosters, and that the Tierneys would have the Foster family’s support in the future.

As long as Charlie had his bargaining chip firmly in his grasp, nothing bad would happen.

Tammy entered the banquet hall and immediately spotted Jun in the crowd.

He was standing with Ben. They were chatting away happily in a relaxed manner.

Tammy picked up a glass of champagne and found a noticeable spot to sit down.

Very quickly, Ben saw her and informed Jun of her presence. Jun saw that she was sitting by herself, then walked in her direction.

Tammy felt uncomfortable when she saw him approaching her.

She wanted to talk to him, but she did not know what to say.

“Didn’t you get a new boyfriend? Why didn’t you bring him along?” Jun snickered as he stood still next to her.

Tammy did not expect him to speak so cruelly, so she retorted, “Aren’t you about to get married? Why don’t I see your fiance around?”

“Since you want to meet her, I’ll go get her to come and say hello,” Jun said, then walked toward a group of women who were dressed to the nines.

Tammy was speechless. Jun actually brought his fiance along with him!

Ha! If she knew this would happen, she would have brought a date no matter what.

Within the next minute, Jun led an elegant woman over to Tammy.

“Hello, Tammy. I’m...”

Just as Jun’s fiance was about to introduce herself, Tammy slammed her glass on the table, grabbed her purse, and stormed off!

Jun did not expect Tammy to be such a sore loser!

She had escaped under the watchful eyes of the crowd without any regard for etiquette or grace. Her actions were completely different from what he had imagined.

“How could Tammy handle such a blow? You might be divorced, but there’s no reason for you to come up with ways to anger her.”

Jun was still furious.

“Let’s see if she’ll have the guts to attend my wedding.”

“Don’t you think she came back just so she could go to your wedding?” Ben teased.

“She just attended this one while she was atcb it.”

“I just get so angry whenever I see her.” Jun threw back his drink in one gulp.

“She’s such good friends with Avery. Why can’t she learn a thing or two from her?”

“Avery’s probably feeling about the same as you right now. She must be livid that Elliot’s getting married today,” Ben said.

Jun lowered his voice and said, “We don’t even know for sure if this wedding is actually happening yet. The hotel’s surrounded by bodyguards.”

“Maybe Charlie hired them.”

“I asked around, and there are indeed bodyguards that Charlie hired out there, but most of them were hired by Elliot,” Jun said, then paused for a moment and added, “Things might get rowdy here later. It’s a good thing I chased Tammy off.”

Ben tutted, then sighed and said, “Look at you go. Don’t tell me you’re waiting for Tammy to show up and fight for you on April Fool’s Day?”

Jun crossed his fingers and said, “That’s what I’m betting on. If she doesn’t come, then I’ll really move on with another woman.”

When the clock struck noon and the ceremony was supposed to begin, neither the bride or groom were anywhere to be found.

Chapter 862

Charlie called Elliot, but there was no answer on the phone. On the other hand, Chelsea picked up when he called her. However, her tone was nonchalant as she said, "Hey, Charlie. Have the guests arrived?"

"Chelsea Tierney! What the h*ll are you playing at?! Do you have any idea what time it is? Did Elliot not pick you up? I call him, but he's not answering! Is he regretting this now?!"

Charlie spent the entire morning greeting and entertaining guests, so he was rather tired at the moment. When neither Elliot nor Chelsea showed up, he completely lost control of his emotions.

"Elliot didn't call me, so I'm not too sure what's happening right now."

Chelsea's tone was soft and demure, which was different from her humble demeanor from before.

"I'm still getting my hair done! I wasn't happy with the hair and makeup you chose, so I asked the stylist to redo everything."

Charlie's lips twisted into a snarl as he snapped, "Don't think you're Mrs. Foster now and can act so insolently in front of me, Chelsea!"

"Even if we hold the wedding today, I still wouldn't be Mrs. Foster," Chelsea reminded Charlie.

"It's not like we're getting a wedding license. How would that make me Mrs. Foster?"

"How dare you use this tone with me, then?!" Charlie held his phone and walked out of the banquet hall.

"Who gave your permission to change the hair and makeup? I wanted everyone to clearly see how hideous you are!"

"You used to be so nice to me before I was disfigured, Charlie," Chelsea sighed, "I know you still care about me. If I turned back to how I used to look,

I'm sure you'll still love me."

"Shut up!" Charlie snapped, then huffed heavily but was unable to say another word.

Chelsea was right. He could not accept how ugly she had become now, so he had split the current Chelsea and the old Chelsea into two different people in his mind.

"Is my mother next to you, Charlie? I'd like to talk to her about something."

Chelsea's tone suddenly turned serious.

"Why are you looking for her? She might not want to speak to you!" Charlie said but headed back into the banquet hall anyway.

"Won't she take the call if you asked her to? You might not be her biological son, but she definitely treats you like that!" Chelsea mocked. Moments later, Charlie handed the phone over to Jeanette

"What the hell are you doing, Chelsea?! All of the guests are waiting for the two of you!"

Jeanette snapped angrily the moment she took over the phone.

"Hey, Mom. What do you think will happen to you if Dad died? What would you do if he gave me the entire Tierney fortune before he died?" Chelsea said, then let out a hearty guffaw and added, "Would you beg on your knees for my forgiveness?"

Jeanette's exquisitely made-up face instantly twisted into a scowl. "What crazy nonsense are you spouting right now?!"

"Dad's dead. He just died this morning. It was a peaceful death." Chelsea's laughter turned more and more sinister.

"Before he died, he found his conscience and made the lawyer change his will. He left his entire estate to me! Ha ha ha ha!"

Jeanette suddenly fell back and bumped into Charlie's arms.

"Charlie Tierney is nothing now, Mom! He's no longer the Tierney heir. He's just a penniless piece of trash! He isn't even your biological son! I, your biological daughter, am the one who inherited the Tierney fortune!" Charlie heard every single word of this part of Chelsea's speech through the phone. He snatched the phone open and shrieked at the top of his lungs, "Chelsea! Say that again! Repeat whatever you just said again!"

"It's such a shame to talk about it over the phone! I'll come and see you at the hotel once I'm done with my hair and makeup," Chelsea said.

"It's our father's funeral today, after all. How could I possibly be absent from that?"

The color drained from Charlie's face. "Dad's dead? You killed him?"

Chelsea let out a chilling snicker, then hung up the phone. Hearing the undisguised arrogance in her laugh, Charlie realized something had happened and his back instantly broke into a sweat!

He called his subordinate, but there was no answer. He called his other subordinate, but there was no answer either! Both of these subordinates had already met their deaths and were swimming in pools of their own blood.

Chapter 863

While Charlie and Jeanette were busy welcoming guests at the hotel that morning, Elliot's personal team of bodyguards and manned helicopters surrounded the entire Tierney Villa

Charlie's subordinates had never in their lives encountered such a terrifying battle.

All it took was the time for Elliot to finish one cigarette in the living room for his bodyguards to get back what was his!

This top-secret plan was devised after Chelsea heard Charlie's phone conversation about how he had left his bargaining chip against Elliot with one of his subordinates.

Once Elliot retrieved his belonging, he left.

Chelsea knew that today was probably the last time they would ever meet again in their lives. He did not belong to her, not before, not now, and now ever. She never received love from Elliot, but she learned how to be ruthless and cruel! Over at the hotel, Ben received a phone call, then said to his comrades, "Elliot isn't coming. You can all leave now!"

"Huh? Can we at least stay for lunch?" Jun was hungry.

"There've been some changes in the Tierney family," Ben whispered.

"You should leave if you don't want to get caught up in the mess."

"What about you?" Jun decided to leave immediately. He wanted to stay and watch the show, but his life was more important.

"I'm not afraid to die, so I'm staying to watch the fun." Ben did not expect Chelsea to be this ambitious, so he wanted to see for himself if she was able to snatch the inheritance away from Charlie.

Jun dragged Chad out and left.

When the two of them walked out of the hotel, they decided at the same time to go to the Foster mansion.

Elliot probably already dealt with his situation. Otherwise, the wedding would not have been canceled.

When they walked out, they saw Charlie frantically running around in circles at the doors to the banquet hall in a nervous frenzy. He actually thought that he had a chance against Elliotie Foster! He should have weighed up himself and the situation before acting so arrogantly.

In the living room at the Foster mansion, Mrs. Scarlet had followed Elliot's instructions and lit up the fireplace.

Once the fire was lit, Elliot opened up a heavily folded piece of paper, glanced at it once, then tossed it into the fire.

The flames instantly engulfed the piece of paper and turned it into ash. Mrs. Scarlet stood silently on the side, afraid to say a word.

"Do you know what this is?" Elliot said suddenly, breaking the silence. Mrs. Scarlet looked at the CD in his hand, then shook her head.

"It's a recording of my father's funeral. I take it out and watch it every year on his death anniversary," Elliot said hoarsely, then loosened his grip and allowed the CD to fall into the fireplace.

"I was the one who killed him. You probably still remember that,cb right?" Mrs. Scarlet's expression changed drastically.

"I don't remember anything, Master Elliot! That's all in the past. You should focus on the future. You should've burned all of these things a long time ago. You shouldn't let anything chain you down!"

"You were the person that my mother trusted the most. It's only natural that you don't blame me." Elliot smiled as he watched the CD being destroyed by the flames.

"If I got another chance, I'll kill him myself all over again. He was a monster, but I'm an even more terrifying monster than he was."

Over in Bridgedale, Avery walked into the bathroom and splashed her face with cold water after a long surgery. She turned her phone back on and planned on getting Mike to come and pick her up.

However, her phone blew up with notifications the moment she turned it on!

It read, 'Avery, give me one last chance!' She took a deep breath and put the phone down. One last chance! These three words made her heartstrings tense. She was reminded of Tammy's tears.

When Tammy said she wanted a divorce back then, she was so determined ! Leaving Arydelle after the separation – it was just as decisive. But Jun's remarriage had broken her.

Who didn't want to be a cool person?

If there was something in this world that could drive people crazy, it would be love. Elliot came out of the Starry River Villa, turned on his mobile phone, and swiped through his messaging app.

Avery hadn't replied.

He got an intuition that Avery must have seen his message. Though she had not responded, he wasn't anxious.

Nothing would be a threat to him in the future. He was confident in patiently moving his chess pieces. He was certain that he was able to wait. The next day, Tammy came to the Starry River Villa. She was carrying bags of snacks and gifts. Mrs. Cooper said with a smile, "This feels good. This feels like the heydays."

Avery saw that the expression on Tammy's face was rigid. She said, "Tammy, come and see Robert! He scratched his face twice last night. Now he looks like a kitten."

Tammy followed Avery to the crib. When she saw Robert, she burst into laughter.

"My little darling! Why do you have one mark on each side of your face? It's so symmetrical! You've truly become a cute little kitten.ed Haha!"

"His nails certainly weren't that long." Avery was puzzled.

“Maybe he thinks that his little face was a little chubby and it was fun to pull his cheeks! Haha!” Tammy poked Robert’s cheek with her fingers.

Robert stared at Tammy with his big eyes. This melted Tammy’s heart.

“Avery, don’t you think your son looks exactly like Elliot? Are you sure you don’t think of Elliot when you look at him every day?” Tammy sat down on the couch beside the crib. Avery said, “Indeed, that is quite a bother.”

“This baby is so cute! One look at Robert and my maternal love is all flooding back! If I were you, I’m afraid I won’t even want to go to work.”

Avery was afraid that she would think about her infertility if she continued to talk. So she changed the subject.

“Tammy, let’s go shopping! I’m going to work tomorrow and I want to buy some new clothes. By the way, I’ll get some for my kids too.”

“Cool! It just so happens that I have to buy some new dresses as well. When I attend Jun’s wedding, I’ll make sure that I’m all dressed up.” After Tammy got up, she teased Robert again, “Little baby, Auntie Tammy will come back later to play with you!”

When she got to the door, Tammy suddenly thought of Layla. “Aren’t Layla and Hayden supposed to be at home this Sunday?”

Avery answered, “Eric took both of them out.”

“It’s so nice of Eric to help you take care of your kids when he has the time.”

Tammy was envious.

“If only I were one of your kids.”

“Your dad and mom will be so sad if they hear this.” Avery said, “Although I don’t see them often, I can feel that they love you very much. Don’t be so greedy!”

“I know, I know. Other than the downside in my relationship, I am pretty grateful in other aspects of my life.”

“The future still has a long way to go! The man who will be by your side in the future – he’ll love you more than Jun. That’s for sure.”

“You have such a sweet tongue.” Tammy took her arm, “Let me be your chauffeur!”

“You cool with high heels?”

“No trouble at all. Even if they were 4 inches tall.” The two went shopping in the downtown business district.

After filling the trunk with the spoils, they went restaurant hunting. Tammy started the engine and looked for restaurants everywhere.

Chapter 865

Tammy: [I don’t blame Elliot, Avery. What happened to me had nothing to do with him. Besides, he wouldn’t have been able to retrieve his bargaining chip if it weren’t for Chelsea’s help this time. I can understand that.]

Avery: [Sometimes, being too understanding makes it easier for you to be wronged.]

Tammy: [Do you know why I’ve come around? It’s not that I’m that forgiving, but it’s because Chelsea’s now disfigured. Her face will never recover. She has to spend the rest of her life with that hideous face. If I became like that, I’m afraid I wouldn’t be able to live for another second longer. She won’t be any better off than we were before.]

Avery: [He who is unjust is doomed to destruction.]

Tammy: [That’s right! Ben texted me just now and told me I must attend Jun’s wedding. What do you think he meant by that?]

Avery: [Do you want to go? Go if you do, don’t go if you don’t. Don’t get influenced by him.]

Tammy: [I wanted to go at first, but I got so mad today that I don't feel like going anymore.]

Avery: [Don't make a decision yet, then. Think about it again once you've calmed down.]

Tammy: [Okay. When are you coming back, Avery? Hayden and Layla need to go back to school soon, right?]

Avery: [Yeah, I'll decide after checking on the patient's post-op recovery. I'll get Mike to take the kids back first. We can't affect their studies.] Tammy: [Let me know once you've decided when to come back, then.]

Avery: [I will.]

Avery put her phone down, then reached up and rubbed her tired eyes.

"Who were you texting? What's with that stern look on your face?" Mike teased.

"It was Tammy. Who else do you think it could be?" Avery shut her eyes, then leaned back on the seat and rested.

"I see. Has Elliot contacted you yet?" Mike asked noisily.

"He didn't really betray you this time, right? He didn't marry Chelsea, but he was being threatened instead. You know the reason behind it,ed too..."

"Who told you to stand up for him?" Avery opened her eyes and glared at him.

"Aren't I just speaking the truth?" Mike shrugged.

"I swear nobody told me to stand up for him. I just thought about things from his point of view. Someone as proud as him definitely wouldn't be able to accept their private matters being exposed."

"You're right," Avery said agreeably.

"He would rather hurt me and the children just to maintain his reputation. Of course, there was nothing wrong with what he did from his point of view.”

Mike smacked himself on the lips, then said, “I better not talk about him. The more I do, the more you hate him.”

“My hatred for him is constant and won’t be affected by external factors,” Avery said fairly.

“Got it. Get some rest. I’ll wake you when we get home.”

That evening in Aryadelle, Ben arrived at the Foster mansion and brought with him the news of Charlie Tierney’s death.

“I didn’t expect Chelsea to become this ruthless, Elliot.” Ben opened up a bottle of wine, then poured himself a glass and took a sip.

“Charlie was begging on his knees, but she didn’t waver at all. I suddenly find her quite scary.”

“She’s not the scary one.” Elliot’s Adam’s apple bobbed in his throat. Then, he said chillingly, “I was the one who told her that, between her and her brother, only one could live.”

Chapter 866

Ben instantly understood the situation.

“Take some time off and rest, Elliot!” Ben picked up an empty glass and poured Elliot a glass of wine.

“You’ve suffered through a lot lately.” Elliot took over the glass of wine, then said hoarsely, “I didn’t suffer through anything.”

Avery and the children were the ones who were truly wronged,

“I know what you’re thinking, but she’s most likely still furious with you right now. You’ll get kicked out if you hastily run to her now.” Ben could not bear to watch Elliot endure that sort of humiliation.

“Jun invited her to his wedding on the first of April. She should be attending.

That would be a good opportunity to act.”

Elliot did not respond. He was not sure if he would be able to wait that long.

A month was not that long, but it was not short either. It was enough for a lot of changes to happen.

“Hayden and Layla should be going back to school soon, right? She probably will be back in Aryadelle soon, then.” Seeing Elliot’s long face, Ben racked his brain to come up with ideas for him.

If Avery returned to Aryadelle, then there was still a chance. If she continues to refuse to return, things would be trickier to handle. “She picked up a job in Bridgedale.” Elliot recalled the folder he found in Avery’s room before.

“The patient has the same illness that Shea did.”

“Oh? What a coincidence.” Ben was a little shocked.

“Does that mean she won’t be coming back for now? What a shame.

Although, picking up this job probably means that she’s still thinking about Shea!”

It had not been long since Shea passed away. How could Avery possibly have forgotten about her?

Two days later, Mike brought Hayden and Layla back to Aryadelle. Chad picked them up from the airport. When he saw the children, he gave them each a small gift.

“Thank you, Uncle Chad.” Layla accepted the gift, but Hayden turned away andie refused. This was because Hayden knew that Chad was Elliot’s personal assistant.

“Hold on to your brother’s gift for him for now, Layla! It’s nothing fancy.” Chad quickly handled the awkward situation, then turned to Mike and asked, “When will Avery and Robert be coming back?”

"I don't know. Her patient just woke up when we were leaving. "Mike picked Layla up, then said, "Let's talk when we get home! Is there anything to eat at home? Should we get something to eat before heading back?"

"I made a few simple dishes, but I don't mind eating out either," Chad said modestly.

"Since you already cooked, let's just go home and eat!" Mike glanced at Hayden, then cleared his throat and said, "Listen, Hayden. Uncle Chad and your father have a purely business relationship! He's on our side."

Hayden shot him a cold look and said, "Make him quit his job, then."

"Well, I..."

Chad saw how Mike had turned scarlet and could not get a word now, so he quickly smoothed things over and said, "I'm a spy that your Uncle Mike placed by your father's side. Do you know what a spy is? Basically, whatever your father does every day, I have to report it to Mike."

Hayden lifted his eyes, then asked Mike, "Is that true?"

"Of course! Do you think your mother would let him into our house if he wasn't on our side?" Mike decided to use Avery to make his words more convincing.

"Don't worry, Big H. I'll be the first one to deal with him if he ever betrays us."

Over in Bridgedale, Adrian woke up the second night after his surgery. He might have woken up, but his condition was not ideal. Whether it was the doctors or his family speaking to him, he was unresponsive. He seemed to not be able to hear a sound. He stared blankly ahead for a while, then shut his eyes and fell asleep.

Chapter 867

Avery could not slip away and had no choice but to let Mike return to Aryadelle with the twins first.

Adrian's family was not happy with his post-surgery condition, but at least they did not give Avery a hard time about it.

Both parties signed an agreement before the surgery. Avery would treat Adrian's illness, but she could not guarantee that the surgery would be a complete success.

Three days after the surgery, Avery's phone rang at noon. Once she heard the phone ringing, she quickly wrapped up changing Robert's diaper, then picked up her phone and answered the call.

"Adrian's awake, Doctor Tate. He can hear us this time and he's responding."

Adrian's father, Nathan, was the one on the other line. Avery suddenly felt relieved, "I'll head over to the hospital right away."

She hung up the phone, then handed the baby to Mrs. Cooper. Once she arrived at the hospital, she hurried over to the patient's room. "He went back to sleep again, Doctor Tate," Nathan said in confusion with furrowed brows. "Is he still weak from the surgery? He isn't just going to be unconscious this whole time, is he? If that's the case, then he was better off before the surgery!"

"You've never had major surgery before, have you? The week after a major surgery is when the patient is at their weakest," Avery said sternly.

"I see. Don't get mad, Doctor Tate. I'm not doubting you. I just feel like he's still kind of an idiot." Nathan rubs his hands together. He was clearly unhappy with the post-op results.

Avery's heart tightened in her chest.

"Please step outside for a moment. Let's have a private chat."

Once the two of them stepped out of the room, Avery said, "My last patient had the same illness as Adrian. She was only able to recover to the point of being able to care for herself again until after the second surgery. It also did not happen right away. She slowly recovered with the patience, love and care from her family members. I know you're worried about Adrian, but can you not treat him like an idiot? I can tell you for certain that it's practically impossible that he will turn back into an ordinary person.

A wave of misery flashed across Nathan's eyes.

"I thought you really were a miracle worker! Didn't your last patient pretty much turn into an ordinary person after surgery?"

"I'm not a miracle worker. Whoever told you that my last patient was pretty much normal after surgery, you can take that up with them."

When Avery thought of Shea, she could not help from being emotional.

"Why are you being so emotional? It's not like I'm asking you for compensation." Nathan gazed at Avery with a confused expression on his face.

"Why do you look like you're about to cry? I'm not shouting at you or hitting you. How can you be a doctor with this level of mental capacity?" When a nurse walked by and overheard their conversation, she immediately walked over and said, "How could you speak to Doctor Tate that way, Sir? Do you know how difficult the surgery that she did was? Besides, your son's surgery was rather successful. He just woke up, a surgery is considered a success when a patient wakes up and their life is not in danger." Avery took a deep breath, quickly composed herself, then headed back into the patient's room.

She had yet to see what Adrian looked like when he was conscious, so whatever Nathan said should not affect her mood. When she walked into the room and saw Adrian's pale complexion, her emotions wavered.

The reason why her eyes reddened earlier had nothing to do with the surgery, but that she actually heard Elliot's voice in Nathan. In her mind, Elliot and the middle-aged man in front of her were gradually overlapping and turning into the same person. She imagined that Elliot was the one chastising her, which was why she lost control of her emotions for a moment.

Soon after, the nurse walked into the room and handed Avery a glass of water. "Don't take Mr. White's words to heart, Doctor Tate. He doesn't really care about his son at all.

I should probably say that nobody in that family cares about Adrian. The nurses are the one who take care of him every day. We were the ones who called them over when Adrian woke up." The nurse's words made Avery's heart sink. Nathan had continuously told her that he loved this son more than anything. However, it was clear from his actions today that everything he said before was a lie!

Chapter 868

If Nathan truly loved Adrian, then he would not call him an idiot.

Elliot never called Shea such a thing, and he would get furious if anyone called Shea an idiot.

This was the difference between loving someone and not loving someone.

"There's an old saying in Aryadelle that you never see a good person standing by the bed of someone with an old illness. I think Adrian's family probably does love him. Otherwise, they wouldn't have spent all that money and effort to treat his illness." Avery took a sip of water, then readjusted her mindset.

"I suppose that's true. Either way, his family still shouldn't be letting out their frustrations on you."

"I was the one who didn't explain things to them well enough before the surgery. They were under the impression that I could help Adrian return to normal.” Avery lowered her gaze and looked at Adrian.

“Perhaps I said something that made them misunderstand.”

“Their expectations were too high. It would already be a great outcome if Adrian’s condition improves slightly,” said the nurse as she comforted Avery.

“Don’t stoop to their level, Doctor Tate. By the way, don’t forget to collect the payment for the surgery.”

Avery had only collected a deposit from Adrian’s family. They had agreed to pay the rest after the surgery.

However, judging by their attitude, Avery had no plans to collect the rest of the payment. Back when she agreed to take on Adrian’s surgery, it was not wholly because of the money, but also for Shea.

After Avery sat in the room for a while, the patient on the bed suddenly opened his eyes.

Avery shifted her gaze from her phone and met Adrian’s eyes.

“How are you feeling, Adrian?” she asked gently as she put her phone down.

“Your head might hurt a little, but that’s normal. Can you hear me?” Adrian gazed at her face and very quickly responded. Not only did he nod his head, but he also managed to hoarsely say ‘yes’. Avery looked at his eyes and expression. She did not think he was an idiot at all. His reaction was about the same as Shea’s back then.

Apart from once calling Shea an idiot in the heat of a moment during a fight with Elliot, she had never seen Shea as an idiot.

“I’m your attending doctor. My name is Avery Tate.” Avery was introducing herself to him because she never had the chance to do so with Shea before. If she could turn back time, she wished that she could have said these words the moment after Shea woke up from surgery and made her feel safe.

“Let me know if you don’t feel well. If I’m not here, then you can tell whoever is around about it and ask them to inform me.” Avery held Adrian’s cold hand, then added, “I’ll do my best to help you.”

The space between Adrian’s brows relaxed and he once again responded to Avery.

“If you’re feeling dizzy, you can close your eyes and get some rest,” Avery continued after noticing he was a little quiet.

Adrian shook his head and kept his clear, glistening eyes fixed on her.

Avery flashed a polite smile at first, but his extended staring made her feel slightly embarrassed. “What are you thinking about, Adrian?” she asked.

Adrian hesitated, then asked, “My name is... Adrian?”

“That’s right. Your name is Adrian White. You’re sick, so your family asked me to treat your illness,” Avery explained patiently.

“Your head might hurt right now or your mind might occasionally go blank.

Don’t worry. Things will get better gradually.” Adrian’s lips parted, then he said hoarsely, “Thank you.”

At the doorway to the room, Nathan was stunned to see the scene before him.

Adrian had woken up twice before. He did not seem to be able to hear anything the first time and had no reaction. He could hear the second time, but his eyes were blank and he ignored everyone. He did not expect him to wake up this time and be able to speak.

Chapter 869

“Adrian! My dear boy!” Nathan rushed into the room and shoved Avery aside.

Avery did not feel any respect from this man at all.

It was as if he wanted to kick her out of the room.

She stared at the man's profile and wanted to say something, but her reason stopped her from doing so

She felt bad for Adrian, but she had no connection to him at all. Once she was finished with his surgery and his family was happy with the results, her job here was done.

"I was wrong about you earlier, Doctor Tate!" After Nathan got a response from Adrian, he immediately turned around and said emotionally, "Adrian understood when I called out to him. This is a huge improvement! I'll wire over the remaining payment to you in three days, Doctor Tate. As for the follow up... If Adrian doesn't have any other incurable diseases, then we don't bother you again."

Avery was stunned. Nathan was saying that once they paid her off, whatever happens to Adrian in the future had nothing to do with her anymore. He also meant for her not to bother them again. However, Avery really wanted to know how Adrian would recover.

"I don't need the rest of the payment, Mr. White. I just need you to allow me to pay him follow -up visits later on. This is our professional habit as doctors," Avery said.

"Are you this responsible toward every one of your patients, Doctor Tate?"

Nathan flashed a meaningful smile.

"If I receive your call in the future, then of course I will answer it. However, please don't blame me if I get too busy to pick up your calls!" Avery found the smile of his face to be slightly sinister.

She always gave people the benefit of the doubt, but there was something about Nathan that made shivers run down her spine. He was basically telling her that he would never answer her calls no matter how much she tried.

She did not understand why he would not let her make follow-up visits.

Could Nathan somehow guarantee that Adrian's illness would not cause problems again in the future? If it truly was in Adrian's best interest, then he would never be this disrespectful toward his son's attending doctor.

Avery was livid and wanted to chastise him, but she held back her rage when she saw Adrian on the bed from the corner of her eye. It was fine. She had the White family's home address, so she could just pay Adrian a visit there later. Within half an hour of leaving the hospital, Avery received a notification on her phone about a new deposit into her bank account.

She had received the rest of the surgical fees from Nathan. Her fingers clenched tightly around her phone as she stared at the amount of money.

What a strange family the Whites were!

They were extremely respectful toward her before the surgery. They went with everything she said, as if afraid that she would refuse to treat Adrian's illness. However, their attitudes took a shocking turn after the surgery.

Avery decided that she absolutely had to make a follow-up visit to the White's family home to check on Adrian in the future. She did not believe that they would refuse to let her into the house.

When she returned home, Mrs. Cooper saw her long face and asked worriedly, "What's wrong, Avery? Is the patient not doing well?"

Avery shook her head. "He's doing pretty well, but there's something off about his family.

"You're a doctor. You just need to focus on your patient. Whether or not there's something off about his family has nothing to do with you. You'd be exhausted if you also had to care about your patients' families!" said Mrs. Cooper.

"Spending all of that money to hire you for the surgery must mean that they really care about the patient, right? Even if they don't love him, they probably aren't abusing him," she added.

"I suppose so. I was probably just overthinking it." Avery smiled, then said, "I wonder if it's because I miss Shea so much. I keep thinking that this patient is so similar to her. What's even weirder is that his father reminds me of Elliot."

Chapter 870

Avery was just kidding around, but Mrs. Cooper's expression turned slightly unnatural after she heard what she said. Mrs. Cooper froze for a moment, then forced a smile and said, "Maybe you're not just missing Shea, but Master Elliot, too. Since your work here is done, can we go back to Aryadelle now?"

Avery did not feel like returning so soon.

There was not much to worry about after Hayden and Layla went back to school. Besides, she had spent too much energy on the surgery the past few days, so she was exhausted.

She wanted to take a break, then think about returning to Aryadelle.

Otherwise, if she rushed back now, she would only end up cooped up resting at home.

"You can take a break first if you're too tired. I'm not in a hurry to go back."

Mrs. Cooper was especially talented at reading faces.

"I'm just beginning to miss Hayden and Layla, that's all. My heart feels empty even when I don't see them for just a day."

"I know. I miss them, too, but I've been too tired the past few days. Let's head back after a couple of days of rest," Avery said, coming to a compromise. She could not continue to delay her return just to avoid Elliot.

"Alright, Avery. I made some soup. Have some, then go to bed. You look like you've lost weight these days." Mrs. Cooper placed Robert in his crib, then went to the kitchen to get Avery a bowl of soup.

Robert was a good baby. Even when he's in his crib by himself, he did not cry.

Some children were so used to being held that they could not stand being put down.

"Do you miss your brother and sister, sweetie?" Avery stood by the crib and cooed at Robert.

"I'll take you home in a couple of days, okay? Have you eaten? Would you like Mommy to pick you up?"

She was exhausted at first, but after saying a few sentences to Robert, she could not help but hold him in her arms.

When Mrs. Cooper walked in with the bowl of soup and saw this, she chuckled and said, "You just can't help but want to hold him every time you see him, right?"

"Yes, he's such a good baby. It feels like he understands us when we talk to him." Avery carried Robert over to the couch and took a seat.

"Otherwise, how could such a good baby exist? You don't cry or whine, and you stare right at me every time I talk to you. Are you my little angel?"

Mrs. Cooper placed the bowl of soup on the coffee table, then said, "Have some soup first, Avery."

"Okay." Avery handed Robert over to Mrs. Cooper.

"Did Layla call after I left for the hospital this morning?"

"She did. She said she wanted to see her little brother," Mrs. Cooper took a seat next to Avery with Robert in her arms.

"She said she's going back to school tomorrow and she's a little nervous about it. She said you promised her before that you would take her to her new school when she started first grade." Avery froze in the middle of drinking her soup. She seemed to have indeed given such a promise to Layla before, but she forgot about it after she picked up Adrian's case.

"I'll check for flights." Avery immediately put down her spoon and checked if she could hurry back now.

"I already consoled her. She said she understood that you were busy with work and won't blame you," Mrs. Cooper said. "I was too careless."

"Who could blame you? If you really wanted to play the role of a mother at one hundred percent, then you would have to give two hundred percent of your energy for it to be enough. Layla isn't a three-year-old anymore. She should learn to be considerate of her parents. That's the only way she's going to grow up."

"I suppose that makes sense." Mrs. Cooper's cheeks turned pink.

"By the way, Master Elliot called, too. Don't worry, it wasn't about the kids and he didn't ask about you. He told me that my things were all packed and wanted to find a good time to hand them over to me."

Things were over between Avery and Elliot, but it was not like her expression would change every time he was mentioned.

"What did you tell him?"

"I told him that Mike was back in Aryadelle, so he could either contact Mike and arrange for my things to be sent to him, or wait until I return and pick them up myself," Mrs. Cooper said honestly.

Avery nodded her head. "He said he'll get the driver to send my things over to the Starry River Villa. I thought that was fine, so I agreed."

Avery nodded once again. At seven the next morning, a black Rolls-Royce slowly made its way into the Starry River neighborhood and eventually pulled up in front of Avery's front gates.

At that moment, the bodyguard had already sent Hayden to school, and Mike was about to send Layla off to another elementary school.

Chapter 871

The elite class for young prodigies that Hayden attends at Central University was unlike any other ordinary elementary school. No matter how much money Avery had, she would not be able to enroll Layla there.

Besides, Layla did not want to join an elite class anyway. She could not understand anything that Hayden was learning about, nor did she have any interest in it. When Mike led Layla out of the house and saw Elliot's car, he immediately froze in his tracks. Elliot's driver opened up the trunk to the car and brought out Mrs. Cooper's suitcases. Mike held Layla's hand and walked over to check on the situation.

"These are Mrs. Cooper's things. She resigned from her job at the Foster mansion, so Mr. Foster asked me to bring her things here," said the driver.

"Your boss let you use the Rolls-Roice to send luggage over?" Mike's intuition told him that it was possible that Elliot was in the car.

After a few seconds of awkwardness, the driver explained, "Mr. Foster is in the car. I was driving him out for breakfast."

Mike chuckled coldly, then let go of Layla's hand, walked over to the car, and tapped on the door to the backseat.

The window rolled down, and Elliot's cold, handsome face appeared in front of Mike. Mike smirked, then teased, "It's seven thirty in the morning. Shouldn't a pampered company president like you still be in bed? What kind of company president wakes up at seven in the morning for breakfast? Did you not have dinner last night?"

Elliot remained silent.

“Give it to me straight. You came over here to have breakfast, didn’t you.

There are some pancakes left. If you don’t mind, then...”

Before Mike could finish his sentence, Elliot opened the car door and got out.

It was Mike’s turn to be speechless now. Was he actually shameless enough to go in and have breakfast? When Layla saw Elliot get out of the car, she immediately frowned. She went behind Mike, grabbed his hand, and dragged him away.

“Get back in the car for now, Foster! Don’t make my sweet Layla cry!

Otherwise, she’ll complain to Avery when she calls her tonight!” Mike threatened. Elliot stopped in his tracks. He missed the children deeply.

That was why he could not help but come over. He would be happy even if he caught a glimpse of one of the children.

Layla hid behind Mike. She refused to see Elliot, and she refused to be seen by him.

She was so happy when she thought that she finally had a father. However, her happiness only lasted for a few days until he turned back into Dirtbag Dad.

She knew that Elliot had his reasons for turning back into a dirtbag, but how could her broken heart possibly recover after only such a short period of time?

“Daddy would like to apologize to you, Layla.” Elliot’s Adam’s apple bobbed in his throat, and his voice was deep and heavy as he said, “It was my fault.

Whatever my reasons, I still hurt you, and that puts me in the wrong.”

Layla’s eyes instantly reddened as she heard his apology. She yanked at Mike’s arm and wanted to quickly leave this place. Mike immediately picked her up and carried her over to the garage.

The moment she was picked up, Layla lowered her head and did not want to be seen by Elliot. A few seconds later, however, she could not help but sneak a peek at Elliot. Elliot was also staring right at her.

When father and daughter met eyes, something snapped inside of Elliot and he called out, "I'm sorry, sweetie! Won't you give Daddy another chance?!"

At that moment, Mike stopped in his tracks. His phone was ringing in his pocket. He put Layla down, pulled out his phone, and answered the call.

"What?! Robert's got a fever? Don't be scared, Avery..."

Elliot heard what Mike was saying from the front gates. Then, he hurried over and snatched the phone out of Mike's hand!

Chapter 872

Mike was so shocked that he thought his soul was about to leave his body!

"What the hell are you doing with my phone?!" he snapped furiously, then snatched his phone back.

On the other end of the line, Avery was stunned.

Who snatched Mike's phone away? Who would dare do such a thing? Elliot's face automatically appeared in her mind.

"Put it on speaker!"

Elliot demanded through bloodshot eyes.

Robert had a fever. He needed to know how he was doing.

When Avery heard Elliot's voice, she drew a sharp breath. What were Elliot and Mike doing together? It should be past seven in the morning in Aryadelle. What was Elliot doing at her house?

"Why should I do what you say? You're not the boss of me!"

Mike could not hold back his bad temper.

Elliot's expression instantly turned dark as his cold eyes emanated a murderous aura.

Mike, however, was not afraid of him.

Layla stood next to Mike and watched as the two men argued. She thought they were about to start a fight, and she burst into tears.

"I'm gonna be late for school!" she sobbed.

Layla was not the type of little girl who cried for noed reason.

The moment she began to cry, Mike and Elliot instantly let down their guards and looked at her helplessly.

"Don't cry, sweetie! I'll take you to school right away! I promise you won't be late!"

Mike picked Layla up with one arm and hurried over to these garage.

Elliot wanted to run after his father and make her feel better, but he figured that doing that would only make Layla cry even more.

He walked dejectedly out of the front yard.

Once he got in the car, the driver got into the driver's seat and asked, "Where to, Sir?"

Elliot's eyes were turned toward the window as if he did not hear the driver's voice.

The driver knew that he did not want to leave Layla, so he did not say another word.

Mike put his phone on speaker and placed it in the car.

He settled Layla into the child's car seat, then quickly got into the driver's seat and drove the car out onto the street.

"How's Robert going right now? Why did he suddenly get a fever?" he asked while he drove.

"The heater started acting up around noon, so we didn't have heat for a few hours. Robert probably wasn't used to the change in temperature."

Avery held her phone and walked a few steps away.

"His fever has subsided now, but I probably have to delay my return to Aryadelle."

She had originally booked tickets to return home the next day, but she returned the tickets when Robert suddenly got a fever. She had to wait until Robert was completely recovered. She had called Mike to tell him that she would delay her trip home.

Mike was relieved.

"He should be fine now that his fever subsided, right? He won't go back to how he was when he was first born, right?"

"He won't. He's doing better now that the fever's gone. He's sleeping right now."

Avery had taken Robert to the hospital for treatment.

Once his fever subsided, the doctor allowed her to take him home to rest.

Children's fevers come back easily, so Avery could not say for certain whether or not Robert's would return later on.

She was sure, however, that this was merely a cold, and not another disease.

"That's good. You scared me for a moment there. I thought it was like before..."

Mike let out a heavy sigh.

"That b*st*rd, Elliot Foster, snatched my phone away just now. My soul almost left my body. I thought I ran into a ghost in broad daylight!"

"What was he doing there?" Avery asked.

"He used the excuse that he was sending over Mrs. Cooper's things, but actually wanted to see the kids. He could send the luggage at any time. Why did he have to come over first thing in the morning? Besides, the driver could've been the one to send the luggage over alone. Why did he have to show up personally?"

Mike poured out his thoughts, then noticed the rearview mirror from the corner of his eye and said, "Huh? He's tailing me."

Avery's brows furrowed. She was not in Aryadelle right now, so she could not stop Elliot from doing anything.

Chapter 873

Avery knew that Elliot would not try to take the children away or force them into doing anything, but she still felt uneasy.

"I'm hanging up, Avery. He's tailing me right now."

Mike's tone made it sound like he wanted to shake off Elliot. Avery immediately snapped, "Don't speed, Mike! Safety comes first. Let him follow you if he wants to. It's not like he can just walk into Layla's school anyway."

"Alright! Maybe he's just worried about Robert! His face looked terrible when he heard that Robert had a fever. I'm guessing his first reaction was the same as mine and he probably thought that Robert was in the same condition as before."

Mike's emotions gradually calmed down.

"Explain it to him later, then! Drive safe. I'm hanging up."

"Okay."

After he hung up, Mike glanced at Layla. She was pouting and her eyes were red. She was not trying, but she looked especially devastated.

"Did we scare you earlier, sweetie? Don't be scared. He won't lay a finger on me. Even if we do fight, I might not lose!" Mike said.

"If he hits you, then I'll never like him again."

"Oh? Are you saying that you're beginning to like him again now?"

Layla frowned and said in frustration, "Didn't he ask for another chance? I'm still thinking about it!"

Mike sighed.

"Why are you forgiving him so easily? You'll be easily taken advantage of in the future like this, sweetie! You should learn from your mother. She's..."

"He's handsome, rich, and is a sweet talker... That's why Mommy gave him three kids," Layla said, laying out the reality of things.

Mike was speechless. He stayed silent for a moment, then retorted, "He's a sweet talker? When was he ever a sweet talker?"

"He called me 'sweetie' just now."

Mike was at a loss for words once again.

She was right.

It was not easy for someone as stone-cold as Elliot to call someone "sweetie". It was clear that he was working hard to redeem himself with Layla.

Fifteen minutes later, they pulled up at the school gates.

Once Mike brought the car to a halt, the Rolls-Royce behind him followed suit.

Mike carried Layla out of the car.

Elliot had barely made it out of the car when a handsome silhouette suddenly appeared and took Layla out of Mike's arms.

A delighted smile instantly appeared on Layla's face.

Elliot watched from afar as Layla wrapped her little arms around Eric Santos' neck and gave him a peck on the cheek.

Elliot's fingers instantly tightened around the car door.

Now that Layla had Eric, she immediately forgot about the father standing behind her.

Eric carried Layla into the school, while Mike leisurely strolled over to Elliot.

"Go home! You can come back again when Avery returns."

Mike pat Elliot on the shoulder and said, "As long as Avery forgives you, it doesn't matter how many kids you have, they will all obediently acknowledge you in the end."

"How's Robert?" Elliot asked after he calmed down.

"His fever subsided. It's not like the last time. It was just a common cold," Mike said.

"So Avery won't be coming back anytime soon."

Elliot was relieved, then got back into the car.

"Don't even think about going to Bridgedale to look for her. You'll only trigger negative emotions in her if you do that," Mike said as he held onto the car and bent over.

"If you can't stand the guilt and can't wait to see her, then you should at least give her a call first! Who knows? She might just pick up."

Once Mike was done talking, he closed the door for Elliot.

The black Rolls-Roice drove off and made its way onto the main road.

As Elliot sat in the car, he clenched his jaw in torment.

Of course he had thought of giving Avery a call.

He held his breath, then pulled out his phone and dialed her number.

Chapter 874

When Avery saw the call from Elliot, she hung up without hesitation. With his pride, he definitely would not call back after she hung up on him.

Elliot was taken aback when his call was declined within seconds. He understood why Avery would not take his calls. He had broken her heart, after all.

Even so, did she really need to decline his call that quickly?! It caught him off guard and caused him to be filled with panic and grief.

Avery was underestimating him if she thought that this was enough to make him retreat in defeat.

Elliot found Mrs. Cooper's number and dialed it. He had already come up with an excuse before he called Avery.

It was that he had heard about Robert's fever and wanted to call to check on things.

If Mrs. Cooper answered the phone, he could use the same excuse.

In the end, Mrs. Cooper also declined his call.

Elliot's face was frozen still as he stared at the rejected call.

It had barely been more than two weeks since Mrs. Cooper resigned from her job with the Foster family.

How could she be this heartless?! They had an employer-employee relationship for decades, after all.

Was that nothing compared to her new friendship with Avery? It was heartbreaking! Over at Bridgedale, Mrs. Cooper saw Avery let out a sigh of relief after she heartlessly declined Elliot's call.

Mrs. Cooper was not a fool. She had clearly seen how Avery declined the call earlier.

Besides, Avery had already told her before to sever all ties with Elliot.

How could she possibly answer Elliot's call in front of Avery's face? Even if she had to stay in touch with Elliot, she would only do it in secret!

"I didn't answer his call, Avery."

Mrs.Cooper slipped her phone back in her pocket.

"Even so, could he be calling about something urgent?"

Avery shook her head and said, "He most likely wants to ask about Robert's cold."

She had told Mike on the phone to explain things to Elliot.She trusted that Mike had already done as shedz asked.

Therefore, there was no need for her to answer his call and repeat Robert's condition to him.

"I see.Don't tell me that he went to your place at this hour to send my things?"

Mrs.Cooper said, then quickly explained, "He never told me he would send them himself when we talked on the phone before."

"We might have broken up, but it's not like there's any deep hatred between us.I can't stop him from using your luggage as an excuse to sneak a peek at the kids, nor will I pick a fight with him about it."

"Okay.I knew you weren't such a heartless person, Avery.What parents won't miss their own children?"

Mrs.Cooper said, then glanced at the time and added, "You should be hungry by now.I'll go put something together."

Once Mrs.Cooper walked into the kitchen and put the stew on the stove, she quickly sent Elliot a text message.

[Robert is fine for now.Avery said she doesn't hate you that much.Give her some time.]

Once the message was sent, Mrs.Cooper put her phone away and began to cook. After Elliot saw Mrs.Cooper's text, his emotions gradually calmed down. After Chelsea was done with her father and brother's funeral arrangements, she organized a press conference as the new head of Trust Capital.Her hair was styled over her shoulders and she was wearing a simple black suit.

The black mask she was wearing covered part of her face and revealed a pair of cold eyes.

Under the protection of her bodyguard, she walked onstage and took a seat.

Chapter 875

"A series of events occurred in the Tierney family over the course of the past few days. I feel that there is a need for me to give the public an explanation."

Chelsea faced the cameras and said nonchalantly, "After my father was diagnosed with late-stage lung cancer five years ago, he has spent this entire time fighting the disease. His body had long since failed on him, and he had been depending on medication to continue his life. Unfortunately, on the day of my wedding, he passed away."

"Miss Tierney, we're more interested in what happened at your wedding with Elliot Foster."

One of the reporters brought up this sharp question.

Very quickly, another reporter also asked, "Why didn't Elliot Foster show up on your wedding day, Miss Tierney? Will you be holding a makeup wedding after this?"

Chelsea had already expected that these questions would pop up during the press conference.

"I will not. Elliot Foster and I will not be getting married," Chelsea said.

"I'm thankful for his cooperation during our little act. This was all forced onto me by my brother, Charlie Tierney. He wanted the family fortune for himself to the point that he wanted to murder me. If Mr. Foster had not given me a helping hand, I would already be dead by my brother's hands by now."

A wave of sighs from the reporters offstage followed her explanation.

"After my father was diagnosed with cancer, my brother forced him out of his seat. He had always made it seem like my father favored sons over daughters, but my father favored me the most. It was a shame that my father's condition continued to deteriorate as the days went by and could not protect me," Chelsea continued.

"Miss Tierney, your relationship with your brother seemed very good before your disfigurement. Were you staying at his apartment on the night of the fire?" asked one of the reporters.

"I told you that was before my disfigurement. All the men I knew were nice to be before I was disfigured."

At this point, Chelsea tried her best to suppress her heartache.

"That's all in the past. I will be leading Trust Capital from now on onto an even more glorious future."

After the press conference came to an end, Chelsea got into the car and took off her mask. She reached up and stroked the scars on her face.

It felt like she had achieved everything, but at the same time, nothing at all.

Even now that she had Trust Capital and all the money in the world, this was not the life she wanted to live! Elliot did not show up at the Sterling Group offices that day.

Chad called Mrs. Scarlet to ask about him, and was told that Elliot had gotten up early that morning and was now resting at home, Chad could not help but laugh.

He had been advising Elliot to take a break for a while now, but Elliot was not someone who took the advice of others.

It was a good thing that he was resting at home today.

After Chad sent some documents over to the vice president's office, he went to the financial department to look for Ben.

Ben had just made a cup of coffee, so his entire office was filled with the fragrance of it.

"Let's help Mr.Foster out, Ben!" Chad said.

Ben raised his brows.

"How would we do that? Abduct Avery and send her into his bed?"

Chad was speechless.

"My mother visited me yesterday and is staying at my place.I thought she was an old lady with a modern mindset, but she ended up turning on some romantic movie in the living room and forced me to watch it with her.She wanted me to learn how to conquer women from the leading man."

Chad was very interested in the subject and was all ears.

"I watched the movie with her for a little bit to keep her happy."

Ben took a sip of his coffee, then continued, "The leading man's mother abducted a beautiful woman for him.She had wrapped her up in a duvet.The woman is the leading lady.Once the leady lady was abducted, she was sent straight into the leading man's bed.Then, the old lady shoved the leading man into the room and locked the door behind him.She made them stay in that room together for a whole week."

"Holy crap!" Chad exclaimed.

"What happened, then?"

Ben coughed, then said, "Then, they went from complete strangers to lovers in bed.Pretty awesome, right?"

"Yes! That's crazy awesome!" Chad praised.

"I know you want to help Elliot, but I really don't have any ideas.I'm still traumatized by that TV show," Ben said.

"Alright, then. I'll have to come up with something myself," said Chad.

Evening came in the blink of an eye.

Over at the Starry River Villa, Hayden and Layla arrived home one after the other.

Chapter 876

Chad Rayner put dinner on the table while giving Mike a wink.

Mike got the message and nodded.

"My dears, let's have some outdoor fun this weekend!"

Mike announced after the twins were at the dining table.

Layla was always an ardent supporter.

"Sounds great! Uncle Mike, where would you be taking us?"

Hayden said, "Uh, it's only Tuesday today."

Mike replied, "Well, we can first make plans, can't we? Big H, you won't be free over the weekend right?"

Hayden said, "Nope."

His learning assignment for the semester was quite heavy.

There was no time to spare for any kind of amusement.

"You're only in elementary school! That's so miserable! Once you have entered junior high, would you even have time for home?"

With a long face, Mike said, "I wasn't as exhausted as you when I was a boy. Look at me now. I've still turned out great, haven't I?"

"I will overcome you in greatness,"

Hayden responded with conviction.

Mike felt like he got shot in the knee by an arrow.

If Hayden had said that in the past, he would have shown him his place.

Now that Hayden had said it, he wasn't able to muster up any courage to put Hayden down.

Layla burst into laughter and gave Hayden a thumbs up.

"I'll get your mother to transfer you out of the elite class," Mike said, exasperated.

"There's no chance mommy would listen to you."

The blow Mike received from the verbal judo was so great that he wasn't able to stand up.

Instead, he ate with his head down.

"Uncle Mike, when is mommy coming back?"

Layla couldn't wait for her mother's return. She wished she could hang out with her.

"Your mother has to come back a wee bit later today. Your little brother is down with a cold, and she has to make sure that he recovers before coming back." Mike explained.

"Didn't you say brother's fever has subsided?"

"Yup, you're right. While the fever is gone, he might still have complications such as coughing! There is no other way than to wait for his full recovery."

"Are you sure my little brother's coughing? I haven't ever heard him cough. Ever!" the curious Layla asked, with one big blink.

As babies don't walk nor talk, she was always under the impression that babies were a different species from them.

"Now does my little brother fart?"

Before Mike could answer, Layla went on, "My brother smells nice, could his fart have the same fragrance?"

Across the table, there was a thud.

Hayden dropped his knife and fork and he left the dining table.

Chad walked past Mike.

While resting his hands on Mike's back, he roared into laughter.

Mike sighed, "Layla, your little brother drinks milk all day every day.

Even if he farts, how smelly would it be? Anyway, are you able to shift your focus to something more meaningful? Say, where are we heading this weekend?"

"Well, I did ask a while ago. You ignored me."

Layla cut a small bit of meat with her knife and hooked some into her tiny mouth.

"What do we do with Hayden if he goes hungry later tonight? He doesn't even take snacks."

"Well, if he is hungry then, I'll pre some food for him,"

Chad promised while whipping out a poster.

It was the promotional poster for Dream City.

After seeing the poster, Layla's eye glittered and she put down her knife.

"What a glorious castle! Uncle Mike, are we going to play here this weekend?"

Layla put her hands on the poster and she studied the myriad of pictures printed on it.

Mike replied, "If you are up for it, we are up for it."

"I wanna go! I wanna go! This place looks breathtaking! I wonder why I haven't been there at least once."

Chad introduced, "It was only open for business near the end of last year."

After pausing for a moment, he went on, "This is the theme park your father has built. At any time you want, you may enjoy your time there."

With an air of indifference, she tossed the poster.

"The last thing I would do is step on daddy's theme park. I haven't forgiven him!"

Chapter 877

"Layla, your dad won't know if you went to his amusement park! I won't tell him."

Chad explained, "Let's check it out this weekend and if it's not fun, we shall leave immediately, okay?"

Layla struggled for a few seconds before nodding with a smile.

"Remember dear, when you're on the video call with your mom later, don't spill this secret, okay? Otherwise, she won't let you go."

Chad remembered, "That amusement park is full of fun yo! I took my niece there once. She had a blast."

By now, Layla's heart had flown to the castle in the poster.

Whatever Chad said, she nodded.

In the blink of an eye, it was the weekend.

A crowd of people was squeezing through Dream City's entrance.

When Chad brought his niece here the other day, the weather wasn't as kind and there weren't that many tourists then. He had completely misjudged the situation.

"Well, it's a good thing that Hayden hasn't joined us."

Mike sighed as he looked at the stream of moving heads.

If Hayden had been amongst this crowd of tourists, he would certainly have turned around and left.

Hayden didn't fancy this sort of crowded place.

Chad was a little apologetic when he said, "It's taking forever to wait in line. I'll go and talk to the manager. Let's go in through the staff hallway."

Mike asked, "Go in through the staff hallway, and then what? There are more people inside, and there must be a long queue for each ride..."

Chad countered, "Then what should we do? We haven't come all this way to give up on playing, have we?"

The reason why Chad had wanted to bring Hayden and Layla over was to tell them which architecture and rides were designed by Elliot Foster.

He wanted the children to adore their father, and to forgive the man.

Layla frowned and pursed her lips.

"I don't wanna go back. But there are a lot of people here, and I don't like it either..."

After understanding Layla's demand, Chad was discreet in discussing it with Mike.

"How about I call Mr. Foster? If he comes over, he will be able to clear the entire park and let Layla play alone."

"If Avery finds out that I brought Layla to see their father, do you think she would spare me? Mike rejected his proposal.

"Let's go in and have a look first!"

Chad used his credentials to quickly enter the park from the staff hallway with Mike and Layla. Once Layla was in, she knew what she wanted to play first.

They had been using VIP cards, but even the VIP lines were full of people.

In the end, they still had to queue up like exemplary park guests.

"Layla, I'm sorry. I didn't know there would be this many people here today."

Chad apologized.

"Isn't this project managed by your company?" Mike asked.

"There is a designated person who manages it directly with my boss. I have only heard that this is more profitable, and it should be able to pay back the cost in a short time, but I didn't expect it to be so popular."

Chad said, "After all, this is not the city center. I don't usually come here."

"It's cool. We just won't come again next time."

Mike hated queueing.

Layla looked up at them.

"I think it's beautiful and fun here. I like it here."

"Okey-dokey. Then let's pick a good time with fewer people to play next time." He went on,

Or come back after your parents have reconciled."

Mike wasn't letting a chance to tease her go to waste.

Layla held onto his big palm tightly and began to look anxiously at the group ahead.

Suddenly, a middle-aged lady dressed in jewels brought two people along with her to the front of the line.

They were cutting the line.

After someone protested, the lady hollered back at the top of her lungs: "Do you know who my husband is?! He is in charge of this whole stretch of land! If I want to cut the line, I will cut it! All of you had better zip it!"

The orderly environment turned into pandemonium.

The little girl in front of Layla was startled by the ruckus and cried.

Layla patted the little girl on the shoulder and comforted her softly: "Hey little buddy, don't cry. I'll teach that bad lady a lesson!"

Chapter 878

Layla took Mike's hand and marched forward.

Chad saw that the staff in front seemed fearful of the woman.

To avoid blowing things up, he took out his phone and called the person in charge of the park.

Layla walked up to the haughty woman and exclaimed, "Ma'am! It's not right to cut the queue! You are in the wrong and yet you act so condescendingly. Haven't you learned some manners from school?"

Taken aback by Layla's lecture, Mike pursed his lips.

The little girl had really improved after enrolling in primary school.

Her skill in speaking was discernibly different from when she was three or four.

Layla's words silenced the commotion for two seconds.

The middle-aged lady glared at Layla and scolded, "You pipsqueak! How dare you lecture me?! Which stinky onion were you grown from?"

Keeping her cool demeanor, Layla corrected the lady, "Are you blind? Can't tell the difference between a person and an onion? An onion is green and it's a plant. You haven't even learned the proper way of arguing. What a dummy."

The crowd burst into laughter! The lady's face turned red.

She was about to hit someone as she rolled her hand into a fist.

Instinctively, Mike went in front of Layla to keep her safe.

At the same time, the brawny man beside the lady had Mike in his sight.

The tense atmosphere flared up as if a battle was about to erupt at any time!

Chad lumbered to the battlefront to smooth things over.

"Aren't you Miss Harper? Hello! I'm the assistant to the president of the Sterling Group. Here's my business card. The little girl is with me. Please pardon her language as she's still a kid. Please don't mind what she has said."

Chad handed his business card to the lady.

Moments ago, Chad had contacted the manager of the park to confirm the identity of the lady.

The queue cutting was indeed sanctioned by the park manager because the husband of the lady was someone not to be messed with.

Nobody saw it coming.

Miss Harper took a quick glance at the business card and she tossed it to her back "You're nothing but a two-bit secretary serving coffee and tea. Nobody is interested in you! The person in charge here agreed to let me go to the front of the queue. Since you brought this little girl, I don't have to teach her a lesson. However, you have to let her apologize to me with that loud voice of hers! Otherwise, I won't let this go!"

Mike looked at Miss Harper's countenance of contempt and couldn't helpie chuckling.

Chiefly, it was due to what Miss Harper said – a two-bit secretary serving coffee and tea.

Undeniably, it was a powerful blow! He sure hoped that Chad wasn't hurt.

"What are you laughing at?! Don't you ever think that just because you are a foreigner, I will be afraid of you! This is Aryadelle – my husband's territory..."

Mike responded, "Your husband is amazing! Your husband is a top dog! But no matter how top a dog your husband is, he won't as great as you as a dog. It's just that for today's queue, I'm afraid that it ends here for you."

Miss Harper frowned.

At this time, the person in charge of the park rushed over.

Chad got hold of the arm of the park manager. He took him aside for a quick chat.

"You see that little girl in the pink coat next to Miss Harper?"

Chad pointed at Layla and said to the manager.

"Yes, I see her. Is this the little girl who argued with Miss Harper? Make her apologize to Miss Harper quickly! It's better to have no issue than an issue. Moreover, Miss Harper doesn't come often."

The manager made up his mind.

Chad swallowed and said, "Well. She is the president's daughter."

The manager sought some clarification, "Huh? You are referring to the little girl?"

Chad replied, "Did I say Miss Harper? Maybe Miss Harper is even older than the boss, don't you think?"

The manager took a deep breath and pressed further, "You mean to say this little girl is Mr. Foster's illegitimate child? Does the boss even admit that she's his? If the boss doesn't acknowledge this child, we don't need to take the risk of offending Miss Harper now, do we? After all, the boss must have more than one love child, am I right?"

Chad was flabbergasted! Was Elliot Foster's private life truly this messy in the eyes of outsiders?

"Let me put it this way, if this little girl feels wronged today, you won't have to report to work tomorrow. That's because you will be fired tonight. It won't make a difference even if you were hired by the boss!"

Chad no longer wanted to parley with him. So he pointed out what was at stake.

Chapter 879

The park manager looked at Chad's serious expression, took a deep breath, and nodded furiously, indicating that he knew what to do.

Miss Harper was taken away swiftly by the manager! While Miss Harper was being taken away, she yelled at the top of her voice, "You pipsqueak! You had better wait for what's coming! I will be coming for you!"

Layla made a silly face with her tongue out in Miss Harper's direction.

After Miss Harper's exit, the site quickly returned to order.

"Layla, that woman won't step foot here ever again. You don't have to be angry with her no more, you know!"

Chad cheered Layla up.

"I'm not mad at her! It's her who should be embarrassed here, not me,"

Layla answered, taking Mike's hand back to the previous position.

They went on lining up.

The little girl standing in front of Layla gave her the thumbs up.

"You are so cool!"

Layla gave a proud, bright smile.

After sending Miss Harper away, the park manager gave Elliot Foster a call.

"Sir, your daughter has come to our park!"

Since this little girl was the boss's beloved daughter, he wouldn't miss the golden opportunity of ingratiating himself to the boss.

Elliot Foster glanced at the call reminder to make certain who he was talking to.

He said solemnly, "My daughter?"

"Yup! Chad said it's your daughter! He wouldn't be wrong, would he?"

The park manager attempted to sweet-talk, "Would you like to come and play?"

"Are you saying Chad took my daughter to Dream City?!"

Elliot Foster hadn't gotten wind of the news.

Chad had taken her daughter for a fun day out behind his back.

Chad hadn't even reported it in advance. He must have a death wish.

"Yes, you heard me right, sir! That little girl is tall and thin, with long black hair and big eyes. She's very beautiful! It's like a child star I've seen on the telly before..." the park manager described.

Elliot Foster wasn't able to keep his feelings back.

His heart had long since flown to his daughter.

"I'll go over immediately!"

An hour later, Elliot Foster landed in Dream City.

The park manager took him to the ride that Layla was in.

This was Layla's first attraction, and they had queued for close to an 8 hour.

After half an hour, the ride was over.

Layla came out in high spirits.

As soon as she saw Elliot Foster, the smile on her face froze.

"Layla, I am here today to inspect the work."

Elliot Foster made up a lame excuse.

Layla saw through him and questioned, "Isn't it the weekend?"

Elliot Foster: "Yup. Sometimes I work on weekends."

"Alright, you had better get back to work then!"

Layla took Mike's hand and walked toward the next attraction.

Elliot Foster followed them like a drone.

In turn, Chad and the park manager followed Mr. Foster.

Chad asked the park manager in a soft voice, "Did you call Mr. Foster here?"

"Yeah, you bet! Didn't you say that Mr. Foster cherishes her? So I made the call to make certain of this. I couldn't have believed that Mr. Foster truly cared about her! Thank you for today, Chad! If it weren't for you, I would have been asked to pack and leave tomorrow."

Chad rolled his hand into a fist.

He gasped.

If Avery knew that he brought Layla to meet Elliot, she would presume that he had arranged it.

Even if Avery held back her scolding, he feared that she wouldn't let him into her house ever again.

Chapter 880

After arriving at the second park attraction, there was still a long line at the gates. Naturally, Layla queued up at the VIP lane. There was no way that Elliot Foster would let his daughter

Although the outdoor temperature was relatively cool and comfortable today, it was tiring to He hated queueing! He marched forward, pulled Layla's arm, and said lovingly, "Dear, daddy will take you in directly."

Layla frowned, "Are you saying we jump the queue?"

Elliot nodded without thinking. Mike was gearing up, having anticipated what would happen next.

At this time, Brad walked up to Elliot and reported the little episode that took place an hour ago.

"I hate queue jumping the most! A bad lady was cutting the queue just now so I drove her away! It wouldn't be fair if I did the same despicable thing myself."

Though Layla didn't want to queue, she couldn't do what she hated with her conscience.

Even with his daughter's mood, he still couldn't bear to see his daughter suffer in line. So he made a decisive call.

"We won't cut the queue today. Daddy will close the park and let you enjoy all the rides."

The park manager's blood went cold.

If the park were to close for one day, on the weekend no less, how big of a loss would it be? Had Mr.Foster considered that? The park had only been in operation for a little more than three months.

It hadn't even recouped the original investment.

Brad saw Elliot's move coming from miles away.

Elliot Foster avoided crowded places like these plague.

If Layla hadn't come here to play today, he wouldn't have come.

Even if work inspection was being carried out, he would always send his men to do it.

Layla was stunned.

Even before her father had a falling out with her mother, he had always been pampering her like this.

The familiar feeling of being loved was back.

Yet she wasn't at peace.

"I...I don't like playing by myself...I want to play with other kids too."

Layla stammered but finished what she wanted to say.She stood her ground and continued lining up.

Elliot wouldn't force Layla.

All he could do was find a way to keep his daughter from queuing and at the same time a way to take the burden of conscience which was bearing down on her.It was high time to discuss strategy with the park manager.

Mike pulled Brad aside and fretted.

"If Avery finds out about this, she will be blaming me." Brad was ashamed.

"I'm sorry! If Avery finds out, let me explain to her."

"Now what would that achieve? She would still pin the blame on me at the end.Why don't I just take the brunt of the blame myself!"

Mike had already looked the other way.

"As long as Layla has fun today, it would all be worth it." Brad comforted him.

Mike lowered his eyes and asked Layla, "Is it fun here?"

"It's amazing! Don't worry. I won't tell my mother."

Layla weighed it in her heart.

"I have given it some thought. I still can't forgive my father. I promised my mother and brother that I would listen to them. I can't forgive daddy unless they forgive daddy."

Mike joked, "You're just a kid and you think so much. I'm afraid that you wouldn't be able to get any taller from the weight of your thoughts."

Layla said, "No way! Mom said I'd be taller than her!"

On the side, after Elliot and the park manager pieced together their strategy, the manager made haste in implementing it.

Elliot told Brad their solution and asked him to cheer Layla up.

Ten minutes later, an announcement was broadcasted throughout the park.

"Dear guests, good morning! To celebrate this wonderful weekend, the park is offering a half-price promotion today. As long as everyone can let the little girl Layla ride on all of the attractions first, one can enjoy half-price discounts on all the rides in the park. For guests who aren't willing to partake in this promotion, the park will still provide a full refund service. Thank you for your support, and we wish you a happy weekend!"

After listening to the broadcast, Mike sighed.

"Not only was Elliot good at wooing the ladies, but he also seems to have the skills in coaxing little girls!"

Brad added, "If you have money, you can do whatever you please."

Mike agreed, "One can only dream of that kind of money. Anyways, I'm afraid this promotion is going to make the headlines tomorrow."

Chapter 881

Chad nodded: "You know Mr.Foster's temperament.He ain't afraid of Avery finding out."

A blissful day had gone by in the blink of an eye.

At dusk, Elliot planned to treat everyone to dinner.

Layla had enjoyed her time in the park for the day.

She had a blast and at the same time, she was starving. That was why she had no objection to Elliot's invitation to dinner.

At that moment, Mike's phone beeped.

Mike whipped out his phone from his pocket.

When he saw the number, he made a 'shush' sign with his index finger.

"It's Avery.Everyone, be quiet."

He answered the phone as soon as he saw their nods.

"Hi, Avery.Were you trying to make a video call with Layla? We're outside now! Once we get home, we'll give you a call back, alright? "I'm back in the state and I'm at home now."

Avery's voice was slow and steady, never pushy.

"Bring Layla back, will ya?"

Mike was stunned at the request.

Before he had time to emanate his shock, Avery had hung up.

"F*ck me!"

Mike's face turned red and his heart was fluttering.

"Avery is back! She's at home! She ordered me to bring Layla back! She must have smelled something!"

Chad's heartbeat was picking up as well.

"Hmm...maybe not.She sounded gentle."

Mike reassured himself, "Perhaps she doesn't know anything... Let me send Layla back first.You guys go ahead for dinner."

Mike picked up Layla and headed toward the parking lot.

Chad was worried, so he said to Elliot, "Sir, I'll help you check oned Avery!"

The three of them vanished before his eyes.Elliot turned on his phone.

It was quite the collection of pictures he had taken of Laylale today.

The light emanating from Layla's smile in the photo had brightened the dark world he was living in.

At Starry River Villa.

Avery's sudden return had lifted Layla's spirits.It was a last-minute decision as she wanted to give them a surprise.

That explained the lack of notice.

When Mike got Layla home, Layla nuzzled against Avery.

"Mommy! You're finally back! I miss you so much!"

Avery held Layla tight, and with a motherly smile, she said, "Mommy misses you too.That's why when your little brother got well, 1 came back without thinking twice."

When Mike and Chad saw the smile on Avery's face, they breathed a sigh of relief.

"Mike, where did you take Layla today?"

The smile on Avery's face vanished.

Mike scratched his head.

"Outdoors...an outdoors theme park"

Avery asked, "Which theme park was it? Was it fun?"

Mike was trying his best in crafting his lies.

"A new theme park... I forgot what it's called. It sure was fun. Layla didn't even want to come back!"

Hayden's carefree voice came from somewhere.

"Mommy already knows. That's what you get for not keeping the Dream City promotional poster."

Mike was quiet. "..."

Chad was silenced. "..."

Layla pursed her lips and started apologizing, "Mommy, I'm sorry. I had a day out with daddy today. And it was fun."

Mike defended, "Avery, don't blame Layla. This was all on me..."

"Of course I blame you!"

Avery pointed her finger right at him.

"What did I tell you back then? What did you promise me? Have you suffered from amnesia?"

Chad couldn't bear seeing Mike take all the blame.

He explained, "Avery, this has got nothing to do with Mike. I brought the poster. I wanted to take her to Dream City."

Avery's cold eyes darted towards Chad.

Suddenly, a dazzling white light pierced through the doorway.

After the white light went away, a black Rolls-Roice came into view.

Chapter 882

Everyone was surprised.

Avery hated him and didn't want to see him.

That much was clear in her heart.

His pride was so strong. Why would he have served himself up on a plate to be humiliated? Elliot pushed open the car door and stepped out of the car. He stood at the gates of the courtyard.He saw Chad striding out of the villa.

"Sir, let's go back!"

Chad opened the courtyard gate and walked to him.

Feeling embarrassed, he said, "She doesn't want to see you.I was kicked out too."

In fact, it was not as serious as Chad put it.

Avery had given him a chance to redeem himself.

As long as he managed to get Elliot to go back, she wouldn't hold him accountable for taking Layla to Dream City today.

The reason why he ramped up the seriousness of the matter was for Elliot to leave quickly.

"She hasn't been blaming Layla, has she?" Elliot was concerned.

"Nope.After all, Layla is still a kid.Even if she made a mistake, Avery wouldn't blame her.You don't have to worry, sir."

Chad advised, "Now that Avery has come back, what you have aplenty in the future are opportunities.You don't have to rush it."

There was a hint of coldness on Elliot's handsome face.

"You sound like I am going to do something to her."

Chad responded, "You do know that Avery won't put Layla in the straits."

"Sir, I won't expose you, but that doesn't mean I'm a fool.You are obviously here for Avery,"

Chad thought Elliot Foster gave Chad the death stare.He turned and went to his car.

After he got in, he slammed the car door with a bang.

Soon, the black Rolls Roice vanished into the night.

In the villa, everyone sat down in the dining room and began to enjoy a warm dinner.

"Mom, we were planning to go out secretly, but we didn't expect to meet dad."

Layla tried to explain, "I didn't even call him 'dad'. I said I would listen to you and my brother, so I will."

Avery was no longer angry.

"Layla, are you used to the school already?"

"Everyone likes me very much. So it's okay I guess!" Layla said.

The conversation took a turn. "A boy asked me to be his girlfriend and I made him cry."

"Huh? Layla, it's alright to turn down others. But it's better not to be that harsh on others."

Avery guided Layla.

"Nah, I wasn't really scolding the boy. I was only saying that my boyfriend had to be as good looking as Uncle Eric."

Layla said, "I didn't know that he was going to say that he was cooler than Uncle Eric! So I told him just because you are ugly doesn't mean you have to be that shameless. That's how he started crying."

Avery was planning to give some good advice to Layla.

She wanted her to be a gentle soul.

Somehow, after listening to her story, Avery couldn't help laughing.

"Dear, you did a great job. Next time let's be brave and tell the truth."

Mike encouraged Layla.

Layla nodded, then looked at Hayden.

"Brother, you didn't play with us today. It's such a shame. You have no clue how much fun we had."

Hayden sneered, "Then what are you doing here? It would be nice if you had just lived there."

Layla licked her lips. She had no clap-back.

"Brother, although it's fun there, I still like our home more. My mother and little brother are back and I'm over the moon!"

"Then go play with your little brother!"

Once again, Layla wasn't able to counter the latest attack. She had always thought that she was an eloquent speaker.

Though in front of her brother, she felt like a silly kid.

Hayden had never been an outspoken person at all.

Yet every word he said hit the nail on the head.

Layla didn't want to admit defeat just yet.

After a long breath, she said to Avery, "Mom, I think my brother will definitely not be able to find a wife when he grows up. Boohoo! What should my brother do?!"

Avery was speechless.

Mike interrupted, "Layla, your worries have no basis. Your brother will be making money hand over fist. As long as he can make money, droves of women will come to him."

Layla doubted.

Chapter 883

Mike said, "That's perfectly fine. With your brother's good looks, I'm sure there will be girls who will pursue him. Even if he can't find a girlfriend, you can still find a boyfriend."

Layla was silenced.

Hayden put down the knife and fork with a sullen face.

"Boring."

After Hayden left the table, Avery followed, having completed her meal.

Due to jet lag, she wasn't feeling too well. She tidied up her bedroom and then lay on the bed. She turned on her phone, intending to text Tammy Lynch that she was back. However, dozens of messages from Elliot Foster greeted her instead.

She froze for a moment, before opening up the messaging box.

Everything he had sent was Layla's pictures in Dream City earlier in the day.

In each photo, Layla's smile was bright and she was full of joy.

After browsing through all the photos, she saved the better ones in her gallery. She exited the messaging app. She didn't know what to say to him.

The time they parted at the airport seemed like it was only yesterday. She couldn't shut the pain out of her memory. She phoned Tammy.

"Tammy, I'm back."

On the other end of the line, Tammy was pleasantly surprised.

"You're home?"

"Yup. I made a sudden decision and I hadn't had the chance to let you know."

"Great. I'll meet you tomorrow! By the way, Layla was on the news today. Have you heard?"

Tammy sighed.

"Elliot paid the price this time! Half-price tickets. I wonder how much revenue he has lost, just to make Layla happy. Guests who bought the half-price tickets today were all thanking Layla online."

Avery hadn't seen the news.

Nevertheless, after hearing what Tammy said, she was calm.

Elliot Foster had always been a generous person when it came to money.

But did she want money? No.

"Avery, Jun's family is really preparing for the wedding."

Tammy's voice dropped, "Everything was like a dream. I was too impulsive when I divorced him. Maybe I shouldn't have returned. When I was abroad, I didn't regret things as badly."

"Anyway, would you like to get some fresh air overseas?" Avery asked.

"Not this time. What is to come, will come. Let's talk about it after his wedding."

Tammy suddenly gasped, "I was with him for so many years. In a blink, he said he would remarry and now he's remarrying. I thought he was better than Elliot! Now it seems like he is no better! After Elliot broke up with you, he hasn't even been seeing other women!"

Avery suddenly felt some pain in her temples.

"If you are talking about Jun, just talk about Jun. What has this got to do with Elliot?" she thought.

"I know you're still pissed at Elliot but I have gone through it in detail. Jun was much more ruthless than Elliot! Elliot had to publicly announce that he was marrying Chelsea only when he was under threat. Jun, on the other hand, took his own initiative! He was the one seeking to marry another woman!"

After Tammy uttered that last phrase, she broke down in tears.

Avery didn't know how to comfort her.

Faced with this delicate situation, there was no other choice but to let go.

"Tammy, just find something to keep yourself distracted!"

Avery pondered for a while.

Then she said, "I plan to start work next Monday."

Tammy took a breath.

By now, she had calmed down.

"Where's Robert?"

"He has a nanny taking care of him. I can't keep my children at home all the time."

"Well. Then we'll see you tomorrow."

"It's good."

After hanging up, Avery put down her phone.

Tammy's voice kept echoing in her mind.

'Could it be that Elliot really isn't as guilty as I thought?' Avery wondered.

She picked up her phone once more.

She opened up the messaging box for Elliot.

After scrolling down a series of photos, she discovered that right before posting the photos, he had texted her.

Chapter 884

It read, 'Avery, give me one last chance!' She took a deep breath and put the phone down, One last chance! These three words made her heartstrings tense.

She was reminded of 'Tammy's tears.

When Tammy said she wanted a divorce back then, she was so determined!

Leaving Arydelle after the separation – it was just as decisive.

But Jun's remarriage had broken her.

Who didn't want to be a cool person? If there was something in this world that could drive people crazy, it would be love.

Elliot came out of the Starry River Villa, turned on his mobile phone, and swiped through his messaging app.

Avery hadn't replied. He got an intuition that Avery must have seen his message.

Though she had not responded, he wasn't anxious.

Nothing would be a threat to him in the future. He was confident in patiently moving his chess pieces.He was certain that he was able to wait.

The next day, Tammy came to the Starry River Villa.She was carrying bags of snacks and gifts.

Mrs.Cooper said with a smile, "This feels good.This feels like the heydays."

Avery saw that the expression on Tammy's face was rigid.

She said, "Tammy, come and see Robert! He scratched his face twice last night.Now he looks like a kitten."

Tammy followed Avery to the crib.

When she saw Robert, she burst into laughter.

"My little darling! Why do you have one mark on each side of your face? It's so symmetrical! You've truly become a cute little kitten.ed Haha!"

"His nails certainly weren't that long."

Avery was puzzled.

"Maybe he thinks that his little face was a little chubby and it was fun to pull his cheeks! Haha! "Tammy poked Robert's cheek with her fingers.

Robert stared at Tammy with his big eyes.

This melted Tammy's heart.

"Avery, don't you think your son looks exactly like Elliot? Are you sure you don't think of Elliot when you look at him every day?"

Tammy sat down on the couch beside the crib.

Avery said, "Indeed, that is quite a bother."

"This baby is so cute! One look at Robert and my maternal love is all flooding back! If I were you, I'm afraid I won't even want to go to work."

Avery was afraid that she would think about her infertility if she continued to talk.So she changed the subject.

"Tammy, let's go shopping! I'm going to work tomorrow and I want to buy some new clothes. By the way, I'll get some for my kids too."

"Cool! It just so happens that I have to buy some new dresses as well. When I attend son's wedding, I'll make sure that I'm all dressed up."

After Tammy got up, she teased Robert again, "Little baby, Auntie Tammy will come back later to play with you!"

When she got to the door, Tammy suddenly thought of Layla.

"Aren't Layla and Hayden supposed to be at home this Sunday?"

Avery answered, "Eric took both of them out."

"It's so nice of Eric to help you take care of your kids when he has the time."

Tammy was envious.

"If only I were one of your kids."

"Your dad and mom will be so sad if they hear this."

Avery said, "Although I don't see them often, I can feel that they love you very much. Don't be so greedy!"

"I know, I know. Other than the downside in my relationship, I am pretty grateful in other aspects of my life."

"The future still has a long way to go! The man who will be by your side in the future – he'll love you more than Jun. That's for sure."

"You have such a sweet tongue."

Tammy took her arm, "Let me be your chauffeur!"

"You cool with high heels?"

"No trouble at all. Even if they were 4 inches tall."

The two went shopping in the downtown business district.

After filling the trunk with the spoils, they went restaurant hunting. Tammy started the engine and looked for restaurants everywhere.

While passing by a fine dining place, Tammy's eyes were attracted by a luxury car parked outside the restaurant.

Tammy had an idea.

"Avery, let's splurge on a nice meal!"

Avery was looking at her phone when she responded, "Sure thing. Let me treat you."

Tammy drove the car near the entrance of the upscale restaurant and stopped the engine.

After getting off, she gave the key to the valet.

Avery put away her phone and noticed the restaurant.

"Oh, this place. I've been here before. The food is really good."

"When was it? I haven't had the chance to visit it much! Not only is the price high, but we also have to make a reservation in advance. Otherwise, you won't even get the chance to taste their signature dishes."

Avery thought about it, and her face was hiding her feelings.

"It was with Elliot."

"Oh, no wonder! A person like him would visit all the expensive spots. I guess when the two of you were dating, you have checked in at every single high end place in town."

"Not to that extent. There are only a bunch of restaurants that he likes."

It dawned on Tammy.

"Who knows if Elliot is having his meal right here, right now! After all, this is one of his favorite restaurants," she thought.

She saw his car outside and that was the reason for her choice. She wasn't interested in meeting him.

Rather, she was curious about who he was having a meal with.

Upon entering the restaurant, Tammy wasn't able to locate Elliot.

After some thought, she told herself that it sounded right.

People of his class valued privacy.

Even if he came to a high-end restaurant, he would certainly book a private room.

After the two sat down by the window, the waiter handed them the menu.

"Is the signature dish available?"

"Sorry Ma'am, our signature dish has to be ordered in advance."

The waiter explained with a smile.

Tammy must have been out of her mind. She was craving the signature dish more than ever.

"Why are some guests having them without pre-ordering?"

The waiter blushed.

"I'm not sure about this! Nevertheless, we usually require reservations."

"If Elliot Foster came here without a reservation and he insisted on your signature dish, would you be refusing as well?"

Tammy's question spooked the waiter, who ran to his manager immediately.

"Tammy, do you really want the lobster that badly?"

Avery saw that she was in a foul mood and held her hand.

"Then let's make a reservation now. We can have it when they are ready. How does that sound?"

"I just want to have it now."

Tammy knew that she was spoiled, but she wasn't able to control her emotions.

Soon, the manager came. When the manager saw that it was Avery Tate, his eyes lit up.

"Miss Tate, are you here too?"

Avery didn't realize why the manager had said: 'here too'.

She discussed with the manager, "I'm ordering the little red lobster now. Can we have it today? I can pay more."

Struggling, the manager said, "If it's still available, I would make it for you. Sadly, there is no more. Otherwise, shall I go and have a look again?"
"It's alright. Sorry to bother you."

Less than five minutes after the manager left, he returned with a plate of the signature red lobster.

Avery was confused.

"Didn't you say there's no more? How come it's ready so quickly?"

Tammy looked at the dish in front of her and questioned, "This lobster is gigantic, is it a giant red lobster?"

The manager raised his hands to wipe off his sweat.

"Ma'am, I can assure you that this is the best lobster we have caught this year, and it is reserved for the most distinguished guest..."

"The most distinguished guest?"

Avery looked at the manager and raised her eyebrows.

"Who are you referring to?"

Tammy organized her thoughts.

"Could it be that you brought this from Elliot's table?"

The manager nodded in embarrassment and explained to Avery, "Miss Tate, we really didn't have any lobster left in the house. So I went to Mr. Foster's table to ask about the matter. Mr. Foster gave me clear instructions to bring his dish to you right that second. He even said that he hadn't laid a finger on it yet!"

Chapter 886

Avery's head started to hurt.

"If you didn't have it in the kitchen, you could have just told me that. Why did you have to go to him about it?"

"I'm so sorry! I thought that you were very close to Mr. Foster as you came here with him before. Your friend seemed upset, so I..."

The manager said.

Avery interrupted him.

"How much is the dish?"

"It's been paid for by Mr. Foster," the manager said with a smile, "You can transfer the money back to him if you don't want to accept it. The price of this dish is 58888 dollars."

"???"

Avery had known that this restaurant was famous for the red lobster and that it was more expensive compared to other restaurants, but she had not expected this to cost so much.

Seeing that she was stunned, the manager immediately explained, "This red lobster is different from the rest. It's top tier and we haven't caught a red lobster with such high quality for a really long time now."

Avery took a deep breath and waved at him.

"I get it."

Once the manager left, Tammy said apologetically, "Let me pay for dinner! I didn't think that the lobster would be this expensive because Jun and I came here before."

"I said it's my treat. Did you want the lobster so badly because of Jun?"

Tammy smiled awkwardly.

"Not really. I'm just in a bad mood."

"It's alright. Let it all out."

Avery served her the lobster and said, "Dig in! I will spoil you even when you don't have a man to take care of you."

Tammy took a spoonful of lobster and said, "So are you reimbursing Elliot?"

"Let's decide after we eat!"

Avery knew that Elliot was in the restaurant as well and did not want to cause any drama.

"Let's avoid this restaurant when we hang out from now on. I wouldn't have picked this place had I known that he was here too."

Tammy watched as Avery brooded and she blurted out the truth, "I chose to come in on purpose because I saw his car parked outside. Aren't you curious who he is here with? It's not like he would be here alone!"

"Do you want the manager to take you to the private room and have a look?"

Avery teased.

"Nah, he has to come out eventually, right? Let's just sit here and wait."

Inside the private room, Elliot glanced at his phone to check if Avery was transferring money to him, as the manager had just informed him that Avery would be paying him back for the red lobster.

"Mr. Foster, was the lady the manager mentioned earlier Hayden's mother, Avery Tate?" Elliot's guest asked.

It was the person in charge of the Central University elite class.

Elliot had invited him out to discuss Hayden.

Not only did Elliot plan on impressing Layla with his actions, but Elliot also wanted to take good care of Hayden; even if he didn't know or appreciate it.

As a father, he had to fulfill his responsibility.

"Yes. Have you met her before?" Elliot asked.

"Once. We spoke briefly when she first brought Hayden to the school. She is a busy woman.though, so I'm afraid she doesn't remember me," the man said,

"Does Miss.Tate know about your investment in the elite class?"

"She is mad at me and doesn't want to see me," Elliot said honestly, "Don't tell anyone about me funding your project.If Hayden finds out, he is probably going to quit school."

"Is your relationship with your son really that bad?"

"Yes.He is my son and I want him to have a better environment to study and grow in,"

Elliot requested, "I hope that you can provide him with more support for his studies."

"Of course.We will be sure to take good care of him," the man said.

Chapter 887

"When I say take care of him, I don't mean to let him do whatever he wants; I mean to increase the level of difficulty in his studies so that he can learn more... He is my son, so he should be just like me, which means the harder it gets, the faster he grows."

"Alright.We will keep you posted on matters regarding Hayden's study from now on."

"Yeah.The tutor I hired will be here tonight.I will provide you with his contact and he will take the elite class to participate in the International Hacking and Programming Contest,"Elliot said.

He had laid out the path for Hayden to become the best on the international scale.

He had no expectation as to how much his son would earn, but he believed that to be Hayden's target as well; as a father, he had to work hard to help him achieve it.

"You are definitely a good father, Mr.Foster.It's a shame that Hayden is too young to appreciate what you've done for him," the man said, "He will understand someday when he grows up."

"I hope so!"

Elliot did not expect to be understood by Hayden and only hoped that his son would stop resenting him.

"I have a meeting at school later, Mr.Foster, so I have to leave now.If there's anything, please contact me via my phone," the man checked the time and said.

"Okay.Let me see you out."

The two stepped out of the private room and as they walked past the hall, Elliot couldn't help but scan the place and found Avery right away.

At the moment he looked over, Avery seemed to have sensed it and turned around at the same time; the only difference was that she was looking at the man next to Elliot instead.

"An old man," Tammy said when she saw the man standing next to Elliot.

"That guy... looks familiar."

Avery took a quick glance before looking away.

Being stared at by Elliot made her feel like her entire body was on fire.

"You mean that guy standing next to Elliot looks familiar to you?"

Tammy studied the man further and said, "That guy is fat and bald, are you sure you know him?"

"Yeah, I've seen him somewhere.I just can't remember where," Avery said.

Elliot sent the man out of the restaurant and turned back around shortly after.

"Avery, he came back in.Do you think he is going to say hi to us?"

Tammy said while staring at Elliot.

Avery turned Tammy's face back towards her and asked, "Why are you staring at him? Are you that desperate for drama?"

"I'm just worried that you will lose him and regret it as I did." Tammy shrugged.

"I believe that he won't marry another woman. Men that belonged to other women never seem to disappoint me."

Elliot walked straight to the cashier and paid.

Tammy looked at his tall figure and teased, "I thought that a guest as exclusive as he is would leave directly after finishing his meal and wait for the bill to be sent to his office... I guess he's just like the rest of us! The service of this restaurant is horrible!"

"He didn't pay and only signed something the last time we were here though," Avery said.

"But I saw him taking out his card."

"Oh. Eat up! Don't waste all the food."

Tammy took a bite mindlessly and saw Elliot leaving once he had paid.

"He left just like that without even saying hello. Avery, do not forgive him unless he gets down on his knees begging."

"I'll go pay the bill," Avery said and got up, before walking toward the cashier.

When the cashier saw her, she immediately said, "Madam, your meal has already been paid for by Mr. Foster just now."

Chapter 888

Tammy was just mocking the fact that Elliot had to pay with his card. She had not expected that it wasn't his bill he was paying for, but theirs.

Though he didn't speak to them at all, he had paid their bills.

Avery hurried to Tammy and said, "I'm going to go out for a bit. Wait here for me."

Before Tammy could react, Avery was already striding out.

As she had expected, Elliot was waiting outside the restaurant.

It seemed as though he was certain that she would come out to find him, and the feeling of being manipulated brought a frown to her face.

Their eyes met and he instantly faced her.

Emotions boiled within her.

'Did he think that sending me my daughter's photos and paying my bills are going to erase everything that had happened?' She thought.

She stood by the restaurant's door and unlocked her phone, before locating his account number and making a transaction.

Once she had completed transferring all the money for the restaurant's bill, she headed back inside without looking back. Elliot was stunned. He had thought that she would at least say a few words to him; even if she told him to go away, it would have felt better than silence.

When Avery returned to her seat, Tammy asked, "What did you do? Was Elliot out there?"

"Yeah."

Avery swiftly calmed herself and said, "He paid for our bill so I transferred the money back to him."

"Oh my! So he was paying for us with the card just now?"

Tammy wasn't sure whether to laugh or cry.

"I was wondering why a VIP guest like him would have to pay like the rest of us. Hahaha! What an interesting man! He doesn't dare to come to say hi, but dares to secretly pay our bills."

Avery's face was slightly flushed as she felt overwhelmed.

Though she didn't speak to Elliot, the look in his eyes was imprinted on her mind. His eyes were unwavering and fierce like he wanted to swallow her whole.

"Why are you back so soon then? Didn't you talk to him?" Tammy asked.

"I didn't know what to say."

"Did he accept your transaction?"

Avery unlocked her phone to check. She had transferred more money than the bill's actual amount and even placed a remark which stated that the extra was for letting them have the dish.

She set her phone down and said, "No."

"It's fine if he doesn't want to accept it since it's not like you didn't try paying him back. He is refusing on purpose so that you will go and find him. Ha! It's a trap!"

"Yeah."

A few moments later, the two of them exited the restaurant.

Tammy wanted to continue shopping, but Avery wanted to head home.

"The trunk of the car is filled, what else are you trying to buy?"

Avery said, "Just wait until next time."

"Fine,"

Tammy said reluctantly, "It's not that there's something I want to buy, I just don't want to stop walking around. My mind starts to wander when I stop."

Tammy found her car in the parking lot and noticed Elliot's branded car parked right next to hers.

What a coincidence.

"Why is he still here?"

Tammy lowered her voice as she unlocked her car.

Avery started breathing heavily and went to open the car door to get in.

Just then, Elliot stepped out of the Rolls-Roice. His eyes rested on Avery's face and with a strong voice, he called out to her, "Avery."

Time seemed to have frozen when he spoke.

"Avery, he is calling you," Tammy reminded.

Avery clenched her fists and took a deep breath, before looking back at him.

"What?"

Chapter 889

He let out a breath of relief when he heard her response. He didn't want anything, he just wanted her to speak to him.

"You didn't reply to my messages." He felt so clumsy when he was standing before her.

"Then don't send me messages." She gave him a cold look and got into the car.

The red BMW's engine rumbled and turned swiftly, before racing off into the distance.

Once they were on the highway, Tammy asked, "Avery, have you fallen for him again? You look just like me when I couldn't sleep for nights in a row."

Avery lowered her head as she was not in the mood for a discussion.

"I checked Elliot out carefully just now and realized that he sure maintains himself well! He looks so handsome for his age that he doesn't even look any different from the first time I saw him..."

Avery interrupted her and said, "Tammy, how old do you think he is?"

"Forty?"

"Probably not that old." Avery scowled.

"Definitely not forty. I should know if he is."

"Why? Is there supposed to be a grand celebration when he turns forty?"

"No. I just don't think he is that old."

"That's exactly why I said he maintains himself well. Not only his face, but he has a great figure as well. Why would you ask him to be a perfect husband when you can just take him as a lover?"

Avery was stunned.

"Do I look like the kind of person who would toy with others' emotions to you?"

"You have misunderstood. I'm not telling you to toy with his emotions; I am telling you to toy with his body!"

Tammy blinked and continued, "Women's urges rise when they turn thirty, don't you need a man?"

It was a topic that she felt far too embarrassed to be a part of.

At night, Eric sent Hayden and Layla back and stayed for dinner.

"Mom, Hayden and I went to where Uncle Eric works today. Hayden helped someone control their drone and they gave him a big envelope of pocket money!"

Layla said, before taking the envelope out.

"What about you? What did you do today?" Avery asked.

"I was filming the music video together with Uncle Eric!"

Layla handed the envelope to Avery and said, "We had fun today!"

"It's a music video for a non-profit NGO and there's no pay, so I didn't tell you,"

Eric explained "Haha, do I look like someone who's that selfish? I wouldn't have let you take my kids out if I didn't trust you."

Avery's lips curled into a casual smile.

Eric, too, smiled in return.

"You should smile more."

"Yeah. I plan on going back to work starting tomorrow."

"That's good. You are never meant to settle for family," he said, "You are capable of far more meaningful things"

"I just don't want Mike to exhaust himself. It's my company and I've cast it aside for so long."

Avery gave Mike an embarrassed look. Mike reacted shamelessly to being mentioned and said, "If that's the case, can I take a leave starting tomorrow?"

"Sure! Never mind.

Chad is so busy lately. I will take leave when he can do so as well."

Mike calmed down "You can take leaves whenever you want."

Avery finished her meal and set down the utensils.

"I will go check on Robert."

She walked out of the dining room and towards the living room, where Robert was sleeping. She sat down by the crib and unlocked her phone to check her messages.

The chat between Elliot and her was at the top of the list and she opened the chat to find that he was yet to accept the transaction she made.

According to what she knew about him, he would never accept the money unless she fixed the amount.

But she wasn't going to because she saw no reason to accommodate him.

Furious, she sent him a message.

"Take the money!" Elliot responded swiftly once she sent the message, and soon, her phone showed that the transaction had been accepted.

Her lashes trembled as she was surprised by how obedient Elliot was.

He was never a man who would listen to her under all circumstances back when they were deeply in love with one another.

Elliot was a man of principle and he would never let her pay or accept her money for whatever they had spent outside, so she didn't think that he would accept her money despite his principle.

But he did, which meant that he was willing to forego his principles for her sake.

If he continued to be this obedient, it would be extremely hard for her to not fall for him.

"Elliot, stop looking at your phone already! Avery isn't replying, is she?"

Ben tapped Elliot on the shoulder and passed him a glass of wine inside the VIP room.

"She did." Elliot set his phone down.

"Did she really? Call her out, then. If you manage to get her here, I will believe that she's replied."

Ben stared at Elliot's phone.

"She has work tomorrow."

"Don't we all?"

Ben exposed his lie boldly and said, "If she really did reply, would you still be sitting here, drinking with us? You would have run off to go find her. Hahaha!"

The others noticed the cold expression on Elliot's face and kept quiet.

Ben instantly stopped laughing.

Elliot looked at Ben coldly and said in a sarcastic tone.

"You have a big mouth. Go on."

Ben raised his glass and clinked it with Elliot's.

"Don't get upset, Elliot. Don't get disheartened even if Avery doesn't want you right now. Once she's dated other men, she will surely realize that there's no other man like you. She will come back to you then."

Elliot couldn't tell if Ben was consoling or teasing him.

"Ben, Elliot has suffered enough so stop teasing him."

Jun changed the topic and said, "Why don't we play a more stimulating game?"

Everyone else brightened up.

Elliot set his glass down and stood up abruptly.

"You guys go on. I'm leaving."

"Don't be a buzz-kill, Elliot! Don't you know what kind of a person Jun is?"

He's been good since he married Tammy, so what exactly do you think he would do? Hahaha!"

Ben pulled Elliot back Jun flushed.

"Let's bet on whether Tammy will come to stop my wedding." Elliot sat back down at Jun's words.

"Look at how scared you made Elliot, Jun... Don't be so vague when you speak the next time around. I bet that she won't!"

Ben said, "Let's bet money on this, or it's no fun!"

"Fine! I bet that she will! I still have fifteen thousand dollars in my account and I'll place it all on the bet!"

"Just like Ben, I bet that Tammy will not interrupt the wedding,"

Chad said, "I'll place a month's worth of my salary on the bet!"

Everyone betted that Tammy would not interrupt the wedding.

Jun felt slightly defeated.

"You all lack confidence in Tammy. Elliot, what about you? What are you betting on?"

"Same as the others. I bet that she won't."

Jun's confidence began to waver.

"Why? Elliot, do you not support me and Tammy?"

"I saw her this afternoon when she was out eating with Avery. She seems to be doing well."

"At least she is doing better than Avery."

Jun fell into despair and heartache.

Not only had he overestimated Tammy, but he had also lost the remaining fifteen thousand dollars in his bank account.

The next day, Avery saw her children off and drove to the company.

She arrived at Tate Industries at nine in the morning and her employees greeted her.

"Morning, President Tate! You are recovering well, one simply wouldn't be able to tell that you've recently given birth!"

"Yeah, you are looking great, President Tate! Looks like our company is going to do great this year!"

Chapter 891

Avery was overjoyed at the compliments she received.

Upon arriving at her office, she spotted a bouquet of red roses on her table and the smile on her face instantly froze.

It was not an ordinary bouquet; it contained at least ninety-nine roses and had taken up the space of over half of her desk.

Only a man would send a woman ninety-nine roses when he was trying to pursue her.

She placed her purse on the table and ran her fingers through the petals to find a hand written note, which said: 'you are forever my goddess'.

Elliot's face instantly appeared in her mind when she saw the note.

Who else would send her such an enormous bouquet along with such a cheesy note? She could tolerate him fawning over her in private, but doing so in her office would affect her mood to work. In Sterling Group, it was time for the weekly meeting on Monday.

The managers entered the meeting room once Elliot arrived into the office.

After having too much to drink the night before, Elliot woke up with a mild headache and told the secretary to get him a cup of coffee before heading to the meeting room.

Once the meeting began, Elliot started to hear reports from all departments regarding performance in the prior week.

Shortly after, the secretary came in with the coffee and just as she was about to deliver the cup to Elliot's hand, the screen of his phone lit up with Avery's name displayed on it.

His heart thumped at Avery's call and accidentally bumped his hand towards the cup of coffee his secretary was holding when he reached for the phone.

"Snap!"

The cup fell and the coffee spilled all over his hand, the desk and his clothes.

Terrified, the secretary frantically apologized.

With no regards to the awkward state he was in, Elliot immediately took some tissue to wipe away the coffee on the screen of his phone and accidentally pressed on the button to accept the call on speaker phone.

Avery's voice echoed around the meeting room.

"Elliot Foster! Were you the one who sent me flowers? Do you take me for an eighteen years old teenage girl? Do you think that I would be grateful if you do this? Why are you so childish? Can't you act like an adult? The issues between us cannot be resolved by a bouquet!"

Avery's throat felt dry from all the shouting and she picked up the glass of at on her desk to take a sip.

Elliot stared at his phone and scowled, feeling as though someone had pressed the pause button on him since he heard her voice in the meeting.

"What I'm saying is that I won't forgive you even if you give me all the roses in the world! Stop doing such meaningless things, or I'll come to look down on you!"

She raised her voice once again.

Elliot cursed under his breath and turned off the speaker mode; catching onto the key information in what she said, he asked, "Avery, someone sent you roses? Who?!"

Avery was taken by surprise.

'It wasn't him?' She thought, 'was I being unreasonable, then, for shouting so harshly at him? But I can't make myself apologize to him.

I need to calm down and decide what to do next after I find out who gave me the roses!' She took a deep breath and hung up without a moment of hesitation.

Inside the meeting room of Sterling Group, everyone was trying their best to suppress their laughter while they observed Elliot.

None of them had expected to hear Avery scold their all-mighty and respected boss for being childish and immature; what came as a bigger surprise was that Elliot did not get mad for being scolded like a small child.

Chapter 892

Elliot's heart sank as he stared at his phone after Avery hung up.

It wasn't that he was upset over being scolded by Avery, but the fact that someone had sent her roses.

If the bouquet was from Mike or Eric, they would have signed the card; so who was it? Who was trying to pursue Avery in secret?

"The rest of you go on!" Elliot said, before storming out of the meeting room. He told the managers to carry on and leave, when the scheduled meetings on Monday were meant for the others to report to him; who else were they supposed to report to with Elliot gone? Elliot went straight into his office and closed the door behind him after exiting the meeting room.

His secretary stood outside the door, red-eyed and terrified.

It was the first time she had made such a horrible mistake for the years she had worked there.

Though the coffee was not boiling hot, it had spilled all over her boss's phone, hand and clothes.

Even if Elliot did not blame her for what happened yet, she felt like he would punish her once he realized what happened.

"What's wrong?"

Chad walked past and asked when he spotted the expression on the secretary.

The secretary explained everything that happened in the meeting room to Chad.

"Mr. Foster hasn't punished me yet because his mind is occupied by what Avery said to him. Once he calms down and sees his dirty clothes, he will definitely punish me," the secretary said guiltily, "I envy Miss. Tate. If she was the one who made the same mistake as I did, she might even blame Mr. Foster for causing the coffee to spill considering her temper."

Chad couldn't help but chuckle.

"You don't seem scared to me at all, since you are still brave enough to crack jokes about those two."

"I am in shock from what Miss.Tate did, okay? I didn't expect her to be so dominating and rude when she was talking to Mr.Foster."

The secretary lowered her gaze.

"Alright, get back to work! I will help you if Mr.Foster really tries to punish you later.You didn't do it on purpose after all."

"Thank you, Chad! I wish you luck on your romantic relationships.Don't become as lowly as Mr.Foster in his relationship!" She said, before running back to the secretary's office.

Chad shook his head and sighed.

Indeed, Elliot was acting lowly; but it was necessary considering how Avery held three advantages over him.

If Elliot failed to make up with Avery, he wouldn't be able to get close to the three children.

Naturally, Chad believed that Elliot would still try his best to win Avery over even if she didn't have those three children.

There were countless women in the world and plenty would be willing to grow old with Eliot, but the only one he wanted was Avery.

Chad knocked on the door to the President's office and went in to find Elliot on the phone.

"Call her and ask about it, or ask the vice-president in your firm."

Elliot turned around with the phone in his hand and handed his phone over once he spotted Chad.

Chad had already guessed who he was talking to and what they were talking about, so he accepted the phone and cleared his throat, before saying,

"aren't you working today?"

Mike instantly woke up at Chad's voice and said, "haven't I told you already last night? Avery told me to rest at home."

"I thought you were joking! Avery received a bouquet of roses today. Go find out who sent it and call me once you find something."

"There's no need for that. I saw the messages on our chat group,"

Mike drawled lazily, "our vice-president sent it as a representative of all employees. I could just laugh myself to death. Did Elliot freak out? He sounded so bitter when he talked to me just now..."

Chapter 893

Chad hung up and handed the phone back to Elliot.

"Avery's Vice-president got her the flowers." Elliot instantly calmed down.

"Go back and take a shower, Mr. Foster."

Chad stared at the coffee stain on Elliot's clothes.

"Your secretary wanted to apologize to you, but I sent her back to work seeing how pale she looked."

Elliot didn't blame his secretary for what happened. He grabbed onto his phone and left the office.

Meanwhile, in Tate Industries.

When Avery found out that it was the vice-president who sent her the flowers, she shoved the card to his face and said, "if you are representing all employees when you got me the flowers, you should have written you are forever our goddess, not you are forever my goddess. Did you even pass your English test back in school?"

Shaun lowered his head and apologized.

"I just didn't see that big a difference between those two ways of saying it, President Tate. Everyone sees you as their goddess...."

"You are still arguing? Why didn't you tell me that you are getting me flowers?

I called Elliot and scolded him because I thought that he was the one who sent these, do you know how humiliating that was?!"

Avery flushed and took her glass to take a sip of water, only to realize that it was empty.

Shaun immediately took her glass and filled it for her.

"You are right, President Tate, you are absolutely right! Take this as a warning to him, then. We all remember to send you flowers, so how could he forget to do the same? A bouquet doesn't cost much and considering how rich he is, if he wouldn't even buy you flowers, it means that he doesn't really care. Shaun handed the glass back to Avery respectfully.

"You may go now! Thank you for the flowers."

Avery didn't want to continue the topic.

"Okay. Do you want to hold a meeting? This is the first day that you are back so you might not be that familiar with the current status in all departments. The others can report to you."

"Let's do that in the afternoon! I need to be alone for now."

Avery had not made up her mind on how, or whether to apologize to Elliot.

In the Central University elite class, there was a new teacher who was hired from overseas.

Not only did the new teacher bring a brand new curriculum, but also the news of the international contest.

The International Hacking and Programming Contest was to take place in June and the top of the class would be chosen to participate in the contest, which meant that the entire class would be fighting over the opportunity.

During lunch, Daniel chatted with Hayden.

"Hayden, do you want to participate in the contest? I kind of want to, but I get plane-sick. I hate traveling on air."

"You are too fat. You can try to lose weight."

"My mom said that as well, but I get so hungry even if I skip one meal. My dad is the only one who doesn't say that I'm fat. I haven't met your dad before, Hayden! Why doesn't he ever pick you up from school?"

After spending the past six months together, Hayden had become rather close with Daniel.

"I don't have a dad."

"How can that be possible? Everyone has a dad. Does your mom not know who our dad is?"

Daniel's question had enraged Hayden and he shoved him aside.

"Of course, my mom knows!"

Daniel's face instantly flushed.

"I'm sorry, Hayden. You mentioned that your mom is great and I just thought that she wouldn't keep your dad's identity from you if she knows who he is. That's all."

Hayden realized that Daniel did not say those words out of malice and scowled, before responding in a muffled voice, "I know who my dad is."

"Oh."

Daniel studied Hayden's face and guessed, "did your dad abandon you? It's no wonder that you are sad every day. Oh, that's sad."

Chapter 894

"No way! I abandoned him!"

Hayden glared at Daniel, before grabbing his plate to leave because he didn't want to have lunch with him any longer.

Daniel immediately grabbed onto Hayden's jacket.

"I'm sorry, Hayden. I – There's a little girl in my neighborhood and her father abandoned her, so now she stays with her mother."

One could tell if someone had good or bad intentions from expressions alone; Daniel was insensitive, but not a bad person, so Hayden sat back down.

"I've made you mad again, Hayden."

Daniel took the drumstick on his plate and placed it onto Hayden's.

"I didn't do that on purpose. My dad is really nice to me, so I just wanted you to have a dad who takes care of you as well."

"I don't need it!"

Hayden stared at the chicken drumstick coldly.

"Why don't you need your dad? Isn't it a good thing to have one more person to look after you?"

Daniel looked at him in confusion.

"I don't need your drumstick!"

Hayden held onto his plate and moved it away.

"It's ins sanitary! Daniel immediately took the drumstick back."

"Even though you act like you don't like me all the time, I still like being friends with you, Hayden. If only there were two spots for the contest, we would be able to go together."

Hayden scowled.

"It's not confirmed that I will lose!"

"But your results for the semester exam were below mine and I came first in the class," Daniel said as he took a bite of the drumstick.

"Of course, I will congratulate you if you become better than me, too. We are good friends after all."

"You are definitely going to cry if I surpass you,"

Hayden said sarcastically, "I am not holding back even if you cry."

Daniel hummed in disbelief that Hayden would surpass him and said, "it's been a while since your sister came to pick you up from school, Hayden, is she starting elementary school as well? "Are you friends with me just so that you can see my sister?"

Daniel flushed.

"No! I..."

Hayden walked away with his plate.

No one could pursue his sister, whoever they were.

In Elliot's house, he went back for a shower and changed into new clothes.

Soon, it was eleven in the morning. He went into the study room to open his laptop and checked the meeting record his secretary had sent him.

At the same time, he switched on his phone to check if there were any messages from Avery.

All the way until night, he had not received any messages, not to mention calls from Avery.

'Does she intend on ignoring the misunderstanding we had in the morning?'

Hele thought.

He spent the entire day in a dazed state. He couldn't eat or sleep.

If she didn't send him a message before the night ended, he probably wouldn't be able to sleep even if he took sleeping pills.

In Starry River Villa, Avery helped Layla with a shower and realized that Hayden was sitting in front of his computer, looking extremely occupied.

"Hayden, are you doing your homework?"

Avery didn't understand the content of his studies, so Hayden would often seek help from Mike or his teacher when there was something he couldn't understand.

"Yeah. There's a new teacher in class and he has really high standards."

Hayden stared at the computer screen unblinkingly as his fingers danced on the keyboard.

"Your class teacher told me about the new teacher. Does the new teacher hold high standards towards you, or to everyone else as well?"

Avery stood beside him and glanced at the computer screen.

Hayden had returned to his room as soon as he finished dinner.

Finishing his homework had never taken up so much time before and Avery was concerned that he was placed under too much stress.

"He sent me an email with a list of expectations. I'm not sure if he is that way with the others as well."

Hayden spotted the concern on his mother's face and explained, "the new teacher is great and I respect him. I want to be able to fulfill his expectations for me."

Avery patted him on the head.

"I'm just worried that you will be tired."

"I'm not tired, Mom. I'm almost done."

"Okay, then I don't disturb you. Remember to go shower once you are done with your homework."

"Okay."

Avery stepped out of the children's room and walked towards the living room.

Chapter 895

Layla was in her pajamas and had her hair down as she leaped around the living, dancing like a bird that had been set free while humming some unknown tone.

Mrs.Cooper held Robert and watched her performance; Robert stared unblinkingly and chuckled from time to time.

Avery couldn't help but smile at the sight.She turned around and headed into the master bedroom and took new pajamas, before going into the bathroom.

After a shower, she managed to wash out all the exhaustion she felt and what happened earlier that day came to mind.She had yet to apologize to Elliot for the misunderstanding concerning the roses.

Though he had made other mistakes before, she had to set them apart.

She unlocked her phone and saw a message Elliot sent ten minutes ago.

'Are you going to Jun's wedding?' She remained thoughtful for a few moments, before replying, 'he didn't invite me'

Two minutes later, Jun called.

Avery picked up and heard Jun's flustered voice coming from the phone.

"Avery, are you sure that I didn't invite you to my wedding? I remember that I informed you about it."

"You didn't.I heard about your wedding from Tammy."

"Oh, damn it! I forgot to send you the invitation! Avery, my wedding is on the first of April, you have to come!"

Jun deadpanned.

Avery was slightly upset.

"Jun, are you able to let Tammy go?"

Jun remained quiet for a few moments, before saying, "she was the one who divorced me and blocked me mercilessly.Do you think that all the pain she caused me is not enough? You haven't forgiven Elliot, have you? So why should I forgive her?"

"I'm sorry..." Avery said guiltily, "since you've now invited me, I will attend your wedding."

"Sure.It's late now, so I won't take up any more of your time."

With that, Jun hung up.

Avery spotted another message from Elliot.

'Call Tammy along when you attend there wedding"

She scowled and replied, 'why?'

"Jun wants her to be there, but he couldn't reach her.Do me this favor and I will overlook what happened this morning"

Elliot had taken the initiative to mention what happened earlier that day and proposed a way to resolve it; both of them were well aware that even if he didn't ask, Tammy would appear at the scene of Jun's wedding.

"Okay" Avery replied.

After that, she exited the chat and opened her calendar to check how long it was until the first of April.

Once she checked the calendar, she received another message from Elliot.

'First of April falls on a weekend, so bring the kids along"

Avery felt slightly irritated at his request.

'Layla and Hayden love Tammy, so they might not be willing to attend a wedding between Jun and another woman!' Elliot read through the long sentence and replied, 'Jun doesn't have to marry another woman"

'What do you mean?'

'Let's talk on the phone!' He wanted to hear her voice.If she was willing to call him, he could tell her that Jun was waiting for Tammy to destroy his wedding.

However, Avery replied immediately, 'I don't want to talk to you"

Elliot stared at the screen with a frown.

Realizing that she might be overreacting, she added, 'I'm going to bed now'

"You are going to bed this early?" Avery flushed.

"It's none of your business"

"Let's talk on the phone, Avery! If you don't feel like talking, answer the call and I will do the talking"

Chapter 896

Perhaps people do become more sentimental at night.

Just as she was contemplating how she should reply to his message, his call came in.

Seeing that she didn't reply, Elliot figured that there was a fifty percent chance she might pick up and went ahead to call.

Avery's heart throbbed at his call; after struggling with the choice of either answering the call or leaving it, she picked up.

"Avery, Jun isn't as hateful as you think he is," Elliot said, hoping to keep her interested by leading with the matters concerning Jun.

He knew that Avery felt like she owed Tammy and had taken an interest in Jun's wedding.

"He just wants to give Tammy a push with the wedding."

Avery immediately understood what he was trying to say.

"But what if Tammy doesn't realize that's what he is trying to do?"

"That means it's really over for them,"

Elliot's voice was both calm and careful, "If you are set on marrying another man, I am definitely not going to let that wedding happen."

Avery retorted furiously, "Do you think everyone is like you? Who do you think you are to stop me from marrying someone else? I didn't do a thing when you went to marry Chelsea!"

"I was about to talk to you about this."

Elliot switched the topic to the major issue and softened his tone, "Avery, would you look down on me for having mental illnesses? I don't need you to answer that right away. When I first decided to compromise with Charlie's offer, what I thought of was not how the world would see me, but whether or not you and the kids would look down on me, and whether the kids would be affected by others' opinions."

"Elliot Foster, do I seem that fragile to you? Do you really think that the kids and I would care about what the world thinks?"

Avery interrupted him and said, "Stop lying to yourself. You are afraid of being looked down on by the others, not me or the kids! The fact that you gave up on us at the airport hurt me more than you having mental illnesses!"

The other side of the line went silent and after a moment, she continued, "I said it wrongly. The fact that you are mentally ill does not affect me. If your illness is so severe that you are completely out of control and couldn't tell right from wrong, then I wouldn't have fallen in love with you in the first place!"

"It happened when I was young," he explained in a hoarse voice, "I would often get confused as to whether I was mentally ill."

"Then go see a psychiatrist!"

"I did. The doctor said I'm fine."

"Why would you think that you are ill, then?"

She questioned in confusion.

"Why were you even diagnosed to be mentally ill when you were young?"

She immediately realized that he would probably refuse to tell her the truth as soon as she asked the question.

He had chosen to get a divorce instead of telling her about Shea, and she was the last one to know that he was mentally ill.

This was something about him that irritated her the most.

She felt that she was nothing but a pet that entertained him whenever he was in a good mood and that he did not respect her at all. She promised herself that she would never allow herself to be manipulated again.

After a few moments of silence, Elliot asked, "Have you been to Shea's grave? If not, let's go there together!"

"I haven't."

Disappointed, Avery said, "Why are you talking about Shea, Elliot? Do you take her as a shield to hide all your mistakes? I'm in her debt, not yours. Even if she is your biological sister, the two of you are completely different entities. If you still have a heart in there somewhere, you would stop bringing up her name whenever we discuss our issues. She is not your pawn. She is already dead, can't you just let her rest in peace?!"

A sharp pain shot through Elliot's heart and soon spread towards his limbs. She had misunderstood him.

He did not mention Shea to appear innocent, he simply wanted to visit Shea's grave with Avery and tell her the truth about what happened in the past.

Avery asked him why he was diagnosed with mental illnesses when he was young and it had something to do with Shea.

He remembered distinctively that it was a full moon that night because it was the middle of Autumn, and his mother had taken Shea back home to celebrate.

Chapter 897

Shea usually stayed out and would only return home on certain occasions.

Elliot was happy to see his sister that day, but his father seemed to be in a bad mood.

After having a few glasses to drink, his father suddenly started beating Shea. All the joy and fantasies were shattered at that very moment. The servants in the house ran off and Shea was wailing from being beaten; his mother was pulling his father back in an attempt to stop him, but his father shoved her aside forcefully.

In the end, his elder brother helped his mother back into her room while his father dragged Shea outside.

The moonlight shone through the night, but all Elliot saw was darkness. He wanted to end the misery and the source of it was his father.

If he killed his father, his family would not suffer any longer.

That night, he put an end to his father's life with his own hands.

"Avery, it's not what you think... Shea is my closest family, how could I..."

Elliot tried to explain.

Just then, the door to Avery's bedroom was pushed open.

Layla held a form in her hand and ran towards Avery "Mom! Who are you talking to?"

Layla stared at Avery's phone curiously and said, "Our teachers gave us a form and we are to have our parents fill it out before bringing it back to school tomorrow. I almost forgot about it!"

Avery swiftly hung up the phone and took the form from her daughter's hand.

"I will fill it out right now." Avery set her phone down to look for a pen.

"Mom, what is written on the form?"

Layla followed Avery around.

"It's a form for family information."

Avery sat down by the table once she found a pen.

"I didn't have to fill out this sort of document back when I was a student, though."

"Oh. Why is it necessary now, then?"

"Maybe the teachers are just trying to get to know you better."

Avery did not think that family background had anything to do with the students' performance at school, but if the school said to do so, she might as well fill in the form.

However, she hesitated when she reached the blank that was meant for the father's name.

'Should I put Elliot's name on it?' she thought, "The teachers will definitely take extra care of Layla from now on if I put Elliot's name here"

After thinking it through for a moment, she decided to leave it blank.

Elliot stared at his phone after Avery hung up and felt terribly depressed.

He couldn't explain his past in a few words and decided that he could only wait until Jun's wedding to explain it to Avery in person.

Avery twisted and turned that night, unable to fall asleep.

Elliot did not have the chance to finish what he had to say, but he had not called or messaged her back since she had finished filling up the form for Layla.

If he did not intend on talking, she didn't want to ask about it either because they were already in an argument; she was worried that continuing on the same topic would only bring further damage to their relationship.

At three in the morning, she finally drifted off to sleep restlessly.

She had a dream of Charlie, who had passed away recently.

Inside her dream, she had just met Charlie and he was a respectful gentleman to her; suddenly, he grabbed onto her arm with a vicious expression and shouted, "Elliot Foster is a murderer! He is a murderer! Avery, stay away from him! Otherwise, he's going to kill you next!"

Chapter 898

Avery woke up from the nightmare.

It was dawn outside the window, and she sat up to switch on the lights.

The room brightened instantly and the fear within her slowly faded as she looked around her familiar surroundings.

She picked up her phone to check the time; it was half-past six in the morning.

Her body felt like it was both freezing and burning at the same time, and when she raised her hand to touch her chin, she came into contact with a thick layer of sweat.

Her heart was still throbbing from the dream and she knew that her phone conversation with Elliot triggered the nightmare.

She had somehow filled in the blanks of what Elliot had not managed to finish.

It was not a random dream; Charlie had indeed said something similar to her in the past.

The only difference was that he had not gone into the details at the time because he had only heard rumors.

In her dream, not only was Elliot a murderer, he was going after her life as well.

Avery felt as though there was a stone pressing against her chest and the suffocating pain overwhelmed her.

She got out of bed and walked toward the bathroom.

She kept consoling herself, saying that it was just a dream.

Though dreams might come true, they were mostly far from reality.

She had not wronged Elliot in any way, so why would he kill her? If Elliot wanted to kill her to obtain custody of the children, he didn't have to wait and could have done so at this very moment; if Elliot was going to kill her during an episode of his mental outburst, then that was what it was and she couldn't possibly resist.

After a shower, she regained her composure and was no longer too frightened.

She stepped out of the bathroom and went to the closet to retrieve a new set of clothes to change into.

During the time she was in the shower, the sky had brightened up. She turned off the lights and went to open the curtains.

Instantly, her attention was caught by the golden-colored winter Jasmine on the wall of the yard.

Her mother had planted those when she was alive.

Ever since she had passed away, Avery would feel her mother's gentle eyes on her whenever she saw the flowers.

If only Laura was still alive, she would help to take care of Robert at home, in the present.

She had always mentioned that she wanted to find a job once Hayden and Layla grew up, or else it would be too boring to remain at home.

Avery had agreed at the time and told Laura to manage her finances in the future, Avery had thought that Laura would be happy to hear it, but to her surprise, Laura completely gave up on finding a job.

She thought that she was too old to catch up with the ever-changing society, and was worried that she would make a mistake and slow Avery down instead.

Tears welled up in Avery's eyes and soon rolled down her face at the memories.

'It's Wanda who killed my mother!' She thought, 'I want her dead!' In the morning at Tate Industries, Avery called Shaun into her office.

Chapter 899

"I told you to keep an eye out for any movements made by Wonder Technologies. What's going on over there right now?" Avery asked.

"Wanda has hidden away from the public, saying that she has fallen sick. Right now, another stakeholder of the company manages all operations of Wonder Technologies,"

Shaun said, "While you were recovering from childbirth, Wonder Technologies kept making huge moves. They first bought out an online shopping platform that was about to announce bankruptcy, before establishing an alliance with dozens of enterprises... They are switching markets because they know that they couldn't beat us in drones, so now they are trying to develop towards the electronics field."

Avery remained thoughtful for a moment.

"Has Wanda been kicked out of the game?" Shaun shook his head.

"No. The company might be switching to a different field, but the management style still belongs to Wanda. I heard from a friend that their goal is to list."

Avery lowered her gaze and started thinking of ways to counteract.

"Avery, have you ever considered listing the company? Your enterprise has been a huge success overseas but you haven't had it listed yet."

"Yes, I won't consider it," she said, "I can still make money without listing my company. There are far too many restrictions that come with being listed so I don't like it."

"Hahaha! I knew it. Quite a lot of people have come and asked me if we need investments and I've turned them all down; Wanda is the exact opposite of you, who kept trying to attract assets. She has to keep throwing money into the market if she wants to attract more consumers, so it's kind of like she is paying for consumers... If she manages to become the number one in the industry and have her company listed, everyone else will lose to her."

Avery studied the longing look on Shaun's face and asked, "Do you want to work for her?"

"I won't lie. Their HR did contact me, but I turned down the offer. Making money is important, but so is being happy at work. I prefer your management style, which just focuses on doing what we do best and not getting distracted."

"I can feel myself wavering."

Avery confessed her struggle and said, "I wanted to take an eye for an eye. I want to kill Wanda and have her suffer a horrible death..."

Shaun gasped.

"Avery, I understand how you feel, but there will be consequences if you are caught. The company cannot survive without you, and your children need you. Karma will soon come for a woman as vicious as Wanda."

"But what if she doesn't ever get what's coming for her? My mother has lived her life modestly and carefully, but look at what the gods have done to her!"

Avery sobbed, "If only I had no kids and nothing to lose, I wouldn't have allowed her to live until now! I don't care if it costs me my life, as long as she dies!"

"Calm down, Avery,"

Shaun walked to her side and consoled her, "It's not the right time yet. You are at a stage where you are meant to grow stronger. Work hard on your business for now. Wanda might look like she is having the time of her life right now, but getting listed is not that easy, besides, if I'm not mistaken, Elliot has been keeping an eye on her in the dark as well. She doesn't dare to return to Aryadelle right now because she is afraid of Elliot's retaliation."

Avery instantly calmed down at Shaun's words.

"How do you know?"

"I heard it from someone else. For someone that loves attention as much as Wanda does, she has disappeared for far too long. What illness could she have that requires her to be away for months?" Shaun said with a smile.

"There are plenty of eyes on her! Don't worry."

"What about Trustie Capital?"

"Chelsea took over it. Her face is ruined, so she's keeping a low profile. I'm guessing that she will be busy handling matters of operation these few days! After all, most of the employees in Trust Capital are loyal to her brother."

Avery nodded.

"Avery, everyone in Sterling Group knows that you scolded Elliot over the roses yesterday,"

Shaun reminded her, "I heard that he had accidentally answered the phone on speaker mode, so everyone in the meeting room heard every single word you shouted at him."

"???"

"His vice-president contacted me in private, asking me to talk some sense into you so you would stop being so rude to his boss." Stunned, Avery's face started flushing instantly.

"Ahem. Whoever got you the roses, it was not that big a deal and you didn't have to be that offended. I will go out now if there's nothing else you need from me."

Noticing her embarrassment, Shaun immediately went out.

After the door closed, Avery massaged her temples when suddenly, the phone she had set down on the table started ringing. She picked up the phone and saw an unknown number on the screen that originated from Bridgedale.

After a few moments of hesitation, she answered the phone.

Chapter 900

The gentle voice of a man came through the phone.

"Avery."

Avery immediately recognized the voice.

"Adrian!"

She had not expected Adrian to call her.

"Is this your number, or are you calling me with your family member's phone?"

"My elder brother bought me a phone,"

Adrian said, "He bought it for me because I said that I wanted to call you."

Avery chuckled.

"Have you been discharged? How are you feeling?"

"I-"

Before Adrian could finish, a rough voice of a middle-aged man interrupted him.

"It's late, Adrian, why aren't you sleeping? Who are you talking to? The doctor said you need rest."

It was Adrian's father.

"Give me your phone. I will give it back tomorrow."

Shortly after, the call ended.

Avery scowled at her phone after they hung up.

Although Adrian was ill, it had been days since his surgery and he was not a child anymore; she was surprised that his father would not give him the freedom to make a phone call.

Adrian's father made it appear as though he was doing it for Adrian's own good, but in truth, he was just trying to take full control over Adrian.

Rage boiled within Avery, but she was helpless in this regard.

Thankfully, she had obtained his contact, and judging from his voice, Adrian was doing much better compared to a few days ago.

In the evening, Avery drove home and saw Chad there as well.

She was immediately reminded of what she heard about Elliot from Shaun earlier that day as soon as she spotted Chad.

"Chad,"

Avery leaned closer to him and lowered her voice, "Did Elliot answer my call on speakerphone yesterday?"

"Yeah. He didn't do it on purpose, though the secretary spilled coffee on his phone and the screen got a little slippery," Chad said.

Avery tensed at the confirmation.

"Doesn't that mean he's embarrassed himself?" Chad nodded.

"He sure did! From yesterday up until now, everyone in the company has been talking about that. Mr. Foster might appear like he doesn't care, but I think he is quite upset about it. His image to all his employees has been destroyed."

"I didn't know that he was on speakerphone," Avery explained awkwardly.

"It's fine. Mr. Foster isn't alone; you've embarrassed yourself as well,"

Chad consoled, "Not only have the others been talking about Mr. Foster, they have been talking about you as well."

"What are you two talking about? Come eat!"

Mike walked over and wrapped his arm around Chad's shoulders, before looking over at Avery.

"Chad didn't dare to come when I first called him here for dinner today, Avery. He thought that you were still mad about what happened last weekend. Hahaha! I told him that you act petty when you are with Elliot, but are quite forgiving to practically anyone else. Now he ought to believe me!"

Avery glared at him.

"I can tolerate that you are speaking ill of me behind my back, but can you not repeat what you said in front of me all over again?"

"Does it even count as speaking ill of you? I'm saying that you have courage."

Mike noticed the cold expression on her face and instantly changed the topic.

"By the way, I helped ask Hayden and Layla about the first of April and they both don't want to attend Jun's wedding."

Avery looked at her two children.

"Hayden, Layla, are you really not going? Your Aunt Tammy will be there!"

Hayden shook his head.

"I'm busy."

"Uncle Jun made Aunt Tammy sad, so I'm not going to his wedding." Layla pouted.

Avery recalled the message she received from Elliot the night before.

Elliot wanted her to take the children to Jun's wedding because he wanted to see them, but since both Hayden and Layla did not want to go, Avery did not intend on trying to change her children's minds for Elliot's sake.

Soon, it was the first of April and April's fool; it was also the day of Jun's wedding.

Once Avery woke up, she called Tammy, but no one picked up.

Chapter 901

She lowered her gaze thoughtfully, before hurrying off to the bathroom to wash up.

Tammy had mentioned to her before that she was going to attend Jun's wedding, but now that she couldn't get in touch with Tammy, Avery was slightly concerned.

Had Tammy changed her mind last minute and decided not to go, or has she been provoked to do something stupid? Shortly after, Avery got dressed and hurried out of her room with her purse.

When Mrs.Cooper saw her running out, she asked, "Avery, what's wrong? It's still early.

Do you want to have your breakfast before heading out? I thought the wedding wasn't until noon? Avery went towards the door and changed her shoes.

"I'll pass on breakfast.I need to go find Tammy."

The bodyguard drove her to Tammy's house and she pushed the door open as soon as the car stopped.

Tammy's mother was watering the plants in the yard and when she spotted Avery, she immediately said, "Avery, Tammy headed out early today.Didn't she tell you?"

Avery froze.

"She went to the hotel?"

"Yes! I'm guessing that she didn't sleep last night! I heard noises from her room even before dawn."

Mrs.Lynch sighed and continued, "Her dad and I didn't want her to go, but she won't listen.She has always been stubborn ever since she was a little girl.Why would she attend that wedding? It's almost like she wants to get hurt.That silly child!"

"Don't worry, Auntie, I will go look for her right away."

"Keep an eye on her, Avery, I'm worried that she might do something out of line," Mrs.Lynch reminded.

After exiting the Lynch Mansion, Avery made another call to Tammy, and it was still not picked up.

Half an hour later, a car stopped in front of the hotel where the wedding took place.

Jun's parents were welcoming the guests by the door.

Avery strode over and handed the gifts to one of the staff, before looking over at Jun's parents.

"Uncle, Auntie, has Tammy arrived?"

Avery had taken a glance at the guests' registration list but didn't see Tammy's name on it.

"She's not here! I thought she would be coming here with you!"

Mrs.Hertzie said.

Avery's blood ran cold.

"Auntie, I will go find Tammy first and come back later."

Avery walked out of the hotel lobby and her attention was instantly caught by the fountain ahead of her.

Next to the fountain, sat a slim woman. It was Tammy.

Avery hurried over to her and sat down next to Tammy.

"Tammy, I called you but you didn't pick up."

Avery held Tammy's freezing hands and hesitated for a moment, before saying, "Elliot told me a few days ago that this wedding was a test Jun prepared for you."

Tammy's makeup melted under her tears. She took a deep breath and rested her head on Avery's shoulder.

"I just suddenly don't care anymore, Avery. Let Jun marry another woman! It's bad enough that I have to suffer, there is no need to drag him into it with me."

"Whatever your decision is, Tammy, you have my full support,"

Avery consoled, "It's too cold out here. Let's go inside."

Avery took Tammy's hand and brought her into the hotel.

Jun's parents spotted Tammy and they both tried to say something but decided against it in the end.

Avery and Tammy walked into the event hall hand in hand and started seeing the photos of the bride and groom at every corner.

Tammy tensed at the sight of the wedding photos.

"Avery... Jun lied to me!"

Tears welled up in Tammy's eyes as she gritted out, "The fiancé he introduced to me before is not the woman in the photos."

Chapter 902

At ten in the morning, most of the guests had arrived.

All the guests gathered in small groups and chatted with wine in their hands at different corners of the hall.

Avery accompanied Tammy and sat down by the table. She could sense watchful eyes directed at them.

Naturally, the others were not looking at her, but at Tarmy.

A lot of people were surprised to see Tammy attend Jun's wedding as his exwife, everyone was curious as to whether something interesting would happen when the bride and groom showed up "Mike is here."

Tammy nibbled at the pistachio and glanced at the entrance from the corner of her eyes, informing Avery of each guest they knew when they arrived.

Avery looked over at the entrance and saw Mike coming in with Chad.

"To be honest, I am really jealous of them right now,"

Tammy confessed casually, "What is the conflict between Jun and I when compared to the adversities those two have to go through?"

"If it makes you feel any better, you're right. During new years, Mike went to Chad's hometown and came close to being beaten. Whatever happened between you and June, at least the two of you wouldn't have to come to that."

"Mike is so brave."

"So are you! I didn't even think of attending Elliot's wedding the last time."

"It's different. If it was Chad who dumped me, I probably wouldn't attend his wedding."

"Oh."

"Elliot is here."

Tammy's sharp eyes locked onto the man.

Avery froze.

She did not look over, because she could sense his eyes on her.

Elliot walked over and both Mike and Chad followed.

Mike instantly tried to sit down next to Avery, and without hesitation, Chad pulled him away and sat him down on a seat that was a chair away from

Avery, before sitting down next to him.

Everyone else took the hint and sat down, leaving an empty seat next to Avery for Elliot.

Elliot did not notice anything odd about the arrangement and sat down next to Avery; Avery immediately leaned toward Tammy to protest silently.

"Avery, why did you wake up so early today? Mrs.Cooper said that you went out at around seven in the morning,"

Mike said in an attempt to lighten up the mood.

"Avery called me this morning and I didn't pick up because my phone was on silent mode.She went out early to look for me because she was worried about me," Tammy explained.

"Oh, I was wondering why she left without telling me!"

Mike studied Tammy's face and said, "Did you cry, Tammy? Your eyes are all swollen."

Chad glared at him.

"Shut up if you don't know what's the right thing to say."

"Oh.Today's the best day for fun, why are you all looking so sad..." Mike continued.

Chad stared daggers at him.

"Shut up already!"

Mike took a deep breath and took out his phone to play games reluctantly.

Tammy turned her attention to Ben and said, "Ben, you must have really enjoyed the show when Jun brought his fiancé to come to say hi to me during Elliot's wedding, right?"

"Huh? I wasn't enjoying any show!"

"The woman he brought in front of me isn't even the same woman as the one in the wedding photos! Do you all take me for a fool?"

Tammy felt extremely offended.

"Oh, that! I told him off about it that time."

"Why didn't you tell me about it, then?" Tammy complained.

"Was it important? I didn't think so. You two are divorced, so what difference does it make when it comes to whoever he marries?"

Ben was adding fuel to the fire.

"Ben, stop talking already!"

Chad noticed that Tammy was about to explode and immediately interfered.

Ben took a sip of water, before taking out his phone as well.

Avery felt as though she was suffocating under the atmosphere and subconsciously reached out for the pistachios, before starting to deshell them.

Chapter 903

Elliot noticed and mirrored her motions.

Half an hour later, he placed all the unshelled pistachios into a bowl and pushed it towards Avery.

Avery took one glance and said, "I don't want it."

"Then I won't continue."

Avery passed the bowl to Tammy and Tammy's expression instantly transformed into a face that looked worse than crying.

"Your man gave that to you, so I'm not going to be the third wheel here!

Besides, it's bad to eat too many nuts!"

Avery immediately took the bowl back.

"I'm fine with ruining my health, give it to me!"

Mike snatched the bowl from Avery and said cheerfully to Elliot, "I guess a successful man is just good at everything. You are definitely going to win if there's a competition for deshelling nuts."

Avery noticed that Elliot's expression had darkened from the corner of her eyes. She took a deep breath and took the bowl back from Mike.

Ben was trying his best to hold his laughter in.

Chad kicked at Mike.

"Why are you kicking at me? Elliot knows to deshell pistachios for the person he likes; you are his assistant, can't you learn from him?"

Mike grabbed a handful of pistachios to place them before Chad and lifted an eyebrow.

"Start right now!"

"You do it, or you are walking home later!" Chad said.

Mike took a deep breath and set his phone down, before starting to deshell the pistachios he grabbed. Tammy leaned toward Avery and whispered into her ears, before getting up to leave.

Everyone watched as Tammy left and immediately erupted into discussions.

"Avery, what did Tammy say to you?" Mike asked.

"She said she is going to the washroom."

"Oh, I thought the two of you were plotting something!"

Mike probed, "Is she going to do something today?"

Mike had heard from Chad that Jun was waiting for Tammy to destroy his wedding.

"She is, but I'm not telling you anything."

"I already know even if you refuse to tell me. Tammy is going to stop the wedding, right?"

"If you are a prophet, why don't you help me check to see when Wanda is going to die?"

"..."

At half – past eleven, the bride and groom arrived at the hotel; and Tammy had not returned since she left for the washroom an hour ago.

Everyone was now certain that Tammy was going to act.

Even if she wasn't going to stop the wedding, she would definitely cause a scene.

Jun did not see Tammy in the hall and sent a message to the chat group asking, 'Where is Tammy?'

"Jun, you are probably going to win"Chad typed.

'Tammy has disappeared for an hour.I think you are going to win as well" Ben typed.

Jun couldn't be more excited.

'I'll start the wedding now, then!'

The wedding ceremony was scheduled to start at twelve, but the groom had moved it ahead of time by half an hour.

The ceremony started and romantic music echoed within the hall.

Jun stood on top of the stage and looked around when suddenly, a figure in red appeared before him.

"Jun Hertz, it's April Fool's Day today."

Tammy stood before him and stared at him with cold eyes.

"Who are you trying to fool? Let me tell you: now that I am here, you are not getting married!"

"What do you want to do then?" Jun asked emotionlessly.

"What do I want to do? I am taking back my own words! You are not living happily ever after if I don't get to!"

Tammy grabbed onto his wrist and demanded loudly, "Come with me!"

Below the stage, the screen of Avery's phone lit up. She brought it closer and saw the message from Elliot.

'Avery, give me another chance!'

Chapter 904

She felt dazed.

They were sitting right next to one another, was it necessary to chat through messages? After sending Avery the message, Elliot opened the chat group while waiting for her to reply.

Tammy is so fierce! What kind of script is that? If this is a TV show, I am definitely going to call whoever directed it a mad man; but why do those words sound so romantic coming out of Tammy's mouth?' Ben typed.

'Jun knows Tammy best, after all! Does this mean we need to make a transaction to Jun now?' Chad typed.

'Jun has earned a fortune this time!' Ben replied.

'Mike is asking me to add him into this group. Should I?' Chad asked.

'You must want it for you to even ask. Go ahead and tell him to send money to Jun as well!'

'System notification: Mike has entered the chat'

Mike sent an animated picture of himself after entering the chat group and no one could dream of being as coquettish as he was.

Elliot, Ben, and Chad all made transactions to the group.

Mike had not expected to be welcomed by so much money upon entering the group and was instantly overjoyed.

He clicked on each of the transactions and took them for himself.

'F*ck! Who told you to accept those?! Those are for Jun! @Mike' Chad typed.

Mike's expression was filled with disbelief.

'Hmph! It's mine now! You can all send him money again! You three are the president, the Chief Financial Officer, and the president's assistant of Sterling Group, you can't possibly be this stingy, can you?! @Elliot' Elliot immediately made another transaction.

'As expected of the professional nut sheller, you sure are fast when it comes to sending money! I wonder if you are this fast in bed as well"

Chad kicked Mike out of the group mercilessly.

After being kicked out of the group, Mike was furious so he sent Avery a message.

'Avery, the guys created a chat group and are talking about you in there!'

Avery saw the message and immediately turned to stare at Elliot.

Sensing her eyes on him, Elliot set his phone down and met her eyes.

Meanwhile, Tammy and Jun were looking into one another's eyes on stage. Everyone thought that Jun would follow Tammy soon, but the reality was different from what they had imagined

"What makes you think I would go with you, Tammy Lynch?! You can just say you regret it? Who do you take me for?"

Jun said proudly, "Back when we were together, I listened to you all the time, but it doesn't mean that you are right about everything! It's just because I love you that I stood by your actions, even when you were wrong!"

"Then keep loving me!"

Tammy felt a lump in her throat and shouted.

Everyone below the stage burst into laughter.

"Just look at you, Tammy Lynch! You are still as arrogant as ever. You have no respect for my ego!"

Jun broke free from her hand and said, "You were the one who insisted on divorcing me and wouldn't listen no matter how hard I begged. Now, you are asking me to ignore all your mistakes just because you say so? Impossible!"

"I'm sorry!"

Tammy broke down in tears.

"I apologize to you, Jun Hertz! I apologize, okay?"

Avery's heart ached when she heard Tammy crying.

Just then, the screen of her phone lit up once again from another message Elliot sent her.

'I can apologize to you in public as well'

Avery's face burned and swiftly moved her fingers across the screen to type.

'Go ahead if you want to embarrass yourself. Don't drag me along'

She didn't think that what was happening between Jun and Tammy was embarrassing; everyone had their own ways to handle issues and there were different degrees to what people could accept.

She did not enjoy having her family and friends as audiences for her private matters.

Jun took the microphone from the emcee and said, "Tammy Lynch, if we get back together, are you going to divorce me again?!"

Chapter 905

He asked his question and directed the microphone at Tammy.

"...Never again! Jun, even if you don't want me anymore in the future, I will never let go again! "

"Are you going to find another guy just to annoy me again?!"

"Never! I won't do that again!"

Tammy cried out and threw herself into his arms, before wrapping her arms around him.

Below the stage, Mike shouted, "Kiss! Kiss!"

No one else cheered along, because this was not what Jun's parents had hoped to see.

They had sincerely wanted their son to marry again and start a new life.

On the other end, everyone on the bride's side, except for the bride herself, was furious.

Chad regretted sitting next to Mike.

"Can't you use that mouth of yours to eat?"

"Ah! They are kissing!"

Mike shouted in excitement, "Tammy initiated it!"

Had Jun been hesitant and upset before, all the hesitation had faded the moment Tammy kissed him, and he responded passionately.

Shortly after, he took Tammy's hand and went towards his parents.

"Dad, Mom, I'm not getting married. It would be great if you can accept Tammy; if you can't, then I will marry into her family instead."

With that, he dragged Tammy away swiftly.

Avery was relieved to see the two leave together, but at the same time, she looked over at the bride with concern.

"Don't worry, Avery. The bride studied in the same elementary school as Jun. She knows that Jun is still in love with Tammy and has predicted this outcome. This is just her playing along with the plot for Jun. He will thank her properly later," Ben explained.

Avery relaxed.

Though the wedding was called off, all the food was already on the table so there was no reason for the guests to not eat.

After lunch, Avery planned on delivering Tammy's purse but Ben immediately snatched it away from her.

"Avery, Jun told us to go to his place later so I will pass Tammy her purse."

Avery took out her phone awkwardly to send Tammy a message about this; by the time she was done, everyone was gone and Elliot was the only one standing by her side. She went straight towards the elevator.

"Elliot, stop sending me messages like that. I can't give you another chance."

Elliot followed her into the elevator and asked, "Do you have any plans for the rest of the day?"

Avery's original plan was to accompany Tammy as she attended Jun's wedding; with the wedding canceled and Tammy back together with Jun, she planned on heading home to sleep.

"If you don't have any plans, let's hang out for a bit!"

Elliot proposed, "I won't make you do anything or force our children into acknowledging me as their father."

The elevator stopped at the first floor and the two stepped out of the hotel. The weather was great.

Though the temperature was not at all low, it was windy.

Avery was dressed in an emerald green vintage dress with a thin jacket on the outside.

When the cold breeze blew by, she felt frozen to the bones.

Elliot took his jacket off and rested it on her shoulders.

"I'm not cold "

Avery noticed that he only had a shirt inside the jacket and immediately returned his jacket to him.

"Neither am I."

He took her palm into his hands.

His big, strong hands wrapped around her freezing hand with warmth. She instantly blushed.

"You are weak to the cold during winter, why would you come out here baring your legs?"

He placed the jacket on her once again and turned his attention to her smooth, fair legs.

Chapter 906

She had been in a hurry when she headed out in the morning.

Without paying much attention to the weather, she grabbed a jacket and left her house; apart from that, she had not intended on staying outside for long.

"Let's grab a cup of coffee!"

He suggested, "I don't want to."

She had too much to eat at lunch.

"Let's just walk!"

"Sure."

With his jacket on her shoulders, she could sense his scent penetrating into her as he occupied her thoughts. If the man next to her wasn't Elliot, she would definitely not remain out in the cold wind.

"You have misunderstood me the last time we spoke on the phone," he said, breaking the silence.

"I didn't mention Shea to evade the topic. I was sad that you said that."

Avery's heart settled down at his low, husky voice, though she might have argued with him had he mentioned this on the phone.

"Why did you mention Shea then? Elliot, we aren't kids anymore and I don't enjoy guessing around." She raised her leg and kicked at a small rock on the roadside.

She had forgotten that she was wearing heels and stumbled, so she frantically grabbed onto his arm to steady herself and he immediately wrapped his arm around her.

Their faces were inches away from one another, close enough to easily read the emotions in each other's eyes.

"Are your feet okay?"

He swallowed hard and asked in a hoarse voice.

She immediately shoved his arm away and shook her head after regaining her balance.

"Should be."

"Let's go get coffee."

After a moment of hesitation, he started looking around for a cafe.

"I don't want coffee, Elliot."

She stood still and stared at his back.

"If this was the past and you wanted coffee when I didn't, I might have compromised, thinking that I can make you happy by obeying you on small things like that; but now, I don't want to obey you against my will any longer."

He was stunned by her words.

The reason he insisted on getting coffee was not because he actually wanted coffee, but because he didn't want her to be exposed in the cold or stumble on her feet again.

There was merely a meter between the two, which felt neither distant nor close. She did not walk towards him, and neither did he approach her.

The wind was howling as though it was mocking the dilemma they were in.

"Many years ago, I killed my father and my mother took me to a psychiatrist. That psychiatrist wrote me a proof of mental illness," he said emotionlessly, "I'm not sure if I really am sick in the head or whether it was my mother who told the psychiatrist to do it so that I can escape from the consequences."

Avery felt her blood freezing at his explanation as the nightmare she had a few nights ago came to mind.

Charlie mentioned that Elliot was a murderer, but she had never believed that it was true.

On top of that, it wasn't a stranger that he killed, but his own father.

Avery couldn't help but clench her fists. Her mind ran wild and she didn't know what to say in response or what to do next.

How could Elliot be someone like that? He noticed the struggle and suffering on her face and strode up to her.

"It's too cold out here. Let's go get coffee!"

She allowed him to drag her into a cafe like a puppet and once they were inside, he helped remove his jacket from her shoulders. The two sat down by the window; he ordered a black coffee for himself and a latte for her.

"Do you think I'm scary?" He reached out and held her hand.

Chapter 907

Startled, she immediately retracted her hand, "Don't touch me, Elliot!"

She stared at him in fear as though she was facing a monster.

He said he was ill and she thought that she could accept whatever illness he had; but now that he said he had murdered someone, and that it was his father no less, she couldn't find a way to accept it.

He felt a lump in his throat at her reaction.

There was so much more that he wished to tell her, but he knew that she might not want to listen.

The waiter brought over the coffee and set the cups down in front of them.

Avery took the cup and took a big sip; Elliot, on the other hand, looked at her calmly and waited for her to calm down.

"Elliot Foster, if you are capable of murdering your own father, what else are you not capable of in this world?"

She had slightly calmed down, but still felt unsettled. She had thought that she knew the man before her, but he could always surprise or scare her.

"Are you going to judge me without even asking me why I did it?" He responded coldly.

"What kind of reason could you have?!" She lowered her voice furiously.

"No matter the reason, murder is wrong! It's written in law that murder is a criminal act, no matter who you kill! You could have left it to the legal system to punish him if your father had committed a great crime instead of killing him yourself!"

"But what if the law can't punish him?"

He retorted, "If Wanda continues to live her life happily after, wouldn't you want to kill her?"

"It's different!"

Avery's eyes reddened as she gritted out, "Wanda killed my mom! What about your father? What did he do to be murdered by you?!"

"He was going to beat Shea to death!"

He looked directly into her eyes as he tightened his grip on the coffee cup and gritted out, "You told me not to mention Shea, and I don't want to either, because her life had been nothing but a complete tragedy."

All the rage, misunderstanding and resentment within Avery instantly faded.

She panicked to pick up her cup and took a sip of her coffee, while Elliot mirrored her motion.

The two silently sipped on their drinks as they tried to calm themselves.

Avery felt much warmer once she finished her coffee, so she gazed up again to face Elliot.

"Charlie Tierney knows about this, doesn't he? The reason that you were threatened by him was because you don't want others to find out about your mental state or that you've committed murder, is that right?"

"What would you have done if you were me?" He directed the question back at her.

"What happened behind the door should stay inside. My mother might have passed away, but her presence and Shea made me feel like I was not alone. Is it wrong of me to not want this to go public?"

"You're not wrong."

Avery got up and said, "Let's take a walkie outside!"

She felt as though she was burning up and was itching for a taste of the breeze.

He paid the bill and walked her out of the cafe.

Cars were racing through the roads and people were hurrying past them.

"Elliot, I need some time to process all this information," she said.

"Yeah."

He was not in a rush. He had confessed to her so that she would stop misunderstanding him, not so that she would take pity on him.

"Was I overreacting just now?"

She blushed at what she had said earlier inside the cafe.

"I should have asked you why instead of blindly accusing you."

"I don't blame you. I would have probably acted that way, too, if you told me that you've murdered someone."

"Oh... I've never killed anyone before." She lowered her gaze.

"I do want Wanda dead, but there's too much to worry about."

"Don't act rashly. I will find a way to deal with her."

He squeezed her hand once and let go immediately.

Avery hung the jacket on her arm and he was worried that she might feel cold; luckily, her hand was warm when he touched it.

"Elliot, don't ever do stuff like that again."

She grabbed onto his arm and stopped him.

"I know that you are not afraid, but these kinds of things are quite scary."

His lips curled into a bitter smile.

"Do you think that I don't long for warmth and love?"

Chapter 908

If only his father was an ordinary father like any other, he would not have become Elliot Foster, known for being ferocious and cruel.

Avery stared at him dazedly, unable to say a word. She had never imagined that behind his seemingly successful life, hid such a miserable past.

She had thought that she had it hard enough after her father's affair, her parents' divorce and being bullied by her step-mother, she hadn't expected that Elliot had it worse than her.

Her misery was on the outside and everyone knew about it; whereas his could only be hidden away within his heart.

"Don't look at me like that, Avery." He scowled.

"I don't need your pity." She shook her head.

"I'm not pitying you. I am just thinking if we would have saved all the trouble if only you had told me this earlier."

"My personality made it impossible for me to tell you any earlier than this," he said as he strolled forward.

"My love for you accumulated day after day until it reached a certain level, before I could completely open up to you. Avery Tate, I want to be with you; not because of the children or out of impulse."

"I hate this about you," she complained, "I've told you everything about me in the first year we started seeing each other, yet you have been keeping secrets. You say that you didn't understand the concept of true love until now, when our children are almost at my height. How ridiculous is that? Why don't you wait and tell me all that when I am old and gray?"

He turned around to look at her.

"I'm sorry."

"Apologizing means nothing. It doesn't make me feel any better and it only reminds me of how broken-hearted your fickleness has left me." She handed him his jacket and continued, "The new heels are hurting my feet. I should head home now."

She bought those heels when she went shopping with Tammy the last time. They felt comfortable when she tried them on at the time, but she just realized they didn't fit after walking some distance in them.

It was just like how a couple would attract one another with their strengths, before finally realizing each other's' shortcomings in the long run.

"Avery, do you really think that I am a fickle man?" He asked.

"Believe it or not, Elliot, your absence would have saved me from ninety percent of the pain and trouble I've suffered so far,"

Avery said with certainty, "Of course, the kids are exceptions."

"You are right, but to me, I have not been heartless to you. Other than Shea, you are the one woman that I care most for."

With that, he strode off.

Avery was stunned for a moment, thinking, 'He left just like that? Is he angry? He said that he cares for me and now he is leaving me on the street? I just mentioned that the heels are hurting my feet and he intends on just letting me walk back to the hotel? Though, I wouldn't have let him carry me back even if he proposed to do so...'

Avery sighed a heavy breath and took out her phone to find a message from Tammy.

'Avery, I feel like the colors have finally returned to my world. I knew the gods wouldn't be this cruel to me. Jun is still the man I know. He didn't abandon me. I won't act rashly everie again"

'Yeah! What are you doing now?' Avery replied.

'We are back at our place together. I am cleaning up the room. Jun and Ben are chatting in the living room"

'You are cleaning on your own? Get the maid to do it!" I asked to clean myself.

Regaining what I've lost felt like winning the lottery, you know?' Avery could not understand the feeling Tammy was speaking of because her relationship with Elliot was stuck and rather awkward.

'Why are you replying to my message though? Aren't you with Elliot? You two are not together?' Tammy asked.

'He left and I am getting ready to go home" Avery replied.

Chapter 909

"What is going on with you two right now?' Tammy typed.

"We weren't fighting, but we aren't in the mood to date each other either"

Avery replied.

"My mom said if couples fight too often, even the strongest love would fade"

Avery stared at the message and was not sure how she should reply.

Throughout the years, conflicts between Elliot and her had never ceased. She could still remember how deeply in love she was with him in the past.

However, she simply couldn't fall back in love again, like a moth to a fire.

Elliot must feel the same, otherwise he wouldn't have left her alone on the road after saying that he cared about her most.

Elliot received a message from Ben.

"Tammy said you two went home separately. It's not even dark yet. Is she still having a hard time forgiving you?' She wants to go home. I am staying out here" Elliot replied.

He could sense that Avery was struggling to forgive him for all the things he had done, so he walked away, allowing both of them space to calm down.

'Forget it if it really won't work. Maybe the reason that you two keep fighting is because you just aren't meant for each other. Jun and Tammy are the only couple I know that had the biggest conflict so far; any couples that have it even worse are likely separated"

'I'm thinking about that right now. I've confessed all the details of my past to her just now and she couldn't seem to accept it"

Ben's heart ached at the sight of Elliot's message.

'Elliot, you act too lowly in front of her. No matter what happened in your past, you are still the most brilliant man I know. Of course, she is brilliant too, and she can live a perfect enough life even without you. You are both too dominating to be compatible"

Avery walked back to the hotel and noticed that Elliot's car was still parked inside the parking lot of the hotel when she went to get her car.

She thought that he had left.

The poster for Jun's wedding that was at the hotel entrance had been removed and all the guests had left, so Elliot had no reason to stay.

Where had he gone after leaving her? She stood dazedly next to the car, before being startled by a black figure that appeared out of the blue,

"Miss.Tate, where is my boss?"

It was Elliot's bodyguard.

Avery's chest heaved as she blushed and said, "I don't know.We went our separate ways on the streets.He took off first so I thought he had already left the hotel.I'm a bit surprised to see his car here."

"Oh, did you two fight again?" The bodyguard asked.

"No!"

"That's a lie! Why would you two go separate ways if you didn't fight? If you weren't fighting, Mr.Foster would have come back to the hotel with you."

The bodyguard stared at her furiously.

"You ungrateful woman! You think you can just keep humiliating him simply because you gave birth to his children! I bet that he has never had to put up with anyone's temper this way before!"

If this was any other time, Avery would have been provoked by what the bodyguard said; but after learning about Elliot's past today, her feelings towards him had inevitably changed.

Suddenly, she felt relieved.

"Maybe you are right about me being ungrateful.He has already presented me with his best.I can't take him for a jerk simply because he didn't meet my expectations."

The bodyguard was rendered speechless. He was good at picking fights, not emotional conversations.

After Avery left, the bodyguard took out his phone to call Elliot, before telling him about what happened.

Elliot could feel the fire within his heart ignited once again.

Chapter 910

"Are you sure that's what she said?" Elliot asked.

The bodyguard's mind went blank and suddenly forgot the exact words Avery used.

"Um... In any case, I scolded her and she didn't get angry," he finally said with certainty.

"You scolded her?"

Elliot scowled as he breathed heavily.

"Who gave you the right to scold her?! What did you say?"

Feeling slightly scared and guilty, the bodyguard said with no regret, "I said she was ungrateful, which she is! You treat her so well and not only is she not grateful, she argues and fights with you every single day! I think she is even more of a drama queen than Tammy Lynch! I wouldn't put up with her if I was you! I would just dump her and take her children from her, so that she regrets it so much that she cries herself to sleep every night!"

Elliot gritted his teeth.

He would have punched his bodyguard had he been standing right next to him.

The bodyguard noticed the heavy breathing on the other end of the line and was instantly alerted.

"Mr.Foster, I wasn't this harsh when I was talking to her! She really isn't angry.Call her if you don't believe me! I am trying to help! If you think that my idea is."

"Doo! Doo! Doo!"

Elliot hung up and thought to himself, 'Just how unfortunate do I seem? It's bad enough that Ben and the others take pity on me, and now, even my bodyguard is fighting my battles for me!'

Elliot did not believe that Avery was not angry like his bodyguard had said, but he did not intend on calling her to explain anything.He had told her enough for the day and she must be having a hard time processing the things he said; the one thing she truly couldn't accept was definitely not what his bodyguard had said.

By the time Avery returned home, it was already four in the afternoon.She went back into her room and changed into loose and warm clothes.She hadn't done much, but felt drained.She laid down on the bed as what Elliot said to her earlier echoed in her head.

All the fights they had so far were finally explained; she knew that she was supposed to feel relieved, but in truth, she simply felt troubled because they both paid heavy prices for the past.

She did not blame Elliot, because he was not wrong.She tossed around in bed thoughtfully for a while, before finally drifting off to sleep.

In the evening, Eric sent Layla backed home.

Eric was holding a few shopping bags in his hands and there was a beautiful bag in Layla's hand as well.

"Are my mom and brother back yet?" Layla asked Mrs.Cooper in excitement.

"Uncle Eric bought me a lot of stuff today! He said that he is getting me early birthday gifts! He also bought something forie Hayden!"

"Your mom is sleeping in her room, and your brother isn't back yet! The driver is heading over to pick him up so he should be home soon."

Mrs.Cooper patted Layla on the head and helped with the bags in Eric's hands.

"You didn't have to, Eric."

"Why is Avery still sleeping?"

Eric checked the time and noticed that it was six in the evening "She came back at four in the afternoon.She woke up far too early this morning, so I haven't gone to wake her up,"

Mrs.Cooper said, "Eric, stay for dinner if you are not busy!"

"Sure!"

Eric sat down on the couch, while Layla raced towards the master bedroom, wondering if Tammy was upset about Jun's wedding.She tip-toed towards the bed and saw Avery's phone resting next to the pillow.

Layla's eyes glammed as she stared at the phone, and after a few moments, she took her mother's phone and headed out of the bedroom, only to run into Eric.

Chapter 911

"Uncle Eric, I wanted to call Aunt Tammy." Layla passed Avery's phone to Eric.

"Call her for me." Eric smiled.

"I have Aunt Tammy's contact, put your mother's phone back."

"What if she doesn't answer your call? She is the closest to Mommy.If we call her using Mommy's phone, she will surely answer." Layla insisted.

She even unlocked Avery's phone herself.

Eric gave in to her. He accepted Avery's phone from Layla.

Before he opened her contacts, he noticed a red dot on her message icon. He wanted to open it to have a look, but reason told him that it was wrong to look at other people's private messages without their permission. He found Tammy's number in her contacts and dialed. He put the call in loudspeaker mode.

Soon, Tammy picked up.

"Aunt Tammy! It's me!"

Layla's tone was crisp and sweet.

"Mommy is asleep. I just wanted to know if you're doing fine?"

When Tammy heard Layla's concerns, her eyes reddened immediately.

"Layla, I didn't love you for nothing."

"Hmm! I wanted to go with Mommy, but I didn't want to see Uncle Jun! He has crossed the line. He made you sad. He is a bad person!"

On the other end of the line, Jun was almost in tears, "Layla, babe. I'm very sad to hear you say that. I have reconciled with your Aunt Tammy."

Layla was a little stunned.

Tammy chuckled.

"Layla, I'm all good with Uncle Jun. Although there are some places where he was wrong, I made mistakes too."

"Oh." Layla quickly adjusted her mood.

She smiled.

"Aunt Tammy, as long as you're happy! If Uncle Jun bullies you again, tell me! I'll call him and scold him!"

"Okay."

After the call, Layla looked at the phone. She tapped on the message icon.

When she saw the name Elliot Foster, she immediately clicked to see the chat.

Eric smiled and said, "Layla, do you always secretly play with your mother's phone like that?"

"Hehe, I only look at it occasionally! I just want to see if she is chatting with Daddy." Layla smiled widely.

"She is chatting with Daddy again. Although I don't know what they are talking about, at least they are still talking with each other. That means they haven't cut ties."

Layla entered the bedroom and secretly placed Avery's phone back.

When Avery woke up, it was dark outside. She sat up in alarm and picked up her phone to look at the time. She slapped her forehead! She slept until seven in the evening. She quickly got off the bed and went to the living area.

The children were playing in the living area.

Sounds were coming from the dining hall.

"Mommy, Uncle Eric is having dinner with us. He bought Hayden and me a lot of presents today."

Layla pointed at the shopping bags.

Avery nodded and headed to the dining hall.

Mike was chatting with Elliot.

"Avery, you're up! Go have your meal. The food's probably cold. I'll go reheat it."

Mrs. Cooper saw her and immediately went to reheat the food.

Avery sat down by the dining table. She said to Eric, "He didn't force you to drink right?"

Eric shook his head.

"He's drinking. I'm having fruit juice."

"Avery, what happened to the most basic trust between us?" Mike said in dissatisfaction.

"If I were to force him to drink, Layla would be the first one to say no to it." Avery was relieved.

"Right, about you and Elliot, I heard what Ben said." Mike looked at Avery pitifully.

"Don't be too sad. Out with the old and in with the new. Elliot is not the only man on this earth..."

"What are you talking about?" Avery furrowed her brows.

Her heart constricted tightly.

Mike said, "Ben said that Elliot has thought about it. He feels that you two are incompatible, so he has decided to not be hung up on you anymore."

Chapter 912

Avery's heart sank. They were incompatible with each other.

Did Ben say that or Elliot? Elliot decided not to get entangled with her.

In that case, it must be him that felt that they were incompatible with each other which was why he told Ben that!

"Avery, why are you in a daze? Did I say something wrong again?"

Mike was a little nervous. "Chad was there too. He could be the witness that Ben really said that."

"I do believe you." Avery picked up her utensils.

She quickly collected her thoughts, "Since he finds us incompatible, then I'll respect his opinion!"

"Oh, why do I sense a hint of disappointment in your tone? Don't you hate him? Since he has decided not to get hung up over you, shouldn't you be happy?"

Mike never knew when to hold his tongue. It was not like he had never been in love.

Of course, he knew why Avery was disappointed.

Avery hated Elliot because Elliot did not relieve her of her anger.

If Elliot were to continue coaxing her, once her anger subsided, she could continue to be in love with him.

Avery never expected that Elliot would decide to give up on this so-called mistaken relationship "Whether she is happy or not, this is her own private matter. Mind your own business."

Eric said to shut Mike up.

"I'm just worried she will regret it, okay?" Mike raised his wine glass and took a sip.

"Since Elliot has decided not to get entangled with her, what could Avery do if she regrets it?"

Eric hit the nail on the head.

"You don't have to mock her. If you think that Elliot is great, you can still keep in touch with him."

Mike was suddenly at a loss for words.

"Avery, don't let men affect your mood."

Eric looked at her tenderly and consoled, "Hayden and Layla's birthday is coming up soon. I asked Layla just now. She said she wants a party."

Avery nodded.

"When are you free? Let's find a time when you're available."

"I have already kept the date of their birthday free."

"Eric, you're so considerate and meticulous. If it wasn't for your reminder, I would have forgotten that it was almost their birthday."

Avery wasie touched.

"Layla was the one who told me.She said her birthday was coming soon.Don't think that the children are still young, she actually knows a lot," Eric said, "They also know about how you and Elliot constantly fight."

Avery lowered her gaze.Her lashes fluttered.

"Hmm, perhaps we are really incompatible .If not, we would not have always gotten into fights.Him and I this way would indeed affect the children."

Mrs.Cooper served the reheated dishes and placed them in front of Avery.

Avery had a few bites when Mike asked, "If you're sure about holding a party, I'll go make some reservations."

Avery replied, "Hmm.I didn't throw a birthday party for them last year.Now that they're in school, I have to do a proper one for them this year."

"Leave this to me! But...are you going to invite Elliot? Although you two have already split up, he still is the children's father," Mike had to get to the bottom of this.

If not, Chad would ask him about this later.

"So what if he is the father of the children? Has he ever cared for them one day in his life?"

Eric said, "Since he has decided not to get entangled with her, then he should cut ties completely."

Avery said, "Eric is right.Since he has already made up his mind.He is surely prepared not to contact us anymore.If I invited him, it would only annoy him further."

Mike thought to himself, 'Elliot said that he doesn't want to get hung up over you, surely that doesn't mean he would be so cruel that he wouldn't even acknowledge his kids, right?"

After her meal, Avery went to the living area to ask the children what they wanted as their birthday presents.

"Mommy! I want you to love me even more!"

Layla suggested this as her present.

Hayden replied, "Mommy, you have to love yourself even more."

Avery took a deep breath and smiled.

"You two make me feel like the happiest person on earth."

"Mommy, will there be a lot of people at our birthday party?" Layla started looking forward to the party.

"Do you want to invite your classmates?" Avery asked.

Layla shook her head.

"I'm not close to them yet! Let's invite Hayden's classmates!"

Avery looked at Hayden.

"Hayden, I heard from your teacher that you are close to Daniel. Let's invite him!"

Chapter 913

Hayden said, "I'm equally close to all of my classmates."

Avery thought for a while before saying, "Then, let's invite them all! After all, your class isn't that big."

Layla exclaimed, "Oh yeah! It's more fun with more people!"

Hayden saw how happy Layla was. He could not bear to burst her bubble.

After Eric left, Avery and Mike set the first draft of the guest list.

"Avery, Chad would surely want to come. You have to invite Jun too. If we invite Ben and only not invite Elliot, will he feel that we are deliberately picking on him?"

Mike offered his opinion, "Why don't we not invite Ben too?"

Avery's temples hurt. It was initially a happy occasion, but because of her relationship with Elliot, it became so painful.

"I'll let you handle this!"

Avery said and left to see the children.

Mike sent a message to Chad, explaining the situation to him and asking for his opinion.

[Chad: Mr. Foster said that he doesn't want to get entangled with her only because he did not want to annoy her further, right? He didn't say anything about cutting ties with the children?]

[Mike: I feel so too, but that baby face Eric kept persuading Avery to not invite Elliot.]

[Chad: You better do some soul-searching. You and Eric are her patient. Why would she prefer to listen to Eric? You are the one staying with her!]

[Mike: F*ck! How are you blaming me for this?]

Chad was silent for a while.

After calming down, he replied to Mike's message, [Don't invite Ben. If not, you've invited everyone except Mr. Foster. He would surely be disappointed!]

[Mike: ed Ok!] [Chad: Don't spread the word about this yet! What if Avery suddenly changes her mind before the birthday party?]

[Mike: Sure, go worry about your precious boss. I never saw you being so concerned for me before.]

[Chad: F*ck off!]

At ten at night, Avery returned to her bedroom.

The three children were asleep. It was strangely quiet.

She could hear her own heartbeat. She slept through the evening, so she was wide awake at that moment. She was also extremely confused. She did fight with Elliot that day, but after he came clean to her, she did not say any harsh words to him. She merely said that she needed time to digest what he told her.

Did that hurt him? Did he think that she did not forgive him immediately because she could not accept his past, so he thought they were incompatible? Avery sighed.

They ended too abruptly! She was a little disappointed as if she was in a dream.

Since it was Ben who said it, then it would not be wrong. It was as if her bones were removed.

She lay on the bed like jelly. She opened her eyes and looked at the ceiling. Her mind was blank.

Nothing could pique her excitement.

A long time later, her phone rang. She was pulled back to reality. She found her phone and answered the call. Sobs came from the other end of the line!

Chapter 914

Avery's heart constricted tightly.

It was Tammy's voice.

Did she not reconcile with Jun already? "Tammy, what happened? Don't cry. Tell me what happened."

Avery got off the bed and put on a coat.

She planned to go look for 'Tammy.

"Avery, I...I can't...I'm...afraid..."

Tammy choked up and stuttered.

"Don't be afraid. Are you and Jun still there together? Do you need me to look for you?"

Avery was worried.

She could roughly guess what happened to Tammy.

Just like how Elliot's father brought him trauma that affected his life later on, the trauma Tammy had after being kidnapped would affect her for a very long time, perhaps even for the rest of her life.

When Tammy cried and muttered the word yes, Avery immediately left her bedroom.

When she left her room, Mrs.Cooper came out because she heard movement.

"Avery, it's already midnight.Are you heading out?"

No matter what time it was at that moment, she had to go.

"Hmm.I'm not sure if I'll be back tonight.Don't wait up," Avery said and strode off into the night.

In a European-style mansion.

Jun poured a cup of warm water.He got down in front of Tammy.

"Tammy, don't cry.Drink some water.Avery will be here soon."

Jun's head hurt.He initially thought the hardships that he and Tammy faced were behind them.Who would have thought!

"Hubby, I'm so sorry..."

Tammy hugged her knees closer to her.Her eyes were red and puffy from crying.

"I don't want to drink water.Don't care about me.Go to bed!"

Jun looked heartbroken.

"How could I not care about you?"

"Woo, woo... I feel terrible just by looking at you..." Tammy cried even louder.

Jun immediately got up, "Okay, babe, stop crying. I'll go wait in the living area."

Jun placed the cup of water down and left the bedroom. He went to the living area. He was extremely glum, yet he could not tell any of his friends about this.

Soon after, the doorbell rang.

Jun walked over to open the door.

Avery barely greeted Jun and immediately headed for the bedroom.

Jun closed the door and returned to the sofa.

He took his phone out and sent a message to the group.

[Jun: You will never believe it if I told you this, but Avery is in my house right now.]

[Chad:???)

[Jun: Chad, you might not believe it but Avery is in pink bunny pajamas tonight.]

[Chad: ...what the hell are you talking about? Are you dreaming? Delete the message, don't let my boss see this!]

[Elliot: What's going on? @Jun]

Chad was silent.

Jun breathed heavily.

His fingers flew quickly across the screen.

[Jun: I don't know either. I'm now on the sofa in the living area. Tammy is in the room crying.]

[Chad: Can you get to the main point? I want to fly over there just to beat you up looking at your message!]

[Jun: Tammy and I...didn't...go well.]

[Elliot: ...]

[Chad: ...]

[Ben: F*ck me! What a scandalous topic for such a late night! Why did it not go well? Can't you get it up? Jun, you're not even thirty!]

[Jun: It's not what you think.I was only making out with her.We didn't even proceed to the next step when she said she was afraid.I said to stop and go to bed, but she suddenly lost it.She cried for half an hour.Sigh!]

[Ben: It seems like her problem is rather serious.It might be psychological trauma.]

[Chad: Jun, take her to the hospital to get a check-up tomorrow! I mean psychologically.]

[Elliot: Be patient with her.Don't give up on her.@Jun]

[Jun: Elliot, I would surely not give up on her, but she doesn't want to see me now.She says she feels terrible seeing me.Sigh! She kept apologizing to me.I feel even sadder at that.]

Chapter 915

[Chad: You'll be fine.]

[Ben: You can do it.]

[Elliot: Yes!]

[Jun: Thank you for being here for me.I feel much better now.Tammy seemed to have stopped crying.Avery sure is great.]

Suddenly, everyone stopped chatting.

[Jun: What's going on? Has Avery become a banned topic? It's unnecessary , no? Even if she has split up with Elliot, we are still friends!]

[Chad: Good night.]

[Ben: Good night.]

[Elliot: Hmm.@Jun]

[Jun: Elliot, I'll go to check on Tammy.Rest well.]

Jun sent the message and placed his phone down.He walked over to the bedroom.

In the bedroom, Avery and Tammy lay in bed.

They were chatting in soft tones with each other, as close as sisters.

Jun immediately left the room and gently closed the door.

Since Tammy and Avery were extremely close, no matter how badly Elliot and Avery fought, Jun was always a little biased toward Avery.

Although Tammy was quite spoiled, she was kind.

Since she could be so close to Avery, that meant that Avery was also a kind woman.

The next morning, Avery brought Tammy to the hospital.

After registering with the gynecology department, Tammy went for a routine gynecological examination.

Avery and Jun were waiting for her outside.

"Avery, thank you!"

Jun passed a bottle of water to her.

"I think Tammy needs a therapist."

Avery accepted the bottle of water.

"Let's see her body's situation first! She thinks that her body is unhealthy."

"The last time after she was discharged, the doctor told her that she had to care for her body.After the divorce, I don't know if she did that or not."

Jun's expressions were serious.

"She drank quite a lot.You have to look after her in the future.Don't let her drink so much anymore." Avery said.

"Hmm.Are you busy today? If you're busy, you can leave.She looks better today.I think it would be fine if I'm with her,"

Jun said, "Or I could get her mother over."

"I'm free.I'll wait for her results, then we'll see."

Tammy went through a series of checkups.

After that, the three of them waited for the results in the hospital.

Avery's phone rang.

When she saw that it was a call from Mike, she did not avoid it.She immediately answered the call.

"Avery, I booked the biggest banquet hall at the Regency Hotel," Mike reported the progress to her.

"Are you going to decide on the menu or am I doing it? By the way, where are you right now? Are you still at Jun's?"

"No.I'm at the hospital.Why don't you decide on the menu! There will be more kids then.See if you want to do two menus or mix them,"Avery said.

"Okay.How is Tammy? Is she alright?" Avery replied, "Hmm.I'll hang up if there isn't anything else."

Tammy and Jun were both looking at her.

"What did you talk to Mike about?" Tammy asked.

"Hayden and Layla's birthday is in half a month.I plan to throw a party for them.I was about to come to inform you two today initially," Avery said with a smile.

Half an hour later, Tammy's results were out.

Avery looked at the results and said, "Tammy, your body is fine.You were so afraid, it's all psychological.Why don't we see a therapist?"

Tammy shook her head.

"I'll try to do it on my own! If I really can't, then I'll see a psychologist."

"Hmm.If there are any problems, you have to let me know," Avery said.

Half an hour later, at the Sterling Group.

There was a new message notification on Elliot's phone.

He opened the message and saw Jun asking everyone in the group what birthday presents they were planning on giving Hayden and Layla.He furrowed his brows.His children's birthdays were coming up, yet he found out about it through others.He was an incompetent father!

Chapter 916

When Chad saw Jun's message, he immediately called Jun, "Jun! Delete that message!"

Jun said, "Why? I didn't talk about Avery.Can I not talk about Hayden and Layla too?"

"No! Avery isn't planning on inviting Mr.Foster, so don't talk about this in the group." Chad took a deep breath.

"Don't you find this absurd!"

"Yes! Absolutely absurd!" Jun touched his nose.

"But I think there is a reason why Avery is doing this.I'll delete the message in the group first."

Jun hung up and opened the group chat.

[Ben: When is Hayden and Layla's birthday? Get Avery to throw them a party!

If she finds it troublesome, let Elliot do it!] Jun secretly deleted his message.

Although he knew it was pointless.Ben saw it, which meant that Elliot saw it too.

[Ben: Why did you delete the message? @Jun]

Jun saw the message but did not dare to reply.

[Chad: Ben, I heard that Avery is planning to throw her children a birthday party. We don't have to worry about this.]

[Ben: Oh. Jun. Why did you delete the message? @Jun]

Jun wanted to brush this off with a lie, but he could not find a proper reason no matter how hard he tried. He decided to ignore Ben's message.

Avery came out of the hospital and realized that she was still in her pajamas.

The weather that day was great.

There was no wind. It was much warmer than the day before.

She hailed a taxi and told the driver her house address.

Once she was in the taxi, she looked at the news on her phone.

[First Public Appearance of Chelsea Tierney, New Head of Trust Capital. Reiterates That She and Elliot Foster Are Just Friends.]

Avery tapped the headline and saw a photo of Chelsea wearing a mask. If she did not see her face after it was ruined, it was hard to imagine that she was the Chelsea she knew back then.

Avery thought about the first time she met Chelsea on a night seven years ago.

Back then, Avery had just gotten to know Elliot.

They were both like ice and fire, Chelsea and Elliot on the other hand were sitting affectionately together on the sofa.

They were clearly a better pair.

When she saw Chelsea, her first impression was that Chelsea was such a cold and sexy woman! She was a great match for Elliot! Avery was ashamed of herself.

She felt that Chelsea should be the real Mrs. Foster.

It was a pity that although Chelsea was beautiful, she had a vicious heart.

That night, Chelsea provoked and intimidated her.

It was not that she was not scared of Chelsea, but she did not know where she found the courage to smash a bottle of wine to force Chelsea back. Perhaps, from that moment onward, her end with Chelsea was already predetermined.

When Avery returned home, she changed into her pajamas.

Mrs.Cooper brought Robert into her room.

"Avery, is Tammy alright?"

"Her body is alright, but mentally she needs some time to get better."

Avery paused for a few seconds before asking, "When did you start working for the Fosters?"

Chapter 917

Mrs.Cooper thought for a while before replying, "For a few years already.When I started working for the Fosters, I was not even thirty years old yet! I'm already forty-five.I can retire in about five years."

"Mrs.Scarlet has worked there longer than you?"

"Yes! She used to care for Madam Rosalie.Later, when Elliot and Shea were born, she helped take care of them,"

Mrs.Cooper said, "I heard this from Mrs.Scarlet."

"Elliot told me about the incident when he was young," Avery was a little depressed, so she wanted to talk about it with someone.

"I never thought that he would be so depressed when he was young."

"What did he tell you?" Mrs.Cooper said in surprise.

"Hmm, he came clean and told me everything."

Avery looked at Mrs.Cooper.

"So that I won't misunderstand him again." Mrs.Cooper suddenly choked up.

"Avery, don't blame him for telling you this only now. It was so hard for him to have his achievements today. God must have pitied him, which cured him of the mental condition he had when he was young. If not, he would have ended up like Shea."

Avery was completely stunned! She heard every word that Mrs. Cooper said, but she did not understand it!

"No, Mr. Foster is different from Shea. Mrs. Scarlet said that when his father was still alive, he valued boys over girls. Although Mr. Foster's father did not like him, he would not hit him. He would only hit Shea because she was a girl. Shea would cry for a very long time after being hit. Mr. Foster's father would hate Shea even more."

At that, tears fell from Mrs. Cooper's eyes.

Avery was shocked. Her eyes widened.

"Elliot had the same condition as Shea when he was young?!"

Mrs. Cooper's expressions stiffened.

"Didn't you say that Mr. Foster told you everything? Could it be..."

"He didn't tell me this!" Avery took a deep breath.

"He said that he killed his father because of Shea..."

"What! Mr. Foster killed his father!?" When Mrs. Cooper heard this, she was so shocked she almost lost her balance.

Avery immediately took Robert from her and placed him on the bed before helping Mrs. Cooper to a seat by the side.

"Don't you know about this?"

Avery's face was burning hot. Her heart was beating wildly too.

What should she do? She had exposed Elliot's secret! She did not know that Mrs. Cooper did not know about this incident! Just like how Mrs. Cooper did not know that she did not know Elliot had the same condition as Shea when he was young! It was as if the world had gone mad.

"Avery, don't worry, I won't tell another soul about Mr.Foster's matters."

Mrs.Cooper quickly calmed down.

"Although Mrs.Scarlet and I are close, she knows how to judge for herself.She knows what to say and what not to say.I will guard this secret till my death.Don't worry." Avery nodded.

Her tensed body relaxed a little.

"If Elliot did not trust you, he would not have let you serve him for so many years."

"Yes, I have long treated the Fosters as my home away from home.If Mr.Foster is doing well, I'm doing well."

Mrs.Cooper finished her sentence and realized that she had misspoken."That was the past.I am with you now, of course, I'll listen to you."

"It's fine.Elliot and I are not enemies."

Avery sat down on the bed.Her mind was thinking fast.

"Are you sure he had the same condition as Shea when he was young?"

Mrs.Cooper nodded.

"Mrs.Scarlet told me about it.She said that they hired a great doctor to curedz him."

"Then, why didn't they cure Shea?"

Avery thought that this matter was exaggerated.

If there really was such a great neurologist , why has she never heard about it from Professor Hough before?

"Shea's condition was much more serious because she was often violently beaten by her father.Mrs.Scarlet said that it was not easy for Shea to grow up."

Mrs.Cooper paused for a while.

"It's understandable why Mr.Foster killed his father! If he did not do so, Shea would have long died."

After chatting with Mrs.Cooper, Avery went to the graveyard to visit Shea.She placed a bouquet of white lilies in front of Shea's headstone.She looked at Shea's photo on the headstone and said softly, "Shea, I miss you so much.I should have come to visit you earlier, but because I took in a patient with your condition in Bridgedale, it got delayed.By the way, he has some similarities with you."

At that, Avery pursed her lips and stayed silent.

She could not understand how Elliot had the same condition as Shea but he was completely cured! From her medical point of view, this was something impossible.

Did something go wrong in between?

Chapter 918

Avery and Elliot were once very close to each other.She has seen every single part of his body.She was very sure that he did not have any scars on his head.

That meant that the great doctor did not operate on him, but how did he cure Elliot then? There was no such special medicine in this world.

All of this was contradictory to science.Her perceptions were turned upside down.She was puzzled by it.Her phone rang.She took it out of her bag and saw who was calling her.Her emotions calmed down instantly.

"Adrian."

Avery was surprised that he would call her.

"Avery, when are you coming to see me?"

Adrian's voice was not as sprightly as the previous time. He seemed upset.

"What happened? Are you feeling uncomfortable?" Avery asked worryingly.

Adrian was silent for a few seconds before saying in a low voice, "I don't think they like me. Only you treat me well."

"What happened?"

Avery's chest constricted.

"Adrian, did they say anything to you? Or did they do anything to you?"

"No... I feel that they don't like me," Adrian said apprehensively.

"Your father said that he has brought you to see many doctors to cure you. He has paid me a huge sum too. If he doesn't love you, he wouldn't have spent so much money to cure you."

Avery only comforted him that way because his family did not actually abuse him.

If he said that his family humiliated or physically abused him, Avery would have immediately flown to Bridgedale to help him.

"Hmm. Will you be annoyed at me for calling you?" Adrian asked cautiously.

"No!" Avery smiled. Her eyes were filled with tenderness.

"Adrian, I'm happy that you called. When I return to Bridgedale, I'll go look for you, okay?"

"Okay. You have to come to see me."

"I will."

At Sterling Group.

After Elliot finished his work, he called Jun.

When Jun saw that the call was from Elliot, his heart was beating wildly.

His sixth sense told him that the call would be terrifying. He answered the call and Elliot's low voice came through, "Jun, why did you delete the message? Why did you not answer Ben's question?"

Elliot called Jun to ask him those two questions because Jun was usually the chatterbox. Even if he had misspoken in the group, he would never delete the message.

No matter who tagged him in the group, he would respond quickly.

"Elliot. Are all successful people like you sensitive and suspicious, which is why you could succeed?" Ben groaned.

Elliot asked, "Who told you that Hayden and Layla's birthday is coming up?"

Jun slapped his forehead.

He was silent for a while before replying, "Didn't Avery bring Tammy to the hospital today? While they were talking, I overheard."

"Hmm."

Elliot did not doubt Jun. He changed the subject.

"Why did you delete the message? Why did you ignore Ben? Jun, do you think you can avoid this now that I've called you?"

Jun felt like he was being on trial for a heinous crime he committed, "Elliot, don't force me. If I were to say it, you would be angry. I don't want you to be unhappy...".

"Where are you right now? I'll go look for you."

Elliot let loose his collar. He was indeed quite unhappy.

"Sigh, no! I'm with Tammy today." Jun took a deep breath.

"Elliot. It's nothing. It's just Avery. She hasn't made up her mind whether she wants to invite you or not... because didn't you say that you would not want to be entangled with her anymore?"

"Have I said such a thing?"

Elliot furrowed his brows. He did not remember saying such things.

"Uh? I'm not sure! I'm only a spectator," Jun said helplessly, "I didn't reply to Ben's message because I'm out with Tammy. Do you want to talk to Tammy? She's right next to me!"

Elliot hung up.

Chapter 919

Elliot came out of his office to look for Ben. Coincidentally, Ben was about to call him for lunch too

"Has Avery invited you?" Elliot asked him.

"Are you talking about the children's birthday party? Not yet!" Ben asked,

"Has she invited you already?"

Elliot shook his head.

"It's fine. It's half a month more to go! By then, she would surely inform us,"

Ben said confidently, "Even if she doesn't invite you, she would surely invite me. After all, we have cleared the air between us."

Elliot did not retort. He was only confused.

"I didn't fight with her. Why did she not invite me? Ben said, "Although you two didn't fight as seriously as in the past, your problems are still serious! She can't accept you. You won't want to deal with her being unappreciative too."

"Can you stop with your nonsense?"

Elliot furrowed his brows.

Ben pouted and changed the topic.

"Should we go buy the children's presents in the afternoon? "Hmm."

It was easier to pick a present for Layla. It was more challenging for Hayden.

"Let's go to a technology exhibition. We'll see if there are any high-tech toys,"

Ben suggested.

Elliot nodded.

A week later, Elliot received a report from Hayden's teacher about his educational progress.

[Mr.Foster, Hayden has huge improvements this semester.Do you want to see a report on each of his subjects? I could bring it for you on his birthday.]

Elliot dialed back.

"Hayden is having a party on his birthday.I'm not free at night.Can you send it over during the day?"

The teacher was a little stunned, "Mr.Foster, Miss Tate invited me to Hayden's birthday party.I will be there.I can hand it to you then."

Elliot was silent for a while.

"When did she invite you?"

Hayden's teacher replied, "A week ago.She also invited all of Hayden's classmates.Didn't she tell you?"

Elliot was speechless.

A week ago, Avery invited Hayden's classmates and teacher, yet she did not invite his father! He was still bitterly waiting for her phone call, who would have thought that she had already informed all the people she wanted to invite a week ago? The teacher felt a little awkward.

"Mr.Foster.Hayden is a rare genius.Even if you don't get along well with Miss Tate, please don't let it affect Hayden.If not, it would be a pity."

Elliot swallowed his saliva.He said hoarsely, "I understand.I will talk to her about it."

After hanging up, Elliot called Ben.

"Did Avery invite you?"

Ben replied, "No! It's not the party yet, right? Maybe in two days, we'll hear about it."

Elliot could not bear to tell him that Avery did not plan on inviting them.

At Tate Industries, Avery was hosting a client. She was introducing them to a new product their company just released at the end of last year.

At that moment, her secretary came over and whispered in her ears.

"Miss Tate. Elliot is here. I asked him if he had an appointment, and he said no."

Avery raised her eyebrows a little.

"Tell him that I'm busy right now. Get him to leave first. Once I'm done, I'll call him."

Upon saying that, her client immediately stood up.

"Is Elliot here? Miss Tate, go get him then!"

The client suddenly said, "I wouldn't dare fight with Mr. Foster for his woman."

Avery was speechless.

Chapter 920

The client stormed off like the wind.

Avery's secretary said, "Miss Tate, should I get Elliot in?"

Avery looked at her phone and saw the time. She also checked to see if he had called or sent her a message beforehand.

He did not. He came by suddenly.

Was he just on the way or did something happen? Her calm mind was suddenly a mess.

Avery came out of the meeting room to go see him.

When she was in the lobby, she saw her client chatting with Elliot.

The way her client bent down so respectfully was ironic.

Elliot saw Avery coming out from the lift.

His deep-set eyes instantly landed on her face.

"Mr.Foster, I won't bother you two."

When the client saw Avery approaching, he immediately bade Elliot farewell.

Avery walked over to Elliot.She looked at his handsome face.

"What is there that you can't tell me over the phone?"

"Are you blaming me for coming to your office?"

Elliot's sharp gaze sized the surroundings.

The receptionist and the bodyguard were looking over.He believed that not long after, the news of him visiting her would spread throughout her entire company.

"Such harsh words."

Avery walked out of the office.

"If there is nothing, why would you take the trouble to come here? I don't remember us having any business dealings."

"If you want business dealings, I welcome you anytime."

"Elliot!" She stopped in her tracks and looked at him seriously.

"You were the one that said you were not going to get entangled with me anymore.So, why are you here saying all this to me?"

"How strange."

Elliot looked at her flushed face."Jun told me this previously.But I remembered clearly that I have never said such a thing."

Avery furrowed her brows.

"Indeed, I won't come to bother you because of my own desires, but you didn't invite me for the children's birthday.Isn't that a little outrageous?"

He sternly reprimanded, "I am the children's father.Do I need to remind you again?"

Avery was almost deaf from his shouts.

She tugged on his arm and quickly pulled him out of the office.

When they were out of the office, Avery let go of his arm.

"Why were you so loud back there? Are you afraid that the others won't know that we had children together?" Avery glared at him.

"I heard that you don't want to get entangled up with me. I thought you didn't want any contact with me. What if you didn't want to attend the children's birthday party, but I invited you. Wouldn't that put you in a tough spot?"

"What tough spot?" He mocked.

"If I don't want to attend, I will tell you directly. Are you afraid that I will reject you, so you just didn't bother to invite me?"

Avery blushed from his reprimands.

"If you want to attend so badly, just come directly. Who is going to stop you? Who would dare to stop you?"

"Me going there and you inviting me are two different matters!"

"You only care about your pride!"

"Is this a matter of pride?"

Elliot clenched his fists tightly.

"Avery, is this a matter of pride? You don't respect me at all!"

Avery was silent.

The golden sunlight fell on Elliot's back, casting a silhouette on his handsome face.

Even so, it did not block the regal aura he was emitting.

She was just trying to not put him in a tough position, yet he said that she was not respecting him.

"Okay. I'm inviting you right now."

Avery took a deep breath and enunciated, "The children's birthday is not here yet. I'm inviting you right now. It's not too late, right?"

Elliot looked at Avery's angry face.

He asked, "What are you being angry about? What did I say wrongly? Tell me!"

Avery could see that he was not planning to end the argument anytime soon.

Not only was he not planning to end it, but he was also planning to lay it all out on the table. A car passed them by and stopped in front of them.

Chapter 921

The car window rolled down and Mike's face appeared in front of them.

"Hey! You two! What are you doing in front of the office? Sunbathing?" Mike teased, "It's almost lunch. I suggest that you two find a restaurant to sit down and slowly fight it out. It's bad to fight in front of the office."

Avery's expressions turned a little colder.

Elliot said, "Lunch?"

Avery replied, "I'm not having it with you."

Then, she turned around and headed back to the office.

Mike honked and said to Elliot, "Buy me lunch!"

Elliot swept him a cold glance and planned to leave.

"Buy me lunch and I'll bring back lunch for Avery too!" Mike called out after him. Elliot stopped in his tracks. They found a restaurant nearby and sat down. Mike ordered food for Avery and wrote her number down. He got the waiter to directly deliver it to her. Elliot furrowed his brows.

"You're exposing her privacy!"

Mike tutted. "Avery always orders from here!"

Elliot was speechless.

“Do you think that everyone is like you, getting their assistants and secretary to run around while you hide in your office being the big boss,” Mike would never give up a single chance to mock him.

As long as he thought about how Chad’s job every day was to serve Elliot, he would be extremely unhappy about it.

“Mike, we’re adults. Let’s not beat around the bush. Do you know what Avery is thinking about?” Elliot picked up his cup and drank some water.

Mike replied, “Didn’t you say you wanted to draw the line with Avery? Now you look aggrieved as if Avery did something wrong. You’re funny.”

“Since when did I say that I wanted to draw the line with Avery?” Elliot slammed his cup on the table.

Mike saw the water splashing out of Elliot’s cup. He remained calm.

“Ben said it! The day that Jun got married, after Tammy’s incident. We went to visit their new house. Ben said that you realized that you are incompatible with Avery, so you won’t get entangled with her again in the future...so I told Avery this when I return home!”

“I know you’ll call me a messenger. You can call me whatever you want.

Avery and I are much closer than Chad and you! Whatever I know about, I will surely tell her!” Mike added.

The coldness in Elliot’s eyes faded a little.

“Heh!”

“What are you chuckling about?” Mike glared at him.

“I’m not Avery, don’t try to be strange with me. Of course, I do think it’s a little inappropriate that she didn’t invite you to the children’s birthday party.”

Elliot said, “I didn’t say what Ben said.”

Mike replied, “What?”

Elliot said, “I never said I wanted to draw the line with Avery. We have three children. Why should I draw the line?"

Mike said, "Tell this to Avery! Why are you telling me this?"

Elliot said, "Didn't you tell her that I wanted to draw the line with her?"

Mike was speechless. Bloody hell! He was only spreading the gossip, yet Elliot treated him as a messenger?

After lunch, Mike returned to the office and went straight to Avery's office.

Avery saw him enter. Her tone was cold.

"I hear you went to lunch with Elliot."

"Yes! I'm happy to spend his money." Mike put both hands on her desk. He cleared his throat.

"Uh. He told me to tell you that he didn't say the things that Ben said."

"Then, why did Ben say those things?" Avery looked at him doubtfully.

"Maybe Ben thought that this was beneath him, so he persuaded him to give up!" Mike patted Avery's head. "He told me to ask what your thoughts are."

Chapter 922

"What about my thoughts?" Avery pushed Mike's hand away.

"Since when has he ever considered my thoughts?"

Mike was a little baffled.

"Why don't you call him and ask?"

Avery said, "Why should I call him? If he wanted to know what my thoughts are, why doesn't he ask me himself?"

Mike said, "Oh, should I get him to call you?"

"Mike, whose side are you on?"

"Yours, of course! If I was on Elliot's side, I would help him pursue you no matter what! If not, he wouldn't be in so much pain now."

Avery did not doubt Mike's loyalty to her.

“I’m planning to go to Bridgedale. The company is doing fine recently. The children are doing quite well. I’ll go there and come back soon,” Avery said.

Mike said, “What? Are you going to see that patient? It takes a day for you to go there and return. The children’s birthday is in a few days. Do you want to go after the birthday party instead?”

Avery thought about this. Adrian has called her twice. She did indeed want to go and have a look and see what was going on with him.

Although it was quite time-consuming going there and heading back, she was used to the flying. She did not find it tiring.

In the evening, at Elliot’s house.

Ben called Elliot a few times, but he did not pick up his calls, so he went to his house, but Elliot was not around.

They had fought in the afternoon. To put it more accurately, it was Elliot scolding Ben. Elliot screenshotted the chat he had with Ben previously and sent it to Ben. He asked Ben since when did he say he wanted to cut ties with Avery?

Of course, Ben tried hard to get him to understand that he said that was all for his own good.

It was just that Elliot did not accept it.

Elliot got Ben to go on a business trip. This business trip was supposed to be done by a manager of the company. At that moment, Elliot got Ben to go.

It was considered a punishment because Elliot was sending Ben to a country with a bad economy. He was sent there for at least half a month. Of course, Ben was not willing to go.

Ben still planned on attending Hayden and Layla’s birthday party! Just because Ben was not willing to go, Elliot fell out with him. Ben regretted it terribly at that moment. He gave in and planned to go on the business trip. It was just that before going on the trip, he wanted to properly talk to Elliot. Ben was standing in the courtyard, calling Chad.

“Chad, do you really not know where he has gone to? He has never been so angry at me before!” Ben was feeling terrible.

“I was doing it for him. It’s fine if he doesn’t understand, but he even put me in exile because of Avery.”

“Ben, it’s just for half a month. It’s not considered exile,” Chad comforted him.

“How is that not considered exile? You know how terrible the environment there is. How could I take such suffering?” Ben adjusted his glasses.

“Elliot isn’t worried that I won’t make it out of there alive.”

“Ben, it won’t be that bad.” Chad did not know whether to laugh or cry.

“Why don’t you come with me?”

“No can do.” Chad offered him a suggestion.

“Why don’t you apologize to Avery and get Avery to help you put in some good words with Elliot? This is the only solution I can think of for now.” Ben did not feel that he did anything wrong. Why did he have to apologize to Avery?

“Chad, the only reason why Avery could do whatever she wanted was that Elliot and all of you gave in to her, which is why she doesn’t know her place!” Ben stood in the courtyard and gushed, “I have never seen such an arrogant, bossy, and cocky woman like her...”

Chad said, “Ben, they all mean the same thing.”

“I know! It’s important, so I must emphasize it!”

Ben gritted his teeth and said, “I will never apologize to her! I did nothing wrong! Even if I had to repeat it all again, I'll still say that they are incompatible! They are incompatible, yet they don't let people talk about it. A couple with a strong relationship will never be afraid of people talking behind their back!"

Ben felt much better after saying all those things.

Chapter 923

At that moment, a huge hand patted Ben on his shoulders from behind.

Ben pursed his lips. His body stiffened. He slowly turned around, "Ben, Mr. Foster doesn't like noise. Please be quieter," Elliot's bodyguard gently reminded him.

Ben could see Elliot's darkened expression from nearby. He felt as if someone had shot him in the knee. He wanted to kneel on the ground. He was bad-mouthing Avery and their relationship so loudly just now. Elliot must have heard it! He must have! "Elliot!" Ben forced a wide and apologetic smile.

"F*ck off!" Elliot spat. The bodyguard immediately got Ben to leave.

Ben got in the car. He sighed.

"Ben." Chad's voice came from his phone. At that moment, Ben realized that he did not hang up the call!

When Elliot chased him away just now, Chad heard it all. Sigh! His ego is now deeply bruised. "Are you going to laugh at me?"

Ben was bitterly upset.

"No, but you should consider my suggestion seriously. Avery is quite nice. You haven't spent much time with her, so you might have some prejudice against her." Chad was often at Avery's. On top of that, Mike always brought her up in front of him.

Furthermore, Chad liked her children a lot, so he liked Avery quite a bit.

She was different from other women. Even if she were to meet a man stronger than her, she would never easily bow down.

"I don't have prejudice against her! Chad, you don't understand. I only think that they are hurting each other whenever they are together. I would rather rip the band-aid off quickly! They should just split up, but this won't affect the fact that they are still my friends!" Ben explained.

"They don't see it that way." Chad could not help but smile.

"Don't talk about this in front of them in the future. If not, the next time would not just be a punishment in exile."

Ben was speechless. He could not sleep that night. After a sleepless night, he decided to apologize to Avery. He did not want to go on that business trip, so he decided to bow down. He drove to Starry River Villa.

In the villa, the servants were caring for the children, washing them up, and preparing their breakfast. It was a busy affair.

Ben entered the living area and asked Mrs. Cooper, "Is Avery not up yet? I'm looking for her?"

Mrs. Cooper replied, "Avery left. She went to Bridgedale."

Ben was stunned.

Mrs. Cooper said, "Why are you looking for her? Is it important? Try her phone. Perhaps she hasn't boarded the flight yet!"

Ben said, "Forget about it. Since she's going abroad, I won't bother her." Mrs. Cooper got Ben to stay for breakfast. Ben took her up on her offer and directly headed to the dining hall.

"Mrs. Cooper, why is Avery going to Bridgedale?"

"I don't know, but she said she'll be back soon," Mrs. Cooper said.

Ben picked his phone up and sent Elliot a message.

(Avery has gone to the airport. She's leaving for Bridgedale.)

Elliot just woke up when he saw the message. His heart started beating wildly. He was afraid that Avery was going to run away again!

At the airport, Avery was in line, about to go through security. When she saw Elliot's call, she hesitated for a while before picking up.

Chapter 924

"Avery, what are you doing?" Elliot's voice was hoarse and cold. Avery could hear that Elliot had just gotten up because his tone was rather emotional.

"I'm going to Bridgedale to tend to something." Avery went past security and headed inside.

"It's early. Who told you I'm going abroad?" Elliot did not answer her question, but asked, "It's almost the children's birthday. Do you have to go to Bridgedale now? Is there something urgent?"

If it was as usual, Avery might have said that he was being nosy. However, at that moment, she was strangely calm. She did not want to fight with him over such a small thing. Elliot was asking her all these questions out of concern.

"It's nothing urgent," Avery said calmly, "Elliot, these are my private affairs. I don't need to tell you. I will be back before the children's birthday."

Elliot rubbed the middle of his brow. He calmed down.

"As long as you're fine."

"Hmm, go back to bed. I'm about to board." Avery lowered her gaze. She thought about how long has she not spoken to him properly in that way. Their go-to method was always using the harshest words on each other.

"Okay."

After the call, he flipped the covers and got off the bed. He strode into the washroom. He turned on the tap and splashed cold water on his face. He looked at himself in the mirror in a daze.

The water droplets flowed down his face, drip by drip!

Turns out, that when one cares for another person, they cannot hide it. When he called her just now, he never considered that they were still not on speaking terms. He also did not consider whether she would pick up his call or not. Neither did he think about what would happen to his dignity if she did not pick up his call.

Fortunately, she did not reject his call or blame him for meddling in her affairs. After more than ten hours, the plane landed in Bridgedale.

When Avery came out of the airport, she initially decided to head straight to Adrian's house, but she thought that it was still early. It would be rude to head over there. She might even disturb their rest.

Thus, Avery returned home. She showered and changed into a clean set of clothes before ordering takeout. While waiting for takeout, she called Mike to tell him about her arrival.

"Avery, after you left this morning, Ben came to look for you at home," Mike said, "He came to apologize. He did not intend to drive a wedge between you two..."

"I know he didn't mean to do it. He was doing it for Elliot." Avery rubbed her temples. Due to the time difference, she was quite tired.

"He said it was for your good too! Hahaha!" Mike could not help but laugh.

"He said he has never seen a couple like you two, tormenting each other for seven years. I thought about it, and he seems to make sense."

Avery pursed her lips. She did not know how to reply.

"But looking at how you two can drive each other crazy and yet still cannot forget each other, perhaps you two are destined to be! If it were for other couples, I think they would have long given up.”

“Stop mocking me.” Avery took a cup to get some water.

“By the way, tell Ben that I don’t blame him. He doesn’t need to apologize to me.”

“Hahaha! He doesn’t want to apologize to you either. Elliot is angry at him, sending him to exile. He is coming to you for help due to desperation. He wants you to put in a good word for him.”

“Impossible,” Avery said and hung up. She did not want to interfere with their friendship!

A moment later, the takeout arrived. Avery had breakfast and she felt better. At ten in the morning, she went to the garage to get her car and drove to the Whites. She thought about the time after she met Adrian.

Chapter 925

Adrian must be delighted, right? Although his family might not welcome her that happily, they were all polite people. They would most probably not chase her away.

When she passed by a florist, Avery stopped her car by the side of the road. She picked a fresh bouquet of carnations. After paying, she entered her car with the bouquet in her hands.

She was once again on the road. She needed to go past two traffic lights and go forward for another two kilometers or so before she would reach the Whites. She was humming a song. It was green all the way. The traffic was smooth all the way to the Whites. She parked her car outside the Whites’ courtyard.

She got out of the car and saw that the gate was locked. She looked at the shut door of the mansion too. It seemed like no one was home. She furrowed her brows and fished her phone out. She found Nathan, Adrian's father's contact, and dialed him. She had thought of the worst-case scenario.

Perhaps Nathan had blocked her number. However, the call connected.

"Mr. White. I'm by your house. I see that your doors are shut. Are you all not at home?" Avery inhaled nervously.

"Miss Tate! I'm sorry! We are out on holiday now. I'm afraid we can't welcome you in!" Nathan could not hide the arrogance in his tone.

"If there is nothing else, I'm going to hang up. By the way, my son is doing well. You don't have to worry."

"Hold up!" Avery said sternly, "Adrian has just finished his surgery. He needs to rest! How could you take him out on a holiday? Even if he wants to go, he can't! Aren't you afraid that something might happen to him on the way?"

Nathan harrumphed coldly.

"Miss Tate. I think I have paid you the surgery fees, right? I don't need you to order me around. It's rude of you!"

Then, he hung up.

Avery heard the disconnecting tone. She clenched her fingers. That old man has crossed the line! She has finally seen his true colors! He never cared if Adrian lived or died! However, she did not understand. If he did not care whether Adrian lived or died, why would he spend so much money to cure him?

Adrian's condition was better now, but he was still treated kindly. What was Nathan trying to do?

Avery held her phone and walked over to the other mansion. The other mansion's door was open. Avery entered the courtyard, and a dog immediately ran out, barking at her. Avery was so frightened that she stopped in her tracks. Thankfully, the master of the dog heard the barks. She soon came out to order her dog to leave.

“Hello, your neighbor, Adrian White. I am his doctor. I am Avery Tate,” Avery introduced herself, “I came to check up on Adrian today, but they are not home...”

“Oh, I know you! You’re amazing!” The lady greeted Avery passionately, “But my neighbors have moved houses. They moved the day before yesterday. If you were to come the day before yesterday, you might have seen them!”

Avery was flabbergasted. She recalled what Nathan said to her a moment ago.

“I just called him. He said that he brought his family on a holiday. Are you sure that they moved houses?”

“Yes! I saw them moving a lot of luggage. Who brings so many things on a holiday?” The lady lowered her voice and said, “Doctor Tate, don’t get yourself too close to this family. They are a rather strange family.”

“Strange? In what way?”

“They are a mysterious bunch. We have been neighbors for so many years, yet they have never spoken to us once. Don’t you find it strange?” The lady said confusedly, “They have been staying here for a long time. I wonder why they suddenly moved.”

A bad feeling rose in Avery’s heart. She felt as if she was about to jump into a huge trap!

Chapter 926

Avery returned to her car. She unlocked her phone and dialed Adrian. “Sorry, the number you have dialed is not in service. Please try again later.” She had a strong feeling that it was not Adrian who switched off his phone. Avery’s brows throbbed. She dialed Nathan.

“Sorry, the number you have dialed is not in service. Please try again later.”

Avery’s heart sank!

What was he trying to do? Before the surgery, she felt that he was still quite normal.

At that moment, with what the neighbor told her, she shuddered.

Did he move houses to prevent her from looking for them or did he plan it a long time ago, waiting for Adrian’s condition to become better then move?

However, why did they have to move right after Adrian’s condition got better?

Where did they move to?

Avery was lost. She picked up her bottle of water and drank some water. After calming down, she looked through her contacts and found the contact of Nathan’s friend who introduced her to Nathan.

This friend was the family member of her previous patient.

She called and he soon picked up. “Doctor Tate, may I help you? Are you in Bridgedale right now?” “Hmm, I am in Bridgedale, I would like to ask you about your relationship with Nathan White. Are you two close? He has moved houses. Do you know that?”

The other person was stunned for a while. “He has moved? He didn’t tell me! We are not close. After you cured my father, he got in touch with me through a friend and told me about his son. I went to see his son and felt pity for him, so I contacted you on his behalf.”

Avery’s heart gradually sunk. “Doctor Tate, didn’t you finish operating on his son? I thought that the surgery went well? Are you looking for them...because he didn’t pay you?”

“No, he paid me. I just wanted to check up on Adrian, but they have moved houses and he is not answering my calls,” Averyie explained. “Oh! If that’s the case, don’t bother with him. After I helped him, he no longer contacted me. Maybe that’s just his aloof character! As long as he paid you.”

Avery responded and hung up.

She saw the carnations on the passenger seat next to her from the corner of her eyes. She felt even worse. The reason she decided to come to see Adrian, other than checking up on his recovery progress, was also because she wanted to know if Adrian and Shea were related.

Although Shea was no longer around, she could use other ways to make sure. Adrian and Shea had the same condition. This was not something strange. The strange thing was that Mrs. Cooper said that Elliot had this condition when he was young too. Avery did not believe that Elliot had the same condition when he was young. She also did not believe that he would be cured without undergoing surgery. Thus, she wanted to get to the bottom of this. However, she did not know where Adrian was being brought to at that moment. She could only wait for his call. This passive feeling of waiting left her floundering. She could not understand Nathan’s strong desire for control over Adrian. Although Adrian was much better after the surgery, he was still not an ordinary person. He did not have the intelligence of a normal person. Why would Nathan want to control him?

In Aryadelle.

The first day after Avery left, Elliot was feeling antsy. When she was at home, Elliot did not dare to act so presumptuously because he was afraid it would make her angry. When the black Rolls-Roice appeared right in front of Avery’s gate, Mike was conflicted.

Mike did not have any grudges against Elliot. If it were not for Avery, Mike would have welcomed him in.

Just as Mike was pondering this question, the bodyguard walked over and opened the door for Elliot.

Mike was bewildered.

If Avery was home. She would surely loudly question the bodyguard, "Whose side are you on?"

Mike had been questioned by her more than once.

"Avery's not home, so you've become the master of the house!" Mike said sarcastically to the bodyguard. The bodyguard looked indignant. "Even if I don't open the door, you will open it. We'll just say that you opened it later."

Mike said, "Not only will you act first and ask for forgiveness later, but you also know how to shift the blame!"

The bodyguard ignored him, turned around, and left. Elliot approached Mike and asked, "Are the children home?"

Mike raised his eyebrows. "I knew you came here for the children. Don't you find it embarrassing? You're the high and mighty President of the Sterling Group. If you want to see the children, you can come at any time. Must you sneakily come over when their mother is not around? Do you think I won't tell Avery? Even if I didn't tell her, the children will!"

Elliot ignored Mike's jabs.

He fished out two tickets from his pocket. "These are two tickets to a play that Chad likes. It's at eight this evening. Do you want them?"

"Are you sure that Chad likes them?"

"Why don't you take it and asked him?" Mike pondered for two seconds before taking the tickets. "If I'm going to see a play, the children..." "Mrs. Cooper is around. Don't worry. I'll leave after a while," Elliotie said. Mike was still worried.

“What if Avery video-calls later?” “If she does that, it shouldn’t be something you should worry about.” Elliot had already considered the worst possible scenario. “At most, she’ll give you a scolding. In the end, I’m the only one she94 hates.”

“Oh, it’s not that serious! She said you and her are not enemies. I don’t think she will say anything about you coming to see the children,” Mike consoled him. At the same time, he was consoling himself. After Mike left, Elliot went to the living area. Mrs. Cooper poured him a cup of water before taking Robert to see18 him. “Layla is doing her homework. She will be out after she’s done,” Mrs. Cooper said with a smile. Elliot took a sip of water and reached his hands out to carry Robert. Mrs.

Cooper immediately passed Robert tod3 him. Robert was almost six months old. He was much bigger than when he was born. Carrying him at that moment, Elliot would not be worried if he fell. Also, his facial features have grown too.

Elliot found Robert getting more and more handsome. He liked him evencb more. “He is sleeping longer through the night. Growing day by day. When he is one year old. He will learn how to talk and walk. It would be even more fun,” Mrs. Cooper said. “Hmm, where is Hayden?” “He has training at night. I heard that there is an international competition in June, but there was only one place in his class, so he is undergoing intense training. He sometimes returns home earlier, sometimes later. The bodyguard will be with him, don’t worry,” Mrs.

Cooper explained. “Does he find it tough?” Elliot was worried that Hayden’s body could not handle the stress.

“No. Even if it is tough, he wouldn’t tell us. He’s like you. He never says that he is tired. No matter what he does, he wants to do it the best he can,” Mrs.

Cooper sighed and said, “ Actually, it’s quite exhausting that way. Avery never set high standards for him too.” As night arrived, the streetlamps outside lit up. A taxi stopped right in front of the courtyard. Avery opened the car door and got out of the car. When she saw the black Rolls-Roice in the courtyard, she was a little stunned. She immediately quickened her steps toward the villa.

Chapter 928

Avery pushed the door open and instantly saw a heartwarming scene in front of her.

Elliot was carrying Robert, standing in the living area. Layla was holding her new toy, and talking to Robert.

Mrs. Cooper was standing by the side looking at them, smiling. Avery stood by the entrance. Her feet felt like lead. Elliot, who was holding Robert, looked tender and fatherly. If she told others that he was an aloof and violent man, no one would believe her.

Elliot suddenly saw her. His smile instantly plastered onto his face. He never thought that she would return so quickly. No one told her that she would return that day.

If Mike knew that she returned today, he would not have abandoned the children to go for a play. Mrs. Cooper was stunned when she saw her. It was almost a reflex. She immediately took Robert from Elliot.

“Mommy!” A loud sound came from behind Avery. It was Hayden. The bodyguard parked the car, Hayden immediately pushed the car door open and got out of the car. He ran toward Avery.

Avery collected her emotions and smiled gently at Hayden. “Babe, why are you back so late tonight?”

Hayden held Avery’s hand and replied, “There’s a question I didn’t understand, so I got the teacher to explain it to me. Mommy, why did you come back so suddenly? Why are you not entering the house?"

Avery suppressed her awkward feelings. "I bought a flight ticket back immediately once I concluded things there." She paused for a while before saying, "Let's go in!"

Avery and Hayden changed their shoes and entered the living area. When he saw what was happening in the living area, Hayden's handsome face instantly tensed up. What was Elliot doing here?

"Mommy! Hayden!" Layla was clutching the hem of her shirt. She had a guilty and worried expression. "I-I was playing with Robert just now! I wasn't playing with Daddy." Avery saw it. Layla was indeed playing with Robert. "Layla, I'm not angry." Avery walked over and patted her on the head. "Have you finished your homework?"

"Yes! I've done them!" Layla immediately ran to her room to take her homework

Hayden, with his bag, quickly made his way past the living area. He was about to return to his room.

Elliot saw how his son avoided him. He was heartbroken.⁹⁴ "Hayden!"

When Hayden heard Elliot calling after him, he merely slowed down his footsteps but continued going upstairs. Elliot seemed to be provoked. His eyes instantly reddened. He strode over to¹⁸ Hayden. Avery had a bad feeling when she saw what was happening. Sure enough. Elliot lost control. He grabbed Hayden's arm. "Hayden, I'm sorry. I am willing to do anything to make it up to³ you." Elliot did not want to be like an enemy to his son. Even if Hayden ignored him or treated him as if he did not exist, it was better than hiding away every time he saw him. "Let me go!" Hayden looked at Elliot's hand and^{deb} screamed! His scream reverberated throughout the entire villa. Robert yelped in fright and started crying. Avery quickly walked over and grabbed Elliot's hand. Her voice was shivering. It had hints of pleading in them. "Elliot, let him go! You're scaring the children!"

Chapter 929

Elliot pursed his lips tightly. Avery's voice made him slowly come to his senses. He let his hand go and Hayden immediately ran upstairs!

Avery did not let go of Elliot's arm. "Elliot, what were you doing! You said you wouldn't force the children! What were you doing there then?"

Elliot swallowed his saliva. His voice was hoarse. He enunciated, "I-I only wanted to apologize to him."

"The way you're doing it is not right. He is a child, not an adult. You were too forceful." Avery pulled him along and pressed him down on the sofa. "Elliot, you were badly affected by your family. The trauma is still there now. Why did you think Hayden would reconcile with you so quickly?"

Elliot lifted his head and looked at her closely. "I'm not blaming you." Avery inhaled rather helplessly. "Don't be so impulsive in the future. You made Robert cry. Layla was surely frightened too." "I'm sorry." Elliot looked in the direction of the children, self-reproaching.

Mrs. Cooper was carrying Robert. Robert was no longer crying. Layla was standing behind her with her homework in her hands. She snuck glances at the living area. She did not dare to head over there.

"Avery, I bought presents for the children. I'll pass it to you to give it to them."

Elliot had already calmed down. He acknowledged his problem. "I'm afraid they wouldn't want it if I were to give it to them."

Avery said, "We'll talk about this tomorrow! Have you calmed down?"

"Hmm."

“Did you drive or did the driver drop you off?” Avery wanted him to leave.

“I drove here.” Elliot understood what she meant. He immediately got up from his sofa. He took two steps before suddenly thinking of a question. He stopped in his tracks. “What were you doing in Bridgedale? You’re back so quickly. It’s like you took two flightsed consecutively.”

“Just think of it as if I was bored!” Avery was not in the mood to tell him about Adrian. “I’m adjusting to the time difference. I’m a little tired.”

“Hmm, go be with these children.”

“I don’t need you to tell me.”

Avery sent him to the door. After he left, she returned to the living area. Mrs.

Cooper carried Robert over with an apologetic expression. “Avery, I’m94 sorry!”

“You don’t have to apologize to me. I knew that he wanted to come over. It’s not that you invited him,” Avery said and looked at Robert. “Babe, did he scare you? Don’t be afraid. No one will dare to bully you.”

Robert pouted his lips, blowing18 bubbles.

His comical look made Avery forget all about her exhaustion. She perked herself up and walked over to Layla. She took Layla’s homework and glanced through it. “Layla, don’t be afraid. Daddy won’t hurtd3 you.” “Mommy, I am a little scared. Although I know that he won’t hurt me, I’m still scared.” Layla looked at Avery worryingly. “Hayden was so angry. I’m feeling bad for him.”

Avery hugged Layla in her arms. “The issue between your Daddy and Hayden is a little complicated. They would not come to terms with each other for the time being but don’t be afraid. Daddy has promised me that this would not happench again.”

“Hmm, Mommy, go and see Hayden,” Layla said understandingly. Avery placed Layla’s homework down. “I’ll look at your homework later.” “Hmm.”

Avery walked upstairs and entered Hayden's room. She saw Hayden sitting on a chair, frowning, and looking at the computer seriously in a daze. She walked over to Hayden and bent down. "Hayden, I'm sorry that I can't give you a good environment to grow up in." "It has nothing to do with you." Hayden's voice sounded depressed. "I don't want to see him."

"Then, I won't let him come to our house again in the future," Avery promised, "But he really wants to attend your's and Layla's birthday party. I promised him before that he could attend. Can we let him attend? I'll look out for him and make sure he won't come close to you." Hayden responded and held Avery's hand. "Mommy, I'm hungry."

Chapter 930

At Elliot's house. He returned home and was about to head upstairs when Mrs. Scarlet called out after him.

"Master Elliot, there is something I wonder if you've heard about?"

Elliot turned around and looked at Mrs. Scarlet. "What is it?"

"It's about the old mansion." Mrs. Scarlet had a heavy expression. "Your brother is planning to sell it."

Elliot's gaze darkened a little. "Who did you hear it from?"

"My nephew is into real estate. He called and told me." Mrs. Scarlet's eyes reddened and glistened with tears, "Master Foster, your brother surely must have run out of money, which is why he is selling the mansion. Sigh! How could he bear to do it!"

"Are you trying to ask me to give him money?" Elliot put both hands in his pocket. He looked straight at Mrs. Scarlet.

She shook her head furiously, "Of course you can't give them money! They are ungrateful people. Madam Rosalie treated them so well, yet they killed her! I thought that you might want to buy the old mansion. Even if you don't stay there, it's better to not let others move in too. If the old mansion were to switch owners, others will surely talk about the Fosters."

Mrs. Scarlet was doing this for the Fosters' reputation, so she suggested this to Elliot.

Elliot was wealthy. It was not a problem for him to buy the old mansion.

"I'll get someone to go take a look tomorrow," Elliot said, "Go to bed!"

"Have you had your dinner?" Mrs. Scarlet asked immediately, "I've made dinner, but you did not return to eat, so it's still on the table."

If Mrs. Scarlet did not ask him about it, he would not have realized that he had not had dinner yet.

He went straight to the Starry River Villa after work. When he arrived at Avery's house, they had already finished their meal.

Elliot walked over to the dining hall. Mrs. Scarlet immediately reheated the dishes.

"Master Elliot, how was spending time with the children?" Mrs. Scarlet asked Elliot.

"Not too good." Elliot furrowed his brows. His tone was a little cold. "Hayden hates me. I even made Robert cry. Layla also did not dare to come close to me."

He was feeling utterly terrible.

In business, he had full control of everything. How was he such a failure when it came to his children?

Mrs. Scarlet was a little stunned. She quickly walked over to Elliot and asked, "Master Elliot, how did that happen?"

"I was too impatient." He summed up his mistake. "I wanted to reconcile with Hayden so badly it made him hate me even more.”

“Oh...Hayden’s character is quite like you. If you rushed it, it would never work,” Mrs. Scarlet comforted him, “Hayden listens to Avery. As long as you maintain a good relationship with Avery, Hayden will come to accept you sooner or later.”

“I understand, but every time I see him, I can’t help but want to get close to him.” Elliot swallowed his saliva and said remorsefully, “I don’t like children, but my children are different.”

Mrs. Scarlet chuckled. “Yes. There are no parents on this earth that wouldn’t like their children.”

Elliot said, “Have you forgotten about my father?”

The smile on Mrs. Scarlet’s face vanished. “I’m sorry. I forgot about him. Master Elliot, you should forget about him too! Don’t think about all those painful memories. You are different from him. I believe that even if you and Avery’s children unfortunately have the condition, you would never abuse your children. You will still love them as much as you do right now.” “I’m not so sure about that.” Elliot’s chest heaved. He said bitterly, “Sometimes, I can’t control my emotions. Just like tonight. I could have gently handled the situation with Hayden, but I grabbed him roughly. Maybe I’m like my father, having a tendency to violence. His blood flows in my vein. I inherited his violent genes. I can’t promise that I will be better than him.” Mrs. Scarlet said, “Master Elliot, stop saying that. No matter what other people say, no matter how you think about it. In the servants’ eyes, you are a thousand times better than your father!

She turned and entered the kitchen.

At the Starry River Villa, Avery was with Hayden throughout his dinner. The lively atmosphere at home soon resumed.

“Robert, why don’t I play some piano for you?” Layla held Robert’s hand. “I learned a new piece this weekend. Let me play for you!” Avery looked at the time. “Layla, it’s late. You should go to bed, if not you won’t be able to get up tomorrow. Play for Robert after school tomorrow!” “But I want to play the piano now.” Layla was not sleepy. She did not want to go to bed. At that moment, Hayden walked over. “Go upstairs, I’ll listen to you.” Layla pouted. She was reluctant. “But I only want to play for Robert.”

Chapter 931

Avery was confused. “Didn’t you say you like Hayden the most?”

“Yes! I do like Hayden the best, but I only want to play for Robert, because Robert wouldn’t know if I played it wrongly,” Layla explained.

Avery smiled. “Hayden doesn’t know if you played it wrongly or not too! He doesn’t know how to play the piano.”

Layla was stunned. “Oh, you’re right! I thought that Hayden was a superhero. He knows how to do everything! Hehe!”

Then, she happily pulled Hayden upstairs. Avery smiled helplessly.

“Avery, didn’t you say you were dealing with the time difference? Go shower and get some rest,” Mrs. Cooper said.

“Hmm.”

Avery returned to her bedroom and went to her closet to take her pajamas, Her abdomen was in sudden throbbing pain. She immediately held onto the closet door for support and slowly bent her back. She gasped for air and her face instantly turned pale!

Although she was in a lot of pain, she was not afraid. That was because the pain was familiar to her.

After giving birth, she has not had her period. The pain in the abdomen was because of her period.

On the plane, she felt tightness in her chest and her abdomen. Back then, she thought it was because she did not rest well. She never thought it was because her period came.

Once the pain subsided a little, she immediately headed to the bathroom.

At Elliot's house. After the shower, he held Hayden's present in his hands to have aed look The present was a smart cartoon robot tiger because Hayden liked tigers, so Elliot picked this robot.

The day when he and Ben went shopping for presents, they walked around the science museum for a long time but found no suitable presents. In the end, he ordered this robot online. It was delivered only the day before. Elliot turned on the robot and it immediately said, "Master, good evening. What can Tiggie do for94 you?"

Elliot said, "Can you make my son happy?" Tiggie said, "Of course! Not only do I know how to sing and tell a story, but I tell jokes18 too!"

Elliot asked, "My son is seven years old. What do you think he will like?"

Tiggie was silent for a while before replying, "Hisd3 mother!"

Elliot was speechless. He had bought the right robot. It was indeed quite smart.

The robot knew that a seven-year-old child would like his mother the most.

He wondered if Hayden would like thiscb present. The next day, Elliot brought the presents to Tate Industries. He planned on passing them to Avery.

When the receptionist saw Elliot, she was extremely excited. "Mr. Foster, Miss Tate is not coming to the office today. You can call to get her, or I could help you too." Elliot said, "Then, please help me to call her." The receptionist immediately picked up the phone and dialed Avery. Two minutes later, the receptionist put the phone down with a blush on her face. She said to Elliot,

“Mr. Foster, Miss Tate said that she won’t come to the office today.”

The receptionist paused for a while before adding. “She has her period today. Her tummy hurts.”

Chapter 932

At the Starry River Villa, Avery was in her bed, feeling listless. That morning, since her abdomen was in so much pain, she took a painkiller. Previously, whenever she took painkillers, the pain would quickly stop. However, that day, her abdomen was extremely painful. After taking painkillers, it only subsided a little, so she did not go to work that day.

In such a situation, even being in bed was uncomfortable for her, let alone going to work

After the call with her receptionist, she got down from the bed. She wanted to drink some hot water.

She went to the living area and saw Mrs. Cooper hanging up her call frantically. “Avery, why are you out of bed?” Mrs. Cooper asked worriedly. “If you’re not feeling well, you should rest in bed.”

“I’m a little thirsty,” Avery said, “I’m feeling much better compared to this morning.” “I’ll bring you a thermos of hot water.” Mrs. Cooper went to look for the thermos. “By the way, Master Foster called just now. He said he was coming over.”

Avery was exhausted and feeling unwell, so she did not have much reaction when she heard this piece of news.

“He bought Hayden and Layla presents. He wants to pass it to you to give to the children,” Mrs. Cooper explained. “He told me about this yesterday.” Avery accepted the cup of water, carrying it in her hands to warm them up. “No wonder the receptionist called me. I guessed he must have gone to the office to look for me.”

“Hmm. Avery, do you want to get him to stay for lunch? The children are not at home. It should be fine,” Mrs. Cooper said. Avery said confusedly, “It’s still too early for lunch, right?” “It’s almost ten already. When he arrives, it should be around ten-thirty. He likes my cooking. I haven’t made a meal for him in a long time,” Mrs. Cooper said what she truly felt, “He treated me well when I was working for him.” Avery gave in. “Hmm, I’ll go lie down.” 20 minutes later, Elliot’s car arrived at the Starry Rivered Villa.

He brought the presents into the villa.

“Avery is resting in her room. I’ll go see if she’s still sleeping,” Mrs. Cooper said and quickly headed to the master bedroom. She pushed the door open to have a lookle inside. If Avery was not asleep, when Mrs. Cooper pushed the door open, she would open her eyes in alarm.

Mrs. Cooper gently closed the door and returned to the living94 area. “Avery is asleep. She’s feeling unwell today,” Mrs. Cooper said and brought Robert to Elliot.” Master Foster, please look after Robert, I’ll go make lunch. I have already discussed it with Avery. She agreed to have you stay for lunch.” When Elliot suddenly saw the baby in his arms, his heart melted into a18 puddle.

“Robert, Daddy loves you very much. Do you know that?” Elliot spoke to Robert in a soft voice, “I wish I could carry you every day. If I could be with you every day, I will feel that all the pain I have suffered in the past will be worth it.”

Elliot muttered softly to Robert. At the same time, Robert looked at him with his huge round eyes, chewing on his littledz hand. “Are you hungry? Shall I make you some milk?” Elliot carried Robert in his arms. He was about to ask Mrs. Cooper if it was time for Robert’s feeding. He merely got up from the sofa when he saw Avery standing behind him. She had heard what he said to Robert a momentcb ago.

She was rather heartbroken. On one hand, she felt a little pity for him. On the other hand, it would be rather hard for her to accept him immediately, so she could only watch. "You don't look well." Elliot furrowed his brows at her pale face. "Did I wake you up?" "I wasn't asleep." Avery walked to him and looked at Robert. "Robert likes to bite things at his age. It's not because he is hungry. If he is hungry, he will cry." Elliot responded, "Do you want to go back to bed? Have you had painkillers? I remember you never used to have a painful period." "How was it in the past?" Avery raised her eyebrows and looked at him. "Even if I was in pain in the past, I might not tell you. Do you think you understand me very well?" Elliot flushed a little. He knew that she was not feeling well, so he would not fight with her.

"Don't fight in front of the child." Elliot's tone was tender. "Don't underestimate Robert. He understands everything."

Chapter 933

"He knows nothing. We can fight in a softer voice, and it would not even scare him," Avery said quickly but in a hushed tone.

Sure enough, Robert still looked adorable. He did not understand what they were talking about.

Avery took a teether and put it in Robert's hand. Robert put the teether in his mouth and munched on it.

"Do you want to carry Robert?" Elliot wanted to cheer her up.

Avery replied, "I'm too weak."

Elliot said, "Do you want some water?"

Avery replied, "I'm not thirsty."

"I brought the presents here. Let me show you," Elliot said, about to go to get the presents.

Avery saw him pacing back and forth with Robert in his arms. He said, "You're carrying Robert, can't you just sit still? If I want to see the presents, I'll go see them myself." Elliot heard what she said and sat down next to her.

"Just say that you bought the presents. Don't mention me," Elliot reminded.

"I will help you pass the presents to the children. Don't you worry about the rest." Avery looked at the boxes and thought that the presents were surely expensive.

Elliot's phone suddenly rang, breaking the silence.

He was carrying Robert. It was hard for him to grab his phone. He initially wanted to pass Robert to Avery, but he remembered that she said she was too weak. Thus, he stood up and got Avery to help retrieve his phone.

Avery could not refuse him. She reached her hand into his pocket and took his phone out. She looked at the caller ID and saw that it was Chad. "Answer it," Elliot said, "Put it oned loudspeaker." Avery answered the call and put it on the loudspeaker. She placed the phone on the coffee table. "Mr. Foster, I got someone to ask the price that your brother asked for. He is asking for fifteen million in full. This price is considered extremely cheap," Chad said, "I'm guessing he is desperate for money right now. It's true too, Cole doesn't have work right now. They have no income. We can only imagine how bad it is forie them."

When Avery heard what Chad said, she immediately looked at Elliot. "Is your brother planning to sell off the old mansion?"

On the other end of the line, Chad heard Avery's voice and was instantly94 baffled.

Elliot said, "Hmm, do you think I should buy it?"

Chad was conflicted. "Mr. Foster, are you talking to me18 or...Avery?"

Avery said, "If you want to buy it, just do it. Why do you need to ask me?" She added, "Also, fifteen million is nothing to you. There is nothing to be torn about."

Elliot said, "Does that mean you're asking me to buy it?"

Avery blushed. "Just buy it if you want to, why are you asking me?" Elliot looked at her. "You're next to me. I'm just casually asking."

Avery said, "Then, I won't stay here." She got up and headed to the kitchen.

Elliot said to Chad. "Chad, go look for Henry and buy it." Chad said, "Okay!"

At night, Elliot drove to the old mansion. It was part of his estate. It was pointless to mention it since this was always his home. He had spent most of his childhood there.

However, after cutting ties with Henry, he had never returned since. At that moment, this mansion belonged to him once again. He walked to the main door and inserted the key. Suddenly, a pungent smell wafted over!

Chapter 934

Back at the Starry River Villa, Avery was feeling much better compared to during the day. Aside from feeling a little exhausted, her stomach did not hurt anymore.

After having a warm and pleasant dinner, she brought the two children to the living room and took out the gifts both she and Elliot had prepared for them.

Elliot asked her not to tell them that those gifts were from him, but she could not fulfill that request of his because she did not want to lie to the children.

"Why are there four gifts, Mommy?" Layla's eyes sparkled as she looked at the four gift boxes. She was very excited to open all the gifts.

"Mommy bought these two, and Daddy bought the other two." Avery made a point to pay special attention to Hayden's expression when she said that.

When Hayden heard the word 'Daddy', his warm expression turned cold in an instant. "Let's open the gifts and see what's inside!" Avery picked up the gift that Elliot bought first because she knew that Hayden would leave if he opened her gift first.

Avery was just as curious as to what kind of gifts Elliot bought.

Given how much importance Elliot had placed on the children, she had a feeling that he bought stuff the children would like.

Avery opened the first gift and took out an exquisite-looking little box.

Before Avery even opened it, Layla immediately exclaimed, "This must be for me! It's definitely a beautiful hairpin inside!"

Avery smiled and handed the box to Layla. "Go ahead and open it then." Layla took the gift box excitedly and opened it.

A pink heart-shaped diamond came into Layla's view, sparkling brightly underneath the light.

Layla opened her mouth in shock and awe!

"What a huge diamond!" Mrs. Cooper held Robert and watched from one side.

The diamond inside the box came as a big surprise to her.

Layla trembled as she took it out of the box.

It was a very huge, raw diamond!

"Why did Daddy give me this diamond? I can't wear it around my neck or clip it on my hair. Is it supposed to be a toy?" Layla joked. She then tossed the diamond in the air like a pebble and caught it.

"What do you want to turn it into? I can always bring it to a jewelry store and let someone turn it into something else," Avery explained. "Don't throw it around!

It's expensive, and you wouldn't want to break it."

"Oh! I have an idea! Could you bring it to the store and tell them to make a magic wand for me?" Layla allowed her imagination to run wild. "It'll be so cool if this diamond was placed on top of the magic wand!"

Avery was speechless. She opened the gift that Elliot bought for Hayden and took out a tiger shaped robot from it.

The robot was not very big and was about the size of a large piggy bank

"What's this?!" Layla looked at the little tiger robot curiously. Avery took out the instruction manual from the box and read it before handing it over to her daughter. "This is a smart robot."

"Whoa! Hayden likes robots the most!" Layla said as she took the little tiger.

"Put it down, Layla!" Hayden frowned. "I don't want his gift!" Layla pouted. "Suit yourself! If you don't want this cute little tiger, I'll take it!" She had already found the robot's power button and pressed it. "Good evening, Master! I'm Tiggie, the tiger who knows all! Ask me a question!" Layla asked, "Tiggie, Tiggie! My brother doesn't want you. What are you going to do about that?" Tiggie was silent for a few seconds before letting out a burst of screams!

Chapter 935

Everyone was speechless. Just like that, Tiggie had convinced everyone to let him stay. At the old mansion, Elliot caught a whiff of gasoline when he opened the lock of the courtyard door.

It took less than three minutes from the time he noticed the gasoline smell for a roaring fire to appear in front of him.

Elliot was stunned when he saw the sudden burst of fire.

The bodyguard rushed over immediately and pulled Elliot out of the yard. "Mr. Foster! Someone set the place on fire! Please wait outside! I'm going to find the culprit!" Elliot was pushed to the courtyard by the bodyguard, who then immediately ran in to find the arsonist!

Elliot looked at the raging fire in front of him and immediately took out his cell phone to call the fire department.

It was bold of Henry to set the house on fire simply because he was reluctant to sell it!

The previous day, Mrs. Scarlet even mentioned that Henry was unwilling to sell the house. After all, Henry had lived in the old mansion for most of his life, and it was Cole who owed other people money and left Henry with no choice but to sell it off.

Mrs. Scarlet had probably erred in her judgment, all things considered.

Why would Cole—a man who feared death—be brave enough to court such a disaster?! Henry must have been in on the plan too.

Was Henry betting on the fact that Elliot was afraid to kill him?!

In that case, Henry could not be more wrong! Elliot would not hesitate to go against anyone who angered him, with the only exceptions being Avery and the children. The fire truck came quickly enough and began to put out the fire. The staff from the residential area rushed over as well. When they saw Elliot's gloomy expression, they immediately asked, "Are you alright, Mr. Foster? How was there such a big fire here? No one's living in this villa, so logically speaking, there shouldn't have been a fire!"

The staff had just finished talking when the bodyguard dragged the arsonist out.

Elliot clenched his fists tightly when he saw the arsonist's face!

About 20 minutes later, news of the fire in the old Foster mansion had spread throughout the internet.

Since the property was valued at a high price and the Fosters had always lived in that particular villa, news of the fire quickly made the94 headlines.

Avery was with her children and did not see the news, “Avery! There’s a fire in Elliot’s house!” Mike spoke a little too fast because he was feeling18 anxious. When Avery heard what he said, her expression tensed up and she asked in a solemn voice,” What’s going on? How did the fire happen? Is he alright?!” “I don’t know! I found out about it through the news. I tried calling Chad but he didn’t answer. “Mike showed her the news, “Look how big the fire is! Even the sky is red. This is horrifying! I’m not even sure if Elliot will be able to escape if he’s inside the3 house!” Avery took his cell phone and felt relieved after getting a good look at the picture! “This isn’t his house! It’s the old mansion! He’s probably not insidecb there!”

“Oh, but I read on the news that it’s his.”

“Wait a second!” Avery’s body suddenly turned cold. “He just bought the old mansion today! He’s probably inside it right now!” After saying that, she returned the phone to Mike and ran out in a flash!

“Avery! Wait! I’m coming with you!” Mike chased after her.

Half an hour later, Avery and Mike came to the residential area where the old Foster mansion was located.

She practically ran to the old Foster mansion when she reached the area.

The fire was already put out. However, the cordon in front of the house was still up. There were a lot of people surrounding the place and almost everyone was whispering about the fire and the story behind it. Avery could not be bothered to listen to all that gossip! All she wanted to know was whether Elliot was alright!

“You should give him a call and ask!” Mike caught his breath and reminded. “If he's fine, he'll answer your call for sure!"

Chapter 936

Avery stepped to one side. She immediately dialed Elliot's number before giving her emotions a chance to calm down.

To her surprise, Elliot answered the phone within seconds.

"I'm fine." His voice was low and firm. She sighed with relief and asked calmly,

"Who set the fire?" "My eldest brother's driver. He's been with my eldest brother for many years now." Avery was overwhelmed with sadness as she looked at the old mansion that had just gone through hell in just one night. Why burn a house down just because of the enmity that existed between two humans? "Was it under your elder brother's orders?" She could not help but suspect it was so. She recalled that Henry and Elliot shared very different personalities, and the former even seemed extraordinarily honest and sincere when compared to Elliot. It boggled her why Henry would even do something so outrageous.

"The driver said that it wasn't the case, but I'm still verifying that." Elliot then asked hoarsely, "Where are you now?"

"L..." She felt embarrassed to tell him the truth. After all, he might think that she cared about him if he knew that she was there.

"You should go home and rest since you're not feeling well today." He did not make her feel awkward.

The fact that she took the initiative to call him was already evidence enough.

"By the way, I gave the children your gifts." Avery changed the topic to ease the atmosphere." Layla loved the diamond, but you shouldn't give her such valuable jewelry in the future. I don't think it's appropriate. You can give as big a diamond as you want, but a child will treat it the same as aed stone."

"As long as my daughter likes it, she can play with it however she wants.

What's wrong with that?"

Avery wasie speechless.

Elliot then asked, "What about Hayden? Does he like that robot?" "I think he does, but he didn't want it because it came from you. Layla loves it though. She brought it back to her94 room."

Elliot expected it already. "As long as you don't return it to me."

"Okay. I'm going back now." She held the phone and walked toward18 Mike.

On the other side of the phone, Elliot's breathing suddenly increased, "You went to the old mansion to look for me? Why aren't you keen on giving me another chance if I still have a place in your heart, Avery?" Avery clenched her fingers tightly around the3 phone. She had a slip of the tongue and was too careless earlier.

"Okay, you should head back! I'll look for you when I'm done with all this," hecb said. "Why do you need to look for me? Isn't it fine to just keep things as it is?"

She retorted. After being silent for a few seconds, he decided to be true to himself and tell her his inner thoughts. "I want to take the next step with you."

"Anything's possible in your dreams," she sneered, then hung up. Mike crossed his arms and watched her walk over after speaking on the phone. "Elliot's fine, it seems. I knew that he won't die that easily."

"He's human too. Why wouldn't he die that easily?" Avery's hair was messy due to the blowing wind and she tucked a lock of hair behind her ears. "Isn't there a saying that only the good die young?" "Don't misuse those sayings." Avery felt a little cold at that moment because she had rushed out of the house without wearing a coat. Mike was not wearing one either, and he was shivering from the cold too. "How about we hug each other to warm ourselves up?" he suggested. Avery glared at him. "Are all men this shameless? Do you guys have to verbalize your thoughts all the time?"

“Ooooh, someone’s angry! Did Elliot say something shameless to you? I can think of no other explanation for why you would lump all men into one category.” Avery pursed her lips and did not answer.

Chapter 937

However, when she recalled Elliot’s words, she could feel as if a fire was burning in her heart and dispelling the coldness.

At the police station, Henry came as soon as he received a call from the authorities.

The first person he saw when he entered was Elliot, and he immediately lowered his head.

“This is the situation, Mr. Foster. Your driver set fire to the old mansion earlier tonight. Do you know anything about this?” a police officer asked Henry.

Henry shook his head. “Not at all. I gave him a severance payment a few days ago, and we haven’t been in contact since then.” After a pause, he continued, “I need to explain everything to my brother!”

The police officer glanced at Elliot and excused himself when he saw that Elliot did not object to Henry’s suggestion.

Henry walked up to Elliot and explained, “Elliot, please let Joseph go! He’s been my driver for more than half his life! He has been with me since he was still young! It’s because of his loyalty to me that he did what he did. I would’ve stopped him if I knew he was planning this.”

Elliot was unmoved.

“How about this, I’ll pay to repair and maintain the old mansion,” Henry tried negotiating. “I didn’t order him to do this. If my intentions were truly malicious, I would’ve burned your place instead of the old mansion, since it’s basically an empty house with nothing inside.” Elliot looked at Henry’s exhausted face and opened his thin lips to say, "I'll believe you...for now. You need to restore the old mansion to its original state or I won't let Joseph go."

"Okay." Henry's expression was solemn. He looked like he had something else he wanted to say, but in the end, he merely sighed. "I'll be going then if that's all."

The feud between the two brothers was a very sad sight.

As Henry left, Elliot looked at him from behind and was overwhelmed with compassion as he said, "You should keep the money from the house sale to yourself, Henry. Don't let your useless son spend it all!"

Henry's eyes turned red and he felt choked. "Cole isn't just useless; he's stupid as hell too. But at the end of the day, he's still my son. I won't be able to just wash my hands of him! Aren't you a father too? You should understand how I feel."

If Henry told Elliot that in the past, the latter would have found it difficult to understand what the former meant.

At that moment, he sympathized with Henry aed little. Elliot's love for his three children was beyond the control of reason. He was never fixated on the idea that his three children had to be good people. He just wished for them to be healthy andie safe.

Who knows what path they might take in the future? They may turn out to be mediocre at best, and stray down the wrong path at worst.

If one of his children did eventually go astray, could he be that cruel as to sever his ties with that child? Perhaps⁹⁴ not.

Back at Starry River Villa, Avery took a shower and lay down on the bed, with Elliot's low pitched voice echoing constantly in her mind.

Had that fire not happened, she would not have inadvertently revealed that she still had feelings for18 him.

Now that he knew about her feelings, she made herself seem a little too passive.

She unlocked her phone and texted Tammy to complain. (Hey, Tammy. Are you asleep? There was a fire in the old Foster mansion tonight. Did you see the3 news?) Tammy replied after about five minutes. [I did.]

Avery's emotions calmed down somewhat when she looked at the two-wordcb reply. Tammy's mood seemed to be off. Avery sent a message and asked, [Are you and Jun alright?] (Yeah. He didn't touch me again after that past failure.) [I knew he won't push you. He loves you very much.) [I love him too. The more time I spend with him, the more I feel like I can't live without him.)

Tammy's eyes were moist when she sent that message

Jun was so kind to her, but she could never love him as she did before. She always felt that she was broken and unworthy of him.

The next morning, Avery was woken up by her blaring cell phone. In a daze, she reached out blindly to find it and answered her call.

"Avery! Do you know where Tammy went? She wasn't at home when I woke up this morning, and her phone was turned off when I tried calling her! I can't find her anywhere right now! God, I'm going to lose my mind soon!" Jun said anxiously.

Chapter 938

Avery sat up from the bed startled after being jolted awake by what she heard.

"I have no idea what's going on with her! She was fine when she slept last night." Jun's voice was low and choking as if he was about to cry. "I have a feeling that she's hiding on purpose! She definitely regrets it and doesn't want to be with me anymore! We already agreed to remarry on the seventh of July this year...”

“I texted her last night and she told me she loves you very much,” Avery comforted, “She said that she’s finding it more and more difficult to be separated from you, so I’m confident that she doesn’t have any regrets. I’m sure she won’t want to break up with you either. She probably just went off to do something.”

“If that’s the case, why would she be hiding it from us?” Jun calmed down a little. “Could she have gone to see a psychiatrist?” “It’s not impossible.” Avery got off the bed. “Stay calm, Jun. I’ll find her.” “Where?” Jun could not figure out where Tammy could be. “I recommended a psychiatrist to her the other day, so I’ll check if she went there.”

“Thank you for the trouble. Please inform me as soon as you have any news about her. I’m worried sick right now.”

“I will.”

Avery tried calling Tammy after ending the call with Jun.

The voice prompt stated that she had switched off her phone. Avery opened the messages that they exchanged last night and read them again. She did not notice anything unusual when they texted each other the previous night, but as soon as she reread the messages, it was obvious that Tammy was unhappy.

There would usually be an influx of emojis if Tammy was in a good mood.

She did not post a single one of them in the previous night’s messages. Avery rued that she had overlooked Tammy’s unhappiness. Tammy might not have gone and hid somewhere if only Avery had realized it the previous night.

After a while, Avery came out of the room and prepared to headie out.

Mrs. Cooper stopped her at once after realizing that she did not eat any breakfast. “Are you feeling better today, Avery? Where are you going in such a hurry? Have some breakfast before you⁹⁴ do!” Mrs. Cooper would not have been that worried if Avery was not having that time of the month. “I have no appetite,” Avery said anxiously. “Tammy disappeared to God knows where and I have to find¹⁸ her.”

“What happened? Did she get into an argument with Jun?” Mrs. Cooper frowned. ^{d3}“No.”

“You don’t look so good, Avery. You should have something to eat or else I’m the one who’s going to be worried if you leave like this.” Mrs. Cooper took her arm. “Tammy isn’t a child anymore. She’s probably taking a walk to calm herself down because she’s in a bad mood. Nothing’s going to happen.” Avery corrected her. “Tammy’s not in a bad mood. Have you heard about posttraumatic stress disorder? It’s a mental illness that often escapes attention. It might be harmless for a normal person to be in a bad mood, but for Tammy, it could put her life in danger.”

Mrs. Cooper realized that she had said misspoke and immediately apologized.

“Okay, Avery. I’ll go get some food and you can eat in the car.”

Trust Capital’s headquarters was in Rosacus City, which was just next to Avonsville.

Chelsea had practically remained in Rosacus City after taking over Trust Capital. One of the reasons was because a clean-up of the headquarters’ personnel was required, and she had not completely started her work yet. The other reason was her disfigurement-she did not want to appear in public too much.

On that day, Chelsea donated to several local charities in the name of Trust Capital. The donation campaign was held in a five-star hotel in the city.

Countless reporters and cameramen had taken their respective places at the venue.

Chelsea walked into view with bodyguards and executives surrounding her.

She was clad in a black uniform that streamlined her figure and emphasized her capability, and a blue mask was worn to cover her disfigured face.

As long as she did not show her disfigured face, she could still pretend that she was a normal person!

When she took her seat on the stage, a hotel attendant came over to her with a glass of water. Chelsea looked up at the person and realized that she knew the person!

Chapter 939

Chelsea was just about to call her bodyguard when a sharp dagger sliced across her fair, slender neck! Elsewhere, in Avonsville , Avery went to the psychiatrist that she had introduced to Tammy

The psychiatrist confirmed that Tammy never contacted him.

Avery then went to the cafes that she used to go to with Tammy...

After two hours of searching, Tammy was still nowhere to be found.

She called Tammy again but her phone was still switched off. The messages she sent had also elicited no reply. Where could Tammy have gone? Where else could she be? Avery sat in the car and stared blankly ahead. She was at a loss as to which direction she should drive toward.

Just as she was about to lose hope, she received a call on her cell phone! Her heart was beating anxiously! It was a call from Elliot. She grabbed her phone and immediately answered it. "Go home, Avery. We found Tammy's whereabouts."

Her tensed-up heart relaxed immediately and she asked nervously. "Is she alright? Where did you find her?"

“She’s in Rosacus City. I’m going there now with Jun to pick her up,” Elliot said calmly.

He did not want to scare Avery, but he knew that he could not hide it from her either.

Chelsea’s hometown was in Rosacus City and Trust Capital’s headquarters was there as well. Furthermore, Tammy had no relatives or friends in Rosacus City, which meant that there was only one reason why she went there—to find Chelsea!

Avery felt that it was risky enough if Tammy had found Chelsea in Avonsville. After all, Chelsea was a sly and cunning person who had plenty of tricks up her sleeve. Someone like Tammy would never be a match for her.

Tammy’s decision to run all the way to Chelsea’s turf and cause trouble there was no different from digging her ownie grave!

“How is she, Elliot?! Tell me!” she yelled hysterically. She could sense that something had happened to Tammy because there would not have been any reason for Elliot to personally take a trip to Rosacus City. “She’s fine.” Elliot frowned as he tried comforting her. “We’ll bring her back safely. You can go back home and wait for our updates.” She breathed a sigh of relief. “You’d better not lie to me!”

“I wouldn’t dare.” Avery was relieved after receiving Elliot’s answer and drove home. When she reached, Mrs. Cooper immediately served up a tableful of food and urged her to eat.

“I’m pretty sure you didn’t eat the breakfast I packed for you this morning,” Mrs. Cooper said. “You must be hungry right now.” “Yeah, I am a little hungry.” She sat down at the dining table and looked at the sumptuous lunch. Her appetite had returned slightly. “By the way, Mike called and said he was coming back for lunch, but you don't need to wait for him. Go ahead and start eating."

Mrs. Cooper handed her the utensils. "Thanks."

After eating her fill, she went to the living room and played with Robert. When Mike came back and saw her, he immediately blurted out, "Tammy is one brave girl! Can you believe she went to assassinate Chelsea? She should've just paid someone to do it rather than do it herself. Her resentment must've clouded her judgment to the point where she doesn't even care about her own life!"

The calm on Avery's face disappeared instantly. "Did you just say that Tammy went to assassinate Chelsea?" "Yeah! Didn't you know?" Mike asked in surprise. "Tammy put a knife on Chelsea's neck and took off Chelsea's mask to embarrass her in public. But unfortunately, Chelsea's bodyguards captured Tammy. The whole process was filmed by countless media personnel at the scene, and the complete video is already available online! Tammy is now being held inside a police station in Rosacus City. Elliot and Jun have gone there to get her out!"

Chapter 940

Mike's reflexes were quick and he grabbed her in the nick of time!

"Avery! Elliot and Jun have already picked her up. She's no longer in danger!"

Mike looked at her cold, resentful eyes and took a deep breath. "Don't be impulsive like her! She's already an adult now, not a child! Do you think she did the right thing when she went recklessly to Rosacus City all by herself?"

Avery yanked his arm away. "Her actions are wrong, but what you said earlier was wrong too. Don't tell a person to be kind if you've never experienced what they went through. You've never gone through her pain, so you have no right to judge her." Her words left Mike speechless and there was no way for him to resist. "I'll be frank with you. Elliot was the one who told me to come back and keep watch over you. He said he'd bring Tammy back unharmed." Mike dragged Avery onto the sofa and sat her down, "It takes two hours to go to Rosacus City and another two to come back. That makes four hours. You're feeling unwell, right? It'd be best for you not to go through all that." Avery's eyes turned red. She pursed her red lips and kept quiet. Mike was helpless when he saw her like that. "Come on, don't do that! If you really want to go, I'll drive you there. It's not a big deal. But I must say that Tammy "No! Don't talk about her!" Avery interrupted. "Tammy wouldn't have chosen to do something stupid if she had other ways to relieve the pain in her heart." Mike raised his hands in a gesture of surrender. "I wasn't going to accuse her of anything. I was just going to tell you to persuade her when she comes back. She can't continue down this road. Aside from the danger she'll bring to herself, Jun probably won't be patient enough to tolerate her all the time."

Avery shot him a cold look.

He covered his mouth and said, "Okay, I think it's better for me not to say anything. But don't just ignore what I said. What she did today was just too dangerous. Chad said that Chelsea would have killed and skinned Tammy on the spot if she still had that temper from before." Avery's expression turned gloomy and she said emphatically, "If Chelsea had the guts to do that, I'd dig up her ancestor's graves in addition to killing her." "...Hey now, take it easy there! I'll get you a glass of water. Calm down." Avery sighed heavily.

All of a sudden, Robert burst into tears in the babyed cot.

She immediately stood up and carried the baby.

"Did I scare you because my tone was too fierce earlier?" she said apologetically, "I'm sorry, Darling. I forgot you werezo there."

"Robert is probably hungry. He last drank milk two hours ago." Mrs. Cooper came over immediately when she heard the child crying. "I'll make him some."

Mike came over with a glass of water and put it on the table. He then took Robert from here⁸ arms,

“Have you eaten lunch yet?” Avery asked.

“I’m not hungry. I’ll eat when I am.” Mike gestured at the water glass on the table with his chin. “That’s for²⁴ you.”

Avery picked up the water glass and took a sip.

“I heard that you went out pretty early today. I’m sure you’re feeling really tired now, so why don’t you get some sleep? They won’t be back until evening.”

Mike said, “Hayden and Layla’s birthdays are tomorrow. What are you going to do if your exhaustion spills over to^{ce} tomorrow?” Mike’s words calmed Avery down successfully. Back at Rosacus City, Elliot and Jun managed to smoothly meet Tammy when they arrived at the police²⁶ station. Her state of mind was beyond what they had imagined. Not only was she not crying, but there were also no signs of fear or remorse on her face either. She did not seem surprised or grateful when she saw them, as if she had yet to exit her resentment-filled mindset.

“Elliot,” Chelsea walked to Elliot’s side. “I didn’t do anything to her. She was the one who almost killed me.”

Chelsea’s neck was tied with gauze.

“Do you think you deserve pity?” Elliot retorted indifferently. “I wouldn’t pity you even if Tammy did kill you. You should have died a long time ago.”

Chapter 941

Chelsea sneered in despair.

“I know. As of now, I can only let myself be hit and I can’t fight back. If I did, everything I have left now will be taken away by you.”

Chelsea’s words jolted Tammy’s memory. With Elliot and Jun lending their support for her, she was never going to let Chelsea off the hook!

She rushed up to Chelsea and gave her such a fast, tight slap that Chelsea did not even have the time to cover her ears! The slap caused Chelsea's mask to fall off.

"You're a maggot, Chelsea! You don't want anyone to see your face, but that's exactly what I'm going to do! You've got it coming for you! You'll die the most miserable of deaths!" Tammy's anger did not seem to decrease one bit and she raised her hand once more to vent out all the rage that she had in her.

Elliot watched coldly at one side without interfering. Jun held Tammy in his arms and turned her around.

"Tammy! We're in a police station! You can't beat her up here! She'll get her punishment for sure! And besides, if anyone's getting their revenge on her, it should be me! Can you please listen to me?!"

Tammy pursed her lips as two streams of hot tears trickled down her face.

She did not want to talk about it again and so she changed the topic.

"Why isn't Avery here?"

"I didn't allow her to come," Elliot replied.

"Let's head home. She's worried about you." Jun carried Tammy up and left the police station with Elliot.

Chelsea covered her hot face with her hands and watched them leave.

"Ms. Tierney, your mask." Chelsea's bodyguard handed her the mask.

Chelsea threw the mask away and said angrily, "There's no point wearing it! I'm not going to wear it anymore! Everyone already knows how ugly I am anyway!"

That evening, Elliot brought Tammy to Avery's house. Avery hugged Tammy as soon as they saw each other.

“I was too impulsive today, Avery,” Tammy said softly.

“You were worried about me, weren’t you? I’ll try my best to control myself in the future...”

Avery patted her on the back and said softly, “It’s alright. There are times when you need to vent your feelings or else they’ll suffocate you.”

“Yeah... Well, I’ve decided that I’m going to see a psychiatrist.” Tammy let go of her and informed Avery of her decision.

“Okay, I’ll come with you tomorrow.”

“It’s fine, I’ll bring Jun with me.” Tammy had calmed herself down considerably.

“I’m feeling a little tired right now, so it’s about time I go back home.”

“Okay, Rest well when you’re home and don’t overthink.” Avery saw her out.

“You need to let it out next time if there’s something in your mind. Don’t keep it to yourself and carry the burdens alone.”

“Okay.”

After Jun brought Tammy back, Avery and Elliot inadvertently made eye contact.

“You should leave. Hayden’s coming back soon!” Avery tried chasing him away.

“He’ll be back a little later tonight. There’s still time for me to have dinner before I leave.”

Avery was surprised at how he so shamelessly tried to get a free meal.

“You can’t seriously be that against the thought of letting me have a meal, right?” Elliot frowned.

“I skipped lunch just to pick Tammy up. I don’t even know if I have the strength to walk out of your courtyard gate If you don’t let me eat something...”

“Okay! Fine! Just stop talking and eat something!” Avery glared at him. When he saw how reluctant she was, he said, “Maybe I should just leave.” He then turned around and walked to the door. Avery immediately grabbed Elliot’s arm without hesitation!

Chapter 942

“Elliot,” she called out his name.

“Just eat, will you!”

He unconsciously curled his lips into a beautiful smile.

Satisfied, he turned around and followed her into the living room.

When Mrs. Cooper saw the two of them coming in, she immediately smiled and said, “Dinner’s ready. I’ll check and see if Layla has finished her homework.”

Layla had just started elementary school. She had homework every day, and lots of it too.

Avery decided to hire a tutor just to supervise Layla’s daily homework.

Layla was not particularly enthusiastic about learning, and it would be quite difficult for her to keep up if she was not given the necessary push.

Fortunately, Layla was quite obedient and basically worked hard to complete the special exercises Avery gave her. Elliot walked to the crib and hesitated for a few seconds before picking Robert up. Avery chided him, “Didn’t you say you had no energy to step out of my courtyard because you’re too hungry?”.

Elliot took it all in stride and was fine with whatever she said as long as she did not stop him from holding the baby.

“My son is so adorable that I can feel my energy coming back whenever I see him.”

“Oh, since that’s the case, you might as well skip your meals and just replenish your energy by carrying the baby every day! It’d save Mrs. Scarlet the trouble of cooking your daily meals,” Avery continued mocking him.

Elliot hugged Robert and played with the boy while responding to her, “I don’t mind starving to death, but I’m worried that a certain someone can’t bear to see me like that.”

Avery’s cheeks turned red and she retorted.

“Who says I can’t bear that sight? Don’t think so highly of yourself.”

After saying that, she went to the bathroom to wash her hands.

Elliot carried Robert up and stared into the child’s eyes. The boy’s eyes were shining faintly, like a pair of black gems that were particularly dark and glowing Elliot felt completely drawn to that little life.

His feelings for Robert were not as strong when the boy was just born. That was why it was difficult for him to face Robert after Shea’s accident. There was even a time when he resented Robert.

When he looked back, he felt that he was gravely mistaken!

The little boy never did anything wrong.

Robert looked at Elliot’s face and blew raspberries all of a sudden. He spat out some saliva and made baby noises. Elliot was amused by Robert’s silly yet adorable antics.

“Who’s my silly little boy?!”

Avery came out of the bathroom and was far from amused when she heard his words. Her face turned cold in an instant.

“What did you call the baby?” Elliot realized that he had said something wrong, and immediately changed his words, “Who’s my good little boy!” Over at the stairs, Layla dashed down.

“Mommy!” Layla called out to Avery before realizing that Elliot was also there. She proceeded to ask her mother loudly without showing any effort to dance around the topic, “Mommy! Didn’t you promise Hayden that you wouldn’t let Daddy come to our house in the future?”

Avery felt guilty all of a sudden.

“He’ll be very angry if he comes back and sees Daddy!” Layla walked downstairs and reminded Avery loudly. Avery immediately asked Elliot, “You said that Hayden’s going to be back a little later today. Are you sure?”

Elliot nodded. “His teacher told me.”

“His teacher? You spoke to his teacher in private? Who did you talk to?”

“All of them.”

Avery was stunned.

That man was insane. He bribed not only her bodyguard but her son’s teachers too

She leaned into his ear and whispered, “Did you also speak with Layla’s teachers in private?”

“Of course.”

Chapter 943

Elliot was afraid that his daughter would be bullied at school and felt worried even though he knew that there was only a very slim chance of that happening. His daughter was very beautiful and had a very assertive character. Everything would be fine and dandy if no one provoked her, but if someone pushed her buttons, she would definitely fight back even though she could not win against them!

As a result, he had a word with the school in private.

“You’re such an awesome father.” Avery teased him.

“I know what I have done is far from enough, but I’ll continue to try my best.”

Avery looked at Layla and explained, “Your brother will be back a bit later today. Your father was out the whole day to pick Aunt Tammy up and just came back. It was a pretty long day for him, so I left some food for him.”

“Oh,” Layla answered after hearing the explanation. Since there was a reasonable explanation, she put away the attitude she had shown Elliot earlier.

“Mommy, I like my magic wand!” Layla took Avery’s hand and walked toward the dining room.

“I’m going to be the most beautiful little princess tomorrow.”

Avery said, “You’ll always be the most beautiful little princess to me.”

Layla’s face blushed after being praised and she said energetically, “Mommy, let me tell you a secret!”

Having said that, Layla turned her head to look at Elliot. The girl seemed worried that he would hear it, but at the same time, worried that he would not hear it.

In the end, Layla said the secret in a voice that only Avery and Elliot could hear.

“Hayden took Tiggie apart last night!” Avery had an embarrassed expression and glanced apologetically at Elliot. Elliot said magnanimously, “It’s fine. The gift is for him. It’s his to do whatever he wants with it.”

Layla then continued, “Harden said that Tiggie is too stupid. He can’t stand such a stupid thing in the room, so he wants to dismantle Tiggie and make Tiggieed smarter.”

Avery and Elliot were both speechless. It turned out that Hayden was upgrading Tiggie instead of destroying it.

Mrs. Cooper brought the food to the table and took Robert from Elliot's arms.

As he looked at the sumptuous dinner on the table, Elliot found it rather depressing that Robert could only drink milk and felt pity all of a sudden.

"When can Robert start eating solid food? Can I give him some meat?" Avery explained, "For now, he can only eat baby cereal, vegetable puree, and fruit puree."

"Can you eat meat puree then?"

"Why do you insist on feeding your children meat?" Avery looked at him in puzzlement.

"Do you think eating meat can make him grow faster and smarter? You know what, it doesn't matter what you think. He still can't eat meat yet." Elliot explained his reasoning, "I just think meat is delicious."

"You should eat more then if it's that delicious." Avery placed a plate of spare ribs in front of him.

"We shouldn't be arguing in front of the children, Avery. It won't be a good influence on them."

Avery asked Layla, "Do you think Mommy and Daddy are arguing, Layla?" Layla blinked her beautiful eyes.

"How is this arguing? Mommy is obviously lecturing Daddy." Avery gave her daughter a piece of meat and told her to close her mouth.

After having a satisfying dinner, Elliot did not stay too long because he was afraid that Hayden would come back anytime and sulk after seeing him.

Avery walked him to the door after seeing how tactful he was.

"Thank you for picking Tammy up today." She thanked him with some hesitation.

"You're welcome." He looked at her awkward little expression and said hoarsely, "See you tomorrow."

"Okay." She lowered her eyes, turned around immediately, and closed the door before returning to the living room. The driver drove the car over and opened the car door for him. He shifted his gaze away from the closed villa door and got into the car. Half an hour later, the black Rolls-Roice drove through the driveway leading up to the villa.

A sneaky and extremely suspicious black figure was spotted outside the villa fence. Elliot immediately lowered the car window to try and see the person's face.

Chapter 944

Elliot thought that lowering the car window would startle the man. He thought that the man would lower his head or turn around. Surprisingly, the man raised his head and looked at Elliot after the latter lowered the car window. Elliot frowned almost instantly and glared back at the man! In stark contrast to Elliot's angry emotions, the man grinned and smiled at him!

A cold sweat broke out on Elliot's back, not because he was scared, but because the person was just simply bizarre.

No one ever dared to roam near his villa, much less glance at him so boldly! Since it was difficult to see clearly at night, he could only vaguely make out the man's silhouette. It was a tall and slightly chubby middle-aged man. Elliot could confirm that he had never seen that man before!

Why would someone like that appear outside his villa at night?

The car drove immediately into the front yard. Elliot got out of the car and gave his bodyguard some instructions before walking into the villa.

After a while, the bodyguard came into the living room and reported the situation to him, "I didn't see any middle-aged man like you mentioned, Mr.

Foster, but I saw a black car driving away. I'm guessing that person you mentioned was probably inside it."

"Check the surveillance footage and find out what time he came."

The picture of that middle aged man's grin appeared in Elliot's mind and he clenched his hands into a fist.

He wanted to deem that man as a mentally-ill individual because normal people would not dare to be so cheeky in front of him!

However, a voice in his mind was telling him that the man was not mentally ill.

The bodyguard said earlier that a black car had driven off. If that person really was mentally ill, he ought to be wandering around blindly on the road instead of driving away.

Elsewhere, Tammy and Jun returned home to discover that the house was brightly lit and the door was open.

Jun's parents were sitting on the living room sofa and there was some freshly brewed tea on the coffee table.

When the two of them saw Jun returning with Tammy, they kept quiet but looked right at Tammy's face.

The stir that Tammy created in Rosacus City was all over the internet and the video had gone viral. Eventually, all the Hertz's relatives and friends forwarded the video to Jun's parents.

Although the Hertz's were not on the same level as the Fosters, they were also among Avosville's rich and powerful. Never in their family's history had they ever been associated with such a shameful incident.

Although Tammy and Jun were divorced, they had gotten back together again and were going to remarry to each other. Everyone already regarded Tammy as the Hertz's' daughter-in-law.

“Dad, Mom, why are you here?” Jun was afraid that his parents would blame Tammy, so he immediately said, “Tammy did do some impulsive things today, but I don’t think it’s serious. I don’t think it’s necessary for you to reprimand her.” Jun’s mother, Hilda, sneered.

“You’re going to marry into her family, so of course you think her behavior is not a big deal. After all, she didn’t really kill Chelsea, right?” Jun’s father, Harold, held his wife’s hand and hinted at her to speak a little less.

“Jun, your mother and I have taken these couple of days to calm down. About you and Tammy, we’ve already accepted reality and we’re not responsible for you anymore. Since you’ve already made your decision, we’ll respect your choice.” Harold said in a serious tone.

Tammy thought they came there to scold her and was surprised that they did not. However, it made her a bit awkward and uneasy. Jun said in bewilderment, “Are you sure you’re okay with me staying with Tammy’s family?! Don’t you think that’s really shallow of you? You said that I’m the only third-generation heir in our family and that I’m your most precious son! Guess that’s all a big fat joke, huh! Is this how you treat your precious son?”

He felt stung by how easily his parents gave up on him. To him, Tammy and his parents could never be mutually exclusive. In the past, the only reason Jun dared to shoot his mouth off at the wedding was because he was confident that his parents would compromise.

Chapter 945

Jun's reaction startled his parents.

Tammy was caught between them and she felt lost because she did not know how to ease the tension in their relationship.

Just as she was about to say something, Jun's mother remarked sarcastically, "Precious son? Do you still consider yourself a child when you're already thirty?" "T could be sixty for all I care and still be your son!"

Jun protested.

His cheeks had turned red.

Hilda picked up the teacup and drank tea leisurely.

Harold sneered.

"Your mother and I agreed to let you remain with Tammy.

Who said anything about asking you to stay with her family?" Jun was speechless.

Hilda turned to Tammy.

"Come here." Tammy's heartbeat quickened as she walked to her mother-in-law.

"Jun's father and I have been reflecting on everything for the past two days.

Our reaction to what happened in the past to you was truly inappropriate.

Jun's persistence has shown us that he is a responsible person and we're very pleased with that.

At the same time, it also made us aware of how selfish we are.

Your lives are yours and we have no business interfering in them.

From now on, the two of you can and should continue living your lives happily with each other." Tammy's eyes reddened after hearing what Jun's mother said.

"However, I'd still like to talk about what happened today.

I know how terrible you must feel, Tammy.

It won't be easy to forget the hurt you've experienced in the past, but you shouldn't let that risk your future.

Your actions will only make Jun feel worried, and you really shouldn't be so impulsive in the future." 5 Tammy nodded.

"Dad, Mom, it's getting late and the two of you should go back and rest.

Tammy and I have to rest too." Jun politely ushered his parents out.

After sending his parents away and returning to the living room, he saw Tammy coming out with a bottle of red wine.

"What are you doing with that bottle of wine, Tammy?" Jun closed the door and walked up to her.

"You're not thinking of celebrating with a drink, are you? We can celebrate differently! Avery said you shouldn't drink." "I'll just have a little sip." Tammy poured a glass for herself.

"I'm drinking, but you don't have to." "Why not? If you insist on drinking, I'll drink with you!" Jun also took a wine glass.

"Okay, let's drink together." Tammy poured him a drink.

"Darling, I don't think I'll be so scared if I'm drunk.

Let's try doing it tonight!" Jun put down the wine glass in his hand. "I don't think that's a good idea..." "Let's just try." "Okay.

We'll try." The next day, Layla and Hayden's birthday party went on as scheduled.

Layla changed into a princess dress early on and knocked on Avery's door.

"Mommy! Why aren't you up yet? It's Hayden and I's birthday today! Aren't you excited at all?" Layla's hair was still disheveled as she came up to Avery.

Avery was feeling sleepy because she stayed up late the previous night to read about treatment for post-traumatic stress disorder.

"What time is it, Layla?" she asked in a hoarse voice.

"Seven!" Layla had an exasperated expression on her face as if the day was already coming to an end, "Mommy, wake up! Hayden did not wake up.

I tried waking him up but he ignored me! Sob!" Avery was forced to get up.

Not long later, Mrs. Cooper pushed the door open and walked in with a parcel.

"you have a parcel, Avery.

I don't know who sent it though." Mrs. Cooper carried the parcel to the bedside and showed it to Avery.

" Should I open it?" Avery looked at the parcel and frowned.

Chapter 946

It was a parcel from overseas.

She had received an international parcel before.

At that time, she opened it and saw Wesley's finger.

It was a nightmare that would haunt her for the rest of her life.

She took a deep breath and said to Mrs. Cooper, "You can go ahead and help me open it!" "Okay, I'll do it outside." Mrs. Cooper took the parcel and walked out.

Layla liked unpacking parcels, so she followed behind Mrs. Cooper to see what was inside.

"Let me comb your hair, Layla." Avery stopped her daughter.

" Mrs. Cooper will bring in the parcel's contents for us to see later." "Oh, okay!" Layla came back to Avery and said whimsically, " Mommy, do you think the parcel might be a birthday present for me and Hayden?" Avery smiled and said, "Then who do you think sent it." "T don't know." Layla thought for a moment and did not know who it could be.

However, she seemed very confident when she said, "I think it is a gift for me and Hayden because it's our birthday today! Think about it.

Why was that parcel delivered today of all days?" Layla's ideas were rather cute even though they were a little childish.

It was then that Mrs. Cooper came in with the contents of the parcel.

"It appears to be a birthday present for Layla and Hayden." Mrs. Cooper brought the two greeting cards to Avery.

When Avery took the greeting card and glanced at it, the expression on her face froze immediately.

"Whoa! It's so beautiful! I knew it was a gift for me and Hayden! This girly card must be for me!" Layla took the card from Avery.

It was a card with a picture of a little girl and a birthday cake.

The other card featured a little boy and a birthday cake.

Although there were no words written on it, the pictures told a thousand words.

It was undoubtedly a birthday card for Hayden and Layla.

"Bring me the box." Avery had guessed who the sender was but she could not be sure if her guess was right.

Mrs. Cooper immediately went out to get the box.

The box was handed over to Avery.

It was sent from a very small country, DAw%[nMM a 'W' was written on the sender's column.

"It's Wesley," Avery whispered.

Mrs. Cooper felt a pang in her heart.

"Really now! Even though he'll always be linked to that incident involving Shea, Robert's already a healthy and adorable boy now and Master Elliot won't give him a hard time! There's no reason for him to keep on hiding! "

Avery felt a little uncomfortable.

She always regarded Wesley as her eldest brother before that incident involving Shea.

Whenever something sad or happy happened, she felt that she could always tell him about it.

After he took the initiative to cut off contact with everyone, she felt as though a part of her life was missing.

Although she was sad, she understood why Wesley behaved that way.

Wesley had a good heart and was always kind to everyone.

He must have been particularly distressed when he used Shea's blood to save Robert, and her death must have caused a permanent scar in his heart.

It was so much that he went into hiding and the tragic reality before him had too huge an impact on his emotions.

"Mommy, I remember having an Uncle whom we called Uncle Wesley, but it's been a long time since I've seen him." Layla raised her head and asked Avery, "Where is Uncle Wesley?" "Do you remember Aunt Shea?" Avery asked.

Layla nodded.

"Yeah.

Aunt Shea died to save her little brother.

I miss her so much...and if she was still around, she'd come to celebrate our birthday today." + Tears welled up in Layla's eyes and Avery hugged her.

A Buik Business had parked outside the courtyard gate.

Avery brought Layla out of the room and saw Eric coming in.

Elliot had woken up early back at his mansion.

Aside from having his children's birthday on his mind, he was also preoccupied with that strange person he saw the previous night.

Chapter 947

The bodyguard had checked the surveillance footage from the previous night and discovered when it was that the man came.

That man came after the sun set and waited there for about 20 minutes until Elliot came back.

He left as soon as he spotted Elliot.

His car was parked in the surveillance cameras' blind spot and was therefore not photographed.

Without the car plate number, there was no way to find out his personal information.

The surveillance cameras did not capture a clear shot of his face either, since he kept his head down when he saw Elliot.

It was only when he and Elliot looked at each other that his face was caught by the camera.

However, the lack of proper lighting meant that the picture was very blurry.

The bodyguard took a screenshot of the video and printed it out to show Elliot.

Elliot looked at the photo over and over again but could not quite remember where he had seen that person before.

For some odd reason, however, he felt that the person was quite familiar.

One could not even begin to describe how weird it was that he came over the previous night just to wait there and smile at him before leaving! | Elliot made up his mind to grab that man the next time they showed up.

He came out of the room at eight in the morning.

Mrs. Scarlet said to him, "Coffee and breakfast are ready, Master Elliot." After a pause, she said, "Mrs. Cooper sent me a message saying that Avery and the others are heading to the hotel.

You should go after breakfast!" "That early?" "Well, she said that Eric came very early." Elliot had a scornful look and spoke in an even more disdainful tone.

"He's very considerate." "He is! He cares very much about Avery and the children, but it doesn't really matter how considerate he is if you're around.

Avery's heart is always with you, and no one can take that away." Mrs.

Scarlet's words made Elliot feel at ease and erased all his exhaustion.

Avery allowed him to stay for dinner the previous night and even thanked him when he was leaving.

Her attitude toward him had changed significantly.

He believed that it would not be long before she accepted him again.

"By the way, Mrs. Cooper also said that Wesley sent a package.

It was a birthday card for Hayden EBx#jjNM Layla." Mrs. Scarlet's face darkened when she mentioned Wesley.

"His whereabouts, and Shea's burial ground, remain unknown." A bonechilling glow appeared in Elliot's eyes and he clenched his fists so tightly that his fingers turned pale.

He hated Wesley, but at the same time, he could not bring himself to hate the man.

Shea was important, and so was Robert.

God must have been playing some kind of practical joke on Elliot when the man was given that 'either-or' scenario.

All Wesley did was make a choice for him.

If he had been asked to choose, he would have chosen Shea.

Then again, choosing Shea would leave him spending the rest of his life feeling guilty for Robert.

How could he blame Wesley when neither of those choices could be regarded as superior to the other?

He might not do anything to Wesley if Wesley appeared in front of him right then, but it was impossible for him to view Wesley as a friend.

"You should let bygones be bygones, Master Elliot! Today is a festive day, so don't feel sad." Mrs. Scarlet recalibrated her mood and comforted Elliot.

Elliot responded with a deep grunt.

Inside the hotel's banquet hall, guests had begun to arrive one after another., and Avery— being the host— greeted them at the entrance of the banquet hall.

Mike was entertaining the other guests in the banquet hall.

Lots of children came that day and the atmosphere was very lively.

All of a sudden, a boy walked up to Avery and asked, "Will Hayden's father come today, Auntie?" Avery recognized the boy as Daniel— Hayden's best friend at school.

"He will," Avery answered.

Speak of the devil! Elliot strode in wearing an exclusive bespoke suit and looked dazzling in it.

He walked up to her and paused before glancing boldly at her face.

Chapter 948

Avery glanced at him boldly too.

She, like him, dressed up exceptionally well too, for she wore the most expensive dress in her wardrobe.

Her makeup was light and delicate while her hair was tied up naturally, completing her elegantly stylish look.

"Let's go in," he said.

"You go ahead! I'll wait out here." Avery was waiting for Tammy.

Elliot frowned.

"Weren't you waiting for me?" Avery rolled her eyes.

"That's quite the wishful thinking you're indulging yourself in.

Not to mention your shamelessness.

I'm here to welcome my guests, and I'm waiting for all of them to arrive.

But that doesn't include you even though you're on the guest list." Elliot glanced at the guests in the banquet hall and said to her, " You should go on in and rest for a bit.

I'll welcome the guests here.

" "Tammy and Jun are the only ones who aren't here," she said.

" Could you give Jun a call and ask them?" Elliot took out his cell phone and dialed Jun's number, but the call went unanswered.

He dialed Tammy's number again and it was answered in just a few seconds.

Jun was the one speaking.

"Are you and Tammy alright, Jun? We're waiting for the two of you." "Crap!

We overslept! It's all because we had a little drink last night! We're getting up right away! You guys go ahead and start eating.

Don't wait for us!" Jun hung up as soon as he ended his sentence, Elliot walked up to Avery and wrapped his arms around her waist.

"Let's go in! The two of them haven't woken up yet." "Is something wrong? It's already nine and they don't usually sleep that late on normal days!" Avery wondered.

"They overslept after drinking a little last night." "Drinking?" Avery was stunned for a moment.

"Why were they drinking? I told Jun to take care of Tammy and stop her from drinking." "There are times where you're really smart, Avery.

But you can be a bit of adummy sometimes too." Avery did not enjoy him teasing her, so she removed his big palm from her waist.

"Don't think I didn't know that you were secretly trying to put your hFBY(jjLLs around me." It was a blow to Elliot's self-esteem but he did not express any anger or irritation.

"Ever heard of Dutch courage? Try using your noggin a little and think for yourself why they drank last night." Avery immediately understood what he meant when he mentioned that.

"That's a solution in the short-run but it doesn't address the root cause. They can't always drink before they..." She could not bring herself to finish the rest of her sentences.

"It's better than nothing.

And since Jun won't force it on Tammy, it had to be Tammy's idea to begin with," Elliot said while turning to Daniel.

His voice became a little colder and he asked, "What did the little fatty say to you when he ran up to you earlier? He even tried hitting on my daughter again!" Avery was startled by the hostility coming from him.

"Elliot, Daniel is only ten years old.

Do you honestly think a child his age will do anything atrocious to our daughter?" "That's because you know nothing about boys nowadays.

They're precocious." Elliot walked over to where Daniel was without waiting for Avery to persuade him.

Before he even walked up to Layla, Hayden appeared and stood in front of her.

"I've warned you to stay away from my sister!" Hayden frowned and said coldly to Daniel.

Layla grabbed Hayden's arm and explained softly: "Hayden, he asked me if I had a smartwatch, and I said I don't have one." "Don't get mad, Hayden! I'm not going to bully your sister.

I just...

I just want to be her friend." Daniel's cheeks turned red and he changed the subject.

"By the way, I asked your mom about your dad and she said that he's coming today! Aren't you happy that you can see him?" As soon as Daniel ended his question, Hayden immediately looked up and saw Elliot standing not far behind Daniel.

Layla saw Elliot too.

Chapter 949

Layla nearly blurted out 'Daddy'.

At that point, her arm was yanked and she was whisked away, for Hayden had dragged her to the other side because he did not want to meet Elliot.

Disappointment flashed through Elliot's eyes when he saw his son pulling his daughter away.

"You look like a famous person, Sir," When Daniel saw Elliot, he immediately came to strike up a conversation.

Elliot understood that the fat boy was a social butterfly.

"The famous person you mentioned is over there." Elliot pointed in Eric's direction and turned around to find Avery.

"But I'm not talking about Eric! I don't fancy celebrities!" Daniel ran up with Elliot.

"Are you Elliot Foster, the famous businessman? The tax you pay annually is higher than the GDP of certain countries! I'm such a big fan!"

Elliot was speechless.

"Can I get an autograph, Sir? I'd love to look up to you as my idol, learn from you in the future, and strive to be a great person like you!"

Elliot looked at Daniel's sincere look and felt a twinge of melancholy in his heart.

Daniel looked at him like he was the greatest thing since sliced bread, but his son avoided him like the plague.

It was ironic.

"Sorry, I didn't bring a pen today." Elliot declined his request.

Elliot knew that Daniel was the best student in Hayden's class, which signified that he was Hayden's classmate and competitor.

As Hayden's father, Elliot did not want to leave Daniel with the impression that he was a kind adult.

"But I brought one!" Daniel said, then he took out a pen and paper from his pocket and handed it to Elliot.

"Could you please sign it for me? Just write down 'To Daniel Lewin, I wish you the best in your studies, and may you have a bright future ahead!' You can sign it off with your name!"

Elliot's expression was cold and his body was a little stiff because he did not want to sign his autograph for the kid.

Avery just so happened to come over and glanced at Elliot.

"Why are you so hesitant? It's not like you're signing a contract to waive your autonomy.

Is it that difficult for you?" 1 After saying that, she took the pen BBo'_sKK paper from Daniel's hand and said, "Could you repeat what it was you wanted him to write down? I'll write it for you and get him to sign it."

Daniel was so excited that he immediately repeated what he just said.

After Avery wrote that string of words on the paper, she handed it over to Elliot, who shot her a helpless look.

"Don't you know that you shouldn't be revealing your signature on a whim? Have you no sense of vigilance?" She signed her name on the paper barely seconds after he asked that question.

Was it really necessary to be so vigilant against a ten-year-old child? It was fine to have one's guard up against a random child, but Daniel was Hayden's classmate, and his teacher even said that Hayden did not interact much with other students and was only closer to Daniel.

Based on that circumstance, it really should not be that big of a deal to give Daniel an autograph.

"You should limit yourself to spoiling your own children, Avery.

Let the other parents spoil the other children." Although Elliot was chastising her, he begrudgingly took the paper and pen from her and signed his name next to hers.

After handing the paper and pen to Daniel, he took her shoulders and walked away.

"The way you treated that kid was better than the way you treated me," he said unhappily.

"Then why don't you call me 'auntie' and I give you an autograph?" Avery teased him.

"Don't you think it's weird to stare at kids rather than entertain the guests? You'll be making a fool out of yourself in public." He froze for a moment.

"Entertaining the guests? How?" "Your assistant is over there.

Why don't you go and ask him?" she suggested.

Then, she looked at his palm on her shoulder, and asked, "Do you think I'd stop myself from arguing with you just because there are plenty of guests here today?"

Chapter 950

Avery hit the nail on the head with that statement, because that was exactly what Elliot had been thinking.

In addition, he had also sworn himself to put on a good impression in front of all her close friends.

Although they had not yet fully reconciled, they were almost there.

Other men— especially Eric—had better not hit on Avery again.

He took his hand back and prepared to entertain the guests.

Avery was still worried, so she said to him, "Don't pull a long face today.

Everyone here is a guest.

You may politely refuse if you don't want to toast or drink, but don't make it too blunt.

That applies to everything else.

Like that boy earlier.

He means no harm, so why do you have to make him unhappy?" He committed all her instructions to memory.

"Got it.

Just watch me." Avery saw him walking toward the guests, but she could not bear to take her eyes away from him.

It was not just because he changed, but because he had always been a source of fascination for her.

"Mommy, I want to eat cake! Come and help us cut the cake!" Layla ran over, took Avery's hand, and pulled her to the children's table.

Elliot's watched his daughter drag Avery away and felt that his attention had followed along with them.

"Mr. Foster, Robert's here too.

He's resting in the guest room," Chad said.

"You may check on him whenever you please." Elliot wanted to see Robert, of course, but he did not forget the task Avery had assigned to him.

As the father of the two little birthday kids, he needed to entertain the guests today.

"Do you think Avery has acknowledged me as the children's father when she asked me to entertain the guests, today?" he asked.

Chad had a startled look.

"Even if Avery doesn't acknowledge it, you're still the children's father! This is set in stone.

It's not something that needs her acknowledgment." Elliot looked at him with disdain.

"You have no idea how much her acknowledgment means to me." Chad opened his mouth to say something but kept quiet in the end.

It made sense since the employees all privately regarded their boss as an affectionate man.

Avery was his whole world, ABI" _rNJ her acknowledgment was more important to him than the acknowledgment in the eyes of the law.

"Do I need to toast with them?" Elliot asked.

"I don't know the guests very well and Avery didn't tell me who's who either."

Avery did not tell her who those guests were, only that he should entertain them.

Chad helped him solve his issue.

"You don't need to toast with them.

Just listen to their flattery and don't put on an annoyed expression." "Wouldn't that offend them? They're all Avery's guests." "But you can't hold your liquor, and if you drink too much, you won't be able to entertain them anymore."

After a pause, he said, " If you listen to me, I can bet that they'll go back singing praises of you to their friends." Elliot followed Chad's suggestion.

Chad was afraid that Elliot would be too tired to entertain guests all alone, so he joined along.

Mike was finally able to get some rest after entertaining them.

He sat down beside Avery and ate something.

"I wonder what's going on in Eric's mind at the moment." Mike put a piece of cake into his mouth and looked at Eric.

Eric had been surrounded by his female fans ever since he entered the banquet hall that morning.

Aside from Avery, every other woman in the banquet hall was by Eric's side.

Eric was a guest too, but it was clear that he did not see himself as such.

Chapter 951

Eric probably felt that he had a responsibility to help Avery entertain the female guests, which is why he indulged their requests for photographs, autographs, and just general small talk.

He did not even have the time to take a sip of water.

"Why don't you call him over to have a bite!" Avery said to Mike.

"Don't try to be funny.

He won't pay attention to me at all," Mike sighed, "He's too handsome, so it's no surprise that Elliot feels threatened." "How do you know that Elliot feels threatened?" Avery failed to see how that was the case.

"Don't you think Elliot dressed up like a peacock today?" Mike teased, "I don't suppose he dressed up so handsomely for all these little kiddos?" Avery could not help but laugh.

"Stay here and take care of the little kids.

I'll check on Robert." "Bring him here if he's awake!" Mike said.

"Yeah.

He hasn't been in a place with so many people yet! I wonder if he'll be scared." Avery said, then she strode towards the exit of the banquet hall.

By the time she carried Robert and returned to the banquet hall, she met Jun and Tammy who had finally come.

"I'm sorry we were late, Avery," Jun said apologetically.

"You go on ahead!" Tammy let go of Jun's hand.

She wanted to have a private chat with Avery.

Jun understood and walked into the banquet hall.

"Did the two of you..." Avery could not bring herself to look any further when she looked at Tammy's face.

"Sigh! I drank some wine last night because I wanted to try and see whether I wouldn't be that scared when I was drunk, but..." Tammy shook her head.

"Was it that bad?" Avery frowned.

"Don't worry, Tammy, it's normal to have that psychological barrier.

I believe you will be able to overcome it slowly." "It wasn't that bad...

We both drank alcohol last night, so I wasn't afraid.

But I guess his brain short-circuited or something because he played some music to soothe my mood.

You know what, I didn't feel scared anymore when he played that song."

Avery did not expect music to have such a wonderful effect.

"What song was it? I'll listen to it the next time I'm feeling down." "Baby Ducky Boo-Boo-Quack." Avery was speechless.

"It's ridiculous now that I think about it! I don't know how he even thought about playing that song for me, but we had a good laugh when it started playing AEx,_yLK somehow...it worked." Avery gasped.

"That's amazing!" "Even though it worked last night, I can still feel that hurdle inside of me now that I'm awake.

That's why I still need to undergo psychotherapy." Tammy said while poking Robert's face with her finger.

"It's such a pity that I can't have my own little baby." "That might not necessarily be the case, Tammy," Avery said.

"I showed your check-up results to a gynecologist.

She said that you're not infertile but just a little more difficult to conceive a baby compared to ordinary people.

The chances aren't completely zero." Tammy was stunned.

"Why didn't you tell me earlier?" "Isn't it difficult for you to...you know...do it with Jun? I was afraid to tell you because I was worried that you'd be under more pressure," Avery said.

"Uuwaah! Do you know why I was so scared? It's because I feel disgusted... My memories of that incident will be jolted whenever he touches me."

Tammy's eyes had turned red.

"But if I can have my own baby, I'll definitely work harder to overcome it."

"Don't cry, Tammy," Avery coaxed.

"Everything will turn out fine.

Go ahead and get something to eat!" They entered the banquet hall, and Tammy went to eat while Avery carried the child and walked toward Elliot. She had only left for a short while, but when she came back, she saw that Elliot had gone to the poker table.

"Do you even know how to play poker, Elliot?" She could see him holding the cards a little awkwardly.

"Nope!" Elliot looked tenderly at Avery and the baby.

He then comforted her and said, "I just need to be able to pay up."

Chapter 952

One of the players next to him laughed and said, "Mr. Foster's assistant went to get some cash for him.

He's going to bleed a lot today!" Everyone burst into laughter.

Avery's cheeks were slightly red.

She did not expect Elliot to put in so much effort to entertain the guests.

"Don't place your bets too big," she reminded.

"Are you starting to mourn for his wallet, Avery?" Everyone laughed again.

Elliot glanced at her with intrigue and asked, "Would you like to sit next to me and advise me?" Avery avoided his profound gaze and said to the others, "You guys have fun. Bleed him dry, fellas." 1 She then walked away with the child in her arms.

Jun came over to her from the buffet area carrying a plate.

"Don't worry about Elliot.

He's not going to lose money." Avery stubbornly corrected Jun, "I'm not worried about him." "Then why did they laugh so loudly just now?" Jun had seen right through her and exposed her true thoughts.

"By the way, what did Tammy say to you outside? Did she tell you about what happened last night?" Jun felt a little ashamed of what happened and did not want anyone else to know, but from his understanding of Tammy, he felt that Avery had probably been told about it.

"Well...

I didn't expect you to have that kind of playlist on your phone," she teased.

Jun sighed.

"It was the system's automatic recommendation.

I created the playlist." "That's because the system wants to help you." Avery smiled happily.

"Although, you should try to drink less alcohol in the future.

Tammy still has a chance to get pregnant.

You wouldn't want to get pregnant by accident and have something happen to the fetus because of your drinking." Jun's expression froze all of a sudden.

"But I suggest that you don't tell your parents about it for the time being.

I'm worried they might put too much hope on you and assume that it's easy for you two to be successful," Avery reminded.

Jun nodded repeatedly.

"I've made up with my parents, and they have apologized to Tammy too.

She was just a little excited last night GAK%_ tKK insisted on trying it." "T see." "You should find a place to sit down, Avery! I'm sure it must be tiring to carry the baby around all the time.

"I'll watch Elliot play poker after I'm done eating!" Jun then returned to the buffet area.

Avery carried the baby and was about to go to Tammy's side, but Layla suddenly ran over and asked to carry the baby.

Back at home, Layla could carry Robert but for only a short time.

"Mommy, I want to show Robert to Hayden's classmates!" Layla discussed with Avery, "I think Robert looks better than them, so they'll definitely feel inferior when they see him!" Avery could not fathom what Layla was thinking.

"But they all like you very much! Why do you want them to feel inferior?" "T just want to show Robert off! Robert is so handsome, and when he grows up, he'll be the strongest and most handsome guy in the universe!" Avery understood that Layla's sense of pride was acting up.

"It'll be fine, Avery.

I'll be there to watch over them," Mike came over and said, "I think you should help Eric!" Avery nodded.

Mike put his hand on Layla's shoulder as the little girl carried Robert and walked toward the other children.

All the other children had curious expressions when they saw Robert.

"Ts he your little brother, Layla?" one kid asked.

"You bet! Isn't he handsome?!" Layla had a proud look on her face.

"He looks weird..." Another kid stared at Robert's face without blinking.

'He doesn't look like you at all!" "I didn't give birth to him, so of course he doesn't look like me!" Layla frowned.

"He looks like my dad! My dad is handsome too!"

Chapter 953

Daniel asked Layla, "Why isn't your father here yet?" "My dad's been here since the beginning! He's in the banquet hall now!" Daniel scratched his head and looked around.

2 "Which one's your dad? Why isn't he playing with you here? Is he a lazy bum who enjoys himself all day and slacks off at his job? Is that why your mom isn't with him? Is that the reason you don't like him either?" Daniel allowed his thoughts to run free as he made wild guesses.

Layla was stunned, but she was very much against telling Daniel the truth.

"My dad isn't a lazy bum who enjoys himself all day and slacks off at his job! I just don't wanna tell you who my dad is! You said you're better than Hayden, right? You should find my dad yourself!" Mike smiled and asked, 'Why do you want to know who Hayden and Layla's father is?" Daniel said, "I'm just curious! My mom said that Hayden's father is Elliot, but my dad said it's not Elliot.

The two of them argued several times about this." Mike laughed.

"Then do you trust your mom or your dad?" "My dad, I think.

Because he's nicer to me," Daniel said firmly, " Because if Hayden's dad was really Elliot, there's no way he wouldn't want a father like that! Elliot is amazing! He's my idol!" Hayden did not bother to argue when he heard Daniel's words and simply walked away silently.

Not long after, the melodious tunes of a piano were heard inside the banquet hall.

When Layla saw that Eric was playing the piano onstage, she immediately handed Robert over to Mike and ran toward the stage.

Mike carried Robert and stared at Hayden's classmates.

"Do you have any talents? Would you like to go on stage to perform?" Mike was bored silly when he watched over them.

Everyone shook their heads and showed no interest in performing arts.

"Then you won't get a girlfriend in the future." Mike scared them.

"My dad said that anyone who can make money can get a girlfriend!" Daniel said sternly.

"He's right.

You can get a girlfriend if you have money, but you can't get a rich, beautiful, ECp#rLN talented one like Layla." All the little boys were speechless.

Time passed rather quickly and it was already four o'clock in the afternoon The poker game had ended and Elliot won big.

Avery asked him, "I thought you said you didn't know how to play poker? How did you win so much?" "No matter what cards I had, they all folded.

Are they scared of me or something? Do I look like someone who's that petty?" Avery did not know what to answer him.

"Where's Robert?" He wanted to hug his baby boy.

"He's asleep." "Oh.

And Layla?" he continued.

"With Eric." "What about Hayden?" Elliot knew that Hayden did not want to see him, but he still wanted to know what the boy was doing.

"With Mike." "It's not very different from being at home, is it?" Elliot frowned slightly.

Are the two of them not very sociable?" "You don't seem too bothered about yourself being unsociable.

Why is it an issue when it comes to the children?" Elliot looked at her helplessly and asked in a low voice, "Why are you so angry? I didn't treat anyone coldly today." "Who said you could win all that money? You should have noticed that others were afraid of you and gracefully exited the game to make way for someone else." Elliot was a little aggrieved, but he thought about it and realized that she was right.

"I'll pay more attention next time," he promised.

"There's no point talking about next time when today isn't even over yet." She felt a burst of anger in her heart and turned around to leave.

Elliot's big palm grabbed Avery's slender arm and he spoke in a somewhat urgent tone, "I'm going on a business trip tomorrow.

Let's have a good chat when I get back."

Chapter 954

"About what? Can't we talk now?" Avery asked.

Her conscience was clear.

Their misunderstanding had been resolved and all he wanted to talk about was to ask her for another chance.

She politely refused the last time, but she still could not bring herself to agree at the present.

It was not so much that she hated him, but more so that she did not feel as though she had calmed down sufficiently.

Moreover, the current relationship between the two of them— where they respected each other and were neither too cordial nor too distant — was actually pretty good.

"If we talk now, we won't be able to reach a conclusion." He could already guess what she was thinking just by looking at her expression.

"Do you think you'll be able to get to a conclusion after you come back from a business trip?" Avery found it incredulous.

"How long is your business trip?" "A week," "Oh, then we'll talk about it in a week!" She lowered her eyes and glanced at his hand holding her arm.

"You didn't wash your hands after you were done playing poker, right?" She viewed his hands with disgust.

He was stunned for a moment, but then led her to the restroom.

"Let's wash our hands together then!" The two of them walked through the banquet hall in full view.

"Didn't you notice that their relationship has warmed up a lot today?" Mike asked Eric.

Eric had a disinterested look on his handsome face.

"I didn't notice anything.

It's obvious that Avery is being forced to do it." Mike retorted, "Do you think she'd let another man do that to her?" Eric raised his chin slightly.

"I don't fancy their chances.

Elliot might look like a man right now, but he won't be able to do that anymore in a couple of years." Mike gasped, "Why not? Do you write a man off just because they're old? What do you mean he 'might look like a man now', it's not like he'll transform into a woman in two years, will he? I don't suppose Avery knows about your sharp tongue?" Eric looked at him cordially and explained, "I don't look down on old men because I'll grow old one day too. What I look down on is old cows like Elliot who insist on eating young shoots." Mike smiled and patted his shoulder, "Don't be so salty. If Elliot really can't function after two years, Avery might just find a way to treat him instead of abandoning him.

Have you forgotten what's her profession?" Eric frowned at his answer. Chad came over with a smile when he saw the two of them chatting secretly with each other.

"What are you two talking about!" Mike held back his laugh.

"He said your boss won't be able to get up anymore in two years." Being the men that they were, Chad understood Mike's words in seconds.

The smile on Chad's face suddenly turned cold.

"I know you don't like my boss, but you don't need to curse him like that. Who do you think is going to suffer if he can't get up anymore? It's Avery, of course! If you really want what's good for her, you need to pray for my boss. Bless him so his strength increases as he ages, and so he'll always be able to stand tall!" "Rather than pray for him, I'd much rather pray for myself so I'd get Avery sooner." "I guess my boss was right, after all.

You're stubborn." "Your boss is like a frog who wants to kiss a princess."

Chad's face became extremely gloomy all of a sudden.

Mike cleared his throat dryly and reminded, "That frog just hopped here."

Chad and Eric looked to the side.

They saw Elliot coming over with a refreshed look on his face.

His relationship with Avery seemed to have improved by leaps and bounds that day.

"What are you guys talking about?" he asked insipidly.

He did not expect to see varying degrees of embarrassment on all their faces as soon as he asked that question.

"Chad?" Elliot put the pressure on Chad.

Chad immediately cleared his throat and said, "Eric said that it won't be long until you can't get up anymore." After a pause, he added, "He also called you a frog who wants to kiss the princess." Elliot's face soured at once.

The war of words was just about to begin when Avery walked over.

"What are you guys talking about?"

Chapter 955

Avery knew that Elliot and Eric had a bad relationship, so she found it rather strange to see them standing together.

"Nothing to talk about," Elliot looked at Eric coldly and answered Avery.

"Eric is worried about your bedroom life, so he reminded me to exercise a little more." "Don't you guys have anything better to talk about?!" Avery's cheeks turned red and she walked away angrily.

Eric lost his cool when he saw Avery getting angry.

"How shameless can you be, Elliot!" Elliot answered nonchalantly, "Not as shameless as you, I'm afraid.

Words are no indication of a man's prowess.

Instead of worrying whether or not I can still get up, you might as well find a woman to prove that you're still able." Eric left in a huff after hearing that!

"You're toast," Mike said to Elliot.

"When Layla finds out that you pissed Eric off, she'll definitely be mad at you!"

Elliot felt a throbbing in his temple.

He could not possibly chase after Eric.

Then again, he did not want to make Layla angry either.

"I've got a way," Mike said immediately.

"You should leave too.

That way, Layla won't be mad at you." Elliot frowned.

He did not want to leave just yet! He was going on a business trip soon and he would not be able to see the children for a week.

For that reason, he wanted to spend a little more time with them.

After thinking about Mike's proposal carefully, Chad persuaded, " Mr. Foster, I think it's better that you leave, or else Layla will get angry and it'll take a long time to get her to come around.

Besides, Avery's angry now too." A cold chill flashed across Elliot's eyes.

To think that Eric—a defeated rival— would dare to provoke him! If Eric had not started the provocation, he would not have fought back at all.

After he left, Mike went to coax Avery.

"They're gone now.

Don't get mad, alright.

There's still plenty of guests here!" Avery frowned and remarked resentfully,

"You guys have crossed the line." "T swear, that had nothing to do with me or Elliot.

Eric was the one who started it," Mike explained, "It's because he can't win your heart that he's against Elliot.

Of course, you don't have to blame him.

After all, he's young ECw-AxLI hot-headed.

It's normal for him to be a little impulsive." "And does that mean you need to be just as impulsive too?" Avery retorted, "It's not like he'll go further if you don't add fuel to the fire." Mike laughed and changed the subject, "By the way, has your relationship with Elliot improved today? I saw you taking the initiative to look for him a couple of times." Avery had a cold expression and played along with him.

"Sure, it has! We even agreed to get married tomorrow!" The smile on Mike's face disappeared immediately.

"I was wrong.

I shouldn't have joked with you.

Take a deep breath and calm down.

In the meantime, I'll go see what the children are doing." Elsewhere, at Elliot's home, Mrs. Scarlet wondered why Elliot came back so early but did not dare to ask why.

"I suppose you haven't eaten yet, Master Elliot?" "Yeah." Elliot took off his jacket and threw it on the sofa.

"I'll make something for you right now," Mrs. Scarlet said, then walked quickly toward the kitchen.

Elliot picked up a glass and fetched some cold water to drink.

The water was cold, but his body still felt hot.

He loosened his shirt collar and strode toward the second floor.

He walked to the window and closed the curtains after entering the master bedroom.

Then, his slender fingers reached for his shirt placket as he undid his buttons one by one.

At this moment, his eyes suddenly glanced at the paper on the bedside table.

It was the same piece of paper that his bodyguard sent over the previous night.

Printed on it was the surveillance screenshot of the strange middle-aged man the night before.

Elliot walked over, switched on the light, and held up the piece of paper.

Chapter 956

Elliot stared at the photo of the middle-aged man once again, but he still did not have a clue as to who that was.

Perhaps this man appeared near the mansion and smiled at Elliot last night because he really did have a psychological disorder.

Elliot scrunched up the piece of paper, tossed it into the trash, then walked into the bathroom and closed the door behind him.

After Mrs. Scarlet saw Elliot go upstairs, she immediately went into the kitchen and called Mrs. Cooper.

"I heard that Master Elliot got into a fight with Eric Santos," said Mrs. Cooper.

"Master Elliot wasn't the one who started it, though.

They both left after the fight." "I see.

I was wondering why he got back so early!" "How's he doing?" Mrs. Cooper asked considerately.

"He doesn't look too happy, but he seems alright." Then, Mrs. Scarlet said,

"Did things go well between him and the kids today?" Mrs. Cooper laughed on the other end of the line.

"He didn't get to spend time with the kids today.

He spent all day entertaining guests.

Avery was the one who asked him to do it." Mrs. Scarlet's cheeks flushed.

"It looks like they've gotten much closer." "That's right! They look better than they did before.

Let's hope there won't be any conflicts between them again," Mrs. Cooper said concernedly.

"Otherwise, I'd feel bad for their three children." "Let's hope so.

I'm going to make dinner now." After his shower, Elliot walked downstairs in a tracksuit.

Mrs. Scarlet placed the dishes she just made on the dining room table.

"Dinner's ready, Master Elliot." Elliot headed into the dining room, took a seat, and said, "I'm going on a business trip tomorrow.

I'll be away for about a week.

You can take a break and go home." Mrs. Scarlet's face turned gloomy as she said, "I haven't had a home to go back to since my parents passed away, Master Elliot." Elliot was slightly taken aback.

"Do you want to go on a holiday, then?" Mrs. Scarlet shook her head and said, "Don't worry about me.

I'm quite content just staying here at home." Elliot did not continue to pester her.

After dinner, he went into the study. DDI.wMM did not emerge until about an hour later.

As it began to turn dark outside, he pulled out his phone to check and see if Avery had contacted him.

She had not.

His expression turned glum as he could not help but feel disappointed.

He returned to the bedroom and placed his phone on the nightstand.

He changed into a workout tank and shorts, then headed to the gym.

He refused to admit that Eric's words had got to him.

He had always worked out on a regular basis.

He refused to believe that he would not be able to get it up after a few years.

He once read the news of a seventy- year-old man who had gotten his middle-aged wife pregnant.

If a seventy-year-old geezer had no trouble in that department, then a man in his thirties like him should be able to perform just fine, right? It quickly turned pitch dark outside.

As always, the mansion was eerily cold and silent.

Two guards were surveilling the security monitors in the surveillance room, keeping a watchful eye on any movements outside of the mansion walls.

The strange, middle-aged man better have only shown up by chance last night.

Otherwise, the bodyguards would definitely not let him go if he came again today! In all the years that the bodyguards had worked in the field, that was the first time they had come across someone as odd and as audacious as that.

At 8 p.m.

that night, a dark silhouette slowly approached the Foster mansion.

The moment the dark figure appeared within the surveillance area, the bodyguards immediately confirmed that it was the same person who had offended Elliot the night before! One of the bodyguards picked up his walkietalkie and reported to his colleagues, "The target has been spotted outside the mansion walls! He's alone and doesn't look to be armed!"

Chapter 957

Once the other bodyguards heard the report, they immediately responded,

"Roger that! We're moving in!" About five minutes later, the sound of kicks and punches as well as a man's shrill howl of pain could be heard outside the mansion.

When Mrs. Scarlet heard the commotion, she hurried out to check on things.

She saw two bodyguards beating up a man and asked, "What's going on?

Who's this?" One of the bodyguards took a break from hitting the man and answered Mrs. Scarlet's question., This is the man from last night, Mrs.

Scarlet! He was acting suspicious and wandering by the mansion walls.

Even if he doesn't do anything bad, he still deserves a beating! Otherwise, he'll be coming back every day and making the boss mad!" "Oh..." Mrs.

Scarlet took a closer look at the middle-aged man who was curled up in a ball on the ground.

"Do you still remember me, Mrs. Scarlet?" The middle-aged man lifted his head, brushed the hair off of his forehead, then gazed at Mrs. Scarlet with clear, bloodshot eyes.

When the bodyguard heard the man speak to Mrs. Scarlet, he immediately stopped hitting him.

"Does this person know Mrs. Scarlet? If he does, why had he not said anything earlier?" thought the bodyguard.

"You are?" It was dark out and Mrs. Scarlet could not immediately recognize the man.

"Perhaps you no longer remember me.

I used to work with you at the old mansion back in the day." Nathan got up to his feet with a smile.

Nathan had gained a lot of weight, so Mrs. Scarlet did not recognize him.

To make matters worse, he did not reveal his name or previous position, making it difficult for her to identify him.

"Since you're a former colleague from the old mansion, come inside.

We'll talk there!" Mrs. Scarlet invited Nathan into the mansion.

"What was your name, by the way? Why did you come here?" Nathan's face broke into a faint smile.

"My name is Nathan White.

I used to be a driver at the old mansion." Mrs. Scarlet found the name vaguely familiar.

She froze for a moment as she thought deeply.

Moments later, she exclaimed, "I remember now! There used to be a driver at the old mansion named Nate! Is that you?" "That's right! I'm Nate!" Nathan laughed a manic laugh. "You took really good care of yourself, Mrs. Scarlet.

You don't look much different from when you were younger!" "Nathan White! From what I remember, you were fired! You were a thief and even messed around with the nannies, which was why old Mr. Foster fired you!" Mrs. Scarlet was emotional, and her face was flushed.

"How could I have invited such a despicable man into the house?" she thought.

Just as she was about to ask the bodyguards to kick Nathan out, Elliot had heard the commotion and walked over from the stairs.

"What's going on?" Elliot was wearing a tracksuit when he approached Mrs. Scarlet.

When his eyes landed on Nathan's face, he found the answer to his question.

"Who are you?" Elliot asked coldly as he stared straight at Nathan.

"Who did you come here for?" "I came here to see you!" Nathan flashed a huge grin at Elliot.

Elliot clenched his fists when he saw the hideous grin on Nathan's face.

This middle-aged man came across as sleazy and menacing.

Elliot's instincts told him that he was bad news.

"Master Elliot! He used to be a driver at the old mansion.

Your father fired him for bad conduct!" said Mrs. Scarlet immediately.

" Just get the guards to kick him out! You don't need to waste your time on him!: "You're just a nanny, Mrs. Scarlet.

Why are you acting as if you're the head of the Foster family?" laughed

Nathan as he made himself comfortable on the couch.

Elliot's patience with Nathan hit its limit.

He moved Mrs. Scarlet behind him, then stormed over to Nathan, yanked him off the couch, and socked him in the face! "Who gave you permission to run your mouth in my home?!" Elliot snapped, then raised his fist once again.

"Go ahead and hit me! You better kill me!" Nathan's bloodshot eyes were bulging out of their sockets.

He spat the blood out of his mouth, then hissed through gritted teeth, "You little punk! You're not even going to ask me what I came to see you for?!"

Elliot's fist was still clenched tightly and hanging in the midair.

In the end, he restrained himself and lowered it down.

Just as Nathan let out a heavy sigh of relief and was about to take a seat on the couch, Elliot kicked him to the floor! "The last person who acted this insolent in front of me has been dead for years," Elliot said in a chilling voice.

Chapter 958

Nathan had been a scoundrel his entire life and had never been afraid of anything.

However, now that he was faced with Elliot's savage, malicious expression, he felt fear for the first time in his life! He knew that if he continued to provoke

Elliot, he would be beaten to death right there and then.

He immediately swallowed the words that he had wanted to say.

He had a lapse in judgment! He had mistakenly underestimated Elliot's temper! He should not have recklessly shown up here like this.

All he wanted right now was to be able to walk out of there alive.

"Mrs.Scarlet! My ribs are broken! Hurry and call 911!" Nathan did not dare speak to Elliot, so he howled at Mrs.Scarlet instead.

Mrs.Scarlet saw Nathan lying on the ground with his bloody face and twitching body and got so scared that she began to search for her phone to call 911.

"Don't go soft on this b*st*rd, Mrs.Scarlet!" Elliot roared loudly.

Mrs.Scarlet immediately snapped out of her daze.

"Get the bodyguards to throw him out, Master Elliot! I won't ever let him step foot in the mansion again!" Elliot shot a signaling look at the bodyguard.

The bodyguard quickly approached Nathan and dragged him outside by the arm.

As Elliot watched Nathan's pitiful face as he was being dragged out, he ordered the bodyguard cold-bloodedly, "Throw him out further away!"

Moments later, the living room returned to its earlier calm.

Mrs.Scarlet carried a bucket of water from the bathroom and began to clean up the blood on the floor with a rag.

She apologized to Elliot as she cleaned.

"I was being unprofessional, Master Elliot.

When he said he used to work with me at the old mansion, I invited him into the mansion.

It's my fault that I didn't recognize him right away—" Elliot's mood had yet to calm down.

"Did he say what he came here for?" "He didn't," responded Mrs. Scarlet.

"I bet he came for money, either from me or from you.

He's a scoundrel with no dignity or shame." "It doesn't look like he's afraid to die either," Elliot said in a deep voice.

"A scoundrel like him doesn't even know what it means to be afraid.

Otherwise, he would not act this recklessly.

If he ever comes by again, we should get the bodyguards to beat him up.

I don't believe he truly isn't afraid to die." Elliot strode over to the bathroom.

He felt like his hands were dirtied after punching Nathan earlier.

After Mrs. Scarlet cleaned up the blood, she disinfected the floor, then used an air freshener to get the stench out of the living room.

While she did all of this, moments from the past replayed in her mind.

Nathan White was not an honest person, but she found him rather strange.

Back when old Mr. Foster had fired Nathan, Rosalie had actually tried speaking up for Nathan and prevented him from getting fired.

Mrs. Scarlet had even asked Rosalie why she would stand up for him, and Rosalie had said that she would give a second chance to every servant in the household.

However, when the other servants had made mistakes, later on, Rosalie never gave any of them a second chance.

To this day, Mrs. Scarlet still could not figure out why Rosalie was so forgiving toward Nathan.

When Avery and the children returned to Starry River Villa from the hotel, the children immediately crawled into bed and fell asleep.

Once Avery turned off the lights, she dragged her exhausted body out of the children's room.

She bumped into Mrs.Cooper, who was carrying Robert in her arms.

Robert had taken a nap in the evening, so he was quite energetic at the moment.

However, Avery was too tired to take care of the baby.

Chapter 959

"You must be exhausted, Avery!" said Mrs.Cooper.

"I just wanted to tell you that I've put all of the gifts that Hayden and Layla received today in the storage room on the first floor." "Alright.

I'll deal with them tomorrow." Avery caressed Robert's head, then said gently,

"Did you have fun today, sweetie? I'll throw you a birthday party when you turn a year old, okay?" Mrs.Cooper sighed with a smile, "Time sure flies by.

Our dear Robert is already turning six months old!" "T know." "Take a shower and go to bed, Avery.

You still have work tomorrow!" Mrs.Cooper said.

Avery nodded, then headed toward her bedroom.

She had planned to take a shower before she went to bed, but the bed seemed to be calling her name the moment she walked into the room.

She walked over to the bed in a daze and lay down.

She had planned to rest for a bit and take a shower once she recuperated some energy.

She ended up falling into a deep slumber shortly after.

Avery regularly had nightmares.

They never went away no matter how much she tried to get rid of them.

They were always the same dreams.

The first was her father's final moments.

He had held her hand on his death bed, apologizing to her and begging for her forgiveness.

Her father had taken his last breath before she could say anything.

It was one of her biggest regrets.

The second nightmare was the death of her mother.

Laura had died in a brutal car crash that turned her face into an unrecognizable mess of flesh and blood.

She had never had the chance to say goodbye to her mother.

It was a kind of deep pain that she would never move on from for the rest of her life.

The third was her divorce from Elliot.

The fourth nightmare was the memory of Robert almost dying prematurely.

All of these regrets and agonies continue to torment her every single night.

Tonight, however, she had a relatively peaceful sleep.

Not only did she not dream at all, but she also did not wake up once through the night.

It was not until her phone rang the next morning that Avery awakened.

After she woke up, she reached out next to her pillow to search for her phone out of habit, but the phone was not there.

She instantly opened her eyes and looked by her pillow.

"Where is my phone?" thought Avery.

The phone was ringing incessantly, and it was making her anxious.

Avery got out of bed, noticed that she was still wearing the dress she wore the night before, then took a deep breath and smacked her head.

Once her head cleared, she saw her purse on the nightstand and realized that the phone was ringing from inside her purse.

She pulled the phone out of her purse and saw that the vice president was calling.

She answered the call and was immediately met with the vice president's frantic voice, "Avery! Something's come up at home! I need to ask you for a favor!" Avery frowned, then said calmly, "What happened? Try to calm down. Of course, I'll help in any way I can." "Here's the thing.

Three months ago, I enrolled in a course at Sierra University.

You know about them, right? They specialize in professional training.

They have produced many successful students who have graduated to become successful entrepreneurs.

They are expensive, but I managed to get accepted through some connections.

However...

my son is sick and needs surgery." The vice president's voice was filled with regret.

"I can't go, so I was wondering if you would take my place." Avery was confused.

"I've never heard of Sierra University.

What's the course for?" "It's a training course for company presidents." "Oh.

What kind of training is it?" Avery was still rather muddled.

"You'll learn the thought processes of successful people and how to make more connections.

The instructors are all famous business tycoons, and they'll teach you how to grow your company.

I signed up for it so I could better run our company," explained the vice president, then added with regret, "I would go myself if my son wasn't sick."

"Take care of your family for now.

It doesn't matter if you go for this training course or not." "Of course, it matters! You would definitely benefit a lot from attending it.

By the way, take some notes for me...

Okay?" Avery did not want to attend the course, but it was hard for her to refuse her vice president's request.

"How long is the course?" | "A week," answered the vice president.

"It starts tonight.

You'll have to hurry and book a flight over there."

Chapter 960

Avery was in good spirits after a good night's sleep, but the phone call from the vice president made her frantic with anxiety.

After the phone call, she received the address to Sierra University from the vice president.

Next, she had to book a flight and rush over.

Just as she opened up the airline app, the alarm on her phone went off.

She was so startled that she almost dropped her phone.

She held her chest and let out a long sigh.

"What is there to be anxious about? "It is just a training course.

It would be fine even if I was late." thought Avery.

She had not taken her tardiness seriously while she was a student, and she saw no reason to take it seriously now that she was no longer a student.

Besides, she was not the one who signed up for the course.

She was already doing the vice president a huge favor by agreeing to attend it in his place.

There was no reason at all to be so nervous.

At that thought, Avery fell back onto the bed and planned on getting some rest.

She grabbed her phone and texted Tammy: [I'm going away for a week, Tammy.

Don't forget to tell me how your appointment with the therapist goes.] It was still early in the morning and Tammy was probably still asleep, so she put her phone down after she sent the text and planned on taking a nap before she got up to pack her suitcase.

A week was quite a long time for Avery.

She had never been away for that long since she gave birth.

Just as she shut her eyes and was composing her emotions, her phone rang.

Avery opened her eyes, grabbed her phone, then immediately answered it when she saw that it was Tammy calling.

"Why are you suddenly going away, Avery? You didn't mention anything about it yesterday.

What's the rush?" Tammy was worried after reading Avery's text and quickly called to ask her about it.

"The vice president asked me for a favor.

He signed up for a training course and asked me to attend it in his place.

His son's sick and needs surgery so he can't make it.

I couldn't refuse." Avery yawned, then said, "There are two things I hate the most: meetings CAq)_kNM training courses." Tammy did not know whether to laugh or cry.

"You have to go now that you've promised him." "I know.

It's still early, so I'll lie down for a little longer." Avery stared at the ceiling and said gloomily, "I don't want to leave the kids.

Just the thought of being away for a week makes me feel awful." "A week will fly by.

Treat it like a break," said Tammy.

"I heard yesterday that Elliot was also going on a business trip," mused Tammy.

"That's right.

He's leaving today too.

Do you know what he said to me yesterday? He told me that he wanted to have a talk with me when he gets back from his trip." Avery smirked, then said in frustration, "The more he pushes me, the more I won't tell him what he wants to hear." "I know how you feel.

Don't agree to it so quickly.

Leave him hanging for a while and see how long he can hold on," Tammy suggested.

"Otherwise, he'll make you angry for no reason in the future if you give in too easily." The smile on Avery's slowly vanished.

She recalled her recent relationship with Elliot, then mumbled, "His temper's gotten better recently.

He hasn't lost his cool no matter how much I pick on him." "That's because you haven't agreed to make up with him.

Even if he's not doing this for you, he probably wants to get to the kids through you," said Tammy bluntly.

"Alright! You're right.

He really does care about the kids.

My mom used to say that people grow fonder of children and become more patient as they age.

I guess she was right." "Aunt Laura went through a lot.

Of course, her words would make sense." Tammy pondered for a moment, then said, "If you're not around when he gets back from his trip, he might lose it." Tammy's words made Avery abruptly sit up in bed.

"He's also going away for a week."

Chapter 961

"Really? What a coincidence." Then, Tammy teased, "Could the both of you be going to the same place?" Avery had no idea.

She had not asked Elliot where he was going on his business trip yesterday. She was curious now, but she refused to ask him about it.

After all, what would it matter if they went to the same place? By the time Avery washed up in the bathroom, changed her clothes, and walked out of the room, the twins had already left for school.

Robert was sleeping in the crib in the living room while Mrs. Cooper was busying away in the kitchen.

"I'm going on a trip tomorrow, Mrs. Cooper," Avery said when she arrived at the kitchen.

"I'll be away for a week." Mrs. Cooper was stunned.

"Why are you leaving so suddenly? The kids would miss you if they don't see you at home when they get back in the evening." "I'm going to attend a training course. I promised someone that I would go."

"I see. The kids will understand since it's for work. Are you going alone or is someone going with you?" Mrs. Cooper was a little worried.

"I'm going alone." Avery took a seat at the dining table, then said, "Don't worry. I think it's a restricted area, so it's pretty safe."

"That's good, then." Mrs. Cooper placed breakfast on the table, then asked,

"When are you leaving?"

"I'll book a flight after breakfast. I'll leave in the afternoon at the latest." Avery took a sip of milk, then asked, "Where's Mike?"

"He's still in bed." Just as Mrs. Cooper answered the question, Mike sauntered into the dining room.

"What are you two saying about me?!" Mike's blond hair was a disheveled mess as he took a seat next to Avery.

"Just so you know, I'm leaving for a trip today. I'll be away for a week," Avery said.

"Please watch over things at the house." Mike was immediately awakened by the shocking news.

"Where are you going? Do you want me to go with you?"

"Sierra University. Have you heard of it?" Avery took a bite of her bowl of oatmeal and her stomach instantly warmed up.

"The vice president signed up for a training course there but couldn't make it because something came up at home. So, he asked me to go in his place."

"I see. I've heard of that place. It's a famous private elite university in Aryadelle. They're not known for the main university courses but for their affiliated training course for company presidents. Is that the course you're going for?"

Avery was taken aback, then said, "You should go if you're interested! All you have to do is take notes bring them back for the vice president."

Mike refused without hesitation.

"I hate training courses! I don't mind giving them, but there's no way I'm attending one!" Avery was at a loss for words.

"I don't think you should go either! It's a waste of time! Our company's successful enough as it is. You can consider it if they're inviting you over as an instructor but wouldn't joining them as a student be lowering our company's standards?" Avery sighed, then said, "I already promised the vice president to take notes for him. He said he signed up for the course so he could run our company better. I can't back out now that I've given him my word. Besides, what if I really do end up learning something?" "Go ahead, then! I'll take care of things here at home."

"Alright, thanks. I'm curious, though. When exactly do you plan on moving out of my house?" A look of disbelief appeared on Mike's face.

He frowned, then said, "I'll consider moving out after you and Elliot become a family!"

"Oh. I was just asking. What are you getting so worked up for? Elliot and I... Anyways, do you know where he's going for his business trip?

Coincidentally, he's also going away for a week."

Chapter 962

Mike heard the meaning behind her words, and he brutally shattered her illusion, "No matter where he's going, it's impossible that he's going to Sierra University. Why would someone as high and mighty as him willingly share the secrets to his success with a bunch of strangers? Take a look online and you'll see that he's never accepted many interviews. Besides, he's a man of a few words. Do you really think that he could stand up on stage and give a lecture?"

Mike's words woke Avery up from her dream.

"I know Elliot. Why the heck am I harboring such delusions?!" thought Avery. Her cheeks flushed with embarrassment, and Mike did not continue to make fun of her.

"How about I give Chad a call and ask him about it? Maybe he really is going to Mount Sierra?"

Mike stopped making fun of Avery, but he could not stop himself from making fun of Elliot.

"Mount Sierra is a nice place. They've got beautiful mountains and fresh air. It's a great place to go on vacation. Maybe he's just saying he's on a business trip but is actually going to Mount Sierra on vacation?"

Avery's temples began to ache.

"Whether he's there on business or pleasure, it's got nothing to do with me. I don't want to know where he's going. Don't ask Chad, and stop talking about it."

She peeled a hard-boiled egg and placed it on Mike's plate.

"What time is your flight? I'll take you to the airport," Mike asked after taking a bite of the egg.

"I haven't even bought my ticket yet!"

Avery lowered her gaze and said, "My mind's a mess. I'm not prepared at all. I was planning on going back to the office today."

Seeing her miserable face, Mike comforted her and said, "Mount Sierra's a great place. It's not open to the public, so it's cut off from the rest of the world and is especially peaceful. Treat it as a one-week retreat!"

"What do you take me for? Do I look like someone who wants to be cut off from the world? If there's no internet there, then I'm leaving right away."

"How could they not have internet? All the attendees of that training course are company presidents. You might not die without an internet connection, but they definitely won't be able to it," Mike teased.

"I can't handle not having an internet connection either. I need to video call the kids every day."

"Alright, don't be sad. A week will fly by."

"I guess. I'll go pack my things now."

Avery put her knife and fork down, finished her glass of milk, then returned to her room.

Once she left the dining room, Mike pulled out her phone and texted Chad:

[Where's your boss going on his business trip?]

Chad was busy at the moment and did not see Mike's text.

Soon after, Mike drove Avery to the airport.

Mike's phone rang when they arrived. It was a call from the office telling him he needed to head over right away.

"Go ahead! I'll be fine." Avery took her suitcase from him.

She was completely calm. She would not have felt as melancholic if the vice president had called her the day before to tell her about this.

Mike reached out and stroked her head.

"Call me when you land. Come home if you really can't get used to things there. You don't need to stay there all week. The vice president isn't your father, you don't have to do anything that makes you unhappy just because he tells you to." Avery could not help but laugh.

"Thanks for making me feel better. Don't do it like this again, though."

The vice president had worked for her father for a long time. He used to be a lowly manager, but he made some great contributions during the rebuilding of the company.

After Mike watched Avery enter the waiting lounge, he left the airport. He drove the car in the direction of the office. He got a call from Chad while he was on the way.

"I've been busy all day! Why are you asking about Mr. Foster?"

Chad was holding his phone in one hand and a glass of water in the other and took a sip.

"It wasn't me. Avery was the one who asked."

Then, Mike asked, "' Why isn't your boss taking you along with him on his trip?"

Chapter 963

"It's not like he takes me with him on every business trip."

Chad put down his glass of water, then asked sharply, "Why is Avery suddenly asking about Mr. Foster? Can't she ask him herself?"

"She left for a trip today, too. It's also for a week. Which was why she asked if I knew where your boss was going."

Mike let out a hearty guffaw.

"She was wondering if he was going to the same place as she is. I told her it was impossible! Why would Elliot Foster ever attend some ridiculous professional training course? With that temper, the only thing he is suited for is being the king of hell. He is certainly not fit to be an instructor! I can't even imagine his stone-cold face eloquently giving a lecture in front of a crowd!"

Chad furrowed his brows as he felt that something was off.

"Where is Avery going?"

"Sierra University. What about your boss?"

"Ah! He's going to Mount Sierra too!"

Chad was suddenly in high spirits. Is Avery going to Sierra University to give a lecture too?"

Mike burst into laughter.

"As if! She's going as a student! Why do I feel like this whole thing is a f*cking setup?! Tell me the truth, Chad. Did your boss set this up?!"

"No way! At least not that I know of."

"I guess that's right. Our company's vice president was the one who signed up for the course. Something came up at home, so he asked Avery to go instead. Your boss could not have possibly gotten to our vice president, right?!"

"It probably really is a coincidence. Even the heavens want to set them up."

"Bullsh*t. It's more like the heavens find them annoying. Why else would they still not be married after all these years? Hercules had to endure twelve labors, but at this point, those two have suffered a hundred labors!"

"Who knows? This trip might have a happy ending," Chad said.

"Let's hope so! Avery went too far today. She asked me when I was moving out of her place. Do you think she has grown tired of me?"

Chad let out a cold chuckle, then said, "I bet you thought you were the popular golden child."

"Are you trying to pick a fight with me?!"

Chad cleared his throat, then said, "I'm really busy right now. Let's talk again when I see you tonight."

Mount Sierra was a natural wonder near the border of Aryadelle that was never subject to commercial development.

Several years ago, a wealthy businessman from the Goldstein family had spent a fortune to build an extravagant mountain villa, that shot Mount Sierra into stardom.

By the time Avery arrived at the bottom of Mount Sierra, it was already evening.

It felt like time passed by quicker on the mountain than in the city.

A staff member picked her up and drove her up the mountain.

As Avery gazed out the window at the swirling mountain roads, she could not help but complain, "Why do the wealthy like living out in the middle of nowhere? Do they think this shows off their status and positions? Don't they find secluded areas like this terrifying?"

The staff member chuckled and said, "Miss Tate, they say that Mr. Goldstein chose to build a villa out here after listening to the advice of a fortune teller. Mr. Goldstein's health was poor, so the fortune-teller told him to move to Mount Sierra to escape misfortune."

"I see. Did Mr. Goldstein really get better after moving here?"

The staff member continued to smile and said, "He died from an illness not long after moving here. Later, his son took over the villa and turned it into a university that focuses solely on the training of professionals."

Avery was taken aback and at a loss for words.

The car arrived at Villa de Sierra about fifteen minutes later. She opened the door and stepped out of the car.

Chapter 964

"Welcome to Villa de Sierra, Miss Tate."

The staff member handed over an entry pass to Avery, then said, "You may only enter and exit the villa with this pass. Please keep it on you at all times."

Avery took the pass.

Dragging her suitcase, she entered the modern villa that thrummed with the grandeur of modern technology.

When she stepped into the foyer, she suddenly noticed that the villa was much more spacious than it looked from the outside. She felt like she had walked into a majestic maze. She pulled out her phone and found the course schedule that the vice president had sent her. She dragged her suitcase and began to search for the multipurpose training hall.

Soon, she arrived at the hall's entrance, knocked on the door, then walked in.

There were about twenty to thirty men and women seated in the hall.

After Avery entered the hall, everyone's eyes turned toward her at the same time.

Her cheeks suddenly flushed.

Just as she was about to apologize for being late, she heard a familiar voice from the podium say, "Are you not coming in?"

Avery felt shocked, and she felt numb.

"Am I hearing things? Why am I hearing Elliot's voice?" thought Avery.

There was no way she would not recognize his voice! It was Elliot! She turned and looked at the podium. She saw a well-dressed Elliot staring at her with amusement.

"How can this happen? "Why did the vice president not tell me beforehand that Elliot would be here, too?" thought Avery.

If she had known that Elliot would be here to give a lecture, she definitely would not have come...as a student!

"How humiliating!" she thought.

"I'm sorry. I walked into the wrong room."

Avery remembered from the course schedule that tonight's lecturer was a man named Justin Meyers.

"You're at the right place, Avery Tate."

Elliot strode over to her, grabbed her suitcase from her, and said, "Justin Meyers isn't feeling well, so I'm substituting for him."

Avery was at a loss for words.

"Find a spot and take a seat. We can talk about the rest after class," Elliot said, then dragged her suitcase up to the podium.

Avery watched with red eyes as he took her suitcase away.

She had almost gone up to him BAN-JUIN snatched her suitcase out of his hand. She took a deep breath, then headed toward the back row.

She took a seat, then immediately pulled out her phone and planned to text the vice president to ask if he knew that Elliot was going to be here as a substitute lecturer.

"Phones away, please."

Elliot clearly saw Avery's actions from the podium.

After he sternly reprimanded her, everyone's eyes fell on Avery once again.

Avery was utterly humiliated!

"What the hell is he doing? Does he really think he is my teacher or something? Even Professor Hough didn't use to be this hard on me. How dare he treat me this way?" thought Avery.

"I'm turning on the voice memo on my phone to record your lecture so I can study it when I get back!" Avery boldly stared right at Elliot.

"Is this your first time attending this training course, Miss Tate? Were you not aware that the lecture materials are top secret?" One of the female students seated next to her said to her disdainfully.

"Also, you're not wearing your uniform, and you even showed up with such a huge suitcase. Do you think this is some kind of marketplace?"

"That's right. It's my first time here. Have you been here many times?"

Avery gazed at the student with an innocent expression on her face.

"Are you proud to have been here this much? Didn't they say that this place turns everyone into successful individuals? Have you not found success even after attending the course this many times?"

Some people instantly began to snicker.

"Avery Tate! What are you doing here if you think you're so successful!" snapped the student.

"Do you want to know the truth?"

Avery fixed her eyes on the student next to her, then eloquently dragged Elliot into the conversation by saying, "I'm definitely not here to listen to the lecture. I'm here to see the man up on the podium!"

Chapter 965

The entire hall broke into pandemonium! Up on the podium, Elliot's ears turned red. He knew that Avery was speaking out of rage, but he still had a strange feeling in his heart.

However, this was a public setting, and he could not turn her into the target for scrutiny.

"Come up here, Avery Tate," Elliot said, then stepped off the podium and asked the students at the front row to move back a row.

He had Avery sitting in the front row all by herself.

Without anyone next to her, there would not be any more arguments.

After Avery took a seat in the front row, she shot a glare at Elliot.

Then, she pulled out her phone and texted the vice president right in front of him.

[Elliot Foster is here too. Why didn't you tell me beforehand?]

The vice president: [You wouldn't have gone if I told you about it. I spent forty-five thousand on that course. I couldn't just let that money go to waste.]

Avery: [Can I just send you the forty-five thousand dollars and leave tomorrow?]

The vice president: [Huh? Do you really not want to see him? Or is he giving you a hard time? Come back if it really is that hard for you to be there! You don't need to pay me back. I'm so sorry!]

Avery gradually grew calm after she read the vice president's reply.

Elliot was not giving her a hard time.

"Looks like he did not trick me into coming here, so why am I attacking him" thought Avery.

She took a deep breath and prepared herself to sink into the lecture when she caught sight of her pink suitcase next to him.

That suitcase instantly tossed her reason out the window. She really wanted to get her suitcase back.

"Is he not embarrassed to have the suitcase up there with him?" thought Avery.

At that moment, in one of the luxuriously decorated bedrooms in Villa de Sierra, the villa's owner, Roger Goldstein's phone rang.

Roger answered the call and heard the woman on the other end of the line say, "I heard that Elliot Foster and Avery Tate are at your place."

"Ha ha! That's right! What is it?"

Roger held his cigar ADw!oJK said casually, "I know you don't get along with them, but Elliot is a friend of mine."

"Ha ha! Mr. Goldstein, as a successful businessman yourself, you should know that there are no such things as lifelong friends and enemies, only lifelong profits!" the woman cackled menacingly.

"I have the perfect plan. Are you interested?" Roger's smile faded.

Go ahead and tell me your plan.

I'll be the one to judge whether I benefit from it. I'm not willing to risk anything, and so I will also only act if there is only a hundred percent success rate."

"Don't worry. As long as you do as I say, you will benefit greatly from this!"

That evening's lecture came to an end an hour later.

Avery had been struggling to keep awake.

She had found herself nodding off twenty minutes into the lecture and had spent the next forty minutes texting Tammy, complaining about the situation.

Elliot walked over to her with her suitcase in his hand. She wanted to take it from him, but he did not let go.

"Was my lecture that boring? You looked like you were about to fall asleep," he said with narrowed eyes and a disgruntled tone.

"You saw me nodding off. Why are you still asking me about it?"

Avery did not want to provoke him on purpose.

"You did well, I just didn't quite understand it."

When the hall was pretty much empty, he lowered his voice and asked, "Are you leaving tomorrow, then?"

Avery glanced at him and said, "Are you kicking me out?"

"I'm just worried you won't want to stay here any longer. It's pretty boring up here, after all."

Then, Elliot changed his tone and said, "Although, it won't be as boring if you had someone keeping you company. Avery gazed at his handsome face which had turned slightly pink.

"Why are you going around the bush, Elliot? You were the one who tricked me into coming here, right? You worked with the vice president—" she said bluntly.

"I think we need some space away from each other," interjected Elliot, then gazed at her with his deep-set eyes and asked hoarsely, "Are you really going to chase me thousands of miles away?"

Chapter 966

"Can you not try and give me a bad name, Elliot?"

Avery was trying her best to remain clear-headed and not get dragged into Elliot's tempo.

"If I really wanted to chase you a thousand miles away, I wouldn't have let you come to the birthday party yesterday." Elliot pursed his lips.

He wanted to say something but ended up keeping it to himself.

"I'll take you to your room to get some rest." He picked up her suitcase and walked toward the door.

"You know my room number?"

Avery watched as he led the way, then said, "Did you really bribe my vice president? Where do you find all your courage, Elliot?"

Elliot stood waiting at the doorway for her, then said, "It's now what you think. Your vice president asked me for help at the hotel yesterday. His son really is sick. He wanted to get a refund on the enrollment fees, but the organizers didn't allow it, so I helped him out with that. When I asked him to ask you to come here, he refused at first, but he changed his mind after seeing how well you and I got along yesterday."

"Are you sure?"

Half of Avery's anger subsided after hearing his explanation.

"You can call him right now. How do you trust him to be your company's vice president if you won't even trust him on this?" Elliot teased.

"Even if you have a reason, it still doesn't change the fact that you're a b*st*rd."

Avery sneered, "Does the great president of Sterling Group really need to go to these tacky lengths just to chase after a woman?"

Seeing through her pretense, Elliot grinned and said, "How would you like me to chase after you, then? I can do anything."

Avery strode over to him, snatched her suitcase back, then said, "' I'm going to my room by myself.

I don't need you to lead me there! w Elliot followed her nonchalantly.

Avery pulled out the keycard to her room and checked her room number.

"your room's right next to mine.I'll take you there,"

Elliot said leisurely.

Then, he took Avery's suitcase from her once again.

"If I'm really that tacky, Avery, I have plenty of ways to subdue you.Would I bother getting a separate room from you?"

Elliot dragged the suitcase over to the elevator doors.

"I think you haven't met a bad man before.Well, it's my fault for spoiling you."

Avery was at a loss for words.

One truly was unbeatable when one was shameless.

A pang of hunger suddenly shot up from her stomach.

She had not had dinner.

Her hunger made her stop bickering with Elliot.

Elliot sent Avery to her room, then pointed at the room next door said, "That's my room.You're welcome over anytime."

Avery opened the door to her room, then snapped coldly, "No, thank you.Don't you come over either."

She entered the room and shut the door behind her.

Even with the door standing between them, they could almost hear the sound of the other's breath.

Avery felt torn.

"Am I being a little too harsh by shutting the door on Elliot's face like that? He did help me with my suitcase," she thought.

On second thought, however, she would not have had to rush over here if it were not for his antics.

Avery took a deep breath, forced herself to calm down, then dragged her suitcase over to the bed.

She was starving and she smelled awful. She planned on taking a shower, then heading out to eat. She opened up the suitcase, took out her toiletries, then took out some clothes, and headed into the bathroom. She emerged after her shower about twenty minutes later. She was beginning to experience some mild stomach cramps, so she did not bother drying her hair. She grabbed her phone and keycard, then walked out the door. She took two steps out of the room, then saw a slender woman standing in front of the room next door.

Just as Avery looked up at the woman, the woman looked back at her, too.

As their eyes met, there was a hint of shock on Avery's face, while a charming yet playful grin appeared on the woman's face.

It was as if she was telling Avery that she was about to walk into the room in front of her and subdue the man inside!

Chapter 967

At that moment, the door to the room next door opened, and the woman sauntered sultrily into the room! Avery's eyes widened.

She could not believe that Elliot was just flirting with her half an hour later and was now messing around with another woman! She instantly felt like the world was spinning around her.

She could understand what was playing out in front of her.

Their rooms were right next to each other, but Elliot had the audacity to openly fool around with a woman in his room.

"Does he really think that the rooms are soundproofed and that I would not be able to hear him having fun?" thought Avery.

Avery was so disgusted that she completely lost her appetite. She turned back into her room and slammed the door behind her!

"What a joke! How could I have not seen Elliot to be the man he truly is?" thought Avery.

She was too gullible and had thought him to be a man of integrity, who would keep his personal life in check! Avery was so furious that her cheeks flushed. She stood frozen in the middle of the room but could not calm herself down. She wanted to immediately leave this place, but there was nothing but the woods and the mountain outside, and there was no public transport.

Even if she wanted to leave, she had to wait until the next day.

Her mental defenses were utterly overwhelmed!

"How could such an absurd thing happen?"

"What does Elliot take me for? Did he trick me into coming here just to show me his true colors?" thought Avery.

Avery crouched down by the bed and tears began to well up in her eyes.

"How could Elliot open his door for that woman?" "Or perhaps he was the one who had called that woman over?"

"Otherwise, why would he let her in like that?"

After thinking it through, Avery wiped her tears away, then pulled out her phone and booked a flight home for the next day.

Suddenly, a text message popped up.

It was from Tammy.

[Avery! I heard you're on Mount Sierra with Elliot. That sounds thrilling!]

The tears that Avery forced herself to hold back streamed down her face once again upon reading the message.

"She's right! It's absolutely thrilling!" whispered Avery to herself.

Avery responded: [Yeah. Our rooms are next to each other. He's having the night of his life in his room with another woman right now. It's very thrilling, indeed.]

After the text message was sent, Tammy immediately called Avery.

Avery hesitated for two seconds, then answered the call.

"Avery! Did you say Elliot BCn$tLM another woman are..."

Tammy could not bring herself to finish her sentence.

"I saw it with my own eyes."

Avery took a breath, then continued, "The woman was wearing a strappy dress. Her entire upper thigh was exposed... Of course, she has the right to wear whatever she wants. It's got nothing to do with me. I'm just disgusted by Elliot... Before he met her, he was still pretending and telling me he wanted to pursue me."

Tammy cursed for a bit, then suggested, "Don't cry, Avery! Go over right now and knock on the door! Let's see if they'd have the guts to keep going! You shouldn't let him go after he made you upset like this!"

"There's no need for that."

Avery did not want to see that type of scene.

It would traumatize her for life.

"I'm leaving first thing tomorrow morning."

"How did this happen? I can't believe it, Avery! There's no need for Elliot to do something like that in front of you no matter how deprived he is!"

Tammy was baffled.

Avery buried her face in her hands and said hoarsely, "I wouldn't believe it either if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes... It feels like a dream. Tell me if I'm dreaming right now, Tammy."

"This isn't a dream! Don't cry, Avery! That sc*mbag isn't worth it! "

Tammy was thinking of ideas while she comforted Avery.

"My head hurts, Tammy...Let's talk later,"

Avery sobbed, then hung up the phone.

Chapter 968

The doorbell to Avery's room rang a while later.

Avery heard it, but she did not feel like opening the door nor did she want to know who was on the other side.

She felt hollow.

It was as if she was floating on the surface of a body of water but could not drown no matter how much she wanted to.

She wondered for a moment why she felt this hopeless.

She wondered if she still harbored delusions about Elliot.

Despite all the times he had lied to her, she had never really learned her lesson.

Otherwise, she could have immediately left after he revealed his plan.

The doorbell continued to ring and it gave Avery a splitting headache. She had a feeling that whoever was ringing the doorbell would not cease until she opened the door. She held onto the edge of the bed for support, got to her feet, then dragged herself toward the door.

When she opened the door, a tall, familiar silhouette appeared before her.

The moment Avery saw Elliot, she took a step back on reflex.

"Avery! You got it wrong!"

Elliot's heart ached at the sight of Avery's red, swollen eyes.

"I wasn't in the room this entire time. Someone called me out for drinks after I sent you to your room, so that's where I went."

He strode into her room, then shut the door behind him.

Avery suddenly smelled the alcohol on him. She examined him closely as she blinked.

His clothes were clean and had practically no wrinkles on them, but his brows were furrowed, and his expression was serious.

"Tammy called me and gave me an earful! That's how I found out what happened!"

Avery suddenly turned around in embarrassment. It was hard for her to tell if he was telling the truth or not.

"The woman who entered my room was Mr. Goldstein's niece. I've only met her a few times and we're not close at all. We've never had any private interactions before. If I was in the room at the time, I definitely wouldn't have opened the door for her."

Elliot walked over to face Avery, placed his hands firmly on her shoulders, and did not let her escape.

"Who opened the door for her, then? I saw her walk into your room with my own eyes."

Avery's voice was hoarse filled with hurt.

"It was housekeeping."

Elliot's chest was rising and falling rapidly.

"You know what turndown service is, right? I didn't ask for the service. I'm guessing the housekeeping manager arranged for it. The cleaner knows Mr. Goldstein's niece and let her into the room. I'll take you over to check the surveillance cameras if you don't believe me. A weight suddenly lifted off of Avery's shoulders.

It felt as if she had just recovered from a serious illness.

She thought of how she had lost control earlier as his explanation echoed in her mind.

Suddenly, she understood her true feelings.

She tore off the chains around her heart, then threw her arms around Elliot, and buried her face in his broad, muscular chest.

"I'm sorry I misunderstood you. I should've followed her in and checked things out for myself."

"It's alright. At least we've cleared the air now."

Elliot held her tightly in his arms and rested his chin on the top of her head.

"Give me some credit next time, won't you? I didn't exhaust my efforts to get you over here just to hurt you."

"I don't know what happened either. Something just snapped in my head just now."

Avery took a whiff of his familiar scent, then softly explained, "I care about you, so seeing you mess around with another woman broke my heart."

"I know."

Elliot pondered in silence for a few seconds, then made a decision.

"Let's get married when we get back, Avery!"

Avery's head suddenly shot up, and she gazed at him with bloodshot eyes.

Elliot lowered his gaze to look at her.

"I said, let's get married when we get back. We've known each other for seven years. When would we get another chance again? My feelings for you have never changed. Since you care about me, too, then why should we waste any more time?"

Avery gazed at his loving yet serious expression and wanted to say something a few times, but it felt like something was stuck in her throat and she could not say a word.

All she could do was nod aggressively in response.

Avery abruptly woke up in the night.

It was not until she reached out and felt the warmth of Elliot's body next to her that she finally felt relieved.

She grabbed her phone and sent Tammy a text.

[Hey, Tammy.We decided to get remarried.] Tammy was already asleep at this hour.

Avery stared at her phone and lost all desire to sleep.

She was wide awake, and very certain, that the man next to her was the one that she wanted to spend the rest of her life with.

Chapter 969

Avery opened up her contacts and found her mother's contact card.

She sent a text to the number.

[Elliot and I are back together, Mom.This time, we cleared up all of our misunderstandings.I believe that we won't ever be apart again after this.I hope you're doing well up in heaven.I'll live a good life and raise the kids well.]

After Avery sent the message, she put down her phone and prepared to go back to sleep.

At that moment, something suddenly lit up in the room.She glanced over to the source of light and saw Elliot's phone screen flashing on the nightstand.She could vaguely make out that he had received a text message, but she could not see who it was from or what it was about.

He had never kept his phone from her.He would not get mad even if she looked through it.

If his phone was by his pillow, she might have taken a look out of curiosity.

However, she did not feel like getting out of bed and waking up, so she abandoned the thought of checking it out.

She closed her eyes as she was no longer afraid of any unknown terrors.

At seven the next morning, Elliot slowly awakened from his slumber.

When he saw Avery lying quietly next to him, his brows relaxed and a tender smile appeared on his face.

He was afraid of waking her, so he decided to lie down next to her for a while.

He grabbed his phone from the nightstand and saw the new text message.

The moment he finished reading the message, his expression instantly turned frighteningly ominous! An hour later, Avery groggily opened her eyes.

She had trouble going back to sleep after she had woken up the night before, so she was not in a great mood and was still groggy.

The scene in front of her made her even more certain that she was perhaps still dreaming and had not actually woken up yet.

"You're up?"

The one who spoke was Roger Goldstein's niece.

As if she was shocked by an electric current, Avery immediately sobered up.

"What is this woman doing in my room?!" thought Avery.

She instantly sat up in bed and stared in shock at Elliot.

Elliot had a cigarette in one hand, while his other arm was wrapped around the woman.

The pair stood by the bed and gazed at Avery as if she was a monkey in the zoo.

"Didn't you say you were leaving today, Avery? Hurry up, pack your bags and go!" Elliot said as he exhaled a faint ring of smoke.

"What the hell are you saying, Elliot Foster?!"

Avery's hands clenched tightly around the covers as she reprimanded him at the top of her lungs.

"You and this woman...Didn't you say you weren't close? Why are you holding her?! Didn't you say you wanted us to get married? Am I remembering wrongly, or did you lie to me again?!"

The intense argument could clearly be heard from outside the room.

Soon after, Avery burst out of the room with her suitcase.

With tears in her eyes, she dragged her suitcase and hurried toward the elevators.

"Wait for me, Miss Tate!"

Elliot's bodyguard ran after her.

Avery stood still in front of the elevator doors, then glared at the bodyguard with reddened eyes.

"Why are you following me?! Did your boss tell you to come and humiliate me?!"

In the room just moments ago, Elliot had told her to her face that he would not marry her, and that all the sweet talk from the night before was just a ruse to get her in bed. The humiliation she had suffered in her life was nothing compared to the humiliation Elliot had put her through on this day.

She almost wanted to slap herself in the face!

Chapter 970

"Mir.Foster asked me to take you to the airport."

Once the elevator doors opened, the bodyguard entered with Avery.

"I don't need you to take me there!"

"What are you raising your voice at me for?" snapped the bodyguard.

"I'm just following my boss's orders and doing my job!"

As Avery looked at the dark expression on the bodyguard's face, she swallowed the words she wanted to say before they could escape her lips.

This entire thing was strange and absurd. She had a hunch that something was not right.

"Did he say anything else when he told you to take me to the airport?" she asked softly.

"First, wipe those tears away. Your crying is frustrating me."

Avery lifted her hand to wipe the tears off her face.

"Is he being threatened?"

"I don't know.

He just told me to take you to the airport as soon as possible."

Avery remained silent.

"From what I know about my boss, I'm guessing this place is most likely not safe anymore. He fought with you to protect you and get you to leave."

The bodyguard had thought that saying this would move Avery to stay and stand by Elliot's side.

In the eyes of the bodyguard, Avery was a loving, righteous woman who was not afraid of death.

Otherwise, Elliot would not love her this much.

However, Avery simply stayed silent, lost in her thoughts.

"Hey, what are you thinking about?"

The bodyguard nudged her with his elbow.

"Did you hear what I just told you? Show some kind of reaction, won't you?!"

Avery took a deep breath, then said, "Should I continue to cry when I step out of the elevator?"

The bodyguard was taken aback.

Avery turned to look at him and asked him sincerely, "What if they don't let me leave? The only way to avoid the bad guys' suspicion is to put on a pitiful display of heartbreak."

The bodyguard was speechless.

Of all the ups and downs that he had been through with Elliot through the years, he had never come across a professional actress like Avery Tate! It was as if the woman who was crying her heart out just moments ago was a completely different person not the real her.

"Now, she is calmly thinking of an escape plan, and not about how much danger Elliot is in. How heartless can she be?!" thought the bodyguard.

The bodyguard felt like he had misjudged Avery, and he felt bad for his boss!

"Why would Elliot give his everything to such a cold-blooded and cruel woman? Her behavior proved that you truly can't judge a person's character until trouble came knocking," surmised the bodyguard in his head.

A staff member from the villa drove Avery and the bodyguard to the bottom of the mountain and then drove the car back up to the villa.

Avery immediately pulled out her phone and called the police.

The bodyguard watched as she resolutely called the police, then watched her call Chad to come up with a way to send people over to Mount Sierra and rescue Elliot.

The bodyguard instantly understood that Avery was not in a rush to escape because she was heartless, but so that she could rescue Elliot.

If she had stayed up on the mountain, not only would she be dragging Elliot behind, but there was also no way for her to help him.

"What do we do next?" asked the bodyguard as he crossed his arms in front of his chest.

"Maybe you should head back up the mountain?"

Avery thought about the situation seriously for a moment, then said,

"Otherwise, it would be too dangerous for him to be up there alone. You'd be able to protect him if you were there with him."

"Do you expect me to walk up the mountain on foot?"

Avery glanced around her surroundings.

The area was secluded and there was no sign of a vehicle.

Chapter 971

"What does Roger Goldstein have against Elliot? Is there some kind of grudge between them? If so, then why did Elliot come here?"

Avery found the entire thing slightly strange.

"They had some drinks together the last time they met." The bodyguard's expression was serious.

"That's the world of the wealthy for you. They're friends one day, and possibly arch - nemeses the next. It's all about profit, not relationships." Avery gazed up at the mountain worriedly.

She suddenly recalled how Elliot had received a text message in the middle of the night.

"Could this have something to do with that message?" she wondered.

Back up on the mountain, Elliot was led to Roger Goldstein's room by Roger's niece. Roger narrowed his sly eyes as he stared at Elliot.

"I underestimated you, Elliot!" he exclaimed.

"Who did you hear the news from?"

Elliot picked up the cigarette case from the table and pulled out a cigarette.

"You sure are brave to send your bodyguard to take Avery Tate off the mountain and stay behind by yourself."

Seeing how at ease Elliot was, Roger greatly admired his courage.

"I heard you got your pilot to fly your jet over last night. What? Are you planning an escape?" Elliot asked in a deep voice as he held the cigarette between his fingers.

"What would happen to me if you really died here today, Elliot?" Roger asked curiously.

Elliot let out a light chuckle.

"If I die, then, of course, I'm taking you with me! You should be asking what would happen to your descendants if I died here today."

Roger's expression instantly darkened. His bodyguards immediately surrounded Elliot and glared murderously at him.

"By the way, your jet won't be able to fly out of Mount Sierra," Elliot said casually without paying attention to the bodyguards at all.

"Things are no longer as backward as your father's time. Whether it's information technology or all kinds of weapons, they've all advanced greatly. If anything happens to even one of the people who showed up here this time, the entire Goldstein family will go down. You actually wanted to blow us all up? Did you take too many supplements messed up your head? Roger was trembling with rage from being reprimanded, but there was nothing he could do about it.

"Go on, then. Who was the one who gave you such an absurd idea? "

Elliot glanced at his watch and said, "You're running out of time."

"What's that supposed to mean?!" Roger gulped nervously.

"Don't tell me you've sent people over?! I didn't do anything!"

Elliot laughed coldly, then snapped his cigarette in half and said, "Don't provoke me if you don't have the guts to go against me! I don't have the best temper. Is this the first day you've known me?! "

"You're too arrogant, Elliot. My father told me that you were going to be an influential person in Aryadelle before he died. I can't believe he got it right."

Roger sighed and said, "I wouldn't risk my family's lives on a gamble. This is my fault. I'll pay the consequences."

"Spill it! Who told you to do this?!" Elliot demanded.

Roger was slightly afraid of him, but was unwilling to give in.

"Didn't I already say I wasn't going to blow you all up? If I broke the law, then let the law deal with me. There's no need for you to be so domineering! I'm still older than you, after all!"

Elliot's face instantly turned unusually ominous.

"It's someone you know. Someone close to you. Go and find out for yourself! "

Roger said.

He felt the suffocating tension in the room, then got up and hurried out.

At that moment, a crowd had gathered in the courtyard of Villa de Sierra.

Helicopters were flying in the villa's direction and nobody had a clue about what was going on.

Roger's face paled with terror when he saw this.

He lifted his wrist and checked the time.

It had only been less than half an hour between the time Elliot sent his bodyguard and Avery Tate off the mountain and when the rescue squad arrived! Elliot walked over to Roger's side with his phone in his hand and said in a voice that sounded like it came from the very depths of hell, "Get on your knees and apologize to everyone here."

Otherwise, I'm blowing up your villa!"

At the bottom of the mountain, the uneasiness in Avery's heart finally calmed down after she looked up to see the approaching helicopters.

At that moment, her phone rang and she immediately answered the call.

Chapter 972

"I'm safe, Avery."

Elliot's deep voice came through the phone.

"About this morning—"

"Let's talk when we meet."

Avery's voice was trembling uncontrollably.

"It's a good thing you're alright. You almost scared me to death, Elliot."

Elliot heard the hurt in her voice and said, "Everything's alright now. I'm coming to see you now."

After the call ended, Avery lifted her hand and wiped her tears away.

The bodyguard wanted to console her and calm her down, but ended up saying, 'Mr. Foster isn't dead! I hate seeing women cry and whine.'

Avery looked up at him with teary eyes and asked, "Why weren't you worried that something would happen to him? You seemed really composed the entire time."

The bodyguard chuckled bitterly and said, "This was nothing. There've been countless assassination attempts on Mr. Foster, and many of them were far more dangerous than this. Since you've decided to stay with him, then you'd better prepare yourself for assassination attempts, too."

Avery was taken aback.

The bodyguard was also taken aback when he saw the silent shock on her face.

"Could I have scared Avery into breaking up with Elliot? On second thought, she isn't worthy of Elliot if she can't handle this much trouble," thought the bodyguard.

"Not only would your life be in danger, but your children's lives would also be in danger, too. You've read the news, right? I'm sure I don't have to tell you the stories about the countless children of wealthy families who were abducted, right?" said the bodyguard.

Avery was speechless.

When Elliot arrived at the bottom of the mountain, he saw Avery's pale expression.

It seemed like she had not gotten over what just happened.

"You got quite a fright this morning, didn't you?" He pulled her slender body into his arms.

"I was afraid that they would use you to blackmail me. I'd act on impulse if that happened."

Avery nodded and asked, "Do you get assassination attempts often, Elliot?"

"Why are you asking something like that so suddenly? This wasn't an assassination attempt. Goldstein was deluded into wanting to blow up everyone in the villa. If that happened, then Aryadelle would undergo a complete change. He thought that he would be able to control the country's economy when that happens, but it was a ridiculously idiotic idea!"

"Why would he think of something this terrifying?"

"He's an idiot. Someone else was controlling him behind the scenes."

"Who?" Avery felt a shiver run down her spine.

"He refused to give me a name. All he said was that it was someone close to me. I'll look into it when I get back."

Elliot took Avery's hand and helped her into the car.

"Let's head home for now. Do you still remember what we talked about last night?"

"Did we do anything else apart from sleep last night?"

Elliot gazed deeply at Avery and said, "You're still upset about this morning."

"Act all you want, but why did you have to have your hand around that woman?"

Avery was settling the earlier score.

"Do you think you're the only one who can act? I'm a pretty good actress myself. If you told me there was danger and asked me to pretend to get into a fight with you, I probably would've been able to give a much more entertaining performance. Did you really have to use that woman to provoke me?"

Seeing her upset, Elliot lowered his head and explained, "I was frantic at the time. I was worried that you'd get dragged into things and I wanted to get you out of there as soon as possible. I wasn't thinking straight."

Avery accepted his explanation.

"Don't do it again. If you ever hold another woman again, then you're never touching me again."

Elliot wrapped his arm around her waist and swore, "I won't."

"Ugh, my head hurts. I don't know how to tell the kids when we get back."

Avery rested her head against Elliot's shoulder.

"Layla shouldn't be a problem. She's always liked you. Hayden, on the other hand..."

"I don't know what to do either. I can swallow my pride and make up with you after I make you mad, but Hayden despises me too much," Elliot said.

"You reap what you sow."

After a moment's silence, he said, "He probably won't stop us from remarrying."

"I know.He respects me, but that's precisely why this is hard on me."Avery closed her eyes.

"I'm a little dizzy.I'm going to take a nap."

"Alright."

Back in Avonsville, the news of Elliot Foster and Avery Tate's experience in Mount Sierra spread like wildfire the moment Avery had called Chad for help.

Chapter 974

Without hesitation, Avery immediately opened the car door and got out of the car! She saw Adrian's brother! Back when she went to Bridgedale to see them, their neighbor had told her that they had moved! She had continued to look into their whereabouts, but she did not expect them to be in Aryadelle! Avery got out of the car and ran over to Adrian's brother.

"Mr.White!"

Avery grabbed the man's arm from behind as her breathing intensified.

"Why did you move? Did you move to Aryadelle for good? Where do you live right now? I'd like to see Adrian!"

When Peter White turned and saw Avery, an annoyed and impatient expression instantly appeared on his face.

After his father was sent to the hospital— having received a beating from Elliot, he was out buying breakfast for him.He did not expect to run into Avery!

"Don't you think you're being annoying, Dr.Tate? Do we know you that well? What does my family moving have anything to do with you? Why do you keep bothering my brother?" Peter shook off her grip.

"My father's in the hospital.I'm going to the hospital to take care of him now. Get out of my way!"

Avery froze for a moment, then asked, "What happened to your father? Are you here in Aryadelle for treatment? I don't want to bother you either, but how could you not let Adrian use his phone?! He's a human being, not an animal. You don't have the right to limit his personal freedom!"

"Personal freedom? What a joke! He's an idiot! If an idiot had freedom, then they'd die in no time!" Peter mocked scornfully.

His words made Avery lose her mind with rage. She clenched her fists tightly and was about to explode.

"Adrian was not an idiot. He has self-awareness now!" thought Avery.

"I suspect you aren't his biological brother," Avery hissed through gritted teeth.

"If you were, then you would never say such barbaric things!"

"How is that any of your business? Do you have too much time on your hands and decided to make a scene out here in public?" Peter said, then began to walk away.

Avery held him back once again "This is Aryadelle! If I can't get a hold of Adrian tonight, then you and your father can sit and wait for my revenge! I'm not just the Dr. Tate that you know! More than anything, I'm the head of Tate Industries!"

Her threat turned Peter's face pale.

Avery might look soft and demure, but she was, in fact, a woman of means. Otherwise, she would not have anything to do with Elliot Foster! Even if she were not the head of Tate Industries, her relationship with Elliot Foster alone was enough to terrify them.

After Peter left, Avery let out a heavy sigh, then turned and looked for her car.

However, despite all the cars driving back and forth on the roads, none of them was hers! Her car... had been towed! Avery finally arrived to meet with Elliot and the designer at half- past ten that morning.

Elliot could not help but gaze at her and ask, "Was traffic that bad? "

Avery had called to tell him that she was stuck in traffic, but it was impossible for her to be an hour later no matter how backed up the roads were.

He wanted to know what exactly had happened to her.

Avery took a sip of water, then grunted in response.

There were outsiders with them, so it was not the right time for her to explain things to Elliot.

After about an hour of discussion, the designer knew the style of gown and ring that Avery wanted.

Once the designer left, Elliot nudged Avery and asked, "Go on, then.What happened?"

"My car got towed," Avery said honestly with flushed cheeks.

"I went to get it back, so it took me some time to get here."

Chapter 975

"Why did your car get towed?" Elliot's brows furrowed slightly.

"What happened? Why didn't you call me?"

"It was a small matter."

Avery picked up her glass and took a sip of water.

"I bumped into the brother of my patient in Bridgedale.Apart from my patient, there's something strange about his family.I'm upset that they won't let my patient contact me.When I saw his brother on the street earlier, I ran over to talk to him."

Elliot was baffled after hearing her explanation.

"Since your patient's family doesn't want to let you contact him, then why won't you respect their wishes, Avery? He's your patient, not your family. You can't get involved in their personal matters."

"I knew you'd say that." Avery frowned.

"This patient is different from the others."

"I know. He's got the same illness as Shea did. That's why you're paying extra attention to him, right?" Elliot interjected.

"Since his family was able to cough up a huge sum of money to hire you, then that means they're definitely not an average family. They'll naturally take care of him well."

"The weird thing is that they're not taking care of him at all. Otherwise, I wouldn't want to get involved in other people's business."

Avery lowered her gaze and said, "I know you still don't think that's got anything to do with me, but I can't help but want to get involved."

Elliot's heart softened.

"I'm not saying you're wrong, Avery. If they're really abusing your patient, then go ahead and get involved! I'll back you up."

Avery quickly shook her head and said, "I'm a busybody, but I won't do anything beyond my own capability. Besides, you are working on our wedding. You don't need to worry about small matters like this."

"Alright."

"I heard you had this illness when you were younger, too, and that you were cured by a miracle worker. Did you ever go see that person again?"

Avery brought up the question that was bothering her.

"It would be a pity if you weren't cured back then." Elliot's expression turned puzzled.

"Nobody ever told me about that. I know nothing about this miracle worker, so I never knew how to find him."

"Oh, that's a shame."

Avery glanced at the time, then said, "Let's go have lunch. I'm a little hungry."

"Alright. Tell me right away the next time your car gets towed. You don't have to go DFr!yML get it back yourself," Elliot said.

"There won't be a next time," Avery said, embarrassed.

"I was too impulsive today. It was pretty dangerous."

"Good."

That evening, Avery got a call from Adrian.

"How are you, Adrian? I bumped into your brother today, but he refused to tell me how you were doing," Avery asked anxiously.

"They've locked me up in the house and won't let me leave." Adrian's voice was feeble.

"If I don't listen to them, then they won't let me eat... I get really hungry when I don't eat."

Something snapped in Avery.

How could that happen? How could they do this to you?! Listen to them for now, Adrian. You have to eat! Otherwise, your body won't be able to take it! I'll think of something! Wait for me!"

"you're a good person, Avery."

Adrian chuckled lightly, then said contentedly, "I knew you wouldn't abandon me."

Avery's eyes filled with tears.

She could not understand why Adrian was being mistreated like this.

"Why did Nathan spend a fortune to treat Adrian's illness just to abuse him? What were they trying to get Adrian to do when they forced him to listen to them?" thought Avery.

Avery could not sleep a wink that night.

She thought of a million possibilities to this problem. She even thought of Elliot at one point. She could not help but feel that there was something wrong with him, too.

The next morning, Elliot arrived at the Starry River Villa.

Avery stared at him in a daze for a few seconds, then suddenly thought of a brave idea!

Chapter 976

"Why are you looking at me like that, Avery?"

A pink flush washed over Elliot's handsome face.

He and Avery had made up and were in a loving relationship, but she would rarely stare straight at him like this unless they were in a fight.

He could not tell what she was thinking.

This was also one of the reasons he was so obsessed with her.

"I think you look particularly dashing today."

Avery led Elliot over to the couch, then stroked the hair on his head and said,

"Did you put on hair wax? It's not good for you. You're still very handsome without it."

Elliot was speechless.

He suspected Avery was on some kind of drug. Why else would she be acting this strangely?

"Have you had breakfast yet? Shall I get you a glass of milk?"

Avery said, then went to the kitchen to get a glass of milk before he could answer.

She handed the glass to him and said, "Drink up! "

Elliot held the glass of milk in his hand, then gazed at her with eyes filled with suspicion.

"Avery, you..."

"Don't move! I think I saw a strand of gray hair on your head!"

Avery turned him around, then carefully pulled out two strands of hair off the top of his head.

The pain was nothing to Elliot, but his feelings took a hit.

When did he start turning gray?

"Let me see."

He wanted to see his gray hairs.

A wave of anxiety flashed across Avery's eyes.

Her cheeks flushed as she said, "What's there to look at? I already tossed it on the floor. Do you want to look for it there?"

Then, she yawned.

Of course, Elliot would not get down on the floor to search for the strands of gray hair.

He felt Avery's behavior toward him return to normal after she plucked the gray hairs out.

"You didn't say you were coming over yesterday. Why are you here so early?"

Avery said as she walked toward the master bedroom.

"I'm going to change. Wait here in the living room for me."

Elliot got up from the couch with the glass of milk still in his hand.

Mrs. Cooper walked over to him with Robert in her arms.

"Robert woke up at five in the morning and played till seven, so he's pretty wiped out right now."

Mrs. Coope chuckled said, "He knows how to flip over now. I'm guessing he'll start to learn how to walk in a couple of months.

Elliot gazed tenderly at his son's chubby face, then asked, "Do you think Avery was acting a little weird earlier?"

Mrs. Cooper was taken aback.

"I don't think so! She probably got you some milk because she was worried you'd be hungry!"

"She even called me handsome."

Avery was not such a straightforward person. She rarely praised Elliot like that at all, so he was stunned and over the moon.

Mrs. Cooper laughed out loud and said, "Beauty is in the eye of the beholder. Now that you've made up, of course, she finds you handsome."

Elliot felt embarrassed and took a sip of milk.

"Have you had dinner yet, Master Elliot?" asked Mrs. Cooper.

"Not yet. I'll have breakfast with Avery once she comes out."

"Alright. I'll put Robert in his bed for now."

Mrs. Cooper placed Robert in the crib, then walked toward the kitchen.

Avery emerged in changed clothes very quickly.

"You cased the place before you came in, didn't you?" she teased.

"You arrived right after the twins left for school."

"I didn't want Hayden to be unhappy to see me."

Elliot walked into the dining room with Avery, then said, "I brought the sketches for the ring that the designer sent to me. I also wanted to discuss our lives together."

"The sketches are already done?"

Avery was a little surprised.

"You kept emphasizing that you wanted a simple design and nothing showy yesterday. Even I could come up with something that simple."

"Ha ha! Design something for me, then," Avery teased.

"If your design turns out even better than a professional designer's work, then I'll go with yours."

"Let's have breakfast first. We'll look at it after we're done eating."

Chapter 977

"You mentioned talking about our lives together. Did you have any special requests?"

Avery took a seat at the dining table, then lifted her gaze at Elliot.

Elliot shook his head and said, "I'm worried Hayden would feel uneasy about me moving in."

"Well, I'm definitely not moving into your place! The kids wouldn't move there, and I can't be apart from them," Avery said without hesitation.

"I don't want you to be upset, but the kids take priority over you in my heart."

Elliot had no words.

Even if Avery had not said it, he knew the reality of things.

Hearing it said out loud just stabbed at his heart. He could not come up with a perfect plan, so he turned silent.

Avery thought that her words were too harsh and hurt him.

"How about we don't think about this for now? You could move in here or we could move into your place. As long as we don't make it an issue, it isn't something that would trouble us," she said comfortingly.

"I've given it some thought. I want to give the kids some time to accept the fact that we've gotten back together before the wedding. I won't move in before that,"

Elliot said, expressing his thoughts.

Avery could not help but praise him and said, "We wouldn't have had to go through so many wrong turns to get here if you were this mature and considerate in the past."

Elliot mocked himself and said, "My hair's already turning gray. Could I not be mature?"

"Don't worry. I only saw one. It's not a big problem,"

Avery consoled.

"As long as you keep working out, nobody would think you're my father."

Elliot was speechless.

After breakfast, Elliot showed the sketches to Avery.

One of the sketches was by the designer, while the other was by Elliot.

After studying both sketches, Avery ended up going with Elliot's.

"It's not that your design is better. I just thought that if I wore a ring you designed yourself, I could show off and tell people my husband designed my ring for me. This isn't just a ring, it's proof of his love for me."

Elliot was overjoyed from receiving her flattery.

"Are you going to the office today or staying at home to rest?" he asked.

Avery froze for a moment, then asked, "What about you?"

"I'm stopping by the office for a bit, then going for a meeting with the wedding event company. If you'd like to come with me..."

"I need to go to the office today. You settle things with the event company!"

Avery did not feel like spending her energy on such matters.

With Elliot's perfectionist personality, she was sure that he would be able to give her a satisfactory wedding.

"I'll take you to your office, then," Elliot said.

"It's fine. I'm not in a rush. You should go!"

Avery walked him to the door.

Once Elliot was gone, Avery immediately returned to her room took a look at Elliot's hair samples.

The two strands of hair that she plucked out earlier were not gray hairs. She had said that to not worry him. She was suspicious of his identity. She wanted to check and see if he truly was Shea's twin brother.

The point was that Elliot supposedly had the same illness as Shea when they were little, but he was miraculously cured during a time when medicine had yet to advance.

If there truly was such an incredible miracle worker, then they would not be able to hide from the world.

Avery had to confirm Elliot's identity.

Now that she had his hair samples, all she needed was a sample from someone in the Foster family to carry out the tests.

Shea was gone and Henry was difficult to approach. She was now left with nobody else but Cole.

Avery grabbed her bag, left the house, then gave Cole a call.

"Come and meet me, Cole! I have some good news for you."

She had to get Cole to meet up with her no matter what.

Chapter 978

"Good news? You not driving me to my death is good news enough for me,"

Cole teased with a cold chuckle.

Avery stayed silent for a few seconds, then hit him right where it would hurt and said, "Are you that spineless? If your uncle was the one asking you out, would you be so scared that you would lose your soul?"

"Avery Tate! Why are you provoking me? I've already lost everything. Why are you still looking for me? I don't want to know about you and my uncle, nor do I care. Even if you get married one day, it would have nothing to do with me! My uncle would never invite me to the wedding!"

Avery waited for him to finish speaking, then calmly said, "Your uncle and I are actually getting married. I'm the one who gets to decide if you're invited or not. Your uncle will listen to me."

Cole was stunned.

"Come out and meet me, Cole. There are some things I'd like to talk to you about face-to-face."

Avery used Elliot as bait to get Cole to meet her.

"Your uncle isn't as heartless as you think. Meet me, and we'll talk it out."

Cole felt relieved and agreed to meet.

The two met at a cafe about forty minutes later.

Once they sat down at a table by the window, Avery ordered a latte.

"Are you and my uncle really getting married, Avery?" Cole asked as he gazed at her face.

"Why would I lie about something like this?" Avery said.

"Where have you been living since you and father sold the old mansion? I'll send you an invitation if you want to come to the wedding." Cole was slightly flattered.

"Are you genuinely inviting me?"

"What else would I be doing? If you and your father came to the wedding, it would simply be two extra mouths to feed. It's not like you can eat to a point where you bankrupt your uncle, right?"

Then, Avery pestered, "Where are you living now?"

"We're renting a place right now. We haven't decided on a new place yet. My dad wants to leave this place, but I don't, so we're still arguing over this."

Cole's mood turned gloomy at the mention of this.

"I admit that I'm not a good son caused harm to my dad. I'd like to treat him better from now on."

"It's a good thing that you have that intention." Avery's eyes unconsciously landed on his hair.

"By the way, what are your future plans? In terms of your career, I mean."

"I'm thinking of starting a business and opening up my own company."

Then, Cole said dejectedly, "I've never worked for anyone before, so I won't be able to handle something like that. It's impossible for me to ever work for anyone in this life."

"I see."

Avery expected this answer.

Cole grew up with a silver spoon in his mouth.

On top of that, his elders had spoiled him rotten and turned him into someone who could not suffer a day in his life.

Elliot had a similar upbringing, but because of Shea, Elliot and Cole grew up in completely different environments and went through separate life experiences.

"Did you mean it when you said that my uncle doesn't actually hate me that much?"

Cole spent every single day in regret and wanted to get back on his uncle's good side.

At that moment, a waiter brought over two cups of coffee.

Avery took a sip of her coffee, then looked at Cole's hair once again and asked, "When did you start getting gray hairs?"

Cole was startled.

"You're kidding, right?"

Avery immediately stood up and walked to his side.

"Don't move. I'll get it for you. Otherwise, you'll get more of them. You haven't gotten married yet. It'd be hard for you to get a girlfriend in the future if all your hair turns gray."

Then, she quickly plucked a few strands of hair from Cole's head.

"Ouch! Ahh!"

Cole grabbed his head and howled in pain.

"Avery! What are you doing?! You didn't just pull a few strands out! It was more like a whole bunch! It really hurts!"

Avery felt the strange looks around them as she quickly put the strands of hair away in a little bag that she prepared beforehand.

At the same time, she thought to herself, "Cole really is a wuss! Elliot didn't even make a sound when I plucked his hair out earlier!"

She was certain that even if she pulled out a whole bunch of hair off of another adult's head, they definitely would not cry out as dramatically as Cole just did.

"I never said there was only one strand of gray hair."

Avery returned to her seat and sat down.

After the pain subsided, Cole released his grip around his head, but the expression on his face was hurt as he said, "Where are they? Let me see them!"

Chapter 979

"What's so interesting about gray hairs? They're just hairs that are gray. Can't you just imagine it in your mind?"

"Why do I feel like you're messing with me on purpose?" Cole mumbled.

"I'm not complaining about your oily hair, but you're saying I'm messing with you? If I really wanted to mess with you, I could just get your uncle to do it. He won't just pull your hair out. He'll pull your whole head off instead."

The color drained from Cole's face as terror took over.

"Didn't you say that my uncle isn't as heartless as I'd thought?"

"That's right. Otherwise, how would you still be alive? If you weren't his nephew, you'd be dead a long time ago," Avery said.

"I'm leaving after I finish my coffee."

Cole was stunned for a moment, then said, "Didn't you ask me out to talk?"

"What did you want to talk about?"

"We already finished talking!"

Avery took a sip of coffee, then looked up at him.

"I just wanted to know how you were doing. Now that I know how pitiful things have been for you, I can't bring myself to talk anymore."

"Why not?" Cole asked.

"It's because I've been doing very well. Whatever I say would just sound like I'm bragging to you. It doesn't feel right."

Avery finished her coffee, then stood up and said, "The coffee's on me. Enjoy."

Cole watched her leave in a daze.

They barely exchanged ten sentences from beginning to end, and it was a conversation that could be carried out over the phone.

The only thing she could not have done over the phone was pluck his hair out.

Cole was certain that Avery took a big chunk of hair off of his head and not a strand.

He would have thought that this was a dream if it were not for the lingering pain on his scalp.

Avery walked out of the cafe, then got in the car and drove toward the DNA testing center.

Her emotions were all over the place and she felt slightly nervous.

She did not know what the results of the DNA test would be.

There was no way for her to guess.

If Elliot and Cole's DNA matched that of an uncle nephew, then life would continue on its current course.

It would simply overturn her traditional way of thinking.

She would believe that there truly were hidden experts in the world.

However, if their DNA results were not a match...

She let out a heavy sigh! If the results did not match, then it meant that Elliot was not a Foster.

Cole was the spitting image of Henry.

There was no need for a DNA test to confirm that they were father and son.

If news got out that Elliot was not a Foster...

Avery was too afraid to imagine the consequences.

Setting aside the effect this would have on the public, this would also have a huge impact on Elliot. He had loved Shea so much that he was willing to kill his own father for her.

How could he possibly accept it if he ever found out that he and Shea were not biological siblings?! At this thought, Avery dejectedly stopped the car by the street.

For some reason, her intuition told her that truth was just as she thought. The more she thought about it, the clearer it was that Elliot was completely different from the rest of the Foster family. Avery no longer wanted to go through with the test. She was too afraid to face that ending!

Chapter 980

Over at Sterling Group, Ben was sitting in Elliot's chair in his office and grinned widely as Elliot walked into the room.

"You sure act fast, Elliot!"

Ben knew that Elliot would not get mad no matter how much he teased him now, so he was being especially insolent.

"I was only away for two days and you managed to get Avery in the bag. You're even planning your wedding already. If Chad hadn't told me over the phone, did you not plan on telling me anything until after the wedding?" Elliot walked over to his desk, then asked, "Are the Tierneys and Goldsteins close?"

"Which Goldstein?"

"The Goldsteins from Mount Sierra. After old man Goldstein died, his son, Roger took over."

Elliot was still bothered by what happened in Mount Sierra.

"If I hadn't bribed one of the staff members there beforehand, I would probably be a pile of dust by now."

Ben cursed out loud, then shot to his feet in shock.

"Chad didn't tell me about this. He just said that you and Avery were getting married. I'm not sure if the Tierneys and Goldsteins are close because Chelsea rarely talks about her family matters in front of me."

"I remember that Chelsea took time off of work once to attend a banquet that the Goldsteins were throwing," Elliot said.

"You might have forgotten about it. It's been a while since then."

"If that's the case, then she definitely knows the Goldsteins. You're not suspecting her of wanting to kill you, are you?"

Ben was stunned, "Do you really think that's possible, Elliot? You know Chelsea would gladly die for you. Why would she want you dead?"

"She's not the same Chelsea that we knew."

An ominous chill flashed across Elliot's hawk-like eyes.

"She didn't just want me dead. She wanted to wipe out everyone there at the time. She's twisted."

Ben was at a loss for words for a while.

"I can't leave her be any longer."

Elliot turned to look at Ben, then said, "Send her a wedding invitation when you have time and check her out. I need to know for sure."

All of the earlier giddiness vanished from Ben's face.

"What if she says it wasn't her?"

"If she says she didn't do it, then ask her to surrender her phone. I'll check see if she called Goldstein the night before yesterday," Elliot said.

Ben listened to his words, then nodded and said, "Alright. What happens if she really was behind it? Are you really going to kill her?"

"If I don't kill her, then should I just wait around until she kills me?" Elliot clenched his fists tightly.

"I'm about to marry Avery and we have three children together. I can't die, and nothing can happen to Avery and the kids."

Ben sighed woefully.

"Perhaps something really did snap inside of Chelsea. Isn't Tammy Lynch supposed to go and see a psychiatrist? Chelsea should see one, too, but she's too stubborn. Besides, she probably won't bother now that she has no family left around her."

"She's a lost cause."

Elliot took a seat on his office chair, then frowned and said in a deep voice, "I've given her plenty of chances, Ben. She was the reason Avery and I constantly misunderstood each other. I've been more than merciful with her! She's the one who was too greedy and evil!"

"I know. I'll contact her as soon as possible."

Ben's heart felt heavy.

"Leave it to me. You focus on planning the wedding."

"Alright."

Over at the DNA testing center, Avery parked her car in the parking lot outside of the building. She let out a deep sigh before she got out of the car. She could not give up on finding the truth because she was too afraid to face it.

If the results came out against Elliot, then all she had to do was keep it to herself.

She had been troubled by this matter for too long. She could not continue to fuss over this any longer.

Avery grabbed her bag and strode over to the test center's entrance.

That afternoon, she drove over to the office.

The moment she entered the building, the receptionist flashed a smile at her and said, "Congratulations, Miss Tate!"

Avery was stunned.

"Congratulations?"

"Aren't you about to marry Mr.Foster? Someone from Sterling Group came by earlier today to ask the HR department about our employee headcount.They said that they'll be giving out wedding favors when the time comes."

The receptionist was very excited.

"I knew you'd definitely end up marrying Mr.Foster, Miss Tate!"

Avery was embarrassed beyond words.

"Did Elliot think that she could not afford to buy wedding favors for her own employees?"

Chapter 981

Elliot was sending out wedding favors all the way to Avery's company.

How nice of him.

"It's not set in stone yet!" Avery said, embarrassed.

"Huh? Isn't it supposed to be on 12 June?" exclaimed the receptionist in shock.

"I asked the people from Sterling Group and they said you and Mr.Foster are getting married on 12 June!" Avery was speechless.

"D*mn it!" she thought.

Even though she did not know that she was getting married on 12 June, Elliot's employees already knew all about it.

They had only agreed to get their marriage license on 7 July, but the wedding date would depend on the wedding preparations.

However, Elliot decided to hold the wedding on 12 June but did not tell her about it.

The moment Avery stepped into her office, she immediately called Elliot.

Elliot answered the call and said in a deep voice, "I was just about to call you,

Avery. I've sent the design sketch for the wedding gown over to you. Take a look."

"That was fast!"

Avery was so surprised that she forgot the main reason she had called him.

"I'll look at it right now."

Then, she hung up the phone. She opened her messages and saw the few sketches of the wedding gown that Elliot sent over.

Once she was done looking through them, she called him again.

"Did the designer from yesterday design these? They look pretty good."

"Shall I confirm them, then?"

"Sure." Avery was not picky.

She just wanted something simple and elegant.

To her, a wedding is a sacred occasion.

The gown designs that Elliot sent over satisfied her basic requirements.

"My vice president looked into it and said that 12 June is a good day for the wedding," Elliot said.

"What do you think?"

"So it was your vice president who set the date. My entire staff already knows that we're getting married on 12 June now." Avery walked over to her desk and took a seat.

"Let's go with 12 June, then! Although, won't we be short on time?"

"It shouldn't be a problem." Elliot chuckled lightly.

"As long as we spend some money, we should be able to get married tomorrow if we wanted to."

Avery's cheeks flushed slightly.

She changed the subject and asked, "Do you want to invite your brother and nephew to the wedding?"

"There's no need for us to contact them."

Elliot's tone turned cold.

"Seeing them would remind me that they were the ones who drove my mother to her death. My mother's biggest wish was for me to get married and start a family. It's a shame she isn't around to see it."

Avery was touched.

"Were you and your mother close?"

"She loved me very much," Elliot said hoarsely.

"I know very well who treats me well. Apart from my mother, you're the one who treats me best."

Avery was filled with mixed feelings as she felt her eyes well up, " I'm always picking fights with you. Why do you think I'm good to you?"

"Even if we fight all the time, I can feel that you care about me."

There was a hint of stubbornness in Elliot's voice.

Avery's breathing turned heavy. She no longer wanted to hide her feelings.

"I really do care about you, Elliot. Perhaps even more than you think."

Elliot was very happy with her response.

"You and the kids are all I have left, Avery," he said.

It was a tender moment, but Avery thought of his and Cole's DNA test.

The results would be out in a week. She was curious. If Elliot was not a Foster, then who was his family?

Chapter 982

That evening, Avery saw Elliot and the designer in the living room when she arrived home.

The designer was here to take Avery's measurements.

"I want a pretty dress, too, Mommy."

Layla gazed enviously at Avery.

"I've bought so many pretty dresses for you before, sweetie. There are still plenty of them that you haven't worn yet!" Avery said.

"That's different." Layla frowned.

"How so?"

"Daddy showed me the wedding gown you'll be wearing. It's a lot prettier than any of my dresses,"

Layla said, then suddenly smiled and said, "Daddy said he'll get me the same dress as yours."

Avery turned to Elliot.

"Are you sure you want to get your daughter a wedding gown?"

Elliot was embarrassed.

"As long as she's happy."

Avery felt that there was something very wrong about his behavior.

First of all, the wedding gown was long.

It would be difficult for Layla to move around in such a bulky dress.

Second of all, how could he keep giving in to the children?

"How could you keep going with whatever she wants? Would you act the same way if she simply picked someone to marry in the future?"

Avery had to correct Elliot's mistaken idea of a child's upbringing. He had not even moved in yet, but he was already giving in to Layla's every will.

Would he not end up spoiling her rotten after he moved in?

Avery's question made Elliot frown.

Layla was still a little girl in his eyes. He never thought about her future marriage.

For now, he could not accept his daughter getting married to anybody at all. Just the thought of Layla living with another man in the future made him feel awful.

"Layla can't date before she turns eighteen, and she's not marrying anyone before she turns twenty five."

Elliot decided on these rules after a moment's consideration.

"She wouldn't be mature enough before she turns eighteen and would be easily cheated. She wouldn't be completely mature before she turns twenty five either. I would be too worried no matter who she decides to marry."

Avery found his rules to be absolutely absurd.

"I would completely agree if you had said that she can't get married before she turns eighteen. How could you stop her from getting married before she turns twenty five?"

She disagreed with him. Avery stated the facts.

"I definitely wasn't twenty five when I first married you!"

Elliot recalled the past for a moment, then said, "Our situation was different. I was bedridden and there was no telling if I was going to live or die. I wouldn't have married you if I wasn't in that state."

He had said those words in respect to the facts and held no emotion in his voice. However, his words sparked a rage in Avery.

"Are you saying that you regret meeting me?"

Elliot shot to his feet and immediately explained, "That's not what I meant. I was just speaking hypothetically..."

"Aren't you saying that you definitely wouldn't have taken an interest in me back then if you weren't in a vegetative state?"

Avery slapped away the hand that Elliot was reaching out.

"I'm the one who wasn't interested in you! If my family wasn't in a rut, and if your family didn't offer us all of that money, then I definitely wouldn't have married you!"

Elliot's temples began to throb in pain.

"Maybe you're not aware of the situation back then. After all, you were bedridden for so long that you probably had no idea what was going on. Let me enlighten you, then."

Now that Avery was in a rage, she was not about to let him go that easily.

"Your family doctor said that you were about to die back then. Your mother was searching everywhere in a panic for a woman to have your child, but nobody was willing to marry you!"

Elliot was speechless.

"Even Chelsea, who was so blindly loyal to you, was nowhere to be found at the time," Avery continued to mock him. "You should be thanking me for not abandoning you back then!"

Elliot repented and said, "Thank you for not abandoning me back then, Avery."

His acknowledgement of his mistake made the fury in Avery die down by half.

"It's not that I didn't abandon you. Your bodyguards were the ones who were watching me like I was some kind of criminal. I didn't have a chance to escape at all."

Elliot was at a loss for words.

Chapter 983

Should Elliot be thanking his bodyguards? Once they were done arguing, the designer smiled and said, "It's fate that you ended up together, Miss Tate. No matter how much unhappiness you had to suffer through in the past, what's important is that your future will be filled with nothing but happiness."

Avery smiled at the designer and said, "I supposed. You're here to get my measurements, right? Go ahead, then! Do I need to take off my clothes?"

"Please take off your coat. It would be best if you're wearing something fitted underneath. The measurements would be more accurate that way."

"Oh, I'll go to the room and change, then."

Avery walked toward her room.

Layla quietly snuck over to Elliot's side, then asked curiously, "What's a vegetative state, Daddy? I know what vegetation is. That's stuff like flowers and trees, right?"

Elliot nodded and said, "That's right. Flowers and trees are vegetation..."

"Oh."

Layla excitedly cut him off mid-sentence and shared her own explanation, "Someone in a vegetative state is someone who sprouts and blooms like a flower."

Elliot was taken aback by his daughter's remarks.

"It's not like that, Layla."

Mrs. Cooper walked over laughing.

"Someone in a vegetative state is someone who can't move, just like vegetation, but they're still alive. It's a very serious illness."

Layla was shocked.

"Did Daddy used to have such a serious illness? "

"That's right. It's a miracle that your father woke up," said Mrs. Cooper.

In the children's room at 9 p.m. that night, Layla was tossing and turning in bed.

She picked up her pillow and crawled into Hayden's bed.

The siblings had been sleeping in separate beds since they turned six, but they still shared a room.

Sometimes, when there was a thunderstorm outside, Layla would be afraid and sleep in Hayden's bed.

"Daddy used to be in a vegetative state, Hayden."

Then, Layla put on a bragging tone and asked, 'Do you know what it means to be in a vegetative state?'

"You don't have to tell me. I don't care," said Hayden.

"Oh...Daddy used to bloom like a flower even grew fruit. That's what a vegetative state means."

Since Hayden did not care, Layla spouted nonsense with a serious expression on her face.

Hayden turned on the lights in the room and said, "There's nothing funny about that joke, Layla. Go back to your bed."

"I'm not done yet! Daddy said that I can't date before I turn eighteen and I can't get married before I turn twenty five. Do you think I should be angry about that?" Layla asked, confused.

Hayden considered her question seriously.

Moments later, he realized that he shared the same opinion with Elliot.

"The point is that you can't get married too early. Otherwise, you'd end up getting tricked and cheated."

He picked Layla off the bed, then said, "Go sleep in your own bed or I'm moving to the next room."

Layla hugged her pillow and unhappily went back to her own bed.

Hayden turned the lights off, and the room fell into darkness once again.

The next day, Ben arrived in Rosacus City and handed Elliot and Avery's wedding invitation to Chelsea.

When Chelsea opened the invitation and saw their names and wedding date, her expression did not waver, but her fingers turned pale.

"Why are they inviting me? Aren't they worried that I'd scare the other guests off with my face?" she said as she mocked herself, then tossed the invitation onto the table.

"Were you the one behind what happened at Villa de Sierra, Chelsea?" Ben asked straightforwardly.

"No," Chelsea answered without hesitation.

"Give me your phone. I'm taking it back to Elliot."

Ben reached his hand out to her.

"He won't touch you if it really wasn't you. However, if he finds out that you were behind it... He won't let you live."

Chapter 984

Chelsea glared at Ben's outreached hand and refused coldly, "I'm not giving it to you."

Ben's brows furrowed.

"So were you really behind it?!"

"I was not! Why won't you believe me?"

Chelsea angrily walked over to her desk and took a seat.

"Was what you just said to me Elliot's original words, Ben?"

Ben placed his hands on the desk.

"Do you think I came here of my own free will? Of course, he was the one who sent me here! I wasn't even in Aryadelle before this. I only found out about what happened yesterday."

"I see. I heard about what happened at Villa de Sierra. Nothing happened at all."

Chelsea smirked mockingly, then asked, "Since nothing happened, why is he suspicious of me and won't let this go?"

Ben guessed the truth from her nervous and fearful tone.

Elliot was right.

Chelsea was twisted after her disfigurement. She used to love Elliot more than anything.

If anyone wanted to hurt him, she would be the first one to go head-to-head with whoever it was.

Now, however, she wanted him dead.

Not only did she want him dead, but she was also acting on it.

Her plan failed in the end and did not cause any harm, but if she was kept alive, she would definitely come up with another plan in the future.

"Stop lying, Chelsea, and stop doing such horrifying things."

Ben frowned as he was in agony.

"We have to pay for our mistakes. Your life is a life. Other people's lives are lives, too."

"I won't admit to it, Ben...If I don't admit to it, then what can you do? Are you just going to go ahead and incriminate me?"

Tears began to well up in Chelsea's eyes.

"Did you forget that you once attended a banquet the Goldsteins held? Elliot remembers. He wouldn't have sent me here if he wasn't sure!"

Ben had utterly lost hope in her.

Chelsea's body began to tremble slightly as tears streamed down her face.

"I'm sick..."

She aggressively pulled her desk drawer open and pulled out several bottles of pills.

"These are all the pills I'm on right now...I've got both psychological and mental issues...I can't control myself...Ben! Please help me!"

The pill bottles she took out were not new, unopened bottles. It was clear that she was indeed taking those pills. It was just as Ben had expected.

Chelsea would not want to kill Elliot if there was not something psychologically wrong with her.

"There's no use, Chelsea," Ben said with furrowed brows.

"We already knew that you were sick. Even so, he still won't let you live. What if your sickness acts up in the future and you try to kill someone again?"

Then, he pulled out a white pill from his pocket.

"I don't want you to die a painful death, so I brought this drug with me. Once you take it, you'll fall asleep right away. After that, you'll die in the next ten minutes."

After Ben calmly finished what he said, Chelsea was completely stunned.

"If you don't do as I say this time, you'll definitely die a much more painful death, Chelsea! Apart from me, nobody else will feel sorry for you!"

Ben placed the white pill in front of her, then roared, "Take it! I'll make sure you'll be buried well!"

As Chelsea stared at the pill in front of her, her tears quickly came to a halt.

In the end, there was no escape.

Her death was imminent.

Even if she did not take this pill today, Elliot would come and kill her himself not long after.

If that's the case, then the only thing she could do was accept her fate.

She picked up the pill, hesitated for a few seconds, then put it in her pocket.

"I'll take it later, Ben. I'd like to talk about old times with you before I die."

Chelsea walked around from behind her desk, then held Ben's hand and said, "I wouldn't have fallen this far if I had married you back then, Ben."

Ben could not bear to see her disfigured face.

"The past is the past. No drug can cure one's regrets. You won't feel any pain after you take the pill I gave you. I found it because I know you're afraid of pain. Be a better person in your next life, Chelsea!"

Chelsea nodded, then wrapped her arms around him.

"Hold me, Ben! Since I was disfigured, nobody ever hugged me again. I've been so lonely it hurts!"

Chapter 985

As Ben heard the hurt in Chelsea's voice, he gave in and held her in his arms.

"I know you've been hurting. You used to be a mighty goddess. You've never had to suffer like this before."

Chelsea's tears rolled down her cheeks.

It was only now that she realized that Ben was the man who loved her most in the world.

However, before she died, she wanted to hurt him one last time.

"I'll marry you in the next life, Ben... Whether you feel like it or not, you have to say yes to me now. I'm about to die, after all. Please fulfill my final wish."

"Alright. I'll marry you in the next life."

Back in Avonsville, Tammy called Avery to tell her that she had just met with her psychiatrist.

After Avery asked Tammy where she was, she immediately rushed over to see her.

The two sat in a restaurant for lunch.

"Why isn't Jun eating with us? Does he feel uncomfortable that I'm around?" Avery asked.

"What's there for him to feel uncomfortable about? Should he be here and third-wheel our conversation? I'm the one who told him not to bother us."

Avery smiled and asked, "How do you feel after seeing the psychiatrist?"

"It's complicated." Tammy sighed.

"I know everyone has their own share of painful experiences. It's rare for someone to go through life living on this earth with no troubles."

"Would you like to see a different psychiatrist, then?"

Avery had a feeling that Tammy's mood had taken a turn for the worse.

Tammy shook her head and said, "This one's pretty good. She told me not to run away from the pain, but to face it and conquer it."

"It's a process," Avery said.

"She told me something interesting," Tammy said, suddenly laughing.

"She said Elliot went to see her once, but never showed up again after just one appointment."

"Why would she tell you that? Isn't that doctor-patient confidentiality?" Avery asked in shock.

Tammy shook her head.

"She didn't reveal anything about Elliot's treatment. She just said that he'd seen her once, then never met her again. She asked her friend to look into it and found out that Elliot was speaking ill of her behind her back."

"What did Elliot say about her?" Avery asked nosily.

"Elliot complained to his friends and said that he was better off talking to a stray dog than a psychiatrist."

Avery was speechless.

"She only told me about this because she knows about my relationship with the two of you. I can't believe that someone as powerful as Elliot Foster would go and see a psychiatrist," Tammy exclaimed.

"He's suffered through difficult times, too," Avery said.

"It'll all pass, Tammy."

"I know."

That night, Elliot realized that he could not contact Ben.

Ben did not answer the phone when Elliot called him once during the day.

Elliot thought that Ben would return his call once he was available, but even when it was already dark outside, Ben had yet to return Elliot's call.

Elliot had an ominous premonition.

Chelsea's psyche was now distorted and Ben had gone to see her by himself.

Could Chelsea have done something to hurt him? At this thought, Elliot's brows furrowed and he dialed Ben's number once again.

Chapter 986

Once the call was made, it went through, but there was no answer.

If Ben saw that Elliot was calling, he would definitely pick up the phone.

Elliot was even more certain now that Ben was in trouble! Just as he was about to leave and look for Ben, he received a text from him.

[I can't talk right now, Elliot.]

After Elliot saw the text, he immediately sent a reply: [What's the situation right now? Are you in danger?]

Ben: [I'm not in danger. Give me a little more time. I'll be back tomorrow.]

Elliot read the text message, pondered for a moment, then responded:

[Alright.] Over at the Starry River Villa, Layla brought over her finished homework for Avery to check.

"Why hasn't Daddy come by today, Mommy?" Layla asked softly.

"Do you want him to come over?"

Avery asked with a smile as she flipped through her daughter's homework.

Layla sighed and said, "Hayden doesn't like him. I'd be betraying him if I said I liked Daddy."

"How could you think that, Layla?" Avery turned to her.

"Whatever is going on between Hayden and your father is between them. You can express it freely if you like your father, just don't do it in front of your brother. That way, Hayden won't be upset, and you won't have to keep your feelings for your father hidden."

A sweet smile appeared on Layla's face.

"You're so smart, Mommy! I'm your daughter, but why am I not as smart as you?"

"Who said you're not smart? You're much smarter than I am. I wasn't as smart as you when I was your age!"

"I love you so much, Mommy! I don't want to get married when I grow up! I want to be with you forever."

"Did what your father said yesterday affect you? You're still young, Layla. It's not the time to think about marriage yet. All you have to do now is be happy and stay healthy. We'll talk about the future later."

Avery stroked Layla's head.

"Your writing is getting better and better. I commend you."

"Hayden said I write well, too. He said he'll buy me a present as a reward once he gets his prize money."

Layla's face was filled with anticipation.

"I already know what I'm going to ask for."

"Prize money?"

Avery was stunned for a moment.

"Did your brother join some kind of competition at school? Why didn't I hear about it?"

"Not right now! Hayden said it's in two months. I don't know what competition it is, but he said he'll definitely win the prize money."

At this point, an expression of deep admiration appeared on Layla's face,

"Hayden's amazing. I want to marry someone like him when I grow up."

Avery gave her a light tap on the head, then said, "Didn't you just say that you wanted to be with me forever? Have you changed your mind already?"

Layla burst into laughter.

Robert was awakened by the noise.

Hearing their laughter, he let out a silly chuckle as well.

"Robert's awake!"

When Layla heard Robert, she immediately picked him up from the crib.

"I want to take Robert out to play, Mommy!"

"Let me change his diaper first."

Avery put down Layla's homework planned to take Robert over.

However, Layla placed Robert on the couch, then volunteered and said, "I'll change his diaper! Something as simple as that is nothing to me!"

After Layla expertly changed Robert's diaper, she placed him into his stroller and pushed him out of the house.

The bodyguard grabbed the baby's travel bag and followed behind the siblings.

A moment later, Layla stopped in her tracks.

There was a man who was walking in their direction with a large dog on a leash.

The dog had its black eyes fixed on Robert.

"Woof! Woof! Woof!"

The dog suddenly began to bark.

In a panic, Layla planned on leaving with Robert.

At that moment, Robert let out an adorably fierce cry from the stroller, "Woof! Woof!"

Layla pushed the stroller and rushed back home.

"Mommy! Robert spoke!" Layla told Avery the news in surprise.

"Robert spoke just now!"

Chapter 987

Avery had just finished checking Layla's homework.

"Really? What did he say?" Avery asked in shock.

The bodyguard next to them could not help but chuckle in secret.

"He said 'Woof! Woof!' and he said it really loudly! Even Uncle Bodyguard heard it!"

Avery turned to the bodyguard, who held back his laughter and said, "Layla's telling the truth. Robert really did pick a fight with a dog! He was very fierce and even chased the dog away."

Avery was at a loss for words.

Could that be considered talking? It sounded more like he was learning how to bark! Mrs. Cooper was teaching Robert to say "Mommy" and "Daddy" every day, but he never once said those words.

"Robert! Say it again for Mommy!"

Layla encouraged Robert and said, "Just like this. Woof! Woof!"

It was as if Robert felt like he had been made fun of.

At this moment, he had a stuck-up expression on his face.

His brows were furrowed and his lips did not move at all.

"Woof! Woof!" cried Layla.

Robert was completely unresponsive.

Avery felt slightly dizzy from the noise, so she said, 'Hayden will be home soon, Layla.'

Layla immediately covered her lips.

Hayden would definitely feel annoyed if he heard her barking like a dog.

At 9 p.m. that night, Avery walked out of the bathroom after taking a shower and drying her hair.

When her phone began to ring on the bed, she immediately walked over and answered the call.

"Why are you just answering the phone now, Avery?"

This was Elliot's third time calling.

"I was in the shower."

Avery sat down by the bed.

"Layla said she missed you when you didn't come over today. Are you happy?"

Elliot let out a light chuckle.

"What about Hayden?"

"Hayden's been coming home a little later recently. He's joining a competition in June. It seems like he's under a lot of pressure, but he seems pretty confident in himself. He's already thinking about using the prize money to buy Layla a present."

Then, Avery expressed her concern and said, "He'd be very disappointed if he doesn't win."

"Don't worry. I know about it,"

Elliot said, giving her a peace of mind.

"How about I come over to eat tomorrow?"

"Sure. You won't bump into Hayden, anyway."

Then, Avery teased, "I have a feeling you're more afraid of your son now."

"It'd be tough for you Layla to get caught in between if my relationship with Hayden continues to worsen."

"That's true." Avery lay back in bed.

"By the way, how's the progress on what happened at Villa de Sierra? I had a nightmare last night. Would whoever was behind it come up with another plan since they failed in Mount Sierra? I'm worried about you."

"This matter will be resolved soon." Elliot gave her a certain answer.

"You don't have to worry about it." Ben said he would be back by tomorrow.

This meant that Chelsea would be dead by then.

"Oh, it sounds like you already know who's behind it. Who was it? Do I know them?" Avery asked out of curiosity.

Elliot hesitated for a moment, then revealed Chelsea's name.

Avery instantly fell silent.

"This time, her death is certain," Elliot promised.

At 8 a.m. the next morning, Elliot received a text message from Ben.

[Chelsea Tierney is dead. I plan on heading back after she's buried. I'll be pretty busy today. I'll probably be back tomorrow.]

Elliot felt relieved when he read the words "Chelsea Tierney is dead".

However, he vaguely felt like something was off.

Ben was not fond of sending text messages.

When they did not meet face-to-face, they would always talk on the phone.

However, it's been an entire day since Ben answered Elliot's call or gave him a call.

Chapter 988

After a moment's consideration, Elliot decided to head to Rosacus City to check things out for himself.

If Chelsea truly was dead, then he and Ben can bury her together.

The only worry was that Chelsea was still alive and Ben was the one who was in trouble.

At ten in the morning, the vice president of Sterling Group knocked on Chad's office door, then walked in and asked, "Is Mr.Foster not coming in today?

Why haven't I been able to contact Mr.Schaffer since yesterday?"

"Mr.Foster is busy, so he won't be in the office today.As for Mr.Schaffer, I can't contact him either.I don't know what's going on with him."

"Oh, could Mr.Schaffer be in some kind of trouble? This has never happened before," said the vice president worriedly.

"Is Mr.Foster going to look for Mr.Schaffer?"

"Probably! He didn't say for sure."

Chad adjusted his glasses, then said, Don't worry.There's shouldn't be a problem.Mr.Foster would tell us if something really happened."

The vice president nodded, then suddenly thought of something and said,

"That Sierra University that Mr.Foster went to for the training course a few days ago just announced its permanent closure today."

"Oh? I haven't heard about it yet.Where did you hear the news from?" Chad asked.

"A friend of mine from Mount Sierra told me about it."

Then, the vice president lowered his voice and said, "He said that Roger Goldstein offended everyone who went for the training course a few days ago. Nothing dangerous happened at the time, but everyone saw Goldstein's true colors and cut ties with him. Even if he didn't shut down the course, I doubt anyone would ever sign up for it again."

"That's true. Goldstein must have been out of his mind to have been used as someone's puppet like that."

"Do you know who was inciting him?" asked the vice president.

Chad shook his head and said, "I don't know."

"That person sure has guts. I can't figure out who it was at all! Let me know if you find out," the vice president said, then strode out of the room.

Once the vice president left, a lightbulb lit up in Chad's head.

Could Ben's radio silence have something to do with whoever was behind the Mount Sierra fiasco? Could that person be...

Chelsea Tierney? Chad's entire body broke into goosebumps when he thought of the possibility.

After her disfigurement, it was as if Chelsea had turned into a completely different person.

If she truly was behind the plan to annihilate Villa de Sierra, then Chad would not find it strange at all.

It was as if she was the only person who could come up with such an insane idea.

Avonsville Elementary was the top private elementary school in the city.

It was an excellent school in every aspect, from the teaching staff to the rate of further education among the students through the years.

Avery did not hesitate in her choice to send Layla here when she was looking at elementary schools, because it was the same school that she wanted to go to when she was younger.

Once morning classes were over, the students made their way to the cafeteria in an orderly manner.

Layla her classmates got their lunch trays and took their seats at the dining tables.

A teacher brought over a few containers of fruit.

"We have fresh cherries today. Everyone gets a share."

The teacher placed the container with the most cherries in front of Layla.

Once the teacher walked away, the little girl who was sitting next to Layla looked enviously at the cherries in front of her.

"You got more cherries than we did, Layla! The teacher's playing favorites!"

Layla handed her cherries over to the little girl and said, "I don't really like cherries. You can have them!"

Excitement washed over the little girl's face as she said, "You're the best, Layla! Cherries are my favorite! Thank you!"

"You're welcome! Eat them if you like them!"

Moments later, Layla finished her lunch, then got up and prepared to return to the classroom.

Just as she had taken a few steps away, someone suddenly screamed, "Kiki! What's wrong, Kiki?! Why did you fall asleep?! You haven't finished your food yet!"

"Kiki! Wake up!"

The moment Layla heard the cries of shock, she immediately returned to her earlier seat.

The girl named Kiki was the one who was sitting next to her just now.

She was focusing on eating her food earlier and did not notice Kiki's condition.

How did Kiki suddenly fall asleep?

"Kiki?"

Layla reached out and lightly tapped Kiki, then asked in confusion, "Kiki!

What's wrong, Kiki?"

The teacher hurried over at that moment.

"Kiki's asleep! She won't wake up! Why is she sleeping so deeply? " wondered one of the students.

The teacher saw that Kiki had not touched any of her food, but there were two containers in front of her.

One of the containers was empty, while the other still had three cherries in it.

The teacher patted Kiki's shoulder, then called out loudly, "Kiki! Wake up! This is the cafeteria! Let's go to the rest area to rest!"

"Is Kiki dead? She's not moving at all! It's so scary!"

One of the more timid students burst into tears.

The dead people I saw on TV were just like this. They won't wake up no matter how much you try to wake them..."

The student's words instantly caused everyone in the cafeteria to gather around.

The teacher's cheeks flushed in fear.

She placed her finger under Kiki's nose and checked her breathing.

Five seconds later, all the color drained from the teacher's face.

"Out of the way! Everyone get out of the way right now! A student's in trouble!

Out of the way!"

The teacher picked Kiki up and rushed out of the cafeteria.

Layla was standing right next to Kiki just now, so she clearly saw the change in the teacher's expression after she checked Kiki's breathing.

Kiki was not breathing! Kiki was dead! How did Kiki die? Was death not a painful experience? Kiki was happily eating cherries just moments ago...

The entire cafeteria broke into an uproar! The children sobbed as the teachers quickly gathered and led the students out of the cafeteria.

Then, they called each student's parents to ask them to take the children home.

Avery was confused when she received the teacher's call because it should be lunchtime at school right now.

She answered the call, but before she could say a word, the teacher said frantically, "Please stop by the school right away, Miss Tate. Something happened to one of the students today GGk*AxLK we need all the parents to take their children home and calm them down. I will explain things more clearly in the class group text chain. Please keep an eye out for my message."

Avery could already hear the sound of children sobbing from the other end of the line.

It was not the sound of Layla crying, but he could imagine that something serious must have happened. She did not dare delay things further. She immediately rushed out of the office and drove toward the school.

While she was waiting at a stop light, she called Elliot.

Her call was answered very quickly.

"Something happened in Layla's class Elliot," she said.

"I don't know what happened yet, but the teachers are asking the parents to take the kids home right now."

"I'm not in Avonsville. You go ahead and pick Layla up, or I could get the bodyguard to do it."

"I'm already on my way there."

Then, Avery wondered out loud and asked, "Where are you? You didn't tell me you were leaving the city."

"I'm in Rosacus City." Elliot could not hide the truth from her.

"Ben's in a coma. I'm at the hospital right now waiting for him to wake up."

"Did you two go to look for Chelsea? How did Ben fall into a coma? "

"Chelsea abducted him yesterday. He was stuck in her office for over twentyfour hours and fell into a coma."

"What about Chelsea?!"

"Her whereabouts are unknown right now. I don't know where she's run off to," Elliot said.

"I've already sent people after her. Avery's back broke into a cold sweat and suspicion took over."

What happened at Layla's school...Have something to do with Chelsea?!"

Chapter 990

Elliot felt his chest tighten, then roared, "Avery! Stay right where you are! I'll send the bodyguards to go get you and the kids!"

If Avery had not brought it up, Elliot would never have expected that Chelsea could have possibly escaped to Avonsville.

Sometimes, the most dangerous places could end up being the safest refuge.

Moreover, Chelsea might not be thinking about going into hiding right now, but to drag whoever she could down with her before she dies! Elliot was still unclear about what happened at Layla's school, but it must have been something serious for the teachers to ask the parents to take the children home! Avery's heart raced wildly after hearing his warning.

The stop light in front of her turned green, and she was in a rush to pick Layla up from school, so she could not listen to Elliot.

"I should be fine.If Chelsea really does come looking for me, she might not be able to harm me."

Avery had already made up her mind.

"I'm about to reach Layla's school.I'll pick her up first."

Elliot was also worried about Layla, so he understood her anxiety.

"Be careful."

"I will."

Avery hung up the phone, then stepped down on the gas pedal and sped toward her destination.

There were several patrol cars and an ambulance outside of Avonsville Elementary.

Avery parked the car by the street, then quickly got out and rushed toward the school gates.

"I heard a child died...A first- grader...A girl..."

"How did she die? Was she sick or did something happen?"

"I don't know! Let's wait for the school to let us know! I'm just worried my kid's too traumatized to come back to school now.It's terrifying!"

"I heard that the kid who died was from Class C.Are any of you parents of students from Class C? Do any of you have insider information?"

"My kid isn't from Class C, but they're in Class B next door.

It's so unlucky that all the other classrooms need to stop classes because of this! We don't think when classes will resume yet!"

"What's so unlucky about classes being canceled? The dead kid's family are the unlucky ones!"

Avery's entire body turned cold and rigid after she heard the discussions going on around her.

Layla was a first-grader in Class C.

The little girl who died was possibly Layla's playmate.

Even if she was not, she was a classmate that she saw every day.

This must be a massive blow to Layla! When the teacher handed Layla over to Avery, she explained the situation to her, "The little girl who died today was called Kiki, Miss Tate. Layla was having lunch with her today. Something happened to Kiki before she finished her food. Our initial suspicions are food poisoning. Kiki's health report was normal when she first enrolled in the school and she had no severe illnesses. You should take Layla to the hospital for a checkup right now to see if there are any issues with her health."

Avery nodded and said, "Alright. I'll take her to the hospital now."

Then, she carried Layla, whose eyes were red and swollen from tears, out of the school.

Layla normally had never-ending stories to tell Avery whenever she saw her, but Layla did not say a word even now that she was sitting in the child safety seat in the car.

She did not even call Avery "Mommy" when she saw her.

Avery sat down next to her daughter, then asked softly, "Tell me, Layla. Are you not feeling well anywhere?"

Layla froze for a moment, then shook her head.

"I know you suffered a great shock. I have, too. Once the school and hospital finish their investigation, they'll let us know exactly why Kiki left us," Avery said patiently as she held her daughter's cold hand.

Layla's eyes filled with tears, which rolled down her cheeks as she said, "Kiki died from eating cherries. She ate my cherries... The cherries must have been poisoned!"

Chapter 991

Avery froze in horror!

"If I ate those cherries, I'd definitely be dead, too!"

Layla burst into gut wrenching sobs.

Avery immediately picked Layla out of the child safety seat and held her in her arms.

"Don't cry sweetie. You're safe now! You'll always be safe! We won't eat at school again! I'll get the driver to send you food every day!"

Layla sobbed breathlessly and said, "Kiki was my friend, Mommy. She died right next to me... I'm scared... I'm so scared!"

Avery's eyes welled up as her emotions slowly crumbled and she burst into tears, too.

According to Layla, if Kiki died from eating Layla's cherries, then Layla was the target all along! If Kiki had not eaten the cherries that were meant for Layla, then Layla would be the one who died today.

Over at Rosacus City, after a few hours on an IV drip, Ben slowly awakened.

He saw Elliot talking on the phone not too far away from him.

"How did a drug meant for euthanasia turn up in a school cafeteria?! How did it end up in my daughter's fruit bowl?! If you don't give me a reasonable explanation, then you can forget about your job as school principal!"

Elliot's fury had reached its limit! He had completely forgotten that he was in a patient's room.

"Elliot..."

Ben called out weakly after hearing about the euthanasia drug.

"What happened? Did something happen to Layla?"

When Elliot heard Ben's voice, he immediately hung up the phone.

He strode over to the bed, then gazed at Ben and said, "How are you feeling?"

Something happened at Layla's school, so I need to rush back. Do you want to come with me? Or do you want to rest here for now, and I'll get a bodyguard to take you home later?"

"What happened at Layla's school?"

Ben's instincts told him that things were not as simple as they seemed, so he sat up and said, "I heard you mention a euthanasia drug."

"Someone poisoned Layla's fruit earlier today. The drug that was used is usually used for euthanasia."

Elliot gritted his teeth.

"Chelsea escaped! I suspect she was behind this!"

Ben's face turned pale.

He yanked off the covers, then said, "There's no need for suspicion! It was definitely Chelsea! I was the one who gave her the drug! I wanted to grant her a painless death, but she ended up abducting me! She actually wanted to use the drug on Layla! I'm beyond furious!"

Elliot cursed under his breath.

"That vile b*tch! I'm going to kill her with my own!"

"I'm coming with you!"

Ben yanked out the needle in his hand and got out of bed in a hurry.

The two men very quickly emerged from the hospital and rushed back to Avonsville.

Soon after, Elliot's phone rang and he answered the call.

"Sir! Chelsea showed up in a red dress and is now dancing on the rooftop!

She's really immersed in it!"

Sterling Group's vice president's voice came through the phone.

"She's locked the door to the roof. We can't get up there!"

Elliot was silent.

Chelsea was dancing on the roof of his company's building? Elliot clenched his fists tightly, then roared, "Call the police! I'm on my way back right now!"

"Yes, Sir! She might be thinking of jumping off the roof! She's dancing dangerously close to the railing. It looks like she might fall at any second! It's terrifying!"

"There's nothing scary about her dying. What's terrifying is if she doesn't die!"

If there was a button that would instantly end Chelsea's life, Elliot would press it right now.

"Even so... It's bad luck for us if she purposely chose to kill herself at our building! She's doing this just to get back at you!"

The vice president did not want the company to suffer from negative press because of this.

Elliot's Adam's apple bobbed in his throat.

Chelsea was indeed doing this to get back at him.

Did she plan on turning into a ghost after she dies and haunt him forever?!

Chapter 992

A large crowd had gathered outside the Sterling Group building.

One could vaguely make out the red silhouette swaying up on the roof.

"I heard that the woman up there used to be the PR manager at Sterling

Group! She was by Elliot Foster's side for over a decade but never got anything out of him. She was so hurt that she decided to die right here! What a stupid woman!"

"Is she one who was disfigured not long ago?"

"That's right! She used to be gorgeous, but she got disfigured in a fire. What a shame! She could not win Elliot Foster's heart before she was disfigured. After her disfigurement, he would want her even less!"

"There are plenty of women that Elliot Foster rejected, but did any of them want to jump off of a roof like this one? There must be something wrong with her, right?"

"Who knows what goes on in the private lives of the wealthy? I just think she's really pitiful and feel sorry for her right now!"

"There's a saying that pitiful people have hateful traits. If I wanted to die, I definitely wouldn't do it at someone else's company building. Everyone in the building is still working right now! Does this woman not have morals at all?!"

As the crowd chattered away, the fire department rushed to the scene.

Once the fire truck stopped in front of the building, the firemen hurried out of the truck and prepared their rescue efforts.

Up on the roof, a savage grin appeared on Chelsea's face as she stared down at the crowd below.

"It's over...It's all over..." she mumbled.

Then, she leaped and jumped off the roof! Over at the hospital, Avery had taken Layla in for a medical checkup.

While they were waiting for the test results, Layla fell asleep in her mother's arms.

Avery sent a text message to Mike and asked him to meet her at the hospital.

Then, she glanced over at the large TV screen at the front of the lobby.

The screen was broadcasting the afternoon news.

"We have breaking news. An individual committed suicide by jumping off the roof of Sterling Tower this afternoon. The incident has caused traffic to back up in the city. Motorists are advised to take an alternate route. We would also like to remind everyone to value your lives..."

Along with the sound of the news anchor's voice, an image of Sterling Tower appeared on the screen.

The front of the building was surrounded by police tape.

On one side of the police tape were nosy onlookers, while there was a censored corpse on the other side.

Since Chelsea was wearing a red dress, all one could see was a red pile after the censorship.

It looked almost like an entire pool of blood.

Avery turned rigid as she felt a chill run through her entire body.

Who was it who died? Why did they choose to jump off of Sterling Tower?

Mike arrived at the hospital soon after took Layla over from Avery's arms.

Avery walked over to the counter to pick up Layla's test results.

When she saw that all of Layla's vitals were normal, Avery felt relieved.

"Chelsea Tierney is dead, Avery," Mike said softly.

"She jumped off of Elliot's office building."

"I saw the news."

Avery's emotions had already calmed down, but she was still furious at the mention of this.

"Good riddance! She tried to poison Layla. She was evil! How could she drag a child into the grievances between adults?!"

Mike gazed at Layla's sleeping face, then said, "It's a good thing Layla was lucky."

"Layla's classmate was poisoned to death, though. She was somebody's precious daughter, too!"

"Let's head home for now, Avery. There are too many people here," Mike said.

"Barely half the day has passed and a series of terrifying events have happened one after the other. Let's head home to prevent anything else from happening."

When they arrived back at the Starry River Villa, Elliot called. He had just returned to Avonsville.

"Layla's alright. She's asleep. Go settle things at your company," Avery said.

"I'll come over to your place later, then."

Elliot hesitated for a few seconds, then said, "Spend the next few days at home with Layla, Avery."

"I will. This made a pretty huge impact on her. I'll have to wait until she get through this before I'll send her back to school."

"Thank you. This must be hard on you."

Chapter 993

As she listened to Elliot's deep voice, Avery's eyes suddenly began to well up. She did not say anything, but it was as if he could feel it.

"Do you feel like crying, Avery?" he asked hoarsely.

"I'll come see you now! The office isn't important."

Avery took a breath, then said, "I'm fine. I just feel awful thinking about how our daughter almost got poisoned to death. I can't imagine how painful it would be to lose her. I can't..."

"I know. I can't lose her either. She shouldn't eat at the school anymore after this."

"I know. Go and deal with your company. I'll take a nap with Layla.

"Alright. Call me if you need anything."

"Okay."

That evening, everyone showed up at the Starry River Villa to visit Layla.

Layla was sitting on the couch dressed in a pretty nightgown and holding her favorite doll in her arms.

The expression on her face was a gloominess way beyond her years. She was usually a bundle of joy. She would be warm and welcoming no matter who showed up at the house.

Now that she was sullen and silent, nobody knew how to comfort her.

"Why don't you all go ahead and start dinner? I'll wait for Hayden outside with Layla. I asked the bodyguard to pick Hayden up from school earlier today," Avery said to everyone.

Then, she took Layla's hand and walked outside.

Everyone else took their seats at the dining table.

"Has Chelsea Tierney's body been dealt with?" Tammy asked.

"Her mother claimed it," Chad answered.

"Oh, I thought she didn't have any family left!"

Then, Tammy asked again, "What happens to their family business now? I doubt her mother knows how to run a business, right?"

Chad glanced over at Elliot, then answered, "Mr. Foster will absorb Trust Capital. From then on, Trust Capital will cease to exist."

"Ha ha! I knew she would get what she deserved! I knew she would die a horrible death! I was right on the mark!" Tammy exclaimed.

Jun grabbed one of Tammy's hands under the table, then said, "Let's not talk about her, Tammy. Layla's gone through enough today. Let's talk about something else!"

"Alright."

Hayden arrived home moments later.

After he heard about the day's events, he gave Layla a hug.

"I almost died, Hayden."

"You're not dead, Layla."

Hayden released her.

"Since you're still alive, don't cry anymore."

Layla's eyes were still slightly red swollen.

"I'm not crying anymore. I'm just scared."

"I'm here. Don't be scared."

Hayden took his sister's hand and led her into the living room.

"Daddy's here, Hayden," Layla warned.

"I know."

It would be weird if Elliot did not show up after what happened to Layla today.

"He said he'll stay here for the next few days to keep me company," Layla said softly.

"You won't be mad, would you?"

"Do you want him to keep you company?" Hayden asked.

Layla lowered her gaze and did not say a word.

"I won't be mad if you want him to keep you company," Hayden said as he compromised.

He would never have compromised if something so serious had not happened today.

Layla was just as important to him as his mother.

Five days later, a package arrived at the Starry River Villa.

Mrs.Cooper quickly brought the package into the house.

Elliot, who was sitting on the couch, asked, "What is it?"

"It's for Avery!" Mrs.Cooper checked the information on the package.

"Public and Judiciary Paternity Test Center..."

Chapter 994

When Avery walked out of the bedroom and heard what Mrs.Cooper said, her back broke into a cold sweat! The DNA test results for Elliot and Cole were out.

Avery had received a text message on her phone.She did not expect the test center to mail the test results to her house.

"Is that for me, Mrs.Cooper?"

She walked over nonchalantly and took the package out of Mrs.Cooper's hand.She could feel Mrs.Cooper and Elliot's curious eyes on her, because the package had come from a paternity test center.

Anybody would naturally wonder if she had gone to a paternity test center and taken a paternity test.

Elliot got up from the couch and walked over to Avery.

"I got this test center to carry out a genetic test on one of my patients.He's got a very strange illness...It's complicated.Besides, the patient's pretty much recovered now,"

Avery said, then looked at Elliot and reminded, "We're going to Kiki's funeral today.Why haven't you changed yet?"

Elliot lifted his wrist and checked his watch.

"Isn't the funeral at ten? It's only eight right now.It's still early."

"Oh, then you should continue to play with Robert! I'm going to help Layla change."

Avery walked toward the children's room with the package in her hands.

Layla had spent the past few days resting at home.

Avery and Elliot wanted to take her out to play, but she refused. She spent her days playing the piano, watching TV, and playing with her toys. She was much quieter than she used to be.

If she was a lively hummingbird before, then she was now a quiet little dragonfly.

Avery opened the door to the children's room, walked in, then shut the door behind her.

She pulled the documents out of the package, then quickly checked the test results.

Conclusion: According to the results of DNA analysis, it can be ruled out that uncle Sample A and nephew Sample B are related by blood.

Sample A was Elliot and Sample B was Cole.

Avery used the names Samples A and B in order not to reveal their identities.

After seeing the results, her body began to tremble uncontrollably.

She had prepared herself for the worst possible outcome, but she was still deeply affected by the results! Elliot was not a Foster.

It was no wonder that the photos of him in his childhood album looked different before the age of five.

It was because the child was switched out! The real Elliot Foster had the same illness as Shea.

The Fosters had claimed that Elliot's illness was cured by a miracle worker, but there was no such thing.

They simply traded him in for a healthy child! The real Elliot Foster...

Was very possibly...

Adrian White! Avery felt a strange familiarity the moment she first laid eyes on Adrian.

She had always thought that it was because she missed Shea and kept catching glimpses of her in Adrian.

She did not expect...

She took a deep breath, then decided that she would find a chance to test Adrian's DNA with Cole's! She hoped Adrian would be able to escape the White family.

However, she thought of how the Foster family was no longer basking in its previous glory.

Henry and Cole were not that much better off than Nathan White was.

Most importantly, there was a possibility that Elliot could not accept this reality.

"What are you looking at, Mommy?"

When Layla saw the heavy expression on Avery's face, she immediately walked over to her.

Avery folded up the test results, shoved it in her pocket, then quickly ripped up the package that the results came in.

Chapter 995

"Have you decided what to wear yet, Layla?" Avery asked instead of answering Layla's questions.

"People usually wear black clothes to a funeral. How about you wear this black dress with these black tights?" Layla nodded her head.

"You don't look happy, Mommy. What were you looking at just now?"

Avery forced a smile and said, "It's about work."

"You could ask Daddy to help you with that," Layla suggested.

" He's staying at our house now.Could he refuse to help you with a thing or two?"

"I'll handle it myself.Let's get you changed!"

Avery's heart was heavy, but she could not express it.

She changed the subject and asked, "Are you sure you want to go back to school next week, Layla?"

"I am.I want to be braver.If the other kids are going back to school, then I can, too."

"You're amazing, Layla.I'm so proud of you."

Avery crouched down and planted a kiss on her daughter's forehead.

In the living room, Elliot's phone was ringing.

When Robert heard the ringtone, his obsidian black eyes widened.

Elliot flashed a smile at his son, then answered the phone.

"Have you seen Chelsea's mother's interview, Sir?"

Chad's voice came through the phone.

"She was acting like a victim during the entire interview.She said you killed the entire Tierney family and gobbled up all of their property, and that you're trying to push her to her death.She begged for society's help in the interview and hoped that everyone would help her seek justice."

Elliot's face instantly darkened with rage! What a shameless old hag! Did she think that he did not dare touch her?

"Should we make the video disappear, or should we respond to it, Sir?" Chad asked.

"She looked really haggard in the video, but she said some very provoking things."

"All she wants is money, right? I won't give her a dime," Elliot said coldly.

"Did she think that a mere interview would be able to affect me? What a hopeless idiot!"

"That's right! Her behavior was pretty disgusting."

Chad sighed, then said, "It's just like how Chelsea just had to choose our building to jump off of. Both mother daughter sure have the same way of doing things."

When Avery emerged from the children's room with Layla, she heard Elliot talking on the phone.

Her eyes landed obsessively on him.

Elliot was ruthless, untamable, and noble! He was the one who raised the Foster family name to fame.

Nobody dared disrespect him when his name came up.

All of the honor and glory that he worked so hard to get for the Foster name now all seemed like a joke.

Surely, Rosalie knew the truth.

It must have been hard for her to raise Elliot as her own.

However, if Rosalie was not a good mother to Elliot, then he would not still miss her after her death.

When Elliot saw Avery and Layla from the corner of his eye, he immediately hung up the phone.

"Robert was already awake, so I didn't go outside to talk on the phone," he explained.

Avery gazed at his handsome face, then said, "Go get changed, Elliot. Let's head out once I'm changed. It's getting stuffy here at home."

"Alright."

Once Avery returned to her room, Elliot walked over to Layla.

"That's a pretty dress you're wearing, Layla. I've never seen you wear it before."

Elliot thought of ways to praise Layla every day to cheer her up.

This worked pretty well on children.

Layla felt a deeper fondness for him than she did before.

"Mommy's facing some trouble at work, Daddy. You should help her out!"

Layla murmured.

"She said she could handle it herself, but I can tell she's unhappy."

Elliot's brows furrowed slightly.

"Did your mother tell you she's facing trouble at work?" From what he knew, Tate Industries wasn't in any kind of trouble.

Layla nodded.

"Mommy was looking at a few pieces of paper in my room just now. Her whole face changed after she was done looking at them."

Chapter 996

"How many sheets of paper?" thought Elliot.

Elliot Foster thought for a while and asked, "Are those papers she the one she took out of the delivery bag?"

Layla nodded.

"I guess so. Otherwise, I've got no idea where she got them from. Mommy must be in big trouble."

The reason why Layla sounded so serious was because she was trying to get Elliot to help her mother. She could not bear to let her mother suffer alone.

Elliot Foster took his daughter's words to heart.

"Don't you worry. I will surely help her. After the funeral, I'll have a chat with her..” Layla said, “Don't let her know that I'm the one who told you this. She said she wanted to do things herself.”

Elliot Foster patted his daughter's head and chuckled.

“Your mother’s love for isn’t in vain.”

“Of course! I love mommy the most.”

“Hmm...I thought I heard you say you loved your brother the most the other day.”

Elliot was teasing her.

“Mommy and Hayden are both my favorites!” Layla responded without hesitation.

“What about me?”

Elliot wanted to know where he ranked in his daughter's heart.

Layla stared at his handsome and mature face.

After careful consideration, she replied, “You must be behind Robert.”

Elliot Foster was quite pleased with this answer.

“As long as I can rank ahead of your Uncle Mike, I'm satisfied.” Layla frowned.

“You are definitely behind Uncle Mike! Why do you think you are ahead?”

Uncle Mike is very good to me! He is miles better than you. He is better than you in everything, but you are my dad and he is not, and that is the only place where you are better.”

Elliot Foster was speechless.

In order to make what she said sound more convincing, Layla said to Robert who lay awake in his crib, “Little Robert, ain’t your sis right?”

Elliot Foster was frustrated.

Layla said, “Look, Robert nodded.”

Elliot Foster had seen everything clearly.

Robert had not nodded at all.

At the end of the day, he was not able to refute his daughter's claim.

If he did, she would get mad at him.

He knew that he had been overly impatient.

Layla had spent six years of their life together, and they certainly had a strong bond. It was not something that a father who had appeared from nowhere could replace.

"Let's ask this question again after being with Layla for six or seven years!"

Elliot thought.

Avery was in the master bedroom.

Avery kept the identification results safe in the cabinet.

Then she put on a black spring dress.

After coming out of the bedroom, she strode up to the father and daughter.

"What were you two talking about? You guys were so loud."

Elliot Foster was embarrassed. He did not want to be laughed at for revealing what they had said.

Layla said, "I asked Dad just now who his favorite woman is. He said that he only had one, and he said—"

Elliot Foster sighed helplessly, "Layla, didn't you promise me that you would not repeat what I said?"

Layla blinked her bright apricot eyes, "But I also promised Mommy that I will tell her everything!"

Avery stole a glance at Elliot proudly. Then she asked Layla, "How did your father answer that question?"

"Dad said his favorite woman was Mommy," Layla said.

Avery was taken aback for a moment.

Layla's eyes glittered.

"I asked him if he was talking about his mom or my mom. Mommy, guess what he answered!"

Elliot Foster smacked his forehead with the palm of his hand.

Avery glanced at him with a smile and then turned back to her daughter, "Is he talking about his mother?"

"No! No! No! He said it was my mom, and that's you! Hahaha!"

Layla's laughter filled the entire living room.

Chapter 997

This was the first time she had laughed so happily in the past few days.

At ten o'clock in the morning, Kiki's funeral was held at the funeral parlor.

After the wake, Kiki was sent for cremation.

Elliot held Layla in one hand and gave her a tissue with the other so that she could wipe her tears.

"Let's go home!" Avery said.

"Okay."

After coming out of the funeral parlor, they were ready to head to the parking lot.

At this moment, a shadowy figure emerged and grabbed the microphone.

"Mr. Foster, the annihilation of the Tierney family. That's your doing, isn't it?"

The bodyguard was quick to block off the reporter.

Elliot saw that his daughter was frightened and had planned to take her to the car.

However, Avery's feet were firmly planted in place.

Elliot Foster might not have cared what the outside world thinks of him, but she cared!

"Do you know how the girl who you had the memorial for died?"

Avery took the reporter's microphone and said loudly, "The girl's name was Kiki. She was only six and a half years old this year. Not even seven. She was my daughter's classmate. She was poisoned by Chelsea Tierney. Do you have children? Would you really want reporters to ask you questions at the memorial service of your dead child?"

The reporter was ashamed.

"Miss Tate, I have no intentions of asking you questions in an effort to clear up the Tierney name. I was only watching Mrs. Tierney's interview—"

"If you aren't clearing up the Tierney name, then how dare you ask if Elliot is the one who destroyed the Tierney family? Do you have any proof?"

Avery's questions were fast and to the point.

"I didn't watch Mrs. Tierney's interview, but since Mrs. Tierney is still alive, why are you saying that the Tierney family has been annihilated? Is Mrs. Tierney not a human being?"

The reporter had no answers to her questions.

"Instead of coming here and asking questions, you might as well spend your time investigating all the illegal and malicious activities that the Tierneys have racked up over the years!"

After making her point, she returned the microphone to the reporter.

Avery's cheeks were slightly red when she got into the car, but she was still extremely agitated.

Elliot uncapped a bottle of water handed it to her.

"Thank you for defending me just now."

"I wasn't defending you. I was only telling him the truth."

Avery took a sip, "I know you won't bother with these reporters, but this is a funeral. How dare these people come here and make a scene?"

"They wanted a headline," said Elliot.

"No matter what, their headlines have to be rooted in facts."

"Don't be mad. Let's get home."

"Alright."

After returning home and having lunch, Elliot led Avery back to her room.

"Why are you pulling me into the room? We just got back!" said Avery as her heart thundered in her chest.

She saw him shutting the door behind them.

"What was in the parcel?" Elliot wanted to help her solve her problems.

She stared at him blankly. She could not figure out his motivation for asking her this question.

"Didn't I tell you this morning?"

"Layla said that you were unhappy after going through the documents inside."

Elliot said frankly, "She was very worried about you, so she told me."

Avery was moved by her daughter, but Layla's inability to keep a secret troubled her slightly.

Avery took a deep breath and sat down on the bed.

"I did a DNA test for a patient of mine. The results show that his genes are rather unusual. He has a strand of DNA that matches that of an extinct species of gorilla..."

Avery's discovery fascinated Elliot.

"Are you now going to accept that you are not who you think you are?"

Avery could tell that he was shocked by her discovery.

"For example, you are not actually the master of the Foster family—"

"Are you trying to tell me that you think I'm an extinct species of gorilla?" he asked rhetorically.

"I didn't say you were a gorilla, I meant—"

"I know what you mean. Humans actually have a common ancestor. This is a fact that scientists have long discovered," he said.

Her temples throbbed.

"Of course, I'm not going to blindly accept that I'm not who I think I am," he said.

He paused for a moment, "I'm also not going to accept that I'm a gorilla."

Chapter 998

She did not expect that answer. She had thought that he had not cared about his identity.

His answer was unequivocal and certainly firm. He could not accept that he was not the real Elliot Foster! She would keep it a secret for him.

"Elliot, I was only joking." She smiled to reestablish the easy-going atmosphere.

"I think your joke is quite interesting," he said, humoring her.

"Let me explain why I won't accept your theory."

Since he wanted to delve into the topic, she was all ears.

"Everything I have is everything that I have built. I did it brick by brick. My career, wealth, friends, you, and the children. Everything. If this isn't me, then it will not change anything. I will just cease caring about this identity of mine, but if I'm not who I am, then I would have lost everything a long time ago. Whether it is a partial or complete loss, I would have still lost, and I haven't lost anything."

Avery nodded after listening to him.

"Indeed. You have it all well thought out," she said, but I have a different way of seeing things."

"Go for it."

"From what I have seen, your personality has far surpassed your public identity— whether this identity is that of the head of the Fosters or your identity as the president of the Sterling Group. I believe that even without these identities, you will be able to regain everything you have lost through your drive," she said firmly.

"Furthermore, no matter who you are, you won't lose me and the children."

The first half of her speech was meant to flatter him, and the second half of her speech was a confession. He was in good humor when he heard it.

"It's your turn.," he smiled, "What if you weren't who you are now?"

"I don't have as illustrious a career as you, and I don't make as much money. Furthermore, my children won't leave me because of who I am. So, even if I wasn't who I am now, nothing really changes," she shrugged.

He nodded.

"Then if nothing changes. Not you, me, or our relationship. Then on the first of June, we will get married, we will never be separated ever again."

She looked at the sincerity flowing from his eyes and nodded with a smile. She said in her heart, "Elliot Foster, even if you weren't the real Elliot Foster, I will always love you."

She loved him as a person. She loved neither his name nor his public persona.

The weekend went by in a flash.

On Monday, Avery and Elliot took Layla to school.

After seeing Layla take her seat in the class, Avery and Elliot left.

"Are you going to the company?" Avery asked.

"What about you?"

"I'll be at the beauty salon with Tammy at noon." Avery blushed.

"The wedding will be in a month, and she said we have to keep our skin all fair and pretty."

Elliot said, "Have you noticed that Tammy has become much more cheerful after Chelsea's death?"

Avery responded, "If Wanda Tate weren't around, I would be more cheerful as well."

Elliot nodded in agreement.

"I did send someone to keep an eye on her. She has gone into hiding abroad. She won't dare return."

Avery said, "Then let her be a tortoise in its shell for the rest of her life!"

Elliot asked, "Which beauty salon have you made an appointment with? Let me take you there."

Avery shook his head.

"It's fine, it's still early. You can drop me off at the company."

Chapter 999

"Okay."

Elliot Foster sent Avery to the Tate Industries' offices. They arrived at a time when most employees were arriving at work.

When the employees saw them, they gathered around to give their greetings.

"Good morning, Ma'am! Good morning, Sir!"

"How many points do you get for calling him, Sir? He is your boss's fiancé now. Just call him Elliot or Uncle Foster."

Mike stepped out from the crowd.

Avery glared at him.

"You are early today?"

"Is it wrong to come early?" Mike asked, glancing at Elliot again.

"Is Mr.Foster's wedding ready? There's only one month left!"

At the mention of the wedding, Elliot felt anxiety increase the beating of his heart.

For the past week, he had been with Layla at Starry River Villa.So he had no clue how the wedding arrangements had been progressing.

"Dear, I'll make a move," he said.

After Elliot Foster left, Avery walked up to Mike and whispered, "I have something to tell you."

"What's the matter? You make it sound so mysterious."

"I want you to help me find out which area my patient lives in now."

Avery said, "I have his number.Can you find his location through his number?"

The two entered the elevator.

There were other employees in the elevator so they fell silent.

After a while, the two got out of the elevator and walked toward Avery's office.

"What are you trying to find out about your patient? Is he in Aryadelle?" said Mike.

"Avery, in a month's time, you will be married.Don't you think you should be focusing on yourself during this time? Knowing Elliot, he won't like you getting involved in your patients' lives."

"I talked to him about this issue.He supports me."

Avery looked proud.

"Elliot is not as petty as you think!"

"Tsk tsk! I seem to have gotten a whiff of something— the sour smell of love!"

Mike walked in front of her, pushed open the door of her office, and walked.

"Can't you contact your patient's family? "

"They didn't want to talk to me.They think I'm annoying," Avery said truthfully.

"My patient called me said that his family treated him badly. He asked me for help.I can't just sit here and do nothing."

"That serious?" Mike frowned.

"You send me your patient's number, and I'll try later to see if I can find where he lives."

"Cool.Keep this matter a secret.Don't tell anyone," she said.

"Don't even tell Chad.This is not something you should be gossiping about."

"Oh, why are you so serious? I won't say a thing." Mike looked at her.

"Avery, sometimes I really don't like when you do these things.You have too much love.You're good to everyone, like the central air conditioning unit."

Avery asked, "You feel uncomfortable if you don't run your mouth for a day, right?"

"I haven't spoken to you for several days, have I?" Mike teased.

"Lately, you and Elliot have been sticking together like glue.Dol even exist? By the way, Layla went back to school today.I suppose that Elliot should go back to his house now?" Avery raised her eyebrows.

"You said he was my fiancé.Why do you think he will go? My house IS his house!"

"Tsk tsk!" Mike was hurt.

"Looks like I should pick an auspicious day to move out."

Avery said, "Help me find out the location of my patient first.Don't worry about moving."

Mike gasped.

"Oh, you remembered that I still have value, didn't you?"

"Get to work. Let me know as soon as there is a result."

Avery pushed him out.

It was three in the afternoon by the time Avery got back from the beauty salon.

Not long after she sat down in her office chair, Mike pushed the door and came in.

Mike handed her a drawing.

Then he stared at her radiant face.

"Why didn't you take Elliot to the beauty salon? He's so much older than you and yet he doesn't feel old. So why should you think you're all rough?"

Chapter 1000

Avery took the blueprint and glanced at him. She replied, "Who said that my beauty is for Elliot? Can't I be beautiful for myself? Can't I be beautiful for you?"

Mike snorted.

"This patient of yours lives very close to Elliot! What a coincidence!"

The drawings that Mike gave her were maps he drew.

The red dot in the middle of the map was Elliot's villa. To the southeast, there was another red dot.

This represented the approximate direction of the phone signal.

"There is no way to get a more accurate position. I only managed to get this one.," Mike said.

"Didn't you say that Elliot supports you? If you ask Elliot to send his men to search the nearby houses, you will find your patient for sure."

Avery put away the drawings and shook his head.

"He is busy with the wedding, I'll find it myself!" "How do you plan on doing so? Let the bodyguards find it."

Mike was afraid that something bad might happen to her.

"Just stay put and count down the days to you becoming a beautiful bride."

"Mike, I know you're worried about me," Avery said to him.

"He's not in danger for the time being, and I didn't say I would go to him immediately. Now that I know where he is, I feel much more at ease."

"Oh, then I'll get back to work." Mike walked out.

After Mike left, Avery unfolded the drawing once more.

She was familiar with the layout of the neighborhood Elliot's villa was located in.

Elliot's villa was a bungalow surrounded by trees for hundreds of feet.

The main road was a mile away from his villa.

The drawings Mike made showed that the phone signal came from a large stretch of land that was next to the main road.

There was a small community living there.

Trying to go door-to-door would be akin to trying to find a needle in a haystack.

Besides, she thought of something even creepier.

When Nathan White and his family had relocated to Aryadelle, they had chosen to live right next to Elliot's villa, and that could not be a coincidence.

It seemed that she had to find a chance to have a good talk with Nathan White.

Nobody knew if he had been discharged from the hospital.

After dinner at dusk, Avery took Layla out for a walk in the neighborhood.

Avery pushed the stroller, and Layla held her arm.

As they walked, Layla told her mother what had happened to her in school today.

"Mommy, we all had counseling this week. Classes will only officially start next week."

"Got it. I know that you had counseling this week. Your teacher notified us about it in the class group chat."

"Mom, I think the psychology teacher looks like Grandma."

"Do you still remember what grandma looked like?"

Avery thought of her mother and said with a hint of melancholy, "If she were still alive, she would be very happy to see how beautiful and brave you are."

"Of course, I remember what my grandma looked like. Mommy is my grandma's daughter, and Mommy looks just like grandma!"

Layla grew silent after that declaration, and they heard a tiny voice come from the stroller.

"Mommy!"

Avery and Layla were taken by surprise.

"Did Robert just speak his first word?!" Avery thought.

Had spoken his first word, and it was Mommy! Elliot was at the Sterling Group headquarters.

In the morning, he had gone to their wedding venue, where the wedding banquet will be held. He had not returned to the company till late in the afternoon, so he was now working overtime.

The executives accompanied him.

The phone on the table beeped. He saw that it was Avery and answered.

"Elliot! Robert just called me Mommy!"

Avery was not able to contain her excitement.

"Hold on, let me see if I can get Robert to do it again! He is very soft, and he sounds just like a little girl!"

Avery turned to Robert, "Baby, can say mommy again."

Robert looked at Avery's gentle face and said, "Mommy!"

Elliot heard the tiny voice and the word 'mommy'.

Chapter 1001

Elliot was so excited that he got up from his chair and walked out of the conference room.

When he reached the door leading out of the conference room, he stopped, turned around, and looked at the bewildered group, "My son can talk! He just said mommy! I'm going back to see my son!"

After saying that, he left.

The executives looked at one another.

"Mr.Elliot's son knows how to call for his mother, but what does that have to do with him?" said one of the people in the room.

"Well, it has nothing to do with him, but this is his first time experiencing fatherhood.You should understand that," said Chad as he pushed his glasses higher up his nose.

When Layla and Hayden appeared in Elliot Foster's life, they had already known how to ride a bike.

Robert truly gave Elliot the complete experience of being a father.

"Oh, okay! It's indeed exciting to be a dad for the first time."

"Let's get on with the meeting!" Chad glanced at the time.

"I'll send the meeting minutes to Mr.Elliot's email later."

The Sterling Group Building pierced the clouds, and even at night, it was a magnificent sight to behold.

Elliot came out of the building and walked toward the parking lot. He saw a familiar figure out of the corner of his eyes.

With his eagle-like eyes, he looked at a group of dark shadows not far away — Nathan White!

"How dare this scoundrel come here!" Elliot thought.

Nathan White did not come alone this time.

There was a tall man beside him.

Although the man was tall, he did not have a strong build which meant he was probably not a bodyguard.

When Elliot stared at them, they stared back at Elliot Foster.

This time, Nathan White did not grin at Elliot.

The last time they had met, Elliot had beaten him to a pulp and was hospitalized.

That memory still lingered in his mind.

"Peter, you go and speak to him. I'm afraid if I went over, he would beat me up," said Nathan to his son.

"Do you see the building in front of you? Elliot is your brother. As long as he recognizes us as his brother, we will have a share of this building! "

Peter took a deep breath and lumbered toward Elliot.

Elliot stood his ground, itching to see what tricks they had up their sleeves!

When Peter finally stood in front of Elliot, he could not squirm under Elliot's piercing gaze.

He unintentionally lowered his voice, "Elliot my dad wants to talk to you. It is private, so let's speak somewhere else."

"In what way is it private?"

Elliot looked at Peter with his sharp eyes and said without a hint of patience, "If you people had something on me, you would have used it as blackmail a long time ago. I'm in a good mood today, and I don't want to dirty my hands. I'll tell you this one last time: Piss off!"

Peter's eyes were red with anger.

"Elliot Foster, you have been a master for a long time. Do you really think you are master of the Fosters? The old hooligan you had beaten up last time is not only my father, but he is your father too! The blood that flows in your veins, flows through the body of that old hooligan too. That's not the blood of the Fosters! That is his blood!"

Bang! Elliot Foster punched Peter in the face! After Elliot Foster made his move, his bodyguards rushed over and pinned Peter down.

Seeing this, Nathan came rushing over! Another bodyguard subdued Nathan! Elliot's eyes were scarlet.

Looking at the men on the ground he recalled what Peter had just said.

"The blood that flows in your veins, flows through the body of that old hooligan too. That's not the blood of the Fosters! That is his blood!"

Those words played on repeat.

"Damn you, Elliot! Let your brother go!" said Nathan.

"What you have today, it's all thanks to me! Without me, there would be no you, you little sh*t!"

He heard those words clearly.

"This is not a dream! How can a dream be this real?" thought Elliot.

Elliot felt the crushing weight of reality. He clenched his hands into fists.

"Am I really not the master of the Fosters? Am I really the son of this old rascal?"

Chapter 1002

Avery was at Starry River Villa when she received the message from Elliot.

[Something came up.I will see our son tomorrow.]

[Alright.] replied Avery.

After sending the message, Avery looked at her daughter.

"Dear, Dad won't be coming tonight.You don't have to get all dressed up."

Upset, she put down the new dress in her arms.

"Why isn't he coming?"

"Something came up.He said he will come tomorrow."

Avery comforted her daughter.

"Your father— besides being your father— has to manage his company and our wedding.He has been really busy."

Layla nodded with puffed cheeks.

She resented Elliot a little.

"If my Robert said 'dad' today, I'm sure Dad will be here right now, no matter how busy he is."

"Haha, that's true."

Avery did not expect her daughter to have such a robust sense of humor at such a tender age.

Elliot and Nathan sat opposite each other.

The bodyguards were sent away.He wanted to know what story they had cooked up about him and where he came from.

"You do know that there are paternity tests, right?" Elliot looked at them coldly with his eagle eyes.

He could not see himself in Nathan's face.

"How could this old rascal be my father?" he thought.

As for him and Peter White, there was not even a hint of semblance! Nathan stifled his laughter.

"Even if I were f*cking illiterate, I would still have common sense! If I weren't your father, would I dare to approach you?"

Elliot's expression turned gloomy.

Peter said, "If you don't believe it, you can get a paternity test done."

After looking at their determined expressions, Elliot picked up the phone and found just the number to dial.

"I know it's hard for you to accept reality but facts speak louder than words.No matter how bad I've been living or how good you've been living, when you see me, you still have to call me dad! I am your biological father!"

Nathan raised his chin in pride when he said this.

Elliot's eyes flashed coldly, and he forcefully suppressed the anger burning within him.

"If you are my father, who is my mother?"

A terrible thought came to him when he asked the question.

"Could it be that Rosalie is still my mother?" thought Elliot.

"Your mother sold liquor in nightclubs.There are nicer ways to say what she did, but the reality is, she would do anything as long as she was given some money." Nathan revealed a greasy I smile.

"She doesn't know how many men she had children with.So she doesn't remember you at all.She would never have dreamed that Elliot Foster, the famous man of Aryadelle, came out of her womb! Hahahaha!"

Elliot clenched his fist into a ball.

He looked bloodthirsty!

"You don't need to be so angry,"

Peter said when he saw Elliot's expression.

"This entire thing was orchestrated by your Madam Rosalie! The woman you called mother is nothing but a cold-blooded and ruthless woman!"

"It can't be! It can't be Rosalie!" thought Elliot.

All this while Rosalie had known that he was not her biological son, but she had always treated him like he was hers.

"Did she treat me as a son out of regret, or did she just fall into the role after the passing of so many years?" thought Elliot.

"No, Rosalie Foster had always been conscious of her actions."

From the beginning, she had ensured that all her property would be left to her biological son— Henry Foster.

She had told Elliot that she had done so because Henry did not have the capacity to make his own money, and that was why she had left him all her property.

Elliot had never thought that she was being biased, but now it seemed that she had long figured everything out! At the end of the day, the one she loved was still her biological son.

As for why she had treated Elliot like her son? That was simple.

She had done so because he had brought honor to the family.

Chapter 1004

"Mr.Foster had been drinking, and he is drunk.I tried talking to him but he ignored me.It was like he lost his soul."

Mrs.Scarlet was very worried.

"I thought the two of you got into a fight again so I called to find out what happened."

Avery said, "Oh, he probably went to entertain some clients today and drank too much."

That comment reassured Mrs. Scarlet.

"As long as the two of you didn't quarrel, all is well. I'll go upstairs to check on him later."

Avery said, "I'll call him and speak to him!"

"Sure thing."

Avery hung up and called Elliot.

In the master bedroom, Elliot stared at his phone with bloodshot eyes.

His mind was blank.

He had drunk a bit too much, and while his senses were still there, he might not be able to control them as well as he would like.

He was afraid that if he answered the phone now, he would start spouting nonsense. He walked into the bathroom and splashed some water onto his face.

His phone continued ringing.

It looked like she was not going to give up and would continue calling till he answered.

He came out of the bathroom after washing his face, picked up his phone, and accepted the call.

"Elliot, who did you see? Why are you drunk?"

He could hear the concern in her voice.

"Mrs. Scarlet said that you looked like you were having an out-of-body experience. Are you still there?"

He held the phone. He was there, but his eyes were steeped in ice.

"It's still there. I saw a few old buddies of mine today whom I hadn't seen for a long time.I was happy and had a little too much to drink."

"Oh...you scared the hell out of Mrs.Scarlet.She thought we had a fight.You don't have much tolerance for alcohol.Try not to drink too much next time," said Avery.

"Do you want me to come over? The children are asleep, and I can drive there."

"There's no need."

Without thinking, he rejected her.

He just wanted to be alone now.He did not want to see anyone.He did not want to talk to anyone.

The past thirty years of his life had been a lie.

There was no truth to be found in them.He still could not believe that it was his "mother" who planned all this.

However, he had clearly felt the love Rosalie had for him.

Sometimes she would even show her open support for him to prevent his elder brother's family from holding him back.

"Could she have seen me as her real son after all the years we have spent together?" thought Elliot.

He would not allow anyone to find out about it.

It would be kept a secret as long as the Whites did not reveal anything.

Avery knew there was something different about the way he spoke.

"Elliot, what's wrong? You don't sound very happy."

She had a strong feeling in her heart that he was lying to her.

"If you really had gotten drunk while meeting a friend, shouldn't you be high right now?"

"I have a headache," he said.

"I haven't been this drunk in such a long time, so I'm not quite used to it. Don't worry about me. I'll be fine after a night's sleep."

"Well, I won't come then."

She could not hide the disappointment in her voice. She had offered him her company. She had thought he would be happy. She had not expected him to reject her offer.

"Can he hear how unhappy I am?" she thought.

After a few seconds of silence, he said, "You told me once that irrespective of who I am, neither you nor the children would leave me. Did you really mean that?"

The topic took quite a turn, he was taken aback for a moment.

She said, "Yes. Why are you bringing this up?"

"I suddenly remembered it, and I just wanted to know whether you meant it."

"Why don't I believe that you're drunk?"

He sounded normal to her.

Maybe, just a little colder than usual, but no different than how he usually sounded.

Chapter 1005

"I'm not sure if I'm drunk."

He rubbed his aching temple with his slender fingers.

How he wished he was drunk! If he were drunk, he would not remember anything that happened tonight the next day.

"It looks like you had one too many a glass," said Avery.

"Go lie down. I'll get Mrs. Scarlet to make you a bowl of hangover soup. Drink it before going to sleep."

He agreed to her request and ended the call.

About half an hour later, Mrs. Scarlet came up with a bowl of sour plum soup.

Elliot was lying in bed, and he was still wearing the same clothes.

His eyes were shut.

Only one bedside lamp was turned on in the room, and it was quite dim.

Mrs. Scarlet was not sure if he was asleep, so she stood by the door of the room.

Then she heard his deep voice, "Come in."

He opened his eyes and sat up.

Mrs. Scarlet served the sour plum soup.

Inadvertently, she caught a glimpse of dark red blood on his palm.

"Sir, your hand is bleeding!"

Mrs. Scarlet was shocked.

"I'm fine."

He took a sip of the soup. He sounded relaxed, but his voice held an undercurrent of steel, "

Don't tell Avery anything." Mrs. Scarlet lowered her head

"Okay. Next time I'm worried, I'll ask you."

"I saw Nathan White tonight."

Elliot continued to drink the soup, but his voice was tight.

"Do you know what he said to me?"

Mrs. Scarlet's face turned black.

"No matter what he said to you, don't believe him! No truth comes out of that mouth!"

"He said he was my biological father."

Elliot was completely awake, and he set aside his soup.

"He said that my mother planned everything. My mother trusted you. Tell me now. Was he telling me the truth? "

Mrs. Scarlet fell to the ground with a plop.

"Nathan White, he must have come to ask you for money, didn't he?"

Mrs. Scarlet said incoherently, "Madam Rosalie didn't tell me anything about this. After all, I'm just a servant...but..."

"But what?"

Elliot looked at her with his eyes that resembled a dark pool.

His dark eyes seemed to penetrate through everything.

"That had to look after a child. That child was taken to see a doctor. He was gone for a while, and when he came back, I knew that it was not the same child that left. The child that came back was a different child," said Mrs. Scarlet as tears streamed down her face.

"We servants who had taken care of the child know this well, but we didn't dare say anything. I'm not sure if this was Madam Rosalie's arrangement."

Elliot breathed a sigh of relief, but the pain he felt did not disappear.

"Sir, don't blame Madam... She treated you like her own and looked after you as she would her own. The reason she might have done such a thing was because she was depressed. Not a day went by where there would not be a fight. They fought over the children, and how they were both unhealthy. Madam probably did such a silly thing because of that..."

"She's already dead, and you still speak for her."

Elliot's voice was cold.

After a moment, he sneered, "I should thank her. If she hadn't chosen me, I would either be begging for food on the streets or rotting in the slammer right now."

"How can you say that, Sir? Gold shines wherever it goes!"

"My biological father is a gangster, and my biological mother is a bartender...In such an environment, it would be a question of whether I was still alive!"

"Sir! What Nathan said is not necessarily true! Besides, you are currently indestructible. Your position right now prevents just anyone from pulling you down!" said Mrs. Scarlet.

"Don't admit that they are your parents! As long as you don't, you will always be the head of the Foster family!"

The next day, a black Rolls-Roice stopped at the entrance of the Public and Judiciary Paternity Test Center.

Escorted by his bodyguards, Elliot strode into the test center.

This was the test center that had sent some documents to Avery last time.

It was the reason why he had decided to get the paternity test done here.

Chapter 1006

The person in charge immediately invited Elliot to his office.

"Mr. Foster, what brings you here today?" asked the person in charge gingerly as he poured Elliot a cup of tea.

"Do you know my fiancé?" Elliot asked.

Stunned, the person in charge said, "Who is your fiancé?"

"Avery Tate,"

Elliot lowered his voice and said, "You mailed something to her a while back, right? I saw it."

The person in charge brightened at the mention of Avery.

"You mean Miss Tate! I do know her. She is a brilliant woman, and it is my pleasure to know her. I didn't know that the two of you are engaged! What great news! The wedding..."

"The wedding is on the first of June. You can come if you are free on that day."

"Of course, I will be free!"

"What business did she come for the last time she was here?"

Elliot could not help but ask.

Avery had been avoiding his eyes when he had asked her about it, and the way she behaved was somewhat unnatural.

Apart from that, she had also brought up the topic of his identity.

Asking him what would he do if he found out that he was not the person he had thought he was, and she had done this only after she had received the parcel that had come from here.

The person in charge was taken by surprise and said hesitantly, "Mr.Foster, according to our policies, we are forbidden from sharing our clients' personal information.You are about to marry Miss.Tate, so why don't you ask her?"

"She did tell me.I'm just not that sure if she's telling me the truth."

"Why don't you trust her?"

"There are white lies and then there are malicious lies, "

Elliot said with confidence, "I am about to marry her.Of course, I trust her."

Relieved, the person in charge said, "I can talk to you about it briefly.Miss Tate sent us a blood sample of her patient and told us to—"

Elliot interrupted him immediately.

"Alright, I know.You don't have to continue."

If Avery had told the truth about sending her patient's blood sample, it meant that she had not lied to him.

Perhaps he had overreacted thinking that she was avoiding looking at him.

The person in charge, however, could not seem to stop.

"It's really interesting, Mr.Foster, let me finish Elliot's brows twitched.

'You want to tell me about the gorilla?'"

"Oh! I guess Miss Tate did tell you everything, then."

The person in charge picked his mug up took a sip of tea.

"By the way, is there anything we can help you with today? You are Miss Tate's fiancé, so we will be sure to provide you the best service."

"Do I not deserve your best service if I'm not Avery's fiancé?"

Elliot's lips curled into a smile.

The person in charge smiled back.

"Of course, you do. It's just that we have to be even more careful if you are acquainted with Miss Tate."

Elliot took a box from the hands of his bodyguard and took two tubes of blood out of it.

"I want to get a DNA test. How soon can I get the results?"

"Usually a week, but we will usually get a rough estimate within 24 hours. We usually need to perform various checks before we can deliver the precise results to our clients."

"I want to get the rough result tomorrow at the same time."

The person in charge nodded.

"No problem."

"Also, don't tell Avery that I've been here. Nothing is to be said about the blood samples, who they belong to, and what the results are. If anything gets out I will raze this place to the ground."

Frightened, the person in charge sweated profusely.

"Don't worry, I won't tell unless she asks."

"You are not to tell her anything even if she asks."

Chapter 1007

"Well, as long as you don't tell Miss Tate that you've been here, she wouldn't come asking me about it, would she?" the person in charge said gingerly.

Elliot could not find an issue with what he said.

Meanwhile, Avery and Robert were at Tammy's house.

They were there to keep Tammy company, and because it was that time of the month, Tammy was in a rather foul mood.

Avery's other reason for visiting Tammy was so she could find out who Elliot's drinking buddy was.

"Elliot was drunk?"

No way! I've never seen him drunk before!"

Jun seemed a bit excited upon hearing what Avery had to say.

"I know most of Elliot's friends, but I didn't hear that he was hanging out with friends last night!"

Tammy was playing with Robert and said, "Avery, it's either that Elliot has lied to you, or Jun is not as close to Elliot as he thinks he is."

"Let's go with the second one then!" Jun immediately said.

"I'd rather admit that I'm not as close to him as I thought I was than to see you two fight again!" Avery chuckled.

"I won't fight with him. I'm just a bit worried because he said that he was coming over to see Robert last night but was caught up with something else at the very last minute. Mrs. Scarlet called last night and told me that he was drunk...Jun, why don't you ask Ben and see if he knows who Elliot was drinking with last night?"

"Oh, I'll ask him now."

"Don't tell him that I'm asking."

"I get it. You just want to care for him in secret," Jun said before dialing Ben's number.

Ben picked up immediately.

"Didn't he leave a bunch of managers to go home and see his son?"

Ben was confused by Jun's question.

"Who told you that he went drinking with friends? I haven't heard about that."

Jun had placed the call on speaker and based on Ben's reaction, they had all come to the conclusion that Elliot had lied about last night.

"It's fine, Ben. I'm just asking."

Jun hung up.

Tammy looked at Avery and could not help but reiterate the truth.

"That guy lied to you again."

Avery's lips curled into a smile.

"Maybe he is just trying to keep me from worrying! I could sense that he was in a bad mood when I was on the phone with him last night."

"Why don't you go speak to him, then? I'm just having my period. This happens every month so you don't really have to keep me company."

Tammy simply felt reluctant to part with Robert.

"Baby Robert is so sweet. Do not become a liar like your dad in the future!"

"Elliot probably ran into some kind of trouble after getting drunk. Avery, you should go find him!" Jun said.

Avery took Robert from Tammy's and said, "I'll go now."

After exiting Tammy's house, Avery made a call to Elliot to get his location.

"I'm in the office. What's wrong?"

He sounded composed. He sounded like a completely different person last night.

"Were you drunk last night? Doesn't your head hurt?"

"It's hurting a bit, but it's tolerable," Elliot said casually.

"Did I say anything weird to you last night when I was drunk?"

"You mean to say that you don't remember a thing about last night?" Avery gasped.

"I don't remember much. I just remember talking to you on the phone. I asked you to come over, but you refused..." Elliot furrowed his brows.

He had deliberately eased into a lighter part of last night in order to put Avery at ease.

Avery scowled.

"People say weird things when they are drunk, and you just flip the whole story around? I was the one who wanted to come over, but you didn't want me to..."

"Really?" he said guiltily.

It's my bad. Come over tonight!"

Chapter 1008

Avery carried Robert back into Tammy's house after the call with Elliot.

"Why are you giggling? Everything is fine?" Tammy asked.

"Yeah. I called him just now.

He said that he doesn't remember what happened last night, so I didn't bother asking. I'm about to marry him. If I don't trust him, how are we supposed to spend the rest of our lives together?"

Jun sighed a long breath of relief at Avery's words.

"Avery, I was just talking to Tammy, and I was wondering whether you were planning to take Robert with you when you went to confront Elliot. Tammy said you won't. She told me that you will send Robert home before going to see Elliot."

Jun was not sure whether to laugh or cry, as they had both been wrong.

Avery chuckled.

In the past, she might have gone straight to find Elliot upon catching his lie as Tammy and Jun had predicted.

"I can be understanding and forgiving to others, but I somehow lose my temper all the time whenever I'm with him."

Avery reflected on her actions and said, "After confessing everything to one another the last time, I realized that all the things he had kept from me were his darkest secrets. He hid them from me because he knew that I wouldn't be able to help him and that they would only burden me. He did not keep them from me out of a lack of trust."

"It's great that you think like this now, Avery," Jun said.

"I believe that you two must have given it a lot of thought before deciding to get remarried, so you will definitely treasure your relationships from now on."

"Aren't you going to work?" Tammy asked.

"I'll get going now."

Jun pinched Robert on the cheek gently before leaving.

"Uncle Jun is going to work now! Let's play next time!"

Tammy shed all pretenses once Jun left.

"Avery, Jun really likes kids."

"Most people do when they reach a certain age," Avery said.

"He has a box filled with his collectibles from the past, which he wouldn't let me touch. I opened the box yesterday and found a love letter inside."

Tammy's expression darkened.

"It was a love letter that he had written for a girl, FFv.ArIL he was fantasizing about having children with that girl."

Avery did not expect the reason behind Tammy's bad mood to be the love letter instead of her period.

"It's in the past. Everyone's done something stupid when they were young," said Avery sympathetically.

"But I checked his phone while he was asleep last night and saw that girl's name in his contact list."

Tammy could no longer conceal the pain she felt.

"I have always thought that I am the only woman in Jun's heart, but I'm not! Are all men this unfaithful? Elliot lied to you last night as well. You might think that he is doing so for your own good, but is it possible that he was with another woman?"

Avery's face instantly flushed a crimson red.

"I'm sorry, Avery. I shouldn't have said that just because my relationship isn't going well..."

Tammy grabbed onto Avery's cool hand and said, "It's just that those two are close, and don't people say that birds of a feather flock together?"

"So what are you going to do?"

Avery held Tammy's hand and asked.

"I'm just going to observe the situation for now. There is no evidence that he is cheating on me with that woman. I pray that there's nothing. I won't stand by and do nothing if I find anything," Tammy mumbled.

"Tammy, why haven't you just talked to him?"

"I'm worried that he would be upset that I went through his stuff." Tammy lowered her gaze.

"He's been great with me and I'm scared to break the bubble that I'm in."

Avery knew that Tammy had not been able to overcome the trauma she had from the kidnapping. She had lost confidence in herself because of it.

"Tammy, let's not think about unpleasant things." Avery smiled and changed the subject.

"Robert can say the word mommy now, but he hasn't said the word dad just yet."

"That's because Elliot hasn't been around enough."

Tammy swiftly adjusted herself and said, "Once you all start living together, Robert will soon learn to call him Dad."

Avery nodded.

Chapter 1009

Avery video called Jun at four in the afternoon, and when Jun received her phone call, he immediately realized that something was wrong.

"What's wrong?"

Jun felt uncomfortable being the target of her cold glare, and he felt his back grow damp with sweat.

"Did Tammy say something to you? Am I not doing well enough? It shouldn't be! I've been super gentle and patient lately. Elliot told me to give Tammy more time..."

"Elliot said that to you?"

Avery was slightly surprised.

"Yeah! What exactly did Tammy tell you? How am I supposed to fix it if you won't tell me?" He asked.

"Why are you keeping the love letter you wrote for a classmate in a box? Not only did you not destroy it, but you even kept that girl's number in your contact list. When exactly are you two planning to start dating again?"

Avery asked him all the questions that Tammy dared not ask.

"Huh? What are you talking about? I don't understand, can you give me some hints?"

Jun was confused.

"That box you have with all your collectibles; why won't you let Tammy touch it?"

Avery changed the question.

"Oh, that box is filled with fragile items. If Tammy goes near them, those antiques are going to be ruined! " said Jun, finally realizing what Avery was going on about.

"Are you saying that there's a love letter inside that box? Sh*t! When did I put that in the box?"

Avery studied his reaction and realized that he was not acting.

"When was the last time you got in touch with that girl?"

Jun rubbed his chin thoughtfully and said, "Probably a year or two ago! She was about to get married, and she got in touch with all her old classmates. She got my number and invited me to her wedding... That's clearly her trying to scam a wedding gift out of me, right? Do I look that stupid?"

Avery was stunned as she had not predicted that to be the story behind the number.

"I mean I can easily afford a gift that cost a few thousand dollars, but that doesn't mean I want to get her that gift! If I spend money on that and Tammy finds out, she is definitely going to get mad. I know that temper of hers."

An evil smile appeared on Jun's face.

"Which is why when she invited me to her wedding, I asked to borrow money from her instead."

Avery did not know how to respond to how he had gotten out of going to the wedding.

"I was trying to start a business back then, so I was in need of money. She just stopped replying after she saw my message."

Jun sighed continued, "I wonder if she blocked me."

Avery was not sure whether she should laugh or cry.

"Tammy told you to confront me over this?"

Jun suddenly switched to a more serious tone.

"I did this on my own. She doesn't even dare to ask you about it. She said that she is worried you would blame her for going through your stuff. Go home and communicate with her. Be sure not to blame her for it.

"Oh, I get it! Thanks, Avery! If it wasn't for you, I wouldn't even know that she's been that upset over this!"

In the evening at Starry River Villa, a black Rolls- Royce drove into the front yard.

"Mommy, why is Dad here?"

Layla noticed the familiar car and asked in confusion, "I thought you said that he is not coming here today?"

Avery remembered that they had agreed that she would be going to his house.

"Maybe he has something he needs!"

Avery stepped outside after answering her daughter's question.

Just then, Elliot had gotten out of the car and was rounding to the back car to take something from the trunk.

Chapter 1010

Avery walked up to him.

"What did you buy?"

She had a clear view of what was in his trunk, and she instantly froze.

The trunk was spacious and there was no telling what could be in it.

Currently, it was jammed packed with boxes and bags.

"Elliot, didn't you tell me to go to your place tonight? "

She changed the subject and said, "I thought you weren't coming."

"You coming over, me coming over, aren't they the same thing?"

He took the bags and boxes out of the trunk and said, "I was walking past a street this afternoon and saw some nice things that you and kids might like, so I bought them all."

Avery was stunned for a moment, before finally realizing what he had just said.

"Are you saying that you spent the entire afternoon buying all these for me and the kids?!"

"Yes.

He continued to move the things he bought out of the trunk.

She grabbed onto his arm and said seriously, "Elliot Foster! Are you still drunk from last night?"

He leaned toward her.

Avery flushed and shoved his handsome-looking face away.

"What are you doing? Our daughter is watching! Quit fooling around!"

"I'm giving you a chance to check whether you can smell any alcohol on me," he said seriously.

He then turned to Layla, "Layla, come here. Daddy bought you gifts."

Layla immediately hopped toward him like a bunny as soon as she heard that there were gifts.

Avery noticed that Elliot was acting oddly and pulled him aside.

"Is today some kind of special occasion or anniversary? Why are you buying me and the kids so many gifts?"

Suddenly, she was reminded of what Tammy told her earlier that day.

"Is it that...you wronged me last night and you are now trying to compensate me with gifts?!"

Elliot's expression shifted drastically from her theory.

He had gone and bought this many things after being provoked by Nathan.

Nathan had asked for fifteen million a month as an allowance.

Elliot had spent far less on Avery and the children in the span of a year.

Nathan mentioned that Elliot was so wealthy that he would never run out of money, so Elliot had decided to spend more on his children.

Seeing Elliot's silence made Avery's heart sink. She had chosen to trust him, but judging by the look on his face, she could tell that he was hiding something from her.

"Who exactly were you drinking with last night?"

Avery stared him directly in the eyes and lowered her voice.

"I don't want to suspect you, Elliot, and I don't want to argue with you in front of the kids either, but you have to give me a reasonable explanation, otherwise, how am I supposed to accept all these gifts?!"

Elliot glanced at the children and saw Layla standing next to the trunk while looking at them seriously.

Layla was concerned that her mother would be hurt, so she was observing the situation and was ready to attack Elliot if he dared to upset her mother.

"Darling, I am not fighting with your mom."

Elliot directed an endearing smile toward his daughter.

Layla scowled in disbelief.

"Avery, I did lie to you last night."

Elliot faced Avery and said, "But I didn't wrong you in any way. I lied and said that I was out drinking with friends, but that wasn't the truth. I was drinking alone last night."

Avery was confused.

"Why would you lie to me? Why were you drinking alone? You said that you were in a good mood last night and that was a lie as well. You weren't happy at all last night."

"Yeah."

He stared at her doe-like eyes and pulled her into his embrace.

"I wasn't upset because of us. I was just reminded that I don't have any family that I can invite to the wedding and that made me a little depressed."

Avery hugged him back tightly.

"It's okay, we can invite more friends."

"Yeah. I'm fine now."

Elliot adjusted himself and let her go.

"I bought gifts for you and the kids to make you happy and to give me more motivation to make more money."

"But you bought too much."

Avery took his hand and walked toward Layla.

"If you buy us this many things every time you come over, there wouldn't be enough space in my house for them."

Chapter 1011

He proposed a solution.

"Then move to a bigger mansion."

"The children and I have gotten used to this place, so we don't want to move," Avery said with resignation.

"Just keep your urge to shop in check! I know you are rich, but money can be used to elevate our personal lives, and it can also be used for good deeds. You can make donations to poor communities in the mountains or to non-profit organizations."

"I am doing all that as well."

He stepped back toward the trunk and moved more boxes out.

"I bought you jewelry. I know you think it's too troublesome to wear them, but I like them on you."

She opened the box and found multiple smaller boxes.

"Elliot, did you empty the shops?"

"I didn't," he said.

"I didn't buy the ones that didn't look good."

Avery felt helpless. She knew she should be happy to receive such gifts, but she was not in the slightest bit happy.

Her jewelry cabinet did not have the space for this many new pieces.

"What did you buy Layla?"

She suppressed the urge to lecture him and asked.

"Mainly hair clips. There are some other things, but I'm not so sure what those are. They look flashy and seem like the kind of things little girls would like, so I bought those as well."

The urge to lecture him rose again at his response.

"Did you buy gifts for the boys?" She asked.

"I bought toys and snacks for Robert."

"But not for Hayden?"

She scanned the trunk carefully.

"I did." He suddenly lowered his tone.

"Ohe"

Sensing the guilt in his voice, she asked, "What did you buy Hayden? Show me."

He walked toward the back seat and opened the door to take a pile of handwriting practice workbooks out of the car.

Hayden's class teacher had shown Hayden's homework to Elliot during the birthday party, and Elliot had realized that his son's handwriting was horrible.

Therefore, when he walked past the book store earlier, he bought the workbooks in hopes that his son's handwriting would improve.

Avery burst out laughing at the workbooks.

"I will show him these tomorrow morning. If I show these to him tonight, he is going to be so angry that he won't be able to sleep."

Avery accepted the workbooks and then went inside the house to put them away.

Once Avery was inside the living room, Layla whispered to Elliot, "Dad, why are you buying us so many gifts?"

"It's because I'm earning so much money. If I don't spend some, I will lose the motivation to make more money."

Layla tried her best to process what her father said and said, "Oh, don't worry, Dad, I will spend your money for you."

Elliot received a message from the paternity center at eight o'clock the next morning.

He was having breakfast with Avery in the dining room when he got the message. He opened the message when he noticed the screen of his phone lit up. He tapped on the link attached and saw the results of the paternity test.

Chapter 1012

Though it was merely a general analysis that could be different from the final result, there was a fifty percent chance that it was accurate.

Elliot had never been one to think that fate would favor those who did not believe in it.

"Result: According to the DNA analysis, the results support the conclusion that there was a paternal relation in the DNA combination between sample 1 and sample 2"

Shortly after, another message came in from the person in charge of the paternity test center.

[Mr.Foster, I will send you the refined result in five days.] Elliot suppressed the disgust he felt and replied calmly.

[Sure.]

"Elliot, I told Hayden that you had gotten him some gifts, but he refused to look at them," said Avery when she noticed Elliot staring at his phone.

"Let's just tell him that I was the one who bought the workbooks! Otherwise, he is probably not going to practice at all.By the way, how did you find out that he has bad handwriting?"

Elliot set his phone down to take a sip of milk to calm himself.

"During the kids' birthday party last time, his class teacher said that he was doing well with his studies, but that he hasn't worked on his handwriting.Avery was more informed in regard to the details about her children's performance at school and said, "It's not that he hasn't worked on it.He seems devoted enough whenever I see him writing, his handwriting just comes out that way.Everyone has something that they are good and bad at.I talked to him about it before and gave up afterward because I didn't want to affect his confidence."

"Would it affect his confidence that I bought him workbooks, then?" Elliot's expression darkened.

"I'll just buy him another gift!"

"It's fine. I'll just tell him that I asked you to buy it."

An idea happened upon her all of a sudden and she said, "That way, he wouldn't be too angry about it."

"Sure. You really are a smart one," grinned Elliot, "By the way, I might be home a bit late tonight; if it gets too late, I won't come over."

"Okay. If you're too busy at work, you should leave it to your vice president AEK. Aull the others for now. After our wedding, you will have more time," said Avery.

The reason she did not get more involved in arranging the wedding was because she knew that Elliot was better at organizing things when compared to her.

He was better at judging the beauty of things, and he was meticulous when it came to details.

If she had gotten involved and submitted her ideas, she would only further delayed things.

"Sure. Are you heading to your company first, or to Tammy's first?"

Elliot set down his glass of milk and took a napkin to wipe his mouth.

"I'll go to the office first. Tammy needs to see her psychiatrist today so we set a time around noon to meet up for lunch."

"Okay. Try talking some senses into her and get her to stop letting her mind run wild. When it comes to relationships, she needs to voice out the issues and resolve them with Jun."

Avery lifted an eyebrow.

"Jun told you?"

"He did.He said that he has no memory of putting the love letter into the box.That's how life works; it just surprises and shocks you once in while."

Elliot's lips curled into a smile, but the warmth did not reach his eyes.

Avery did not notice the look in his eyes and failed to realize the emotions hidden within.

"Just head out first if you are already done! My place is close to the office so I will head out later."

Avery intended on trying on the jewelry he bought.

Since he had already bought them, she should try her best to change her laziness when it came to these things.

"Okay.Call me if you need anything."

He got up to leave and when he walked past the living room, he teased Robert, who was trying the new toys.

"Darling, Daddy is going to work now.I'll buy you more new toys in a few days."

With that, he walked to the porch to change his shoes and stepped out.

As soon as he was out of the door, the gentle expression on his face faded, and the disgust that he tried so hard to suppress overwhelmed him.

Chapter 1013

A voice in his head screamed, "You are not Eason Foster's son! You are not the chosen one! You are not a high-born boy...That creep Nathan White is your real father! There's evil blood flowing in your veins; that's why you are cruel, cold, and vicious! It won't end well for you! Even if you change now, you are still going to have to pay for your father's sins! He will drag you down to hell, and you will stay alongside him for all eternity!"

His stomach twisted and turned with nausea, and he raced toward the garage.He vomited the breakfast he had just consumed.

Luckily, the garage was located on the right side of the mansion and no one saw him lose his composure.

He stared blankly at his vomit, and tears welled up in his eyes when he realized that his background was as filthy as the vomit on the ground.

It was not that he could not accept that he was nota son of the Foster family; he simply could not accept the fact that Nathan was his father.

Furthermore, he had suffered too much psychological torture at the hands of the Fosters to disentangle himself from them.

"What do my bonds with Shea and mom mean, if I'm not Elliot Foster?" thought Elliot.

The truth had not only robbed him of his identity as Elliot Foster, but it had seized him of all the relationships that were attached to that name.

It pained him to think that he was not the pride of his mother's life or Shea's most respected brother.

No one knew how much he had given throughout the years to satisfy his mother and protect Shea.

A cold breeze blew, and his stomach twitched in response.He sweated profusely, slowly struggling to his senses.He wiped away his tears and swiftly calmed himself, before turning to open the car door and get in.

As he drove out of the garage, he sent a message to Mrs.Cooper.

Shortly after, Mrs.Cooper hurried outside with a barrel of water to clean the vomit in the garage.

Soon the ground was as good as new, it was as though nothing had happed.

The black Rolls-Roice did not move toward the Sterling Group but instead, headed for Elliot's house.He was not in the mood for work or the upcoming wedding. He probably would not be able to sleep at night or eat properly until the issue with Nathan was resolved.

Upon arriving home, he asked Mrs. Scarlet to make him a pot of tea.

Mrs. Scarlet glanced at him.

"Mr. Foster, you don't look so well. Did you not sleep well last night? Do you need breakfast?"

He found a pack of cigarettes and tore at it with his long fingers.

"There's no need for that," he said coldly.

Only cigarettes and coffee would help calm him down swiftly. He took a puff of the cigarette, exhaled a cloud of smoke, and opened the contact list on his phone.

He soon found Nathan's number and called to arrange a meeting.

"Come alone. I don't want to see your idiot son!"

Nathan had guessed that the results of the paternity test had been released when he received the call from Elliot, and his confidence shot up.

"Peter is my son as well. Calling him an idiot is like calling yourself an idiot!"

If it was before, Elliot would have been furious and lost his temper, however, he simply hung up with composure.

He would never acknowledge Nathan as his father or get involved with any one of his children, so the kind of people they have had nothing to do with him.

After a while, Nathan arrived with a smug smile and sat down on the couch across from Elliot.

"Well? The results are out, right? Even the gods can't change the fact that I am your father!"

His smile grew more and more vicious as he spoke.

Chapter 1014

"All those years ago, I was the one who carried you through the doors of the Fosters' mansion. Without me, you wouldn't have such a glorious life!"

Nathan said arrogantly, as though he was the one who had given Elliot everything he owned.

Elliot glared at him coldly and asked with an even colder tone, "Why didn't you send your eldest son instead?"

An evil smile appeared on Nathan's face.

"Your brother is older and wasn't an appropriate candidate! Besides, the lady took a liking to you right away. She said that not only do you look handsome, but you look witty and smart as well. She had good eyes! Indeed, you've turned out much better than your brother!"

Elliot immediately imagined the scene where he had been picked out like a commodity.

Though disgusted, he realized that if he had not been sent to the Foster family, and did not have access to the lavish lifestyle and well-established education, he would have ended up exactly like Peter White.

"Nathan, give up already. I won't acknowledge you as my father!" Elliot declared sternly.

"Though I don't want to give you a buck, I can consider paying you a sum of money if you agree to leave, given that you disappear entirely from my world!"

Nathan was stunned by the statement and mumbled, "You are only paying me once? Mrs. Foster used to pay me every month! Whatever, she's dead. I can consider it if you give me a handsome amount... How much do you intend on paying me?"

"One—"

"Fifteen million? You are only giving me Fifteen million?!"

Nathan interrupted him angrily before he could finish.

"That's way too little! This might be a large sum of money for ordinary people, you earn millions and billions each year, don't you? How can you be so stingy to your own father? You don't believe that I would sue you? The judge would definitely decide on an even bigger amount!"

Elliot had never seen anyone this shameless in his life.

He suppressed his anger and gritted through his teeth, "Sue me then! Go sue me right now! Let's see which judge dares take your case!"

"Are you threatening me? If I don't obey decide to cause a scene, are you going to kill me?"

Nathan was desperate, but he feared Elliot's power at the same time.

After all, the wounds he got from the last beating still hurt.

"You guessed right."

Elliot's expression darkened into a venomous glare.

"Fight me if you dare," spat Elliot.

Nathan's eyes widened.

Rage burned within him, but he dared not to give voice to his anger.

"Give me the money first!"

"No matter what, I need to get the money first before he goes back on his word," Nathan thought.

Elliot did not waver and stared down at him.

"I never said anything about giving you fifteen million. Look at yourself, do you deserve that much money?"

"Not fifteen million?" Nathan gasped.

"How much then?!"

"1.5 million, at most. Take it or leave it! Go public with our relationship and you won't live to see the next sunrise!" said Elliot.

Nathan had not expected to get so little.

Elliot had underestimated him if he thought that Nathan would agree to such a small sum.

However, it was still money, and he decided that he needed to get his hands on the 1.5 million first.

"Give me the money first! I will go back and consider it!" said Nathan.

Chapter 1015

In Tate Industries, Avery went straight to Mike's office upon arriving at the company's building.

Mike was discussing the details of products with the department manager and immediately walked toward Avery when he spotted her.

"Why are you here out of the blue? You scared me."

Mike entered his office and said, "I thought that you would be at home counting your jewelry!"

Avery ignored his teasing and told him the idea she came up with on the way there.

"We can use the drones to locate Adrian!" Mike's blue eyes lit up.

"I talked to Adrian on the phone just now. He is being imprisoned right now and can't get out, but he can talk on the phone," Avery blurted out in excitement. "I told him to place a red object by the window, and if I send the Seeker Series drones to search—"

"That's one way, but it wastes too much time and effort," thought Mike as he crossed his arms.

"Why don't you just get the address from his family?" said Mike, offering his own suggestion.

"I wouldn't have come up with this if I could reach his family. They aren't answering my calls." Avery's expression darkened.

"But they don't want to cross me either, so they allow Adrian to call me."

"What about calling the police?" Mike asked.

"I have no right or reason to get the police involved," said Avery.

"Adrian is a part of their family, not mine. It's reasonable that they are restricting Adrian's freedom due to his intellectual disability, so the police won't act, unless..."

"Unless what?"

"Unless Elliot gets involved."

Avery sighed.

"I told him that I would settle this on my own. Besides, he's been really busy lately, and I don't want to trouble him. Let me try with the drones first, maybe it will work!"

"Alright, I will help you! If I manage to find Adrian for you, that ought to serve as a wedding gift from me. I don't really know what to get you, anyway."

Mike cursed, "That b*st*rd Elliot bought you so many pieces of jewelry. So what if he is rich??"

"He was under some kind of influence last night."

Avery collected the labels on the jewelry she had received the night before found that they had cost over seven million and five hundred thousand dollars, and that did not even include the gifts he had bought the children.

Elliot was a fearful man when he lost his mind.

Nathan arrived home with 1.5 million and lit a cigarette gloomily.

"Dad, what should we do next?" Peter asked.

He looked sad.

"The money we received from Mrs.Foster exceeded 1.5 million in total! Elliot is so stingy! Does he take us for beggars?!"

"He's powerful! This is Aryadelle; his territory.To him, we are no more than ants, and it will be as easy to squish us.We can't move against him recklessly, or he is really going to kill us."

Nathan took a puff of the cigarette and started plotting the next step.

"Avery called Adrian this morning," Peter said.

"I don't know what they talked about, but they ended the call pretty soon.Avery sure is an interesting woman.She is about to get married, yet her mind is filled with another man, and an idiot of aman no less! we "That idiot is the last leverage we have,"

Nathan mumbled, "At least Adrian is obedient! Elliot acts as if he would die rather than give us some money.We might as well push Adrian up the corporate ladder and make him the boss of Sterling Group!"

"I'm just worried that the Foster family would fight us over Adrian!" Peter scowled.

"Henry Foster is so broke that he has to sell the old residence. What's to fear from that useless man?"

Nathan retorted coldly.

"I am considering if we should talk to Avery.That brat Elliot seems to listen to her!"

Chapter 1016

At noon, Avery had finished work and drove to meet up with Tammy.It was the second time Tammy had an appointment for a therapy session and she appeared to be much more relaxed compared to the last time.

"Maybe it's because Chelsea is dead now that I don't feel as much resentment within me,"

Tammy said casually as she sipped on her coffee, "My psychiatrist told me not to feel inferior because guilt is something that the person who committed wrong should feel."

"Of course. Did you mention that you want a manicure? Let's go to a nail salon later! I want to get my nails painted."

Avery switched to a more casual topic.

Tammy scanned her up and down and asked, "Since when have you started caring so much about your appearance? You are even wearing a necklace today. I dare say you are not wearing it for me, right? Do you have a date with Elliot later?"

Avery couldn't help her smile.

"He's so busy that he barely has the time to eat these days. How could he possibly make time for a date? I've never thought that weddings would be this complicated."

"That's because he doesn't have his parents to help organize," Tammy pointed out, "Just consider my wedding with Jun. Apart from the menu and guest list, we didn't really have to worry about anything else. Usually when a couple gets married, their parents are the ones making all the arrangements. Sadly for the two of you, neither one of you have your parents to rely on."

Avery was instantly overwhelmed by sorrow at the topic.

"Elliot was drunk the night before because of this."

Avery took a deep breath and her lashes trembled as she continued, "Now that you've mentioned it, I really miss my mom. If she's still alive, she would be so happy to see me marrying Elliot and that we have another child together."

"Of course, Auntie would be happy for you. Do you miss your dad?" Tammy asked casually.

Tate Industries was built from scratch by Jack, and after declaring bankruptcy, it was rebuilt by Avery on her own; though it was wrong of him to cheat, but he had corrected his wrong by leaving all that he owned to Avery before his death. Avery remained thoughtful for a few moments shook her head.

"Not really, because the damage he caused my mom was too great. If only he hadn't married Wanda, all the tragedy in our household would have never happened. I might have made a lot of money with the microchip he left me, but even without running the business, I would have been able to live my life just fine."

"I understand you. I wouldn't be able to accept it if my father cheated. Luckily, my parents are still close and I haven't seen them fight at all for many years now,"

Tammy said in amazement, "Maybe I'm this fragile because they did such a great job at protecting me. Avery, I thought about it before and if you went through what I went through, you've probably overcome it by now."

"You don't understand. I've been tip-toeing in that house up until my father passed away. I can still feel that misery and suffering when I think back to it. Maybe the gods are fair, after all, and try their best to test everyone equally."

"Avery, it's all in the past now. Everything is going to work out for us from now on."

"Yeah. Should I paint my nails pink or just transparent?" Avery asked.

"Do both! Who says that you need to have the same color for all your fingers," Tammy said while chuckling, "Can't we get the best of both worlds? You can even get ten different colors for each of your fingers."

Amused, Avery giggled.

"It's my first time getting married, so I'm a bit nervous. My secretary says that brides usually go for pink nail polish, but I feel like keeping it transparent makes it easier to match with clothes, because I need to change into different sets of clothes that day."

Tammy asked curiously, "How did you get married to Elliot before?"

"I was scared the entire time during that wedding so I don't remember most of it."

Avery had tried to recall the details of the wedding multiple times, but her memory was vague.

"He was a vegetable at the time, so did you need to complete the entire wedding on your own?"

"Yeah. He was bound to the bed at the time."

Avery suddenly remembered something.

"That was the day I found out that he had cheated on me. Maybe it was meant to be, after all. Had I not seen him cheating, I would have probably run from the wedding or resort to extreme actions if I couldn't escape. I was too young and reckless back then."

"Phew! That jerk Cole is miles away from Elliot!"

Tammy was glad that Avery had dodged the bullet, and continued gingerly,

"Say, why exactly is Elliot that much more brilliant compared to the other Fosters? My husband looks up to him, so does my father-in-law."

That question caused Avery's heart to sink.

Chapter 1017

Elliot was not like the other Fosters, because he wasn't a Foster. She couldn't tell Tammy that; because Elliot couldn't accept it, so she intended to keep this secret for him.

"What amazed me most is that Hayden is so smart that he is known as a genius in this country!"

Tammy suddenly raised her voice, "Though Layla is rather ordinary when it comes to IQ, she is a genius in art as well! Also...Robert might not be able to walk yet, but I heard that he's learnt to bark like a dog. That kid is going to be accomplished in the future!"

Avery was quite proud when Tammy was complementing Hayden and Layla, but why did it sound so different when she was talking about Robert? When did learning to bark like a dog mean that someone was going to be accomplished?

After lunch, the two went to a nail salon.

"Elliot has a lot of single friends so it's easy for him to pick the best man." Avery scowled.

"Most of my good friends are married."

"Choose amongst your relatives then!"

"I might well find a female employee from my company!"

Avery responded carelessly, "When my family went bankrupt, my relatives all cut ties with me in fear that I would borrow money from them."

Three hours later, the two walked out of the nail salon and Tammy was on the phone.

Avery waited until she was done with the call and asked, "Do you have a guest?"

"My mother-in-law came. She said she brought a lot of supplements and told me to take them regularly,"

Tammy said, "Ever since Jun spilled that I can still get pregnant, my mother-in-law has become assertive again."

"Go back then! No matter what they say, don't pressure yourself."

"I know. It's late so don't go back to the office now. Go home!"

"Yeh.I am going to go home."

The two went their separate ways and Avery drove back to Starry River Villa.

Along the way, her phone rang and she thought it was Elliot.

She picked up her phone and noticed Nathan's name on the screen, so she immediately stopped the car by the road.

"Avery, you are quite close to Elliot Foster, right? I heard that you two have three kids?"

Before Avery could say anything, Nathan confronted her.

A bad premonition rose within Avery's heart thought, 'Why is he asking all these questions?!'

Chapter 1018

"Nathan, let's meet!" Avery must meet him and find out the real purpose of his coming to Aryadelle, otherwise, he will be a hidden danger! Is a huge fuse!

Nathan laughed out loud then said, "Okay, but you can't tell Elliot about our meeting. Otherwise, it's only Elliot who is unlucky!"

Avery was exhausted and Said, "You also said you didn't know Elliot! I asked you before if you knew him, and you refused that you didn't know him!"

"I didn't lie to you, I didn't know him before but only after we came here."

Nathan's tone was frivolous. Cunningly, "Why are you so excited? Is it strange that I met Elliot? Or do you think he is a high-level immortal, and we ordinary people can't approach him? Hahaha!"

Avery suppressed the discomfort in her heart and said. "Let's meet again!

Where are you now? I'll find you!"

Nathan said, "No need! Give me your address, and I'll find you."

Avery sighed inwardly, this man knows that he is afraid of revealing his location what!

.....

In the evening, Star River Villa.

Hayden came back from school today earlier than usual. He completed the learning tasks assigned by the teacher ahead of time. Besides, he wanted to go home to see what gift Elliot gave him.

When his mother told him about it in the morning, he instinctively avoided it, so he didn't see the gift. In fact, he had something in his heart that he wanted to see.

When he got home, Layla ran towards him as if she saw a surprise!

Layla said enthusiastically, proposing, "Brother! You're back so early today! I'm so happy to see you! Let's push my brother out in a stroller! I take him out to play every day, so He likes me the most!"

Hayden came back early, not to bring the children.

He grimly rejected Layla's proposal.

"Brother, are you going to do your homework? I want to do homework too! Let's do homework together!" Layla watched her brother go upstairs and ran upstairs, "By the way, brother, you still pay for the gift that Dad bought for you. Didn't you see it?"

An unnatural look flashed on Hayden's face, "Mom told me this morning."

Layla held her wrist and said, "I know, but you didn't open it at all. I'll take you with me. Let's go and see!"

The siblings entered the room.

Layla took Hayden to the storage box where the materials were kept. She pointed to the brand-new copybook inside, "Here, this is the gift that Dad bought for you!"

Hayden looked at the copybook. His deep and bright eyes widened and opened again. He was unbelievable, unexpected, and at a loss! He was furious!

What kind of gift is this? !

Did Elliot dislike his ugly words, so he bought copybooks to laugh at him?

Hayden raised his foot and kicked the storage box!

Layla frowned when she saw the storage box being kicked open, and exclaimed, "Brother, what are you kicking the box for? Don't you like the copybooks that Dad bought for you? But mom bought you copybooks before, you weren't angry before. You don't like Dad, but you can't kick things!"

Hayden's face was gloomy: "Layla, you go out!"

Layla bulged her apricot eyes and shouted angrily: "Go out and go out! I don't want to see you again. Such a fierce brother!"

Downstairs, Mrs. Cooper heard the fierce quarrel between the siblings and hurried upstairs.

Hayden and Layla have always had a good relationship. Although there are occasional bickering, they have never had such a violent quarrel.

Chapter 1019

By the time Mrs. Cooper arrived upstairs, she spotted Layla struggling to drag an enormous box out of the room.

"Layla, what are you doing?"

She hurried over and squatted down to Layla's eye level.

Layla's eyes reddened and tears started rolling down her face as soon as she started talking.

"Hayden is angry. He shouted at me!"

"Don't cry, don't cry! Hayden will calm down soon, so stop crying now or your eyes will start hurting."

Mrs.Cooper frantically wiped away Layla's tears and asked, "Why are you moving this box outside?"

"Hayden doesn't like it..."

Layla murmured sadly and cried even harder.

Hayden felt even more irritated when he heard Layla crying.

Following a 'baam!', Hayden slammed the door shut and locked it from the inside.

Mrs.Cooper was alarmed by the locked door.

Though Hayden was a quiet boy who wasn't good at communicating with others, he had always been very understanding and had never acted out like this before.

She lowered her gaze at the box and immediately came to realize what happened when she saw the workbooks.

"Don't cry, Layla! Let's go downstairs first! I will call your mom right away and your brother won't be mad anymore once she comes home."

Mrs.Cooper carried Layla downstairs with a heavy heart.

Once they were on the ground floor, she found her phone and called Avery.

Just then, Avery heard her phone ringing and picked it up to find Mrs.Cooper's name on the screen; she was just about to answer the call when she saw the smiling face of Nathan and immediately hung up the phone.

"Avery, I heard that you called my younger son today.Do you like him that much?"

Nathan's expression seemed more devilish when he smiled.

"Nathan White, just what exactly are you trying to accomplish by moving your entire family here?"

Avery took a deep breath, but she couldn't seem to suppress the fear she felt deep within her. What are you trying to do?!"

The fear deepened slowly but surely the more she looked at Nathan's face.

"It's so scary when you stare at me like that!"

Nathan seemed to have seen right through her thoughts teased, "You've suspected it long ago, haven't you? Back when you asked if I knew Elliot Foster in Bridgedale, you started having doubts about this, right?"

Avery's blood ran cold.

Nathan laughed arrogantly.

"You doctors have sharp eyes! You were able to tell that brat looks like me!

Unlike Elliot, not only did he insist on performing a paternity test, he still refuses to acknowledge me as his father even after the test results came back. Haha! "

"You...you two went for a paternity test?!"

She stuttered in a hoarse voice.

"When was that?! When was that??"

Nathan felt satisfied at the anxious expression on Avery's face.

He stretched his back lazily and said, "A few days back. The results came out this morning. If it's up to me, I wouldn't bother with a paternity test! We look so alike that even an outsider like you can tell that we are related, it's not like he couldn't tell the same, otherwise how did he even end up being the boss of Sterling Group? He just didn't want to face reality! Now that the truth is out, there's no way he is getting out of it!"

Avery panted heavily as though she was drowning.

So Elliot had met with Nathan the night he got drunk; Nathan had gone to him with the truth about his background, and that was the reason why he drank on his own.

Elliot had not mentioned a word to her, just like how she had not talked to him about it since she found out.

He had spent so much money on gifts for her and the children because that was him trying to relieve the pain somehow.

The thought made her feel like someone had tied a noose around her neck.

She picked up the glass on the table and took a big gulp of water, before setting it down.

"You went to him for money, right? How much do you want? How much would it take for you to leave?!" She roared.

Chapter 1020

Nathan's eyes glammed, he was both surprised and pleased that Avery cut to the chase.

"I told Elliot to give me 15 million..."

"15 million?"

Desperate to end the torture, she interrupted him and said, "I'll pay you!"

Nathan burst out laughing.

"You are so short-tempered! Do you hate me this much? If the two of you act like you hate me, it's hard for me to leave."

Avery flushed and threatened, "Stay and see if Elliot would kill you!"

She knew that when facing shameless men like Nathan, the only way to control them was to be more vicious than they were; besides, it was not entirely a threat.

If he overstepped the boundaries, there was a high chance that Elliot would kill him.

The smile faded from Nathan's face.

It was bad enough to be threatened by Elliot, but to be threatened by his soon-to-be daughter-in-law was humiliating.

"Tell him to come kill me then! If he kills me, my eldest son will make sure that everyone in this country knows what a barbaric beast Elliot Foster is!"

Nathan shouted.

Avery glanced at the door to the private room and was instantly relieved that the waiters did not hear them. She had chosen to meet with him in private precisely to avoid being overheard if they started fighting.

"Once everyone knows, and then what?"

Avery calmed herself and questioned sharply, "With Elliot's power and status in Aryadelle, it's easy to kill you off without anyone knowing! If your son dares to cause a scene in Aryadelle, he would end up just like you! Take the money and leave! That's your best way out!"

"Fine! I agree to take the money and leave! I will leave if you give me 15 million each month!"

Nathan leaned back against the chair with an expression that clearly stated 'pay or I will fight you to the end'.

Avery gasped at his audacity and exclaimed in her mind, '15 million a month?!

Does he think of Elliot and me as ATMs? Even if we have the means to make money, we can't possibly just hand it out for nothing! All money is hard-earned money, so who does Nathan think he is to just take it from someone that easily? He has never even raised Elliot. He doesn't deserve that much money!

"Tsk ts! You two are so stingy! I did my research I know you are rich!"

Nathan said enviously, "If you two refuse to pay, then..."

"I have one condition!"

Avery swiftly made the decision after a brief moment of thought.

"Give Adrian to me! You don't even treat him like a human-being, so hand him over to me!"

"How are we not treating him like a human-being?"

Nathan gaped and said, "Speak properly. Why are you insulting us? He is my youngest son!"

"He is Shea's brother. Do I really need to say that out loud?"

Avery no longer wanted to beat around the bushes with him.

"You swapped Adrian with Elliot, otherwise, how would you explain how Elliot ended up as the Foster's young master?"

An evil smile appeared on Nathan's face.

"Nothing goes unnoticed by you, Doctor Tate! If you know that Adrian is the true young master of the Foster Family, then you should know that 15 million a month would not suffice. The young master of the Foster Family is worth a lot; why else would I keep him well-fed up until now?"

Avery's temple started to hurt.

"An extra 15 million and I will hand Adrian over to you. I will take my children back to Bridgedale, how does that sound?"

Nathan summoned up the courage and voiced out the request.

30 million a month would add up to 360 million, that's a better life than some CEOs of small enterprises; it was enough for him to live out the rest of his life in luxury.

"Baam!" Avery slammed her palms onto the table and got up. There was no point in continuing the meeting or the conversation. It was the bottom line for her to offer Nathan 15 million a month; if Nathan had accepted it, nothing would have happened.

She knew that Nathan had called her only because he failed to negotiate with Elliot.

Elliot was much richer than her and the only possible reason that Elliot refused to pay Nathan had to be that he couldn't get past himself, not because of the money.

Chapter 1021

'What kind of a father is Nathan? Is he even a man?! Who does he think he is?!' She thought.

Once Avery left, Nathan took a gulp of liquor gloomily, thinking, 'Have I asked for too much? 360 million each year wasn't much! It's barely a few digits off Elliot's annual income!'

Avery felt even more frustrated by the time she walked out of the restaurant. She had finally gotten the whole story and if she couldn't satisfy Nathan, he would definitely go after Elliot again.

'That old bast*rd, let him get his as* kicked by Elliot!' She thought,

'Though...Elliot must be really troubled right now'

As she drove home, she put on her bluetooth earphone to call Elliot, dying to hear his voice.

She unlocked her phone and was surprised to see a message from Mrs. Cooper.

'Hayden and Layla got into a fight. It's bad. Hurry home once you are free'

She saw stars before her eyes as soon as she read the message.

Avery set her phone down and took her earphones off, before racing back.

In the living room of Starry River Villa, Layla held onto the box while squatting on the floor, sulking as she quietly wiped away her own tears.

Mrs. Cooper remained outside the door of the children's room to talk to Hayden, but there was no response at all.

Luckily for them, Robert was not crying or throwing a tantrum at the moment as he was nibbling at snacks and playing with his toys in the crib.

Shortly after, Avery hurried back. She hadn't had time to change her shoes and strode directly into the living room.

When she saw how upset Layla was, she immediately took her daughter into her arms.

"What's wrong, Darling? Why did you fight with your brother?"

Avery noticed the workbooks as she spoke, and said, "Was it because of these?"

"Hayden didn't like Dad's gift and kicked at the box. I said that's not right so he shouted for me to get out."

Layla lowered her eyes with tears still lingering on her long lashes.

Avery could already pictur e how furious her son was from Layla's gloomy tone.

"Okay. I will go find Hayden now. Stay right here don't cry anymore. Go eat first if you are hungry and I will catch up with you soon."

Avery put Layla down and strode towards the stairs.

"Mom, Hayden locked the door from the inside," Layla reminded her.

"Yeah. It's okay. I will get him to open the door."

Mrs. Cooper heard the noises from upstairs and alerted Hayden through the door.

"Hayden, your mom is home."

As soon as that was said, the door was opened.

Avery walked up the stairs and Mrs. Cooper approached her, before whispering,

"I will go down first. Try talking to Hayden."

After Mrs. Cooper left, Avery strode into the children's room and saw Hayden sitting in front of his desk with his jaw clenched and his lips pursed.

"Hayden Tate, you are not a three-year-old anymore and I can't keep trying to please you like I would a three-year-old."

Avery was in a horrible mood and her patience for the children had ran out.

"It's up to you to not like your father's gift, but you didn't have to throw a tantrum over something like this."

Hayden froze.

He had not expected for his mother to be this stern and it felt as though Avery had chosen to take Elliot's side instead of his.

Unable to accept it, Hayden grabbed his school bag and stormed out so swiftly that Avery felt a breeze brushing by her.

Chapter 1022

It was the first time Avery had a face-off with her son.

In truth, she had regretted what she said the moment the words were out.

Though her son was not a three-year-old, he was still a child who was not even ten years old; no matter how old a child was, they would always long for their mothers' love and embrace, just like how Avery would still act like a child to Laura when she was alive.

How could she bring home the frustration she felt because of Nathan and vent it on her children? Just as she was about to go after Hayden, he had already left the mansion.

Avery went downstairs to find that the entire living room had erupted into chaos.

"Layla, don't cry. I've already sent the bodyguard after him. He's going to be fine."

Mrs. Cooper held Robert in her arms and consoled Layla.

Avery was completely distraught.

While she was contemplating whether to calm her children down at home first, or to go after Hayden first, Layla came over for a hug.

"Mom, did you scold Hayden?"

Avery felt a lump in her throat.

"Maybe! I'm in a bit of a bad mood tonight, so I might have been a bit too harsh with your brother."

"Boohoo...I don't want Hayden to go! Mom, let's go find him!" Layla wiped away her tears and tried to drag Avery outside.

Just as the two were about to go look for Hayden, their bodyguard called Mrs.Cooper.

Mrs.Cooper answered the call and said, "Yes, yes."

Before hanging up.

"Avery, the bodyguard told you not to worry.He is following Hayden so Hayden's going to be fine.Once he's had some time to calm down, the bodyguard will bring him back," Mrs.Cooper said to Avery.

Avery nodded.

"I was being too harsh on him."

"Don't blame yourself, Avery.Even if you were trying to be strict, just how harsh could you be? Hayden is the one who's overreacting,"

Mrs.Cooper said with a serious expression, 'He probably thinks that his father got him those workbooks to mock him for his handwriting.

The relationship between father and son works differently than that of a mother and daughter.

Avery felt inspired.

Elliot probably did not expect for Hayden to react so dramatically when he bought the workbook; but to Hayden, the action itself felt mostly like a challenge.

"Next time, tell Mr.Foster to ask you before picking out a gift for Hayden to avoid doing the wrong thing with a good intention.It's the first time I've seen

Layla BAK"]sLM Hayden fight like this, my heart just aches for them."

Mrs.Cooper sighed.

"Sure.I will remind him of that."

Avery took Layla to the bathroom to wash her face and the mansion soon returned to its original peaceful silence.

"Mom, you said that you are in a bad mood.Why?"

Layla had stopped crying, but her voice was still hoarse.

"It's just something that happened at work.Don't worry about it."

Avery forced a smile and patted Layla on the head.

"When Hayden gets angry next time, let's give him a hug before we lecture him, okay?" Layla nodded sincerely.

"I'll remember that, Mom."

After dinner, the sky had turned completely dark.

Avery looked up at the pitch-dark sky and decided to go out searching for Hayden.

As soon as she stepped out of the community, she spotted Hayden sitting on a street bench with the bodyguard.

The guilt within her deepened.

Even if the bodyguard didn't follow Hayden, she knew that Hayden wouldn't wander off.

'He's still so young, where exactly can he go?' She thought, 'He's always been a good child and on this rare occasion that he lost his temper, why couldn't I just be more forgiving?' She strode towards Hayden and admitted her mistake.

"I'm sorry, Hayden.I shouldn't have lost my temper, neither should I think that it's a small matter.Hayden's brows furrowed and pursed his lips wordlessly.

"The last time I talked to your dad, I mentioned that you are struggling with your handwriting. He probably paid attention to that and bought you the workbooks. He's not mocking you or trying to undermine you, he's just trying to help you improve; he just didn't use the correct way and failed to consider your feelings."

Avery knew that Hayden might not be in the mood to listen, but she had to say it.

It was the first time Elliot had the chance to be a father, so he was bound to fail in certain ways; so long as his love for the children was real, Avery would never stop him from trying.

Hayden did not respond, and Avery did not continue to explain.

Chapter 1023

The mother and son sat on the branch quietly and after half an hour, Hayden's muffled voice was heard saying, "Mom, let's go home."

Avery was slightly stunned for a moment, but she immediately got up and held his hand tightly.

The conflict earlier had taken place because of Elliot, who hadn't a clue about it, and Avery had told Mrs. Cooper to not inform him.

Elliot already had his hands full dealing with the wedding and Nathan White, Avery didn't want him to worry over mundane details.

At around ten at night, she walked out of the shower and stared at the empty bed, only to realize that she was not tired at all. She just missed Elliot badly.

When he was here, he would talk to her about what happened during the day and discuss matters of education the children receive, or dream of the future with her.

Though they had been together for a long time, there were simply endless topics that they could talk about.

She sighed quietly and wondered what he was doing.

Half an hour later, she appeared outside the door of Elliot's mansion.

When the bodyguard opened the door for her, she said, 'Don't inform Elliot.'

The bodyguard instantly took the hint that Avery wanted to surprise Elliot.

Avery went into the mansion easily and when Mrs. Scarlet saw her, instead of asking why she was there, she simply let Avery upstairs.

"Mr. Foster is still awake, probably working on details for the wedding."

"Okay, go ahead and rest! I won't be leaving tonight," Avery replied shyly.

Mrs. Scarlet flushed and immediately left.

In the study room on the second floor, Elliot scowled as he relived all the memories he shared with Avery; his long fingers danced over the keyboard and typed.

He was writing their wedding vows. He had long finished his own vow and was stuck on Avery's vow. He had told Avery to write her own vow and she did, but he wasn't satisfied with it. He, a past student of science, wrote close to a thousand words for his vows, while as a past student of literature, Avery wrote only a hundred words.

By the time they read their vows on stage, he wasn't even sure who would feel more awkward, so he intended on her now.

After all, he only intended on getting married this once.

Someone knocked on the door and his thoughts were interrupted.

He had told Mrs. Scarlet to not bother him before he headed upstairs, could something have happened? Just then, the door was pushed open and Avery's smiling face appeared before him.

His world instantly lit up.

His brows relaxed and his lips curled into a smile.

"Why are you here? Did you call? My phone was on silent mode so I probably didn't hear."

He strode towards her as he spoke and took her hand in his palm.

"Luckily, I didn't call you." She glanced at his desk.

"It's late now. What are you working on?"

Chapter 1024

His heart twitched at the question and he immediately tried to pull Avery out of the study room.

Avery noticed he was trying to hide something and released his hand to walk toward his desk.

"How's the wedding venue coming? When's the rehearsal? Have you taken any videos today?" She asked as she went to sit down on his leather chair.

As soon as she sat down, the document on his laptop came into sight.

"Ahem!" Her face flushed as she cleared her throat awkwardly.

"I think your vow is too brief so I'm trying to extend it.

"A faint pink shade crept up Elliot's handsome-looking face as he reached his arm over to close the laptop. Avery stopped him and gazed up.

"I will write it myself! I thought you needed it fast so I didn't put much effort into it. I will be able to write a much longer vow if I try again."

"you don't really need a long vow. Just be sincere enough to move me," he stated his minimum requirement.

Her brows twitched at the request.

"Why? Is that so difficult?" He asked in a hoarse voice when he noticed her frowning.

She smiled and shook her head.

"I just like that it's so easy! I wouldn't want to marry you if I didn't love you, right?"

"Okay. Carry on, then. I will go take a shower. I hope to see a vow that satisfies me by the time I'm done."

He looked at her gently and tapped her on the shoulder like he was entrusting her with an important mission.

Avery instantly felt that a heavy responsibility had landed on her shoulder.

"Take your time..."

"Sure, I will try my best to slow down."

After he had left the study room, she found his vow out of curiosity.

Ten minutes later, she was utterly moved after reading his vow.

When Elliot came out of the shower, he spotted Avery laying on the bed, playing with her phone.

"You're done with your shower?" She gazed up at him.

"Are you done with your vow?"

He dried his hair with a towel and stared at her in confusion through his fringe.

She took the laptop off the nightstand and showed him the screen.

"The vow you wrote is great. I am so moved that I might cry. I'm a bit worried that your vow is too long though, you will be exhausted to read all of it out, so just split five hundred words to my vow. That way, my vow is considered completed," she suggested.

She did not write a single word down decided to get Elliot to share half of his vow with her so that her vow would be as touching as Elliot's vow.

Elliot had not expected her to come up with such an idea.

At that moment, he wasn't sure if he should compliment her for being smart or get angry at her for being lazy.

"What's wrong? Aren't we getting married? If you won't even share five hundred words with me, why are we even getting married?"

Avery noticed that he was stunned, and teased.

Elliot tossed the towel aside and lowered his gaze.

"What brought you here tonight?"

"I just felt like it. Do I need your permission to come in here?"

She continued to tease him, "Even your bodyguard knows to open the door without needing to inform you when he sees me. How understanding!"

"Alright, I will give him a raise."

He picked up the watch he set down on the nightstand before he went to shower and checked the time.

"Are the kids asleep? "

"I turned off all the lights, anyway. Not sure if they are really asleep, though. Those two love to chat through the night."

Avery had not tried eavesdropping on them, but Layla had told her about it before.

"By the way, did you pass the workbooks I bought for Hayden to him?"

Elliot scowled and continued, "I thought about it and I feel like it's not really that appropriate of a gift."

Elliot thought back to when he was a student and realized that he would have held a grudge against anyone who gave him workbooks or study materials as gifts.

Avery smiled gently and shook her head.

"It's fine. Just let me know the next time you want to buy something for them. I can give you some ideas."

"Sure."

"Your hair is still wet, let me blow-dry your hair for you."

Avery set her phone down to retrieve the blow- dryer and soon returned from the bathroom with it.

Chapter 1025

She plugged the blow- dryer in and walked towards him.

He opened his arm and wrapped them around her waist.

Her heart throbbed, feeling as though she was being surrounded by a love that was both gentle and heavy.

She could sense the heat on his skin through his clothes, and soon, she started to feel his breath on her as well.

"Elliot, have you been feeling really exhausted?" She asked.

"Yes, but it's worth it," he drawled and breathed deeply as he entered a relaxed state.

"Close your eyes, then, and don't think about anything."

"Okay."

She switched on the blow-dryer and ran her fingers through his hair; the warm wind was sleep- inducing and though his hair dried thoroughly shortly after, she didn't have the heart to turn it off because she could feel like he had fallen asleep while leaning against her.

The weight of his body was pressed against her and she realized that she would have said yes if Nathan had asked for 30 million a month at this very moment, she might have agreed.

She wanted to help Elliot with his problems to relieve him of the stress; but if she paid Nathan behind Elliot's back, he would be mad, so she was stuck at a crossroads.

At night, she laid awake dazedly through the faint moonlight.

Taking into consideration Elliot's power, Nathan had no means to force Elliot into acknowledging him as his father even if he tried, so Nathan was not the biggest threat.

The biggest threat was Adrian.

It wasn't that Adrian would do anything to Elliot, but once the truth of them switching identities came out, so would the truth of the murder of Eason Foster. Even if Elliot had the power to control Aryadelle, his reputation would still suffer over the publication of scandal after scandal.

Tears rolled down her face silently, leaving behind a cooling sensation.

She took a deep breath to relieve her heavy heart. She had to protect Elliot from facing all these on his own; which was why she had to find Adrian and keep him away from Nathan.

Though Nathan was Elliot's biological father, he only wanted money had no interest in the family.

If Elliot refused to fulfill his requirement, he could go on a suicide mission to destroy Elliot.

In the dark, Elliot instantly woke up to the sound of someone sobbing miserably. He immediately woke up from the daze when he recognized that it was Avery's voice and sat up right away. He turned on the lights and looked over to the woman next to him, who was sobbing while covering her face.

"Avery! Avery, what's wrong?!"

His heart ached at the sight as he pulled her hands away from her face.

"Are you hurt anywhere? Don't cry, talk to me!"

"I...I'm fine...I had a nightmare..."

She had not been asleep at all.

The thought of the possibility that the happiness she finally found with Elliot could be destroyed at any moment had brought her to tears. She didn't want to wake him, but she simply couldn't help herself.

"What kind of nightmare? You seem so upset."

He gently wiped away her tears with his fingertip and continued guiltily, "Have I been too busy and neglected you?"

Chapter 1026

She shook her head frantically with tears in her eyes.

"No...Elliot, it's not you...It's really just a nightmare."

Seeing how desperately she tried to explain, he nodded and asked, "Tell me then, what nightmare did you have?"

She took a deep breath to slowly calm herself down.

"I dreamt of the day of our wedding. We were standing in the church surrounded by guests and I was really excited. Suddenly, the roof of the church was lifted and following a blinding ray of light, a gigantic black monster appeared and reached its enormous claw out, before taking you away with it..."

She couldn't help but start sobbing once again.

Elliot believed her and studied her empathetically, "Avery, it's just a dream. It's not real. There's no gigantic monster in this world. Even if there was one, I would kill it before it can take me."

She sighed a breath of relief after seeing his face right next to her.

"Yeah. That dream just seemed so real, so I couldn't help myself. I feel much better to see you next to me now."

"I will hold you while you sleep."

He turned off the light and lay down next to her, before pulling her into his arms.

Avery leaned against his chest and the sorrow she felt slowly faded as his familiar scent surrounded her.

She had come to Elliot's house tonight not only because she missed him, but also to see if he was affected by Nathan's threat.

If Elliot felt troubled by Nathan, he wouldn't have been able to conceal it, but she had not been able to pick up the slightest hint of fear or anxiety from Elliot. Did that mean that Elliot did not view Nathan as a threat at all? She drifted off to sleep, but Elliot remained awake.

The sound of her crying still lingered in his mind; it sounded so helpless that Elliot wondered if it was a sign of insecurity.

Was it the normal premarital anxiety, or had she been hiding something from him? He thought back to the recent events of her life.

She did not take part in organizing the wedding, so apart from working at the office and meeting up with Tammy occasionally, all she did was keep the children company.

"No...there's Adrian White" he thought, 'She said that Adrian was in Aryadelle she's looking for him"

Adrian had the same condition as Shea, and Avery had mentioned that his family was cruel to him though she didn't know his family in person.

Elliot had paid Adrian no attention so far, but he suddenly started getting suspicious.

The day he was brought into the Foster Family, the real young master of the Foster Family was taken away.

Where was the young master Foster in the present? Adrian's family name was White and so was Nathan.

A chilling premonition rose within him.

The next morning, one of the Seeker Series drones rose into the air from the ground steadily.

Mike had rented a room in the area where Adrian was in to set up the control panel.

He had made a promise to Avery, and he wanted to deliver it properly.

Chad heard of his plan and took a day off to come help.

"This place is so close to Mr.Foster's house, why don't we just borrow his guest room?" Chad asked.

"I am looking for a guy for Avery, do you think it's appropriate for me to go to your boss's place?"

After testing all the equipment, Mike controlled the drone and flew it towards the residential area swiftly.

"Who's Avery looking for?"

"A patient of hers from Bridgedale.White...I think."

"Oh, how are we doing this? Teach me and I'll help you look."

Chad stared at the screen without sparing a moment to blink.

Chapter 1027

"Avery said that she told her patient to leave something red by the window.Just check to see if you find any red objects next to anyone's window, and I will go find him,"

Mike said and took out a photo, "Here, this is a photo of the guy."

Chad looked at the photo for a few moments and exclaimed, "Why does this person look so familiar?"

"I knew you were going to say that.Don't you think he looks like Shea?"

Mike said, "Avery agreed to treat him because of that."

Chad took the photo into his hand for a closer look.

"They do look kind of similar, but up close, not that alike."

"Let's discuss when we find him! He's a poor guy, being locked in the house without any freedom." Mike scowled.

"Avery is just too nosy, but that's what I like about her."

"It's not like it's affecting her own life. It's nice to do good deeds that are within one's capability."

In a certain residential area, Peter's sister spotted a drone in the sky when she was hanging the clothes and called out, "Peter, there's a drone out there!"

"What's so strange about a drone?"

"That drone is going really slow. I wonder what it is doing. It's coming over here."

Peter scowled at her words and strode towards the window.

When he saw the drone approaching, he was instantly alarmed and hurried over to Adrian to push the door open.

Adrian was standing by the window, staring at the drone outside while waving at it with all his might.

Peter gasped and rushed over to pull Adrian back.

"You called for that drone?! That drone was sent by Avery, right? Avery's company manufactures drones! I was wondering why a drone would be seen here, so you two have been plotting all along!"

Provoked, Peter shoved Adrian down to the ground and shut the window hastily.

As he was doing so, he spotted the flashy red t-shirt outside the window and opened the window to take it inside.

"Haha! You fool, how dare you play games with me? I was wondering why you've been so obedient, so you have been waiting for Avery to come to find you! It's a good thing that I found out in time!" Peter said kicked Adrian.

Adrian dodged the attack and crawled up to run towards the window.

"Stop running away!" Peter grabbed him.

"You are not getting any food today if you don't listen to me! Starve yourself to death and see if Avery can revive you!"

Adrian panted angrily as he attempted to fight, but he was no match for Peter. He had gone through surgery not long ago and because he had been kept indoors the entire time, his physical state was weaker than most.

Just then, the door was pushed open and Nathan stepped in with a dark expression.

"What are you all fuzzing over?"

"Dad! Did you see the drone out there? Avery sent it here to look for Adrian! Had I not found out in time, she would have found him by now!"

Peter blurted out, "We need to move!"

"That b*tch Avery, it's bad enough that she refused to pay me, now she's trying to take Adrian from me! I've been underestimating her!" Peter agreed.

"People around Elliot couldn't possibly be that easy to deal with. If they take Adrian away from us, they wouldn't have to pay us a penny! So long as they stand firm and deny your identity, no one can make them do anything!"

Nathan's expression darkened and clenched his fists, before punching Adrian in the stomach.

"We are moving tonight!"

In Elliot's house, Avery woke up at noon.

She walked downstairs drowsily in her pajamas, and instantly, countless eyes turned to look at her from the living room.

Chapter 1028

Avery froze. She had not expected Elliot to have guests over.

Elliot had never had the habit of inviting guests over, and because the others weren't speaking out loud, she had not heard them at all before she went downstairs.

Avery's face flushed three seconds after being stared at by the others and she immediately turned around to head back upstairs.

She had been quiet when she went down the stairs, but extremely loud when she headed back up.

Back in the living room, the others looked away.

"Elliot, that's the woman you are marrying this time? "

"Isn't that the same woman? Have you forgotten that she almost killed you?"

"I was wondering why she looked so familiar? She was the same woman from last time? Elliot, you sure are loyal!"

"It's not like that. That woman gave birth to Elliot's children. Three of them!

That's not bad!"

"But Elliot doesn't like kids!"

"Hahaha! He doesn't like others' kids, but he's bound to like his own, right?"

The others discussed cheerfully in front of Elliot; while Elliot blushed and listened to their comments calmly.

He and Avery had already set aside all their resentment from the past.

Upstairs, Avery had already arrived outside the bedroom door when she came to a sudden realization and stopped.

She remembered that she had seen the people in the living room before, in the mansion in the forest.

Though some of them were strangers, she had seen a few of the men in the mansion before.

'Why are those people here? Did Elliot invite them, or did they show up on their own? What are their relationships with Elliot?' She thought.

Instinctively, she felt that those were not decent people, because there was someone she knew in their group, but that person wasn't in the living room just now.

That person had gone to Professor Hough for treatment before and she was the professor's assistant during the surgery.

She knew about the man's background: a businessman who benefited from businesses that were in the gray area of the law of Bridgedale.

As a doctor, one couldn't choose whether to treat a patient based on their nature; sometimes, a doctor wouldn't even get to know if their patient was a good person until after the surgery.

She was far too curious about why those people had come to visit Elliot.

She took her slippers off snuck downstairs bare-footed, intending to hide around the corner of the stairs to eavesdrop.

"Elliot, I heard that your two eldest kids are not inheriting your family name, how can you put up with that?"

One of the men raised his voice furiously, as though he was talking about his own children.

"After you and Avery get married, those kids are going to change their surname, right? How can you let them inherit a woman's surname? Everyone is going to mock you if word gets out about this! In our country, when a woman marries a man, she changes her surname to her husband's! It's bad enough that you are not asking her to change her name, but you have to change the kids' names!"

Another man protested out of concern for Elliot.

"I don't care if my kids share my family name, so long as they are my kids," Elliot said.

"How can you not care? You are being taken advantage of! It's not like you don't have money, or have issues finding another woman! Dump her and you can find other women to give birth to thirty children that share your family name!"

".."

Both Elliot and Avery were rendered speechless.

"Yeah! What's with your taste in women? That Avery knows no manners! She didn't even say hi when she saw us just now, who does she think she is?"

"She has no manners! Considering what she's done to you so far, she has always been that arrogant! How can you put up with a woman like that?"

"Elliot, dump her and we will introduce better women to you. You won't even have to delay your scheduled wedding day."

"Yeah! My sister has always liked you. Not only is she prettier than Avery, but her figure is also perfect! She is definitely going to make you happy!"

"It's fine. Avery and I have been in love with each other for many years and I don't want anyone but her," Elliot refused politely.

Around the corner by the stairs, Avery squatted down and heard every word Elliot said.

She knew she should feel touched, but all she could think of was all the hideous comments his friends said.

'What do they mean by saying that I'm rude?' She thought.

Was it called manners to say hi to them when she was in her pajamas and hadn't even washed up? Someone even mentioned that they wanted to introduce their sister to Elliot and asked him to replace the bride.

'How hateful!' She cursed inwardly and gritted her teeth.

'If I don't show them, they are going to think that they can just get away with bullying me!' She stood up and stomped on the floor on purpose to let them know that she had been eavesdropping.

As she had expected, the living room fell into silence as soon as the others heard the footsteps.

They looked away after the footsteps disappeared into the distance.

"I thought she went up. Whose footsteps were those?"

One of the men said in confusion.

"Is there another woman as rude as her in here?"

The other person pointed out that Avery was the one who made the sound.

"Just wait here. I'll go check upstairs."

Elliot kept all his laughter in and stood up from the couch.

Upstairs, Avery looked through Elliot's closet to look for clothes. She had come over in her pajamas the night before. She remembered putting her clothes here before, but after searching for a while, she could not find any woman's clothing.

"Whatever. My sleeping gown looks good enough. I just need to put my underwear on, wash up and comb my hair, then I'm ready to head down and retaliate!" Elliot entered the bedroom as she was brushing her teeth.

"Avery, did you rest well?"

He walked into the bathroom and asked.

She rinsed her mouth and set the cup down to glare at him.

"What's with all those weirdos downstairs?"

"What weirdos? Those are my friends from the past. They heard that I'm getting married and came to congratulate me," he replied gently while smiling.

"Stop smiling! I heard everything they said just now!"

Avery roared sternly, "Don't think that I've forgotten about who those people are! Those aren't good people! How did you come to know them? Why haven't you cut ties with them? Do you intend on continuing to be involved in illegal acts?"

"Avery, it's not what you think. Every country has different laws. Something could be illegal in our country but legal in other countries. If they really were criminals, how could they get here safely?"

"But I'm not about to stand idly by while they talk about me like that! If you don't chase them out now, I'm going to show them when I get downstairs," Avery warned.

Chapter 1030

A while later, Elliot and Avery walked down the stairs and the others stared sternly at their entwined hands.

"Let's head out to eat!" Elliot walked towards them.

"If we depart now, we will arrive at the hotel in time."

"Sure! But is she going out dressed like this?"

Someone stared at the way Avery was dressed and said, "Elliot, don't you think that it's embarrassing for you if she walks out dressing like that?"

Elliot scanned Avery up and down. She was wearing a sleeping gown that was slightly creased at the bottom and a pair of flat slippers.

Though it was a casual outfit, it was also a refreshing one; on top of that, he didn't have a change of clothes for her and she was hungry, so going out to eat became his first priority.

Elliot glanced at Avery and did not respond to the man.

Avery looked at the man with a smile.

"I don't want to trouble everyone. Whoever thinks it's embarrassing to eat with me, you may be excused from eating with us later."

The others' wanted to argue, but they weren't certain about what to say.

If Elliot wasn't concerned about how she was dressed, what could the others say? Seeing that they weren't speaking, Avery looked at Elliot and said, "Let's go! I'm so hungry."

She had to eat her fill to regain her strength to argue with the others.

Once everyone was in their car, they headed toward the hotel.

Shortly after, everyone arrived at the hotel.

Since they were quite a big group of people, Elliot had booked a small event hall.

Some of them brought their dates, so someone suggested for women and men to be at different tables.

Just then, one of the men dragged Elliot to the men's table and Avery calmly followed, before taking a seat next to Elliot.

"Ever since we've been in a relationship, we have always sat next to each other during meals. It's a promise of love."

Avery smiled sweetly as she scanned the frozen expressions on all the men.

"If you can't bear to see me, you are welcome to sit at the next table. We Indeed, they all disliked Avery, but none of them dared to say so to Elliot's face.

"Hahaha! I guess Miss. Tate can drink? You will need to drink with us if you sit at this table!"

Once all the men were seated, one of them plucked up the courage said.

Avery smiled confidently.

"Drink? Quit joking around! Elliot would never let me drink with another man. The last time a man passed me a glass of wine, he broke that person's arm. I was so scared back then!"

The expressions on all their faces darkened.

"There's also that one time that a man forced me to drink. Elliot beat him so bad that he ended up in the hospital."

Avery chuckled cheerfully.

"Those men you were talking about are strangers to Elliot, how could they compare to us?"

A dignified old man shouted.

Avery batted her eyes innocently.

"But to me, you are all the same! No man can make me drink except for Elliot! Or would you all prefer Elliot to feed me the wine you are trying to force down my throat?"

The men resented Avery and turned their attention to Elliot instead, to pressure him into interfering.

Chapter 1031

Elliot looked troubled. He said to everyone, "She has a very low alcohol tolerance and goes berserk once she is drunk. Not only will she swear and scold, but she will also flip tables. If you can bear the consequences...I'll let her raise her glass to you all?"

Avery immediately raised her wine glass in cooperation.

"Hey! Hey! Forget about it! We haven't seen each other in a long time! We finally are able to gather to drink. Avery, place your glass down!"

One of them sternly said.

Avery timidly placed her glass down.

The waiter began to serve food.

Soon, the table was filled with food.

Avery was famished, so once the dishes were served, she immediately said,

"Everyone, the food has been served. Let's feast! Help yourselves!"

Then, she picked up her utensils and took a piece of meat to eat.

Everyone had a good level of living quality.

They were used to eating expensive meat and seafood, but when they saw Avery only going for the expensive meat, they were still a little uncomfortable because their female partners rarely ate meat.

"Avery, you're taking so much meat, aren't you afraid you'll get fat?"

Her actions provoked one of the men there.

"Elliot finds me too skinny.He'll only be happy if I eat meat."

"Oh, I don't find you skinny! I think you have a very ordinary body..."

"You're not my husband.I don't care what you think."

Avery looked at that man.

"Furthermore, I really hate it when a slick man comments on my body.But look, we have two different upbringings, I won't say what I don't like out loud.If you didn't talk about me, I wouldn't have said that about you too."

Avery's words utterly offended every single man there, besides Elliot! Elliot saw how the atmosphere was rather tense, so he raised his glass.

After all, it would be a waste if no one ate the food on the table.

No matter what, he would get them to have some food first.

He would deal with the rest later.

"Avery is still young.She doesn't know how to conduct herself, please bear with me.I'll drink to everyone as an apology!"

Elliot said downed the wine in his glass.

Only then did everyone relax and start to eat.

That meal was rather peaceful, but Avery knew that beneath the harmonious facade, a current of hatred and resentment flowed.

A few of the men kept glaring at her intimidatingly.

Avery ignored them.She was not affected by them at all.

After all, seeing them get angry could only relieve her of the anger she felt at home.

Especially the one who said that he wanted to give a lady to Elliot to serve and pleasure him, he glared at Avery a few times.

Avery finished her meal and put down her utensils.

She took a few bites of fruit and got up to head to the washroom.

After she left, everyone immediately persuaded Elliot to calm down and reconsider whether it was a good choice to marry such a barbaric woman.

Elliot replied swiftly, "I have made up my mind. Stop trying to persuade me otherwise."

In the washroom, Avery just entered when a brunette lady followed her in.

"Avery, Gary wanted me to pass a message to you."

The lady stood next to Avery.

"Elliot is a brilliant businessman, but your thinking is rather narrow. You will only affect him. If you really love Elliot, you should let him be free!"

Avery looked at the lady coldly and enunciated, "Go tell your Gary. I will not let Elliot become like you! No matter how much money you earn, Elliot and I won't envy you all! Stop coming to look for Elliot in the future. As long as I'm with Elliot, I will not host you all."

After the meal, Elliot got the driver to send Avery back home while he went in Gary's car. Avery watched him leave, furrowing her brows.

However, she believed that Elliot had already made a decision.

Chapter 1032

On the way back, the driver asked, "Miss Tate, where are we heading to?"

"My house." Avery had a full meal, so she was rather sleepy at that moment.

She looked at her phone to see if there were any new messages.

Mike sent her a few screenshots taken with the drone.

[Mike: We mainly scouted the first target area this morning.

We found seven units that placed red objects outside their windows.

I checked each of them.

I didn't find your patient.

Will continue in the afternoon!]

Avery did not expect that Mike would work so quickly.

She replied, (Thank you.)

[Mike: Are you finally up? I heard that you spent the night at Elliot's last night.

Where are you now? If you're still at Elliot's, I'll go there for a free meal!)

[Avery: I'm not at his house.

A group of terrible people came to his house today.

I chased them away.)

[Mike: F*ck. Are you that fierce? They are still his guests!)

[Avery: Is this your first day knowing me? It's because I knew that they were not good people. Also, once we are married, his matters will be the family's matters. After we get married, if he doesn't want me to do the things he doesn't like, I will change for him too.]

(Mike: Hmm. After all, once you're married, you are family. If something happens to him, it will affect you too. Did you lecture Hayden last night?)

Avery blushed a little.

She replied, (Who told you?)

[Mike: This morning when the children realized that you're not home, they thought that you left in anger, so I knew that a fight happened last night.

Don't worry about the children.

Mrs. Cooper called Mrs. Scarlet this morning.

We knew that you went to have afun with Elliot.]

[Avery: Don't exaggerate things. I went to look for him to deal with something.)

[Mike: It was so late at night. What could you possibly look for him for?]

[Avery: ...]

[Mike: Hahaha!]

Avery placed her phone down and ignored him.

A moment later, Mike called.

Avery saw his call.

She hesitated for a few seconds before answering it.

"Avery, how are you planning to celebrate the Memorial Day weekend?" Mike asked, "Does Elliot have time to be with you? f he doesn't have the time, I can take you out!"

Avery had not considered this.

Even if she was not too busy every day, she was not free either.

She had three children to care for.

If she wanted to get busy, she could do it at any moment.

"Didn't you ask Chad?"

"I did! We'll go together!"

"I would rather care for the children at home than go with the two of you."

"Then, I'll bring the children together, so you'll be home alone!" Mike intentionally agitated

her.

Avery sneered.

"Sure, take Robert along.

Then I can truly spend time alone with Elliot! It's great since I haven't spent time alone with him for a long time."

Mike took a deep breath.

He wanted to retort but he was at a loss for words.

In the end, he could only chuckle and say, "Has Elliot proposed to you yet?"

Avery, he hasn't even proposed to you, yet you already agreed to marry him.

Are you just too easy to pursue?"

Avery blushed.

She said with gritted teeth, "I don't care if he proposes or not! It's just a gimmick! If one is willing to marry, even without a proposal, they would get married.

If they don't want to get married, even if they were proposed to a hundred times, they wouldn't get married!"

"Look at you, I just mentioned it and you have already flared up.

That means that you really want that gimmick, but that man Elliot doesn't understand..."

Before Mike could finish his sentence, Avery hung up.

If Mike was not helping her look for Adrian, she would surely reprimand him.

After the driver sent Avery back to the Starry River Villa, he dialed Elliot.

"Mr. Foster, I have safely sent Miss Tate home.

Where are you right now? I'll pick you up," The driver said.

Elliot replied, "I'm at the airport.

Come and pick me up in an hour."

The driver said, "Okay."

Chapter 1033

An hour later, the driver picked Elliot up from the airport.

Once Elliot got in the car, the driver asked, "Mr. Foster, where to?"

Elliot rubbed the area in between his brows.

He pondered for a while before saying, "To the office!"

The driver said, "Okay."

After driving off, the driver looked at Elliot's face through the rearview mirror.

Coincidentally, Elliot saw him doing that, so he asked, "What's going on?"

"Mr. Foster, when I was sending Miss Tate back, she was talking to someone on the phone.

They were in a fight." The driver hesitated for a while before saying to Elliot,

"The person on the other end said that you didn't propose to Miss Tate.

You missed out on a step.

Miss Tate was so furious her face flushed.

She even hung up on the other person."

Avery constantly bickered that way with Mike, but it was the first time the driver had witnessed this, so he thought that Avery was feeling extremely aggrieved.

On top of that, the driver exaggerated his words, which caused Elliot to think that Avery was feeling aggrieved.

Since other people were mocking Avery for not being proposed to, he should just propose to her during the Memorial Day weekend, right?

At that thought, Elliot immediately started planning his proposal.

However, he had never proposed to someone before.

He was inexperienced, so he decided to tap into the hiveminds.

He opened the chat group and sent a text.

[Elliot: I plan on proposing to Avery during the Memorial Day weekend, do you guys have any good suggestions?]

[Ben: Haven't you two already decided on the engagement date? Why do you need to do the extra step of proposing?]

90[Chad: Mr. Foster just wants to be romantic, right? Proposing in May, getting married in June, it sounds great.]

[Jun: I proposed to Tammy with the help of my family while on holiday. I just decorated the hotel room then prepared some good lighting and filled it with roses and put on some flirty music. Then, I tricked her into the room and knelt on one knee, taking the ring out. She cried because it was just too romantic!]

[Elliot: Isn't that just too cliché?]

[Ben: Cliche indeed.]

[Chad: Yes.]

(Jun: But Tammy cried! She said that she was super moved!]

[Elliot: Which is why you two are married.]

(Ben: Haha!)

(Chad: Mr. Foster, are you planning to propose outside or at home?)

[Jun: Hmph. Elliot wants a special proposal. He would surely do it outside! If he proposed at home, it would be just as cliché as mine.]

(Elliot: Then, I'll do it outside!]

Ben, Chad, and Jun were speechless.

Elliot was such a prideful person.

Would he not feel embarrassed?

Elliot saw how they stopped responding.

He calmed down.

He considered the consequences of proposing in public.

He found it unbearable, so he quickly added, [I'll book a venue outside.]

Ben, Chad, and Jun were once again speechless.

What was the difference between booking a venue outside and proposing at home?

Ben was much bolder.

He asked Elliot this question.

Elliot replied, (If it's outside, I could hire the best pianist, then hire the best lighting specialist to deal with the lights. Then, I could hire the best chef to make a good meal. I can't do that at home.)

Ben, Chad, and Jun were stunned! Sure enough, this was Elliot's style.

[Ben: Do you need our help?]

[Elliot: To be third wheels? She has already agreed to marry me. The proposal is just another form of us on a date.) After a moment, Elliot texted, (This is a secret between us. I want to give her a surprise.)

Chapter 1034

In the evening, at the Starry River Villa.

During dinner, Mike told Avery his plans for the outing on Memorial Day.

"Why are you telling me this? I'm not going with you anyway," Avery said calmly.

"I know you're not coming with us.

I'm telling you because I'm taking Hayden along," Mike explained, "Will you let Hayden come with us?"

Avery looked at Hayden.

"Do you want to go play with them? Do you have a holiday?"

Hayden said, "I've already agreed to them."

Avery was speechless.

Mike looked smug.

"Since you have nothing to say, I'm taking Hayden out on Memorial Day.

Layla said that she is going out with Eric.

As for Robert, I wanted to take him along, but Mrs. Cooper disagreed."

Avery placed her utensils down and swept all of them a gaze.

"What is the meaning of this? Are you really leaving me home alone?"

“Didn’t you want to spend time with Elliot alone?” Mike teased, “Shouldn’t you be happy?”

“I wasn’t serious.

He might not even be free on Memorial Day.” Avery felt a little sad thinking about how she was left alone.

“Just get him to take you out.

The wedding is in a month! There’s nothing wrong with taking a few days off,”

Mike consoled her, “After all, I have already booked a ticket for Hayden.

We’ll give you a video call every day.”

Avery harrumphed and picked her utensils up once again.

Layla coaxed, “Mommy, why don’t you come with me and Uncle Eric! He said that he wants to bring me scuba diving!”

Forget about it.

I’ll just stay at home.” Avery planned to ask Elliot later what his Memorial Day plans were.

At that moment, Mrs. Cooper came over with a bowl of soup.

“Avery, Mike said that he wanted to bring Robert abroad on a trip.

I think it’s not a good idea, so I refused,” Mrs. Cooper said to Avery, “Robert is still young.

His immune system is still weak.

If you’re not there, what would happen if Robert fell sick?”

Avery nodded.

“Hmm, do you want to take a break for Memorial Day? I’m not doing anything.

I can care for the children.”

Upon Avery’s words, Mike immediately hinted at Mrs. Cooper with his eyes.

Mrs. Cooper saw Mike’s hint, but she was confused.

What did Mike mean?

Avery followed Mrs. Cooper's gaze and looked at Mike.

"Are your eye muscles cramped?"

Mike immediately retracted his gaze.

He coughed.

"I think you should discuss it with Elliot first.

What if Elliot is asking you out?"

Mrs. Cooper immediately understood what Mike meant.

"Avery, I won't take the day off on Memorial Day.

I'll wait for a while."

"Oh, okay then."

After dinner, Avery went to help the children to pack.

In the dining hall, Mrs. Cooper asked Mike, "What was the hint you gave me just now?"

Mike said softly, "Elliot is planning to propose on Memorial Day."

Mrs. Cooper said, "Avery doesn't know about that?"

Mike replied, "That man wants to give her a surprise."

Mrs. Cooper blushed.

"Then, why don't I take Robert along with you two! They indeed have not spent any time together for a long time."

Mike said, "Okay! If you think it's too far to go abroad, we could have a trip in the country too.

Mrs. Cooper said, "Okay! As long as Avery and Mr. Foster have fun on Memorial Day, I'm fine with anything."

In the children's room, after Avery packed for the children, she came out of their room and bumped into Mrs. Cooper.

“Avery, I plan to take Robert along with Mike and the others on Memorial Day.”

Chapter 1035

Avery was stunned.

“Are you sure?”

Mrs. Cooper smiled widely.

“Hmm, don’t worry.

I will take care of Robert.

I will make sure he doesn’t fall sick.”

“Why did you change your mind suddenly?” Avery felt something was off.

“If you were to take Robert out, I would be home alone.”

Mrs. Cooper said, “Get Master Elliot to come and be with you! I’ve already told Mike.”

Mrs. Cooper left.

Avery returned to her room and called Elliot.

“Elliot, do you have any plans on Memorial Day?”

On the other end of the line, Elliot clearly had not thought about this matter.

His tone was rather laidback.

“Memorial Day is not here yet, right?”

“It’s in two days.

Mike is going to take Hayden and Robert out to play.

Eric will be taking Layla scuba diving.

I thought I was the only one who hasn’t planned for the holidays yet.” Avery sounded a little sad.

“I never thought that you haven’t planned for it yet.

Don’t tell me you’ll still be busy preparing for the wedding on Memorial Day?”

Elliot did not answer her question, but asked her, “They are all going out and leaving you home alone?”

“Yes! Are you trying to take pity on me? Aren’t you alone too?”

“How do you plan to celebrate? I’ll come to be with you.” Elliot chuckled a little.

“Oh...let’s talk about it later! I’ll go think it through while I’m in the shower.”

Avery let out a sigh.

She murmured; “Suddenly the children are leaving me.

I’m not used to this feeling.”

Elliot was just thinking of a way to console her when she added, “But I’m happy! I can finally not care about the kids.

The next few days will be all about me!”

Elliot was speechless.

“By the way, Avery, your patient, Adrian.

What is his father’s name?” Elliot suddenly asked.

The smile on Avery’s face vanished.

“Why are you suddenly concerned about this?”

“You said that his family treated him badly.

You also planned to look for him.

Tell me about his family, I’ll help you look for him.” Elliot wanted to make sure

Adrian was the young master of the Fosters who was taken away back then.

If it was not him, that was the best.

It was him, he had to act.

He had to make sure this person never appeared in public.

Avery’s breathing suddenly turned heavy.

Elliot already knew that Nathan White was his biological father.

At that moment, when he mentioned Adrian, he must have suspected something.

Avery did not dare to think about what would happen if Elliot knew about Adrian's identity and how he would react.

She was afraid that the outcome would be something she did not want to see.

"You're so busy.

You don't have to help.

It's best if I can find him, but if I can't find him, I won't keep looking for him,"

Avery said calmly, "Let's think of what to do during Memorial Day!"

"Hmm."

After hanging up, Avery sat by the bed with mixed emotions.

From how she understood Elliot, if he wanted to keep his current identity, he would never let Adrian live.

Even if he was very close to Shea, he would not spare Adrian any mercy just because he was Shea's twin brother.

If he was not cruel, he would not be able to climb to where he was that day.

Thus, Avery had to look for Adrian as quickly as possible and transfer him to a safe location.

On the other side, Elliot picked up his wine glass and took a sip.

He was almost sure that namesake-wise, Adrian's father was Nathan.

Nathan would not just bring Adrian up for free.

Rosalie must have been secretly wiring money to him all those years.

After Rosalie passed away, Nathan's source of income dried up, which was why he brought Adrian to Aryadelle to look for Elliot for money.

It was a pity that Elliot would not give in to Nathan's ploy.

Elliot downed the glass of wine and made a phone call.

Chapter 1036

"Go and check if there is a man called Adrian by Nathan's side." Elliot's tone was cold without any warmth.

“If there is...”

Elliot's words were stuck in his throat.

Adrian was Shea's twin.

He should be Foster's young master.

Although he might not be liked by his father, a comfortable life was guaranteed.

Elliot thought about how he took over his name, family, and life, but at that moment, he even wanted to kill him to ensure that his reputation and life would not be affected.

Was that too cruel?

“Mr. Foster, if this man is there, what should I do?” The bodyguard on the other end of the line asked, “Please tell me what to do.”

Elliot was silent for a while.

He swallowed his saliva.

“Make him disappear from the face of the earth.”

Since he knew that he was going to hell, he was going to be as selfish as he could! God dealt him a bad set of cards.

If he was going to be merciful, he would never win!

At the Starry River Villa, Avery came out of the shower feeling extremely nervous.

Although Elliot and her were about to get married, and everything seemed happy and joyous, Avery could sense that he was still the stubborn, strong – headed man who would never bow down to anyone.

Adrian had become the wedge between them.

This wedge would not only end up hurting them both, but it would also change the sweet relationship they had going on at that moment.

After drying her hair, Avery looked at herself in the mirror, breathing heavily.

Why should she think of the worst possible scenario to intimidate herself when things have barely happened?

Since Elliot was willing to marry her, as long as she could talk to him properly, there would surely be a better solution to the issue about Adrian.

At that thought, Avery felt some pressure disappear off her shoulders.

She got in bed and looked at her phone, checking on where to go during Memorial Day.

She looked at the famous sightseeing places around, but she was not enthusiastic about any of those.

No matter where they went, it would be filled with people.

Elliot did not like to go to places with a crowd.

Even if she got him to go, even if he was willing to do it, he would surely be unhappy.

Thus, she searched for non-famous tourist spots.

There would surely be less crowding in the less famous tourist spots.

Even if it was less famous, it was fine.

She wanted to spend time with Elliot.

The scenery was not important.

The first spot from her search was called the Lover's Eye.

The Lover's Eye was a turquoise lake in the shape of an eye.

It was soothing just by looking at the pictures.

To visit the Lover's Eye, they had to fly to its state, then drive to its city, because the city where the Lover's Eye was located did not have an airport.

After reaching the city where the lake was, they still had to drive to the town.

Once they reached the town, they could find an inn to rest.

That was because to get to the Lover's Eye, they had to enter a village, taking more than an hour.

The most important part came after entering the village because they had to hike through the mountains! There was no modern-day transportation there, they had to go by local horses to reach the Lover's Eye.

Avery observed the transportation route to get to the Lover's Eye before exiting the webpage.

She tried to imagine Elliot on a horse, hiking through the mountains.

If she gave him two choices to pick, he would surely pick a famous tourist spot somewhere easier to get to but more crowded.

"It would be better to sleep at home!" Avery placed her phone down, switched off the lights, and slept.

Chapter 1037

At Elliot's mansion.

It was 15 minutes past midnight.

Elliot came out of the shower.

He was quite busy working that day, so he did not head over to Avery's.

He had some wine in the evening, so his head was rather dizzy at that moment, but he was not sleepy.

He decided to propose to Avery on the Memorial Day weekend, but he had not even picked the venue.

He did not understand romance.

Avery did not demand much from him in this department, so he had missed out on this.

He looked at his phone and found his photos.

He looked at an album.

It was all the buildings he had designed

He wanted to propose to Avery in a building that he had designed.

It was romantic that way.

The next day, at a property sales department, Nathan brought his eldest son, Peter to look at properties.

They moved out of their rented place the day before and moved into a hotel.

Staying at the hotel was not a long-term solution, on top of that, Elliot only gave them one and a half million, they would surely not settle for so little money.

Clearly, the battle with Elliot was going to be a long one, so Nathan and Peter have discussed and decided to buy a house to settle down in first.

The sales staff sized them up and passionately introduced them to different types of housing.

“You want a huge one, right? Just nice, we have a one hundred and fifty-four square meters unit.

This unit faces north and south.

It has good natural lighting and it's on a floor that's not too high or low, it's on the twelfth floor.”

“This is the last unit of its kind.

A customer came to see the unit yesterday.

Do you want to go and have a look?” The staff asked them.

“Let's go have a look!” Nathan wanted to quickly settle their housing problem.

The staff brought them to see the unit and returned to the sales department when another male staff strode over.

“Jody, did you take them to see unit one five four? The customer I brought to see the unit yesterday has booked it.”

Jody looked pitiful, “But my customer is happy with that unit too!”

"I brought the customer to see the unit first.

I have to save it for him," The male staff member said in a justified tone.

Jody walked over to Nathan and Peter and said apologetically, "Mr. White, I'm sorry, the unit has been booked by the customer yesterday.

They plan to come over to pay the deposit."

Nathan swept her a cold gaze.

"They haven't paid the deposit, right? I'll buy that unit! I'll pay for it now! I'll pay for it in full!"

Facing Nathan's arrogance, the staff members were rather helpless.

Right at this moment, the customer, who came to see the unit the day before, arrived.

"Hey! Mr. Foster, you came just in time.

The unit you saw yesterday, another customer wanted it as well.

He said that he would pay for it in full.

Can you pay for it in full? If you could also pay it in full, the unit is yours," The male staff asked Cole Foster agitatedly while walking over to him.

Cole looked over at Nathan.

Nathan smiled maliciously.

"Mr. Foster? Don't tell me you're the failure of the Fosters, Cole Foster?"

Cole furrowed his brows.

"Who are you? How dare you talk to me in that way?"

Nathan looked condescendingly.

"Of course I would dare to talk to you that way.

Even if your father comes over, I will dare to talk that way too! Tell your father that I used to be the Fosters' driver, but right now I am much better than all of you! I'm taking this unit!"

Cole saw how arrogant Nathan was.

He said angrily, "You're just a driver.

How dare you be so cocky in front of me!"

"Because my son is great!" Nathan raised his chin high.

"All my son needs to do is stomp his feet and the entire Aryadelle has to bow down to him!"

"Who is your son?" Cole mocked.

"Boasting has its limits! In Aryadelle, only my uncle has that sort of power! Your son is nothing compared to my uncle!"

Chapter 1038

Nathan was so furious his face flushed.

He almost yelled, "Your uncle is my son!"

At that moment, Peter nudged him with his elbow.

"Mr. Foster, my father has a bad temper.

Please don't argue with him.

I'm only afraid he might use force on you.

My father is not capable of anything else, but he is quite good at fighting," Peter reminded Cole kindly, "If you don't believe me, you can ask your father."

Cole was intimidated.

At that moment, he did not have Elliot's support, so he did not dare to go up against others.

If not, and he was beaten up, he had to bear it.

He timidly left the sales department and took his phone out to make a call to his father.

When Henry heard that his son was being bullied by an ex-driver of the Fosters, his blood boiled!

“Get him to wait there! I’m coming to see him right now!” Henry said and hung up the phone.

Cole returned to the sales department, humiliated by the fact that Nathan swiped his card to buy the unit that he had his eyes on.

When Nathan had successfully signed the deal, Henry arrived.

“Dad, it’s him.” Cole pointed at Nathan and said angrily, “He bought the unit we saw yesterday.”

Henry looked at Nathan fiercely.

Nathan showed off the housing contract to Henry.

He said, “Henry, I’m sure you never expected that this day would come, right?”.

Henry recognized him.

His face flushed.

“You’re Nathan White? Where did you get so much money from? Have you robbed the bank?”

“Hahaha! How funny! How much money can I get from robbing the bank? I’m much better than the bank right now!” Nathan was extremely cocky.

Henry was extremely upset seeing Nathan so arrogant.

Nathan used to be a driver for the Fosters.

He only used to earn minimum wage and yet he was being arrogant at that moment!

How the tables have turned!

He did not understand what luck had been bestowed upon Nathan! He never heard about his news previously, turns out he had struck gold!

Looking at how Henry lowered his head and was at a loss for words, Nathan was extremely delighted

“Henry, if I remembered correctly, you have beaten me up once!” Nathan passed the contract to his son and walked over to Henry haughtily.

“Yes! I kicked you before! You were causing a scene at my house! Of course I had to teach you a lesson! Don’t think that just because you’re rich you can do whatever you like!” Henry said sternly.

Nathan chuckled.

“Look how I intimidate you.

Let’s go have a drink so you can tell me how miserable you are right now, and I can tell you how great I am right now!”

Henry wanted to know how Nathan got rich, so he followed along.

When Cole saw what was happening, he felt as if the Fosters’ reputation was utterly humiliated, so he left in a huff!

At Tate Industries, Avery had been busy the entire morning.

She looked at her phone and saw Mike’s message.

[I still have not located Adrian.

Are you sure he placed a red object outside his window?]

Avery furrowed her brows and went through her contacts.

She looked at Adrian and dialed his number.

She wanted to confirm with Adrian about that.

Technically, according to their deal, the drone should be able to locate Adrian easily.

Turns out, when she dialed, a cold automated response rang out, “The number you have dialed is not in use.”

Avery’s heart constricted tightly.

She gasped! How was Adrian’s number not in use anymore? Did Nathan do it?

Chapter 1039

Avery immediately dialed Nathan.

“I’m sorry, the number you have dialed is currently unavailable, please try again later.”

Avery looked at her phone in a daze.

The screen of her phone reflected her stunned expression.

Did Nathan vanish together with Adrian? It was best that they left Aryadelle! If they only went into hiding, it would be trouble!

According to Nathan’s sly and sinister character, who knew what he was up to!

At the restaurant, Henry raised his glass to give Nathan a few rounds of alcohol.

When Henry saw how red Nathan’s face was, he asked, “Nathan, how did you get rich? My son told me that your son is someone important in Aryadelle.

How have I never heard anything about your son?

“I don’t blame you.

After all, I have only returned for a few days!” Nathan smiled smugly and said,

“If my son is not an important figure, how could he simply give me one and a half million dollars to spend?”

“How is your son so great? Who is he?” Henry pretended to look envious.

“Is he doing legitimate business?”

The provocation took effect.

Nathan looked serious and yelled, “Of course my son is doing a legitimate business!”

“Oh, since he is in proper business, I should have heard of his name, right?”

Henry said.

“Of course! My son’s name is famous! In Aryadelle, everyone has heard of him before!”

“What is his name?”

“His name is...” Nathan suddenly sobered up.

“This is my family’s privacy.

Of course, I won’t tell you! You only need to remember that I, Nathan White, am much better than you, Henry Foster, right now! The next time you see me, you have to refer to me in respect!”

Henry sneered.

“Unless you tell me your son’s name, igof not, I won’t believe you!”

“What if I told you how my one and a half million dollars came about?”

“What is one and a half million dollars? I have fifteen million!” Henry said,

“Does your son have that much money?”

“Hahaha! You’re trying to kill me with humor!” Tears fell out of Nathan’s eyes.

He even slammed the table.

“Fifteen million is nothing to my son! Hahaha!”

Henry’s ego had been deeply bruised.

If what Nathan said was true, that meant his son was one the wealthiest people.

When he returned home, he was going to look through the list of wealthiest people! He wanted to see who Nathan’s son was!

In a blink of an eye, it was Memorial Day.

Avery got up early and packed for her children.

She was prepared to send them off.

Mike initially wanted to leave the country, but in the end, considering Robert was coming with them, it was inconvenient taking him out of the country, so they changed to somewhere within the country.

After breakfast, Avery sent Mike and the others off.

“Mrs. Cooper, if you don’t feel comfortable, you can take Robert back at any time!" Avery said, "Hayden, just go and have fun, stop thinking about your studies.

I'll call you every day."

Hayden responded and got in the car.

Mrs. Cooper followed suit with Robert in her arms.

After the car left, the villa was instantly much quieter.

"Mommy, why hasn't Uncle Eric come to pick me up? Hayden and the others have left." Layla was carrying a little bunny backpack, looking out the window.

"Babe, are you so eager to leave?" Avery was a little sad.

"If you leave, I'll be home alone."

Layla raised her chin and smiled, "If I leave, Daddy will come, right? Now that all the third wheels have left, you and Daddy can do whatever you want to do."

"What can Daddy and I do?" Avery said in surprise.

"How could a child like me know?" Layla pouted.

"They said that you were going to do something."

Chapter 1040

Avery was just about to ask Layla who told her that when Eric arrived.

"Mommy, Uncle Eric is here!" Layla said and ran to the courtyard.

"Layla, watch out!" Avery chased after her.

Outside the courtyard, a car came to a stop.

Eric came out of the car.

"Avery, I'm taking Layla.

When she has had enough fun, I'll send her back." Eric walked over to Avery and looked at her tenderly.

You're always helping with the children every holiday," Avery said, "Is this really alright for you?"

"If Layla is not with me, I'll be even more bored." Eric held Layla's hand.

"We'll make a move. We'll call you once we have reached."

"Okay, have a safe journey."

After Avery sent Layla off, the entire villa was truly empty.

The children were not at home, so Avery got the other servants to take off too.

At that moment, there was only a bodyguard at home, ensuring her safety.

Avery headed to the kitchen to clean the dishes and utensils they used that morning.

Then, she went to the storage room to look edfor the vacuum and started cleaning.

She fetched a pail of water and a cloth from the washroom.

She intended to wipe the house down.

Elliot did not contact her.

She did not know when he was coming to look zafor her.

Just when she was thinking about him, her phone suddenly rang.

She immediately placed the pail of water down and went to the living area.

She picked her phone up and accepted the call.

"Avery, the children have left, right? Let's go shopping!" On the other end the line, Tammy's voice came through.

"Didn't you say you'll be spending time with Jun?"

"We're only going out at night! I want to go shopping during the day," Tammy said excitedly, "There are so many events today! Are you 94free?"

"I'm free! Elliot hasn't come to see me yet.

I'm cleaning the house right now!"

"You're amazing! Wait for me at home.

I'll come to pick you up!" Tammy said and hung up the phone.

Avery looked at herself in pajamas.

She furrowed her brows.

Since Elliot was not coming to look for her, then she should go shopping with Tammy!

She returned to her room and changed into a long dress.

She looked at the weather outside her window before putting on a light cardigan.

After changing into her clothes, she went to her boudoir and started putting on makeup..

After doing all that, she picked her phone up and dialed Elliot.

She was not going to be with him during the daytime anymore since he did not ask her out earlier.

If he was not going to take initiative in asking her out, he should just be alone.

Avery dialed and soon the call was picked up.

“Avery, what are you doing? Have the children left?” Elliot’s calm voice came through.

Avery harrumphed.

“Don’t tell me you’re still sleeping.”

“No.

I’m already up.

I’m having breakfast.”

“Oh, then have a good meal.

I’m about to head out with Tammy,” Avery said, “You have fun with yourself during the day!”

“Okay, we will see each other at night.” His lazy voice had a hint of humor in it.

“I’ll send you the address to meet at night later.”

Avery found it strange.

“You have already decided on a place?”

“Hmm.

Go have fun with Tammy.

I’ll see you at night.” He sounded a little more serious.

“Hmm.” Avery never expected that Elliot had already settled on a place for that night that early.

Chapter 1041

It looked like Elliot was not completely unprepared for the date.

After the call, a honk came from outside.

Tammy had arrived.

Avery took her bag and left her room.

At one of the mid-range neighborhoods in Creekview, Nathan and his children moved into the newly renovated unit they bought a few days ago.

After acquiring the unit, Nathan and his son went to the furniture shop to buy furniture and electronics.

That day was the day they officially moved in.

They should be happy moving into a new house, but Nathan started worrying about the remaining money on his card.

Nathan called Peter over.

He wanted to discuss how they were going to get money from Elliot.

“If this time the deal doesn’t come through, he might kill us in rage, so we have to first contact the media.” Nathan furrowed his brows.

He said in a scheming manner, “We might even need some self-defense tools with us.

Also, Adrian, that idiot.

We have to make sure he doesn't run."

"It's the twelfth floor.

How could he run? He doesn't know how to take the lift.

Unless he jumps off the building," Peter sneered.

"Although he is an idiot, he is quite afraid of death."

Father and son joked around while looking at Adrian, who was sitting on the sofa in the living area.

Adrian was sitting upright on the sofa, looking at the tv seriously.

The tv was playing a period love drama.

It was turned on by Lilith, Nathan's daughter.

Lilith turned on the tv, but a phone call came, so she went to her room to answer the call.

Adrian's gaze was fixated on the tv.

He was carefully listening to the things they were saying.

"Miss, they locked us in here.

What should we do? If we can't escape, you won't be able to marry Lord Smith!"

"I will never marry into the Smiths!"

"No! What will happen to me if you die?"

"When I die, you can escape! Diana, you have to escape! Get Bill to avenge me!"

Tammy brought Avery to the mall.

They immediately headed for the clothing store.

They bought the latest model dress from Chavel.

It was a long white dress.

The dress was embroidered with various pleating techniques in the shape of small three-dimensional flowers.

It was also stacked with layers of tassels.

Wearing such a dress made them seem like they were going to go up on stage.

“Aren’t you going on a date with Elliot tonight? You have to dress up!” Tammy com53forted Avery when she saw how troubled she looked.

Avery looked at the dress on her and furrowed her brows.

“I’m just meeting up with him.

I don’t have to dress up this way, right?”

“Why don’t you need to dress up when you’re seeing him?” ;

“I’m not saying I don’t need to dress up, but I don’t need to dress up so lavishly, right?” Avery looked at herself in the mirror.

“If I were to wear this dress to the date, does that mean I have to put on makeup and style myself? If not, this dress doesn’t match me.”

“Yes! Of course you must put on makeup and get styled! We must buy a pair of new shoes too! “Tammy brought Avery to pay.

“Let’s go! We still have a lot of things to do!”

“Tammy, are you not buying clothes?”

“I’ll buy them later! We have to dress you up first.” Tammy’s mission that day was to dress Avery up properly so when Elliot proposed to her that night, it would be even more romantic!

Soon, it was the afternoon.

Avery was made up to the nines.

Tammy sized her up properly and let out a sigh of satisfaction.

“I think the way you look right now, even if you went straight for your wedding, it would be fine.” Tammy was dazzled by Avery’s beauty.

“Tammy, you have dressed me up so much.

Elliot would surely not like it,” Avery said helplessly, “He said he prefers me without makeup.”

“Don’t listen to the lies men tell you.” Tammy smiled.

“When he sees you tonight, his eyes will surely sparkle!” At that moment, Avery’s phone rang.

She took her phone out and saw a message.

Chapter 1042

(I’m at South Devotion Plaza, F1, 2nd Floor. I’ll be waiting for you.)

Elliot sent her the location of their date that night.

Avery saw the message and could not help but smile.

“Who is it from?” Tammy came over and intentionally asked, “Look at you.

He only sent you a message and you’re already smiling so sweetly.

You two already have three children.

Why does it feel like you’re still on your honeymoon?”

Avery blushed. She placed her phone in her bag.

“So what if we have children? Haven’t you seen those old couples that are still very much in love? I have.”

“Tsk, I haven’t seen them in real life, but in a book.

It was talking about how an old couple was still so much in love that they exchanged dentures.

The author puts it as if they were indirectly kissing.”

Avery furrowed her brows.

“That’s not hygienic at all.”

“Hahaha! You’re not a doctor right now! Does that mean, according to you, if a man and a woman kiss, it's also unhygienic?"

Avery was speechless.

At the Creekview mid-range neighborhood, Adrian opened a bottle of drugs and poured all the pills out.

It was Nathan's antihypertensive drugs.

He had secretly taken them.

He looked at the white pills in his hands and furrowed his brows.

Adrian wanted to escape, but he could not.

He was on the twelfth floor.

He could not jump.

He could not escape from the front door either.

Lilith was guarding him day and night.

Even if he were to escape from Lilith, he did not know how to take the lift.
